We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Fortenfield & Losey, 858 Market street, San Francisco.

A Husband's Strategy—"What extravagance, to buy your wife such an expensive ring!" "On the contrary, since she got it she has bought only half as many pairs of gloves."

With Ely's Cream Balm a child can be treated without pain and with perfect safety. Try the remedy, it cures Catarrh.

My son has been afflicted with nasal catarrh since quite young. I was induced to try Ely's Cream Balm, and before he had used one bottle that disagreeable catarrhal smell had all left him. He appears as well as any one. It is the best catarrh remedy in the market.—L. C. Olmstead, Arcola, Ill.

One of my children had a very bad discharge from her nose. Two physicians prescribed, but without benefit. We tried Ely's Cream Balm, and, much to our surprise, there was a marked improvement. We continued using the Balm and in a short time the discharge was cured.—O. A. Carry, Corning, N. Y.

Apply Balm into each nostril. It is quickly absorbed. Gives relief at once. Price 50 cents at Druggists or by mail.

ELY BROTHERS, 56 Warren St., New York.

An Acquired Taste—"Why do they call their daughter 'Olive'?" "Because a liking for her has to be acquired."

Use Enameline Stove Polish: no dust, no smell.

Try Grimes for Breakfast.

THE REASON.

Let us look into the force, meaning, reason of the oft-repeated line: Cures Promptly and Permanently.

Pains Endured for 30 Years,
25 Years,
20 Years,
10 Years,

Have been promptly Cured by

ST. JACOBS OIL.

By the use of:

A FEW APPLICATIONS
A HALF BOTTLE
ONE BOTTLE
TWO BOTTLES.

Correspondence with Sufferers shows entire permanence of cure up to this time, in some cases covering

5 Years,
7 Years,
8 Years,
10 Years,

and so on, and this proof we hold.

A copy of the "Official Portfolio of the World's Columbian Exposition," descriptive of Buildings and Grounds, beautifully illustrated, in water color effects, will be sent to any address upon receipt of 10c. in postage stamps by THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., BALTIMORE, MD.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail. Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER, 25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY.

Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50 cts. Injector free.

Our readers will serve themselves by noticing the remarkable offerings advertised in another column by the Sherwood Hall Nursery Co. of Menlo Park and San Francisco, who are leaders on the coast in furnishing everything for the farm and garden.

"I can not sing the old songs,"
He said, as the chords vibrated;
And those who heard him wondered
Why he discriminated.

NATURE'S SUREST ALLY.

If nature did not struggle against disease, even in weakly constitutions swift indeed would be the course of a malady to its fatal termination. While nature thus struggles let us, lest worse befall us, aid her efforts with judicious medicinal help. Experience must be our guide in battles with disease, and that 'lamp to our feet' indicates Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a safe, tried and thorough ally of nature. If the blood be infected with bile, if the bowels and stomach are inactive, if the kidneys fail to expel impurities of which they are the natural outlet, a course of the Bitters is the surest reliance of the sufferer, one, moreover, that is sanctioned by professional indorsement and use for nearly half a century. No American or foreign remedy has earned greater distinction as a remedy for and preventive of chronic liver complaint, malaria, constipation, kidney and rheumatic trouble and debility.

"Money talks," said Parvey New, pompously. "Very true," was the reply; "but it doesn't always think before it speaks."

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

SEAL } A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surface of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Mrs. Bleecker—Bridget, have you turned the gas on in the parlor, as I told you? The New Domestic Jewel—Yis, mum; can't yez shmell it?

The good reputation of "Brown's Bronchia Troches" for the relief of Coughs, Colds and Throat Diseases has given them a favorable notoriety.

First Citizen—How is it that so many English men fight shy of Home Rule? Second Citizen—I fancy because it begins with the letter h.

HOW DO YOU DO

when you buy shoes or clothing? Don't you go to the place (if you can find it) where they tell you that you may wear the articles out, and then, if you're not satisfied, they'll refund the money? Why not do the same when you buy medicine?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is sold on that plan. It's the only blood-purifier so certain and effective that it can be guaranteed to benefit or cure, in every case, or you have your money back.

It's not like the ordinary spring medicines or sarsaparillas. All the year round, it cleanses, builds up, and invigorates the system. If you're bilious, run-down, or dyspeptic, or have any blood-taint, nothing can equal it as a remedy.

WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Successor of the "Unabridged."
Ten years spent in revising, 100 editors employed, more than $300,000 expended.
A Grand Educator Abreast of the Times
A Library in Itself
Invaluable in the household, and to the teacher, professional man, self-educator.

Ask your Bookseller to show it to you.

Published by G. & C. MERRIAM CO., SPRINGFIELD, MASS., U.S.A.
Send for free prospectus containing specimen pages, illustrations, testimonials, etc.
Do not buy reprints of ancient editions.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES

ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BO-SAN-KO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

Hood's Cures

Mrs. C. B. Card
Oakland, Cal.

Made Over Anew

Chronic Headache Cured—Weak Lungs Made Strong and Well.

"For years I had sick headaches every day, and I also had very weak lungs. Since I have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, I have been entirely cured of headaches and my lungs are strong and well. Friends often say

How Well You're Looking.

I tell them it is due to Hood's Sarsaparilla. I am small in stature—never weighed over 100 pounds before taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and at the time I began taking it I had run down to 85 pounds, but now I weigh 111½. My friends thought I would be dead long ago, but I am perfectly well. I am unable to express my thanks for the good has done me." MRS. C. B. CARD, 1215 Adeline Street, Oakland, California.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Hood's Pills cure all Liver Ills, Biliousness, Jaundice, Indigestion, Sick Headache.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

CHICKS INCUBATORS on Installments. Best Hatch—Lowest Price. Send for Catalogue. W. C. BEACH, Ripon, Cal.

PATENTS

BEST LEGAL ADVICE. BEST PATENTS OBTAINED.
DEWEY & CO.,
220 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO,
WASHINGTON, D. C., LONDON, ETC.

CATARRH! AND HOW TO CURE IT!

To show our confidence in the merits of TRICOSA CATARRH REMEDY we will send you TRIAL PACKAGE FREE.

We want lady agent in every town on Coast to sell Tricosa Regulators, Rheumatic Remedy, Headache, etc. Special inducements.

RED CROSS PHARMACY, - - - - OAKLAND, CAL.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE

Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

The Sower

Has no second chance. The first supplies his needs—if he takes the wise precaution of planting

Ferry's Seeds

Ferry's Seed Annual, for 1893, contains all the latest and best information about Gardens and Gardening. It is a recognized authority. Every planter should have it. Sent free on request. D. M. FERRY & CO., Detroit, Mich.

YOUNG MEN!
The Specific A No. 1.

Cures, without fail, all cases of Gonorrhœa and Gleet, no matter of how long standing. Prevents strictures, it being an internal remedy. Cures when everything else has failed. Sold by all Druggists.

Manufacturers: The A. Schoenhoeft Medicine Co., San Jose, Cal.

Price, $3.00.

S. F. N. U. No. 561. New Series No. 12.

"HE THAT WORKS EASILY, WORKS SUCCESSFULLY." CLEAN HOUSE WITH

SAPOLIO

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF

Moore's Revealed Remedy.

ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my hus. and was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours gratitude, MRS. N. V. STEELE.

SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

HERCULES GAS AND GASOLINE

Stationary and Marine ENGINES

For Launches, Schooners, Tow Boats, Etc.

For Pumping, Mining Hoists, Printing, Sawing, Turning Lathes, Soda Water Works, Etc.

For simplicity and success they beat the world. Clean, no ashes, smell or dirt. No engineer is necessary; they are easily managed. Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question. No battery or electric spark to care for. No double or false explosions, so frequent with the unreliable spark. The workmanship is the very best. Our ignition tubes are a success; they explode every charge of gas which enters the cylinder. Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day. For pumping outfits for irrigating purposes they run all day without an engineer. For hoisting outfits in mines they have met with the highest approval. We give estimates on the entire plant.

PALMER & REY, MANUFACTURERS,
405-407 Sansome St., San Francisco, Cal.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

Independence, Cal.

FRIDAY, APRIL 28, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXIV. NO. 45. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., APRIL 28, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1174

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$4 00
Six Months	2 25
Three Months	1 00
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

THE DROWNED MAN.

Every one in Fecamp knew the story of Mother Patin. She had certainly not been happy with her man, had Mother Patin, for her man used to beat her, when he was alive, as they thresh the wheat on the threshing floors.

He was master of a fishing smack, and had married her long ago because she was pleasant, although she was poor.

Patin, a good sailor, but brutal, frequented the drinking shop of old Auban, where he drank regularly every day his four or five little nips, and on days of luck at sea, eight or ten or even more, just according to how good he felt, as he said.

The drink was served to patrons by old Auban's daughter, a brown girl, good to look at, and who drew custom by her pleasant manners solely—for no one had ever hinted a word against her.

Patin, when he came into the shop, was content with looking at her, and his conversation was polite, the civil remarks of a decent fellow. After he had drunk his first glass of brandy he began to find her more attractive; at the second he winked his eye at her; at the third he would say, "If only you liked, Mamzelle Desiree"—without ever finishing his sentence; with the fourth he tried to catch her by the skirts, to kiss her; and when he went as high as ten her father brought him the other ones.

The old wine seller, who was up to all the tricks, sent Desiree round among the tables to stimulate the orders; and Desiree, who was not her father's favorite for nothing, flitted in and out among the customers, joking with them, with a laughing mouth and a snapping eye.

What with drinking his little nips, Patin became so used to the face of Desiree that he kept thinking of her even out at sea, when he was casting his nets, far out, windy nights and calm, nights of moonlight and nights of cloud. He thought on her, gripping the helm in the stern of his boat, while his four comrades were sleeping, their heads on their arms. He saw her, always smiling, pouring him the yellow brandy with a swing of the shoulder, then saying as she went:

"There! Does that suit you?"

And at last, keeping her thus in eye and mind, he was seized with such a longing to marry her that, unable to fight any longer against it, he asked for her hand.

He was well off, owner of his boat, of his nets and of a house at the foot of the hill on the Reserve, while old Auban had nothing. So he was received with enthusiasm, and the wedding came off at the earliest possible day, both parties wishing to hurry matters for different reasons.

But three days after the marriage Patin was utterly unable to conceive how he could have thought Desiree different from any other woman. Well, he must have been a fool! to tie himself up with a girl without a cent who had bewitched him with her rum, for sure, liquor that she'd put some filthy charm into for him.

And he swore, up and down the tide, breaking his pipe between his teeth, abusing his outfit; and having cursed copiously in all the customary terms at everything could think of, he spit forth the rest of his choler on the fish and the lobsters taken one by one from his nets, never throwing them into the basket without an accompaniment of scolding and bad names.

Then, home again, having within reach of tongue and hand his wife, old Auban's girl, it was not long before he was treating her like the lowest of the low in his speech. Then, as she heard him resignedly, used to that sort of thing already from her father, he grew exasperated at her silence, and one evening struck her. After that their life was frightful.

For ten years they talked of nothing else on the Reserve but the thrashings Patin gave his wife, and his way of swearing at her whenever he addressed her. He swore, in fact, in an individual style, with a richness of vocabulary and a sonority of organ equaled by no other man in Fecamp. From the moment his boat appeared at the entrance of the harbor, coming back from the fishing, they awaited the first volley he would launch from his deck to the jetty as soon as he saw the white cap of his helpmate.

He stood up in the stern, steering, his eye ahead or on the sail when the sea was high, and, spite of the preoccupations of the narrow and difficult channel, spite of the waves from the deep that piled up in it like mountains, he sought to make out among the women waiting for the fishers under the spray of the surges, his own old Auban's girl, the jade!

Then, when he saw her, for all the clamor of the waves and wind, he turned out on her a string of abuse, with such a strength of throat that every one laughed, although they were honestly sorry for her. Then when the boat came in at the quay, he had a way of discharging his ballast of civilities, as he called it, all the while unloading his fish, that drew around his tying up place all the rapscallions and loafers of the port.

It came out of his mouth sometimes like cannon shots, short and awful, sometimes like peals of thunder that rolled out for five minutes such a hurricane of objurgations that he seemed to have in his lungs all the storms of heaven.

Then when he was off his boat and found himself face to face with her, in the middle of a crowd of idlers and fishwomen, he fished out of the bottom of his hold a whole new cargo of insults and abuse, and escorted her home with these, she in front, he behind; she crying, he shouting.

Alone with her, the doors shut, he struck her on the slightest pretext. Anything was enough to make him lift his hand, and once began he never stopped, casting then in her face the real grounds of his hate. With each slap, with each thump he vociferated: "Ah! ye penniless wench! ah! ye ragged, hungry jade! A pretty thing I did the day I ever washed my mouth with the rotgut of your thief of a father!"

She lived, poor woman, in a state of incessant terror, in a constant tremble of soul and body, in affrighted expectation of outrage and blows. And this lasted for ten years. She was so timorous that she would grow pale when talking to any one, and she thought of nothing save the beatings hanging over her, and she had become lean, dry and yellow.

* * * * * * *

One night, when her man was at sea, she was awakened suddenly by that wild beast's growl which the wind makes when it comes on like a hound unleashed. She sat up in bed, alarmed; then, hearing nothing more, lay down again, but almost at once there came a bellowing in her chimney that shook the whole house, spreading throughout the entire heavens as if a herd of maddened cattle were rushing through space, snorting and lowing.

She rose and hastened to the harbor. Other women were coming from every direction with lanterns. The men flocked out, and all watched, lighting up in the night on the sea the foaming white caps of the summits of the waves.

The storm lasted fifteen hours. Eleven sailors did not come back, and Patin was among them.

They found on the Dieppe coast the wreckage of the Young Amelia, his sloop. They recovered down by Saint-Valery the bodies of his sailors, but never found his. As the hull of his boat seemed to have been cut in two his wife for a long time waited in dread for his return, for if there had been a collision it might have happened that the colliding vessel picked him up and carried him to foreign parts.

Later, little by little, she grew used to the idea that she was a widow, still trembling each time that a neighbor woman, a beggar, or a traveling peddler came in on her unexpectedly.

One afternoon, about four years after the disappearance of her husband, she stopped before the house of an old sea captain, lately dead, whose furniture was being sold.

Just at that moment they were putting up a parrot, a green parrot with a blue head, who looked at all the people with a disturbed and discontented air.

"Three francs!" cried the auctioneer; "a bird that can talk like a lawyer, three francs!"

A friend of Mme. Patin nudged her. "You ought to buy it, you that are rich," said she. "It would be company for you; it's worth more than thirty francs, that bird. You can always sell it again easy for twenty or twenty-five!"

"Four francs, ladies, four francs!" repeated the man. "He sings vespers and preaches like a cure. He's a phenomenon, a miracle!"

Mme. Patin laid ten sous more, and they gave her in a little cage the bird with his hooked beak, which she carried off.

She hung him up in her house, and as she opened the wire door to give him some water she got a peck on the finger which cut the skin and drew blood.

"Ah, he's ugly!" said she.

Nevertheless she gave him some corn and hemp seed, and left him preening his feathers and watching out of the corner of his eye his new house and his new mistress.

The day was beginning to dawn next morning when Mother Patin heard, unmistakable and distinct, a voice, strong, sonorous, rolling, the voice of Patin, crying:

"Will ye get up!"

She was so frightened that she hid her head under the sheets, for every morning aforetime, as soon as he opened his eyes, her dead husband used to shout in her ear these words, which she well remembered.

Shaking, rolling in a ball, her back bent before the blow she expected, she muttered, her face hidden in the pillows:

"Oh, Lord, there he is! Oh, Lord, it's he! He's come back! Oh, Lord!"

Minutes passed; no further sound broke the silence of the room. Finally, trembling, she raised her head, sure that he was there, waiting, about to strike.

She saw nothing save a ray of sunshine coming through the window, and she thought:

"He's hidden, for sure."

She waited a long time, then, a little reassured, thought:

"I guess I must have dreamed; he don't show himself."

She was closing her eyes again, when there burst out, right in her ear, the raging voice, the voice of thunder of the drowned man, vociferating:

"Blank to blank to blank, to blank, will you get up, you!"——

She leaped out of bed, forced by her instinct of obedience, her whipped woman's impulse to obey, that moves her still after four years, and will always move her, and will forever respond to that voice! And she spoke:

"Here I am, Patin—what is it?"

But Patin answered not.

Then, distracted, she looked about her, examining everywhere, in the wardrobe, in the chimney, under the bed, finding no one. Finally she fell on a chair, desperate with misery, convinced that only the soul of Patin was there, near her, come back to torment her.

Suddenly she thought of the garret, which one could get into from the outside by means of a ladder. For sure, he was hidden there to surprise her. Captured by savages somewhere he could not get away any sooner, and now he was back, wickeder than ever. There was no mistake about it, the sound of his voice was enough.

She asked, lifting her face toward the ceiling, "Are you up there, Patin?"

Patin did not reply.

Then she went out, and in fear and trembling, her very heart shaking, she climbed the ladder, opened the trap door, looked, saw nothing, went in, searched, and found no one.

Sitting down on a truss of hay she commenced to cry; but while she was sobbing, pierced by a poignant and supernatural fear, she heard in the room below her Patin talking. He seemed less in a rage, more easy, and he was saying:

"Dirty weather! Hard wind! Dirty weather! I've had no breakfast, damn it!"

She sang out through the ceiling:

"Here I am, Patin! I'm going to make your soup. Don't be mad, I'm coming!"

And she came down again, running.

There was no one there.

She felt herself as faint as if death had touched her, and she was starting to flee for help to the neighbors, when the voice cried, right in her ear:

"I've had no breakfast, damme!"

And the parrot in his cage looked at her with his little round eye, sly and wicked.

She, too, looked at him, dismayed, murmuring:

"Ah! it's you!"

He began again, wagging his head:

"Wait, wait, wait, I'll teach you to skulk, I will!"

What passed in her mind? She felt, she realized, that it was he, sure enough, the dead man, who walked again, who came back hidden in the feathers of this bird to torment her once more, to swear as before, all day, and bite her, and shout at her to bring the neighbors and make them laugh at her.

She rushed on the cage, opened it, seized the bird, which, defending himself, tore her flesh with beak and claws. But she held him with all her strength, with both hands, and throwing herself on the ground rolled upon him with the frenzy of a mad woman, crushing him, making of him a shred of flesh, a little soft green thing that no longer moved, no longer spoke, hung limp; then wrapping him up in a towel, as in a shroud, she ran out in her chemise, barefooted, to the edge of the quay, which the sea was lapping in little waves, and, shaking the cloth, she let fall into the water the little dead thing that looked like a handful of grass. Then she came back, threw herself on her knees before the empty cage, and, upset completely by what she had done, besought pardon of the good Lord, sobbing as if she had committed some frightful crime.—Translated from the French of Guy de Maupassant by Frederic Hart Wilson for Short Stories.

Beyond Her Powers.

Artist—You have a remarkable collection of pictures, Mrs. Suddenrich. Have you noticed the charming tone of this one?

Mrs. Suddenrich—N—o; fact is, I'm a little deaf.—Good News.

ARTIFICIAL GOLD.

How Alchemists Used to Make the Metal in Olden Times.

FAILURE RESULTED IN DEATH.

Promises That Brought Most of the Tricksters to an Unhappy Fate.—A Clever American.

It has often been stated, and with truth, that modern chemistry is indebted for much of its knowledge to the alchemists of old, whose experiments for the purpose of making gold by artifice were certainly extraordinary to the utmost point of absurdity. Some of them actually attempted to imprison the sun's rays, which they tried to calcine and powder, the rays being supposed to consist of pure golden sparks. Others sought to obtain the philosopher's stone, which was to transmute all other metals into gold, from honey, sugar, wine, blood, and even rainwater. Dead bodies were dug up from their graves, and saltpeter was extracted from them to serve as an ingredient. Still others believed that gold grew from seed, other metals merely furnishing a fruitful soil in which the yellow germs developed like plants.

In a work now rare, called the "History of Ancient Pharmacy," it is mentioned that Raymond Nully was said to have transformed 50,000 pounds of mercury into gold for the English King Edward III, and that from this supply of the yellow metal the first rose nobles were coined. The credibility of the story is somewhat diminished, however, by the circumstance that the same monarch was soon after obliged to coin money from his own and the queen's crown, and from the golden vessels of churches and cloisters. It is gravely recorded that the Emperor Frederic III, on Jan. 15, 1648, at Prague, changed three pounds of mercury into two and one-half pounds of gold by means of one grain of a lead powder given to him by a man named Richthausen. He created this man Baron of Chaos, and from the gold a medal was made which bore an inscription referring to its artificial origin. This medal was long preserved in the Vienna treasury.

In 1705 a Saxon lieutenant named Paykull was taken prisoner by Charles XII at Warsaw and condemned to death. He promised to make $1,000,000 worth of gold each year if his life were spared. In the presence of witnesses Paykull changed six ounces of lead into gold by means of a tincture which contained antimony, sulphur and saltpeter among other ingredients. Out of this gold medals were stamped. But Paykull must have failed in subsequent attempts, because he was afterward executed. If this goose had been able to lay real golden eggs it is to be presumed that he would not have met with so melancholy a fate.

The business of manufacturing gold in those days seems to have been an extremely dangerous one, commonly bringing persons who pursued it to a violent death. George Honauer promised to transform thirty-six hundredweight of iron into gold for the prince of Wurtemberg. The prince detected a boy, who had been concealed in the laboratory, in the act of putting gold in the crucible. He thereupon ordered an iron gallows to be constructed, from which the imprudent fakir was hanged in 1697. Two other goldmakers were likewise hanged from this same gallows at Stuttgart in 1606 and 1738 respectively.

In 1677 a man named Krohnemann entered the service of the marquis of Brandenburg with the rank of colonel. He soon won reputation as a goldmaker, and was given charge of the mint and mines. Subsequently he was suspected of fraud, and on his trial it was proved that he had stolen gold and silver from the treasury of the margrave for use in the deception. He was condemned to be hanged.

A quack named Daniel supplied Italian apothecaries with a wonderful gold powder called "usufur," which was supposed to have astonishing medicinal value. Pretending that the art of compounding this usufur with other drugs was a mystery known only to himself, he directed his patients not to permit the apothecaries to mix the ingredients of his prescriptions, but to buy them, including the usufur, and bring them to him for putting together. He mixed the drugs, omitting the usufur, in which manner he succeeded in having restored to him the gold powder, previously sold by him at a high price to the apothecaries. The powder soon became famous, and the quack finally offered to teach Duke Cosmos II of Florence the art of making gold. The duke paid Daniel 20,000 ducats for the secret, and the swindler fled to France with the money.

Count Cajetan in 1705, in the presence of Frederick I of Prussia, changed one pound of mercury into gold by means of a red tincture. Subsequently he promised to make $6,000,000 worth of gold in six weeks, but, failing to keep his word, he was hanged, draped in gold leaf, which became the customary method of dealing with alchemists. The tribe of alchemists is not yet entirely extinct. In 1880 an American named Wise duped a member of the Rohan family and a collateral descendant of the "necklace cardinal," whom Cagliostro deceived by pretending to make gold. Wise got a considerable sum of money from Rohan and decamped. Only a few days ago the writer picked up a little pamphlet on a bookstall in New York which contained several pages of advertisements of a substance for transmuting other metals into gold, the price being only five dollars.—Washington Star.

Green Peas a la Francaise.

Boil some very young peas till done in plenty of salted spring water, then strain off the water, add a bit of butter, a green onion, a pinch of sugar and a very little salt, and let it all stew gently for a few minutes; then add a spoonful or two of cream, mixed with the yelk of an egg, and serve hot.

Swindled by a Bold Dodge.

Men who handle money in large sums habitually are popularly supposed to be very careful. The contrary is frequently the case. The auditor of one of the great express companies recently told how the teller of one of the big New York banks was swindled out of fifty dollars by a barefaced deception. The express company had issued a large number of money orders for advertising purposes. They were much reduced in size and had printed on their face in bold red letters the words: "Minature Facsimile. Not Good." They were all filled out, having been lithographed, and the name of the fictitious "payee" was also indorsed on the back.

A casual glance would tell an ordinarily careful observer that they were merely advertisements, intended to show how money orders looked when ready for payment, even if the caution in red letters had not been there. Yet when a man boldly walked into the bank referred to, wrote his own name below the lithographed endorsement, and asked to have the "money order" cashed, the teller unhesitatingly handed over the fifty dollars. Nor did he discover the mistake unaided, but sent the advertisement to the express company for collection.—New York Sun.

Arabian Diplomacy.

Of the high antiquity of chess there can be no doubt, and in a diplomatic correspondence which took place between the Roman Emperor Nicephorus and the celebrated Haroun al Raschid there is some evidence that it was so universal as a pastime in the east as to lend its technical terms to ordinary illustration. The Arabian historian Abulfeda has preserved the letters. Nicephorus reminds Haroun, whom he addresses respectfully as "sovereign of the Arabs," that the Empress Irene is dead, and claims repayment of the tribute which Haroun unjustly exacted from her.

"She looked upon you as a rook and on herself as a mere pawn, therefore she submitted to pay you a tribute more than the double of which she ought to have exacted from you. If you hesitate the sword shall settle our accounts."

Haroun's diplomacy was of the heroic kind, and he replied:

"In the name of God, the merciful and gracious; from Haroun, commander of the faithful, to the Roman dog Nicephorus. I have read thine epistle, thou son of an infidel mother. My answer to it thou shalt see, not hear."—Blackwood's Magazine.

Arterial Blood Flow.

One of the most interesting of the new psycho-physiological instruments is the plethysmograph, which indicates the least flow of blood in the arteries of the arm. By means of it observers have found that when the sentence of the judge is read before a criminal there is a decrease in the flow of blood in the arm, but that the sight of a glass of wine increases the flow. Again, when it is required to perform an arithmetical calculation, to multiply for example, nine times seventy-three, an increase of blood flow is the result.

The flow is little affected in a brutal murderer or born criminal when a pistol is shown to him, whereas in the normal man the plethysmograph indicates a decided effect. Thus involuntary testimony is supplied as to the nervous and physical nature of the born instead of the accidental criminal.—London Chronicle.

Hungarian Forests.

The Hungarian government does not sell any part of its forests, but buys more each year. In some parts of the country, as in the eastern region of the Carpathians, woods are found of several thousand acres in extent, consisting for the most part of red beech. This is used for firewood, carriages, staves and agricultural implements, and in the manufacture of bent wood. There are few fires and they seldom permanently damage the woods. There are large resinous forests in Transylvania, but they are not very accessible, and there are also some in the district of Marmaros, in the northeast of the country.—Popular Science Monthly.

There Are No Historical Novels.

There are no historical novels, and there are no historical pictures. Flaubert, who was a greater artist than Balzac or Zola, chose Carthage for the scene of his historical novel, because next to nothing was known about the Carthaginians and his imagination could construct and create unhampered by historical data. Shakespeare was able to write historical plays because he knew very little history. The essential quality of the historical novel and the historical picture is that it should contain no history, and from this rule the great masters have never deviated.—George Moore in Fortnightly Review.

Why the Apple Is Healthful.

The acids of the apple are of signal use for men of sedentary habits whose lives are sluggish in action, those acids serving to eliminate from the body noxious matters, which, if retained, would make the brain heavy and dull, or bring about jaundice or skin eruptions and other allied troubles. Some such an experience must have led to our custom of taking apple sauce with roast pork, rich goose and like dishes.—Medical Age.

EXPECT TOO MUCH.

Married People Generally Demand Unreasonable Attention.

THE KEYNOTE OF UNHAPPINESS.

Why Love's Young Dream Is Very Often Sadly Dispelled Shortly After the Honeymoon Is Over.

The much discussed question, "Is marriage a failure?" came up at a small social gathering a few evenings since. In the company were an old bachelor, a widow, several married people and a couple of young persons who were absorbed in unsuccessful attempts to persuade the company that they never heard of such a thing as love's young dream.

Various opinions were advanced and some little warmth was becoming evident in the remarks of some of the married guests. The bachelor was cynical, the youngsters somewhat shocked and sorrowful and the entire company uncomfortable.

"If we judge by the amount of happiness we find in families," he said, "I think we may call it a failure, for a perfectly harmonious household is very hard to find. There is so much selfishness and so much indifference displayed, so much I and so little you, that the instinct of self preservation springs up and takes alarm, and the individual is at once put upon the defensive as to his or her rights.

"Young people marry and begin their homelife on a wrong basis. Courtship and marriage, while often merely an incident to the man, is all absorbing to the woman. She dreams about it, lives in it, worries and cries over it, and throws her whole life into the ideal as she has read it in books. Her ideal husband is always gentle, tender and considerate; always comes home with a smile on his face, and, although burdened with care and perplexed with business, is never other than a hero. She is quite likely to forget the ideal man can be very disagreeable when he is hungry, and finds little to comfort him in kisses and blisses if the laundress has failed to bring home his linen, or he hasn't a quiet corner where he may sit down and rest.

"For man is a more solitary creature than woman. There is an old legend to the effect that God's original plan was to create woman the mother of the race first of all, but, in his far seeing wisdom, he decided that a woman should never be alone in the world; so man was created first, that she might find a companion even in her earliest hours of existence, and from her infancy she craves society, and all through her girlhood has her little girl friends, and their association is much more intimate than that of the boy with his mates. And all through her young days how she confides in her girl associates and tells them all of her little secrets, reads her first love letter to them, and tells them all about the ideal which she has fashioned and clothed with graces as with a garment. How natural that she should carry a great deal of this ideal into her married life and expect love and devotion all of the time, and that the husband will be as devoted and as self sacrificing as the lover.

"But all the same he isn't, and she feels chilled and unhappy when, after one greeting kiss, he looks beyond to see if there are signs of dinner, or frowns if there are a number of girl friends scattered all about the house, putting an end to the quiet, restful hours he feels he needs so much after the day's business. He is certain that she cares less for his society than that of the girls, and naturally resents it. He thinks he married and had his home as a place in which to be quiet and comfortable, and makes up his mind that he will put a stop to all this company. Then he reflects that he is selfish and a brute, and will do nothing of the sort.

"But such reflections never make the average man happier. He doesn't like to admit, even to himself, that he is wrong, and the necessity for doing so nettles him. And they both get irritated and petty jealousies spring up, and there are sharp words and bitter feelings, and everything goes wrong. Perhaps good sense comes to the rescue, and they come to a perfect understanding, but much oftener they grow worse, until he rushes away to the club, and she sits down to mope and worry, perchance to cry; or, following his example, seeks congenial society, and their lives end in dissipation or an open rupture.

"And all because each expects too much of the other. Indeed, this is the keynote of almost all unhappiness in life. We expect too much. Our ideal is too high, and not finding plain, practical facts to meet it, we are disappointed and discouraged, and become soured and cynical.

"It sometimes happens that two people who have passed through some of the severest trials of existence, and have learned wisdom from the things they have suffered, two such congenial spirits may meet, and with the experiences of years stamped on their lives and characters may establish a home on a basis of mutual concession and unselfish love, and each may spend his or her remaining years in the acknowledged effort to make up to the other what life lacked aforetime. Such homes are rare indeed, but when they are found I am certain that neither the members of the household nor the few friends who are permitted to share the beauties of their inner lives will go away declaring marriage a failure.

"Such a home is a stronger plea for the marriage relation than any series of arguments that the most learned and skillful theorist can bring forward. But such relations are rare, indeed, in early life. It is only when the spirit has been trained to quiet toleration of the irritating trifles of life that such mutual concession seems possible. One sided gentleness is dangerous to family peace of mind, as it is almost certain to develop a tyrannical and overbearing disposition in the party. Comradship and genuine respect are the best and safest spirit and outlasts the fever heat of passion and the storms and sunshine of adversity and prosperity."—New York Ledger.

That Chestnut Gown.

"There's another thing I'd like to tell Mrs. Langtry," said a woman at a reception, "and that is that I can never forgive her for telling a reporter about that one black gown of hers with which she went through a London season at the time when she could afford but one dress. You remember the story—everybody does—how she turned down the neck one evening, wore it high the next, and mended and pressed it between times, and how she ends up by saying, 'Never tell me that a woman can't dress well who has a single frock,' etc.

"Well, that wretched little story came out when she first bobbed up into popularity years ago, and it's like the Wandering Jew—no, more like the other fellow—it's still going to and fro upon the earth, seeking whom it may devour. It's always traveling, and it looks in on you at least about every five or six weeks. It pops up in the woman's column, leers at you from the editorial page, and even winks the other eye from the staid, respectable family journal.

"It isn't maddening enough to be badgered and pursued in this way, but your husband must needs make a point of reading that last paragraph out loud with exceeding relish, and then, if you lose your temper, thinks you are calling him a stingy old thing under your breath.

"Now the next paper I see that in I shall stop taking instanter. The editor that doesn't know a ten-year-old chestnut when he sees it isn't to be relied on for news. I don't believe a woman editor would do such a thing. She'd know that old black silk gown the minute she laid eyes on it."—New York Recorder.

Didn't Care to Go.

A young married woman who takes an intelligent interest in current topics discussed the probabilities of a journey to Mars with some friends at her home the other day. She said, "I presume that some of us will live to see the time when the inhabitants of the earth can journey to Mars." The remark was overheard by Maggie, the new chambermaid, who had been in this country but a few weeks and had scarcely recovered from the effects of the voyage. At her first opportunity to speak with her mistress alone she asked, "Say, mum, and where is that Mars?" The lady carefully explained to the unsophisticated girl a few simple facts about our neighboring planet and facetiously suggested, "You may go there some day, Maggie."

"And do you be after goin?" asked Maggie, with a startled look.

"I may if an opportunity should occur," replied the mistress demurely.

"Thin, mum, I'll be after lookin for a new place, if you plaze. I don't want to go to Mars, 'cause I gits so moighty sick travelin on the water."—New York Times.

A Radical Cure.

The pastor of a church in a mining village was greatly annoyed by the conduct of the younger members of the flock.

When a young woman got tired of the evening sermon she would rise and go out. A moment later her "beau" would seize his hat and sheepishly follow her to escort her home.

By the time the sermon was over it was mostly the old people who were left to hear the conclusion of it. Mr. Blank smothered his annoyance for some time. At last he resolved to act.

A youth grew sleepy one Sunday evening, and picking up his coat and hat stepped into the aisle. To his dismay the minister stopped short in his discourse.

"Young man," he said, "the lady who went out last is not the one you wish to escort home. When she goes I will let you know. Sit down. In future when a young woman goes out I will call on the proper young man to take care of her."

He resumed his sermon. There was much giggling and a great deal of wrath. But his sermons were not interrupted again during the whole winter.—Yankee Blade.

Why Electric Cars Move Evenly.

"Do you know why an electric car goes up hill slowly, as though drawn by pony mules?" asked an electrician the other day.

"Well, I'll tell you," said he. "There is a certain amount of voltage or electromotive force distributed over the line, and in order to keep each car running at a general average rate of speed no car can be allowed to usurp more than its share of pressure. For instance, if one electric car should be thrown wide open and permitted to run up hill at the same rate of speed it descends a hill it would for a minute reduce the time of every other car on the road. Hence the motormen have positive orders about slowing down at every pronounced rise in the roadbed.—St. Louis Republic.

What Revived Him.

"Smith was injured in a railway accident and lay insensible for a long time."

"Did the doctors finally bring him to?"

"No. Somebody whispered that Smith had an excellent case, and no doubt could collect heavy damages from the company. That revived him."—Exchange.

SUGAR AND GUM.

Artistic Creations That are Made to Ornament Banquet Tables.

CAPABILITIES OF PULLED SUGAR.

Show Pieces Containing Thousands of Parts and Figures of Well Known Personages.

Among the queer trades in this great city that of making more or less edible show pieces for banquet tables is one of the most artistic variety.

At very many corporation dinners it has become somewhat the custom to have a large table ornament which will from its form or detail suggest the particular sort of enterprise in which the promoters of the dinner are interested. A great many of these fancy pieces are constructed from sugar paste and others from nougat, a candy paste liberally besprinkled with fragments of nut kernels.

The amount of labor put upon some of these art works might be considered wasted when you consider how perishable they are, and the artistic quality of the work gives an idea of great expense, because you naturally conclude that such excellent handiwork must come high.

A young Frenchman employed in one of our local restaurants is a clever exponent of this branch of sugar architecture, and he is kept busy nearly all the year round for banquet purposes alone.

Like most men who have achieved success in the lines of artistic manufacture, this young artist, whose name is Dennieville, was compelled to serve a long and arduous apprenticeship. Starting at the age of fourteen he worked as a helper for a well known German artist, whose creations in sugar and gum paste a few years ago were considered marvels. Six years ago the old gentleman retired on his laurels, and his young assistant, by assiduous study in the meantime in drawing and modeling classes, was able at the early age of seventeen to take his instructor's place.

According to Mr. Dennieville there is nothing in the figure or flower line that cannot be reproduced in sugar by a clever worker.

CAPABILITIES OF PULLED SUGAR.

The best material for flowers and creations of delicate outline is what the artist calls "pulled" sugar. To make clear white pulled sugar he melts down the finest brand of loaf sugar, and mixing the mass when just hardening with a little clear sirup, he works it after the manner of the man we occasionally see pulling long strips of soft candy in uptown confectioners' windows.

From this mass before it gets cooled he shapes his leaves and petals and sticks them together in a natural flower form as he goes along. Where the flowers have a body color, vegetable colors are mixed in the boiling sugar. When the flower is one that needs but a tinge of color it is put on with a brush.

One of the most artistic creations in this line was made for exhibition at a French ball held in 1888. The body of the design was made of nougat, and represented a wheelbarrow three feet long. Inside the wheelbarrow was an artistic heap of calla lilies and roses, of natural size and perfect form and color. These flowers, leaf, branch and blossom, were made of the best quality of pulled sugar.

A material called composition paste is used for figure pieces. The paste is made of gum tragcanth, marble dust and corn starch. This product can be given a finish so near like that of highly polished porcelain as to deceive the average observer.

When Augustin Daly banqueted Henry Irving in 1888, he ordered five figures of Mr. Irving in as many different costumes. These figures were each eighteen inches high, and they attracted a great deal of attention on account of their artistic fidelity to life.

At a banquet given Mr. Edwin Booth by Mr. Daly in the year following, five figures of the tragedian were exhibited, uniform in size with those of Mr. Irving.

WHAT GUM PASTE CAN DO.

Two of the best examples of figure group work that have been produced in sugar were made for the chamber of commerce banquet in 1888.

These groups were made of what is called gum paste. This is a combination of gum, sugar and corn starch. In this material the sugar replaces the marble dust used in composition paste. The two pieces were 5½ feet high each. The modeling was perfect, and their preparation took about four weeks' time. The groups were afterward secured as trophies by individual members of the organization.

A very large table piece made of gum paste was shown at the chamber of commerce dinner on Nov. 19, 1889. This piece was six and a half feet high. Its make up called for over thirteen thousand pieces of sugar paste, and the artist worked steadily at it for six weeks. It cost the chamber of commerce people about $300. This was probably the finest table piece ever shown at a banquet in this city.

At the French cooks' ball in 1888 two of the many interesting show pieces were representations of picture frames with relief flowers in the center. One group was a cluster of wild roses and leaves, perfect in form and arrangement. The second frame contained a wild mass of very natural looking apple blossoms.

OIL PAINTING IN CANDY.

It might seem odd that any one should make a candy structure to use as the basis for an oil painting, but this very thing was done for the sake of novelty, and the piece was exhibited with others at a large gathering of banqueters. The picture frame was three feet long and two feet high. This part of the work was made with gum paste and afterward gilded. The ornamentations were modeled in the approved picture frame style. In the opening the artist created a landscape of sugar paste in relief.

Although this part of the work might have been made in natural colors, it was considered that the design might be more realistic if painted in oils. There was enough of the sugar surface left in places to prove the real foundation of the design. The effect produced by the combination was very fine, and the piece shows the infinite resources open to the artistic candy maker.

A piece called the "Two Knickerbockers" represents the old and new style of New York dress. The old time Knickerbocker was shown in an attitude suggesting that he has just taken a pinch of snuff and is getting ready to sneeze. He stands beside a table, leaning upon a cane held in his right hand. The modern Knickerbocker is not quite so graceful in form. He is attired in a dress suit and high hat, and his side whiskers suggest the Englishman rather than the American.—New York Herald.

A pair of gloves passes through 200 hands from the moment the skin leaves the dressers until the gloves are purchased by the intending wearer.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, APRIL 28 1893

The "Record Union" has brought suit to compel the Surveyor General of the State to file certain applications for lieu lands now deposited in his safe. There is reason to believe that these applications are based on fraud and are kept concealed from the public till an opportunity shall occur when they can be used by land thieves. In the mean time these concealed applications are a menace to actual settlers who would make homes upon the lands. The "Record Union" does good service by exposing this business. But not satisfied with that, it incurs the expense and trouble of a law suit in the public interest without hope of the slightest gain. And yet small will be its thanks from the public it serves. A little light turned on in other directions would bring out interesting facts in connection with public land locations.

At the last election the people were asked to vote for issuing bonds to the amount of $600,000 for building a depot and ferry landing at San Francisco. The promoters of the scheme were loud in their assurances that the sum named would cover the whole cost of the structure and would be a good investment for the State, as rents would pay good interest on the capital invested. The people of Inyo county were warned against the scheme and gave a majority against it. For this we were sneered at as being unenlightened and narrow minded. But now the warning is proven to have been well founded, and the action of the voters correct. Having secured the amount asked for, the promoters of the scheme throw off all disguise and openly declare it will require nearly twice six hundred thousand dollars to complete the structure. Not to exceed two per cent interest on the capital will ever be derived from rents, and this huge job will entail permanent loss on the tax payers. Having spent such a large sum it will be necessary to provide the balance needed to finish the structure; and it will be done. We may grin but we must bear it.

William W. Astor has given rise to a discussion that should not be allowed to drop. Every workingman in America is interested in the subject. The "Examiner" has made some good suggestions, and other papers have something to say. Mr. Astor inherited a vast fortune, not one dollar of which he ever earned. Every cent of it was produced by toiling men and wrung from them by the Astors in the form of rents and interest. Now Mr. Astor has taken the millions so produced and so accumulated to England and bought a great ducal estate and a newspaper and other publications with the avowed intention of supporting the class distinctions and privileges existing there and opposing the efforts of the great bulk of the English people for the abolition of old abuses and the extension of equality before the law for all the people. Americans are beginning to question seriously if it is right that a few men should be allowed to grasp all the profits of toil and use the vast wealth so gained in opposing every effort for breaking down class distinctions and destroying old tyrannies, the bad legacies from barbarous times. It is not in religion only that superstition exists. The propensity to it is inherent in the human mind. It extends to law, and ever the vision of the star-eyed goddess. Science, is sometimes dimmed by it. It is only a blind superstition for law that keeps the millions of American toilers producing vast wealth for the benefit of a few, and to be used against the welfare of the producers. Laws that enable such people as the Astors to grasp the profits of toil and make such use of the wealth, are wrong, and should be changed speedily. To submit to wrong because inflicted under forms of law is as gross superstition as to worship a calf. Perhaps the submission and the worship are both due to the same motive, namely, an image of gold is presented to the worshiper.

One Form of City Charity.

A grocer complains bitterly because wealthy patrons of his establishment send tramps and paupers there with notes saying, "Mr. B——, give this man a pound of crackers and a box of sardines," or "the bearer would like four bundles of kindling and a pound of coffee." The applicants get the stuff because the grocer wants to retain the custom of those who send them and who have not the slightest intention of paying for goods thus given away. "It's pretty cheap charity for these rich people to engage in," says he, "but my experience is that it hurts a rich man worse to give up a dollar than it does a poor man."—New York Sun.

Impudence In Real Life.

Here is a story of impudence from real life. It was told by my late friend, the Rev. Greville Chester, who made a little novel out of it, but I do not think the book "caught on" or had any success. The thing happened almost exactly as follows: There was a lady living in the country; she was advanced in years, either unmarried or a widow; she was wealthy, and she lived alone.

One winter evening she heard the sound of carriage wheels on the gravel. The door was opened, and then followed the bumping of trunks in the hall. Then a lady's name was announced, and her visitor entered. She came in running; she came in holding out both her hands; she came in with a laugh of welcome and of joy. "You dearest Jenny," she cried, kissing her with brimming eyes. "It is 40 years since last we parted at deal old Miss ——'s school. How are you? How are you? Oh, my dear, I am so glad to see you! And I've come to stay!"

She sat down, threw off her bonnet and began to rattle on about the school. When they separated for the night, the hostess reflected that she had not even asked her visitor's name and that she remembered nothing at all about her. In the morning she did ask her name, but yet she remembered nothing at all about her. That visitor came to stay. In fact, she never went away again. The two ladies lived together in the greatest amity till the end. And to the very end the hostess never knew who her friend was and could not associate her name or her face with her old school.—Walter Besant in London Queen.

A Tame Mountain Lion.

In Colorado I visited a hunter's store and saw a mountain lion—the only one, as its owner asserted, which had ever been tamed. It was in a little back room chained to an iron staple in the floor, round which it was pacing, uttering low growls.

It appeared very much like a small panther and seemed anything but tame, snarling at us as if it longed to spring. It was in awe of its master, however, and cowed down every time he cracked his whip. He made it do several tricks with a retriever dog, which did not seem to like the task very well.

"Come and kiss Miss Pussy," said the man, and the dog went up to it, laid a paw upon its neck and licked its face.

The master then put a piece of meat on her nose and told the dog to fetch it away.

"He doesn't care for this part," was his comment. "She has had him by the throat once or twice. Just look at her iron paws? One blow would lay you dead as mutton. What, you brute, you would, would you!"

Miss Pussy had tried to gnaw his boot and needed to be lashed off.

"Do you ever take her out?"

"Oh, yes, she goes walking with me in the mountains sometimes. I take her chain off when we're out of town, but I'm precious careful to follow her and never let her step behind me!"—"A Ride Through Wonderland."

New Zealand Mutton.

The sheep farmer, it seems, finds that he can deliver his sheep, with a fair profit, for 2 pence a pound at the nearest port or freezing point. The killing and freezing process is undertaken chiefly by companies, which have established freezing stations at various convenient points along the coast, and which ship the carcasses, consigned to agents in London or elsewhere. One of the sights of the day at the Albert docks is the arrival of one of the New Zealand Shipping company's fine steamers, perhaps the Tongariro or the Rimutaka, or some other of the fleet with the sonorous Maori names, and to see the subsequent discharge of some 27,000 carcasses, each neatly wrapped in its winding sheet of white calico.

The whole year's exportation now figures to about 2,000,000 frozen carcasses and is rapidly increasing. Yet with all this depletion the number of sheep in the colony is rapidly increasing. The flocks have largely increased in number, and the export of wool has risen from about 64,000,000 pounds in 1882 to 108,000,000 in 1891.—All the Year Round.

Lucky Strikes.

Stories of unexpected fortunes are as common as blackberries. Somebody is always making or finding or inheriting a heap of money which seems to himself almost to have come from the clouds. Worthless shares become valuable, as happened to more than one man in the history of Devon great consols. A workingman discovers a rich mine, as Mr. Graham did in South Australia; or a relative from whom nothing was expected suddenly heaps everything on the kinsman who bored him least, as occurred last year within our own knowledge in a southern country. Only last week a pauper in a poorhouse was declared heir to £300,000, a sum which he probably could not have put down accurately on a slate, but which had been earned in Australia by a relative who died intestate.—London Spectator.

She Could Not Appreciate It.

In the drawing room of one of California's bonanza men, now living in New York, there hangs a painting of a very common country scene—a girl feeding a flock of turkeys. The money king's daughter says that her father cares more for this picture than for any of the other furnishings of his palatial home and often stands before it for long moments at a time. His boyhood was spent in a tiny hamlet tucked away in the Catskills, and when the pretty girl says, petulantly, "I don't see what you find in that tea chrome thing to admire," he sighs and answers, "No, for you never had such a home."—New York Times.

Man Outdone by Woman.

"You may talk all you like about women being the weaker sex," said Mrs. Snipps, "but the women of this country did something last year that men could never do."

"And that was?" inquired Mr. Snipps.

"Lost 50,000,000 hairpins and wore the wings of 3,000,000 birds on their hats."—Buffalo Express.

Nature and Deformity.

Nature is very particular to conceal her deformities, and all that is worthless or ungraceful generally drops off from a tree unless it be an injury to the trunk. From such effects the tree never recovers. Go into the forests and how often we see deformed trees, some bent and twisted, some parted till the original trunk becomes like two—each crossing and recrossing the other. This was done by depression or injury to the tree in its young and tender years. Nature has no power to right a broken law—neither in the animal nor the vegetable organism. Punishment follows, and deformity results.—Boston Transcript.

What She Should Do.

Bertie had been forbidden under severe penalties to play in the rain barrel, but the other day, sad to relate, his mamma and grandmother found him splashing in it in high glee.

His mamma's face hardened, but the grandmother's kind heart led her to make a plea for the offender.

Bertie heard the plea, and when his mamma asked him sternly what she should do to a little boy who did not mind what was told him, he answered promptly:

"I fink you had better mind your muvyer."—Youth's Companion.

A Man's Nerves.

Mrs. Binks—Ooo! Doesn't it make you nervous to have the wind blow so this time of night?

Mr. Binks—Why?

"Just hear the windows! They rattle like everything."

"Um, it would make me nervous to hear the windows rattle if the wind wasn't blowing."—New York Weekly.

Americans and Cedars.

For some unknown reason the cedar of Lebanon has never been a favorite with American planters, although it is hardy in the latitude of New York, and the few specimens here which have attained the age of 50 years and upward are noble trees.—Garden and Forest.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

OWENS RIVER AND BIG PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Big Pine, Cal. Location of works, Big Pine, Cal.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT AT a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 18th day of April, 1893, an assessment (No. 7) of Twenty (20) cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary at the office of the company, in the town of Big Pine, Inyo county, Cal.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on SATURDAY, the 27th day of May, 1893, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction and unless payment is made before will be sold on SATURDAY, June 17th, 1893, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

By order of the Board of Directors.

R. W. THOMAS, Secretary.

Office—Big Pine, Inyo county, Cal.

DO YOU SUFFER?

Rheumatism, Fits [epilepsy] Scrofula, Liquor, Morphine or Tobacco Habit, quickly and permanently cured by the wonderful BICHLORIDE of GOLD treatment.

RHEUMATISM (The only acid-free cure from the blood). Cured in from five to thirty days.

FITS (Epilepsy). Permanently cured; no return of the disease from two to four weeks treatment.

SCROFULA And the worst cases of inherited blood taint quickly and permanently cured.

DRUNKENESS Opium, Morphine or Tobacco Habit cured in 10 to 20 days.

No restriction or publicity. Patients cured at their own homes. 40,000 sufferers cured in 8 years.

Full particulars without charge, address

DR. WOOD BI-CHLORIDE OF GOLD INSTITUTE,
215 Powell St., San Francisco Cal

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.

Bee Keeper.

Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS
AND
LEVI STRAUSS & Co's
SPRING
BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and
Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-Officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES,
District Attorney,
—AND—
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
NOTARY PUBLIC.
Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "Independent" Building, Independence, Inyo county, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR
AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.
Office and residence at the Johnson place, Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)

DR. J. S. MC QUEEN,
DENTIST.
Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery
All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.
Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore.

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.

FRANK FITZGERALD.
Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
All work from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURCKHARDT

BOOTS AND SHOES
MADE AND REPAIRED.
THE BEST MATERIAL.
FIRST-CLASS WORK
Repairs done Promptly.
Prices Reasonable.
A. J. DAVIS,
Independence.
36-tf

RESTORE YOUR EYESIGHT
Cataracts, scars or films can be absorbed and paralyzed nerves restored, without the knife or risk. Diseased eyes or lids can be cured by our home treatment. "We prove it." Hundreds convinced. Our illustrated pamphlet, "Home Treatment for Eyes," free. Don't fail to write. Everything relating to the Eye, Opera Glass Info. S.N.Y.

OFFICIAL.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 47.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY OF INYO, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. Section 7 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et seq., is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 7. Every person who at a fixed place of business sells any malt or fermented liquors, wines or distilled liquors, whether on commission or otherwise (except vinicultural productions when sold by the producers thereof) must obtain from the Tax-Collector and for each branch of said business, a license, and pay quarterly therefor the sum of Forty Dollars.

SECTION 2. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after Twenty-five (25) days from its passage.

SECTION 3. Section 9 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et seq. is hereby repealed.

SECTION 4. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same in the "Inyo Independent," a newspaper published in said Inyo County, at least two (2) weeks, said publication to be made said time, and before the expiration of said Twenty-five (25) days.

R. LOVE,
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

ATTEST:
(SEAL) D. J. HESSION
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 47 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 5th day of April, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Supervisors A. C. Freeman, W. H. Uhlmeyer, John Wilson, Frank Fitzgerald, R. Love.

Noes: None. R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

ATTEST:
(SEAL) D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

[Endorsed] Ordinance No. 47. Filed and Recorded this 5th day of April, A. D. 1893, in Book E of Ordinances at page 100.

D. J. HESSION,
Clerk Board of Supervisors.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 48.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY OF INYO, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. It shall be lawful for any person to hunt, pursue, take, and kill grouse, or sage hen, within the County of Inyo, at any time between the first day of August and the first day of January, in each year.

SECTION 2. Every person who, in the County of Inyo, between the last day of December and the first day of August, in each year, hunts, pursues, takes, sells, or destroys any grouse, or sage hen, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the County Jail, not exceeding sixty days, or by a fine of not more than Sixty Dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after Twenty-five days from its passage.

SECTION 4. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same, in the Inyo Independent, a newspaper published in the said County of Inyo at least two weeks, said publication to be made said time and before the expiration of said twenty five days.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

ATTEST:
(SEAL) D. J. HESSION
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 48 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board on April 7th, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Frank Fitzgerald, W. H. Uhlmeyer, R. Love, John Wilson, A. C. Freeman.

Noes: None. R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

ATTEST:
(SEAL) D. J. HESSION.
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

Propagation License.

Notice to Breeders.

THE ATTENTION OF STOCKRAISERS and Breeders in Inyo County is called to the following provisions of Ordinance No. 41, Section 12:

"Every person who keeps a Stallion, Jack or Bull and permits the same to be used for the purpose of propagation for hire, must annually obtain a license therefor from the Tax-Collector."

Parties failing to procure such Propagation License are guilty of a misdemeanor. Licenses are now due.

J. S. GORMAN, Tax-Collector.
Independence, April 6, 1893.

ANNUAL MEETING

LONE PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Independence, California. Location of works, Inyo county, California.

The Regular Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Lone Pine Canal Company will be held at the office of the Company, at the town of Independence, Inyo county, California, on Saturday, the Twenty-ninth day of April, 1893, at the hour of One o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing a Board of Directors to serve for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

DAVID HOLLAND,
Secretary.
Office—Independence, California.

WE WANT YOU
to act as our agent. We furnish an expensive outfit and all you need free. It costs nothing to try the business. We will treat you well, and help you to earn ten times ordinary wages. Both sexes of all ages can live at home and work in spare time, or all the time. Any one anywhere can earn a great deal of money. Many have made Two Hundred Dollars a Month. No class of people in the world are making so much money without capital as those at work for us. Business pleasant, strictly honorable, and pays better than any other offered to agents. You have a clear field, with no competition. We equip you with everything, and supply printed directions for beginners which, if obeyed faithfully, will bring more money than will any other business. Improve your prospects! Why not? You can do so easily and surely at work for us. Reasonable industry only necessary for absolute success. Pamphlet circular giving every particular is sent free to all. Delay not in sending for it.

GEORGE STINSON & CO.,
Box No. 488, Portland, Me.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.

$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.

It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer with out cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.

Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.

For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address

ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.
Winter Apples..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes.....12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches.....10 cts
Dried Apples.....10 cts
Other varieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.
THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines,
Liquors,
& Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSFIELD, opposite the Southern Hotel
Prompt and careful treatment given and the least possible pain inflicted. Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISER
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List.
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce Street, New York

P. W. FORBES P. H. MACK
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY the 8th day of March, 1893, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South east corner of the south-east quarter of North east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98 100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of the Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence follow ing said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80 100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lots Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode, situate, lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispolcada Lode."

That certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the north west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12), and the South west quarter and the South east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South six-eight and seven-twelfth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence North-west twenty-six and a half rods or swale to a point twenty four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North East quarter and the South east quarter, and the North-west quarter and the North east quarter of the North-west quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-four and eleven twentieth (44 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres: Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney, at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER.
Executor of the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah deceased.

Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1893.

J. W. Murphy.
BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS Extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDIS
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES.
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumer should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 9 1894.
n47tf

$6000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, Troy, N.Y., at work for us. Reader, you may not make as much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from $5 to $10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages, in any part of America, you can return at home, giving all your time or spare moments only to the work. All new. Great pay SURE for every worker. We start you, furnishing everything. EASILY, QUICKLY learned. PARTICULARS FREE. Address at once GEORGE STINSON & CO., Portland, MAINE.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, APRIL 28.....1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman	A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman	P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge	GEO. M. GILL
Sheriff	JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk	DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney	P. W. FORBES.
Assessor	P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer	W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner	H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed)	JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools	J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist	ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist	A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist	W. H. UHLMEYER
4th Supervisor Dist	JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist	FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Services next Sunday at Lone Pine, 11 a. m. Addresses by Mr. J. W. Thomas and H. J. Winsor. At Independence, 11 a. m. sermon, 7:30 p. m., lecture by Rev. Thomas Thompson of Bishop.

J. D. Lewis Esq., is visiting at Independence

The Grand Jury has been in session all the week.

Frank Fitzgerald is expected in from Modock to-morrow.

S. G. Sneden Esq., came down from Bishop on Wednesday's train.

Mrs. A. L. Conkin has so far recovered from her recent illnessas to be entirely out of danger.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Jones of Round Valley came to Camp Independence yesterday and are visiting with the parents of Mrs. Jones.

A. E. Janyier and Tom Ferguson went over into the Inyo range during the week on a mining expedition.

E. Robinson went to Butte county last week on a visit to his sister, Mrs. Vincent and his two daughters.

About Independence orchardists report the best prospect for a big crop of apples and pears they have ever seen.

The name of Lowell Albion Engley appears in the Senior class of the Law Department of the State University for 1893.

S. P. Smith came down from Bishop on Tuesday, returning yesterday. He took back a lot of mares to breed to Antare and Pickpocket.

Mrs. M. E. Curtis will do fashionable dress-making at the residence of Mrs. L. L. Woodin M. D. Perfect fit. McDowell system.

Round-trip tickets from San Francisco to the Chicago fair will cost $100. Single trip rate will be $60. The rates from Los Angeles will be the same.

Sheriff Gorman made a quick trip to Bishop during the week. He left Independence on Tuesday after 2 o'clock and was back before noon on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Gunn came in from Minietta yesterday. Mr. Gunn has purchased Mr. Fitzgerald's interest in the St. John mine, and is now sole owner of that valuable property.

Miss Lena Thomsen was able to come to town last Tuesday and walk about a little. She is still lame but the bones that were broken are rapidly gaining strength and soon not a trace of her injuries will remain.

The late Earl of Derby evidently admired Ben Butler very much. When the Earl returned home from dining out anywhere his valet always searched his pockets and returned to the owners the spoons he never failed to find there. This weakness of the Earl was generally known and excused.

Great Britain has appropriated $425,000 to cover the expense of its display at Chicago. But this is far exceeded by Brazil, which has appropriated $600,000, and still more by Japan, whose appropriation is $630,000. The wealth of both these nations together is but a trifle compared to the wealth of England.

A church fair will be given at Lone Pine on May 8th, 9th and 10th for the purpose of raising funds to build a Catholic Church at that place. Literary and musical entertainments will be given every evening and such other other exercises as will add to the interest of the occasion. Full particulars will be published next week.

On Thursday evening a horse that was pulling a buggy at Bishop ran away. Two girls were in the vehicle and both were thrown out a short distance north from Hill's hotel. One of the girls had her collar bone broken, and the other escaped without serious injury. The names of the girls were not known to Mr. A. Goodman, who reported the accident.

In order to secure title to water more is needed than sticking up a notice on the bank of a stream. Even constant work without adequate capital to push on canals or other means necessary to convey water on to the land within reasonable time, is not enough. In the case of Kimball vs. Gearheart, 12 California Reports, p. 28, is recorded the following ruling by the Supreme Court: "Where parties commence to construct a ditch without necessary pecuniary means, they cannot justify failure to complete work in such reasonable time as the condition of work and weather will permit on account of lack of funds to do so." The law will not suffer a fraud to be committed by a party taking a pick and shovel and a pocketful of tobacco and sitting down on the bank of a stream a few hours each day to prevent an honest irrigating enterprise.

GRAND JURY REPORT.

The Grand Jury met last Tuesday pursuant to adjournment, all the members being present. Yesterday they adjourned sine die after presenting the following report:

To THE HON. GEORGE M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court,
Inyo County, Calif.

The adjourned meeting of the Grand Jury, to resume unfinished business, was called at the Court House on Tuesday, the 25th day of April, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m.

We have examined into two criminal charges and ignore both.

We have received the report of W. J. Harris, which we enclose, engaged to examine the books of the various county officers for the four years ending 31st December, 1892, and find that during those years there are deficiencies arising from omissions and inaccuracies as follows:

County Assessor		$ 36 22
Clerk Auditor and Recorder	1889 90	501 79
" " "	1890 91	288 02

A portion of these deficiencies is for recording mining claims, which hitherto has been claimed as a perquisite of the Recorder's office.

Sheep license No. 14, 7th class, $75 (less commission, $7 50) $67 50, credited by Auditor August 1st, 1892, as paid into the treasury, whereas said sum has not been charged to treasurer, nor has the same come into his hands.

The books of the Sheriff and Tax-Collector, Treasurer, Superintendent of Schools and Public Administrator are reported correct in every particular. Those of the Treasurer are named especially as having been kept in an able and systematic manner.

We commend the recommendation of Mr. Harris that the officers compare accounts at regularly stated periods and thus avoid errors that may otherwise occur, and also that some competent person familiar with the Clerk's office be employed to arrange and classify the papers.

In regard to the case of John Condito, accused of selling liquor to Indians, taking into consideration his former good character, and circumstances surrounding the case, we recommend it be dismissed.

An examination of the County books at regular stated intervals would result in no inconsiderable benefit to the county.

However careful and painstaking an officer may be errors will creep into his work from time to time, resulting, may be, in serious loss to himself or to the county; it will relieve him of unjust and adverse criticism. It will allow credit for meritorious work; it will tend to promote better discipline in the management of public affairs; it will preserve in the minds of the public in general a feeling of security; it is a necessary safeguard recognized in all branches of business and it may prove of economic value for other reasons not necessary to state here.

For obvious reasons the Board of Supervisors is the proper body to take charge of this work.

We therefore recommend to the consideration of the Board of Supervisors the advisability of making a yearly examination of the county books.

ARTHUR M. GIVEN,
Foreman.

In the report of the expert on County Books certain deficiencies are reported that require explanation. As the report goes before the public, it would appear that certain fees were wrongly retained by preceding County Clerks. Said fees were for recording "mining claims." The first cases reported by the expert occurred in 1889 and 1890, and his report shows that in those years about $400 was collected for recording "mining claims" and retained by the Recorder. Before retaining those fees the Recorder communicated with the Recorders of other counties on the subject, and the following is a copy of one of the answers received:

BAKER-FIELD, June 13, 1889.

DEAR SIR:—In reply to yours of April 24, 1889, would say:

In March last I instituted suit against Kern County for the amount of all money paid into the County Treasury by me on Mining Claims only; the suit was decided in the Superior Court in my favor with a judgment for the full amount; the Board of Supervisors have not as yet appealed and I do not know whether they will or not.

I, under the advice of my attorney, have not paid any money into the Treasury received by me for recording mining claims since the first of January, 1889, and the only question is, can I recover any money out of the Treasury, once paid in.

Last year the Recorder of San Bernardino County sued the County [San Bernardino] and recovered in his Superior Court; the case was appealed but the Board of Supervisors of that County had it dismissed before it came up.

My judgment was for $1392 75.

Very Respectfully,
N. R. PACKARD.

The same years, 1889 and 1890, the County Clerk is charged with $34 64 for error on Assessment Roll. This amount is improperly charged to the Clerk for the reason that it should be collected by reassessment, which can be done at any time.

Of the deficiencies charged against the County Clerk for the years 1891 and 1892, the sum of $93 was for recording "mining notices."

Work is now progressing on an irrigation canal in Arizona that will cost two million dollars. The South Gila Canal Company are the proprietors of the works. Reservoirs will be located about sixty miles east of Yuma to store the water during flood seasons. There are no large streams that flow at all seasons, as the streams in Owens Valley do. One dam will be 1400 feet long and 62 feet high. It is estimated that water enough can be stored to irrigate 300,000 acres. The contractor for this great work was at Independence last week; he looked over the country here with a view to taking big contracts. He was satisfied with what he saw and said that no misrepresentations had been made in describing the country to him. More may be heard on this subject before long.

Wm. McDonald was down from Big Pine at the end of last week. He is busy at work getting ready to start up the saw mill formerly owned by Creaser and Spratt. It will be necessary to repair the road to the mill and also put in some new machinery. He expects to have everything in readiness by the time the snow has disappeared and the mountains in condition to get logs to the mill. Mr. McDonald is an experienced millman and will turn out a good article.

The Woman And The Tree.

It is estimated that one thousand car loads of naval oranges will be shipped from Riverside county this year. About twelve years ago Mrs. L. C. Tibbetts obtained from the Department of Horticulture at Washington a young tree. This she planted and cared for so well that it made rapid growth, and from that single tree all the orchards of Riverside were budded, and the place has now world-wide fame for the extent of orchards and beauty and excellence of its oranges. Single oranges can now be seen in the shop windows at Los Angeles that measure two feet, one and a half inches in circumference. If one paradise was lost by a woman meddling with a tree, another has been made by a woman and a tree at Riverside.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ANTARE.

1st premium Trotting Stallion, 1891-2. Bred by S. L. Akens, Newman, Cal. Foaled April 6, 1887. Stands 15¾ hands high and weighs 1250 pounds. Color, mahogany bay with black points; no white. By ANTEROS, 6020.

1st dam, Sallie W., by Iowa Chief, 525.
2d dam by Tornado, 502.

ANTEROS, 6020.

By Electioneer, 125, the greatest sire of trotters living or dead; 125 of his get having records from 2:8¼ to 2:30. Among this number are Palo Alto, 2:08¾; Sunol, 2:08¾; Arion, 2:10¾ at 2 years; Norline, 2:31½ and Bell Bird, 2:26 as yearlings.

1st dam of Anteros, the great Columbine, dam of Anteeo, 2:16¾
Antevolo, 2:13¾
Antonia
Conrad
Coral, 2:18¾
Speedwell

Anteros is the sire of—
Doc Chresle, 4 years, 2:21
Nellie F., 4 years, 2:25
Anterose, 4 years, 2:25
Major Ross, 2 years, 2:30
Wilkeross, 2 years, 2:34¾
Entruria, 3 years, 2:33¾
Montgomery, 3 years, 2:27½
Antero, 3 years, 2:38¾
Bessie B., 3 years, 2:27
Anteorian, 3 years, 2:57
Antare, 4 years, 2:57

Antare is a "horse attached to a pedigree," possessing that quality so highly prized among horsemen, INDIVIDUAL MERIT, having the power to transmit both his color and form to his progeny. His record was made after trotting four well contested heats the day previous and is the fastest time ever made by any stallion ever owned in Inyo county over any track in the 18th District.

ANTARE was awarded the first premium over all competitors at the District Fairs of 1891-2. At the fair of 1893 we propose to exhibit an "Antare Family," of twenty five of his colts, and we challenge the owner of any stallion in the 18th District to exhibit one or more colts two-years-old or under that can compare with the colts sired by this horse.

TERMS FOR THE SEASON, $25 00.

Payable on or before August 1, 1893.

Mares from a distance pastured free of charge but no risks taken.

S. P. SMITH, Manager.

ORDER OF ADJUDICATION OF INSOLVENCY.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor.

J. V. Skinner, having filed in this Court his petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency from which it appears that he is an insolvent Debtor, the said J. V. Skinner is hereby declared to be insolvent. The Sheriff of the County of Inyo is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said J. V. Skinner, an insolvent Debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account, and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an Assignee of his estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said Insolvent or to deliver any property, belonging to such Insolvent, to him or to any person, firm, corporation or association for his use; and the said Debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property until the further order of this Court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered, that all the creditors of said Debtor be and appear before the Hon. Geo. M. Gill, Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, in open Court, at the Court Room of said Court, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, on the 9th day of May, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, to prove their debts and choose one or more Assignees of the estate of said Debtor.

It is further ordered, that the order be published in the Inyo Independent, a newspaper of general circulation, published in the County of Inyo, as often as the said paper is published before the day set for the meeting of Creditors.

And it is further ordered, that in the meantime, all proceedings against the said insolvent be stayed.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated April 3d, 1893.

MACK & LAIRD, Attorneys for Petitioner.

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies'
Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries and canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain
Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE
Is Where You Get
WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" WARE.

A True Old Saying!!

Goods Well Bought Are Half Sold.

Our buyers watch the markets carefully and purchas for cash, thus enabling us to quote telling prices that, compared with value, are small.

85 cents buys one of those gents white unlaundried shirts with a short bosom which does not rumple up or muss made of fine linen. Wamsutta muslin double back and patent continuous strip at neck and sleeve openings.

Windsor ties. As warm weather is at hand 'twill bring a demand for them which we are ready to supply having 100 dozen for you to choose from at 25 cents each. Come in plain colors, stripes checks and plaids.

GENTS OVERSHIRTS.

In this line we are showing the largest lines and strongest values of any retail line on the Coast. Bought direct from the manufacturers, thus saving you the middle-man's profit.

The line that bids fair to be most popular is the Stanley made with starched collars and cuffs, the bodies soft finished insuring comfort in summer. They come in calicoes, percales, cheviots and madras cloths, light and dark shades, stripes or figures. Prices $1 to $2 each.

Black satine overshirts, solid color or in fine hair line stripes from 50cts. to $1.25 each.

Domet flannel overshirts cut full size and well made. Price 25 cents each.

If you have not received one of our illustrated catalogues let us know. Copies sent free on application.

GENTS SHOES.

$3 buys the best calf shoe to be found anywhere for the money. Comfort and style combined. The bottoms are of the best white Oak tanned stock fastened with standard screws. Come in light, medium or heavy soles, suited to dress or every day wear. Sizes 5 to 11 and none genuine unless stamped "Hale's $3 Shoe on the bottom.

Hale's "School Boy's Pride."

These are one of our very best values in Boy's wear. Made on same shaped last as higher grades and thus ensuring a perfect fit. Come in light or heavy soles. Youths sizes 11 to 2. Price $2. Boys sizes 2½ to 5½. Price $2 50.

Ladies, Misses, and childrens shoes in all grades styles and prices

This spring sees many new novelties in wash dress fabrics. Some look like wool goods. Others, like silks, come in all sorts of effects and colorings. Printed Glorieos, printed on pretty grounds, colors cream, tan light and medium blue, 29 in. wide. Price 12½ cts. per yd.

Black brocades. A fine quality of goods with small satin stripes and patterns of white pinhead dots and small figures. 32 in. wide, price 35 cts. per yd.

Cream Crepon Cloths. Something like crinkled seersucker. Very popular. Price 8½ cents per yd.

Samples of dress goods etc. sent free on application.

HALE BROS. & CO.

825, 827, 829, 831, 833, 835 K St., and 1026 Ninth street.
Sacramento,
Calif.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS, WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neighboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finger Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the best quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packages to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,
0-m RENO, NEVADA.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday ..... January 28th
" ..... February 25th
" ..... March 25th
" ..... April 29th
" ..... May 27th
" ..... June 24th
" ..... July 22d
" ..... August 26th
" ..... September 23d
" ..... October 21st
" ..... November 16th
" ..... December 18th

THOS. C. ROLAND, W. M.
B. RHINE, Sec.

Freight! Freight!

BISHOP & MOJAVE
Through Freight Line.

George Meads,

PROPRIETOR.

Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:

J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.

Special rates given on car-load lots

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

DEALER IN

GENERAL
MERCHANDISE

Agent for

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:
Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE · CAL.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates

Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

Thos. Williams,
Proprietor.

BIG PINE ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the light st to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for outdoor parties.

Customers supplied on all points on the C. & C. Railroad.

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

F. W. BEDFORD ..... LESS

Horseshoeing ..... $2.00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see
F. W. BEDFORD.

INDEPENDENCE

MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROEPER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef,
Mutton,
Pork,
Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every art made to give satisfaction to patrons.
j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE,
GROCERIES
MINERS
Supplies

PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c.

A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

BELL'S
Flouring Mills

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

Independence, Cal. A. N. BELL.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R.

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, November 16,

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leaves—	Arrives—
Mound House	11:50 p. m	5.50 p. m
Dayton	12:00 p. m.	5:10 p. m
Wabuska	2:45 p. m	2:50 p. m
Hawthorne	5:50 p. m.	11:10 a. m
Luning	7:05 p. m.	9:55 a. m
Sodа Springs	8:05 p. m.	9:15 a. m
Belleville	9:15 p. m.	7:55 a. m
Candelaria	Ar. 10:00 p. m	Lv. 7:20 a. m
	No. 3. Leaves—	No. 4. Arrives—
Belleville	8:20 a. m.	5:25 p. m.
Benton	11:50 a. m.	1:25 a. m.
Bishop Creek	2:00p. m.	11:00 a. m
Alvord	2.45 p. m.	10:00 a. m
Independence	4:20 p. m.	8:30 a. m
Lone Pine	5:10 p. m.	7:40 a. m
Keeler	Ar 5:55 p. m.	Lv. 7:00 a. m

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (30 miles); Bodie (8 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays); for Downieville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stage for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

A. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - Cal.

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer
Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of

WINES,
LIQUORS,
& CGARS

The most careful attention given to the amusement and comfort of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-12 tf

Inyo
Stage
Company.
REGULAR LINE
—FROM—
Mojave To Keeler.

FINE COACH
FAST STOCK.

The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful

Redrock Canyon

And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.

Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m

Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.

W. K. MILLER,
Propr.

The Royal Baking Powder is indispensable to progress in cookery and to the comfort and convenience of modern housekeeping.

Royal is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public.—U. S. Gov't Chemist's Report.

For finest food I can use none but Royal.—A. FORTIN, Chef, White House, for Presidents Cleveland and Arthur.

Sir John Lubbock, who probably knows more about bees than any other man in the world, living or dead, says that there is strong evidence that the queen bee has the power of controlling the sex of the egg.

When argument takes the place of epithet hurling the victory of right principles will dawn, for epithets may be hurled by any one, but sound argument is possible only on the side of the right.

The consumption of snuff in this country is chiefly by dipping, and the bulk of the tobacco manufactured in this shape is consumed below Mason and Dixon's line.

Telescopic observations show that the planet Venus appears to a distant observer far more nearly like the earth than does Mars.

The guests at a hotel in Ohio presented one of the waitresses with a pair of roller skates in hopes of being waited on more rapidly.

One hundred and two kernels of grain, it is said, have been counted in one head of wheat grown near Cheney, Wash.

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

Few men who go into maple sirup manufacturing make an unadulterated success of it.

It's Just as Easy

To grow Choice Flowers as it is to grow common ones if you START RIGHT.

Either one of the following collections is a garden in itself, and your garden is not complete without them. They are all beautiful and fashionable flowers and the plants are all strong, healthy and pot-grown, and sent, postage free, for the price named.

THE TIMOTHY HOPKINS COLLECTION OF SWEET PEAS

Comprising 21 Distinct Varieties. A Large Packet of Seeds of each for $1.50, or a Packet of Seeds of the same varieties mixed for only 10 cents.

12 Roses $1.00
12 Carnations $1.00
12 Pelargoniums $1.00
12 Chrysanthemums $1.00
DIFFERENT VARIETIES

Flower or Vegetable SEEDS 25 Choice Varieties of Either (your own or our selection) FOR ONE DOLLAR.

SHERWOOD HALL NURSERY CO.
S. W. Cor. Sansome & Clay Sts., - - San Francisco, Cal.

"German Syrup"

Just a bad cold, and a hacking cough. We all suffer that way sometimes. How to get rid of them is the study. Listen—"I am a Ranchman and Stock Raiser. My life is rough and exposed. I meet all weathers in the Colorado mountains. I sometimes take colds. Often they are severe. I have used German Syrup five years for these. A few doses will cure them at any stage. The last one I had was stopped in 24 hours. It is infallible." James A. Lee, Jefferson, Col. ①

The Rugged Child

is largely an "outdoor" product. Fresh air and exercise usually produce sound appetite and sound sleep. Sickly children obtain great benefit from

Scott's Emulsion

of cod-liver oil with Hypophosphites, a fat-food rapid of assimilation and almost as palatable as milk.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

DR. GUNN'S ONION SYRUP FOR COUGHS, COLDS AND CROUP.

GRANDMOTHER'S ADVICE.

In raising a family of nine children, my only remedy for Coughs, Colds and Croup was onion syrup. It is just as effective to-day as it was forty years ago. Now my grandchildren take Dr. Gunn's Onion Syrup which is already prepared and more pleasant to the taste. Sold everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents. Take no substitute for it. There's nothing as good.

PISO'S CURE FOR

Consumptives and people who have weak lungs or Asthma, should use Piso's Cure for Consumption. It has cured thousands. It has not injured one. It is not bad to take. It is the best cough syrup. Sold everywhere. 25c.

CONSUMPTION.

TRUST.

If thou dost find cold spirits, hearts unkind,
Let this not warp thy disappointed mind
To think all men alike; it is not so,
For still on earth the warmth of love doth glow.

If thou shalt meet with falsehood, foully dealt
Let this not to thy spirit's depth be felt,
For all men are not liars; truth doth still
Abide on earth and work her righteous will.

If thou shalt trust to friends who treachery plan,
Fall not thou out of faith with every man;
For honor liveth; and thou yet shalt bless
The power that lies in a friend's faithfulness.

There is no evil that can thee befall,
If thou shalt save thy spirit from the thrall
Of bitterness, suspicion and despair,
And dwell above in higher, purer air.

Have faith in God; he bids the tempests cease,
He lulls the rising waves of woe to peace.
Have faith in him who guides thy life, and then
Thou shalt both love and trust thy fellow men.
—Elizabeth French in Portland Transcript.

MARRIED AT A GALLOP.

"Well?" in a decidedly testy tone, was the greeting old Joel Gringer gave the tall young schoolmaster who stood fumbling the latch of the front gate, and clearing his throat more for the sake of attracting attention than to remove any obstruction from his windpipe. "Well?"

But it wasn't well. That wasn't the right way to encourage the young man, and shrewd old Joel Gringer knew it. He wanted to make him go through the torture of telling him plainly that he had come to see his daughter, so that he could put an end to the thing then and there.

"Well?"

"H'm! I—I—just wanted to know if Miss—h'm, h'm—is at home," and the young fellow relieved his nervousness by digging up the gravel walk with his left toe at a rate that threatened to damage it worse than ten years' regular wear and tear.

"I thought your business was to teach the children to speak the English language, and here you can't do anything but hum and hawk. I'm at home, and so is Growler there. Anything else?" and the steely eyes looked through the young man like a ferret's.

"No, sir," with a loud ahem; "I was just going up the road to Mr. Mason's, and wanted to know if the family were all well—that's all." And the bashful young fellow seemed to have found his wits somewhere, for he turned coolly away, raising his cane as he did so, and striking the maple foliage over his head three sharp clips that made the leaves crack like a pistol.

And the old farmer's eyes were not so sharp as he prided himself they were, or he might have seen the flutter of something white, three distinct times, from the narrowest opening in the blinds above, and have guessed why the young man was so easily satisfied.

Maybe love is blind to its own objects, but for dullness of vision give me, all the time, the eyes that are ever so sharp after a bargain, but have not the quickening of the divine passion to make them vigilant guards against the dangers that threaten to thwart love's plans. That's a long way of spelling Joel Gringer, but a true one.

He watched the straight, lithe young form until it seemed only a shadow against Neighbor Mason's barn, and then began banging to the shutters with a vehemence that said to all, "Joel Gringer can take care of his own every time—leave him alone for that."

"Gone on to Mason's," was his gruff answer to his wife's questioning look. "Only wanted to inquire after the health of the family. S'pose he thinks the deed's done, the trick is assessed to pay him for goin' round an' doin' that—ha, ha! What would the funerals of two-thirds of this family count with him? Good at fractions, they say. We'll see how his fractions work in this house. Much good it will do him to talk it over with John Mason, the old?"——

"Sh—!" hissed cautiously into his ear, and a warning finger told him to leave uncomplimentary references to the neighbor—with whom he had been embroiled in a bitter lawsuit, and between whose farms a "devil's lane" prevented any joining of line fences—unsaid. "There's Mason's hired man again."

"Well?" About 20 per cent. more peppery than a moment ago.

"The old man sent me over to say them there hogs o' yourn's been into the back cornfield agin, an' he won't turn 'em out till doomsday, nor let me. They're there yit, an' makin' the interest on five thousand dollars fly like sixty—that's what the old man 'lows the field'll fetch him. Better not take that there pup along, had ye? Hi! Wait till I can get out!"

The last exclamation was caused by preparations for unchaining the huge bulldog Growler, and Ben Stone made one leap over the fence and was out of hearing before Joel Gringer could finish something about "going for witnesses."

"Said my say out. He'n the dog's witnesses enough, I reckon, to the scrimmage there'll be. I'm engaged in another case. Hogs ain't to my likin', Joel Gringer, though I do know how to drive 'em purty slick. Wouldn't a-taken that dog if I hadn't called it a pup an' ricommended not. Laws! but there'll be smash to pay for to-night, sure's my name's Ben Stone."

Mrs. Gringer set her candle in the back kitchen window and her supper in the oven, and watched and waited for Joel's lantern to gleam down the lane leading to the back cornfield.

But it was gleaming in more fantastic forms farther away. It was playing hide and seek up and down dusty rows of corn, just in the milk and toothsome to the unruly swine. He and Growler were defending the rear, with Mrs. Gringer doing sentinel duty for them—but what of the front.

In a little hollow in the road, not twenty rods from Joel Gringer's house, the thick green turf by the wayside served as a cushion for the feet of two restive steeds that would stamp at the troublesome flies. Every nail was fast in their shoes, and every strap buckled tight, while the nervy fellows—two of the most tireless travelers John Mason's stable could boast—champed their bits restlessly and tossed their heads, throwing now and then a flake of foam that flashed with silvery brightness in the chance rays of moonlight, and— But what is that?

Adown the green, thorny breastwork that defended Joel Gringer's possessions from the wayside grazers flitted a slight figure, crouching and halting, and then darting swiftly forward toward the little dell which seemed to be the rendezvous sought.

"Is that you, Nannie?" a hoarse, excited whisper met her a few rods distant from the horses.

"Sh——! Yes; I never saw a man who could help spoiling things by blunders. There, don't take it to heart, Richard; I won't scold you again after all this until we are"——

"Married."

"Yes; but do not let us hurry! I'm afraid every minute that those hogs haven't done justice to the obstinacy of their nature, and father"——

"Well, give me your foot and off we go. We'll show Joel Gringer whether I am competent to teach addition to a girl."

"And are you sure the preacher understands?"

"Sure, darling; he's to be at Brother Stillwell's tonight, on his way to the Kildeer appointment. Now, old fellows, do your best. Mr. Mason told me not to spare horseflesh."

As the clatter of the hoofs rang down the road past John Mason's two unusual night incidents might have been witnessed—the gleam of a light across the fields, swaying and flickering as though carried by an excited, unsteady hand, and a man leaning against the door of John Mason's stables, whittling a stick and musing over something which evidently pleased him much.

He, he! I never helped take them out of here. Can't prove it by me who's takin' to stealin'; hain't I been behind the haystack tryin' to hammer the bung in that barrel? An' it wouldn't stay, but it made an awful racket. There's one consolation: if them there nosses have to go fur, they've been well fed an' every shoe is as sound as a trigger—ha, ha!" And Ben Stone shut up his knife and went in to inform his master that as likely as not some one had stolen something or other about the place, but it couldn't be proved by him.

"Shut up and go to bed with you, and don't answer questions until your asked!" was the curt reply, with this addition in an undertone: "I—I wouldn't begrudge the best span I've got to get even with old Gringer once more."

Patter, patter! click, click! neck to neck and nostril to nostril, along ridge and through wooded hollow skimmed the two fleet coursers like some well mated birds of flight. But few words were exchanged, but two pairs of human ears, at least, strained, minute by minute, to catch the first sound of expected pursuit.

Out of another valley and up to the top of another ridge they go steadily, panting and steaming. They pause a second to breathe, and look and listen.

Away back on the last ridge, a mile or more away, the moonlight glistens on something bright—a silver plated buckle or saddle decoration—and then there comes a clear, ringing sound, as when steel strikes flint.

"He's coming! Oh, hurry, Dick! We cannot reach Mr. Stilwell's in time; it's"——

"Three miles yet, and"——

"You know Fleetwood's gait; Mr. Mason never had a horse that could outrun him. What shall we do? Oh, if only we were"——

"Married, and I could call you my own; then I would not need to run to a step, but could defend my right to you in the eyes of the law. Listen! What's that ahead?"

"The Corners are just down there, you know, and some one may be coming on the cross road."

"An idea! That is the direction from which the preacher comes. What if it should be— But, no; he's going straight ahead of us. Yes, there he turns! Whip up, and let's overtake him, whoever the rider be!"

And the two blown and jaded horses were urged afresh.

A quarter of a mile; half a mile; three-quarters. The sound of hoofs in both directions are growing distinct. Oh, so near behind!

"Call him, Richard! He may stop. Oh, if it only is!"

"But your father will hear, too, and hasten! Hello, there! Wait!"

"Who is it?"

"I can't be mistaken in that voice, Dick. He has stopped. Now"——

In a moment the overtaken party was seen, sure enough, to be the very preacher they were riding hard and fast to find. But while the situation was being explained the footsteps of the pursuing horse were heard close by, and in a minute another "Hello!" rang on their ears, hoarse and infuriated: "Stop! stop, I command you! Nannie, your father tells you to stop! Young man, I'll horsewhip you on the spot if you don't give me my daughter!"

The two looked at each other in despair. There would scarcely be time to begin the ceremony. Must they be torn asunder when so near the goal? The thought made the girl turn pale, and she almost sank helpless in her lover's arms.

But the preacher, backwoodsman that he was, was a man of wit and resources, and of heart as well. "Keep on," said he quietly, "and ride as fast as you can. I will follow. Join your hands and sit firm in the saddle when I tell you. I have it on the tip of my tongue. The Lord please, you'll be man and wife before that horse brushes his nose against yours."

Clatter, clatter—clink, clink! rang the sharp hoof beats! Nearer and nearer they came together; but the words rolled off the preacher's lips, as he rose and sank in his stirrups, faster than the speed of the racers.

It was a race of tongue against hoof!

The wild, mad pelting of the iron shod feet were pitted against heart throbs and brain pulses and trembling lips!

The strain upon John Mason's horseflesh, and its fleeter competitor, whose master spared him neither pain nor life, was telling; but the tension on two hearts that were tortured by suspense was still more terrific.

Nearer and nearer sped Fleetwood, until his hoarse panting almost drowned the preacher's words! But a few rods separated them!

"Join your right hands," came the sharp command.

"Halt, I command you, in the name of"——

"Put spurs! Forasmuch as Richard W. Anderson and Annie Gringer have consented to"—— "Hold up there! I'm an officer of the law!" demanded another voice, drowning the rest of the preacher's "forasmuch." But the wild wedding party dashed forward, now almost covered by the dust the others raised, and the preacher's lips worked fast.

"In the name of the Father"——

"Halt, or you'll suffer the penal"——

"And of the Son"——

"Give me my daughter, you villain!"

"And of the Holy Ghost, I pronounce that they are husband and wife. Amen."

And love had won the race!

There was a halt then, and explanations that disarmed the man of the law and sent old Joel Gringer back to his belated supper with vain cursings of his luck.

The supper at Stilwell's was flavored with pleasanter reflections, and Ben Stone had many an opportunity to wonder aloud, in his sly way, "How in tarnation them hogs ever did get into old man Mason's cornfield jest when Dick Anderson wanted to steal Joel Gringer's daughter."—J. F. Cowan in Frank Leslie's Monthly.

Night Prowlers Both.

Precocious—Mamma and baby have stepped out on the terrace to see whether cook has forgotten to give the cat its dinner. They find pussy engaged in cleaning up its plate, in which operation it is assisted by an immense tom cat.

"Wherever can that creature have come from?" inquires mamma, and baby makes answer:

"Why, that's pussy's policeman!"—Kinderwelt.

Providing for the Dark Days.

Thrifty Mother—Ellen, why will you persist in eating the soft part of your bread and leaving crusts under the edge of your plate? Some day you may be glad to get even crusts to eat.

Thoughtful Daughter—Yes, mother, that's what I'm saving them for.—Boston Transcript.

Dangerous.

Fat Woman (to living skeleton)—Try it with this straw; it's a great deal nicer.

L. S. (drinking lemonade)—Dasn't, because I'm afraid I'd fall through.—Life.

Royal Persons Who Own American Land.

According to the information and belief of a wide awake member of the Real Estate exchange, nearly all of the foreign potentates are investors in New York real estate. He declares that the purchase of a valuable piece of property in Nassau street, made about a year ago by a foreign banking house, was an investment of Queen Victoria's. "The queen owns other real estate in this city," said the well posted man, "and she has bought thousands of acres of land out west. The royal family of Germany has extensive investments in this city and elsewhere, and so has the king of Sweden. The ex-Empress Isabella of Spain owns several pieces of property in this city and in other parts of the United States. She is a woman of great foresight. The land on which the Western Union building stands was once the property of the Empress Eugenie, and I presume that she still has some investments here.

"King Humbert of Italy is reputed to be a judicious buyer of property in this country, and persons suspected of being agents of the czar of Russia have been looking about on this side of the water for first class investments. I tell you those people who are in the king business in Europe are shrewd. They cannot tell how soon they may be shaken off their thrones by political revolutions, and they mean to have something to fall back on in this land of the free. How much better off Dom Pedro would have been if he had invested a few millions of Brazilian money here several years ago."—New York Times.

Communicating with Paris.

The methods employed by the Parisian authorities for communicating with the provinces during the siege of Paris were persevering and ingenious. The principal means of sending letters was by balloons and carrier pigeons, but many other plans were tried. It was almost impossible for a messenger to get through the German lines. Even when other difficulties could be overcome the danger of a search and a discovery of the dispatch was great.

Many of the messengers made incisions in the skin and hid a dispatch under the epidermis. Others provided themselves with hollow ten centime pieces or hollow keys, which could be opened like a box and in which dispatches could be hidden. One was accustomed to hide his dispatch under an artificial hollow tooth. These dispatches of course were written in cipher, and covered only a fragment of paper.

Attempts were made to cross the enemy's lines by following the caves and natural tunnels under the left branch of the Seine, and by diving and crossing the bed of the river in diving suits, but these plans failed.

A curious scheme was the putting of letters into little hollow spheres of zinc, and throwing these spheres into the Seine or its tributaries, hoping that they would float to Paris. They did float to Paris, but not until after the armistice. It was supposed that they were stopped by dams, or that they were discovered and held back by the Germans until the siege was at an end.—Youth's Companion.

Origin of "Lynch Law."

Webster's Dictionary, title "Lynch law," says: "The practice of punishing men for crimes or offenses by private, unauthorized persons, without a legal trial. The term is said to be derived from a Virginia farmer named Lynch, who thus took the law into his own hands." These are the main facts in regard to the origin of this celebrated "law," which, as a matter of fact, is not "law" at all.

In Campbell county, Va., some of the rankest and most obnoxious Tories were taken care of by law, but there were many others not reachable by the statutory enactment. This being the case, Colonel Charles Lynch, Colonel Robert Anderson, his brother-in-law, and one Calloway, a neighbor, determined to rid their part of the county of its enemies. They accordingly seized the leaders of the several Tory factions and flogged them so severely that they were only too glad of the chance offered them to "leave, and leave for good."

This summary treatment having proved so effectual in Campbell county, it was soon tried in other counties where King George had the strongest following. Such procedures soon became known as "trials by Judge Lynch," and the "justice" obtained in such courts as "Lynch law."—St. Louis Republic.

Universality of the Sign Language.

It is a fact worth noting that the signs used by the Indians of North America are identical in may instances with those employed by the deaf mutes of today. A short time ago a friend of the writer, who had spent considerable time among the Indians, but who had never talked with a deaf mute before, conversed with some pupils of the New York institution by means of signs which he had learned from the red men. "Where are you going?" and "I am going away on horseback," were the same when given by the deaf mutes and by the visitor.

Another instance showing the sign language to be a universal one was when the mother of the writer, herself a deaf person, while attending a convention of instructors of the deaf in France, conversed on various topics with a mute friend by means of signs. The French lady had no knowledge of the English language, while the American knew hardly a word of French.

True, As to Some.

The Cynic—Wretched machine! Do you really imagine that you are the greatest of inanimate liars?

The Gas Meter (doltily)—Can you name a greater?

The Cynic—Assuredly. It is the tombstone.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

CARL DUNDER.

Reasons Why He Decides Not to Become a Great Man.

"Shildrens, let me told you somethings. I vhas an oldt mans, und I knows better ash you. If you want to haf some fun und be happy doan' you try to be great. I doan' believe dot vhay when I vhas a boy, und so I lay oop sorrow for myself.

"You haf all heard of Napoleon Bonaparte. He vhas a great sheneral. He can lick all Europe mit one hand tied behind hi back. He vhas der greatest man for a hundred years. Some peoples vhas so afraid of him dot dey shump in der rifer, und some like him so dot dey sit oop nights to hurrah. Maybe dot looks awfully nice to you, but how vhas he. Dot Bonaparte can nefer go in a tobacco store und play sheckers mit a fireman. He doan' haf no time to go on a picnic. He nefer sees a game of baseball. He doan' haf some fun mit der boys at ward caucus. All he does vhas to plan some fights und knock eaferybody into der middle of two weeks ago. Take him for ten years und he doan laugh once. He vhas great but does dot pay? Where vhas der fun—der benefits?

"Some poys cry pecause dey vhas not Sheorge Washington. Maybe it looks awful nice to be president und a sheneral, und to swell around und boss eaferybody, und to haf your name in der papers, but you hold on. Do you belief Sheorge Washingtons eafer haf some fun mit der poys? Does he eafer steal some apples, carry off somepody's gate, or hook sugar from der pantry, und nopody dares slap him on der back und call him oldt mans, und nobody dares ask him to ship his ticket. He must shust be a big gun und keep quiet und comb his hair fife times a tay.

"Maybe some of der little gals vas mad pecause dey won't nefer be queen of Spain. A queen has nice dresses, und she can haf some quails on toast eafery day, und if she says she wants this or that she can haf him. Ven she rides out eaferypody shmiles und bows und cheers, und if she was seek der papers come out eafery hour. Dot looks nice, but hold on a little while. If you vhas queen you can't play tag mit der poys, you can't eat some peanuts nor chew gum, you can't put on an old dress nor wear some old shoes, und if you go to a picnic you can't eafen fall oafen a log and skin your nose. How it would look for a queen to stand out by her gate und gossip mit Mrs. Blank about dot new neighbor and her nine-cats! If her husband comes home late she can't say one word, und if she goes by der kitchen der hired girls bounce her out. She must sit oop very straight, und look very solemn, and if she looks out of der window und a poy falls down she can't eafen shmile. If you want some comforts in dis world doan' you be some queens.

"I shust like to be as I am und like I vhas. If some man calls at my house he takes off his hat und says my wife vhas looking petter ash she vhas, und dot we vhas hafing sooch bad weather as he nefer sees before. Vhen a man comes in my place of pesness he says: 'Hello! Dunder, vhas he cold enough for her? How vhas your left lung today, anyhow? I can laugh at him, or I can poke him in der ribs, or I can tell him to go by Halifax. Dot makes me happy, und I grow fat some more. If I vhas sooch a great man dot I haf to hold my legs stiff as crowbars und my backbone like a gate post, und say 'um!' und 'ha!' und go py der barber once a day, I vhas so seek und tire I dot I run away from myself. When I vhas who I vhas I can wake oop in der morning und box Shake's ears, keep my dog out doors, shmile on my wife und go down town und feel dot I like to stay in Detroit ten hoonered years."—Detroit Free Press.

The Twelfth Juryman.

An anecdote of Lord Eldon's is to the effect that when trying a case at York Mr. Justice Gould noticed, after two hours had gone by, there were only eleven jurors in the box.

"Where is the twelfth?" he asked.

"Please you, my lord," said one of the eleven, "he is gone home on some business, but he has left his verdict with me."—London Tit-Bits.

THE BEST IN THE WORLD.

Senator Henry C. Nelson, of New York, writes:

"On the 27th of February, 1883, I was taken with a violent pain in the region of the kidneys. I suffered such agony that I could hardly stand up. As soon as possible I applied two ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS, one over each kidney, and laid down. In an hour, to my surprise and delight, the pain had vanished and I was well. I wore the plasters for a day or two as a precaution, and then removed them. I have been using ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS in my family for the last ten years, and have always found them the quickest and best remedy for colds, strains and rheumatic affections. From my experience I believe they are the best plasters in the world."

Many a man who "starts off well" spoils everything by coming back.

Coughs and Hoarseness.—The irritation which induces Coughing is immediately relieved by "Brown's Bronchial Troches." Sold only in boxes.

It is wrong to "hold spite." That is why so many men hurt it at the other fellow.

How to Come to a Stop.

SAINT JACOBS OIL TRY IT

When we least expect them, accidents will befall us, a verification of the old adage that the unexpected always happens. The following recites how an active business man was suddenly brought down.

THE TRAIN STOPS.

CINCIN., O.—"Recently while in the act of alighting from my car, I stepped upon a stone, which, turning suddenly under my foot, threw me to the ground, with a severely sprained ankle.

THE MANAGER STOPS.

Suffering exceedingly, I was helped into my car, and my man rubbed me most generously with arnica and kindred remedies, but to no avail.

A POINT TO STOP AT.

Reaching a station where St. Jacobs Oil could be procured, two bottles of it were bought, and the application of it resulted at once in a relief from pain, which had well nigh become unbearable. I was out and about my work in three days."

W. W. PEABODY,
Prest. & Genl. Man. O. & M. R. R.

THAT'S THE St. Jacobs OIL POINT

The Pain Stops.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

S FOR renovating the entire system, eliminating all Poisons from the Blood, whether of scrofulous or malarial origin, this preparation has no equal. . .

TRADE S.S.S. MARK

S "For eighteen months I had an eating sore on my tongue. I was treated by best local physicians, but obtained no relief; the sore gradually grew worse. I finally took S. S. S., and was entirely cured after using a few bottles."

C. B. McLEMORE,
Henderson, Tex.

S TREATISE on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free.
THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.,
Atlanta, Ga.

Our readers will serve themselves by noticing the remarkable offerings advertised in another column by the Sherwood Hall Nursery Co. of Menlo Park and San Francisco, who are leaders on the coast in furnishing everything for the farm and garden.

Truthful, but Still Single—He—I will gladly share all your troubles. She—I haven't got any troubles. He—But you will have lots of them after we are married.

NATURE'S SUREST ALLY.

If nature did not struggle against disease, even in weakly constitutions, swift indeed would be the course of a malady to its fatal termination. While nature thus struggles let us, lest worse befall us, aid her efforts with judicious medicinal help. Experience must be our guide in battles with disease, and that "lamp to our feet" indicates Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a safe, tried and thorough ally of nature. If the blood be infected with bile, if the bowels and stomach are inactive, if the kidneys fail to expel impurities of which they are the natural outlet, a course of the Bitters is the surest reliance of the sufferer, one, moreover, that is sanctioned by professional indorsement and use for nearly half a century. No American or foreign remedy has earned greater distinction as a remedy for and preventive of chronic liver complaint, malaria, constipation, kidney and rheumatic trouble and debility.

"I saw several signs of spring to-day," remarked Bunting. "What were they?" asked Larkin. "To Let."

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY.

FRANK J. CHENEY makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. CHENEY & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of HALL'S CATARRH CURE.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

SEAL } A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

If the average man cannot get near enough to the throne to attract attention, he will throw a rock at it.

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED.

We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Porterfield & Foscy, 838 Market street, San Francisco.

It is wonderful to note the amount of suspicion that hovers around the thing they call a "trust."

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

FACE AND FIGURE show it, if you're a healthy woman. They'll have a beauty of their own, no matter what your features. Perfect health, with its clear skin, rosy cheeks, and bright eyes, is enough to make any woman attractive.

To get perfect health, use faithfully Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. That regulates and promotes all the proper functions of womanhood, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health, flesh and strength.

For periodical pains, prolapsus and other displacements, bearing-down sensations, and "female complaints" generally, it is so effective that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back. Is anything that isn't sold in this way likely to be "just as good."

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail, Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER.25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. INJECTOR

Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50cts. Injector free.

Hood's Cures

Saved My Wife's Life

Weakness, Nervousness, Salt Rheum.

John W. Jones
Kalama, Wash.

"Of my own free will and accord, unbiased by anyone and wishing only to do good to the afflicted, I wish to tell of the good qualities of Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills. I think there are no medicines equal to them, and have proved their merit by experience in my own family. My wife, Rachel, has been afflicted with weakness, nervousness, and salt rheum. I spent nearly all that I had of this world's goods for doctor's bills and medicine until we decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It undoubtedly Saved My Wife From the Grave.

The salt rheum has entirely healed and she is restored to good health. I have many friends and relatives in the east who will be glad to know that

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Has cured my wife." JOHN W. JONES, Kalama, Wash. Get HOODS.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best after-dinner Pills, assist digestion, cure headache. Try a box. 25c.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

CHICKS INCUBATORS on installments. Best Make—Lowest Price. Send for Catalogue. W. C. BEACH, Ripon, Cal.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE

Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

Plant Ferry's Seeds

and reap a rich harvest. They are always reliable, always in demand, always the best.

FERRY'S SEED ANNUAL

For 1893 is invaluable to every Planter. It is an encyclopedia of the latest farming information from the highest authorities. Mailed Free.

D. M. FERRY & CO. DETROIT, Mich.

INVALID GOODS.

Rolling Chairs, Reclining Chairs, Back Rests, Commodes.

Send for Catalogue.
W. A. SCHROCK, 21 New Montgomery St. S.F.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES

ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BO-SAN-KO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

YOUNG MEN! The Specific A No. 1.

Cures, without fail, all cases of Gonorrhœa and Gleet, no matter of how long standing. Prevents stricture, it being an internal remedy. Cures when everything else has failed. Sold by all Druggists. Manufacturers: The A. Schoenheit Medicine Co., San Jose, Cal. Price, $3.00.

S. F. N. U. No. 562. New Series No. 13

"A FAIR FACE MAY PROVE A FOUL BARGAIN." MARRY A PLAIN GIRL IF SHE USES

SAPOLIO

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF Moore's Revealed Remedy.

ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude, MRS. N. V. STEELE.

SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

HERCULES GAS AND GASOLINE Stationary and Marine ENGINES

For Launches, Schooners, Tow Boats, Etc.

For Pumping, Mining Hoists, Printing, Sawing, Turning Lathes, Soda Water Works, Etc.

For simplicity and success they beat the world. Clean, no ashes, smell or dirt. No engineer is necessary; they are easily managed. Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question. No battery or electric spark to care for. No double or false explosions, so frequent with the unreliable spark. The workmanship is the very best. Our ignition tubes are a success; they explode every charge of gas which enters the cylinder. Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day. For pumping outfits for irrigating purposes they run all day without an engineer. For hoisting outfits in mines they have met with the highest approval. We give estimates on the entire plant.

PALMER & REY, MANUFACTURERS,
405-407 Sansome St., San Francisco, Cal.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

Independence, Cal.

FRIDAY, MAY 5, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXIV. NO. 46. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., MAY 5, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1175

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$1 00
Six Months	2 25
Three Months	1 00
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

INFELIX—SED VICTOR.

Freed from the strife of this world and the scorn of it,
Sweetly he sleeps in the emerald plain.
Never Ambition, nor Sorrow that's born of it—
Scepter or cross—can afflict him again.
All that he lived for was Truth and the fight for it,
Now all his battles are over and done.
Death gives him slumber, at last, and the night for it—
Trials all ended and victory won.

They that reviled him may mourn to recover him,
Knowing how gentle he was and how brave.
Nothing he'll reck, where the wind blowing over him
Ripples the grasses that dream on his grave.
Though to our vision this dust be the last of him,
Low in the ground and deserted and lone,
Time will avenge all the woe that is past of him,
Fate will remember and Justice atone.

After the fray and the heartbreaking pain of it,
Aliened affection and honor betrayed,
Here is the end, and the crown, and the gain of it—
Cold in the earth where the victor is laid.
Stars will watch over him, silence lament for him.
Soft woodland whispers re-echo his knell—
Bird note and leaf murmur tenderly blent for him—
Comrade and brother and friend, fare the well.

—William Winter in New York Tribune.

HOW HE WON HER.

He was seedy, but in this sense only that his was the seediness of hayseed. There was hayseed in his hair, in his whiskers, through which the morning winds moaned, in his eyelashes, on the top of his head. His eyes had a far away searching-for-hayseed look, his voice seemed to have an intonation of it, and his general appearance was a conglomerate demonstration of hayseed as an extant fact.

As I had nothing on earth to do, I sat on a mound, and while ants crawled up my trousers leg I listened to him as he leaned against the rail fence and talked. His voice seemed to entice to the surrounding atmosphere the mingled odors of new mown hay and of cows waiting to be milked.

I did not listen at first. He might have been a lark singing in a distant field, and I would have understood him as well until my attention was attracted when he smacked his lips with intellectual gratification and self satisfaction and said, "I always knowed it." From that time on I did not permit myself to lose a word. "He had a tarnal lot of grit as a lover, had Joe Corker," he said, "and wasn't the man never to give in. He kep' a-courtin' of her from the time she was a leetle baby gal at school till she was a old maid of forty two, and never lost hope. It was his way because of his grit. When he started in to do anything he generally done it, simply for no other reason than that he was the durndest feller. So when he went to love makin' he was more despirit than a tiger had ought to dared to thought of bein.

"He never give himself an easy job either, for it weren't his way. For the gal he picked out growed up to be one o' them tough old birds what's the more obstinate the more uglier they are and bleeves in marriage as a failure. She were a gal with freckles same size as ten cent dimes all over her. Well, when a man undertakes a job of that kind, even without the grit of Joe as a lover, he keeps at it out of aggravation—you would yourself. Your vanity does it, for you say to yourself, 'if you can't capture a bundle of freckles, what can you do nohow?' In the meantime, as she grows older and gets more obstinater and uglier you loses your temper and she loses hers, and neither of you never git it back again. So it was with Joe, but having the grit as a lover, of which I've spoke, mere loss of temper was nothing to him. Well, he kep' on and kep' on and then he kep' on.

"One day she told him she'd come to the conclusion marriage were not a failure, which give him great joy. Then he got a setback when he learned that a two buttons cutaway chucklehead had commenced a-sparkin' of her under the delusion she was rich and was the cause of it. It was about that time Joe went west, taking a letter writer with him, so he could send back a courtin' letter took out of the book from every station they stopped at.

"Well, after workin' at different things, always bein' as confident that he'd win as a frog is about its powers to chirp—if it took him a hundred years he'd git thar—he located in a cabin on a swampy tule farm up on four legs above the highest reach of the water. The tide was two feet deep over his land twice a day, so he built roosts all around his place for his chickens to roost on at high tide, for he raised chickens and honey for the city markets, and he rowed around in a boat to the nests to get the eggs. In the meantime while doing so he was always composin' love letters for to write, for he was poetical and done things by inspiration, and the inspirations always come when he was collectin' the eggs, especially if the hens had laid well.

"All around he seen bitterns flying, all perticklerly fat with nothing apparently to eat. It was a caution how fat they seemed to grow and have oily, greasy countenances, all on nothing, and he couldn't make it out till he seen one flying one day close by, with a neck a yard and a half long, with a head for all the world like the head of a sarpent. Then he watched more of them with heads like corkscrews, and they seemed also to have amazin' long necks and sarpent's heads as they flew about in all directions. At last he see how they et snakes, and that, as it took about half an hour to swallow them, they kep' flyin' round an' round while doing it, so's the motion would aid digestion.

"One day an idea struck Joe. He seen besides bein' so amazin' fat they were about the size of young chickens. So he killed one one day and chopped its legs and head off and plucked the feathers, and saw, for his purposes, it were a chicken. So, bein' so, he sent them to the city to market as chickens, with their heads off and blue an' yellow scalloped tissue paper where their legs was cut off, where they gave him a great name because of their fatness and the delicate taste of frogs' legs which sarpents give the meat. In consequence he growed rich.

"In the meantime, while watchin' the bitterns and sarpents, all unconscious they was doin' it so he'd grow rich, and while pluckin' the feathers off, he was always busy meditatin' an' composin' love letters, and he was always beggin' her to come out and get married. But his ideas, however he put them, never fetched her nohow.

"At last one day, of a Sunday, he see he must have a change of ideas, so's he'd seem different—same as a man seems different in a different suit of clothes—to fetch Miss Selverton, the lady, and was wondering what would change them. He rowed in his boat to a neighborin town, and on the way, though he'd never drank nothin' before, he determined he'd try gin. He'd hearn of a man once made a fortune by an idea he got by drinkin gin, so he got two big black bottles and rowed home with them, determined to try it, for Joe was grit. So he done it.

"He opened one bottle, and while he was drinkin' it an idea come to him and he said to himself—for havin' no neighbors he choose to talk to himself—'I'll open the other in honor of her arrival when she gets here.' The idea, which was special brilliant, had come to him of its own accord, so he thought it was a sign of good luck, and put the unopened bottle aside. He then finished the other, and while so doin' he composed and writ a letter to Miss Selverton what fetched her with all her baggage. He'd dropped the letter book style and just spoke plain. If I don't disremember he said, 'I've got the snakes, and I'm the first man that ever found them payin' property and growed rich by it.'

"You see, he jist wrote plain that away. Then he went on and said: 'I've got a regular snake trust and the people never mistrust it, and it's the kind of trust what, so far from causing me to bust, would just make you bust with laughter if you saw the peculiar way I've growed rich. I had to give other people snakes before they'd come down with their cash. If you will come out, my dear, we will have the snakes together.' He spoke all through just plain that away. Then he inclosed a check for a thousand dollars for her to come out with.

"Now you'd say she'd never come after that. Well, that's just where you're off. Bein' a woman what thought marriage was a failure, of course she was as full of notions as a river is of drink, so she seen she had a mission, and that mission was to save him from the snakes. It's the delight of that kind of woman's heart to get a husband who occasionally has the snakes, so she can hold him up to himself as a shinin' example of evil, and point him out to himself as a burnin' illustration of intemperance.

"She wrote to him when she started and on the day she was to arrive he unloaded the other bottle of gin into himself. It was one of the luckiest things he ever took a notion to do and done. When she arrived she had the pleasure of seein' that her theory was correct, and when a woman has a chance to see that, she's as happy as a game cock is when you put on his spurs for to fight, and with unbounded pleasure she gave him a witherin' look that she thought would make him shrivel up like a green leaf in a red hot fire, and after makin' inquiries with intense politeness about the snakes, she took him off to church and married him.

"When after that she found him to be a total abstainer, with nothing to reform, and she came to know which snakes he meant, she slowly faded away with disappointment and died of grief. Joe then went east, and when last heard from had married a young dudine out there. That was all, as far as I've heard," he said, and the labors of the day being thus ended, he departed and left me alone to those solitary meditations which the ants were now arousing within me.—Adam Welcker in Washington Hatchet.

The Ticket Seller Surprised Him.

A man whose views on human nature are a trifle cynical received an agreeable shock the other evening. In his haste to catch a train on the elevated road a few nights before he had forgotten to get his change from the ticket seller. He had laid down a dollar bill, called for ten tickets, received them, and dashed on to catch his train. He had traveled some distance up town before it occurred to him that he had come away without his fifty cents. An examination of his pockets made him certain that he had not received the money. The man was in a hurry to get home, however, so did not go down town again to see if he could have his mistake rectified. "Anyway," he thought, "it serves me right for my carelessness. The lesson is worth fifty cents to me."

Several evenings afterward he was mounting the steps of the same station of the elevated road when he recollected his loss. Going up to the ticket seller, whose face he did not remember having seen before, he asked, "Were you here last Saturday night at 7:20 o'clock?"

The man, a stony stare on his face, replied with another question, "Why?"

"I forgot to get my change then."

"Oh," the stare grew stonier, "how much was it?"

"I laid down a dollar for ten tickets and didn't get back the fifty cents."

"Oh, yes, I recollect that. Here you are, sir," and the ticket seller, smiling, shoved out two quarters to the man's great surprise. Since that time the cynic's views have received another bad setback, for a conductor on a Broadway car actually apologized to him for having to give him five coppers in change.—New York Tribune.

After the Engagement Was Broken.

He—And do you mean to tell me that you engaged yourself to me for mere caprice, intending all the while to throw me over?

She—Not exactly; but I'm writing a novel, and I've got to have an aged lover in it. I needed a model, and so I—ah—Shall I send you a copy of the book?—Harper's Bazar.

A PUZZLED HOST.

A Turkey Dinner at Which the Toothsome Fowl was Absent.

FLIGHT OF A TENDER MORSEL.

How a Crowd of Mischevious Lads Spoiled a Nicely Planned Feast.—A Mysterious Disappearance.

A gentleman noted for his originality made the following improvement to the old saying, "There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the saucer," the other day in speaking of a disappointment a friend of his had experienced in losing his dinner through missing a train—a dinner to which he had been invited and at which he had been selected to respond to one of the toasts.

The simple missing of the dinner was more than set off at the old General Shields hotel, on the West Chester pike. A company of twelve Philadelphians interested in real estate developments had gone out in the country for the purpose of looking about for profitable investments, and had sent word to the proprietor of the old hostelry of their coming and ordered an old fashioned turkey dinner to be ready at 6 o'clock.

The order put the proprietor in his best humor and the entire establishment into an unusual flurry of exciting preparation. The hostler hurried to the nearest farmhouse, where he purchased the finest turkey to be had, and carried it back to the hotel in triumph. Taking it into the stable he dispatched and plucked it in great haste. Everything was excitement in the large kitchen from the time the order was announced until late in the afternoon, when the last dish was ready to be carried to the dining room.

The news of the gentlemen coming spread through the village, and every one felt duty bound to go to the hotel and see them, and none took a greater interest in the affair than the boys. They had finished their chores unusually early and were promptly on hand long before the hour of serving the supper.

Dave was of portly build and prided himself in his appearance, and if he had a hatred for one thing more than any other, that thing was a claw hammer coat, which he said belonged to society gentlemen and not to a waiter, consequently he held to the old fashioned roundabout jacket. Just before the time for announcing that dinner was ready a number of the village boys stood peering through one of the dining room windows, watching Dave arrange the different dishes on the table and admiring the display made by the twelve napkins in as many cut glass goblets.

After viewing the effects of the table with a countenance beaming with satisfaction, Dave strutted toward the door and disappeared by descending the stairs leading to the kitchen, and a few moments later reappeared, carrying on a large dish the turkey, done to a lovely brown and beautifully garnished with carved roses, sprays of parsley and celery tops. Walking toward the table he found that no room had been left for the central and chief adornment of the table. Taking the situation in at a glance, Dave saw his mistake, and hurriedly set the dish down upon the broad sill of the window through which the boys were peering, and began rearranging the table to make room for the turkey.

No sooner had he turned his back to the window than one of the boys softly and quietly raised the sash, while another grabbed the turkey from the dish and fled across the hotel yard toward the old stable, followed by his companions. After making room for the large dish Dave turned around, stepped to the window, raised the dish and placed it in its position in the center of the table, never noticing that the bird had flown. Going to the sideboard he picked up the supper bell and gave it a violent ring, thus notifying the host that dinner was ready.

"This way, gentlemen; this way, please," spoke the proprietor to his guests; "step this way, gentlemen," leading them through a narrow passage from the bar to the dining room. No sooner had he reached the dining room than his gaze fell upon the empty plate, when he exclaimed, "David, where in the name of General Jackson is that turkey?"

Poor Dave! Never was a man taken more by surprise. When for the first time he noticed the broken platter his broad smile vanished. In an instant his jaw fell and his large eyeballs stared most frightfully, while his whole frame shook with a terrible tremor. All he could say in reply to the abrupt and emphatic question was, "Don't know, sir; it was dar, it was dar," and hurrying to the kitchen stairs he shouted down, "You, Phœby, whar in deb'l's dat turkey?"

"Go erlong now, you's got it up dar long ergo." The disappearance was not only a mystery to the waiter and cook, but to the proprietor as well, who in an apologetic manner asked the guests to repair again to the barroom while a thorough investigation could be made. Every one in the house, including the hostler, was questioned and cross questioned, yet no light could be thrown on the mystery. After wasting an hour in trying to find the missing bird, and after a consultation with the guests, fried ham and eggs were substituted for the turkey.

It was not till two hours later, when the guests were about to depart, that the proprietor learned what had become of the turkey. One of the boys, more bold than his companions, came back to the hotel to see how the joke worked, and thinking the story of the bird's disappearance too good to keep, told it to one of the men that were loitering about the outside of the hotel.

The next morning the picked bones of the turkey were found scattered about on the ground back of the stable, where the boys had, after carving it with their pocketknives, greedily devoured the well cooked bird.—Philadelphia Times.

How Fishes Breathe.

A gentleman who found small fishes dead wrote to Nature to ask: "How is it with the fish in countries like Siberia? Do they desert those parts of the rivers which are frozen over, or are the currents more rapid, so as to transfer air beneath the ice from unfrozen parts, or, as in some glacier streams, are fish altogether absent?"

Any one who has caught fish through ice three feet thick on Maine ponds will understand that fish live very comfortably so long as any part of the pond remains liquid. The waters of Siberia are likely to be abundantly stocked with fish, which will be found in the best condition when their house is sealed with frost.

It is not necessary to suppose that air is carried under the ice from open places in the brooks. There is air enough in the water at all times to answer the purposes of the fish. The presence of the air is best discovered by allowing water slowly to become warm in a vessel of tin or iron. The air, which is held in the water very much as water is held in a sponge, is expanded by the heat, and may be seen gathering in small bubbles attached to the surface of the vessel. This must be a matter of common observation.

It is this air that supplies the fishes with breath. It may be thought by some persons that fishes breathe water, for the writer has heard this statement made; but such a view is not correct. The fish has no power to decompose water and get the needed oxygen from that source.

As he is constituted he needs very little air. He is furnished with but little blood, and this is sufficiently oxidized by coming in contact with air in the water forced through the gills, which are his breathing apparatus.

The effect of the air is seen when the fish is taken from the water. The gills suddenly redden. This is due to the rapid oxidation of the blood. The fish is killed by the excess of air. In the water he gets only the proportion that he needs. Altogether the fish must be very comfortable under the ice during our hard winter.

Propulsion of Trains by Compressed Air.

An ingenious method of utilizing gravity in descending grades has been worked out by an Italian engineer. The engine in running down a grade compresses air, which is utilized in propelling the train up part of the next succeeding ascending grade. The accumulators are constructed for a pressure of 150 pounds, and the mechanism designed for the alternate compression and utilization of the air comprises three cylinders, two of which are of equal diameter and the third of smaller size. These three cylinders are connected to one of the two coupled axles carrying the load by means of the usual crossheads and connecting rods.

When ascending a grade these cylinders work as a compound motor, and during the descent the action is reversed, and they compress the air into the accumulators according to a regulated pressure. The committee appointed to report on this system are of opinion that its use is at present beset with certain limitations, dependent mainly on local conditions, such as grades, curves, extent of traffic, etc.; they decide, however, that the system would be found most advantageous in the operation of mountain railways, and in gradients through long tunnels, where ventilation is deficient, and where it is especially desirable to avoid the presence of smoke and gasses.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

The California Miner of '49.

The early miner has never been truly painted. I protest against the flippant style and eccentric rhetoric of those writers who have made him a terror, or who, seizing upon a sporadic case of extreme oddity, some brawling wretch, have given a caricature to the world as the typical miner. The so called literature that treats of the golden era is too extravagant in this direction. In all my personal experience in mining camps from 1849 to 1854 there was not a case of bloodshed, robbery, theft or actual violence. I doubt if a more orderly society was ever known. How could it be otherwise? The pioneers were young, ardent, uncorrupted, most of them well educated and from the best families in the east.

The early miner was ambitious, energetic and enterprising. No undertaking was too great to daunt him. The pluck and resources exhibited by him in attempting mighty projects with nothing but his courage and his brawny arms to carry them out was phenomenal. His generosity was profuse and his sympathy active, knowing no distinction of race. His sentiment that justice is sacred was never dulled. His services were at command to settle differences peaceably, or with pistol in hand to right a grievous wrong to a stranger. His capacity for self government has never been surpassed. Of a glorious epoch, he was of a glorious race.—E. G. Waite in Century.

Punishment for Stealing in Tangier.

A New Yorker who has spent some years at Tangier, the quaint old seaport of Morocco, and who returned to find the newspapers more than ordinarily full of the misdoings of bank and trust company officials, thinks it is fortunate for the offenders that they did not operate in that African town. "They don't mince matters over there," he says, "for a man who loses sight of the distinction between his own property and some one else's. When a thief is caught in the most trivial offense he is told to hold up both hands. Then they ask him which hand he would like to keep. When he has made his choice they cut off the other. This naturally creates a prejudice against kleptomania in its various forms. I don't quite know what they would do with a bank officer who got his clutch on a million, but I guess they would save the hand with its contents and throw the rest of him to the sharks."—New York Times.

A Story of Meissonier's Vanity.

To make himself look more manly and robust, Meissonier frequently incased his diminutive legs in huge cavalry boots. He prinked daily before the mirror, and was never weary of comparing himself with other small men, to show that he was really not so very little. To the end he confided in his friends the pangs he ever suffered on account of his small size. Occasionally, but only occasionally, did Meissonier find the desired consolation he sought from his acquaintances. One afternoon, as the sculptor Dubois entered his studio, Meissonier exclaimed joyfully: "What do you think! The corn doctor was just here, and what do you suppose he says? A six foot grenadier cannot get any bigger corns than mine."—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Sharp Witted Clerk.

You and I might not know where to deliver a letter addressed "Mr. Terbakerman, Bangor," but a postal clerk figured it out right away. He forwarded it to the revenue officer in that division, and it proved to be from a man who wanted to pay a special tax for the sale of tobacco.—Lewiston Journal.

WARRORS' PETS.

Tame Animals That are Often Kept by Soldiers and Sailors.

THE PET BEAR OF THE SCOTS GUARDS

Poodle Dogs are the Favorite Animals of French Regiments.—Sailors are Very Fond of Cats.

For many generations favorite animals have been common in the French army. Horace Vernet has painted a pathetic picture of the dog of the regiment licking the hand of a wounded soldier, while there is an equally popular song describing the career of a regimental dog that was born at Cairo and cradled in an empty bombshell, and which marched to the roll of the drum from Mount St. Bernard to Marengo, from Marengo to Austerlitz, and from Austerlitz to Madrid, to be ultimately killed by a spent shot at Corunna. The French regimental dog is not infrequently a large poodle—a fact which disposes of the calumny that these exceptionally graceful and intelligent members of the canine race are not constitutionally courageous. Still it must be admitted that the ridiculous manner in which poodles are ordinarily shaved is productive to the irreverent of a slightly ludicrous effect, and it is manifestly in the highest degree inexpedient that a regiment on the march should excite the hilarity of civilian spectators.

That this particular kind of dog has not lost his hold on the military affections in England as well as in France is pleasantly evident from the number of black poodles which are kept by the officers of the guards, although it would be obviously indecorous for such an animal, with the preposterous frills and bosses of woolly hair on his legs and tail, to march at the head of the corps. It would not seem that many quadrupeds, save goats and dogs, are eligible as regimental pets, and were the goat a little more intelligent he might perhaps prove a very formidable rival to his canine friend, since the goat is one of the hardiest of animals, scarcely ever becomes footsore, and on a march will pick up his subsistence from shrubs and herbs growing in the rockiest places, which would afford no kind of nutriment to the dog.

It cannot be said of the goat that he is as silly as the sheep, but although the creature is willing, affectionate and docile—as may be seen by the behavior of the pretty little animals which draw the children's chaises at the watering places—it can scarcely be said that nanny or billy is an animal which can be made a companion. At the most it will nibble food out of the hand of a friend, but it can be taught very few tricks, and it will be hopeless to expect from it the personal devotedness and fidelity of the dog.

One regiment in the British army did, some thirty years ago, endeavor to domesticate as a pet an animal of a very different nature. When the Scots guards—then the Scots Fusilier guards—were at Montreal, in Canada, whither they had been sent during the political scare consequent on the seizure of the British mail steamer Trent by the American Captain Wilkes, the regiment became possessed of a young bear. Naturally, in accordance with the proverb, the juvenile bruin had all his troubles to come, but the duress of his early education was softened by the kindness of the cheery guardsmen who took him in hand.

He could be taught to trudge about the barrack yard arm in arm with a discreet "non com.," and under these circumstances he behaved demurely enough, but when it was a private who was his companion, that rolling gait common to bears on their hind legs, and which ordinarily gives them the aspect of mariners somewhat disguised in liquor, occasionally irritated Tommy Atkins to the extent of provoking him to administer a box on the ear of the unsteady "ursa minor."

The worst of it was that the animal, being very well fed, grew with uncomfortable rapidity. It was not to be expected that he should march on his hind legs at the head of the regiment, and if he had been muzzled and led by a chain close to the big drum, the French Canadians would probably have called on the bear to dance, which would have been sadly derogatory to the dignity of a regiment so historically renowned. The ultimate destination of the Scots Fusilier guards' bear was probably a menagerie, where it is to be hoped abundant biscuits and buns consoled him for his divorce from military society.

When we turn to the social life of the sister service it will be found that there is as great a predilection for naval as for military pets. Occasionally it happens that a commanding officer of what may be called the "white kid glove school" objects to the presence of a dog on board, but the harmless, necessary cat is usually tolerated between decks. Jack manages somehow to have his pets, and when he lands in England after a long cruise he very often makes his appearance with a varied assortment of monkeys, wallabys, marmots, mongooses and especially parrots and macaws.

The parrots have generally become most accomplished linguists during the cruise, but their vocabulary is occasionally as lively as that acquired by the historic French parrot, Vert-vert, which had so edified with his pious ejaculations the inmates of the nunnery where he had been reared that another convent passionately implored the good sisters to lend them Vert-vert for a season, in order that they might enjoy his improving conversation. Their request was acceded to, only, unfortunately, the devout bird was sent to his new destination by water, and on board the canalboat by which he traveled there was a squadron of dragoons, which in the course of a day so perfected his education that ere two hours had passed at the convent where he had arrived half the nuns were in hysterics of horror, excited by the shocking language of the abandoned feathered biped, which had forgotten all his devotional orisons and swore literally like the troopers who taught him.

We laugh at old maids for their sometimes perhaps too exuberant fondness for dogs and cats, but their affection for the dumb animals which they cherish with unfailing kindness, and which are to them not only companions but friends, is but a tacit protest against unnatural solitude. They must have something to love, and they lavish the affluence of their hearts on pugs and tabbies.—London Telegraph.

A remedy of great value for cats and dogs is sweet oil. Put two tablespoonfuls in their milk and they will rarely refuse to take it.

Some people prefer to line their stoves with potters' clay instead of brick, and it is said to answer the purpose very well.

Finding Lost Baggage.

It was on the Stormy division of the C. B. and Q. it happened, when Superintendent Dugan's jurisdiction embraced that division. The east bound passenger train, then called the Cannon Ball, had on board five corpses, through from Denver, in charge of the train baggage man. It was in June, and the weather was hot. The baggage man finding the atmosphere in the baggage car becoming undesirable moved three boxes containing a corpse each to the platform of his car outside, one on top of the other.

As the train was nearing Ottumwa, the baggage man upon looking out was horrified to discover one of the boxes missing. Surmising that one of the boxes had slid off in rounding a curve, owing to the high rate of speed the train had been running, he wired Superintendent Dugan immediately upon arrival of the train at Ottumwa, apprising him of the loss. Dugan wired the section foreman at Ottumwa as follows:

"Patrick McGann—Look for corpse lost off Cannon Ball three miles west of Ottumwa and report condition of same when found."

Patrick immediately started out with the section gang, and found the box intact and brought the same to Ottumwa. It was seldom that Patrick received orders direct from the superintendent, the roadmaster being his immediate superior. Consequently Patrick concluded the time to win promotion had arrived, and after reading Dugan's telegram over for the twentieth time wired his superintendent as follows:

"Mishter Doogun—I hev found the koropse, and the koropse was ded."

The operator's expostulations were in vain, and Patrick would permit no change in the message, saying:

"I musht obbey the arders of Doogan."—Astoria Examiner.

America's Natives Described.

This description of the natives as they appeared to the English colonists in Maryland was written in 1663:

They are very proper tall men of person; swarthy by nature, but much more by art; painting themselves with colours in oyle, like a darke red, which they doe to keep the gnatts off. As for their faces they have other colours at times, as blew from the nose upward and red downward; somewhat contrariwise, in great varietie and in very gastly manner. They have no beards till they come to be very old, and therefore draw from each side of their mouthes lines to their eares to represent a beard. Their apparell generally is deere skyns and some furre, which they wear like loose mantels; and yet under this, about their middle, all women and men, at man's estayte, were rounde aprons of skyns, which keeps them decently covered, so that, without any offense to chast eyes, we may converse with them.

All the rest of their bodies are naked, and at times some of the youngest sort of both men and women have just nothing to cover them. The natural wit of this nation is very quick and will conceive a thing very readily. They excell in smell and taste and have far sharper sight than we. If these people were once Christians (as by some signs we have reason to think nothing hinders it but want of language), it would be a right virtuous and renowned nation.

How They Robbed the Marquis.

In the old range cattle boom days, when money from foreign lands was pouring into the west like water, there were a good many sharp tricks practiced in delivering cattle. It is recalled that the Marquis de Mores, who tried to cut such a conspicuous figure as a revolutionizer of the American meat trade, and who later became notorious as a duelist, was badly sold. While in Dakota he bought 10,000 head of cattle from two Englishmen. They were first class cattle and cost forty dollars a head. When these two Britons delivered the cows they worked one of the neatest "skin" games that was ever heard of. Medora, you know, sits in a valley, with table lands on each side.

Well, the Englishmen ran 5,000 head of cattle in on the marquis and collected for 10,000. The way they did it was by running the same 5,000 twice around the hill. De Mores never "tumbled" until he had paid his $400,000 and the merry cockneys were bound for South America. It was a clear steal of $200,000, but the marquis didn't make much bones about it. He had plenty of money and didn't care.—Chicago Drovers' Journal.

The Sensations of Battle.

A gentleman who was distinguished in the war of the rebellion for his personal bravery, and who fought in some of the most bloody battles, was recently asked just how it felt to be under fire.

"Shall I tell you just how a battle affects me?" he asked, smiling. "It is not elegant, but it is at least true."

"Yes," was the reply, "tell us exactly what it is like."

"I can only speak of my own feelings," the old soldier said, "but as far as the effect on me personally goes, a battle is like a champagne drunk."

"You mean that it is so exciting?" the questioner asked.

"I mean," was the reply, "that there is first an intense and glorious excitement, and that after that comes a most undignified, but inevitable nausea. I was never in battle in my life without being seasick afterward."—Boston Courier.

Great Men and Their Policies.

Suppose the Marquis of Salisbury or Mr. Gladstone were this night to become conscientiously convinced that the party of which he is the mouthpiece is the party of false doctrines, and had the courage to say so. What howls there would be from a hundred platforms! Does any one doubt that the men who deify today would crucify tomorrow? Each particular section of the British public likes to have its own particular piper, and it insists on calling the tune. Let the piper play a tune of his own, and there is a sudden change of pipers.—All the Year Round.

A NOTED PIRATE.

Blackbeard Looked Enough Like Satan to be His Brother.

HIS MANY SUCCESSFUL VOYAGES.

The Ferocious Robber of the Seas had a Fashion of Getting Himself Up in a Hideous Manner.

Pamlico sound, now the haven of the storm tossed mariner and the home of peaceful industry, was once the theater of far different scenes. In the beginning of the last century its placent waters reflected a flag which struck terror to thousands of hearts and paralyzed the commerce of the New World; the thickly clustering vives and luxuriant growths fringing its shores concealed, like the original Eden, a hiding devil, the foe of God and man—Blackbeard, the pirate. From a strange tendency of human nature the life of the pirate possesses a fascinating interest, not only for the small boy who devours the pages of his half dime yellow back novel, but also for the reader of stronger judgment and better taste. Indeed some of the greatest writers have been unable to resist the fascinations of this wide and tempting field.

Sir Walter Scott, Marryatt and Cooper thought it not unworthy their mighty pens, and the genius of Byron attained one of its highest flights in the description of the prisoner Conrad in the lonely turret, baring his bosom to the midnight storm and defying the lightning of offended heaven to transfix him. Of all this unholy brood Blackbeard was facile princeps, as Milton says of satan, "By merit raised to that bad eminence." It was an Arabic tradition, relative to the great unknown Atlantic that the gnarled and bony hand of the devil rose from out the waves of the sea of darkness to seize the presumptuous mariner, and in his diabolic career Blackbeard seemed to be the impersonation of this mystic monster. Perhaps a greater demon never prowled the seas or walked the earth in human form.

Even in personal appearance he was hideous and repulsive, nature having stamped him both as a physical and moral monster. The name by which he was known throughout the world was derived from a singular circumstance, which illustrates his savage ferocity. His naturally dark and forbidding face was covered almost to his fierce, sensuous eyes with a shaggy black beard, reaching below the waist. This hirsute adornment, of which he was very proud, and which he cultivated with sedulous care, he was accustomed to braid with ribbons and to twist about his ears until it stood forth like projecting horns.

Into the ends of these he stuck small, slowly burning fuses, whose sulphurous fumes enveloped him in a lurid hue and rendered him a not unfitting representation of the satanic ideal, whose character he so successfully emulated. In time of action he slung around his neck a scarf, into which were thrust three braces of pistols. Our readers, even those who are not endowed with Dantesque powers of imagination, and especially our feminine friends, can readily fancy the impression such an aspect would create when met upon the lonely ocean, with the black flag fluttering above his head and his merciless face lighting up with a gleam of demoniacal joy as his helpless victims walked the fatal plank.

The real name of this man was Edward Teach, and he was a native of Bristol, England. Of his early career nothing definite is known. He first emerged from obscurity as a common sailor on board a privateer commanded by Captain Benjamin Hornigold, sailing from Jamaica and preying upon French commerce. In that humble capacity he distinguished himself by his skill and courage, which attracted the attention of his not over scrupulous commander, who soon intrusted him with a prize he had captured. In 1717 these two choice spirits spread their sails from Providence (auspicious name!) for America, capturing en voyage three vessels laden with wine, flour and miscellaneous cargoes, which they appropriated to their own use and turned the crews adrift.

The speed of their vessels being crippled by foul bottoms, they cleaned them upon the coast of Virginia and went in quest of fresh booty. On this cruise they secured the most valuable prize yet captured, a large French Guineaman, richly freighted, bound for Martinique. At this juncture Hornigold's avarice seems to have been satisfied, or more likely his heart failed him, for, taking the two vessels with which they originally sailed, he returned to Providence and availed himself of a pardon offered by the king to all pirates who should surrender in a specified time.

Teach, however, only emboldened by success, now assumed an independent character and began that career of crime which rendered his name so infamous.—Richmond Times.

The Story of "Maud."

Few people knew Tennyson and his peculiarities better than did his neighbor Mrs. Cameron, the well known photographic artist, who made a fine series of character portraits by photography to illustrate Tennyson's poems. The history of her search for and selection of models for these characters is interesting. Maud was a starving Irish girl, who served her both as model and waiting maid.

The sequel to the story of Mrs. Cameron's Maud is too pretty not to be given.

When Mrs. Cameron held her exhibition in London, Maud was sent up with a chaperon to explain the pictures to the public. A gentleman came in one day, and after having asked several questions left. A year or two afterward he passed into the Indian civil service, but before starting for the east he went down to Freshwater and knocked at Mrs. Cameron's door, begging for Maud's hand. The beautiful Maud was willing, and they were married.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, MAY 5 1893

The land thieves connected with the office of State Surveyor General are evidently badly scared by the exposure of the rascality committed in the office, and by the suit brought by the "Record-Union" to compel the Surveyor General to do his duty. The scoundrels first tried to persuade the Record-Union to withdraw the suit but failing in that, numerous threats of violence were made against the managers of the paper and even against the lawyer employed to prosecute the the suit. The villains are evidently driven to desperation, but these threats of violence only help to make their guilt more certain.

Vice-President Crocker of the Southern Pacific Company defends the policy of charging lower rates from San Francisco to the Atlantic than to points in California on the ground that competition between this port and Atlantic ports compels the company to make the Atlantic rates low. The reasoning is plausible but hardly conclusive. If the company may charge rates between competing points, the conclusion will be that there should be no non-competing points. It will not do to leave producers in sections where there is no competition exposed to the exactions of a company that does business on that principle. If the Southern Pacific will not make just rates for all California points, the Southern Pacific's whole system must be subjected to competition and so regulated by law. There is millions in it.

It has been pointed out that Evans and Sontag might easily have been captured on their recent visit to Visalia had it occurred to Sheriff Kay to stretch a few lengths of barb wire across the two roads by either of which the outlaws might seek to escape. The wires, invisible in the darkness, would certainly have stopped the horse driven by the robbers, and have enabled the posse to effect their capture or kill them on the spot, in case of resistance. This simple expedient seems not to have occurred to Sheriff Kay or any of his men, and the bungling way in which they went about the business has given rise in some quarters to the notion that they were not very anxious to have any encounter with the bandits or to compass their arrest.

There are not wanting indications that we are going to have a genuine Democratic regime, with an oblique eye to real politics. The house of representatives has seen the justice of the claims of Hon. Warren B. English, Democrat, and that gentleman will represent the third congressional district in that body, a position to which he was rightly elected. No man should be allowed to hold a seat in either house of congress as to whose right so to do there is any legitimate doubt. The fiftieth congress was Democratic by a good working majority and that body was ambitious to signalize itself by its magnanimity. There were eight contested election cases. They were all decided in favor of the sitting member when he was a Republican and against the Democratic contestant. This was supposed to be the magnanimous role in politics, and it was expected to make a great impression on Republicans. The result was that the Fifty-first Congress, being Republican, there were sixteen contested cases. Every one of these was decided in favor of the Republican sitting member or contestant. The policy of magnanimity was certainly not reciprocated. In the case of Hon. Warren B. English the party gains an able and influential member who can do California a great deal of good. In truth, the Democratic representation in Congress is singularly strong and comprises notable men in both houses, who are ranged under the Democratic banner.

Mr. Roosevelt Tells a Story or Two.

Mr. Theodore Roosevelt is a practical politician and has some good stories to tell of his experiences while in the legislature. In his address before the Liberal club on Thursday evening he told some of them.

One was of a legislator who used to ask him to support unconstitutional bills. "But, my dear friend," Mr. Roosevelt would say, "it's unconstitutional." "I never allow the constitution to come between friends," was the reply, and then becoming very indignant the man would add, "Mr. Roosevelt, the constitution doesn't treat little things like that."

Another man objected to his quoting Latin. "What do you mean by quoting Latin on the floor of this house?" thundered the objector, "when you don't know the alpha or omega of the language?"—Buffalo Express.

BLAINE AND CONKLING

THE NEW YORK EX-SENATOR'S STORY OF THE LIFELONG FEUD.

A Charge of Receiving Illegal Fees Which the Statesman Never Forgave—One Side of an Estrangement That Meant Much to American History.

Colonel Edward Gebhard, a lawyer in the Mutual Life Insurance building, said that he thought the true reason for the bitter feeling between Roscoe Conkling and James G. Blaine had never been printed. He said that during Mr. Conkling's life in New York city he frequently met the great Republican statesman from Utica, and on several occasions they talked about his difference with Mr. Blaine. Colonel Gebhard said:

"Conkling used to come up to see me. We were intimate friends, and one afternoon I told him that I would like to get at the bottom of the estrangement between Mr. Blaine and himself. I told Mr. Conkling that it seemed to me absurd that a man who had been a lawyer all his life, and a public man, should have taken offense at Mr. Blaine's speech calling him a turkey gobbler, etc. It was something I could not comprehend. Mr. Conkling replied: 'It is just as absurd to me to take it that way as it is to you. You know I have practiced law all my life. If lawyers permitted the animosities of public trials to warp their sensibilities, we would be in a fight with all the world. The true cause of the quarrel between Mr. Blaine and myself is that Mr. Blaine took an unfair advantage of me in the house of representatives to reflect upon my personal integrity.'

"In the discussion growing out of the discontinuing of the office of provost marshal general Mr. Blaine rose to a question of personal privilege. Mr. Conkling told me that he did not pay much attention to Mr. Blaine's speech until he heard his name mentioned. Then, after listening, he found Blaine was making a personal assault, foreign to the matter of personal privilege and alien to the subject under discussion. Conkling said he listened, and the more he listened the more he was amazed, and then he became angry. Conkling said that he so lost control of himself under the impulse of the moment that he went to his friend, Thad Stevens, and said:

"'Mr. Stevens, you have heard what Mr. Blaine has just said. What shall I do? The question of personal privilege Mr. Blaine used was a personal attack upon my integrity. He has characterized me as a man who has accepted employment from the government while I was a member of congress, and while in that employment had received fees paid to me by Secretary Stanton, and that the fees embraced pay for services which had been illegally rendered by me to the government of the United States in doing some work in the western part of the state. This work included the investigation of certain bounty frauds which had taken place in Elmira, and the secretary came to me and employed me to get at the root of the trouble. I devoted a great deal of time to the business, and the upshot was that the government recovered, through my efforts, many thousands of dollars. Upon my return to Washington Secretary Stanton sent for me and offered $10,000 in payment for my services, which I refused to accept. I said to him at that time that if I was to receive anything I preferred to arrange the price myself, and at all events I would not accept such a sum.

"'Pending the discussion between Secretary Stanton and myself I went to Utica and talked over the matter with Governor Seymour and Judge Denio, chief judge of the court of appeals, both Democrats. I told them that I did not want to take a step which could be used against me in any way. I did not want to make a show of purity that would be ridiculous, and I did not care about accepting a fee that might be questioned. On my return to Washington the check of Secretary Stanton was reduced to $3,500. Even then I was timid about accepting it, but Stanton said: "By God! I know what services are worth. I have been a lawyer all my life, and this money you have got to take." I did take the money. I felt that I had earned it, and when Mr. Blaine referred to this in the house I felt that he had taken a mean advantage, and I determined never to speak to him again.'

"Mr. Conkling told me," continued Mr. Gebhard, "that Mr. Stevens said to him, 'I'll attend to this for you, Mr. Conkling, and will call for a committee of inquiry.'

"A committee was appointed for the purpose of investigating and reporting, and when it became evident that the report of the committee would entirely exonerate Mr. Conkling from the alleged irregularities, then it was that he recognized the fine hand of Mr. Blaine or his friends in the successful attempt to frustrate the purposes for which the committee was appointed.

"Mr. Conkling told me that he never spoke to Mr. Blaine from that time; that all the charges that Blaine had brought against him were groundless. 'That is the cause for my feeling against Mr. Blaine,' said Mr. Conkling, 'and I shall never speak to the man again or recognize him till he, in as public a place as the house of representatives, makes an apology for the assault he made upon me at that time.'

"Several attempts were made to reconcile Mr. Conkling and Mr. Blaine, but Mr. Conkling always said: 'When Mr. Blaine gets up in congress and takes back this charge, then I will be prepared to meet him, and until he does it there I will never speak to him again.' Subsequently, during the Blaine campaign of 1884, Conkling told me: 'I have received an invitation to a dinner at which Mr. Blaine is to be present. I wonder what the getters up of this dinner take me for. I am a Republican, and I believe in the success of my party, but there is one thing I will never do, I will never meet Mr. Blaine until he makes an apology as public as his charges.'"—New York Sun.

Spelling Comes by Nature.

In confirmation of the saying that "spelling comes by nature" the case may be cited of a certain little girl, 6 years old, whose parents are both good spellers. At school recently she was given to write out a list of 78 words, which contained many rather hard ones, such as "hatchet," "receive," "neighbor" and so on. She spelled every word correctly and was the only scholar in the school who did so.

Now and then it happens, however, that the child of a famous speller breaks its parent's heart by proving an incorrigibly bad speller. In such a case the disappointed parent may console himself with the reflection that the child inherits his bad spelling from a grandparent, or even from some more remote ancestor.—Youth's Companion.

First Type Cast In America.

It was a good man, Christopher Sower, who made the first punches and matrices and cast the first type in America. The anvil he made them on is still preserved. They were for a German Bible which he published. "The price of our newly finished Bible, in plain binding, with a clasp, will be 18 shillings," he said, "but to the poor and needy we have no price."

John the Baptist sent the message to Christ. "Art thou he that should come, or do we look for another?" and Jesus sent back word, "The poor have the gospel preached to them." Sower's German Bible was printed in 1743 and was the first Bible published in America in any European language.—Age of Steel.

Education May Not Produce Beauty.

It may be doubted, strange as many may deem the assertion, whether continuous education will produce beauty, whether the growth of intelligence will even in ages yield the physical result which we notice the authors of Utopias always assume, as if it were a scientifically demonstrable consequence of the new society.—Million.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

We have made arrangements with Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., publishers of "A Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," which will enable all our subscribers to obtain a copy of that valuable work free by sending their address (enclosing a two-cent stamp for mailing same) to DR. B. J. KENDALL CO., ENOSBURGH FALLS, VT. This book is now recognized as standard authority upon all diseases of the horse, as its phenomenal sale attests, over four million copies having been sold in the past ten years, a sale never before reached by any publication in the same period of time. We feel confident that our patrons will appreciate the work, and be glad to avail themselves of this opportunity of obtaining a valuable book.

It is necessary that you mention this paper in sending for the "Treatise." This offer will remain open for only a short time.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

OWENS RIVER AND BIG PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Big Pine, Cal. Location of works, Big Pine, Cal.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT AT a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 15th day of April 1893, an assessment (No. 7) of Twenty (20) cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary at the office of the Company, in the town of Big Pine, Inyo county, Cala.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on SATURDAY, the 27th day of May, 1893, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction and unless payment is made before will be sold on SATURDAY, June 17th, 1893, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

By order of the Board of Directors.

R. W. THOMAS, Secretary.

Office—Big Pine, Inyo county, Cala.

DO YOU SUFFER?

Rheumatism, Fits [epilepsy] Scrofula, Liquor, Morphine or Tobacco Habit, quickly and permanently cured by the wonderful BI-CHLORIDE of GOLD treatment.

RHEUMATISM (The uric acid entirely expelled from the blood). Cured in five to forty days.

FITS (Epilepsy) Permanently cured; no return of the disease from two to four weeks treatment.

SCROFULA And the worst cases of inherited blood taint quickly and permanently cured.

DRUNKENESS Opium, Morphine or Tobacco habit cured in 10 to 20 days.

No restriction or publicity. Patients cured at their own homes. 40,000 sufferers cured in 8 years.

Full particulars without charge, address

DR. WOOD BI-CHLORIDE OF GOLD INSTITUTE,
215 Powell St., San Francisco Cal

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS
AND
LEVI STRAUSS & CO'S
SPRING BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES,
District Attorney,
—AND—
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
NOTARY PUBLIC.
Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the 'INDEPENDENT' Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR
AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.
Office and residence at the Johnson place, Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)

DR. J. S. MCQUEEN,
DENTIST.
Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery.
All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.
Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore.

NOTICE.
ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.
FRANK FITZGERALD.
Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURKHARDT.

BOOTS AND SHOES
MADE AND REPAIRED.
THE BEST MATERIAL.
FIRST-CLASS WORK
Repairs done Promptly.
Prices Reasonable.
36-tf A. J. DAVIS, Independence.

RESTORE YOUR EYESIGHT
Cataracts, scars or films can be absorbed and paralyzed nerves restored, without the knife or risk. Diseased eyes or lids can be cured by our home treatment. "We prove it." Hundreds convinced. Our illustrated pamphlet, "Home Treatment for Eyes," free. Don't miss it. Everybody wants it. "THE EYE," Glens Falls, N.Y.

OFFICIAL.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 47.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY OF INYO, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. Section 7 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et seq., is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 7. Every person who at a fixed place of business sells any malt or fermented liquors, wines or distilled liquors, whether on commission or otherwise (except vinicultural productions when sold by the producers thereof) must obtain from the Tax-Collector, and for each branch of said business, a license, and pay quarterly therefor the sum of Forty Dollars.

SECTION 2. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after Twenty-five (25) days from its passage.

SECTION 3. Section 9 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et seq., is hereby repealed.

SECTION 4. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same in the "Inyo Independent," a newspaper published in said Inyo County, at least two (2) weeks, said publication to be made said time, and before the expiration of said Twenty-five (25) days.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

ATTEST:
(SEAL) D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 47 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 5th day of April, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Supervisors A. C. Freeman, W. H. Uhlmeyer, John Wilson, Frank Fitzgerald, R. Love.
No s: None. R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

ATTEST:
(SEAL) D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

[Endorsed.] Ordinance No. 47. Filed and Recorded this 5th day of April, A. D. 1893, in Book B of Ordinances at page 100.

D. J. HESSION,
Clerk Board of Supervisors.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 48.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY OF INYO, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. It shall be lawful for any person to hunt, pursue, take, and kill grouse, or sage hen, within the County of Inyo, at any time between the first day of August and the first day of January, in each year.

SECTION 2. Every person who, in the County of Inyo, between the last day of December and the first day of August, in each year, hunts, pursues, takes, kills, or destroys any grouse, or sage hen, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the County Jail, not exceeding sixty days, or by a fine of not more than Sixty Dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after Twenty-five days from its passage.

SECTION 4. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same, in the Inyo Independent, a newspaper published in the said County of Inyo at least two weeks, said publication to be made said time and before the expiration of said twenty-five days.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

ATTEST:
(SEAL) D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 48 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board on April 7th, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Frank Fitzgerald, W. H. Uhlmeyer, R. Love, John Wilson, A. C. Freeman.
Noes: None. R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

ATTEST:
(SEAL) D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

Propagation License.

Notice to Breeders.

THE ATTENTION OF STOCKRAISERS and Breeders in Inyo County is called to the following provisions of Ordinance No. 41, Section 12:

"Every person who keeps a Stallion, Jack or Bull and permits the same to be used for the purpose of propagation for hire, must annually obtain a license therefor from the Tax-Collector."

Parties failing to procure such Propagation License are guilty of a misdemeanor. Licenses are now due.

J. S. GORMAN, Tax-Collector.
Independence, April 6, 1893.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STAR, LANE CO., OREGON, Feb. 8th, 1892.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,

Dear Sirs:—I have used your KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE for the last twelve years never being without it but a few weeks in that time and I have made several wonderful cures with it. I cured a Curb of long standing. Then I had a four year old colt badly swenied; tried every thing without any benefit, so I tried your liniment, and in a few weeks he was well and his shoulder filled up all right, and the other, a four year old that had a Thoroughpin and Blood Spavin on the same joint, and to-day no one can tell which leg it was on. These statements can be proven, if necessary; the four year olds are now seven and can be seen any day at Cottage Grove, Or. S. Z. PAXTON.

—Price $1.00 per bottle.—

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.

$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.

It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer without cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.

Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.

For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address

ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.

Winter Apples..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes.....12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches.....10 cts
Dried Apples.....10 cts
Other varieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.

S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.

THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines, Liquors, & Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSfield, opposite the Southern Hotel.
Prompt and careful treatment given and the easiest possible pain inflicted. Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATES AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce Street, New York

P. W. FORBES. P. H. MACK.
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY, the 8th day of March, 1892, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South-east corner of the south-east quarter of North-east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98-100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of the Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hallah, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lots Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode, situate, lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispricada Lode."

That certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the North-west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12), and the South-west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South sixty-eight and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods, thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence North-westerly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North East quarter and the South east quarter, and the North-west quarter and the North east quarter of the North-west quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-four and eleven twentieth (44 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres: Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney, at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER.
Executor of the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah deceased.

Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1892.

J. W. Murphy.
BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence.

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS Extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDIS
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumers should call and examine my stock and price before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 9 1894.
n47tf

$5000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, Troy, N.Y., at work for us. Reader, you may not make as much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from $5 to $20 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages, in any part of America, you can earn a fair income at home, giving all your time or spare moments only to the work. All is new. Great pay ALWAYS for every worker. We start you, furnishing everything. EASILY, SPEEDILY learned. PARTICULARS FREE. Address at once, GEORGE STINSON & CO., PORTLAND, MAINE.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, MAY 5 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman .....A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman.....P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge.....GEO. M. GILL.
Sheriff.....JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk.....DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney.....P. W. FORBES.
Assessor.....P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer.....W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner.....H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed).....JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools.....J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist.....ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist.....A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist.....W. H. UHLMEYER.
4th Supervisor Dist.....JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist..FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Rev. H. J. Winsor will preach on Sunday at Lone Pine 11 a. m.; Georges Creek, 2:30 p. m.; Independence 7 p. m.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

SATURDAY, April 29th.

People vs. John Condito—District Attorney moves that case be dismissed in accordance with recommendation of Grand Jury, it appearing that it would be difficult to convict the defendant. Motion granted and defendant discharged.

TUESDAY, May 2d.

T. C. Boland vs. J. C. Anton et al.—Clerk's entry of default.

THURSDAY, May 4th.

T. C. Boland vs. Wm. Crapo—Filed affidavit for publication of summons. Issued order for publication of summons.

People vs. Wm. L. Withrow—Defendant arraigned and entered plea of not guilty. Trial set for June 15th, 1893.

Bar silver, 83.

W. A. Lamar Esq. went to Lone Pine yesterday.

J. J. Gunn returned to the Minnietta on Monday last.

Thomas J. Goodale was down from Fish Springs on Wednesday.

The total amount of delinquent taxes will amount to about six hundred dollars.

Ed. M. Clark came down from Bishop on Wednesday, returning this morning.

Under Sheriff Holland went to Keeler on Wednesday, returning yesterday morning.

Frank Fitzgerald went north on yesterday's train on his way to San Francisco.

Ben T. Williams came in from Modock yesterday and will remain in town several days.

Pat Clinton came up from Cerro Gordo last Saturday and spent a couple of days in town.

A school pic-nic is to be given at Lone Pine to-day followed by a social dance in the evening.

Henry McMorray and Miss Jessie Schalton of Big Pine visited Independence yesterday.

H. W. Marion came down from Big Pine on Wednesday and spent a couple of days in town.

Mrs. Yandell has been dangerously ill for the past two weeks. She is reported some better this morning.

Al Goodman went to Lone Pine on Tuesday and will rusticate with Julius Roeper on the Lubken ranch for a while.

It is regarded as a certainty that Arizona will be admitted into the Union as a State at the next session of Congress.

Mr. and Mrs. June Smith of Big Pine passed through town on Monday on their way home from a trip to Los Angeles.

The school census of Independence school district shows 67 children of school age and 70 children under seventeen years old.

Mrs. M. E. Curtis will do fashionable dress-making at the residence of Mrs. L. L. Woodin M. D. Perfect fit. McDowell system.

William H. Metson of the law firm of Reddy, Campbell & Metson of San Francisco was married at that place on April 26th to Miss Margaret Kercheval.

E. Robinson got back from below last Monday. He expects to bring his two daughters up in about six weeks. His sister, Mrs. Vinson, will accompany them.

George and Harry Meads passed through Independence early in the week with their big team on route for Mojave. The boys are making regular trips and hauling heavy loads.

The election contest case last week between English and Hilborn resulted in favor of the former, and thus California gains another Democratic representative in Congress.

On Saturday last the District Attorney, acting under the direction of the Grand Jury, asked for the dismissal of the action against John Condito, and he was accordingly discharged.

The Regular Annual meeting of the Independence Water Company was held last Tuesday. The same Board of Directors and officers were re-elected as follows: J. A. Lunk, President; J. C. Irwin, Secretary; E. Robinson, Treasurer; G. W. Brady and John Baxter.

Why Chinamen Don't Register.

One of our local Chinamen on being asked yesterday why his countrymen did not register, as required by the Geary Act, explained as follows: "Chinamen he no legister; law he no good. You sabee Chinaman Six Companies? They got heap dlam smart lawyers in San Francisco, New York and Washington. Then they got heap lots of money; mabee two or four hundled tlousand dolla. Gov'ment he got heap dlam smlat lawyers. Six Companies they give allee money their lawyers and they say here, you win 'im case Him lawyers take allee Six Companies' money and go talkee Gov'ment lawyers and he say here, you an' me divvy; you talkee law no good, Chinaman he no legister. You heap sabee? Chinaman Six Companies he no dlam fool; he heap sabee allee same 'Meli can man; you bet. I no legister; other Chinaman no legister. Chinese Six Companies he no catchee money, he legister like hell; he catchum money he no legister 'tall; he foolum white man likee debbil. Chinaman lawyer he heap dlam smart. You sabee?"

"Spying Out The Land."

A party of land-seekers are camped at the south end of town. One of the party, Charles A. Pfaff, had located upon land near Needles, in San Diego county, but finding that he was on the Indian Reservation he was forced to leave after having worked upon the land for three months. He then went to Los Angeles, where he was advised to go to Owens Valley. He says he will remain. R. D. Morris and wife are from Los Angeles. Mr. Morris was in the grocery and fruit business there and is here with a view to making choice of a location for settlement and going into business. Along with them is a young man named Black who is looking for land. The whole party have their own conveyances and travel and camp as suits them.

Copper Ore.

H. H. Beck, owner of reduction works at Reno, is reported to be making inquiry for copper ore. A Nevada Newspaper, the Courier, says that Mr. Beck offered $150 per ton for a certain grade of ore found near Genoa. Parties interested in the copper mines in Saline valley in this county should inquire into this matter.

The case of the People vs. William L. Withrow was called in the Superior Court yesterday. The defendant on arraignment entered a plea of "Not guilty." On motion of the District Attorney and by consent of the defendant the date of trial was set for Thursday, June 15, 1893.

Prof. C. L. Logan of Bishop will be in Keeler Monday, Lone Pine Tuesday and Independence Wednesday evening, May 8, 9 and 10, with his magic lantern to illustrate his lecture, "How Columbus Discovered America."

Donner Lake still has eight or nine inches of ice on its surface, and this ice is covered with ten inches of snow. The lake has never been frozen over so late in the season since white men lived in this region.

It seems that the running horse Martinet is owned equally by Evan Williams, Harry Lowden and Bill Thompson. Williams purchased the horse and then let Lowden and Thompson each have a third interest. —Carson Tribune.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

THOMAS C. BOLAND, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM CRAPO, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Crapo, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the Complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36 100 Dollars [$337.36], on a balance of account for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by the Plaintiff to you in the County of Inyo, State of California, at your special instance and request; also for costs of suit, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36-100 Dollars, together with costs of suit.

Witness my hand and the Seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 4th day of May, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff.

ANNUAL MEETING

STEVENS DITCH COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Independence, California. Location of works, Inyo county, California.

The Regular Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Stevens Ditch Company will be held at the office of the Company, at the town of Independence, Inyo county, California, on Saturday, the Twenty-seventh day of May, 1893, at the hour of Two o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing a Board of Directors to serve for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

By order of the Board of Directors.

P. H. MACK, Secretary.

Office—Independence, California.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE

LONE PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Independence, California. Location of Canal, near Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

Notice is hereby given that at a regular meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 29th day of April 1893 an assessment (No. 4) of Twenty-five (25) cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the Company, in the town of Independence, Inyo county, California. Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on Saturday, the 3rd day of June, 1893, will be delinquent, and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before will be sold on Saturday, June 24, 1893 to pay the delinquent assessment together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

By order of the Board of Directors.

DAVID HOLLAND, Secretary.

Office—Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ANTARE.

1st premium Trotting Stallion, 1891-2. Bred by S. L. Akens, Newman, Cal. Foaled April 6, 1887. Stands 15¾ hands high and weighs 1250 pounds. Color, mahogany bay with black points; no white. By ANTEROS, 6020.

1st dam, Sallie W., by Iowa Chief, 525.
2d dam by Tornado, 502.

ANTEROS, 6020.

By Electioneer, 125, the greatest sire of trotters living or dead; 125 of his get having records from 2:08¼ to 2:30. Among this number are Palo Alto, 2:08¼; Sunol, 2:08¼; Arion, 2:10¼ at 2 years; Norline, 2:31¼ and Bell Bird, 2:26 as yearlings.

1st dam of Anteros, the great Columbine, dam of Anteeo, 2:16¼
Antevolo, 2:19¼
Antonia
Conrad
Coral, 2:18¼
Speedwell

Anteros is the sire of—
Doc Chreslie, 4 years, 2:21
Nellie F, 4 years, 2:25
Anterose, 4 years, 2:25
Major Ross, 2 years, 2:30
Winkeross, 2 years, 2:34¼
Entruria, 3 years, 2:33¼
Montgomery, 3 years, 2:37½
Antero, 3 years, 2:38¼
Bessie B. 3 years, 2:17
Anteorian, 3 years, 2:57
Antare, 4 years, 2:57

Antare is a "horse attached to a pedigree," possessing that quality so highly prized among horsemen, INDIVIDUAL MERIT, having the power to transmit both his color and form to his progeny. His record was made after trotting four well contested heats the day previous and is the fastest time ever made by any stallion ever owned in Inyo county over any track in the 18th District.

ANTARE was awarded the first premium over all competitors at the District Fairs of 1891-2. At the fair of 1893 we propose to exhibit an "Antare Family," of twenty five of his colts, and we challenge the owner of any stallion in the 18th District to exhibit one or more colts two-years-old or under that can compare with the colts sired by this horse.

TERMS FOR THE SEASON, $25 00,

Payable on or before August 1, 1893.

Mares from a distance pastured free of charge but no risks taken.

S. P. SMITH, Manager.

ORDER OF ADJUDICATION OF INSOLVENCY.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor.

J. V. Skinner, having filed in this Court his petition, schedule and inventory in Insolvency from which it appears that he is an Insolvent Debtor, the said J. V. Skinner is hereby declared to be insolvent. The Sheriff of the County of Inyo is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account, and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an Assignee of his estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said Insolvent or to deliver any property, belonging to such Insolvent, to him or to any person, firm, corporation or association for his use; and the said Debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property, until the further order of this Court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered, that all the creditors of said Debtor be and appear before the Hon. Geo. M. Gill, Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, in open Court, at the Court Room of said Court, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, on the 9th day of May, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, to prove their debts and choose one or more Assignees of the estate of said Debtor.

It is further ordered, that the order be published in the Inyo Independent, a newspaper of general circulation, published in the County of Inyo, as often as the said paper is published before the day set for the meeting of Creditors.

And it is further ordered, that in the meantime, all proceedings against the said insolvent be stayed.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated April 31, 1893.

MACK & LAIRD, Attorneys for Petitioner.

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" CHINA.

WE WANT YOU

to act as our agent. We furnish an expensive outfit and all you need free. It costs nothing to try the business. We will treat you well, and help you to earn ten times ordinary wages. Both sexes of all ages can live at home and work in spare time, or all the time. Any one any where can earn a great deal of money. Many have made Two Hundred Dollars a Month. No class of people in the world are making so much money without capital as those at work for us. Business pleasant, strictly honorable, and pays better than any other offered to agents. You have a clear field, with no competition. We equip you with everything, and supply printed directions for beginners which, if obeyed faithfully, will bring more money than will any other business. Improve your prospects! Why not? You can do so easily and surely at work for us. Reasonable industry only necessary for absolute success. Pamphlet circular giving every particular is sent free to all. Delay not in sending for it.

GEORGE STINSON & CO.,
Box No. 488, Portland, Me.

A True Old Saying!!

Goods Well Bought Are Half Sold.

Our buyers watch the markets carefully and purchas for cash, thus enabling us to quote telling prices that, compared with value, are small.

85 cents buys one of those gents white unlaundried shirts with a short bosom which does not rumple up or muss made of fine linen. Wamsutta muslin double back and patent continuous strip at neck and sleeve openings.

Windsor ties. As warm weather is at hand 'twill bring a demand for them which we are ready to supply having 100 dozen for you to choose from at 25 cents each. Come in plain colors, stripes checks and plaids.

GENTS OVERSHIRTS.

In this line we are showing the largest lines and strongest values of any retail line on the Coast. Bought direct from the manufacturers, thus saving you the middle-man's profit.

The line that bids fair to be most popular is the Stanley made with starched collars and cuffs, the bodies soft finished insuring comfort in summer. They come in calicoes, percales, cheviots and madras cloths, light and dark shades, stripes or figures. Prices $1 to $2 each.

Black satine overshirts, solid color or in fine hair line stripes from 50cts. to $1.25 each.

Domet flannel overshirts cut full size and well made. Price 25 cents each.

If you have not received one of our illustrated catalogues let us know. Copies sent free on application.

GENTS SHOES.

$3 buys the best calf shoe to be found anywhere for the money. Comfort and style combined. The bottoms are of the best white Oak tanned stock fastened with standard screws. Come in light, medium or heavy soles, suited to dress or every day wear. Sizes 5 to 11 and none genuine unless stamped "Hale's $3 Shoe on the bottom.

Hale's "School Boy's Pride."

These are one of our very best values in Boy's wear. Made on same shaped last as higher grades and thus ensuring a perfect fit. Come in light or heavy soles. Youths sizes 11 to 2. Price $2. Boys sizes 2½ to 5½. Price $2 50.

Ladies, Misses, and childrens shoes in all grades styles and prices

This spring sees many new novelties in wash dress fabrics. Some look like wool goods. Others, like silks, come in all sorts of effects and colorings. Printed Glorioos, printed on pretty grounds, colors cream, tan light and medium blue, 29 in. wide. Price 12½ cts. per yd.

Black brocades. A fine qualty of goods with small satin stripes and patterns of white pinhead dots and small figures. 32 in. wide, price 35 cts. per yd.

Cream Crepon Cloths. Something like crinkled seersucker. Very popular. Price 8½ cents per yd.

Samples of dress goods etc. sent free on application.

HALE BROS. & CO.

825, 827, 829, 831, 833, 835 K St., and 1026 Ninth street.

Sacramento, Calif.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS, WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neighboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finger Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the best quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packages to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,

0-m RENO, NEVADA.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday .....January 28th
" .....February 25th
" .....March 25th
" .....April 29th
" .....May 27th
" .....June 24th
" .....July 22d
" .....August 26th
" .....September 23d
" .....October 21st
" .....November 16th
" .....December 18th

THOS. C. BOLAND, W. M.
B. RHINE, Sec.

Freight! Freight!

BISHOP & MOJAVE

Through Freight Line.

George Meads,

PROPRIETOR.

Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:

J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.

Special rates given on car-load lots

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Agent for

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:
Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE - CAL.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates

Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

Thos. Williams,
Proprietor.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for outdoor parties.

Customers supplied at all points

Of the C. & C. Railroad.

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

F. W. BEDFORD.....LESS

Horseshoeing.....$2.00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see
F. W. BEDFORD.

INDEPENDENCE

MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROEPER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef,
Mutton,
Pork,
Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every ort made to give satisfaction to patrons.
j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies

PROVISIONS,

&c., &c., &c.

A. K. EUGLEY,

Big Pine, Cal.

BELL'S Flouring Mills

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

Independence, Cal. A. N. BELL,

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, November 16,

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House.....	11:30 p. m.		5.50 p. m
Dayton	12:00 p. m.		5:10 p. m
Wabuska	2:65 p. m.		2:50 p. m
Hawthorne	5 50 p. m.		11:10 a. m
Luning	7:05 p. m.		9:55 a. m
Soda Springs.....	8:05 p. m.		9:15 a. m
Belleville.....	9:15 p. m.		7:55a. m
Candelaria.....	Ar. 10.00 p. m		Lv. 7:20a. m
	No. 3.		No. 4.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Belleville.....	8 23 a. m.		5:25 p m.
Benton	11:50 a. m.		1:35 a. m.
Bishop Creek	2:00p. m.		11:00 a. m
Alvord.....	2:45 p. m.		10:40 a. m
Independence.....	4:20 p. m.		8:30 a. m
Lone Pine.....	5:10p. m.		7:40 a. m
Keeler.....	Ar 5:55 p. m.		Lv. 7:00 a. m

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

At HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (3 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

At LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salisbury & Co's. tri weekly stages (leaving Monday, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville, Grantsville and Belmont.

At CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stage for Columbia (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

S. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - Cal.

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of

WINES,
LIQUORS,
& CIGARS

The most careful attention given to the the amusement and comfort of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-12 td

Inyo

Stage Company.

REGULAR LINE

—FROM—

Mojave To Keeler.

FINE COACH
FAST STOCK.

The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful

Redrock Canyon

And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.

Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m

Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.

W. K. MILLER,
Propr.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

Indispensable in the preparation of the finest foods.

I have found it superior to all others. I recommend it.
—M. GORJU, late chef, Delmonico's.

From an Old Book.

In one of the older manuals of the common council of New York there appears an interesting directory of this city for the year 1665. Then there were exactly twenty streets and a population of 251. Broadway at that time was De Heere straat (the principal street). The Battery was Aen de Strandt van de N. Reveir. Wall street was De Waal, Pearl street was De Perel straat, Whitehall street was De Winckel straat, William street was In de Smits valley (In the smith's valley), and Broadway above Wall street was Buyten de Lant Poort (outside the land gate). All of the residents were of Dutch extraction, with the exception of one whose name appears in the list as Jacob, the Frenchman.

There were Roosevelts, Beekmans, De Peysters, De Puys, Van Cortlandts and Verplancks in those days. Clams, oysters and fish formed the principal food of the settlers at that period. Occasionally in the spring New York was visited by "such amazing flights of wild pigeons that the sun was hid by their flocks from shining on the earth for a considerable time; then it was that the natives laid in a great store of them against a day of need."—New York Times.

The Love of Domestic Animals.

The man who has not music in his soul is justly exposed to the disparagement of the poet, but what shall be said of him who cannot find one dumb animal at least on which to bestow care and kindness? Sailors and soldiers have their pets; the feathered, the feline, and the canine creation are universal favorites.

Carriers and draymen are rarely indifferent to the companionship of the four footed friends, and the navvy's dog while his master is at work in the cutting or on the embankment, sits on his peajacket and guards the bundle containing that midday meal of which, when the toiler returns, the good and faithful servant will have his share. It would be a very dreary and perhaps a wickeder world than it is if we had not animal pets, domestic as well as regimental.—London Telegraph.

It's Just as Easy

To grow Choice Flowers as it is to grow common ones if you START RIGHT.

Either one of the following collections is a garden in itself, and your garden is not complete without them. They are all beautiful and fashionable flowers and the plants are all strong, healthy and pot-grown, and sent, postage free, for the price named.

THE TIMOTHY HOPKINS COLLECTION OF SWEET PEAS

Comprising 81 Distinct Varieties. A Large Packet of Seeds of each for $1.50, or a Packet of Seeds of the same varieties mixed for only 10 cents.

12 Roses $1.00
12 Carnations $1.00
12 Pelargoniums $1.00
12 Chrysanthemums $1.00
DIFFERENT VARIETIES

Flower or Vegetable SEEDS 25 Choice Varieties of Either (your own or our selection) FOR ONE DOLLAR.

SHERWOOD HALL NURSERY CO.
S. W. Cor. Sansome & Clay Sts., - - San Francisco, Cal.

"August Flower"

I had been troubled five months with Dyspepsia. I had a fullness after eating, and a heavy load in the pit of my stomach. Sometimes a deathly sickness would overtake me. I was working for Thomas McHenry, Druggist, Allegheny City, Pa., in whose employ I had been for seven years. I used August Flower for two weeks. I was relieved of all trouble. I can now eat things I dared not touch before. I have gained twenty pounds since my recovery. J. D. Cox, Allegheny, Pa. ②

PATENTS.
BEST LEGAL ADVICE. BEST PATENTS OBTAINED.
DEWEY & CO.,
220 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO,
WASHINGTON, D. C., LONDON, ENG.

DR. GUNN'S IMPROVED LIVER PILLS
A MILD PHYSIC
ONE PILL FOR A DOSE.

A movement of the bowels each day is necessary for health. These pills supply what the system lacks to make it regular. They cure Headache, brighten the Eyes and clear the Complexion better than cosmetics. They act mildly, neither gripe nor sicken as other pills do. To convince you of their merits we will mail samples free, or a full box for 25 cents. Sold everywhere. Rosanko Med. Co., Philadelphia. F

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

CHICKS INCUBATORS on installments. Best Make—Lowest Price. Send for Catalogue. W. C. BEACH, Ripon, Cal.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.
CATARRH
Sold by Druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

MOONLIGHT.

The salutation of the moonlit air,
Night's dewy breath, the fragrance of the brine,
The waste of moving waters everywhere,
The whispering of waves—a hush divine—
Leagues of soft murmuring dusk to the sea's rim,
The infinite, illimitable sky,
Wherein the great orb of the moon on high
In stillness down the quiet deeps doth swim:
Behold the awful beauty of the night,
The solemn tenderness, the peace profound,
The mystery—God's glory in the light
And darkness both—his voice in every sound!
Be silent and behold where hand in hand
Great Nature and great Art together stand!
—Celia Thaxter in Century.

DORA.

The night after his stepfather, Squire Halsted, whipped Harold Burr for a thing he had not done, Harold ran away. No one knew it but I, and I was nobody. But I thought as much of Harold as ever a human being could think of another. And I knew that he was wronged, and I felt that Mrs. Robling had done a dreadful thing when she took Squire Halsted for her second husband, and let him rule her, take possession of her money, and ill use her handsome boy.

I had had my share of it too, for while Mr. Robling lived, and while she was a widow I was like a daughter of the house. But no sooner had she come back from her honeymoon trip than all that was altered. The squire looked at me coldly, and I heard him ask Mrs. Halsted who I was.

"Her mother died when she was born," Mrs. Halsted said, "and I took the baby to my own nursery, where Harold lay in the cradle."

"More fool you, my dear," said the squire.

"The father went away," said Mrs. Halsted, "and was lost at sea—so they said—and I kept the little girl."

"You must remember that she will need to earn her own bread," said the squire. "She is not a lady. Let the servants keep her in their part of the house and teach her her duties as waitress."

"Oh, Mr. Halsted!" cried the bride, "I cannot do that."

"My dear," said Mr. Halsted, "I am master here."

The poor lady was helpless. She had no longer any control of her own money. I was six years old, Harold the same age, and a terrible life we had had of it. I was very well used in the kitchen, but I felt cast down and degraded. I wore big crash aprons that covered me from head to foot, instead of my pretty muslin and silk dresses. I was delicate, and waiting is hard work when your wrists are slender.

Mrs. Halsted did all she could for me. I used to hear her pleading with the squire to let her send me to a boarding school to learn to be a teacher, but he called her a "little goose," and she fancied him very wise.

But for Harold I should never have known anything, as after school he used to come to me and teach me what he had learned himself.

Cook would whisper:

"That's right, Master Harold. It's a good deed you are doing. God spare you. I was never taught to rade meself, on account of an evil minded stepfather iv me own that put me to sarvice before I could get schoolin', an' I know the loss."

And not a servant but would have waited in my place, for they said I was too small to carry dishes; but the cruel squire would have me come in to make sure that he was obeyed.

Mrs. Halstead really felt badly about it, I know. But two little girls came soon, and then a little boy, and soon she cared nothing for her own splendid boy, and why should she care for me?

But I am wandering away from the morning when Harold Robling, just eighteen that day, walked down the garden path in the gray morning light, and I with him, choking down my sobs. For now the one being I loved was going away from me, perhaps forever.

It was only 5 o'clock, and no one was up. The grass was wet with dew, and there were only a few pink streaks in the sky to tell that day was coming. We did not dare to speak until we got out of hearing of the house, but then I said:

"Oh, Harold, what will you do with no money and no friends—alone in the world?"

"Many a young fellow has done the same sort of thing," Harold said. "No man with his limbs and senses need to starve, and I mean to make my fortune. But I'd rather work in the trenches for my daily bread than to live in Squire Halstead's house, and with a mother he has bewitched into doing what he wishes, whatever it may be. It was a crime to make a servant of you, little sister. But remember, the moment I have power in my hands all that shall be altered. I will write to you, and you shall know just how I get on."

But now we had got to the wharf where he was to take a little market boat to New York, and I was obliged to leave him, for he did not want the squire to find out what he had done until he was fairly out of reach, and then he put his arm about my waist and kissed me.

"Goodby, little sister," he said, "goodby, Dora, my pet. Keep up a good heart and never forget to answer my letters." And he was off, and I went home weeping as though my heart would break.

There was a terrible time at the house when they found he was gone, and the squire swore he should never enter his doors again. But the squire's daughters, who hated Harold as their father did, though he was their own mother's child, said they were glad he was gone. And only I remembered him, I think, very long. A weak woman was Mrs. Halsted, and her husband had got her under his power. The way he managed her has always made me think that there must be something in magnetism or hypnotism. She seemed to have lost her senses or to have grown mentally blind, and he led her where he would.

Just about this time I fell very ill, and when I grew better the squire, knowing I was good at my needle, made a seamstress of me. I was ashamed to say why, but it is because I looked rather stylish and was called pretty, and so many questions were asked me by guests. As a seamstress I could stay in my upper room and work. I was so thankful for the change. Now I could read a little and be more to myself. I made the finery for the young ladies of the family, and no one troubled me.

Once, indeed, a rich old gentleman, having somehow got my story from good old cook, sought me out and made me a proposition of marriage, saying it was a shame that such an elegant woman should live as I did. But I thanked him and declined his offer. I was not unhappy now, except that I pined for news of Harold, for in all these years no word had come from him—none of those letters he had promised.

I felt sure he was not dead, and it was very natural that he should forget to write; but my heart had no rest. He was twenty-six years old by this time, and in all that time much might have happened.

My pillow was often wet with tears from thoughts of him—fancies of what he had suffered, and longing to meet him, or only see him from afar but once again.

At last news came. Mrs. Halstead came running into my room wild with joy.

"News of my boy!" she said, holding a letter toward me.

"I thought you had forgotten all about him, madam," I said.

I was sorry the next moment, for she burst into tears and faltered through her sobs:

"You don't know what it is to be the wife of a man who dominates your will! I never have forgotten or ceased to regret other things." Then she wiped her eyes and said: "But, as far as Harold goes, it is all over. He has written to me. He is rich—really rich. He has made a fortune in California, and he is coming home to see me. He is in New York and will be here tomorrow. The squire is pleased; the girls are wild to see him; his little brother is delighted."

She ran out of the room again, looking young and happy, and I sat down to my machine, swallowing a great lump that had risen in my throat.

He had not written to me. Well, I was only a servant, and he was a rich man now. They were rejoicing in his coming for that reason—the squire and his children. He was a very different person from the poor Harold Robling who went away.

"I expect he will give us lots of presents," I heard one of the girls say. "An older brother who is rich is a great thing to have. We must pet him and make him good natured."

"Oh, yes," said the other. "When girls have as stingy a father as we have a generous elder brother is a godsend."

And I—oh! if he returned in rags, begging his bread, I should have welcomed him. I cared for him, not for his money. And if he had returned poor it was I to whom he would have written, I knew well. But I tried to put the selfish thoughts away and rejoice for his sake that he had prospered, even if he had forgotten his little sister Dora.

The morrow came. As I sat at my machine I heard the sounds below that told he had arrived. I heard his mother cry out and the squire say heartily, "Welcome home, my boy!" and his sisters squeal and giggle after a way they had. Then the great drawing room doors were closed, shutting me out.

I, who loved him so dearly, went back to my room alone, uncared for, wretched! I felt as though my heart would break. I could no longer keep back my tears. Half an hour passed; then some one came to the door—a servant—who told me briefly that I was wanted in the parlor.

Trembling, quivering, feeling as I had never felt before, I obeyed the summons. I opened the drawing room door.

The squire stood before the fire, important as usual, one hand in the breast of his coat, the other waving toward me as he uttered these words:

"Dora, I have sent for you because Master Harold has returned, and wishes to meet a faithful servant of the family."

But before the words were out of his mouth, Harold, handsomer and larger, but the same for all that—the very Harold that I knew—rushed forward and took both my hands and bent down and kissed me.

"I told you, sir," he said, "that I wanted to see Dora—the dearest being alive to me! Such words as you utter I cannot permit you to speak as though they were mine. You have never received any of my letters, Dora, but I have guessed why."

"I never have received a letter, Harold," I answered.

"So I thought," said he. "We will not ask who kept them from you. I have no wish to quarrel with any one; but you were my only friend years ago when I went out into the world homeless and penniless, and I have come now to ask you to share with me the home that I can now offer to you."

"Share your home, Harold?" cried the squire. "The girl is not your sister. It can't be done. It would be improper!"

"I am glad, sir, that the girl is not my sister," replied Harold, "for she is the girl I want for my wife; and here, before you all, I ask her for her heart and hand, and proud shall I be if she will give them to me."

I could not answer, but he saw all I felt in my face, and led me away with him.

There was no quarreling. People like the squire and his family never offend rich people, and I am the happiest woman living.—Mary Kyle Dallas in Fireside Companion.

Thunder Lore.

The natives of the Sandwich Islands considered thunder as being Mauna Loa's echo from the clouds. This curious notion has crystallized a weather proverb which is now current among many of the white residents of the islands—viz, "It will rain today; Mauna Loa shakes the clouds." In this connection it may be remarked that the early Scandinavian settlers of Iceland believed that there was some mysterious and supernatural connections between the roarings of Hecla and the "angry mutterings of Jove." In England many of the peasantry still plant the house leek—"Jupiter's beard"—on their house roofs as a preventive against thunder, lightning and evil spirits, a custom which reminds one of Charlemagne's edict, "Et habeat quisque supra domum suam Jovis barbam."

Another widespread superstition, and one that has been noted among the tribes and nations from China to England, and from Cape Hatteras to the Golden Gate, tells us that if the "claps" or reports of thunder come in even numbers the storm will be of short duration and very mild. But, on the other hand, if they come in uneven numbers, especially if the reports be a series of five, nine or thirteen distinct claps, much loss of life and property will result.—St. Louis Republic.

Capture of a Whale on the Essex Coast.

A whale nearly fifty feet in length was captured in the River Crouch, near Burnham, Essex. The river is a mile wide, and the whale had become stranded on the bank. Special trains conveyed thousands of people to inspect the monster. It was seized by the customs officer and sold for seventeen pounds sterling for exhibition purposes. It is intended to preserve the skeleton intact.

The Cruelty of War.

An incident related in the biography of Sir Provo Wallis, admiral of the British fleet, brings home to the reader the cruel nature of war. It occurred during the war of 1812. An American captain had taken a fine ship to Lisbon, where she had sold her cargo for the use of the British army under Wellington, and received several thousands of dollars in return, which were on board.

Meantime war had been declared, and on her homeward voyage she fell a victim to the British squadron. One of the principal objects of her captors was to obtain information. The American captain was sent on board the Shannon—which afterward captured the famous Chesapeake—but was kept in ignorance of the war and of the fact that he was a prisoner.

He answered unreservedly all the questions put to him, and Captain Broke, who greatly disliked the deception he had been obliged to practice, now felt it difficult to make the prisoner acquainted with the next step which must be taken. At length he forced himself to say:

"Captain, I must burn your ship."

The American, overcome by surprise, faltered, "Burn her?"

"Indeed I must."

"Burn her for what? Will not money save her? She is all my own—and all the property I have in the world. Is it war, then?"

"Yes," said Broke.

Both parties were painfully moved, and the scene did not end without a tear from each, but duty was duty, and the prize was destroyed.—Youth's Companion.

A Feat in Writing.

John J. Taylor, of Streator, Ills., once wrote 4,100 words on the blank side of a postal card. This was sent to a Chicago paper, which heralded the story to the world as being the most wonderful piece of penwork ever executed. As a matter of fact Mr. Taylor's effort has been discounted on several occasions. Beedle, the penman of Ottery St. Mary, Liverpool, once wrote the following pieces entire, without the slightest abbreviation, all upon a piece of cardboard 3½ by 3½ inches in size: Goldsmith's "Traveler," "The Deserted Village," "Essay on Education," "Distress of a Disabled Soldier," "The Tale of Azim," "Justice," "Generosity," "Irresolution of Youth," "Frailty of Man," "Friendship" and the "Genius of Love."

In the center of the card there was a perfect picture of Ottery church, all of the shades and lines being formed of parts of the writing. As a kind of talepiece he added the anthem of "God Save the Queen," embellished it with seventy-two stars, fifty-one crescents and nineteen crosses, finishing the whole by drawing a picture of a serpent which inclosed the whole of the miraculous production. If you wish to ascertain exactly how much Beedle's effort exceeded that of Mr. Taylor, count the words in the Goldsmith pieces catalogued above.—St. Louis Republic.

The Sultan of Morocco.

It is generally stated and believed that the sultan of Morocco, like the czar, is at once the temporal and the spiritual head of his people, but this is not quite true. Though one of his many titles is that of "guardian and commander of the true believers," this authority is very shadowy—at least as far as the Kairouin is concerned—and the sultan had an opportunity of judging some three years ago of the danger that might result from his interference in purely church government. For some reason or other he commanded that the mokaddum, or chief trustee of the university—an office which has been hereditary in one family since the death of the Tunisian Fatma—be dismissed.

This was done, but within three days there arose such an outcry and hubbub at the sultan's attempt to exercise unwonted authority in church matters that he very wisely bethought him to announce that in a dream the apparition of his sainted father had appeared to him and requested him to reinstate the mokaddum. The mokaddum was reinstated, and the sultan has never interfered again in the affairs of the university.—Fortnightly Review.

Injuries from Carbolic Acid.

Warnings are given in a German medical journal against the injury to skin, and even bone, which may result from the long continued use of weak—say 3, 2½, or even 2 per cent.—carbolized applications, especially upon peripheral portions of the body, such as the fingers. This effect, it is asserted, is due in a small measure to the action of carbolic acid upon the vasomotor system, but in the main to its destructive effect upon the red and white blood corpuscles.

This induces, partly in a mechanical and partly in a chemical way, stasis, first in the capillaries, and, if the action of the drug be continued, then in the larger veins and arteries, with the result that the nutrition of the part is interfered with, and the removal of harmful substances hindered, the maceration of the epidermis caused by the acid favors evaporation, so that the gangrene is a dry one, a mummification, as it were.

Some people say that it is very bad luck indeed for a baby to see itself in a mirror before it is a year old, though why this should be so considered it would be difficult to tell.

Travel in the East.

How wonderful and ever present is the contrast in eastern travel to all life and movement at home. No heavy carts and lumbering wagons jolt to and fro between the farmyard and the fields. No light vehicles and swift equipages dash past on macadamized roads. Alas! there are no roads—and if no roads, how much less any vehicles or wagons. Thatched roofs and tiled cottages, lanes and hedgerows and trim fields, rivers coursing between full banks, beyond all the roar and sudden smoky rush of the train—these might not exist in the world at all, and do not exist in the world of the Persian, straitened and stunted, but inexpressibly tranquil in his existence. Here all is movement and bustle, flux and speed; there everything is imperturbable, immemorial, immutable, slow. —"Persia and the Persian Question."

A Boy Prima Donna.

First Boy—You ought to come to the concert our music teacher is goin to give.

Second Boy—You goin to be in?

"Yep. I'm one of the primmer donnas. We're goin to give a cantata."

"Wot's that?"

"Oh, it's all about sunshine and storms and picnics and harvesters and all sorts of country things. It's great."

"Do you sing all that?"

"N-o. I'm only in the first scene, 'Early Mornin on th' Farm.'"

"Wot do you do?"

"I crow."—Good News.

The glowworm lays eggs which, it is said, are themselves luminous. However, the young hatched from them are not possessed of those peculiar properties until after the first transformation.

Elk hunters in western Washington are so insatiate in their greed for antlers and skins that the extermination of the elk in the forests of that section of the state is greatly feared.

Six brothers of the Frost family at Kansas City own the following odd lot of names: Jack Frost, Winter Frost, White Frost, Cold Frost, Early Frost and Snow Frost.

At Dundenong, Australia, there is a blue gum tree which has an estimated height of 450 feet. It is believed to be the tallest tree in the world.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

☞ Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

"Faith, and why do yez charge me 25 cents for a hair-cut when your sign sez, 'First-class hair-cut for 15 cents'?" "Ah, but Monsieur, your hair ees not first class."

The World's Mammoth Hotel is the 1100 room, fireproof, summer Hotel, the "GREAT EASTERN," at St. Lawrence Avenue and 60th Street, Chicago, two blocks from Midway Plaisance World's Fair entrance, and overlooking famious Washington Park. World's Fair visitors can avoid annoyance and extortion of sharks by engaging rooms now at $1.50 a day, each person, (European) by addressing Copeland Townsend, Manager, (formerly manager Palmer House,) 42 The Rookery, Chicago, Ill.

The Fiancee—No two persons think alike, I suppose. The Caller—You'll not say that when you see your wedding presents come in.

For Bronchial and Asthmatic Complaints, and Coughs and Colds, "Brown's Bronchial Troches" have remarkable curative properties. 25 cts. a box.

Now comes the question which will make this life a bitter cup;
How many hoop-skirts will it take
To fill a horse car up?

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

The Best Cure is that which truly cures Promptly and Permanently and ST. JACOBS OIL Shows a Thousand Proofs of the worst cases of Pain It Has Cured.

Old Time Methods of treating Colds and Coughs were based on the idea of suppression. We now know that "feeding a cold" is good doctrine.

Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil with hypophosphites, a rich fat-food, cures the most stubborn cough when ordinary medicines have failed. Pleasant to take; easy to digest.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

Our readers will serve themselves by noticing the remarkable offerings advertised in another column by the Sherwood Hall Nursery Co. of Menlo Park and San Francisco, who are leaders on the coast in furnishing everything for the farm and garden.

Behind the beautiful maid I sat,
And my heart at the memory grieves,
For although she kindly took off her hat,
She failed to pull down her sleeves.

PREVENTING FUTURE MISERY.

If there is, in this vale of tears, a more prolific source of misery than the rheumatic twinge, we have yet to hear of it. People are born with a tendency to rheumatism, just as they are with one to consumption or to scrofula. Slight causes may develop this. As soon as the agonizing complaint manifests itself, recourse should be had to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which checks its further inroads and banishes the rheumatic poison from the system. This statement tallies exactly with the testimony of physicians who have employed this fine blood depurent in their private practice. There is also the amplest professional and general testimony as to the efficacy of the Bitters for malaria, liver complaint, constipation, indigestion, kidney trouble, nervousness and loss of appetite and flesh. After a wetting, whether followed by a cold or not, the Bitters is useful as a preventive of the initial attack of rheumatism.

First Statesman—I can truly say that no man ever sought to bribe me. Second Ditto—Oh, well, I wouldn't be discouraged. Your luck may change some time or other.

THINGS WORTH REMEMBERING.

When you feel a kind of goneness about the stomach it is a sign that your food does not sit well and that you are about to have a fit of indigestion.

When you begin to feel nervous and are unable to sit still comfortably; when your clothes suddenly seem to lose their fit and become too tight in places the fit of indigestion is surely upon you.

When this fit of indigestion is repeated from day to day it finally resolves itself into dyspepsia.

Remember that three to ten of BRANDRETH'S PILLS will cure the worst case of indigestion or dyspepsia, or both, and that a regular course of them, say two every night for a week or ten days, will act as a preventive of either complaint.

Love is so closely allied to war that its fullest expression is an appeal to arms.

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED.

We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Porterfield & Losey, 838 Market street, San Francisco.

It does no good to confess that you are a fool after you have made a fool of yourself.

THE GETTING IT DOWN is bad enough, with the ordinary pill. But the having it down is worse. And, after all the disturbance, there's only a little temporary good.

From beginning to end, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are better. They're the smallest and easiest to take—tiny, sugar-coated granules that any child is ready for. Then they do their work so easily and so naturally that it lasts. They absolutely and permanently cure Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Sick and Bilious Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. They're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

THE MAKERS of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy say: "If we can't cure your Catarrh no matter what your case is, we'll pay you $500 in cash." Now you can see what is said of other remedies, and decide which is most likely to cure you. Costs only 50 cents.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail, Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER. 25c.

SHILOH'S INJECTOR CATARRH REMEDY. Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50 cts. Injector free.

Mrs. A. M. Allen
Ferry, Wash.

20 Miles from a Doctor

But Hood's Sarsaparilla was Equal to the Emergency

Pleurisy, Chills and Fever—Milk Leg—Perfect Cure.

"After my baby was born I got into very serious condition, having pleurisy, chills and fever, gradually developing into milk leg. We live 20 miles from a physician and did not know what to do. Finally after a great deal of suffering I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and when I was using the third bottle I could see

It Was Doing Me Good.

I continued with another bottle, and recovered so rapidly that now I am in good health."

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

I cordially recommend it as a good medicine." MRS. A. M. ALLEN, Ferry, Washington.

Hood's Pills cure all Liver Ills, Biliousness, Jaundice, Indigestion, Sick Headache.

BLOOD POISON A SPECIALTY. Primary, Secondary or Tertiary Syphilis permanently cured in 15 to 35 days. You can be treated at home for the same price and the same guarantees; with those who prefer to come here we will contract to cure them or refund money and pay expense of coming, railroad fare and hotel bills, if we fail to cure. If you have taken mercury, iodide potash, and still have aches and pains, Mucous Patches in mouth, Sore Throat, Pimples, Copper-Colored Spots, Ulcers on any part of the body, Hair or Eyebrows falling out, it is this Syphilitic BLOOD POISON that we guarantee to cure. We solicit the most obstinate cases and challenge the world for a case we cannot cure. This disease has always baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians. $500,000 capital behind our unconditional guarantee. Absolute proofs sent sealed on application. Address COOK REMEDY CO., 1225 to 1231 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE
Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

If You Think any kind of a crop will do, then any kind of seeds will do; but for the best results you should plant
FERRY'S SEEDS.
Always the best, they are recognized as the standard everywhere.
Ferry's Seed Annual is the most important book of the kind published. It is invaluable to the planter. We send it free.
D. M. FERRY & CO.
DETROIT, Mich.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES? ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BOSANKO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

YOUNG MEN! The Specific A No. 1. Cures, without fail, all cases of Gonorrhœa and Gleet, no matter of how long standing. Prevents stricture, it being an infallible remedy. Cures when everything else has failed. Sold by all Druggists. Manufacturers: The A. Schoenhelt Medicinal Co., San Jose, Cal. Price, $3.00.

S. F. N. U. No. 563. New Series No. 14

"DON'T BORROW TROUBLE." BUY
SAPOLIO
'TIS CHEAPER IN THE END.

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF
Moore's Revealed Remedy.

ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude, MRS. N. V. STEELE.
SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

HERCULES GAS AND GASOLINE
Stationary and Marine ENGINES

For Launches, Schooners, Tow Boats, Etc.

For Pumping, Mining Hoists, Printing, Sawing, Turning Lathes, Soda Water Works, Etc.

For simplicity and success they beat the world. Clean, no ashes, smell or dirt. No engineer is necessary; they are easily managed. Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question. No battery or electric spark to care for. No double or false explosions, so frequent with the unreliable spark. The workmanship is the very best. Our ignition tubes are a success; they explode every charge of gas which enters the cylinder. Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day. For pumping outfits for irrigating purposes they run all day without an engineer. For hoisting outfits in mines they have met with the highest approval. We give estimates on the entire plant.

PALMER & REY, MANUFACTURERS,
405-407 Sansome St., San Francisco, Cal.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

Independence, Cal.

FRIDAY, MAY 12, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXIV. NO. 47. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., MAY 12, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1176

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$1 00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.50
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

AT THE WINDOWS OF THE MORNING.

What joy to stand at break of day,
Watching the gathering glory
Of sunlight brightening all the way,
With bird note song and story;
When the Queen of Morn comes forth with pride,
Both heaven and earth adorning;
When the Hand of God throws open wide
All the Windows of the Morning.

When low in the eastern sky afar
Hangs a molten mirror olden;
Where breezes leap from star to star,
Through sun rays growing golden:
When scenes of darkness fade and flee
Away from the hours of dawning;
When the face of the God of Day we see
Through the Windows of the Morning.

When nature smiles and weeps in turn,
But not with tears of sadness;
When morning mists from a flowing urn
Pour life and joy and gladness;
When Sol in golden chariot rides
Forth proudly without scorning;
When in the heavens his glory bides
Near the Windows of the Morning.

Inspiring thought—that when our time
Of life on earth is ended
There's promise of a world sublime
Where earth and heaven are blended;
Where day and night will be once more
Joined in a new life dawning,
When, mirrored on a shining shore,
Ope the Windows of the Morning.
—Clark W. Bryan in Good Housekeeping.

LIKE A HUMAN BEING.

Poor Jack Semester had been dead a day. From going in to look at him, with his hands folded on his breast, after the plaintive manner of the dead, we sat down in the one other room of the cabin and began to talk of similar scenes and similar experiences. For my own part I felt bad, for I had set the blast which knocked poor Jack out, and, though I was not to blame any more than a babe, I wished some other hand than mine had been the innocent instrument of his undoing.

There were Whistling Bill, Harry Handsome, Major Tokay and myself. Each man told his pathetic story of some sad happening in the mines.

"Gentlemen," said the major, "the dead man in there was my friend. We all saw him pass over the river, and we all took his last message to his old mother back in the states. The man of us who gets there first delivers it. But talking of sad deaths, I hope I do not profane poor Jack's dumb clay when I assert that the saddest death I ever witnessed was that of a baboon."

"A baboon!" exclaimed everybody together.

"Yes," answered the major, "an African baboon."

Major Tokay was the oldest man among us. He was an Englishman of the right sort. He had been an officer in the British army. When our war broke out in 1861 he came across the water, joined a New York regiment, and fought his way up from the ranks to the grade and title by which we knew him. He had been all over the world several times, and was a generous and tender hearted man. He was as brave as any Englishman, and all English blood is brave.

"Sam Simpson and I went to Zanzibar in '69. We crossed over to Bogomoyo and struck out for the interior, with the intention of shooting big game. I promised Sam's sister, Tillie Simpson, that we would bring her home a lion's hide for a rug for her room. So we were after no less spoil than the king of beasts. Poor Sam was drowned in crossing one of those turbulent streams of which the Dark Continent is full. This happened a hundred weary miles from anywhere, in the interior, among the niggers. I buried Sam under a spreading palm, rolled the largest stone I could find onto his grave, and, fashioning a kind of chisel out of a heavy knife I carried, I carved a rude inscription upon it. Sometimes God listens to a sinner, so I did the best I could toward sending up a prayer for poor Sam's soul.

"Looking up I saw a native woman. She had a baby baboon in her hands. Will you believe it? There was something in the eye of that baboon that touched my heart. Now, don't think I'm a fool. He looked like Sam. The woman held him out to me, as if to say that I could have him if I wanted him. I stretched out my hands, and the little baby baboon sprang into them as if he wished to belong to me. The first thing he did was to put his hairy arms around my neck and lay his fuzzy head against my cheek. Gentlemen, I have been affected in my time, but never before nor since as I was then. The more I wept the tighter the creature clung.

"I got out of that country as soon as I could, taking the baboon with me. The lion whose hide I was to take back to Tillie Simpson is still wearing it, and rubbing off the hair among the undergrowth in the jungles, for I gave up lion hunting, and arrived at Bogomoyo after many days of wearing marching. Gentlemen, many of you have seen lonely times on these mountain sides, and you can imagine how I began to love that baboon, the only living thing around me except the snakes and wild beasts. When we slept he curled up against my breast, and in the morning he awakened me by his antics—a way of jumping up and down he had—and by tapping my cheeks with his little hands, as like a child's as any you ever saw. When I got back to Zanzibar with my baboon, but no Sam, a man I knew said to me:

"'What have you done with your mate?'

"The baboon was afraid of this man. He wound his little arms around my neck tight, and laid his hairy head against my cheek. For all I could do I couldn't keep the tears back, so I said:

"'This is all the mate I have. I shall call him Sam, after my dead friend, who is lying under a spreading palm 100 miles inland among the niggers.'

"The man laughed, as if I were degrading poor Sam by naming a baboon after him, but I had no such thought. I loved Sam, and the way this creature had come to me at his very grave, as if his spirit were in its little body and was trying to speak, made me think it was right. I think so yet, after a lapse of more than twenty years.

"As I neared England Sam, the baboon, clung to me closer still. A good many people on shipboard would have liked to pet him, but he wouldn't have it. He would come to nobody but me, and as the northern breezes began to strike him he clung closer than ever and shivered with the cold. I showed him to Tillie Simpson in her English home and told her all. But she didn't like the idea of my calling the baboon by her brother's name. That made no difference to me, for his memory was as closely connected with my little companion as his own whitey-brown fuzz.

"One day," the major's voice dropped a little, "I came home to my lodgings in the suburbs of London, and Sam lay in his little box. He did not jump up into my arms and lay his head against my face, as was his habit whenever he saw me. His eyes were bloodshot and he was hot all over. He was ill. The first thing I thought of was that he would soon be with poor Simpson in the other world. I never saw the treasure that I would not have given as free as water to have saved the life of that innocent and affectionate creature, baboon as he was. No father ever hoped against hope when he saw his baby slowly approaching the boundaries of another world more than I did then. Sam Simpson's spirit seemed to say, 'I am going to leave you, Toke'—the name he always called me by. I prayed over that dumb brute as I prayed at poor Sam's grave.

"The cold winds and fogs of London were too much for my baboon. If there was ever a case of pneumonia he had it. He would press his little hands against his breast and sides and look at me as if to say 'Such a pain here.' The fourth day, as I was kneeling by his box, he roused himself from the stupor in which he had lain for a day and a half, looked up at me, and tried to smile. As God is my witness, he tried to smile. Then he moved and drew his little form toward me. I did not stir. Then, if ever a baboon kissed a man's hand, he kissed mine. Then he laid over on his side and closed his eyes, looking upon my face to the last. He was dead.

"Gentlemen, that poor baboon died like a human being. I have seen many a one go over, before and since, on the battlefield, in the hospital, in the jungles of Africa—where not? There was no difference. He died as a tired child goes to sleep, kissing the white hand of its mamma. The tears rained down my face. I felt"—here there was a click in the major's voice—"as if I had lost a child of my own. You may smile if you like, but I wept like a woman."

But nobody smiled, or thought of it.

"I don't blame you myself, major," said Whistling Bill, sopping out his eyes with a towel.

"Nor I," added Harry Handsome and I together.

"Yes," said the major, "that poor dumb brute of a baboon died like a human being."—Paul Duane in Chicago Times.

Monday Better Than Saturday.

A change of school holiday from Saturday to Monday is discussed among teachers of some of the private schools in the city. It has been tried in a few instances by boarding schools out of the city. The experiment so far has proved encouraging, especially in the matter of scholarship. Pupils come better prepared with lessons Tuesday morning than they formerly did when Monday recitations followed a rest. The markings, at any rate, show better up to this time.

This is the theory upon which the change is advocated. Those who go home from boarding schools or seminaries to spend Sunday, leave Friday night and return Monday morning, often late for recitations and usually unprepared. Monday morning has thus never been satisfactory to teachers or pupils at such schools. Tardy returns Monday morning seem unavoidable, not only because trains are infrequent Sunday, but also because parents do not want their children to travel that day.

With the change proposed pupils can get home as easily after school Saturday as they can Friday. Their Sunday is undisturbed, and parents are disposed to start them back to school Monday afternoon. Tuesday's lessons can thus be prepared Monday evening. In a less degree the experiment has proved beneficial also to pupils who live at or near the school. Saturday study is out of the question when that day is a holiday, and Sunday study never did find favor with pupils or parents. The new order remedies all that.—New York Times.

Tea Gowns Always Popular.

It is not likely that tea gowns will ever go out of fashion. They are too comfortable, too graceful, and far too picturesque to be forsaken, at least until some garment with similar or greater advantages and attractions can be devised, and that creation has not as yet appeared. Most women never look so well as in flowing robes that follow, though not too closely, the lines of the figure, and more luxurious and expensive fabrics and more daring color melanges can be employed than would be permissible in an ordinary day gown. Even the stylish tailor girl is glad to relax for a time and seek easy comfort in a tea gown, and no "five o'clock" reception room or pretty boudoir looks normal with the inmates tight bodiced and round skirted. The tea gown is as necessary in either place or case as Hamlet in "Hamlet."

When Horses Fight.

The herds of horses on a western ranch, roaming over so large a space, rarely encounter one another. When they do the mares evince only the smallest possible amount of curiosity, but join and graze. Different is it with the stallions. With but a moment's preparation, they rush wildly at one another like mad bulls, neighing in what seems the mockery of a neign, and with head in air and tail curving proudly they rush and plunge and rear, kicking and biting, stamping one on the other until the ground and horses are covered with blood, and exhaustion of one forces a surrender and retreat. As I have said, the fickle mares march off with the conqueror at their head, while the defeated lags wearily behind.—Harper's Weekly.

TO REACH OLD AGE

Dr. Milburn Tells How a Puny Boy Became a Strong Man.

DEVELOPING THE CHEST MUSCLES.

How to Breathe.—Sun Cure for Baldness.—Wonderful Vaseline Baths.—Taking Exercise.

Born apparently into the lap of consumption! Blind and sickly at twenty-one! Weak and feeble at thirty-five! The picture of health at threescore and ten!

It reads like a patent medicine advertisement, but it is the story of the Rev. Dr. Milburn, the noted blind chaplain of the house of representatives. The blind parson told it in a voice as strong as that of a boy. Said he:

"For fifteen years I was one of the most fragile of men you can imagine. I had to hold a book at the end of my nose with my hand above to shade the page, and by moving the book continuously along I managed, by seeing one letter at a time, to read and to spell my way through school and college. The result was that when a very young man I found myself afflicted with curvature of the spine, a curvature of the breast bone and a disease of the heart, and there seemed absolutely no prospect of my ever becoming a healthy man.

"I was also extremely delicate, and when between nineteen and thirty-five years old my weight ranged from 107 to 115 pounds. I was working hard, however, all this time, and paying attention to all sorts of things except the laws of health and life. I went to England when thirty-four, and got some hints from there. In those days very little attention was paid to hygiene, and after returning I began to put into practice what I had learned, and ever since that time I have increased in weight and size.

I increased my chest measure twelve inches, and my weight from fifty to sixty pounds. My weight increased steadily from the time I was thirty-five, and you will be surprised to know that this was done without my ever going into a gymnasium or adopting any of the practices which are prescribed for such purpose.

HOW TO BREATHE.

"I could only use the means within the reach of a blind man, and one of the principal means of increasing my size and weight which I adopted was air, taking a larger and larger quantity into the lungs. I have cultivated breathing as the basis of life, so that now I suppose I can inhale and exhale as large a quantity of atmosphere as any living man. That is the secret of the development of physique—to take into your lungs the whole amount of air which your lungs are intended to receive, and that is, in the case of a man of fair chest proportions, 330 cubic inches. The well built men in this country do not take in 200 inches.

"The first thing you do when you awake in the morning be sure you have a current of fresh air passing through your room. Remove the heavy bedclothes from your person, leaving only a sheet over you; lie as nearly flat as you can, draw up the knees and relax the muscles of the abdomen. Then, with your mouth closed and your chin raised, in order to relieve all constraint about your breast, draw in all the air you can without violence, doing it gradually and without painful effort.

"Hold the air as long as you can, and breathe it out through the mouth or nose, in the former case with effort. Close your lips as soon as all is out, and practise doing all your inhalations through your nostrils, never, under any circumstances, inhaling through the mouth.

"I would rather drink the water left in a finger bowl at the close of a White House dinner than to take in one spoonful of Washington air through my mouth. Do this breathing while in bed in the morning for five or ten minutes. This has been my constant habit for a number of years.

"Air is my first prescription," continued Dr. Milburn. "The sun is my next. I often walk about with my hat off in the sun, and it was a practice of Goethe to do this for an hour at noon. He said it stimulated his intellect, and that there was a vital and quickening power in the sun's rays. Thirty years ago I began to be bald. My father and younger brother were as bald as the palm of your hand when they were forty; but I told them when they informed me that I was getting bald that I would never be so. I had resolved to prevent it, and I did. I never wear a hat when I can help it, and I am not as barefooted today on the top of my head as I was in 1860. I wash my hair whenever I wash my face and hands.

"I have a muscular exercise—a light dumbbell exercise," Dr. Milburn went on, "and have often used Indian clubs, and in addition have some gymnastic movements for the arms, chest, legs, etc. As to the massage treatment, I suppose I am the most expert massage operator in this country, and I am also the best groomed animal in this respect. Immediately after getting out of bed I take a cold, tepid or warm bath and rub down vigorously, and I spend from one to two hours every day in grooming my venerable carcass.

"I used to be brought constantly in contact with Henry Ward Beecher and other prominent characters of large physique thirty years or so ago, and they were always bantering me about my small vitality. 'Why don't you laugh and grow fat?' they would say. 'Well,' I would reply, 'I laugh enough, but don't know how to grow fat.' Since I have changed my plan of life I have buried them all.

"I use horsehair mats in rubbing down," he continued, "and then put on vaseline or oil and rub into all parts of my body. The oil taken up by the skin in this way is as good as food, and it keeps the cuticle in excellent condition. This use of oil was common among the Greeks and Romans, and you will find it among many savage tribes."

A VICTIM OF A CORPORATION.

How a President and General Manager Was Frozen Out by His Companions.

"Speaking of corporations," said a prominent St. Louis banker, "I recall with painful reminiscence the first one of which I had the honor to be a stockholder. It happened in 1865, and I was just fifteen years of age. Of course I had no idea that it was really a corporation in which I had invested, but as I look back upon the incident the realization rushes upon me that I was a victim of corporation methods.

"It happened in this way. At a very early age my tendency for mercantile pursuits developed. At school I noticed a very general demand for candy and cakes and an exceedingly limited supply in the market. Many of the children possessed coppers and nickels, but it was nearly a mile from the school house to the country town, and the boys were compelled to forage upon the neighboring sugar cane fields and orchards to satisfy the youthful stomach. After a careful survey of the market I decided that the school was confronted by a condition, not a theory.

"In a few days I had secured the cooperation of half a dozen boys, with a capital of thirty cents, in which I held ten cents of the stock, and was consequently named as president and manager of the candy store which we proposed to open on the grounds. We found an enormous dead and fallen tree, whose butt end offered little resistance to our penknives. At noon one day I notified the stockholders that a meeting would be held immediately after school, and at that meeting I, as president and manager, cut an opening into the dead tree, fashioned a shelf therein and attached a door, while the stockholders looked on in admiration. I then proposed that early in the morning each stockholder should bring with him five cents' worth of candy wherewith to stock the juvenile store.

"To my astonishment it was moved and seconded and carried that the candy should be purchased and delivered at once, so that the store might have an early and perfect opening. Tired as I was I repaired to the town, invested my ten cents in cheap candy, returned to the school grounds, where already the twilight was making ghostly figures among the trees, and deposited my treasure in the store. It was quite dark when I reached home, and being unable to account for my whereabouts the president and manager went to bed supperless and with a back stinging from the effects of a switch liberally applied. Next morning I hastened to the school grounds in order to be first at the ceremonies. Imagine my surprise when I found there, seated in a row, all the stockholders. I congratulated them on their interest in the enterprise, and then threw open the door of the candy store. It was empty!

"For a moment I was speechless. The stockholders bent their heads and said nothing. They looked suspiciously contented, and when I intimated that some good man among us had gone wrong they were all prepared to prove that a daring burglar had, in the midnight hour, deprived the corporation of its assets.

"Ten years later one of the stockholders admitted that he had helped his brethren in disposing of the stock."—St. Louis Republic.

Shaving the Beard in Russia.

Peter the Great thought to civilize his savages by making them shave and imposed a tax of 100 rubles on the wealthy and middle classes and a copeck on peasants and laborers. Now it was a superstition among the poorer people that no beardless son of Adam could ever enter heaven, and being obliged to part with their beards the great majority treasured up their hairs to be buried with their bodies. In dealing with his soldiers the great Peter enlisted the aid of the priests, who cunningly pointed out the fact that they were going to fight the bearded Turk and that their patron, St. Nicholas, would be unable to distinguish them from their enemies unless they sacrificed their beards.

This was all right, and the beards of the beloved Russians went down before the razor in deference to St. Nicholas. But, unluckily for the priests, the next little war happened to be with the Swedes, who wore no beards, and thus it was that the Russian soldiers demanded to be allowed to abjure the razor, so that the holy Nicholas might have no difficulty in arranging for their protection.—English Illustrated Magazine.

Recent Applications of Paper.

The year 1891 was certainly one of those in which new industrial applications of paper were most numerous. The idea of using paper in place of stone in the construction of houses is already old, but paper to take the place of glass in windows, of clay in flowerpots, of iron in railway rails, wagon wheels and horseshoes, of porcelain in laboratory ware, of wood in barrels, it having already taken the place of that material in small boats, paper in pulleys, are applications as novel as bold. The manufacture of window panes of paper was first tried in the United States.

The panes have the appearance of milky glass, and the property of intercepting the light rays while letting the heat rays through, which makes them suitable for greenhouses. It is estimated that a paper window pane ninety-four by sixty-three centimeters in dimensions in a wooden sash with iron appliances, will cost about eighty-five cents, and last on an average four years.—E. Ratoin in Popular Science Monthly.

Douglas Jerrold in School.

Douglas Jerrold wrote "Black Eyed Susan" when he was twenty-one, and contributed to Punch the immensely popular "Candle Lectures" not long afterward. But at nine years of age young Jerrold had been scarcely able to read, and it was not until he was apprenticed to a printer, after serving for some time as a midshipman at sea that he showed either desire or capacity for intellectual improvement.—London Standard.

THE PHONOGRAPH

Many Changes Have Lately Been Made in the Sensitive Instrument.

USED AS AN AID IN MEDICINE.

Invaluable in the Learning of Languages and in Elocution.—Result of a Physician's Investigations.

Dr. J. Mount Bleyer, of this city, has been making a collection of voices for nearly five years, and he has now fully five hundred specimens, which can be heard at any time by putting them in his phonograph and setting the machine in motion. Dr. Bleyer makes a specialty in diseases of the throat, lungs and respiratory organs, and his use of the phonograph and micro-graphophone have been made solely for the purpose of ascertaining the practical value of these inventions in regard to medical and other sciences.

The voices are all taken on wax cylinders, five inches long by three in diameter.

"Few people have any idea," Dr. Bleyer said to a reporter the other day, "of the wonderful changes that have been made in the phonograph since it first came out from the workshop of Mr. Edison. The instrument has now been so perfected that it is capable of faithfully representing every word, syllable, vowel, consonant, aspirant, or indeed sounds of any kind.

"A curious feature of the modern phonograph is the difference made in the key of the voice by an increase or decrease in the velocity of the cylinder. If the latter is turned as fast in transmitting the voice as it is in receiving, the sound is reproduced with almost mathematical fidelity. If, however, the cylinder is turned more slowly, the voice is reproduced in a much lower tone. So, on the other hand, if the mechanism is moved more rapidly, the voice is reproduced in a much higher key. This curious fact enables a person to hear himself speak as if he had been endowed with different vocal organs.

"A contralto, for example, who sings a song into the apparatus in her usual style may hear it reproduced as she gave it, or, by changing the speed of the motor, as a soprano, mezzo soprano, high treble, or, on the other hand, as a baritone, basso, or even basso profundo. Of course there is a change in the time corresponding with the change in the key. The high treble sings so rapidly as to grate upon the ear, while the basso vocalizes so slowly as to suggest somnolent fatigue. Strange to say, the quality of voice which the French call timbre remains unchanged, no matter what time is employed.

IN MEDICINE.

"But it is in medical science that the phonograph is destined to exert a greater influence. Its value in this branch is barely beginning to be appreciated. For some years I have occupied myself in studying the uses to which this machine might be put in the medical as well as in other sciences, and I can safely say that already in the present stage of its construction the phonograph can be made to record many of the symptoms usual in diseases of the respiratory organs, in both normal and abnormal states. For instance, the voice of singers with a good voice may be recorded and kept for comparison, in case of any ailment, making the normal record a standard.

"Phonograms of tenors, baritones and bassos may be preserved, the voices studied as to the different shades of tone and quality, and be found of value in clinical, as well as in other demonstrations. Good records of specimen patients, illustrating a certain cough, such as the whoop or whooping cough, asthmatic cough, bronchitis, stenosis of the larynx, and in croup and diphtheria would be of great benefit, particularly in cases of diphtheria and croup where the stenosis is marked.

"A standard of operation might be selected, and the students, listening through a cylinder, receive the impression therefrom as to about the correct time when operative interference becomes necessary. With the aid of such practical demonstration in the lecture rooms of our colleges, I am certain that our students would gain more from one lecture than from two dozen of the ordinary and prevailing ones.

"Only too frequently, when we wish to demonstrate some particular clinical case to our students with a view to illustrating certain points of interest therein, a proper subject cannot be found, and words most feebly take the place of facts. Now, if good records of clinical cases in one's private or hospital experience could be taken and kept, then living examples would always be in readiness and could be presented in the various stages of the case."

Dr. Bleyer incidently remarked that he thought these phonographic patients would soon be placed in one or more of the medical colleges. He himself has a large collection of cylinders illustrating the different forms of lung and throat diseases, including stammering, coughing, hoarseness and nasal troubles.

PHONOGRAPHS IN ELOCUTION.

"You must remember," said Dr. Bleyer, "that the many uses to which this valuable machine may be put are just beginning to be realized. A practical application of the phonograph has been suggested by Dr. Richard S. Rosenthal, which is already productive of very satisfactory results. That is the instruction in the pronunciation of foreign languages. I am told that a number of Dr. Rosenthal's pupils are already engaged in this, the ideal way of mastering foreign languages.

The pupils are supplied with books and prepared cylinders to match. The method of study is to train the eye and the ear at the same time, and a pupil, with his lesson on the cylinder, can, by hearing it over and over again, master the pronunciation, while the eye follows the printed text, which makes him familiar with the spelling and appearance of the words.

"As an automatic teacher of elocution, this novel idea has been brought into actual execution, and is at the present time being practiced by a number of actors and actresses. The example was set by Clara Morris, who obtained a phonograph, and used it to ascertain exactly how her speech sounded. She had become convinced that no speaker could catch the tones of his or her own voice exactly as others did.

"It occurred to her that by speaking into a phonograph she could receive in return a correct idea of her vocal expression. Her plan succeeded admirably. She recited doubtful portions of her roles into the machine, and had it repeat them again and again for her criticism. The story of Miss Morris' experiment leaked out, and now there can be counted at least a dozen players who, in studying their parts, are calling this machine to assist them in their efforts toward correct vocalization."—New York Sun.

The Point of View.

Average Woman—What? Not going to church today?

Average Man—What the use? Our new preacher is so near sighted he can't tell whether we're there or not.—

A FAMOUS CAFE.

What Delmonico's Is to New York Tortoni's Is to the Gay People of Paris.

Let us come at once to one of our oldest and most celebrated cafes—the Cafe Tortoni.

Tortoni! The name does not suggest much to you, but to us Parisians it is full of reminiscences. I have said that this establishment is one of the oldest in Paris. It was founded in 1798 by two Italians, Valloni and Tortoni. It soon became fashionable; gentlemen of the long robe and functionaries frequented it. Among the habitues was a lawyer named Spolor, whose skill at billiards was surprising.

Prince Talleyrand had such pleasure in seeing Spolor play, he had such confidence in his game, that he invited him one day to his house and presented him to one of his friends, the general receiver for the department of the Vosges, also a great billiard player and very proud of his talent. A bet was made; a solemn match was engaged between Spolor and the receiver, who lost in a few hours 40,000 francs. You see that it is sometimes useful to know how to play billiards.

One of the most curious types of the Cafe Tortoni was Prevost, one of the waiters, whose spine was as supple as his conscience, and who never approached you unless bowed to the ground, and asking in his softest tones:

"Pardon me! A thousand pardons! Is monsieur good enough to desire anything?"

It was exquisite. What was no less so—to him—was that in giving change he kept the best part of it for himself. If detected by chance he had but to repeat:

"Pardon me! pardon me! a thousand pardons!"

Nowadays the Cafe Tortoni is no longer haunted by diplomats like Talleyrand, but by journalists and men of letters. Toward 6 o'clock are found now and then gathered around its tables a few men of wit—Albert Wolff, Emile Blavet, Henry Fouquier and finally Aurelien Scholl, the most brilliant talker of Paris.—Francisque Sarcey in Scribner's.

A Telegraphist's Freak.

In connection with the opening of the London and Paris telephone a good story is told of the early days of telegraphing, when telephones were not yet thought of, and when conversation had to be carried on, metaphorically speaking, with the help of the Morse instrument. At the time referred to there were two competing companies working with the Continent. One was the Submarine, with its office in Threadneedle street; the other the Electric and International, with its offices in Telegraph street, not many yards separating them. One worked to France, the other to Holland. Both used the Morse printing form of apparatus. The competition did not prevent the respective staffs from meeting in a fraternal way, and on the occasion in question it became evident that two of them had been hobnobbing just before each took up his duty at the different offices at 11 p. m.

At about ten minutes past 11 the telegraphist who was in charge of the relay at Amsterdam was asked by Telegraph street to join him up to Brussels. This was done, and Brussels was requested to switch him on to Calais, and Calais was desired to join through to London. The line thus formed was from London to Orfordness, on the Norfolk coast; across the North sea to Scheveningen, on the Dutch coast; through Holland, through Belgium, through France, across the English channel and back by Dover to London. And all this trouble was taken by the Telegraph street man to ask his "chum" in Threadneedle street "if he had picked up his pipe when leaving the pub?"—London Tit-Bits.

He Kept the Key.

The late Dr. Wightman, of Kirkmahoe, one night sitting later than usual sunk in the profundities of a great folio tone, imagined he heard a sound in the kitchen inconsistent with the quietude and security of a manse, so, taking his candle, he proceeded to investigate the cause. His foot being heard in the lobby, the housekeeper began with all earnestness to cover the fire, as if preparing for bed.

"Ye're late up to-night, Mary."

"I'm just rakin' the fire, sir, and gaun to bed."

"That's right, Mary; I like timeous hours."

On his way back to the study he passed the coal closet, and, turning the key, he took it with him. Next morning at an early hour there was a rap at his bedroom door and a request for the key to light the fire.

"Ye're too soon up, Mary; go back to your bed yet."

Half an hour later there was another knock, and a similar request in order to prepare the breakfast.

"I don't want breakfast so soon, Mary, go back to your bed."

Another half hour and another knock, with an entreaty for the key as it was washing day. This was enough. He rose and handed out the key, saying:

"Go and let the man out."

Mary's sweetheart had, as the doctor shrewdly suspected, been imprisoned all night in the coal closet, where, Pyramis and Thisbe like, they had breathed their love to each other through the keyhole.—Irish Times.

No Fireproof Buildings.

There is hardly a new hotel or business building in New York but that is advertised as fireproof, and yet a leading architect told me the other day that such a thing could not exist.

"They may be fireproof to all intents and purposes," said he, "but if inflammable material be in them and it get afire the iron girders and beams will so expand that they will let the floor above down. When one floor falls in an iron beamed building they all go, and then the side walls fall. The ruin is usually more complete than it is in an ordinary building. We do not build those iron fireproof fronts any more, because in case of a fire they fall forward and demolish the building across the street."—New York Herald.

UNITED IN DEATH.

Pitiful Tale of an Emigrant Family That Perished in the Snow.

HEROIC EFFORTS OF A MOTHER.

The Terrible Blizzard of 1881 That Had for Some of its Helpless Victims a Whole Family.

"That's Dead Man's cove right before your eyes," said the old man as he pointed to a recess of half an acre in extent in the southern face of the Little Rocky mountains. "That's Dead Man's cove, and you kin see the iron work of the wagon lyin about when ye git closer. When I first looked in here thar was five human bodies lying dead in that wagon. Me an my pard we dug a big grave and buried 'em all together back agin that cliff, thar whar the rocks is. We piled the rocks that way so the wolves couldn't git at the dead."

"But there is no headboard — no names," I protested as I rode closer to the spot pointed out.

"Couldn't be no names, 'cause we couldn't find any," he replied, "and them rocks is a gravestun as will last forever. We'll git off and sit down fur a smoke, and I'll gin ye the full particklers. I've passed here a hundred times in the last three years, and it allus gives me the heartache. Poor husband—poor wife—poor children!

"It was this way," he continued after his pipe was alight. "Me and pard had our shanty down the valley about a mile. Plenty of emigrants in the'r kivered wagons used to come by this trail and turn south into Wyomin, or keep west into Idaho. They'd come five or six families at a time, and they'd come singly. Some of 'em would take sich chances of Injuns, sickness, landslides, starvashun and death as would make your ha'r stand on end to think of. No man kin begin to guess how many graves thar be of men, women and children between the Dakota line and the west branch of the Missouri river. I've counted a hundred in a day's ride.

"Waal, one December mornin me and pard woke up to feel that thar was a blizzard makin ready to bust on us. It had been coolish but pleasant up to that time. We could tell by the feel of things what was comin, and began to git ready fur it. It was jest arter noon when a woman walked into our shanty. She was an emigrant. Right here in this cove she had left her husband and four children to try and find some help. He had bin sick fur three weeks and was little better than a dead man, and she had bin drivin the team an takin keer of things gener'ly. She orter to hev turned back long before, but some fool of a doctor had told the man he'd get well if they kept on.

"They had got separated from the party they started with, and had made the last hundred miles alone. They war out o' grub, hadn't a match left to build a fire, and the woman knowed a change fur the wuss was blowin up. She was a frail, leetle woman, and she had gone through with nuff to down a man, but she hadn't lost all her pluck yit. As soon as she told us the story we got ready to go back with her an bring in the outfit. We made a start, but we never got thar."

"The blizzard prevented, eh?"

"She did. She came swoopin down all of a sudden, like some great bird droppin from the sky. A fine snow begun to fall, the wind started right in to blow a livin gale, and I believe the thermometer went from 45 degs. above to 10 degs. below inside of half an hour. We hadn't any with us, but the change was sudden an amazin. You couldn't face that gale to save your life. It jest stopped us and turned us around before we had got fifteen rods from the house. As to the cold, it jest paralyzed you. We had to go back, and arter takin a big drink o' whisky all around and puttin on more clothes we tried it agin.

"Me and Sam was as tough as b'ars them days and could hev laid down in a pond of water and let it freeze up with us, but we couldn't buck agin that blizzard. When we made the second start we got about half way up here, the little woman leadin the way all the time. Then we had to stop. You couldn't see three foot from your nose, and all of us was freezin to death by inches."

"And you went back?"

"We did. The woman was determined to push on, and we jest had to pick her up and carry her back. It was only by the Lord's hand pintin the way that we ever reached our cabin agin. We had our ears, noses and fingers friz, and an hour arter we got back water friz solid in our cabin within five foot of a roarin fire. The woman prayed to God and appealed to us, but we knowed it was no use. That was the blizzard of 1881, and I've heard men say it was 42 degs. below zero in this valley that night.

"And went to her death?"

"Jest as sartin as if she had jumped off that cliff. The blizzard shet us in fur three days. When we got out we found her within twenty rods of the cabin. She had friz to death goin that fur. Of course we knowed how it would be up here. The horses had been onhitched and turned out. They lay over by that tree. The folks in the wagon had crowded together and kivered up with all the blankets, but all war stun dead and as hard as rocks. They never saw that fust night come down.

"Me and pard overhauled the wagon, but we couldn't find anythin givin the name of the family, and so, like hundreds of others out in this kentry of mountain and valley, Injun and wolf, we kivered 'em in to sleep till the Lord gits ready to call 'em fur judgment. Seems awful that a hull fam'ly should be wiped out that way, but they ar' sleepin thar together, and I guess the Lord'll know the spot even if thar is no gravestun to mark it."

In making sauces that are thickened with flour mix the flour and sugar thoroughly before adding the boiling water, to prevent lumping.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Inv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, MAY 12 1893

Poor old Pennoyer! What a hard time he has keeping himself in the public eye. He has the misfortune to be Governor of Oregon, which is the one position that stands between him and his dearest wish of being trick mule in a country circus. For the place he is adequately fitted by natural talents and education, and long practice with gubernatorial opportunities has made him a dangerous rival of any four-footed ass in the profession. Pennoyer cannot refrain from his foolishness any more than a monkey can from making faces. He was born with wheels under his hat and they have been whirring ever since. It is quite probable that he has no desire to appear the fool that he is. He may, indeed try to hide the fact that he should have a guardian, but so far he has failed. He is a plain cad, extraordinarily impertinent, even for an Oregonian. He has all the ignorance of a loon with the presumption of a parrot. In answer to a business dispatch from the Secretary of State, Pennoyer made his reply, which was as follows, public: "I will attend to my business; let the President attend to his." At first we believed that was plain whisky, but a second reading convinced us it was something else. In drawing attention to Pennoyer's resemblance to mule we, of course, apologise to the latter.—S. F. Post.

Some of our contemporaries are borrowing sorrow over the trouble the Chinese will give when the Supreme Court has decided they must be deported. The "Chronicle" intimates they will offer armed resistance to the efforts to send them home. Our guess is that they will do nothing of the kind, and we are quite confident that if they did, we would return the gentle Celestial to China as we have in the past, in a box. The United States is big enough to carry out just laws; and if the anti-Chinese legislation is sustained there will be a large number of vacancies in the laundries and kitchens of San Francisco a month after the decision is rendered.

No doubt the Secretary of the Treasury has been importuned to do something to avoid a financial crisis on account of the stock panic in Wall street. Mr. Carlisle very properly says that the Treasury has nothing to do with stock gambling, and it will take no interest in its consequences. This is the correct attitude. Had other administrations planted themselves upon the same solid ground great scandals would have been avoided, and stock gambling would have received a black eye from a quarter that would have been effective in holding it within decent bounds.

There is always one pill in the box that is a trifle harder to swallow than the rest. This time it is ex-Senator Edmundes' unqualified indorsement of Mr. Cleveland's policy that is worrying the Republican press. It is not so very long since the organs of that party were according to the ex-Senator from Vermont all the attributes of first-class statesmanship.

The statement of the Rev. G. W. Gray of the Ebenezer Baptist Church to the effect "that you can't cram religion down a Chinaman's throat with a gunboat" is probably true, but it is hardly material. Religion received gulletwise rarely does any good, and even if it would reform the heathen we need our gunboats more than we do Cristianized Chinese.

Sunday Services by Wire.

For many years past, it is said, a Sunday school has been held every Sunday on a certain railroad. The superintendent propounds questions to the class over the wire at different places, prayers are said and a chapter in the Bible read—all by wire.—New York Tribune.

There are many small villages in the alkali districts near the Asiatic frontier where the blind predominate. In this region the alkali dust constantly fills the air, and those not actually blind have their eyes more or less diseased.

Australia is a great tea drinking country, and most of the medium sorts of black find a ready sale in the southern land. Very little green tea, and that usually for mixing, is imported there.

In a single season it is said that 5,000,000 dead birds were used by the milliners of our seaboard cities. Over 42,000 of these came from Cape Cod alone.

When the refrigerator is placed near the cook stove in the kitchen, the cook complains that the ice melts so rapidly that her milk sours every day.

Octavius Augustus had a mortal dread of thunder, and whenever a storm came on he retired to an underground vault built for protection.

Phillips Brooks and the Children.

"Nothing seemed to give Dr. Brooks greater pleasure," said Mr. Thomas H. Howard, the superintendent of St. Andrew's parish, "than to have children near him. He liked to get off in one corner among a group of little children and play with and fondle them.

"I remember one instance," continued Mr. Howard, with a faint smile, "when Dr. Brooks disarranged our plans completely, and this disarrangement almost resulted in a small riot. He always attended our Christmas festivals and was always eager to take an active part in the distribution of the gifts and in the festivities in general. This occasion in particular was the year before he was consecrated, and the exercises were going along swimmingly. We had a regularly arranged programme, which provided for the giving out of the bags of candy at the very last.

"Well, Dr. Brooks was surrounded by a crowd of the smaller children, the babies of the mission, and about the time that the exercises were about half over these little ones began to clamor for candy, and the doctor couldn't stand their pleadings. He simply got up and commenced to unload the tree of its sweets, tossing the bags of candy to the little ones. No sooner had he begun to do this than the older children, perhaps a grade higher, raised a great rumpus, and there was nothing for us to do but to shut Dr. Brooks off, call a halt and restore order."—Boston Globe.

Loving Spirit In a Canary Bird.

A Philadelphia gentleman has a canary that he calls Noah. He allows Noah an occasional free flight in the garden. One day when time was up the bird declined to come into the house or be taken, but when approached flew off a space. He would then fly back, still declining to be taken in. At last his performance induced his owner to go out and follow. At once he burst into a joyful song and flew away, keeping a few feet ahead and looking back coaxingly.

"I followed, and he led me to a rosebush at the other end of the garden, but I could not see what brought him until, with a series of loud staccato notes, he flew down beside a heap of yellow leaves. Then I saw laying there what I took to be a dead canary, but when I stooped and took it in my hand it feebly stirred. It had evidently been out all night and was nearly frozen. Noah was delighted and would fly from me back to the invalid in his bed of coarse cotton 20 times a minute, trilling his prettiest songs and chirping, as if to say, 'How are you feeling now, brother?'" Here is this sweet spirit of helpful love of others without desire of gain, such as would honor any human character.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Are You Left Eyed or Right Eyed?

There are but few ambidexters, either in the matter of hands, feet or eyes. It may sound rather queer, but it is a fact nevertheless, that 95 out of every 100 human beings are right handed, left legged and left eyed.

Felix Hement, who knows more about eyes in a minute than half of the opticians and oculists of the country have been able to learn in a lifetime, remarked that it is an established fact that we all use one eye more than we do the other, which establishes as clear a case of "left and right eyedness" as though the same terms were used to denote a preference in the use of hands and feet.

If you want to decide as to whether your friends or relatives are right or left eyed, give them a small telescope or spyglass to look through or have them take "aim" with a gun. We all take great interest in ascertaining the color, size, shape and visual powers of our children's eyes, but how many of us stop to consider whether they are "right" or "left eyed?"—St. Louis Republic.

What Nature Does For Her Trees.

The wild forest trees bear a great abundance of foliage, and this shows that nature provides for her own in a most bountiful manner. The inferiority of the foliage of the mountain trees and those growing near lakes and rivers is due to the rich substances contained in decayed leaves and water forming a chemical action with the solar rays. Oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen, carbonic acid and the gaseous substances in nature are sufficient to complete the annual growth of forest trees of all classes.

Along the broad reaches of the northern and southern rivers this fact is clearly seen and well defined. The rich navigable lowland rivers, such as the Thames in England and the Loire in France, display the richest and most luxuriant trees.—Boston Transcript.

Seen In a Dream.

In the summer of 1855 Mrs. John Telyea, then living in Wisconsin, dreamed that her niece Mary, who was attending school at Waukesha, 16 miles distant, had met with a serious accident, the exact nature of which she could not recall when awake, but it so alarmed her that she told her husband the next morning that he must go immediately to Waukesha, as something terrible had happened to Mary. He tried to laugh her out of her fears, but when he found that she would go if he did not, he got into his buggy and started. He had gone but a short distance when he met a messenger from the school coming to tell him that late on the evening before Mary had fallen from a tree and broken her arm.—Arena.

Didn't Care to Be Presented.

The wife of a well known naval officer tells an amusing story of some of her experiences in Washington society. On one occasion when she was asked to receive at an army and navy german, a congressman entered with a lady leaning upon each arm. One of the floor committee at once approached him with the polite request that he give his name, in order that he might be presented to Mrs. Blank, who received the guests of the evening.

"No, thank you," was the nonchalant reply. "I don't care to be introduced. I have two ladies now to take care of, and that is about as much as I can manage."—Kate Field's Washington.

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS
AND
LEVI STRAUSS & CO'S
SPRING
BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

We have made arrangements with Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., publishers of "A Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," which will enable all our subscribers to obtain a copy of that valuable work free by sending their address (enclosing a two-cent stamp for mailing same) to DR. B. J. KENDALL CO., ENOSBURGH FALLS, VT. This book is now recognized as standard authority upon all diseases of the horse, as its phenomenal sale attests, over four million copies having been sold in the past ten years, a sale never before reached by any publication in the same period of time. We feel confident that our patrons will appreciate the work, and be glad to avail themselves of this opportunity of obtaining a valuable book.

It is necessary that you mention this paper in sending for the "Treatise." This offer will remain open for only a short time.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

THOMAS C. BOLAND, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM CRAPO, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Crapo, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the Complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36/100 Dollars [$337.36], on a balance of account for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by the Plaintiff to you in the County of Inyo, State of California, at your special instance and request; also for costs of suit, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36/100 Dollars, together with costs of suit.

Witness my hand and the Seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 4th day of May, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

OWENS RIVER AND BIG PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Big Pine, Cal. Location of works, Big Pine, Cal.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT AT a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 18th day of April, 1893, an assessment (No. 7) of Twenty (20) cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary at the office of the Company, in the town of Big Pine, Inyo county, Cala.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on SATURDAY, the 27th day of May, 1893, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction and unless payment is made before will be sold on SATURDAY, June 17th, 1893, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

By order of the Board of Directors.
R. W. THOMAS, Secretary.
Office—Big Pine, Inyo county, Cala.

ANNUAL MEETING

STEVENS DITCH COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Independence, California. Location of works, Inyo county, California.

The Regular Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Stevens Ditch Company will be held at the office of the Company, at the town of Independence, Inyo county, California, on Saturday, the Twenty-seventh day of May, 1893, at the hour of Two o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing a Board of Directors to serve for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

By order of the Board of Directors.
P. H. MACK, Secretary.
Office—Independence, California.

DO YOU SUFFER?

Rheumatism, Fits [epilepsy] Scrofula, Liquor, Morphine or Tobacco Habit, quickly and permanently cured by the wonderful BI-CHLORIDE of GOLD treatment.

RHEUMATISM (The uric acid entirely expelled from the blood) Cured in from five to thirty days.

FITS (Epilepsy) Permanently cured; no return of the disease from two to four weeks treatment.

SCROFULA And the worst cases of inherited blood taint quickly and permanently cured.

DRUNKENESS Opium, Morphine or Tobacco habit cured 10 to 20 days.

No restriction or publicity. Patients cured at their own homes. 40,000 sufferers cured in 8 years.

Full particulars without charge, address

DR. WOOD BI-CHLORIDE OF GOLD INSTITUTE,
215 Powell St., San Francisco Cal

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and
Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES,
District Attorney,
—AND—
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
NOTARY PUBLIC.
Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR
AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.
Office and residence at the Johnson place, Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)

DR. J. S. MCQUEEN,
DENTIST.
Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery.
All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.
Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore.

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.

FRANK FITZGERALD.
Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURCKHARDT.

BOOTS AND SHOES
MADE AND REPAIRED.
THE BEST MATERIAL.
FIRST-CLASS WORK
Repairs done Promptly.
Prices Reasonable.
36-tf A. J. DAVIS, Independence,

RESTORE YOUR EYESIGHT
Cataracts, scars or films can be absorbed and paralyzed nerves restored without the knife or risk. Diseased eyes or lids can be cured by our home treatment. "We prove it." Hundreds convinced. Our illustrated pamphlet, "Home Treatment for Eye Ills," free. Don't miss it. Every body wants it. Address, THE LAS EYE, Glens Falls, N.Y.

OFFICIAL.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 47.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY OF INYO, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. Section 7 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et seq., is hereby amended to read as follows:

Sec. 7. Every person who at a fixed place of business sells any malt or fermented liquors, wines or distilled liquors, whether on commission or otherwise (except vinticultural productions when sold by the producers thereof) must obtain from the Tax-Collector, and for each branch of said business, a license, and pay quarterly therefor the sum of Forty Dollars.

SECTION 2. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after Twenty-five (25) days from its passage.

SECTION 3. Section 9 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et s. q. is hereby repealed.

SECTION 4. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same in the "Inyo Independent," a newspaper published in said Inyo County, at least two (2) weeks, said publication to be made said time, and before the expiration of said Twenty-five (25) days.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.
ATTEST:
{SEAL} D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 47 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 5th day of April, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Supervisors A. C. Freeman, W. H. Uhlmeyer, John Wilson, Frank Fitzgerald, R. Love.
Noes: None. R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.
ATTEST:
{SEAL} D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

[Endorsed] Ordinance No. 47. Filed and Recorded this 5th day of April, A. D. 1893, in Book B of Ordinances at page 100.
D. J. HESSION,
Clerk Board of Supervisors.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 48.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY OF INYO, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. It shall be lawful for any person to hunt, pursue, take, and kill grouse, or sage hen, within the County of Inyo, at any time between the first day of August and the first day of January, in each year.

SECTION 2. Every person who, in the County of Inyo, between the last day of December and the first day of August, in each year, hunts, pursues, takes, kills, or destroys any grouse, or sage hen, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the County Jail, not exceeding sixty days, or by a fine of not more than Sixty Dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after Twenty-five days from its passage.

SECTION 4. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same, in the Inyo Independent, a newspaper published in the said County of Inyo at least two weeks, said publication to be made said time and before the expiration of said twenty five days.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.
Attest:
{SEAL.} D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 48 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board on April 7th, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Frank Fitzgerald, W. H. Uhlmeyer, R. Love, John Wilson, A. C. Freeman.
Noes: None. R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.
Attest:
{SEAL.} D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

Propagation License.

Notice to Breeders.

THE ATTENTION OF STOCKRAISERS and Breeders in Inyo County is called to the following provisions of Ordinance No. 41, Section 12:

"Every person who keeps a Stallion, Jack or Bull and permits the same to be used for the purpose of propagation, for hire, must annually obtain a license therefor from the Tax-Collector."

Parties failing to procure such Propagation License are guilty of a misdemeanor. Licenses are now due.

J. S. GORMAN, Tax-Collector.
Independence, April 6, 1893.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STAR, LAKE CO., OREGON, Feb. 8th, 1892.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,

Dear Sirs:—I have used your KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE for the last twelve years never being without it but a few weeks in that time and I have made several wonderful cures with it. I cured a Curb of long standing. Then I had a four year old colt badly Sweenied; tried every thing without any benefit, so I tried your lintment, and in a few weeks he was well and his shoulder filled up all right, and the other, a four year old that had a Thoroughpin and Blood Spavin on the same joint, and to-day no one can tell which leg it was on. These statements can be proven, if necessary; the four year olds are now seven and can be seen any day at Cottage Grove, Or.

S. Z. PAXTON.

—Price $1.00 per bottle.—

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL
TYPE WRITER.

$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.

It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer without cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.

Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.

For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address

ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.
Winter Apples..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes.....12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches.....10 cts
Dried Apples.....10 cts
Other varietieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.
THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines,
Liquors,
& Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSFIELD, opposite the Southern Hotel.
Prompt and careful treatment given and the least possible pain inflicted. Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATES AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce Street, New York

P. W. FORBES. P. H. MACK.
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY, the 8th day of March, 1892, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South-east corner of the south-east quarter of North east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98-100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of the Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, containing 18 and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 2 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lots Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead or lode, situate, lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispuecada Lode."

That certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the South-west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12), and the South-west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South sixty-eight and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence North-westerly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty-four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North-East quarter and the South-east quarter, and the North-west quarter and the North east quarter of the North-west quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-four and eleven twentieth (44 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres: Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney, at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and alls bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER.
Executor of the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah deceased.
Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1892.

J. W. Murphy.
BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence.

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS Extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumers should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 9, 1893.
n476tf

$6000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, Troy, N.Y., at work for us. Reader, you may not make as much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from $5 to $10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages, in any part of America, you can commence at home, giving all your time, or spare moments only to the work. All is new. Great pay MADE for every worker. We start you, furnishing everything. EASILY, SPEEDILY learned. PARTICULARS FREE. Address at once, GEORGE STINSON & CO., PORTLAND, MAINE.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, MAY 12 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman .....A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman.....P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge.....GEO. M. GILL.
Sheriff.....JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk.....DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney.....P. W. FORBES.
Assessor.....P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer.....W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner.....H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed).....JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools.....J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist.....ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist.....A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist.....W. H. UHLMEYER.
4th Supervisor Dist.....JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist..FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Rev. H. J. Wilsor will preach on Sunday at Lone Pine 11 a. m.; Georges Creek, 2.30 p. m.; Independence 7 p. m.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

TUESDAY, May 9th.

In the matter of J. V. Skinner, Insolvent—At meeting of creditors J. W. Murphy chosen assignee, with bonds fixed at $500; approved by the Court.

WEDNESDAY, May 10th.

Goodale vs. Hines.—Filed complaint. Issued summons. Issued writ of injunction.

THURSDAY, May 11th.

Goodale vs. Hines.—Served summons and injunction.

Estate of Henry J. Evans, deceased.—Entered order for compension of Attorney for minor heirs.

DIED.

DIAZ.—At Lone Pine, May 10th, Mark, son of Mr. and Mrs A. Diaz, aged 3 years.

Geo. H. Palmer of Lone Pine is in town.

El. Rose has got back from his trip to the Bay.

Sam Levy came up from Keeler yesterday morning.

Wm. McDonald was down from the Pine early in the week.

Twenty bands of sheep were in sight from town yesterday.

C. Mulholland left Independence for Los Angeles last Sunday.

Mrs. May Conklin is improving in health steadily. Her recovery is now assured.

Charley Anthony came in from Darwin yesterday. He expects to start back to-morrow.

A special train went to Keeler and return last week. H. M. Yerrington and R. J. Laws were on board.

Carlyle W. Harris, the New York wife-murderer, was electrocuted at Sing Sing prison on the 8th.

J. Shoemaker was in town last Monday. He is getting ready to commence logging for the Big Pine Sawmill.

Reno has more fires to the acre than any other town on the Coast. Another big blaze occurred there last Monday.

John McBride has sold his Joe Hooker stallion, Bronco, to H. D. Gerkens of San Francisco. The reported price was $3,000.

Mrs. M. E. Curtis will do fashionable dress-making at the residence of Mrs. L. L. Woodin M. D. Perfect fit. McDowell system.

T. J. Goodale has begun suit in the Superior Court to restrain James Hines from taking water from a certain creek at Blackrock.

D. Holland is now sole owner of the trotting stallion, Judge Kyle. The horse will make the season at the Blackrock ranch of A. L. Conklin.

Commencement exercises at the Academy at Bishop begin this evening. Dr. Crooks, principal of the University of the Pacific, will preach on Sunday.

Sheep License Collector, Web. H. Walker, came up from Olancha yesterday. It is a little difficult to find Web. behind his badge, but he is there just the same.

W. Walker and Billy Grant were in town at the end of last week. The former had a very sore throat and fearing diphtheria he came up to consult a physician.

Charley Summers is in town with a vaquero crew. He brought up a band of cattle from Cottonwood and will gather in more at Georges Creek. The outfit will then move on to Long Valley.

The Church fair held at Lone Pine during the week for the purpose of raising funds for building a Catholic Church at that place was quite successful, over three hundred dollars being raised.

A Sheepman came in on yesterday's stage on his way to the County Hospital. He had been accidentally shot in the arm at Little Lake, making a painful though not dangerous wound.

A.O. Collins passed through town early in the week with a band of horses which he is taking to market. The animals are all heavy draft, are in good condition and should meet with ready sale.

Good News!!

A Broad Gauge Road

To Be Built From Mojave To Independence. The Contract Already Let And The Survey About Completed.

The following telegram was received this morning:

LOS ANGELES, May 12.—Yesterday contract let for standard gauge road to Independence. C. MULHOLLAND.

Another Railway.

A line of railroad to the Owens valley and to the wonderful country in Inyo county in and about Owens Lake now seems to be not only a possibility but an immediate probability. It is not known just at present who is behind the proposed new road, but active steps looking to an early construction have already been taken.

A survey has been made from Mojave, in this county, to Independence, Inyo county, 156 miles. By constructing a road to Mojave, if it be an independent line, two transcontinental roads are tapped, for Mojave is the junction point of the Atlantic and Pacific and of the Southern Pacific. This would be an important consideration in the building of the line to Owens Valley.

Henry Ryan, ex-surveyor of San Diego county, arrived in the city yesterday from Mojave. Mr. Ryan is the gentleman who has had charge of the work of surveying the line from Independence to Mojave. He states that the entire distance of 156 miles is really an easy country through which to construct a railroad. The grades are light and very little heavy work will be required.

Mr. Ryan was reluctant to converse about matters in connection with the survey and absolutely declined to state by whom he was employed. He will return to Mojave in a few days and run another survey over 90 miles of the156 miles between Independence and Mojave in an endeavor to find a better route.

Some further developments in regard to the Owens Lake may be expected in a few days. It looks as though the end of the year would see a line in the direction of Independedce in course of construction.—Herald.

Of Interest To Farmers.

BISHOP, May 10 1893.

ED. INDEPENDENT: Dear Sir:—I have been appointed a member of the Advisory Council of the World's Congress Auxiliary on farm culture and cereal industry, and a a member of the World's Agricultural Congress, to convene in the city of Chicago in October next. The Chief of the Agricultural Department of the World's Columbian Exposition has set aside a room for the agricultural headquarters in the live stock pavilion, just south of the Agricultural Building. This room will be open every day during the Fair and talks will be made in these varied interests in this hall every day from the first day of June until October. I am authorized to introduce by letter all the farmers of my county who may attend the Exposition to the Hon. Samuel W. Allerton, Chairman, who will introduce them and cause them to be introduced to those who may meet there from all parts of the world, for the purpose of advancing the varied interests of agriculture in all its bearings. These letters of introduction will admit free the holders to these meetings while they remain at the exposition. I am requested to make the above facts known through our local papers. You will please give notice in your paper that application for letters of introduction should be made at the earliest possible date. I shall take pleasure in forwarding letters of introduction to all who make application.

Yours respectfully,

J. L. BOURLAND.

Special Excursion Rates.

INDEPENDENCE STATION, May 8, 1893.

ED. INDEPENDENT: Dear Sir:—The Carson and Colorado railroad will issue special tickets from May 10th to October 10th, 1893, Independence to Reno and return, limited to November 30th, 1893, at rate of $22.60, on account of World's Fair at Chicago. J. F. BEALE, Agt.

Alex. Kilpatrick and family came in from Sweetwater last week and proceeded to Laws Station, Inyo County, in a private conveyance. Mr. Kilpatrick is putting up a flour mill at that place, and all his friends hope he will make a big success.—Hawthorne Bulletin.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Scott of Lone Pine left on Thursday for an extended holiday. They will visit their friends in Canada, taking in the Fair en route.

Mrs. P. Fitzgerald, summoned by telegraph, left for San Francisco on Tuesday morning's train.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE

LONE PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Independence, California. Location of Canal, near Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

Notice is hereby given that at a regular meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 29th day of April 1893 an assessment (No. 4) of Twenty-five(25) cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the Company, in the town of Independence, Inyo county, California

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on Saturday, the 3rd day of June, 1893, will be delinquent, and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before will be sold on Saturday, June 24, 1893 to pay the delinquent assessment together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

By order of the Board of Directors.

DAVID HOLLAND,
Secretary.

Office—Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

MONEY Beginners earn from $25 to $50 per week, and more after a little experience. We can furnish you employment, and will teach you free. You work in your own locality, wherever you live. Both sexes all ages. We start you. No risk. Can work in spare time, or all the time. Full information FREE. TRUE & CO., AUGUSTA, MAINE.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ANTARE.

1st premium Trotting Stallion, 1891-2. Bred by S. L. Akens, Newman, Cal. Foaled April 6, 1887. Stands 15¾ hands high and weighs 1250 pounds. Color, mahogany bay with black points; no white. By ANTEROS, 6020.

1st dam, Sallie W., by Iowa Chief, 525.
2d dam by Tornado, 502.

ANTEROS, 6020.

By Electioneer, 125, the greatest sire of trotters living or dead; 125 of his get having records from 2:08¼ to 2:30. Among this number are Palo Alto, 2:08¼; Sunol, 2:08¼; Arion, 2:10¾ at 2 years; Nutline, 2:31¼ and Bell Bird, 2:26 as yearlings.

1st dam of Anteros, the great Columbine, dam of Anteeo, 2:16¾
Antevolo, 2:13½
Antonia
Conrad
Coral, 2:18¾
Speedwell

Anteros is the sire of—
Doc Chreslie, 4 years, 2:21
Nellie F., 4 years, 2:25
Anterose, 4 years, 2:25
Major Ross, 2 years, 2:30
Wilkeross, 2 years, 2:34½
Entiurio, 3 years, 2:33¼
Montgomery, 3 years, 2:37½
Antero, 3 years, 2:38¼
Bessie B. 3 years, 2:47
Anteorian, 3 years, 2:57
Antare, 4 years, 2:57

Antare is a "horse attached to a pedigree," possessing that quality so highly prized among horsemen, INDIVIDUAL MERIT, having the power to transmit both his color and form to his progeny. His record was made after trotting four well contested heats the day previous and is the fastest time ever made by any stallion ever owned in Inyo county over any track in the 18th District.

ANTARE was awarded the first premium over all competitors at the District Fairs of 1891-2. At the fair of 1893 we propose to exhibit an "Antare Family," of twenty five of his colts, and we challenge the owner of any stallion in the 18th District to exhibit one or more colts two-years-old or under that can compare with the colts sired by this horse.

TERMS FOR THE SEASON, $25 00.

Payable on or before August 1, 1893.

Mares from a distance pastured free of charge but no risks taken.

S. P. SMITH, Manager.

ORDER OF ADJUDICATION OF INSOLVENCY.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor.

J. V. Skinner, having filed in this Court his petition, schedule and inventory in Insolvency from which it appears that he is an insolvent Debtor, the said J. V. Skinner is hereby declared to be insolvent. The Sheriff of the County of Inyo is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account, and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an Assignee of his estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said Insolvent or to deliver any property belonging to such Insolvent, to him or to any person, firm, corporation or association for his use; and the said Debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property, until the further order of this Court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered, that all the creditors of said Lebtor be and appear before the Hon. Geo. M. Gill, Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, in open Court, at the Court Room of said Court, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, on the 9th day of May, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, to prove their debts and choose one or more Assignees of the estate of said Debtor.

It is further ordered, that the order be published in the Inyo Independent, a newspaper of general circulation, published in the County of Inyo, as often as the said paper is published before the day set for the meeting of Creditors. And it is further ordered, that in the meantime, all proceedings against the said insolvent be stayed. GEO. M. GILL,

Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated April 3d, 1893.

MACK & LAIRD, Attorneys for Petitioner.

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing, Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc.

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

STEEL BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED WARE. DRESS GOODS.

WE WANT YOU

to act as our agent. We furnish an expensive outfit and all you need free. It costs nothing to try the business. We will treat you well, and help you to earn ten times ordinary wages. Both sexes of all ages can live at home and work in spare time, or all the time. Any one any where can earn a great deal of money. Many have made Two Hundred Dollars a Month. No class of people in the world are making so much money without capital as those at work for us. Business pleasant, strictly honorable, and pays better than any other offered to agents. You have a clear field, with no competition. We equip you with everything, and supply printed directions for beginners which, if obeyed faithfully, will bring more money than will any other business. Improve your prospects! Why not? You can do so easily and surely at work for us. Reasonable industry only necessary for absolute success. Pamphlet circular giving every particular is sent free to all. Delay not in sending for it.

GEORGE STINSON & CO.,
Box No. 488, Portland, Me.

A True Old Saying!!

Goods Well Bought Are Half Sold.

Our buyers watch the markets carefully and purchas for cash, thus enabling us to quote telling prices that, compared with value, are small.

85 cents buys one of those gents white unlaundried shirts with a short bosom which does not rumple up or muss made of fine linen. Wamsutta muslin double back and patent continuous strip at neck and sleeve openings.

Windsor ties. As warm weather is at hand twill bring a demand for them which we are ready to supply having 100 dozen for you to choose from at 25 cents each. Come in plain colors, stripes checks and plaids.

GENTS OVERSHIRTS.

In this line we are showing the largest lines and strongest values of any retail line on the Coast. Bought direct from the manufacturers, thus saving you the middle-man's profit.

The line that bids fair to be most popular is the Stanley made with starched collars and cuffs, the bodies soft finished insuring comfort in summer. They come in calicoes, percales, cheviots and madras cloths, light and dark shades, stripes or figures. Prices $1 to $2 each.

Black satine overshirts, solid color or in fine hair line stripes from 50cts. to $1.25 each.

Domet flannel overshirts cut full size and well made. Price 25 cents each.

If you have not received one of our illustrated catalogues let us know. Copies sent free on application.

GENTS SHOES.

$3 buys the best calf shoe to be found anywhere for the money. Comfort and style combined. The bottoms are of the best white Oak tanned stock fastened with standard screws. Come in light, medium or heavy soles, suited to dress or every day wear. Sizes 5 to 11 and none genuine unless stamped "Hale's $3 Shoe on the bottom.

Hale's "School Boy's Pride."

These are one of our very best values in Boy's wear. Made on same shaped last as higher grades and thus ensuring a perfect fit. Come in light or heavy soles. Youths sizes 11 to 2. Price $2. Boys sizes 2½ to 5½. Price $2 50.

Ladies, Misses, and childrens shoes in all grades styles and prices

This spring sees many new novelties in wash dress fabrics. Some look like wool goods. Others, like silks, come in all sorts of effects and colorings. Printed Glorioos, printed on pretty grounds, colors cream, tan light and medium blue, 29 in. wide. Price 12½ cts. per yd.

Black brocades. A fine quality of goods with small satin stripes and patterns of white pinhead dots and small figures. 32 in. wide, price 35 cts. per yd.

Cream Crepon Cloths. Something like crinkled seersucker. Very popular. Price 8½ cents per yd.

Samples of dress goods etc. sent free on application.

HALE BROS. & CO.

825, 827, 829, 831, 833, 835 K St., and 1026 Ninth street.

Sacramento, Calif.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS, WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neihboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finger Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the best quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packages to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,

0-m RENO, NEVADA.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday .....January 28th
" .....February 25th
" .....March 25th
" .....April 29th
" .....May 27th
" .....June 24th
" .....July 22d
" .....August 26th
" .....September 23d
" .....October 21st
" .....November 16th
" .....December 18th

THOS. C. BOLAND, W. M.
B. RHINE, Sec.

Freight! Freight!

BISHOP & MOJAVE

Through Freight Line.

George Meads,

PROPRIETOR.

Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:

J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.

Special rates given on car-load lots

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Agent for

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California: Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE - CAL.

New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates

Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in fact it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

Thos. Williams,
Proprietor.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

Customers supplied on all points Of the C. & C. Railroad.

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

F. W. BEDFORD.....LESSEE.

Horseshoeing .....$2.00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see
F. W. BEDFORD.

INDEPENDENCE MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROEPER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef, Mutton, Pork, Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every ort made to give satisfaction to patrons. j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies

PROVISIONS, &c., &c., &c.

A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

BELL'S Flouring Mills

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

Independence, Cal. A. N. BELL,

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, November 16,

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House.....	11:30 p. m.		5.50 p. m
Dayton	12:00 p.m.		5:10 p. m
Wabuska	2:05 p. m.		2:50 p. m
Hawthorne	5 50 p. m.		11:10 a. m
Luning	7:05 p. m.		9:55 a. m
Soda Springs.....	8:05 p. m.		9:15 a. m
Belleville.....	9:15 p. m.		7:55a. m
Candelaria.....	Ar. 10.00 p. m	Lv.	7:20 a. m
	No. 3.		No. 4.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Belleville.....	8 20 a. m.		5:25 p m.
Benton	11:50 a. m.		1:35 a.m.
Bishop Creek	2:00p. m.		11:00 a. m
Alvord.....	2.45 p. m.		10:00 a. m
Independence.....	4:20 p. m.		8:30 a. m
Lone Pine.....	5:10 p. m.		7:40 a. m
Keeler.....	Ar 8:55 p. m.	Lv.	7:00 a. m

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

At HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (36 miles); Bodie (3 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

At LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leavin Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville Grantsville and Belmont.

At CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stage for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D A BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - Cal.

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of

WINES,
LIQUORS,
& CIGARS

The most careful attention given to the the amusement and comfort of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-12 td

Inyo Stage Company.

REGULAR LINE

—FROM—

Mojave To Keeler.

FINE COACH FAST STOCK.

The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful

Redrock Canyon

And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.

Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m

Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.

W. K. MILLER, Propr.

27% Difference

The "Royal" the Strongest and Purest Baking Powder.

Whether any other baking powder is equal to "Royal," let the official reports decide. When the different powders were purchased on the open market and examined by Prof. Chandler, of the New-York Board of Health, the result showed that Royal Baking Powder contained twenty-seven per cent. greater strength than any other brand.

When compared in money value, this difference would be as follows:

If one pound of Royal Baking Powder sells for 50 cents,

One pound of no other powder is worth over 36 cents.

If another baking powder is forced upon you by the grocer in place of the Royal, see that you are charged the correspondingly lower price.

A REJOINDER.

Why should you deem my faith is gone,
Because my locks are turning gray,
In pixie, gnome and leprechawn,
And all Titania's glad array?
With me 'tis quite the other way.

For all around me, as I walk
Through verdant tokens of the spring,
I hear the tasseled larchers talk
Of gifts the elves have toiled to bring,
While nesting birds new love notes sing.

Estrays from Wonderland they come
Each year, despite what science tells;
From jeweled corniced cave and dome,
Where flower born sprites endure their spells,
And everlasting summer dwells.

By lake and woodland, sea and strand
All beauty of the year to be
Is forged for us in Fairyland,
And, fashioned where we cannot see,
For bird and beast, for flower and tree.

While oftentimes frost gnomes are fain,
When all the land is white with snow,
To picture on each window pane
Foreshadowings of what months will show
When with all odorous hues they glow.

And so I think that Life, not Death,
Is always potent, always true;
That, after we have stayed our breath,
Love will its own fair germs renew
And open Dreamland to full view!

—John Moran in Youth's Companion.

It's Just as Easy

To grow Choice Flowers as it is to grow common ones if you START RIGHT.

Either one of the following collections is a garden in itself, and your garden is not complete without them. They are all beautiful and fashionable flowers and the plants are all strong, healthy and pot-grown, and sent, postage free, for the price named.

THE TIMOTHY HOPKINS COLLECTION OF SWEET PEAS

Comprising 21 Distinct Varieties. A Large Packet of Seeds of each for $1.50, or a Packet of Seeds of the same varieties mixed for only 10 cents.

DIFFERENT VARIETIES

12 Roses $1.00
12 Carnations $1.00
12 Pelargoniums $1.00
12 Chrysanthemums $1.00

Flower or Vegetable SEEDS 25 Choice Varieties of Either (your own or our selection) FOR ONE DOLLAR.

SHERWOOD HALL NURSERY CO.

S. W. Cor. Sansome & Clay Sts., - - San Francisco, Cal.

"German Syrup"

Boschee's German Syrup is more successful in the treatment of Consumption than any other remedy prescribed. It has been tried under every variety of climate. In the bleak, bitter North, in damp New England, in the fickle Middle States, in the hot, moist South—everywhere. It has been in demand by every nationality. It has been employed in every stage of Consumption. In brief it has been used by millions and its the only true and reliable Consumption Remedy. 4

MERCURIAL

Mr. J. C. Jones, of Fulton, Ark., says of S.S.S. "About ten years ago I contracted a severe case of blood poison. Leading physicians prescribed medicine after medicine, which I took without any relief. I also tried mercurial and potash remedies, with unsuccessful results, but which brought on an attack of mercurial rheumatism that made my life one of agony. After suffering four years I gave up all remedies and commenced using S. S. S. After taking several bottles, I was entirely cured and able to resume work.

RHEUMATISM

S.S.S. is the greatest medicine for blood poisoning to-day on the market."

Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

DR. GUNN'S ONION SYRUP

FOR COUGHS, COLDS AND CROUP.

GRANDMOTHER'S ADVICE.

In raising a family of nine children, my only remedy for Coughs, Colds and Croup was onion syrup. It is just as effective to-day as it was forty years ago. Now my grandchildren take Dr. Gunn's Onion Syrup which is already prepared and more pleasant to the taste. Sold everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents. Take no substitute for it. There's nothing as good.

PISO'S CURE FOR

Consumptives and people who have weak lungs or Asthma, should use Piso's Cure for Consumption. It has cured thousands. It has not injured one. It is not bad to take. It is the best cough syrup. Sold everywhere. 25c.

CONSUMPTION.

A CURIOUS WEDDING PRESENT.

Did the Merchant Wish to Rebuke His Daughter, or Was It His Simplicity?

"There was a fine old gentleman in this city, who from the humblest beginnings made his way steadily up to commercial fame and immense wealth, all by the manufacture of soap," said a New Yorker the other day, "and with all his wealth and prosperity he never forgot how a poor man feels or lost any of his consideration for the rights of others. Pride never puffed him up nor made him ashamed of his business or his early history.

"He was proud of the purity and excellence of his soap, and the secret of his success over his rivals lay in the fact that he invented several processes for cheapening the manufacture of that article, and his great factory in this city was full of machinery of his own invention and manufacture. He made one ample fortune solely out of patenting the ideas of his fertile brain, and several others by selling the manufactures he was thus able to turn out.

"His wife was as intensely purse proud as he was simple, though her origin was as simple as his own, and her daughter took after her. This child married well, as they say; that is, a young swell about town proposed to her on account of the great wealth he knew she would inherit. When the engagement was settled the daughter and mother asked the old man what he was going to do in the way of setting the young people up in life.

"Here they ran up against an unexpected snag. The old boy would give nothing in the way of a dowry. He thought the bridegroom should support his wife unaided till her father's will gave her a share of his estate. The utmost he could be prevailed upon to do was to give his daughter a wedding present. What this would be he steadfastly refused to say just then. On the wedding day, however, his gift to the bride was the deed for a handsome house in a fashionable street, completely furnished in costly style from top to bottom.

"The bridal tour had all been arranged, so no stop was made by the happy pair to examine the new house. All through the honeymoon they talked of the pleasure they would have in going over the house, examining the pictures and plate and entertaining their friends in it. Great was the delight with which they entered their new home on their return. The carpets were velvet, the hangings of silk and lace, the furniture hand carved, the pictures old masters, the linen of the finest, and silverplate was everywhere, even in the kitchen.

"The bridegroom was delighted, but the bride's cheeks were crimson, and her eyes flashed a fire that tears could not quench. Everywhere she looked she was familiar objects that filled her with rage. Snatching a heavy silver salver from the table, she showed to her husband, engraved on it minutely but with elaborate detail, the representation of a bar of soap with her father's well known trade mark on it.

"This queer crest was everywhere about the house, worked into carved furniture, woven in the linen and hangings, and even painted on the carriage and stamped on the harness which were presented with the house. It was the old man's greatest pride, that trademark and what it stood for, but whether he had it put on his daughter's things out of sheer simplicity of heart or whether he intended it as a rebuke to her foolish pride I never found out."—New York Tribune.

The well known French engineer, M. Marcelhacy, has made some additional improvements in diving apparatus, and these have received the approving indorsement of the French authorities. In this arrangement, instead of the heavy electric hand lamp employed originally by divers, M. Marcelhacy's plan is to affix a light but powerful glow lamp on the top of the helmet, so that the diver's hands are both at all times free for work. The lamp is connected by a conductor with a battery, either on shore or in a vessel above, as the case may be.

An equally ingenious feature is a new method of connecting the helmet with the dress without any loose parts, this being effected by means of only one water tight joint instead of two, as in the ordinary dress. Another advantage presented in this device consists in the upper part or collar of the India rubber dress being gripped in between the lower rim of the helmet and the upper rim of the breastplate, and there held fast against any liability of accident or displacement by gripping pieces attached to the breastplate.—New York Sun.

At a recent Hindoo service in the Kalighat shrine at Calcutta 200,000 persons took part. Three hundred Brahmins conducted the services, chanting the Vedas. Ten thousand homas were performed for the protection of religion and thousands sang the hymns.

The largest and heaviest building stone ever quarried in England was taken from the Plankington quarry, near Norwich, in February, 1889. It was one piece, without crack or flaw, and weighed over thirty-five tons; it was 15 feet long, 6 feet high and 5 feet wide.

THE FATHER'S PRAYER.

Lord, though his sins were scarlet
And he went far astray
These long years have I prayed thee,
Show him the narrow way.

Though with the swine he feasted,
Oh, bring him back to thee;
My youngest born, oh save him,
Wherever he may be.

The only prayer now left me
Is, Lord, that thou wouldst turn
His heart to thee in sorrow,
Thus, Lord, that he might learn;

Though sin may not come nigh thee
The sinner may find grace;
If he repents him truly
Thou wilt not hide thy face.

For years, Lord, has he wander'd,
Let him arise and say,
"Against thee have I sinned,
No longer here I stay;

"I will return unto thee,
And at thy feet will pray,
That, like the prodigal of old,
I be not turned away."

It may be, Lord, that never
He will come home to me;
I dare not pray for that, Lord,
While he is far from thee.

Yet, Lord, all things are possible,
And mighty is thy grace;
It may be the day cometh
That I shall see his face.

The face of him who left me,
My youngest born, my pride;
There came a day I deem'd it
Far better he had died.

But now my prayer is only,
O Lord, thy will be done;
It may be in thy mercy
Thou wilt bring home my son.

—Academy.

JANET'S ROUGH LESSON.

Judge Seaton had arranged to take his daughters to Long Branch for the season, and he invited Janet to accompany them. Janet was a beautiful girl, graceful and well bred, and the Seatons fancied her; and the judge, being a remote relative of her mother, felt it a kind of duty to look after Janet a little and to do what he reasonably could for her.

"'Twill do the child good," he explained to his wife, "and no one knows what a pretty girl may accomplish in the run of a Long Branch season."

Mrs. Seaton elevated her delicate brows in well bred surprise, but she was too amiable and ladylike to raise any objection to her husband's will, so the matter was settled.

On the very afternoon before their departure, while Janet was packing her crisp muslins and her one silk, an old camphorwood box arrived. Captain Larrimer, of the brig Nautilus, brought it down. He had just got into port, and had spoken with the White Swan on his homeward voyage. Jack Hilliard was first mate on the Swan, and sent the old sweet scented chest as a present to Janet. They were not formally engaged, but they had been lovers ever since childhood, and Janet wore Jack's plain gold ring on her engagement finger. Jack never forgot her, and now he had sent the camphorwood box over the seas as a birthday present.

But Janet was too much excited, too full of her trip to Long Branch to notice it. She went on with her packing, and when Tom Seaton, the judge's handsome son, drove down to take her over to the Cedars, she hurried off, not even pausing to bestow a glance upon the queer old box. When Janet had fairly gone the old farmer shouldered it and carried it up to her chamber.

"Ah, my girl," he muttered, "ye'll be glad enough to come home to Jack's box by and by—this sudden fever 'll soon burn itself out."

Janet found her sojourn at Long Branch perfectly entrancing; the gay company, the balls, the music, and, more than all else, Tom Seaton's constant and flattering devotion, bewildered her brain and silenced both conscience and common sense.

From Long Branch the judge's party went to the mountains, and one hazy September afternoon Janet found herself all alone with Tom Seaton in one of the most romantic haunts of the Catskills.

"What in the world makes you wear this old fashioned ring, Janet? Is it a love gift or anything of the kind?"

"No," replied Janet, coloring with embarrassment.

"Then let me take it off and put something prettier in its place."

Janet was too weak, too fond of his flattery to resist, but a sharp pain pierced her heart as he drew the plain gold band from her finger and put a costly diamond in its place.

"Now, that's something like," he said. "You must wear it for my sake, Janie, and I'll keep this."

He dropped Jack's ring in his pocket, and Janet sat silent, a vivid remembrance crowding through her mind of the night Jack put it upon her finger. Poor Jack! Her eyes grew dim with tears as she thought of him, but she made no effort to remove the flashing diamond.

The season was over at last, and the travelers turned their faces homeward. It was the middle of October when Janet returned to the farm house. Farmer Gresham was busy gathering in his stores of grain, and his thrifty wife was up to the eyes in her preparations for winter.

After the first greetings were over Janet ran over to her own chamber, with its sweet and simple appointments. She sat down on the snowy couch and looked about her. Not an article had changed, and there in one corner stood the old camphorwood box.

A vague curiosity stirred the girl's heart as her eyes fell upon it. What had Jack sent her, she wondered, and she glanced down at her showy diamond with a sudden pang.

Presently she stole down to her father's chest and obtained a hammer and chisel, and then she set to work at the battered lid.

The box was lined with silk and emitted a quaint odor. Down in the very bottom she came to a marvel of loveliness—a snow white shawl, with long trailing fringes and a web of folded silk that gleamed like the bosom of a swan; and deeper still a little casket, and in it a lace veil that looked like a film of moonlight, and a string of great milky pearls as lustrous as eastern moons.

There was a strip of paper and scrawled on it were these words:

"My darling, when I come home I shall ask you to be my wife, and if you say 'yes' these may help for your wedding things."

Janet let the battered lid fall, and dropped her head upon it. Then she broke into a storm of passionate tears. Poor, good Jack! and she had forgotten him and given away his ring. Then she went on with her sobbing till the sound of a voice below interrupted her—Miss Tabitha Turner's voice raised to an excited pitch.

"Yes, it's so, an' no mistake! Jake Miller got here this mornin', and he was pilot o' the White Swan, ye know. He says she tuk fire in the mid-ocean, an every soul was lost 'cept the second mate, Joe Jarvin, an' him. Jake says that poor Jack worked like a hero, but he saw him go down wi' his own eyes. Poor Miss Hillard's like on crazy sence she's got the news."

The girl rose to her feet and crept down to the sitting room with a face like death.

"Tell me the truth," she gasped, "tell me, mother, what is it about Jack?"

"He's lost," put in Miss Tabitha; "his ship burnt at sea; the pilot got here this mornin'."

Janet crossed the room and sat down on the doorstep. The same familiar sights and sounds, the same old life, and Jack gone.

A dull, aching pain filled her heart, a pain that nothing in all the after years of her life could ever alleviate.

Miss Pamelia came out on her way home.

"Goodby, child," she said kindly, "don't take it to heart, but 'tis awful sudden, I know. How I pity poor Jack's mother! I'd go down and try and comfort her, but they have sent for me at Judge Seaton's. The Davenports got in from Europe this mornin', an' Tom Seaton's engaged to Lizzie Davenport—the weddin's to come off this winter, they say."

Janet heard the words like one in a dream. Tom Seaton to be married! and for his meaningless flattery she had been false to poor Jack!

Christmas day came, and, according to an established custom, Farmer Gresham and his wife went to dine with an old uncle; but Janet begged to remain at home.

The great logs moldered into glowing coals. Presently the old watch dog began to bay in his kennel and a footstep crunched the sleet upon the porch. She took the candle in her hand and opened the door.

A tall figure confronted her—a man dressed in sailor's garb and all bronzed and bearded and changed, but she knew him in an instant.

"Oh, Jack—Jack, are you alive? Has God sent you back to me?"

His strong, clasping arms, his kisses on her lips and face answered. She clung to him, sobbing like a child. He drew her into the room and up to the glowing fire.

"My beautiful darling," he cried, gazing down enraptured into her sweet face, "and you do love me, you are my own?"

"Your own forever more, please God," she answered solemnly.

Then, sitting beside him in the firelight, she heard the story of his miraculous escape from death, and in turn told the story of her own folly and unfaithfulness. But he only clasped her all the closer as he listened.

And when the spring came and the blue birds sang the contents of the camphorwood box were brought to light, and the sheeny silk was fashioned into a bridal robe, and with the lustrous pearls amid her gold brown braids, Janet looked the loveliest bride that ever the sun shone on.—Philadelphia Press.

A Man Raises His Hat.

When he bows to a lady or an elderly gentleman.

When he is with a lady who bows to any person, even if the other is a total stranger to him.

When he salutes a gentleman who is in the company of ladies.

When he is in the company of another gentleman who bows to a lady.

When he is with a lady and meets a gentleman whom he knows.

When he offers any civility to a lady who is a stranger to him.

When he parts with a lady, after speaking to her, or after walking or driving with her, etc.

In the elevator, where there are ladies, men may keep on their hats with perfect propriety. Nine out of every ten do, with good and sufficient reason. Elevators are draughty places and are public conveyances, though within doors. To raise the hat when a lady enters is becoming courtesy, but this is very different from standing with the hat off while an elevator mounts to the thirteenth floor. A hat when not on the head is in the way in an elevator. It is embarrassing to the occupants to feel that they may unwittingly spoil a good hat by an unwary turn that knocks it in or makes havoc with the nap.—Correct Thing.

Why He Didn't Have a Crutch.

Three little boys were flying kites in West Philadelphia, and another little boy limped along with them, looking up toward the sky at the bits of paper and wood which were dancing and sailing through the air. The other boys were hearty, healthy youngsters, with red cheeks and stout limbs, but the fourth one was under size, pale, emaciated and a cripple. Every step that he took seemed to wrench his system, but still he laughed and hobbled along in an ungainly manner, enjoying, as well as he could, the fun that the other boys were having. A gentleman passing by called to him, and he responded.

"How did you become crippled?" he asked.

"I had scarlet fever when I was a baby," the child replied, hanging his head as if he had been taught that his infirmity was a disgrace.

"Wouldn't it be easier for you to walk with a crutch?" the gentleman asked.

"Yes, sir," the boy replied, and a tear glistened in his eye, "it wouldn't hurt me near so much, sir, but mother, she says she couldn't stand seeing me walk around with a crutch, and so I don't do it."

And so the little chap limped away, never for the once thinking how cruel his mother was to make him suffer so just because she disliked the idea of having him use a crutch.—Philadelphia Press.

Feeding Furnaces Automatically.

The consumption of sawdust and shavings in sawmills effects a great economy in fuel. While sawdust is easily handled the larger chips from planers are not so readily disposed of, and are often so bulky that if manipulated in the ordinary way much labor is entailed. An ingenious mode of overcoming this difficulty has been introduced, consisting of a system of ventilation and boiler firing that removes all the chips and dust from the machines, transports them to a special building and thence carries a supply to the boilers. The whole system is entirely automatic, and is under simple and perfect control.

This Youthful McAllister Directs Entertainments and "Classifies Society."

Those who go to Saratoga in the summer, or to the Ponce de Leon at St. Augustine in the winter, have doubtless had the privilege of becoming acquainted with a young man who figures as the Ward McAllister of these two places.

DAVID H. NOON.

Technically described, he is the master of ceremonies at the hotels, but so valuable has he proved himself in this capacity that his social talents have been brought into requisition in the way of directing all the entertainments, both at Saratoga and St. Augustine, during their respective seasons.

Like his illustrious master, Mr. David H. Noon devotes much time and thought to dress, and spends many an anxious hour over a new menu card. In addition to devising new figures for the cotillon, arranging dances, inventing new dishes and criticizing gowns, Mr. Noon's mission is to classify the society of the two resorts, dividing it into cliques and making agreeable arrangements for all to enjoy themselves.

In appearance Mr. Noon is worthy of notice. A stalwart frame, handsome eyes and a noble bearing make up a fine personality. But it is not of his personal appearance that this youthful McAllister is most proud. He takes pride only in his social skill, or, as he expresses it, in his cleverness in separating "the sheep from the goats."

British Dentists Agitated.

English dentists are just now in a pretty state of mind. Their perturbation is due to the probability that the British medical council will acceed to the application of Professor Winder, of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, that the degrees of the college should be recognized in England the same as degrees from Harvard and Michigan colleges. English dentists have already found that much lucrative business is going to established American dentists, whose methods and skill are advanced beyond the accepted standard of dentistry in Great Britain. Dr. Forshaw, of Bradford, is conducting the negotiations with the British medical council on behalf of the Baltimore college.

What Becomes of Vassar Graduates.

A recent systematic effort to learn what has become of Vassar graduates in after life has revealed some interesting facts. Only 45 per cent. of the dear creatures have married. The great majority of them become teachers, though Vassar is well represented in all the literary professions. She has forty-eight physicians, twelve lawyers, six missionaries and one or more in almost every known occupation.

Our readers will serve themseves by noticing the remarkable offerings advertised in another column by the Sherwood Hall Nursery Co. of Menlo Park and San Francisco, who are leaders on the coast in furnishing everthing for the farm and garden.

There is a mighty difference between being just a little behind and a little before.

CAUTION.

Imitations have been put upon the market so closely resembling ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS in general appearance as to be well calculated to deceive. It is, however, in general appearance only that they compare with ALLCOCK'S, for they are worse than worthless, inasmuch as they contain deleterious ingredients which are apt to cause serious injury. Remember that ALLCOCK'S are the only genuine porous plasters—the best external remedy ever produced; and when purchasing plasters do not only ask for but see that you get ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS.

Wherever souls are being tried and ripened, in whatever commonplace and homely ways, there God is hewing out the pillars for His temple.

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED.

We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Porterfield & Losey, 838 Market street, San Francisco.

This promises to be a week of appointments—and disappointments.

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

NOTHING LIKE IT.

40 YEARS OF PAIN CURED THE CASE.

ST. JACOBS OIL CURES ALL PAIN

N. ALBANY ST., ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 19, 1881. For over 40 years I have been a victim of rheumatism. I was persuaded to try St. Jacobs Oil. I have used two bottles, and a man more free from rheumatism never walked our streets. My limbs that were once stiff and lame are now as light and limber as in my youth.

JOS. EDSELL.

AFTER FIVE YEARS.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 5, 1887. Suffered many years—injury to hip resulting in rheumatism, muscular weakness and contracted cords. Two bottles of St. Jacobs Oil relieved me so that I now walk about and attend to daily duties at 62. I heartily endorse it.

JOS. EDSELL.

A Natural Food.

Conditions of the system arise when ordinary foods cease to build flesh—there is urgent need of arresting waste—assistance must come quickly, from natural food source.

Scott's Emulsion

is a condensation of the life of all foods—it is cod-liver oil reinforced, made easy of digestion, and almost as palatable as milk.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

An honest soul is like a ship at sea,
That sleeps at anchor on the ocean's calm;
But, when it rages, and the wind blows high
She cuts her way with skill and majesty.

PREVENTING FUTURE MISERY.

If there is, in this vale of tears, a more prolific source of misery than the rheumatic twinge, we have yet to hear of it. People are born with a tendency to rheumatism, just as they are with one to consumption or to scrofula. Slight causes may develop this. As soon as the agonizing complaint manifests itself, recourse should be had to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which checks its further inroads and banishes the rheumatic poison from the system. This statement tallies exactly with the testimony of physicians who have employed this fine blood depurent in their private practice. There is also the amplest professional and general testimony as to the efficacy of the Bitters for malaria, liver complaint, constipation, indigestion, kidney trouble, nervousness and loss of appetite and flesh. After a wetting, whether followed by a cold or not, the Bitters is useful as a preventive of the initial attack of rheumatism.

They who are the most persistent, and work in the truest spirit, will invariably be the most successful; success treads on the heels of every right effort.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

Drunkenness does not produce faults; it discloses them; fortune does not change manners, it uncovers them.

"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are of great service in subduing Hoarseness. Sold only in boxes.

An Eastern paper says, "the berth rate under this administration has not been great."

THE MOST STUBBORN

Skin and Scalp Diseases, the worst forms of Scrofula, all blood-taints and poisons of every name and nature, are utterly rooted out by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. For every disease caused by a torpid liver or impure blood, it is the only remedy so certain and effective that it can be guaranteed. If it fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

Eczema, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Enlarged Glands, Tumors, and Swellings, and every kindred ailment, are completely and permanently cured by it.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail, Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER.25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. INJECTOR

Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50 cts. Injector free.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

O! the Agony

Of Those who Suffer from Scrofula

Hood's Sarsaparilla Purifies, Soothes, Heals, CURES.

Mr. T. V. Johnson
San Jose, Cal.

"I have for many years been a great sufferer from SCROFULA breaking out on my arms and legs; they were covered with eruption and sores, discharging all the time. I tried very many medicines and consulted physicians far and near, but constantly grew worse. I have taken but three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla for rheumatism, and has derived so much benefit from it that she declares there is no other medicine on earth. We would not be without it in the house if it costs $10 a bottle." T. VARLEY JOHNSON, San Jose, Cal.

N. B. Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and efficiently, on the liver and bowels. 25c.

CHICKS INCUBATORS on Installments. Best Make—Lowest Price. Send for Catalogue. W. C. BEACH, Ripon, Cal.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE

Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

HAVE YOU GOT PILES? ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BO-SAN-KO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

DROPSY

TREATED FREE.

Positively Cured With Vegetable Remedies.

Have cured thousands of cases. Cure cases pronounced hopeless by best physicians. From first dose symptoms disappear; in ten days at least two-thirds all symptoms removed. Send for free book testimonials of miraculous cures. Ten days' treatment free by mail. If you order trial, send 10c. in stamps or pay postage. DR. H. H. GREEN & SONS, Atlanta, Ga. If you order trial return this advertisement to us.

INVALID GOODS.

Rolling Chairs, Reclining Chairs, Back Rests, Commodes. Send for Catalogue. W. A. SCHROCK, 21 New Montgomery St. S.F.

WORRIED?

Are you anxious and nervous? Are you troubled because your periods are irregular? If you have been neglected attending to them over 3 months, you can speedily be relieved without the least danger or inconvenience. I will forward you a remedy guaranteed to restore the most aggravated case, by express, C. O. D., for $3.00. Do not delay, as there is always danger if neglected too long. Address all communications and remittances to DR. J. V. L. MOTTE, P. O. Box 2223, San Francisco, Cal.

YOUNG MEN! The Specific A No. 1.

Cures, without fail, all cases of Gonorrhœa and Gleet, no matter of how long standing. Prevents stricture, it being an internal remedy. Cures when everything else has failed. Sold by all Druggists.

Manufacturers: The A. Schoenhelt Medicine Co., San Jose, Cal.

Price, $3.00.

S. F. N. U. No. 564. New Series No. 15

"WHERE DIRT GATHERS, WASTE RULES."

GREAT SAVING RESULTS FROM THE USE OF

SAPOLIO

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF

Moore's Revealed Remedy.

ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude, MRS. N. V. STEELE.

SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

HERCULES GAS AND GASOLINE Stationary and Marine ENGINES

For Launches, Schooners, Tow Boats, Etc.

For Pumping, Mining Hoists, Printing, Sawing, Turning Lathes, Soda Water Works, Etc.

For simplicity and success they beat the world. Clean, no ashes, smell or dirt. No engineer is necessary; they are easily managed. Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question. No battery or electric spark to care for. No double or false explosions, so frequent with the unreliable spark. The workmanship is the very best. Our ignition tubes are a success; they explode every charge of gas which enters the cylinder. Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day. For pumping outfits for irrigating purposes they run all day without an engineer. For hoisting outfits in mines they have met with the highest approval. We give estimates on the entire plant.

PALMER & REY, MANUFACTURERS,

405-407 Sansome St., San Francisco, Cal.

INYO INDEPENDENT.
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.
Independence, Cal.
FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXIV. NO. 48. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., MAY 19, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1177

INYO INDEPENDENT
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$1.00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.50
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

THE STORY OF LIFE.

Only the same old story, told in a different strain.
Sometimes a smile of gladness, and then a stab of pain;
Sometimes a flash of sunlight, again the drifting rain.

Sometimes it seems to borrow from the crimson rose its hue;
Sometimes black with thunder, then changed to a brilliant blue;
Sometimes as false as Satan, sometimes as Heaven true.

Only the same old story! But oh, how the changes ring!
Prophet and priest and peasant, soldier and scholar and king;
Sometimes the warmest hand clasp leaves in the palm a sting.

Sometimes in the hush of even, sometimes in the midday strife,
Sometimes with dovelike calmness, sometimes with passions rife,
We dream it, write it, live it, this weird, wild story of life.

—Boston Transcript.

"STRANDED."

"Love me? Oh, no, Jack! If you did you wouldn't oppose what is for my highest interest. You wouldn't want me to waste the best years of my life drudging among such common people when I have talent which can lift me to something better. No, Jack, you don't love me, for love is unselfish, and you think only of yourself."

Jack Clavering—a strong limbed Saxon haired young fellow—turned to the window, and for a little while gazed in silence upon the summer world outside.

But he saw neither the blue sky nor the green earth. He did not hear the south wind whispering among the budding lilacs, nor the robins singing in the apple trees pink with bloom.

Those honest blue eyes were blind with tears wrung from the bitterness of his spoiled and cheated young manhood.

The words of his heedless, ambitious young wife had stabbed him to the heart.

"You think only of yourself!"

She—his adored Kate—could say that when he would have laid down his life for her sake!

He turned presently.

Hero as he was, he had concealed every sign of what was warring within him.

"I will not oppose you, Kate, if you are really in earnest about the matter. But it will make a great change in our lives! Have you thought of that?" he asked her.

"I have thought of everything," she answered eagerly. Of course we must sell this odious little house and lot, and you can transfer your business to the city while I am studying. And afterward, when I shall be established on the stage, you will go with me wherever I go."

"The life wouldn't suit me," he said. "If you are determined upon a career as an actress you must get along without me altogether. You will go the way you have chosen, my Kate, and I will go mine."

For a moment she looked grieved and reluctant.

But the new ambition was stronger than the older love, and such a separation did not seem so terrible after all.

She went to him and put her arms around his neck.

"But the parting will be without anger, and it will not be for always?" she asked him.

"We part without anger, certainly," was his reply.

And so it was settled.

And in a few weeks Kate had begun her new life in the city and Jack was journeying westward, whither he scarcely knew and hardly cared.

* * * * * *

The curtain had rolled down for the last time. The play was over.

There had been no applause, no recalls. The company had played that night to a nearly empty house.

It had been the same night after night, in town after town, and city after city.

In rose satin and filmy lace, a glitter of jewels, the worth of which would not have purchased her a night's lodging, the star swept her shining court train across the stage on her way to her dressing room.

One of her companions met her in the wings. The girl was crying hysterically.

"Oh, Kate!" she sobbed, "that wretch has gone! He has disposed of everything he could, and he has gone and left us to shirk for ourselves."

"You don't mean the manager?" said Kate, aghast.

"I just do mean the manager, the heartless scamp! He has borrowed money on the stage properties—just enough to take him home, I suppose—and he went away the instant he could get the receipts in his hands tonight. And here we are in this horrid place without so much as a dollar among us all."

It was all too true. Their manager had forsaken them, leaving the unfortunate company stranded in that remote little western town.

While leaving the theater, in the excitement Kate happened somehow to become separated from her companions.

She walked on, thinking some of them would overtake her. And presently she stopped on a bridge spanning a narrow stream which flowed in a sluggish current through the rambling little city.

She had stood there a long time waiting, gazing down into the dark rolling water and absorbed with her despondent thoughts, before it occurred to her that the others must have preceded her from the theater building.

And there was little probability that any of them would come back to search for her.

But what did it matter?

It was a calamity in which each one must help herself or himself.

And doubtless they had all by now settled themselves somewhere for the night, at least.

They had all of them, even the little soubrette who had sobbed so disconsolately, been members of the profession longer than she.

They were used to its ups and downs, its shifts and expedients. And most of them had experienced exactly the same predicament before.

Now, in her distress and perplexities, Kate concluded that they had forgotten all about her.

"There isn't one of them who cares enough for me to miss me, to wonder what I will do, or what will become of me," she thought, as she stood there on the bridge alone in the night gloom. "And this is the career I once fancied so full of pleasure! This is the end of my dazzling hopes, my lofty ambitions? Well, tonight is but the emblem of it all! In love, in everything which makes one's life sweet and blessed, I am indeed—stranded."

Perhaps it was only natural in such a time that she should recall her olden home.

How pretty it was, how dear, that simple little cottage in the quiet village!

The old apple trees where the robins used to sing so riotously must now be pink with bloom.

And the peach tree!—how beautiful it was in blossom when the petals used to fall in showers against her tiny bay window!

Had the new owners driven the swallows away from the eaves?—the wren from her nest in the moldering stem of the dead and branchless locust?

Perhaps they had pulled down the dear little house altogether and erected some grander structure in its stead!

Suddenly she stretched out her arms yearningly. She lifted her sad face to the cold, unanswering stars.

"But, oh!" she murmured, "if I could only rest my tired head beneath that dear old roof tonight I think I could die content."

A listless, uncertain tread upon the planks of the bridge at that moment distracted her thoughts and aroused her to the imprudence of her position.

She must not remain there. She must go.

But where?

How strange, how pitiful it seemed that in all the wide world she had no place to lay her head!

The footsteps came closer. With a half frightened glance she saw a tall man, broad shouldered, roughly dressed, with a great shaggy yellow beard, and with a pair of piercing eyes which seemed to look her through and through.

He had passed and repassed a number of times, but she had been too engrossed with her sorrowful reflection to notice him before.

He walked directly to her.

He grasped the rail of the bridge with both hands, and she marveled vaguely to see that he was trembling.

"You are one of the unfortunate theatrical company! Can I be of any service to you?" he asked her, abruptly.

"Who are you?" she cried in alarm, as she shrunk back from him.

His reply was uttered in a strange, rapid and vehement whisper.

"I am like yourself," he said. "Some years ago I had a happy home and a wife I adored. She went away from me, and since then in hope and happiness I have been stranded."

For an instant she stood as if suddenly turned to stone. All the life within her seemed concentrated in her great, dark burning eyes.

"You, Jack? Oh, God! is it you!" she exclaimed, at length. "You, who used to be so proud about yourself, so brave of spirit, like this?"

"Do you care?" he asked her.

"Do I care?" she repeated passionately. "I care so much that I would give my very soul if I could undo what I have done. I have failed in my career, but I might have succeeded, Jack, could I have had your love. I could do nothing without your love, Jack."

She was crying now, softly, hopelessly, not daring to believe that she was still dear to him.

He put his rough-clad arms about her and drew her unresisting head to his bosom—against that shaggy, tangled beard which with his careless attire she had fancied a sign of, Heaven knows how much, destitution and vagabondage!

"You have always had my love, sweetheart. Do you think I could ever have ceased loving such an adorable woman as you are, Kate? Our trouble was all my fault, too—all my contemptible obstinacy," said he.

"Oh, Jack, how good you are to say that, when you know it isn't true," she murmured, with her arms around his neck and her lips upon his.

"Well, darling, we will begin over again. I have never sold the little cottage—I couldn't, because we had once been so happy there! And I have made a big fortune in the mines back here. So you shall live where you like and wear diamonds and cloth of gold, if you choose. Or, if you would rather stay on the stage, you can have a company of your own and a theater of your own, if you desire. And you need not fear ever again being stranded."

"No, Jack. Neither of us need fear ever again being stranded," she answered solemnly, and with a meaning he could not mistake.

But Kate left the stage altogether. She had talent, and in time she would no doubt have succeeded more than tolerably.

"But," she says, "it isn't that I love the profession less, it is that I love my home and my husband more."—Buffalo News.

The Trade in Mammoths' Tusks.

The abundance of the remains of the mammoth is almost incredible. Middendorf reckoned that at least a hundred pairs of these tusks had been put on the market yearly during the past two centuries; and from personal observation Nordenskjold is inclined to regard the estimate as too small. It thus appears that in the recent modern trade the tusks of more than 20,000 of these animals of past ages have been collected.—St. Louis Republic.

Assurance.

"Will you love me while I am away, Maria?" he said, fervently.

"I will!" she replied so positively that he debated about going.—New York Herald.

WAKING AT WILL.

Why is it That Many Persons Awake at a Certain Hour?

A PHASE OF THE SLEEPING MIND.

It is Beyond Doubt That Many There are Who Can Set Themselves for a Certain Period.

A discussion has been going on in the Society for Psychical Research as to the existence and the nature of the power by which so many people manage to wake themselves precisely at the hour at which they have resolved to awake on the previous night. There is no question as to the fact. It is a matter on which probably the greater number of people can convince themselves. You may fix a time when no clock strikes, so that it cannot be a half heard sound which wakes you.

You may fix five minutes before the hour in a house in which no clock strikes the quarters, or even in a house in which there is no striking clock at all and no church clock within a couple of miles, and yet not one person only, but a great many—we might perhaps say the majority of persons past middle age—can wake themselves at the right hour if on the previous night they go to bed with the resolve to do so strong on their minds. It is a power which belongs to all sorts of persons—not only persons who have been in the habit of getting up at given hours, but to persons who have not.

Most nurses have it, most servants, most laborers, most professional men. Yet it is very difficult to account for, for when you wake you have no distinct, nor indeed indistinct recognition of the time on you. You only know what time you ought to have been awake, but not in the least consciously that this time has arrived, though when you look at your watch in a fright you find as a matter of fact that it has arrived, and only just arrived. We believe that the same power would apply to the daytime under the same conditions—namely, that you fix firmly in your mind some hours, or at least some considerable time earlier, that you are to do something specific and to be roused to a sense of the time at a specific minute; only people notice this less, since there are so many things in the daytime which warn us and thus put us on the watch as to how time is flying.

The curious thing is that, though you can arrest your attention and wake up at the required time, you never seem to have the least assurance that it is the right time without consulting your watch. If you do really "divine" the time, you have no power of recognizing that you have "divined" it. You feel as if you had merely guessed it, and very probably guessed it wrong, until your watch confirms the guess.

It is not by a keen sense of duration that you compute the hour, for that would imply that you knew at what time you made the resolve—at what time you went to sleep with the resolve on your mind—and this is often just what you do not know.

If you measured time by the organic processes which go on within you, by a general sense of the number of pulsations of your heart, or the number of breaths drawn, then you would require to know accurately what the time was when you resolved to awake, and you would measure only by the length of the thread subsequently drawn out. Not only would that be a very complicated process, but it is almost certainly not the actual process, for you may be quite unconscious at what hour exactly the resolve is formed. It seems to be a sense of time, as quite distinct from a sense of the duration of your sleep or of the length of any organic process which has gone on since the resolve was made.

Yet it is extremely difficult to imagine that the individual mind can be so closely identified in feeling with the revolution of the earth on its axis as would enable it to say at what hour a. m. or p. m. you have arrived. The mind measures duration chiefly by the succession of its own thoughts, but, as we have seen, it is not duration, but something quite different from duration, of which it appears to be conscious. Thus it can wake the body at any given hour without even knowing (consciously at [illegible]) how much time has elapsed since the resolve to wake was first formed.

The present writer may assign the present article as a consequence (one of very many) of the power of waking at the exact hour desired, an hour which is often varied in accordance with the urgency of the case, so that it cannot be ascribed to the habit of waking at exactly the same hour. It is a very curious power, for which we can assign no parallel. We certainly have no similar power of waking ourselves on a journey at any exact point in space on which we may previously determine. If we resolve to wake up at the moment the express train in which we are traveling passes a particular point from which, suppose, a striking landscape is visible, we should not manage it unless the train were so punctual that we could effect it by determining to waken at the precise minute when the train was due there, though in that way we believe it might occasionally be effected.

But there certainly are multitudes of persons who appear to carry some kind of clock about with them in their inner mind, though whether it be the clock of the house or the clock of the neighborhood it would be well to find out.

In the present writer's case it is not the clock of the house, which is kept fast, but, as near as he can judge, what he believes to be right time—i. e., railway time, though if he were, say, five minutes wrong in his impression of what right time is, it is probable that he would awaken by the time of his impression, and not by railway or Greenwich time.—London Spectator.

A Mistaken Impression.

That the intuition of women is sometimes at fault was amusingly illustrated by a recent incident in Portland. A lady was conversing with a gentleman whom she knew but slightly, and whom, for some unaccountable reason, she took to be a widower. She had never heard it said that he was. He simply impressed her in that way. She took it for granted, and asked innocently how long his wife had been dead.

The involuntary alarm which caused him to exclaim, "Good heavens, madam! when did she die?" was no greater than that which this unexpected answer produced in her. He was a stranger there, traveling on business, and hadn't seen or heard from his wife for some little time.—Bangor (Me.) Commercial.

Some Banjo Enthusiasts.

Amos J. Cummings is a player and a patron of the banjo. Mrs. Paran Stevens is fond of banjo music and often has her guests entertained with it. The same can be said of Mrs. Hicks-Lord and Mr. Peter Marie.—New York Press.

Underground Streams.

It is well known that a vast quantity of water exists beneath the surface of the ground, and that even considerable streams are flowing there. Mr. Baldwin Latham has called attention in England to a very interesting method of tracing the courses of these underground streams.

At certain seasons, especially in September and October, peculiar lines of fog may be observed close to the ground, and he says these indicate where streams of water are flowing at a considerable depth beneath the surface. During the greater part of the year some of the strata between the surface of the earth and the underground water are sufficiently cold to condense the vapor arising from the water and thus prevent its appearance at the surface. But in the autumn the soil is frequently warmed so deeply that no condensing stratum of cold exists, and then the vapor reaching the surface forms lines of fog following the course of the concealed streams of water underneath.

It is suggested that here is another of those curious provisions of nature which benefit the living forms inhabiting the earth, for the vapor which proceeds from streams deep underground, being ordinarily condensed not far under the surface, may serve to sustain the life of plants during seasons of drought.

Mr. Latham thinks that this is the case on the great chalk downs of England.—Youth's Companion.

Why the Neighbors Changed.

Before the boy came we always liked our neighbors very much indeed, but that only shows how you can be fooled, for if ever any people threw off the sheep's covering from their wolfish forms those people did. You never in your life saw the amount of persecution they subjected our boy to. They not only allowed their children to fight him and throw sand in his eyes all for nothing (for he told us so), but they told the most malicious falsehoods on him up and down the street.

They said that he fought every boy in the neighborhood, chunked their chickens and sauced their reverend selves. Made him out a real bad boy. The idea! And his own grandmother says that he is the best boy in the world, and she knows good children, for she raised us.

There is nothing like keeping out of bad company, so we moved off that street. We got from the frying-pan into the fire. The people we went among were worse than the ones we left, and we hadn't been there six days before they fell upon that poor little boy of ours like so many harpies.

And so it has continued—and right now we wouldn't be speaking to that little sandy haired women, who lives vis-a-vis to us if it were not that we are trying to cultivate a spirit of Christian forbearance.—Philadelphia Times.

Manuscripts in the Kairouin Library.

There can be no two opinions as to the presence of a very large number of ancient manuscripts in the Kairouin library, and these volumes—a creditable thing for the lazy and indolent Moors—are certainly the objects of very great care. The trustees of the Kairouin have a regular staff of employees chosen from the university professors and teachers, who are charged with the safe keeping of the books, and the cellars are annually inspected and the books repaired when the necessity arises. I should say that, bar accidents of fire in the future, when the library is thrown open the manuscripts will be found in a very fair state of preservation.

Upon another point my informants all agreed. They said that in the library there are quite a number of books written in strange, unknown tongues. Generally, my genial Tholba friends asserted, they were written in Greek, but on my showing them a book in German they were unanimously of opinion that this was the language in which the volumes were written. So I am forced to the conclusion that any writing which is not Arabic is Greek to the Fukies and Tholba of Fez.—Fortnightly Review.

A Rude Shock for an Athlete.

It goes a little hard with a young man who has seen his name in all the newspapers as captain of an eight, a nine or an eleven, whose age, weight and diet, girth about the waist, biceps, muscles and hour of going to bed are all matters of absorbing public interest for a length of time, who is interviewed by the ubiquitous reporter, photographed by the snap shot camera fiend and after whose health gray bearded alumni anxiously inquire when they meet around the lunch table at Parker's—of course it is a little hard for him to presently discover that he is no longer famous and can walk the street without creating a sensation. But many things are a little hard that are a good deal salutary. Distinction of every kind is relative if not temporary. This fact cannot be found out too soon.—Boston Advertiser.

A Dilemma.

Wife—It's raining, and Mrs. Goodsoul wants to go home. I have no umbrella to lend her except my new ten dollar one. Can't you lend her yours?

Husband—Great Scott! The only one I have has her husband's name on the handle.—Harper's Bazar.

A LARGE CATCH.

Citizen Train's Luck Fishing for Salmon in Oregon Years Ago.

HOW THE ECCENTRIC GOT A DUCKING

An Account of the First Visit of a Well Known Man to the Northwest.—He Caught 264 Fish.

George Francis Train, while at the Portland, told a friend some of the incidents of a visit he paid this state many years ago, away back early in the sixties. He said he was the first one to discover salmon in the Columbia, and caught 264 in a day, and carried them across the Columbia, walking on the backs of the salmon which crowded the river; also that he learned the Chinook jargon in fifteen minutes.

Like most of the reminiscences of bygone days in Oregon, there is some foundation for these statements, but still they vary somewhat from the facts in the case. A correct account, therefore, of Mr. Train's exploits in catching salmon and studying Chinook jargon will be found interesting.

It was somewhere about 1864 or 1866 when Mr. Train first came out here, just after a Fenian scare in Canada. It was when he took a run across the line to Victoria, and the long roll of the British drums was heard, and the troops were called out, sentries doubled and detectives kept watch over every move he made while he was on British territory.

Mr. Train had aspirations for the presidency in those days, and a gentleman here has a photograph of him, presented by Mr. Train himself, on the back of which is written an invitation for the the recipient to meet the donor in the White House when he should be elected president.

MR. TRAIN TRIES HIS HAND.

While here Mr. Train visited The Dalles, on the invitation of Captain J. C. Ainsworth, and made his first acquaintance with the Chinook salmon and Chinook jargon in their native wilds. This was long before a can of salmon had been put up on the Columbia, and when the only salmon fisheries on the river were those of the Indians at the Cascades and at The Dalles.

Mr. Train was to address the citizens of The Dalles in the church, and the day before paid a visit to a salmon fishery in the rapids below Celilo. He greatly admired the easy, graceful manner in which an Indian, standing on a frail platform hung over a narrow chute, plunged his dipnet into the foaming current and lifted the salmon out on the rocks, and he wished to try his hand.

The Indian endeavored to dissuade him, telling him that he would "killapi copa chuck"—that is, fall into the river; but Mr. Train insisted, and the Indian politely yielded up his net and stand, and Mr. Train stepped out on the platform, net in hand.

Never before since the Columbia forced its way through the Cascades had such a spectacle been presented to the Chinook salmon. Mr. Train wore a green broadcloth swallowtail coat with brass buttons, a tall silk hat, satin vest and ruffled shirt. As he passed his net for a "scoop" he was the observed of all observers. He scooped, and a large Chinook salmon was caught in his net, but instead of pulling it out it pulled him in, and before one could say "Jack Robinson" Mr. Train was being whirled away like a cork in the swift current.

HE MAKES A PREDICTION.

Several Indians, who had evidently expected this, immediately jumped in, and, fortunately, succeeded in dragging Mr. Train ashore. His tall hat was dancing like a bubble down the current, but a lot of young Indians scampered after it and soon brought it back.

Mr. Train was not to be balked by his mishap, and while he peeled off his coat, vest, etc., he took a lesson in Chinook and found out what "killapi copa chuck" meant. Having stripped down to his ruffled shirt and laid his garments out in the sun to dry, he again took the net, and telling his friends to go back to The Dalles and send up an engine for him at 5 p. m., he stepped out on the platform and fished all day, piling up 264 fine salmon.

When the engine came after him he wished to take the salmon to town with him to ornament the rostrum from which he was to speak that evening, but was dissuaded from this on the ground that it would not look well in a church.

He delivered a lecture that evening in which he complimented the pioneers on their bravery and fortitude in immigrating to this section, and told them that while they were seeking for gold in the mountains and hoping to get wealth from their herds of cattle, which ranged on ten thousand hills, there was immense wealth swimming past their doors unnoticed.

He then predicted that in a few years the salmon of the Columbia would be canned and exported to the uttermost ends of the earth, and would become one of the great products of this state, all of which has become true.—Portland Oregonian.

What the Well Bred Woman Does.

Are you a thoroughly well bred woman? If you are there are some little "Thank yous" that you never omit in public and to strangers. You never forget to say "Thank you" to a man

Who stands aside to let you step into the elevated ahead of him.

Who gives you his place in a line of waiting persons.

Who stays a moment in his hurry to hold a door open for you.

Who steps aside to let you pass on a stairway.

To the policeman who helps you across a street.

To a servant who renders you a personal service.

To a horse car conductor who stops the car carefully exactly where you asked him to.

To the postman who gives you your letters on the street.

To the newsboy who folds your paper neatly and closely for you.—New York Evening Sun.

Opposition to Progress.

Mr. Edison proposes to transmit kisses by phonograph. After a careful investigation of this important issue, we are inclined to believe that reform is scarcely needed in this department of social economy.—Washington Post.

Pale Sympathy.

Miss Brumley (who is paying the penalty of a very late party the night before)—Oh, if I only had something for my head!

Her Cold Blooded and Extremely Dense Friend—Why can't you make over that close fitting little violet bonnet? You always looked so well in it, you know.—Time.

AN EXCEPTION.

A Case Where the Railroad Porter Got the Worst of It.

He was a large, elderly man, with an expression of discontent in his face, and when the porter had deposited his traveling bag in a section of the sleeping car the elderly man looked around at the ventilators, then critically at his neighbor across the aisle, and then he said to the porter:

"Where do we stop for supper?"

"Dining car on the train, sir," was the answer.

"Is, hey; what time is supper ready?"

"It is being served now, sir."

"Is, hey—h-m; what time do we get to Albany?"

"Nine-fifty."

"Connect there with train from Boston?"

"Yes, sir."

"Wait long?"

"No, sir; only ten minutes."

"H-m; what time do we get to Buffalo?"

"Six-fifteen to-morrow morning."

"What time does the next train leave Buffalo for Cleveland after we get there?"

"Six-forty, sir."

The elderly man looked over his spectacles at the porter for a moment and then said:

"Want my ticket?"

"No, sir; the conductor will take it by and by."

"H-m—does that Cleveland train pass through Dunkirk?"

"Yes, sir."

"What time?"

"Six-forty-three."

"How big a town is Dunkirk?"

"About 10,000 inhabitants, sir."

The elderly man seemed to be annoyed about something, and as the dialogue continued he became more so. He eyed the porter again and asked:

"What time does the train reach Erie?"

"Three minutes past 8, sir."

"How much bigger is Erie than Dunkirk?"

"About four times, sir."

This concluded the interview. The porter walked away and the elderly gentleman sat down; but he didn't seem to feel easy. He glared at the passenger across the aisle, then he took off his overcoat, sat down and commenced reading the evening paper, but threw it aside almost immediately, and rising again walked gloomily to the back end of the car and looked out of the window. Then he went back to his seat and sat there sullenly until the porter came that way again, when he said:

"See here, young man; if I take that 6:40 train from Buffalo to-morrow morning, what connection can I make at Chicago for a northwestern train that stops at Kenosha, Wis.?"

"I don't know, sir."

The elderly man eyed the porter fiercely for a moment through his spectacles, then over them, and then he said sarcastically:

"You don't know?"

"No, sir. You see"——

"I see, yes I see, you don't know! When a passenger asks you a civil question—you don't know. Great scott! Why don't the railroad companies hire wooden dummies and save expense? Say, do you know beans when you see 'em? Do you know when it's night? Why don't you travel around with your eyes open? Say, why don't you—just one day? I would if I was you!" And as the porter went quietly about his business the elderly man took up his newspaper again. He seemed to feel more contented after that.—Detroit Free Press.

Getting Even.

In one of the largest dry goods stores in this city there is a particularly cross salesman. He is altogether too superb a creature to be behind a dry goods counter, and when he does condescend to wait upon a customer—so the women say—it is such a favor that it is really painful. Yesterday a young woman who had suffered at his hands got even with him in the highest style of the art. She had been selecting a material for a dress for an out of town friend and the disagreeable salesman had chosen to assume, when she asked for samples, that she had no intention of buying, and had loftily referred her to some one else, intimating as much. The young woman had bought at least half a dozen dresses at that counter, and she vowed vengeance.

Yesterday she walked up to this superb creature with her sweetest and most demure air. She had a sample of cashmere that she knew couldn't be matched in Chicago, and she laid it down in front of him without a word.

If there is anything that he hates—so the women say—it is to take down goods from the shelves; but when a sample is brought in to be matched he can't help himself. He was in a particularly lofty frame of mind yesterday, and picked up the unoffending sample with the condescension of a duke at the feast. After he had taken down three heavy bolts of cloth he grumbled:

"How many yards of cloth do you require?"

"Two," she answered, with her sweetest smile. After he had taken down two or three more he impatiently remarked to space:

"Rather an unusual shade!"

"Yes?"

He took down several more, and scowled.

"Is it necessary to have an exact match?" he finally asked.

"Yes; it must match perfectly," said the young woman, decidedly. The salesman knows his business—if he is disagreeable—so the women say—and, giving a disgusted kind of a sniff, he went to work again. Finally, after he had taken down at least a dozen pieces and gone over his entire stock, he brought her a piece:

"This is the best I can do," he said, spitefully; "are you sure your sample came from this store?"

"Oh, no!" smiled the young woman, demurely; "I got it in New York, and I knew you couldn't match it."—Chicago Tribune.

RICH INDIANS.

Large Fund of the Osage Tribe Deposited in the Treasury.

HOW THE MONEY WAS ACCUMULATED

Such an Enormous Sum to Their Credit That the Government Dare Not Pay it at One Time.

Speaking of a visit to the Indian Territory some years ago Senator Platt said: "When I was at the trading post of the Osage Indians I was much amused to see an Indian buying a barrel of good flour for himself and a barrel of cheap flour for the white man who worked for him." The Osage Indians can afford to be luxurious. They are the wealthiest Indians in the United States.

It is estimated at the Indian office that the Osage Indians—men, women and children—are worth $15,000 each in what ought to be as good as cash—i. e., salable land and the government's promise to pay. So great is the interest on the sum held by the United States to their credit that the secretary of the interior will not pay out all of it at one time, and a gradual increment is adding to the millions already credited to the tribe on the books of the government.

The Osages came to their wealth through the sale of their lands in Kansas when they were moved to a reservation in what is now known as Oklahoma territory. One Indian abandoned his tribe and clung to his Kansas land, and it is said that today, through the appreciation in the value of that land, he is worth a million dollars.

He is perhaps the richest Indian in the world. Nothing is known of him at the Indian office because, having abandoned his tribe, he has ceased to be a subject of solicitude to the gentlemen in charge of Indian affairs at the national capital. The land belonging to the other Indians was bought by the government and thrown open to settlement.

In buying this property the government did not make any actual payment for it. It announced to the Osages that they had been credited with the amount of the purchase money and that they would receive interest on that amount. There was no deposit made to secure this indebtedness of the government. There is nothing to represent it in the treasury department except the record of the fact that it has been assumed by the government. This has been the practice of the government—its exclusive practice—for many years.

A long time ago the treasury department used to purchase southern state bonds with the purchase price of Indian lands and hold them in trust for the Indians. A great many of these southern state bonds are now in the treasury vaults, held in trust to secure indebtedness to the Indian tribes. But on the majority of them no interest has been paid by the states for a long time; in fact, the bonds in effect have been repudiated.

The government, however, under its contract with the Indians, is held liable for the interest which these bonds should have drawn. This interest it has assumed. So the purchase of the state bonds was a losing investment for the government. Its unhappy experience in this direction has taught it the wisdom of securing its debts to the Indian, like its other obligations, with a promise to pay.

In the deposits to the credit of the Osage Indians there is one item of $8,147,515. The annual interest on this is $407,376. There are about 1,500 Osages on the reservation in Oklahoma. The exact number mentioned in the last annual report of the Indian commissioner is 1,496; but this, of course, varies from time to time. The members of this tribe, men, women and children, are joint sharers in the interest money. As it is paid to the tribe it is divided equally among them. It is drawn by the head of each family for himself, his wife and his children.

The Indian with a large family draws a goodly sum each month. Even the amount to which the single Indians are entitled is large—for an Indian. It has been the policy for the secretary of the interior, acting for the president, who, under the new law, is the trustee for the Indians, to pay to the Osage tribe only a part of the money to which it is entitled. The amount paid annually was for a long time $250,000. Two years ago the payment was increased, at the request of the Indians, to $300,000 a year.

That is less than 75 per cent. of the amount due the Indians, and the other 25 per cent. goes toward swelling the amount with which the tribe is credited on the treasury books. What will be done with this slowly increasing capital and the correspondingly increasing interest on it is a question with which the government has not yet troubled itself.

Occasionally some of the interest money which is due to the Osages is expended for their benefit by the secretary of the interior, within his discretion. The Indian office has on hand now plans for a $30,000 building to be used as a dormitory and school in connection with the education of the Osage children. The council of the tribe requested the secretary to make this expenditure. The government looks after the education of the Osages, and a special fund is set aside for educational purposes.

The government supplies them with agricultural implements and a great many other things which the Indians could very well afford to buy for themselves. They do buy a great many luxuries. Very few of them save any of the money which is paid to them by the government. The trader at the agency gets a greater part of it within an hour after the payment has been distributed. The Osage tradership is regarded as the most valuable in the United States. Other traders have more Indians to deal with, but not so much money.—Washington Cor. New York Sun.

Without Much Difficulty.

Gazzam—It is so hard to be poor.

Maddox—And yet a great many people accomplish it.—New York Epoch.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, MAY 19 1893

The way weak banks are tumbling down in the States of Indiana, Illinois and Michigan reminds one of the boyish game of setting bricks on end. You kick one and down goes the whole row. In this case the Columbia and Chemical banks of Chicago were the end bricks.

The old San Francisco Bulletin swells like a toad and vomits fire and brimstone at the mere mention of State's rights. Yet it goes to an absurd extreme on a still more absurd pretense, and a false one at that, to justify Governor Pennoyer of Oregon in making a most impertinent and blackguardedly response to a very courteous suggestion of the State Department. This same Bulletin denounced this same Pennoyer as "the boor and crank of Oregon" when he wantonly insulted President Harrison. But Harrison was a Republican, while Cleveland is a Democrat, and the Bulletin is a senile hypocrite.

Governor Markham's action on receipt of Secretary Gresham's dispatch expressing the President's "earnest hope" that all necessary precautions should be taken to prevent any outbreaks against the Chinese was in striking and honorable contrast to the boorish insolence of Governor Pennoyer of Oregon. Instead of making an impertinent and uncalled for response he sent copies of Secretary Gresham's dispatch to the various functionaries in this State with the request that they would see that the President was not disappointed. This shows that Governor Markham knows how to behave like a gentleman, and has a proper conception of the functions and dignity of his office.

Last Monday the Supreme Court of the United States, from which there is no appeal, declared the Geary law constitutional, and the Chinese must go. No decision that has been handed down from this august body has been looked for with more interest than this which, recognizing the right of congress to make laws that must be upheld, affords us the right to say who shall and who shall not be residents of the United States. To us the decision seems to be a popular one to Californians. We are, practically, the interested parties to the suit; the Middle and Eastern States have regarded the Chinese question from a sentimental standpoint, and have not had that acquaintance with the aliens that we have—an acquaintance that has ripened into sincere disregard. We have considered ourselves the direct heirs to the question, and many Californians regretted that the men who were to give the momentous decision had not had the opportunity of seeing them as they appeared here. That, however, was a narrow vision of the case and a narrower view to take of the Supreme Court. The justices of that body were not called in to examine the people at whom the Geary act was aimed; they were not expected to know whether they were black or white, whether their territory was California or Florida. The Supreme Court had to decide whether or not the law as passed opposed itself to the fundamental principles on which our government rests and was in harmony with the Constitution.

Waiting For the Minister.

A good story is told of Mr. Labouchere during his career in the diplomatic service and while he was an attache at Washington. An "aggressively irate" visitor called at the legation and demanded to see the British minister. Mr. Labouchere informed him that he could not, because "his excellency was not in." "Well," said the visitor, evidently suspecting subterfuge, "I must see him, and will wait till he comes." "Very good," said Mr. Labouchere. "Pray take a chair," and he resumed his writing. At the end of an hour the visitor, "still fretting and fuming," asked when the minister would be back. "I really cannot say exactly," the attache answered. "But you expect him back?" the visitor insisted. "Oh, certainly," said Mr. Labouchere and went on writing.

At the end of another hour the irate visitor, bouncing up, insisted on knowing what were the habits of the minister at that period of the day. Was he likely to be in in another hour? "I think not," said Mr. Labouchere, with increased blandness; "the fact is he sailed for Europe on Wednesday and can hardly yet have reached Queenstown. But, you know, you said you would wait till he came in, so I offered you a chair."—"Diary of the Salisbury Parliament."

Too Many Entertainments.

Little Daughter—Say, mamma, won't you take me to Cousin Jane's funeral?

Mamma—No, pettie. You went to the matinee yesterday and a party last night. You musn't have too many entertainments at a time. You don't want to give yourself up entirely to mirth and frivolity.—Texas Siftings.

FIRES IN DWELLINGS.

FEW HOUSES HAVE MEANS OF ESCAPE EXCEPT THE DOORWAYS.

A Trapdoor In the Roof Seems to Be the Only Suggestion For a Means of Escape In Case the Stairway of a House In the City Is on Fire During the Night.

Two deaths from suffocation in a burning dwelling have again called the attention of all thinking people to the fact that dwelling houses are not provided with any practical means of escape in case of fire occurring in the lower floor during the night. Investigation by a reporter shows that the law is mute on the subject of escapes from dwellings. Neither the laws governing the bureau of building inspectors nor those applying to the bureau of fire touch on the subject. Both bureaus agree in saying that some means of exit other than the stairways should be provided, and both favor the introduction of trapdoors in the roofs as the most feasible and most effective plan. It is stated on good authority that these trapdoors, while one of the best means of escape, cannot be found in more than one house in 200 on the average through the city.

Chief Baxter of the fire department and president of the bureau of fire escapes said: "There were 1,531 fires last year, and 485 of these were in dwellings. Fortunately but few people met their deaths from dwelling house fires during the year. This is not always the case, however, and I have seen quite a large number of fatal results from such fires—the deaths a few years ago as the result of the fire in the King residence at Seventeenth and Pine streets, for instance, and many others not quite so appalling nor of such prominence. In most of these cases the fatality would not have been so great had some means of escape, other than stairways, been provided.

"There certainly should be some new clause in our fire escape laws, and the most important one would be one requiring trapdoors in the roof of every house, or some equally feasible means of exit. The present laws are particularly stringent regarding fire escapes on hotels in the city, but neglect altogether the dwellings. It would seem more proper to take care of the permanent population than transient visitors to the city, from which class the hotels derive their income.

"Of the dwelling house fires which occurred last year," the chief continued, "146 were caused by defective flues. It is fair to presume that the majority of fires from this cause occur at night after the fires have been fixed and the family has retired. In fixing better fires for the night the general method used is to open wide the flue draft and close the bottom draft. The heat ascends up the chimney then, and any defect in the flue may cause a fire. Before the family are awakened the whole lower room may be in flames, and escape by means of the stairway may be impossible. The family would then probably have to jump from the windows, unless the house had one of the illegal frame kitchens in the rear.

"They could then jump on that and from there to the fence. If trapdoors were provided in the roof, however, they could easily ascend and escape either to an adjoining house or at least escape suffocation by running along the roofs out of danger until the fire department arrived. These trapdoors have been suggested, but it is claimed that they would furnish means for burglars to enter the houses from those adjoining. The popular sentiment, though, would seem to indicate that most people prefer to take chances of being robbed of a few dollars than to take the risk of being burned to death."

Harmon Boorse, a member of both bureau of building inspectors and the bureau of fire escapes, said he had always been in favor of building trapdoors in every house. "The law," he said, "forbids the erection of frame kitchens, but at present these furnish the only means of escape from a dwelling after exit by the stairway has been cut off. Statistics prove that fire very seldom occurs in these outside kitchens. A prominent insurance agent told me only a day or two ago," he continued, "that the majority of dwelling house fires were caused by defective flues in the cellars where the heater flue enters the chimney."

James C. Moore, a prominent builder erecting from 200 to 500 dwellings a year and a member of the Operative Builders' association, denounced in outspoken terms the present system of building without providing a means of escape from the upper floors except by the stairways. He said: "It is an outrage on the community.

"As dwelling houses are built in these days, not one in 200 on the average is provided with a trapdoor or scuttle in the roof. I have always favored this manner of building."—Philadelphia Press.

Noncommittal Praise.

One of an admiring group around a certain conscientious woman of boundless tact recently asked her what she found truthfully to say when adoring parents exhibited unpromising infants or their pictures. The tactful woman smiled with justifiable pride at the score of anxious feminine faces turned toward her, "I always exclaim ardently, 'Well, that is a baby,' and," with dancing eyes, "it is, you know."—New York Times.

Criticising Boston.

She was from out of town, and when the conductor on the Columbus avenue car called, "Albany Station," she said: "I want to know if that's the Boston and Albany station! It's nothing to the one that the Boston and Maine are just a goin to tear down."—Boston Commonwealth.

Typical Fire Escapes.

Guest—What precautions have you here in case of fire?

Hotel Clerk—We have fire escapes from every floor. All you have to do is to make your way to one of them and fall off.—New York Weekly.

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS AND
LEVI STRAUSS & Co's
SPRING BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

We have made arrangements with Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., publishers of "A Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," which will enable all our subscribers to obtain a copy of that valuable work free by sending their address (enclosing a two-cent stamp for mailing same) to DR. B. J. KENDALL CO., ENOSBURGH FALLS, VT. This book is now recognized as standard authority upon all diseases of the horse, as its phenomenal sale attests, over four million copies having been sold in the past ten years, a sale never before reached by any publication in the same period of time. We feel confident that our patrons will appreciate the work, and be glad to avail themselves of this opportunity of obtaining a valuable book.

It is necessary that you mention this paper in sending for the "Treatise." This offer will remain open for only a short time.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

THOMAS C. BOLAND, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM CRAPO, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Crapo, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the Complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36-100 Dollars [$337 36], on a balance of account for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by the Plaintiff to you in the County of Inyo, State of California, at your special instance and request; also for costs of suit, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36-100 Dollars, together with costs of suit.

Witness my hand and the Seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 4th day of May, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

OWENS RIVER AND BIG PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Big Pine, Cal. Location of works, Big Pine, Cal.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT AT a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 18th day of April, 1893, an assessment (No. 7) of Twenty (20) cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary at the office of the Company, in the town of Big Pine, Inyo county, Cala.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on SATURDAY, the 27th day of May, 1893, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction and unless payment is made before will be sold on SATURDAY, June 17th, 1893, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

By order of the Board of Directors.
R. W. THOMAS, Secretary.
Office—Big Pine, Inyo county, Cala.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE

LONE PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Independence, California. Location of Canal, near Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

Notice is hereby given that at a regular meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 29th day of April, 1893 an assessment (No. 4) of Twelve (12) cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the Company, in the town of Independence, Inyo county, California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on Saturday, the 3rd day of June, 1893, will be delinquent, and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before will be sold on Saturday, June 24, 1893 to pay the delinquent assessment together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

By order of the Board of Directors.
DAVID HOLLAND,
Secretary.
Office—Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

DO YOU SUFFER?

Rheumatism, Fits [epilepsy] Scrofula, Liquor, Morphine or Tobacco Habit, quickly and permanently cured by the wonderful BI-CHLORIDE of GOLD treatment.

RHEUMATISM (The uric acid entirely expelled from the blood) cured in from five to forty days.

FITS (Epilepsy) Permanently cured; no return of the disease from two to four weeks treatment.

SCROFULA And the worst cases of inherited blood taint quickly and permanently cured.

DRUNKENESS Opium, Morphine or Tobacco Habit cured 10 to 20 days.

No restriction or publicity. Patients cured at their own homes. 40,000 sufferers cured in 8 years.

Full particulars without charge, address

DR. WOOD BI-CHLORIDE OF GOLD INSTITUTE,
215 Powell St., San Francisco Cal

BOOTS AND SHOES
MADE AND REPAIRED.
THE BEST MATERIAL.
FIRST-CLASS WORK
Repairs done Promptly.
Prices Reasonable.
30-tf A. J. DAVIS, Independence.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES,
District Attorney,
—AND—
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
NOTARY PUBLIC.
Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "Independent" building, Independence, Inyo county, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR
AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
NIGHT CALLS ATTENDED.
Office and residence at the Johnson place, Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
(Graduate Physician)

DR. J. S. McQUEEN,
DENTIST.
Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery.
All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.
Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore.

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.

FRANK FITZGERALD.
Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and locked.
Allow me from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURCKHARDT

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.
THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.
THE BAR
Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.
JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

OFFICIAL.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 47.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY OF INYO, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. Section 7 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et seq., is hereby amended to read as follows:

SEC. 7. Every person who at a fixed place of business sells any malt or fermented liquors, wines or distilled liquors, whether on commission or otherwise (except vinicultural productions when sold by the producers thereof) must obtain from the Tax-Collector, and for each branch of said business, a license, and pay quarterly therefor the sum of Forty Dollars.

SECTION 2. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after Twenty-five (25) days from its passage.

SECTION 3. Section 9 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et seq. is hereby repealed.

SECTION 4. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same in the "Inyo Independent," a newspaper published in said Inyo County, at least two (2) weeks, said publication to be made said time, and before the expiration of said Twenty-five (25) days.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.
ATTEST:
{SEAL} D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 47 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 5th day of April, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Supervisors A. C. Freeman, W. H. Ultimeyer, John Wilson, Frank Fitzgerald, R. Love.
Noes: None. R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.
ATTEST:
{SEAL} D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

[Endorsed] Ordinance No. 47. Filed and Recorded this 5th day of April, A. D. 1893, in Book B of Ordinances at page 100.
D. J. HESSION,
Clerk Board of Supervisors.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 48.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF THE COUNTY OF INYO, STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DO ORDAIN AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. It shall be lawful for any person to hunt, pursue, take, and kill grouse, or sage hen, within the County of Inyo, at any time between the first day of August and the first day of January, in each year.

SECTION 2. Every person who, in the County of Inyo, between the last day of December and the first day of August, in each year, hunts, pursues, takes, kills, or destroys any grouse, or sage hen, is guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by imprisonment in the County Jail, not exceeding Sixty days, or by a fine of not more than Sixty Dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after Twenty-five days from its passage.

SECTION 4. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same, in the Inyo Independent, a newspaper published in the said County of Inyo at least two weeks, said publication to be made said time and before the expiration of said twenty five days.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.
Attest:
{SEAL} D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 48 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board on April 7th, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Frank Fitzgerald, W. H. Ultimeyer, R. Love, John Wilson, A. C. Freeman.
Noes: None. R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.
Attest:
{SEAL} D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

Propagation License.

Notice to Breeders.

THE ATTENTION OF STOCKRAISERS and breeders in Inyo County is called to the following provisions of Ordinance No. 43, Section 12:

"Every person who keeps a Stallion, Jack or Bull and permits the same to be used for the purpose of propagation, for hire, must annually obtain a license therefor from the Tax-Collector."

Parties failing to procure such Propagation License are guilty of a misdemeanor. Licenses are now due.

J. S. GORMAN, Tax-Collector.
Independence, April 6, 1893.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STAR, LANE CO., OREGON, Feb. 8th, 1892.
Dr. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Dear Sirs:—I have used your KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE for the last twelve years never being without it but a few weeks in that time and I have made several wonderful cures with it. I cured a Curb of long standing. Then I had a four year old colt badly Sweenied; tried every thing without any benefit, so I tried your liniment, and in a few weeks he was well and his shoulder filled up all right, and the other, a four year old that had a Thoroughpin and Blood Spavin on the same joint, and to-day no one can tell which leg it was on. These statements can be proven, if necessary; the four year olds are now seven and can be seen any day at Cottage Grove, Or. S. Z. PAXTON.

—Price $1.00 per bottle.—
DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.
Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.

$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.

It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer with out cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.

Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.

For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address

ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country house. We order only First-Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.
Winter Apples ..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes ..... 12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches ..... 10 cts
Dried Apples ..... 10 cts
Other varieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.
THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines, Liquors, & Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSFIELD, opposite the Southern Hotel.
Prompt and careful treatment given and the easiest possible pain inflicted. Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATES AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce Street New York

P. W. FORBES. P. H. MACK
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY the 8th day of March, 1892, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South-east corner of the south east quarter of North east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98-100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of the Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hahhah, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lots Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode, situate, lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispricada Lode."

That certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the North west quarter and the North east quarter of Section No. twelve (12), and the South east quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South sixty-eight and eleven twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence Northwesterly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty-four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North East quarter and the South-east quarter, and the North-west quarter and the North east quarter of the Northwest quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-four and eleven twentieth (44 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres: Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georgetown, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney, at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER,
Executor of the Last will and Testament of John Allen Hannah deceased.
Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1893.

J. W. Murphy.
BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence.

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumers should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 9 1894.
n47tf

$6000.00 a year is being made by John H. Goodwin, Troy, N. Y., at work for us. Reader, you may not make as much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from $5 to $10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages. In any part of America, you can commence at home, giving all your time or spare moments only to the work. All is new. Great pay SURE for every worker. We start you, furnishing everything. EASILY, SPEEDILY learned. PARTICULARS FREE. Address at once, GEORGE STINSON & CO., PORTLAND, MAINE.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, MAY 19 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman .....A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman.....P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge.....GEO. M. GILL
Sheriff..... JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk.....DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney.....P. W. FORBES.
Assessor.....P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer.....W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner.....H. H. HOWELL
Surveyor (endorsed).....JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools.....J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist.....ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist.....A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist.....W. H. UHLMEYER
4th Supervisor Dist.....JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist..FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Rev. H. J. Winsor will preach on Sunday at Lone Pine 11 a. m.; Georges Creek, 2:30 p. m.; Independence 7 p. m.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

TUESDAY, May 9th.

Island vs. Crapo—Issued writ of attachment.

Estate of John Wallace, deceased—Application for letters of administration.

WEDNESDAY, May 17th.

Estate of John Wallace, deceased—Filed petition of Matilda Wallace for letters of administration.

DIED

REYNOLDS—Near Independence, May 12th, 1893, Mrs. Elizabeth Reynolds, aged 26 years.

Bar Silver, 83¾. Lead 4¾.

The weather has been quite cold for the past two days.

Bert. Rhine got back last Monday from a visit to San Francisco.

The total amount of delinquent taxes is less this year than ever before.

John Stubbs, Grand Master of the Masonic Order of Nevada, is dead.

See the assignee's notice of sale of personal property in another column.

About 3,000 head of cattle left this section early in the week for Long Valley.

Webb Walker estimates that he will collect about $6,000 for sheep licenses this year.

Miss Ray Bell started for the East last week, where she will make an extended visit with relatives.

Sheriff Gorman is busy getting out the delinquent tax list. It will be published in this paper the first week in June.

L. F. J. Wrinkle came up from Keeler last Sunday. He went to Fish Springs to do some surveying on the Yerington ranch.

The family of W. O. Meroney of Bishop passed through town early this morning on their way to Fresno county for a short visit.

A private letter from Los Angeles confirms the report that a contract has been let for a broad gauge railroad to Independence.

The Buddists have 32 hells in their religion. Some of them have lately been scattered around here, judging from the weather.

W. L. Coats was in town last Tuesday on his way to Bishop with a band of bucks. He has been on the other side of the mountains since last fall.

Charley Turner, who has taught the Milton school for the past two terms, started for New York last week, where he will attend the Cooper Institute.

Al. Goodman started for San Francisco yesterday morning. He came to Independence several months ago in very poor health and returns greatly improved.

Riverside County is now an entity. Residents of the proposed county voted on the question last week, and decided by a large majority in favor of separate organization.

I. W. Gardner, of Gardner & Zellner, music dealers, Los Angeles, will be in town in a few days with a fine lot of pianos and organs. Easy terms and good instruments will be offered.

C. A. Walters of Camp Independence marketed the first strawberries of the season last Tuesday, kindly remembering this office. Mr. Walters has a large patch of fine berries and will supply customers regularly.

J. Cardinell passed through town early in the week with about thirty head of young horses for the Los Angeles market. Mr. Cardinell has made a number of trips with a similar quality of stock and has always met with success.

Jim Burns met with a severe accident last Sunday. He was at a rodeo near town riding a bronco. The animal commenced to buck and fell over a cow, knocking Burns senseless. He was brought to town in a wagon and was around again in a day two.

Henry Levy and William Avery got home yesterday morning from their trip to the Coso Springs. They expected to have been gone for a longer time but Mr. Avery's health became so alarming that they were compelled to return. The rest of the party are expected to-morrow.

A Sad Occurrence.

On Saturday last word was brought to Independence that Mrs. E. J. Reynolds had died very suddenly that morning at her father's residence about seven miles from town. Dr. L. L. Woodin was called and stated that the death was caused by paralysis of the heart. On the evening before the deceased retired as usual, her four months old baby and a younger sister sleeping with her. About 10 o'clock her mother, Mrs. Davies, went into the room and chatted awhile, everything being the same as usual. About 2 o'clock in the morning Mr. Davies heard the younger sister call, "Bessie, Bessie, Bessie," and rose, lighted a candle and went into the room. As he entered the door he heard the deceased give one long breath and by the time he reached the bedside all was still. Her hands were folded peacefully across her breast, the features were in complete repose, as death came upon her without warning and brought her life to an instant close. Her husband, Edward John Reynolds, had left home about two weeks previously to work for B. F. Grey near Hawthorne. He was telegraphed for and arrived on Monday's train, accompanied by his sister, Miss Pressie Reynolds. The funeral ceremonies were conducted at the M.E. Church at Independence on Tuesday last, and the remains were interred in the Odd Fellows Cemetery.

Every Reason For Hope.

The Index says that but little confidence is felt here in the new railroad company, of which Frederick Stock is President and O. A. Vickrey Secretary. The Index is of course voicing its own sentiments, as the majority of people in this vicinity justly have considerable faith in the new enterprize. The company has already expended considerable sums in preliminary surveys and other necessary work. They have not asked for a cent of credit and are paying every dollar they owe. It is not reasonable to suppose that they are spending this money for their health, nor have they betrayed any lack of practical common sense. The work that has been done is absolutely necessary before a railroad can be built, nor do reasonable people expect Messrs. Stock and Vickrey to bring the railroad here behind them like spiders. So far from discouraging legitimate enterprise, looking for inaccuracies and seeking to keep capital away from here the Index should endeavor to promote the interests of the people of Owens Valley, which will be most surely accomplished by railroad connection south. The home people who patronize the Index expect this and it should be accorded them.

Justice Field Dissents.

Justice Field dissented from the decision of the Supreme Court declaring that the Geary Act was constitutional. The following appears in the telegraphic report: "Justice Field, who delivered the opinion of the Supreme Court in the first case under the Exclusion Act, also read a dissenting opinion. He held that there was a wide difference between the exclusion of immigrants and the deportation of alien residents and characterized the act in the strongest language as inhuman, brutal and violative of the Constitution in every section. He regretted to say that the decision of the Court to-day put back the clock of civilization and was fraught with the gravest dangers to constitutional liberty."

Special Excursion Rates.

INDEPENDENCE STATION, May 8, 1893.

ED. INDEPENDENT. Dear Sir.—The Carson and Colorado railroad will issue special tickets from May 10th to October 10th, 1893, Independence to Reno and return, limited to November 30th, 1893, at rate of $22.00, on account of World's Fair at Chicago.

J. F. BEALS, Agt.

The cyanide process, which is the method adopted for treating the gold tailings at Silver Peak in Esmeralda county, is doing excellent work there. From a private letter we learn that 90 per cent of the assay value of the tailings was saved at the last cleanup. This is certainly encouraging. Some failures are to be expected in the treatment by this process on account of the refractory character of ores, but we believe in time this method will be found both cheap and effective for the treatment of many ores in this section which will not pay to work by the old process.—Tidings.

District Attorney Forbes was at Bishop several day this week on Justice Court business. Jasper Williams was tried on a charge of battery alleged to have been committed on Gene Mallory's nose and acquitted. An Indian charged with horse stealing was held over to appear in the Superior Court.

S. B. Hines and John Snyder of Mason Valley passed through town Wednesday on their way to a point on the Gila river in Arizona. They had a six-horse team and about fifty head of work animals. Mr. Snyder was accompanied by his family and expects to make his future home in the Territory.

NOTICE OF SALE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY AT PUBLIC AUCTION.

On SATURDAY, the 27th day of May, 1893, at 2 o'clock p. m., in front of the Court House in the town of Independence, I will sell the following personal property at public auction.

10 head of horses.
9 head of stock cattle.
25 shares of the capital stock of the "New Stevens Ditch Co."
3 sets of harness.
2 wagons.
2 stoves.
1 hay press.
1 watch.
1 lot of tools

J. W. MURPHY, Assignee.

ANNUAL MEETING

STEVENS DITCH COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Independence, California. Location of works, Inyo county, California.

The Regular Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Stevens Ditch Company will be held at the office of the Company, at the town of Independence, Inyo county, California, on Saturday, the Twenty-seventh day of May, 1893, at the hour of Two o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing a Board of Directors to serve for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

By order of the Board of Directors.

P. H. MACK, Secretary.

Office—Independence, California.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ANTARE.

1st premium Trotting Stallion, 1891-2. Bred by S. L. Akens, Newman, Cal. Foaled April 6, 1887. Stands 15¾ hands high and weighs 1250 pounds. Color, mahogany bay with black points; no white. By ANTEROS, 6020.
1st dam, Sallie W., by Iowa Chief, 525.
2d dam by Tornado, 502.

ANTEROS, 6020.

By Electioneer, 125, the greatest sire of trotters living or dead; 125 of his get having records from 2:08¼ to 2:30. Among this number are Palo Alto, 2:08¼; Sunol, 2:08¼; Arion, 2:10¼ at 2 years; Nutbine, 2:31½ and Bell Bird, 2:26 as yearlings.

1st dam of Anteros, the great Columbine, dam of Anteeo 2:10¾
Antevolo, 2:10½
Antonia
Conrad
Coral, 2:18¾
Speedwell

Anteros is the sire of—
Doc Chesley, 4 years, 2:21
Nellie F., 4 years, 2:25
Anterose, 4 years, 2:25
Major Ross, 2 years, 2:30
Wilkeross, 2 years, 2:34¾
Entruria, 3 years, 2:33¼
Montgomery, 3 years, 2:37½
Antero, 3 years, 2:38¼
Bessie B, 3 years, 2:47
Anteorian, 3 years, 2:57
Antare, 4 years, 2:57

Antare is a "horse attached to a pedigree," possessing that quality so highly prized among horsemen, INDIVIDUAL MERIT, having the power to transmit both his color and form to his progeny. His record was made after trotting four well contested heats the day previous and is the fastest time ever made by any stallion ever owned in Inyo county over any track in the 18th District.

ANTARE was awarded the first premium over all competitors at the District Fairs of 1891-2. At the fair of 1893 we propose to exhibit an "Antare Family," of twenty five of his colts, and we challenge the owner of any stallion in the 18th District to exhibit one or more colts two-years-old or under that can compare with the colts sired by this horse.

TERMS FOR THE SEASON, $25 00,

Payable on or before August 1, 1893.

Mares from a distance pastured free of charge but no risks taken.

S. P. SMITH, Manager.

ORDER OF ADJUDICATION OF INSOLVENCY.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor.

J. V. Skinner, having filed in this Court his petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency from which it appears that he is an Insolvent Debtor, the said J. V. Skinner is hereby declared to be insolvent. The Sheriff of the County of Inyo is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account, and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an Assignee of his estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said Insolvent or to deliver any property belonging to such Insolvent, to him or to any person, firm, co-poration or association for his use; and the said Debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property, until the further order of this Court, except as herein ordered.

It is further ordered, that all the creditors of said Debtor be and appear before the Hon. Geo. M. Gill, Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, in open Court, at the Court Room of said Court, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, on the 9th day of May, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, to prove their debts and choose one or more Assignees of the estate of said Debtor.

It is further ordered, that the order be published in the Inyo Independent, a newspaper of general circulation, published in the County of Inyo, as often as the said paper is published before the day of the meeting of Creditors.

And it is further ordered that in the meantime, all proceedings against the said Debtor be stayed.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated April 24, 1893.

MAGY & LATHAM, Attorneys for Petitioner.

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing, Dry goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc.

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MUNEY

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" WARE.

WE WANT YOU

to act as our agent. We furnish an expensive outfit and all you need free. It costs nothing to try the business. We will treat you well, and help you to earn ten times ordinary wages. Both sexes of all ages can live at home and work in spare time, or all the time. Anyone, any where can earn a great deal of money. Many have made Two Hundred Dollars a Month. No class of people in the world are making so much money without capital as those at work for us. Business pleasant, strictly honorable, and pays better than any other offered to agents. You have a clear field, with no competition. We equip you with everything, and supply printed directions for beginners which, if obeyed faithfully, will bring more money than will any other business. Improve your prospects! Why not? You can do so easily and surely at work for us. Reasonable industry only necessary for absolute success. Pamphlet circular giving every particular is sent free to all. Delay not in sending for it.

GEORGE STINSON & CO.,
Box No. 488, Portland, Me.

HALE BROS. & CO.

A HARD RACE!

YOU WOULD HAVE ONE SHOULD YOU TRY TO BEAT OUR PRICES.

EMBROIDERIES—We are showing an immense variety in all widths grades and styles from gauzy swiss to heavy muslin.

FULL FLOUNCINGS—In swiss, lawn, cambric and nainsook both scalloped and hemstitched, ranging in price from 50 cents to $2.50 per yd.

HALF FLOUNCINGS—In all the above styles. Prices from 50 cents to $1.50 per yd.

ALLOVERS—Choice varieties in all-over embroideries, carefully selected patterns. Prices 40cts. to $2 per yd.

EDGINGS & INSERTINGS.—An almost endles assortment of each. Some especially dainty patterns for infants' fine wear.

COLORED EMBROIDERIES—In navy blue and turkey red with white work; also white ground with red or blue work, with allovers to match.

LACES—A leader for this season is Point de Ireland. We have a large stock and the patterns represent the cream of the market. These laces are suited for trimming a large range of dress fabrics. Ecru is the popular color as it is neutral to harmonize with most any color. The prices vary with the widths from 15cts. to 75cts. per yd.

Samples of all kinds sent free on application.

BOURBON LACES—Black silk Bourbon laces are entirely new and very taking in appearance. Prices run from 50cts. to $1 75 per yd.

CHANTILLY LACES—Colored silk Chantilly laces in an exquisite line of colors and new designs. Colors cream, white, maize, light blue, pink, navy, tan, gold brown, heliotrope, Eminence purple, bottle green, cardinal and lavender.

BLACK & CREAM—Silk laces in Guipure Spanish and Chantilly. The designs are new, and pleasing. They come all widths from very narrow to half flouncings.

FEDORA—Fedora laces in cream white. Some very beautiful effects we have ever seen. Send for prices and samples.

CHAMOIS GLOVES—Ladies cream white chamois gloves. A rapid seller among this season's novelties. Is soft and pliable. The wrists are bound in colors and buttoned with four large pearl buttons. Price $1.25 per pair.

BIARRITZ GLOVES—Ladies white Biarritz gloves, 8 button length mousquetaire, good grade and well made. Price, $1 per pair.

Any information we can supply is cheerfully given.

HALE BROS. & CO.

825, 827, 829, 831, 833, 835 K St., and 1026 Ninth street.

Sacramento, Calif.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS. WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neihboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finger rings, Bracelets and all other kinds of jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the best quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

All repairing done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packages to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,

O-m RENO, NEVADA.

Scientific American Agency for

PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address, MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday.....January 28th
".....February 25th
".....March 25th
".....April 29th
".....May 27th
".....June 24th
".....July 22d
".....August 26th
".....September 23d
".....October 21st
".....November 18th
".....December 18th

THOS. C. BOLAND, W. M.
B. RHINE, Sec.

Freight! Freight!

BISHOP & MOJAVE

Through Freight Line.

George Meads,

PROPRIETOR.

Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:

J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.

Special rates given on car-load lots

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

DEALER IN

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Agent for

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:

Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE · CAL.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates

Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

Thos. Williams,
Proprietor.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

Customers supplied on all points Of the C. & C. Railroad.

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

F. W. BEDFORD.....LESS

Horseshoeing .....$2.00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see
F. W. BEDFORD.

INDEPENDENCE

MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROEPER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef,
Mutton,
Pork,
Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every effort made to give satisfaction to patrons. j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies

PROVISIONS,

&c., &c., &c.

A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

BELL'S

Flouring Mills

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

Independence, Cal. A. N. BELL.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, November 16,

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House.....	11:30 p. m.		5.50 p. m
Dayton	12:00 p. m.		5:10 p. m
Wabuska	2:05 p. m.		2:50 p. m
Hawthorne	5 50 p. m.		11:10 a. m
Luning	7:05 p. m.		9:55 a. m
Soda Springs.....	8:05 p. m.		9:15 a. m
Belleville.....	9:15 p. m.		7:55a. m
Candelaria.....	Ar. 10.00 p. m		Lv. 7:20 a. m
	No. 3.		No. 4.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Belleville.....	8 20 a. m.		5:25 p m.
Benton	11:50 a. m.		1:35 a.m.
Bisnop Creek	2:00p, m.		11:00 a. m
Alvord.....	2.45 p. m.		10:00 a. m
Independence.....	4:20 p. m.		8:30 a. m
Lone Pine.....	5:10p. m.		7:40 a. m
Keeler.....	Ar 5.55 p. m.		Lv. 7:00 a. m

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

At HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (3 miles), Lundy and Bridgeport.

At LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leavin Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville Grantsville and Belmont.

At CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver P Montezuma Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - Cal.

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer
Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of

WINES,
LIQUORS,
& CIGARS

The most careful attention given to the amusement and comfort of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-12 td

Inyo

Stage

Company.

REGULAR LINE

—FROM—

Mojave To Keeler.

FINE COACH
FAST STOCK.

The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful

Redrock Canyon

And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.

Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m

Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.

W. K. MILLER,
Propr.

The New Bread.

ROYAL unfermented bread, made without yeast, avoiding the decomposition produced in the flour by yeast or other baking powder; peptic, palatable and most healthful; may be eaten warm and fresh without discomfort, which is not true of bread made in any other way.

Can be made only with Royal Baking Powder.

Receipt for Making One Loaf.

ONE quart flour, 1 teaspoonful salt, half a teaspoonful sugar, 2 heaping teaspoonfuls Royal Baking Powder, half medium-sized cold boiled potato, and water. Sift together thoroughly flour, salt, sugar, and baking powder; rub in the potato; add sufficient water to mix smoothly and rapidly into a stiff batter, about as soft as for pound-cake; about a pint of water to a quart of flour will be required—more or less according to the brand and quality of the flour used. Do not make a stiff dough, like yeast bread. Pour the batter into a greased pan, 4½x8 inches, and 4 inches deep, filling about half full. The loaf will rise to fill the pan when baked. Bake in very hot oven 45 minutes, placing paper over first 15 minutes baking, to prevent crusting too soon on top. Bake at once. Don't mix with milk.

NOTE.—It is necessary to follow, precisely, the above directions, even to the size of the pan. Observe that water should never be added until the powder has been thoroughly mixed with the flour in a dry state.

Perfect success can be had only with the Royal Baking Powder, because it is the only powder in which the ingredients are prepared so as to give that continuous action necessary to raise the larger bread loaf.

The nutty flavor noticeable in this bread is due to the fact that no acid except that derived from the grape is used in the Royal Baking Powder.

Address ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 106 Wall Street, N. Y., for all further information.

General Bonilla, after his victory over the Government troops in Honduras, marched at the head of his victorious army into Tegucigalpa. He was received with enthusiasm, and without opposition was proclaimed Provisional President of the republic. He accepted the office and at once took charge of the Government.

THE NEW BREAD.

It is evident that if considerations of healthfulness in food and convenience in housekeeping are to govern, the use of yeast in bread making must become a thing of the past. It is an established fact that yeast produces the gas which raises the bread, not from itself, but by fermenting or rotting some of the most nutritious elements of the flour. The gas is the product of the decomposed elements. The loss of these properties is what makes fresh yeast bread unwholesome. The use of the Royal Baking Powder instead of yeast is found to make a finer, lighter bread, devoid of all dyspeptic qualities. The same gas—carbonic—is produced as where yeast is used, but it is evolved from the baking powder itself and not from the flour. None of the elements of the flour is impaired, thereby preserving the nutritive values of the bread, which is made more wholesome and actually anti-dyspeptic. The greater convenience where a batch of the finest bread can be made and baked in less than an hour with no danger of a sour or heavy loaf, must be appreciated by everyone.

A receipt for this bread is given elsewhere in this paper. The best bread makers after the old fashioned way will be particularly interested in trying this. To every reader who will write the result of her bread making from this receipt to the Royal Baking Powder Co., 106 Wall street, New York, that company will send in return, free, a copy of a most practical and useful cook book, containing one thousand receipts for all kinds of baking, cooking, etc. Mention this paper.

Christian Joachim Mohn, a Norwegian linguist, who was acquainted with more than sixty languages, most of them Oriental tongues, died at Naples last month at the age of eighty-five years. He used to be a familiar figure in the British Museum, and was well known in most Continental European cities.

You Have a Bare Spot

In your garden or back yard which will be a beauty spot if you plant Seeds of the TIMOTHY HOPKINS COLLECTION OF SWEET PEAS. They will bloom all summer as fast as plucked. A packet of Seeds of 21 varieties mixed for only 10 cents, or large packet each variety $1.50.

A GARDEN FOR A DOLLAR

For a Dollar we will send, postage paid, either of the following collections of choice plants, each collection consisting of distinct varieties of the number mentioned, and each plant on its own roots:

12 Roses, or 12 Fuchsias, or
12 Carnations, or 12 Geraniums, or
12 Chrysanthemums.

25 packets of seeds of different varieties of flowers or vegetables (your own or our selection), $1.

Send for our Supplemental List of Seasonable Specialties.

SHERWOOD HALL NURSERY CO.
S. W. COR. CLAY AND SANSOME, SAN FRANCISCO.

"August Flower"

My wife suffered with indigestion and dyspepsia for years. Life became a burden to her. Physicians failed to give relief. After reading one of your books, I purchased a bottle of August Flower. It worked like a charm. My wife received immediate relief after taking the first dose. She was completely cured—now weighs 165 pounds, and can eat anything she desires without any deleterious results as was formerly the case. C. H. Dear, Prop'r Washington House, Washington, Va.

DR. GUNN'S IMPROVED LIVER PILLS

A MILD PHYSIC

ONE PILL FOR A DOSE.

A movement of the bowels each day is necessary for health. These pills supply what the system lacks to make it regular. They cure Headache, brighten the Eyes and clear the Complexion better than cosmetics. They act mildly, neither gripe nor sicken as other pills do. To convince you of their merits we will mail samples free, or a full box for 25 cents. Sold everywhere. Bosanko Med. Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by Druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

LOVE AND WEATHER.

When, in the budding of the year,
To her of love I chanced to sigh,
"'Tis spring," she whisper'd in my ear;
"You'll feel much better by and by."

And when, in summer's golden hours,
I said my heart was all aglow,
She smiled as sweetly as the flow'rs
And murmured, "Summer, don't you know."

And later, when the leaves fell down,
And I rehearsed my heartfelt tale,
She said, but with a little frown,
"The day is dull, and you are pale."

I sadly waited. Christmas came,
And with the bells my love I told.
Said she, "This wintry night's to blame;
I'm sure you're suff'ring from the cold."

Oh, grant, ye powers of destiny,
That she and I may meet together,
In some strange land that's fair to see,
But wholly destitute of weather!

—A. C. Gahan in New York Sun.

Absence of Real Children in Literature.

The wise mentors in conventional literature virtually tell you that child literature wants no real children in it; that the real child's example of defective grammar and lack of elegant deportment would furnish to its little patrician patrons suggestions very hurtful indeed to their higher morals, tendencies and ambitions. Then, although the general public couldn't for the life of it see why or how, and might even be reminded that it was just such a rowdying child itself, and that its father—the father of his country—was just such a child, that Abraham Lincoln was just such a lovable, lawless child, all—all of this argument would avail not in the least, since the elegantly minded purveyors of child literature cannot possibly tolerate the presence of any but the refined children—the very proper children—the studiously thoughtful, poetic children—and these must be kept safe from the contaminating touch of our rough and tumble little fellows in "hodden gray," with frowzy heads, begrimed but laughing faces, and such awful, awful vulgarities of naturalness, and crimes of simplicity, and brazen faith and trust, and love of life and everybody in it.—James W. Riley in Forum.

Two Kinds of Pears.

It is remarkable that although new fruits come to the front every year there is not a pear yet that has been able to take the place of the Bartlett or the Seckel. The Bartlett is a European sort, originating in England and named there William's Bon Curetien. It was introduced into this country, and its name getting lost it was named Bartlett, after the man in whose garden it was when its excellent qualities were discovered. The Seckel is a native, a chance seeding found growing near the Schuylkill river, Philadelphia, and the original tree still stands and bears fruit.

The Bartlett is in season throughout September, the Seckel from the close of September and through October. These two kinds are no exception to the rule that the quality of all pears increases in value as the trees get older. The fruit from a full grown Seckel pear tree, for instance, is far superior to that from a tree fruiting for the first time.—Practical Farmer.

A Small Legal Fee.

The smallest fee ever taken by an English counsel was sixpence, that fee having on one occasion been taken by the late Sir John Holker. Barristers' fees were in olden times much less than those now paid. An entry occurs in the church wardens' accounts of St. Margaret's, Westminster, for 1476, showing that a fee of three shillings and eightpence, with fourpence for his dinner, was paid to Robert Fylpott, counsel, learned in the law, for his advice.

In Nare's "Glossary," a barrister's fee was stated to be an angel, or ten shillings. These are somewhat different figures to the 600 guineas paid to Sir Charles Russell three or four years ago at the Leeds assizes for less than three hours's work, or at the rate of over three guineas a minute.—London Tit-Bits.

Some one has noted the fact that July has been a fatal month to presidents. Jefferson, Monroe, Taylor, Van Buren, Johnson and Grant died in that month, and Garfield was shot in that month.

Robinson Crusoe's island, Juan Fernandez, is inhabited by about sixty persons, who attend to the herds of cattle that graze there.

Somebody says that "snoring is the spontaneous escape of those malignant feelings which the sleeper has no time to vent when awake."

The game of football played in American colleges and schools is not nearly so harmful and dangerous as that which is played in England.

Among the recent inventions in electric heating devices are hand stamps, curling irons, coffee urns and branding irons.

WON BY STRATAGEM.

By M. A. MAKINS.

I.

DEAR MISS ROGERS—It is some time since we have seen or heard of you, but I hope you have not quite forgotten us. I am sure you will be sorry to hear that our dear Alice is far from strong just now, and has been ordered change of scene and air; in fact, a few weeks' travel on the continent is what she requires. Unluckily, my husband is still so much of an invalid that it is impossible for me to leave him; but, remembering the fondness you have often confessed to me of traveling, I venture to ask you to undertake the charge of our daughter. Of course you will have no expenses, and we will make up to you the loss of your valuable time. Hoping for a favorable answer, believe me very truly yours,

"ROSE PATTERSON.

"P. S.—Alice is engaged to be married to a Mr. Vanbruton; the match is all we could wish."

The lady to whom this letter was addressed read it through carefully twice, and then, still keeping it open in her hand, she turned to speak to her companion, a man who was occupying the only armchair in a very meagerly furnished sitting room.

"I have an invitation here," she said, "I think I shall accept it." This elicited no response except a grunt, so Miss Rogers continued: "It is from Mrs. Patterson, a lady I met two or three years ago; she wishes me to chaperon her daughter, to go abroad with her. What do you say to it, Dick?"

Her brother, thus appealed to, removed his pipe from his mouth, and regarded his sister intently. She was worth looking at, but was by no means a handsome woman; her hair was a dull black, and her eyebrows were too thick, while her eyelids drooped, so that her eyes, her best feature, appeared half shut; but her figure was good, and her hands and feet small, altogether she was interesting, and although always pronounced plain, she often received more attention than many better looking women.

"You evidently intend to go," replied her brother; "so, whatever I said would not make any difference to your plans, but my opinion is that Mrs. Patterson is a rash woman, and that I should hardly choose you, my dear Anna, as duenna to my only daughter."

Miss Rogers did not appear to be offended at this candid but not flattering opinion of her merits, but proceeded to make observations on the letter.

"She will pay all my expenses and make up to me the loss of my valuable time. Very valuable, is it not? It is chiefly spent sitting here, waiting for pupils who never come. Miss Patterson is engaged. The match is all they could wish; so I conclude this Mr. Vanbruton is wealthy."

"You had better answer it at once," said Dick, "and find out how soon you are going, and other particulars; and, Anna," he added, crossing the room and touching her affectionately on the shoulder, "your luck is on the turn; don't abuse it."

"What do you mean?" asked his sister coldly.

"I mean, that with you good luck invariably means—mischief. You know, I never interfere with your arrangements, but for once, I entreat you, be straightforward, and don't attempt to fool these people, who wish to do you a kindness."

Anna laughed. "Have you taken to preaching, Dick? Surely it will be a case of the blind leading the blind! Besides, I am not so sure about the intended kindness. You hire a servant, because you wish for some one to work for you, and you pay that servant, not because it is a kindness but because it is a necessity. If I recollect Miss Patterson rightly, she will consider me as a sort of upper servant and treat me accordingly."

"Then, my dear, if I were you, I should certainly refuse the place," replied Dick promptly. "We are not precisely beggars, so you can choose which you would rather do."

"I have made up my mind and shall go. It would be folly to throw away a good chance for fear of a little unpleasantness," said Anna, and seated herself at the table to write her answer. Dick went to the window and surveyed the grimy view of innumerable chimney pots and the back gardens of the houses opposite. Presently he remarked:

"I am trying to think what is your 'good chance' in this expedition, but I give it up, unless it is that you expect to pick up a husband."

"Perhaps you have guessed it," murmured his sister sweetly, "although you have worded it coarsely. However, I advise you not to trouble yourself about it, and if you are going out, please post this letter."

He took the letter, and bent down and kissed her, saying gently, "I am not a particularly good man, Anna, but I doubt if you will ever find a husband as sincerely fond of you as I am. You see, I have the advantage or disadvantage of being thoroughly acquainted with all your faults, and yet my affection doesn't cool." And laughing a little at himself for displaying such unwonted feelings, he swaggered to the door, and went out, slamming it after him. Miss Rogers' hard face had softened considerably during her brother's brief harangue.

"He may not be a good man, and I am certainly a worse woman, but I think nothing will ever come between us, dear old Dick," she thought. "Still, I shall keep to my little plan. 'Every man for himself,' etc." And Miss Rogers rang the bell to order her tea, a liking for which beverage surely both good and bad women agree in.

* * * * * *

Haythorpe Manor was a large, square built house of by no means a picturesque exterior, but very spacious and comfortable within. It had no rambling corridors, or old oak staircases; no deep window seats or other romantic nooks, and, above all, no odd little steps in dark and unexpected places, giving terrible shocks to the nervous systems of the uninitiated, who unwarily approach them, and either stumble up or stumble down, as the case may be. The owner, Mr. Patterson, who had built this house, was exceedingly matter-of-fact, and preferred what he called "solid comfort" to uncomfortable picturesqueness, and considered that new built houses should be new fashioned and not old. The hall, however, combined something of the picturesque with all the comfort, and was the favorite sitting room in the house. Mrs. and Miss Patterson were sitting here one hot afternoon towards the end of July, the former busily knitting a woolen stocking, which made one warm even to look at, and the latter lazily swinging herself to and fro in a rocking chair.

"I wish, Alice," observed Mrs. Patterson, laying down her stocking and surveying her daughter with a disapproving air. "I wish you could find something to do; the heat is not so great but that you might exert yourself a little."

Alice opened her pretty blue eyes and stopped rocking.

"I am exerting myself terribly," she replied. "I am composing, not an ode, but a letter to my beloved. Are you satisfied, mother dear?"

"I think you speak of Mr. Vanbruton in a very flippant way," said Mrs. Patterson severely. "Does he not do everything he can to please you? and you are very capricious. You really hardly deserve such a man."

"He is a dear old thing, and I am very fond of him," replied Mr. Vanbruton's fiancee carelessly. "But you can hardly expect me to be passionately in love with him; he has twenty thousand a year, but he is eighteen years my senior, and is already getting stout." And she shut her eyes as if she had discussed the subject sufficiently.

Her mother was silent for a few moments, and then said gently:

"Are you sure, dear, that you have quite given up thinking of that other—of Mr. Mayne?"

The girl moved her head restlessly and her face flushed.

"Mother," she replied gently, "is not that subject tabooed? We agreed not to refer to Gerald Mayne again. I only remember that in six months I become Mr. Vanbruton's wife, that to-morrow I go abroad, and that Miss Rogers may arrive at any minute."

"Dear me! So she will. I do hope, Alice, that you have got over your absurd prejudice against her, and that at least you will be tolerably cordial to her."

"I don't suppose we shall quarrel, but I shall never like her. There is the carriage coming up the drive." Miss Patterson rose from her chair and sauntered to the window which overlooked the front park.

"Her luggage won't trouble us much in being over weight," she remarked.

"She has one box which would be just large enough to hold my hats."

Half an hour later Mrs. Patterson and her guest were sitting alone in the former's boudoir.

Miss Rogers hardly looked as if she had just arrived after a rather tedious journey. Tidiness was her great, some people said her only, virtue, and her worst enemy could not say that she ever looked anything but neat.

"Yes, we are very pleased about her engagement," the fond mother was saying. "Though she has money of her own, we could never have dreamt of allowing her to marry a man with none, and Mr. Vanbruton is very wealthy, and has been most generous as to settlements."

Miss Rogers' dark eyes flashed, but she said indifferently, "Quite a paragon! and does his face equal his fortune?"

"Different people have different tastes," replied Mrs. Patterson stiffly. "His is a good, clever face, which is better to my mind than mere physical beauty."

"Is he young?" inquired Miss Rogers, mentally noting that he was plain.

"Of course, of course, but as you will probably meet him abroad, you will be able to judge for yourself," said Mrs. Patterson, growing rather impatient at being so catechised, and then growing confidential, she continued: "I must tell you that dear Alice had one slight penchant for another gentleman, but we forbade the match, as he had absolutely next to no money. She is sincerely attached to her future husband, but I do not think it wise ever to let her mind dwell on him, the other, you know; so you must watch her, and see that she is always amused, and does not mope. I am sure you understand, and now I will show you your room, as you must require some rest before tea."

Mrs. Patterson led the visitor through the hall and up stairs, and showed her into a large, airy bedroom, with windows overlooking the woods which skirted the park; and with the usual polite hope that she would be comfortable, left her alone.

Miss Rogers divested herself of her bonnet and cloak, and, without even glancing at the glass, placed herself at the writing table and proceeded to write to her brother. She wrote steadily and filled one sheet, and then tore off a fresh half and continued:

"And now, dear old Dick, as you are not here to scold me, I will confide to you my little plan. I hear that in every probability we shall meet this millionaire, Mr. Vanbruton, during our sojourn at Lucerne. Miss Alice, who has a nice little fortune of her own, was once, and I believe is still, in love with a gentlemanly pauper, but the stern parents have sent the said pauper about his business. Why should not I do evil that good may come? Why should not I fascinate her present fiance and marry him myself, while, to soothe her jilted feelings, Miss Patterson's parents will unite her to her impecunious sweetheart, and we shall all be happy ever after?" Miss Rogers broke off here and thought awhile. The window was open, and the soft breeze stole in and played with the papers on the table and ruffled the writer's smooth hair. "I do not think I will confide in him, after all, suppose I failed, he would laugh at me." And acting on this idea, Miss Rogers pushed the extra half sheet towards the edge of the table, and, signing her name to the other, put it in an envelope and addressed it. At that moment there came a knock at the door, and involuntarily she called out, "Come in," and Alice entered.

The sudden draught caused the gentle breeze to become mischievous, and it scattered the loose sheets of paper about the table and on the floor.

"Tea is ready," announced Alice, advancing towards the writing table.

"Thank you. I will come," said Anna quickly, and began nervously to pick up the papers and sort them.

"Let me help you. I am afraid it was my fault," exclaimed the other.

"No, no, not for worlds—I mean please don't trouble yourself. I think I have collected them all now." Anna glanced at the bundle of papers she held in her hand, and, seeing one with writing on it, stuffed them all into the blotting book.

(TO BE CONTINUED

Remarkable Unanimity.

The remarkable unanimity that is so pleasant to observe between man and wife is nicely illustrated by the following two letters of the same date:

COUNTRY, Aug. 20.

DEAR JOHN—I am going to stay another week. Am having a splendid time. Affectionately, JULIA.

CITY, Aug. 20.

DEAR JULIA—You can stay another week. Am having a splendid time. Affectionately, JOHN.

For some reason or other she concludes to pack up and start for home immediately to see about his "splendid time."—Exchange.

Best Flowers for a Sickroom.

The best flowers for a sickroom are growing flowers, but cut flowers are more often obtainable. As to these latter they should first of all be fresh. They quickly decay, and then they communicate to the water in which they are placed vegetable juices which undergo putrefactive fermentation and render the air impure. Bright colored flowers are desirable.—Boston Globe.

A NOTABLE ANNIVERSARY.

April 1st, 1893, was the first birthday anniversary of the Sherwood Hall Nursery Co., of San Francisco and Menlo Park. To those who know what an important factor this Company has become it seems hardly possible that its enviable position has been attained in one short year. The success of this Company means a great deal besides a profitable business. The gentleman who founded the enterprise began with a determination to demonstrate that for the propagation and cultivation of trees, plants, seeds and bulbs the State of California had such advantages of soil and climate that she could stand pre-eminent. At Menlo, with which no spot in the State can compare in adaptability for this purpose, it is being daily shown that for purity and germinating power the Sherwood Hall Nursery Company's seeds are far ahead of any others to be had. The Timothy Hopkins collection of Sweet Peas has become famous all over the world; and as for the Chrysanthemum, the Queen of Autumn, the varieties raised at Sherwood Hall far surpass in fineness of texture, size of bloom, brilliancy and variety of coloring the products of even sunny Japan, its native place. California is the best State for seed raising and the Sherwood Hall Nursery Co. already stands first in the State.

She (hotly)—Why do men always lie to women? He (cynically)—Well, the women always insist on complimentary things being said to them, don't they?

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA.

Senator James F. Pierce, of New York, writes:

"For the past two years I have suffered very much from an aggravated form of nervous dyspepsia. I have resorted to various remedial agents, deriving but little benefit. A few months since a friend of mine suggested the trial of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. Following the suggestion, I have been using the same with the happiest effects. To those similarly afflicted let me suggest the manner of their use. I place one over my stomach, one over the hepatic region, and one on my back. The effect is excellent. From the day I commenced their use have been slowly but surely improving, and am quite confident that by continuing I shall again be restored to my accustomed health."

A wise and good man does nothing for appearance, but everything for the sake of having acted well.

A NEW SHORTHAND MACHINE.

THE PACIFIC STENOGRAPHER, the only journal published on the Pacific Coast devoted to Shorthand, Typewriting and Telegraphy, edited by C. S. Merrill, law reporter and principal of the popular Merrill College of Shorthand, Typewriting and Telegraphy, 609 Market street, San Francisco, is a magazine well worth sending for. Send a postal card and receive a sample copy in return.

Be discreet about all things, and so render it unnecessary to be mysterious about any.

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED.

We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Porterfield & Losey, 838 Market street, San Francisco.

In my own city my name is a household word, but in a strange city my clothes seem to make more impression than do the clothes of me a respect.

Throat Diseases commence with a Cough, Cold, or Sore Throat. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" give immediate relief. Sold only in boxes. Price 25 cts.

Learn to say "No;" it will be of more use to you than to be able to read Latin.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

JUST A LITTLE

Pain neglected, may become

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO.

Just a little

SPRAIN

may make a cripple.

Just a little

BRUISE

may make serious inflammation.

Just a little

BURN

may make an ugly scar.

Just a little

COST

will get a bottle of

ST. JACOBS OIL,

A PROMPT and PERMANENT CURE.

Years of Comfort against Years of Pain for

JUST A LITTLE.

A copy of the "Official Portfolio of the World's Columbian Exposition," descriptive of Buildings and grounds, beautifully illustrated, in water color effects, will be sent to any address upon receipt of 10c. in postage stamps by THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., BALTIMORE, MD.

It is very difficult to convince children that a medicine is "nice to take"—this trouble is not experienced in administering of Cod Liver Oil. It is almost as palatable as milk. No preparation so rapidly builds up good flesh, strength and nerve force. Mothers the world over rely upon it in all wasting diseases that children are heir to.

Scott's Emulsion

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

THE CORK FACED HORSE COLLAR

Prevents the Horse from having a sore or galled neck. Cool and elastic, requiring no sweat collar. Ask your local saddlery shop for it. If they do not have it, send your order to

MAIN & WINCHESTER,
214, 216, 218 & 220 Battery Street,
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA.

Send your address for descriptive circular.

S. F. N. U. No. 565. New Series No. 16

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

O grant me, Heaven, a middle state,
Neither too humble, nor too great;
More than enough for Nature's ends,
With something left to treat my friends.

PREVENTING FUTURE MISERY.

If there is, in this vale of tears, a more prolific source of misery than the rheumatic twinge, we have yet to hear of it. People are born with a tendency to rheumatism, just as they are with one to consumption or to scrofula. Slight causes may develop this. As soon as the agonizing complaint manifests itself, recourse should be had to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which checks its further inroads and banishes the rheumatic poison from the system. This statement tallies exactly with the testimony of physicians who have employed this fine blood depurent in their private practice. There is also the amplest professional and general testimony as to the efficacy of the Bitters for malaria, liver complaint, constipation, indigestion, kidney trouble, nervousness and loss of appetite and flesh. After a wetting, whether followed by a cold or not, the Bitters is useful as a preventive of the initial attack of rheumatism.

True dignity is never gained by place, and never lost when honors are withdrawn.

BEWARE OF OINTMENTS FOR CATARRH THAT CONTAIN MERCURY,

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

☞ Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

A sound discretion is not so much indicated by never making a mistake as by never repeating it.

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell.

A TIRED WOMAN, just as much as a sick and ailing one, needs Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. That builds up, strengthens, and invigorates the entire female system. It regulates and promotes all the proper functions of womanhood, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength.

It's a powerful restorative tonic and soothing nervine, made especially for woman's needs, and the only guaranteed remedy for woman's weaknesses and ailments. In all "female complaints" and irregularities, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

A great many medicines "relieve" Catarrh in the Head. That means that it's driven from the head into the throat and lungs. But, by its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy perfectly and permanently cures.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail. Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE you if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER, 25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY.

Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50cts. Injector free.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

Hood's Cures

Sharp Pains

Short Breath, Heart Trouble, Rheumatism.

Mrs. L. M. Paine
Eagle Creek, Oregon.

"I have lived here in Oregon for the past twenty years, and most of the time have been a very great sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism. I have also had what the doctor called heart disease, with shortness of breath and sharp pains in the left side. I decided to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before I had finished three bottles I was in better health than I had been for years. I do not have any pain now, sleep well, and to-day no woman of my age

Enjoys Better Health

than I. At home on the ranch I not only attend to my family housework, but last summer I cared for and milked four cows. I do not feel that I can say half enough in praise of

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Mrs. L. M. Paine, Eagle Creek, Oregon.

Hood's Pills are prompt and efficient, yet easy in action. Sold by all druggists. 25c.

CHICKS INCUBATORS on installments Best Make—Lowest Price. Send for Catalogue. W. C. BEACH, Ripon, Cal.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

PATENTS BEST LEGAL ADVICE. BEST PATENTS OBTAINED. DEWEY & CO., 220 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO, WASHINGTON, D. C., LONDON, ETC.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BOSANKO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

BLOOD POISON A SPECIALTY. Primary, Secondary or Tertiary Syphilis permanently cured in 15 to 35 days. You can be treated at home for the same price and the same guarantee, with those who prefer to come here we will contract to cure them or refund money and pay expense of coming, railroad fare and hotel bills, if we fail to cure. If you have taken mercury, Iodide potash, and still have aches and pains, Mucous Patches in mouth, Sore Throat, Pimples, Copper-Colored Spots, Ulcers on any part of the body, Hair or Eyebrows falling out, it is this Syphilitic BLOOD POISON that we guarantee to cure. We solicit the most obstinate cases and challenge the world for a case we cannot cure. This disease has always baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians. $500,000 capital behind our unconditional guarantee. Absolute proofs sent sealed on application. Address COOK REMEDY CO., 1325 to 1331 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.

YOUNG MEN! The Specific A No. 1. Cures, without fail, all cases of Gonorrhœa and Gleet, no matter of how long standing. Prevents stricture, it being an internal remedy. Cures when everything else has failed. Sold by all Druggists. Manufacturers: The A. Schoenhoft Medicine Co., San Jose, Cal. Price, $3.00.

"IT IS IGNORANCE THAT WASTES EFFORT." TRAINED SERVANTS USE

SAPOLIO

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF

Moore's Revealed Remedy.

ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I certificate with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude, MRS. N. V. STEELE.

SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

For Simplicity and Success they beat the world.

HERCULES ENGINES

GAS AND GASOLINE — Stationary and Marine

Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question.

Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day.

No Engineer is necessary; easily managed.

No battery or electric spark to care for.

For pumping outfits for irrigating purposes they run all day without an engineer.

No double or false explosions, so frequent with the unreliable spark.

PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY

MANUFACTURER.

405 and 407 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

Independence, Cal.

FRIDAY, JUNE 2, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXIV. NO. 50. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JUNE 2, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1179

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$4 00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.00
One Month	.50
Single Copies	10

OUR MODERN AMAZON.

I'm trying on my armor, dear,
With which my battles are won;
I shall count some brilliant conquests before
The summer sun has gone.

Here's a white dress and a lily trimmed hat,
And a parasol like foam;
They'll make my eyes look darker yet,
As I fetch my prisoners home.

You would not think this simple silk,
As light as a sea gull's wing,
Could bring down many a knightly heart
In the lists of "summering!"

And here's a fan—it is not smoke,
But lace and ostrich feather;
It will be watched by eyes that ask
My fancy's wind and weather.

And here's a yachting suit that says,
Upon life's merry wave
I, like an admiral, shall win
Engagements brisk and brave!

And at this shoe, all tipped with gold,
A trembling slave shall stoop—
A vassal whom a rival queen
Lost in some waltzing group.

In short, when autumn once more hangs
The land with gorgeous hue,
I shall come riding back to town
In triumph. Wouldn't you?

—Rose Hawthorne Lathrop in Harper's Bazar.

Work of the Models.

In some of the smaller houses the models when not on dress parade do a little of everything. There is a young woman of southern extraction and the form of a veritable Aphrodite who is with one of the striving and thriving younger houses in the trade. She packs boxes, marks goods for out of town shipment when the shipping clerk is busy, and actually in the excitement of one busy day started to hoist a case up the hatchway.

I recall [illegible]ting a flight of stairs several years ago of one of the big concerns below Canal street, and on reaching the top saw a comely young woman stagger along the floor with an overload of long garments, and heard a man's voice call out in angered tones:

"What do you mean?"

Before the girl could answer, although her face flushed crimson, and before I could decide whether to punch the fellow's head or soothe the offended fair one, he had taken the bundle out of her hold and remarked not less severely:

"Now, don't you ever let me see you do that again!"

Then the young woman, who was blazing with indignation, saw that the words and deed were but the impulses of a considerate man, and she smiled through her frown. I have since come to realize that the protest on the part of her employer was not altogether unselfish. Perhaps it may have occurred to him then that a physically disabled wife was not desirable. At all events, he married this same model young woman, and they have lived happily together.—Cloak Review.

To Keep the Baby Well.

A baby in the country is under the best conditions possible to resist the effects of the heat. Yet the mother should be always prepared for emergencies. [illegible] leaving [illegible] —Elizabeth R. Scovil in Ladies' Home Journal.

Wore Eugenie's Jewels.

They like to say nice things about us on the other side of the water. The following is from a Paris letter, and its final sentence makes a not unlikely supposition.

"It is very strange that Americans who would not be received in the most commonplace houses of their own country think that their money will open all doors on this side of the Atlantic. An American parvenue had the bad taste to wear the diamond necklace once owned by Empress Eugenie to a reception given by Princess Bonaparte. 'What is her idea?' was the question asked by the French people. 'Does she think of showing her hostess that if the Bonapartes have lost throne and power she has gold enough to buy the jewels that once adorned the beautiful empress?' Perhaps this same American will some day find a crown for sale, and as her wealth has no limit, she may appear at a reception of H. R. H. the Duchess de Chartres wearing a diadem that once belonged to a queen of France."

Women Go Gunning.

It is becoming quite the thing for New York women to accompany their husbands or fathers into the woods in search of game. Light rifles and shotguns have been in unusual demand this spring. A well known Broadway gunsmith informed the writer a few days ago that he had not been able to procure enough women's rifles to supply the demand. "I have not sold so many guns to women in any season since I have been in business," said he, "as this spring and summer. The smell of powder seems to have captivated the fair sex, and the huntsman's fever has superseded the taste for archery."—New York Times.

The tomato is an excellent purifier of the blood, and the following is a choice mode of preparing it: Place the tomatoes in a Dutch oven for a few minutes before the fire, adding a very little vinegar. When they are warmed through [illegible] eat with any kind

A BROOKLYN MAN'S VALET.

Worked Cheap and Was Called Maurice, Although His Name Was Mike.

There is a certain Brooklyn clubman who is in sackcloth and ashes just at present.

This is his story—not told by him, naturally, but none the less true. Having a great desire to be a swell and living in modest bachelor apartments, our young clubman determined that he would not be doing just the right thing unless he employed a valet. His income was such that he was unable to pay for the services of a trained English or French valet, so he compromised on a fairly presentable young Irishman whom he could get for twenty-five dollars a month.

The Irishman's name was really Mike, but the clubman told him that from the time of his entering his service he should be known as Maurice. The Hibernian valet made no objection to this arrangement. Maurice was hardly an ideal valet, but he performed his duties with unquestioning obedience if not with intelligence.

One of Maurice's duties was to bring his master's meals in from a neighboring caterer, breakfast in the morning and dinner at night, when his employer was not invited out or did not dine at his club. About three weeks ago the afternoon mail brought to the young clubman a scented missive from a young widow on the Heights known to be beautiful and reputed to be very wealthy.

The note contained an invitation to dinner, and the young clubman was chagrined beyond words at the fact that he was suffering from a horrible cold, which had rendered him red eyed, red nosed and generally anything but an attractive spectacle. He was aware that he could not possibly accept the invitation, for aside from his appearance his conversation was punctuated by violent sneezing fits.

Still he delayed until evening before sending any reply to the note in the hope that he might become more presentable. At the last moment he rang for Maurice and gave him a note containing his regrets and bade him take it to the widow's house. At the same time, feeling that he was not so sick but that he could eat, he said to his man:

"Maurice, I am too ill to go to Mrs. ——'s tonight, but you can bring my dinner here when you come back."

It was fully two hours later when the valet began to serve the young clubman with his dinner. The soup, the fish, the entrees were all so excellent as to excite the young man's surprise, and when Maurice brought him a beautifully cooked bird he asked in surprise:

"What's going on at the caterer's tonight? He must have gotten up a dinner for a small and very particular dinner party."

"Oh, no, sorr," said Maurice. "I brought this from Mrs. ——."

"What!" fairly screamed the young clubman.

"Yes, sorr; I explained how you was sick and wanted me to take you home the dinner. I took my basket with me."

There is no use writing down what the clubman said; it couldn't be printed any way. Maurice contended, however, that he had been sent to Mrs. —— with a note and told to bring back a dinner.

In despair the unhappy youth told Maurice to go out at once and purchase at the nearest florists a handsome bouquet, which [illegible] was to take at once to Mrs. ——, with [illegible]rd, stating that a call and explana- [illegible]ld follow. The young clubman [illegible]ous and in too much of a hurry [illegible] intelligent [illegible]d to his [illegible]en exe- [illegible] was the [illegible]fifty cents." [illegible]ot?" [illegible]uet cost ten [illegible]d after her [illegible]oney." [illegible] clubman is [illegible]ver that may [illegible]ot rid of his Hi- [illegible]r and has sing- [illegible]himself. At last [illegible]red up sufficient [illegible] make his peace with [illegible]w York Herald.

What Maps Show.

[illegible] takes a little effort to learn to read the best maps. Their accuracy, fullness of information and artistic merit cannot adequately be appreciated by a novice any more than the beauties of a fine painting fully appeal to him who has not cultivated a love for the beautiful in art.

The hieroglyphics of the stenographer are living speech to him who understands them. The student will have mastered the art of map reading when he sees before him, not the manifold symbols of the cartographer, but the things they represent. The novice studying hachures, indicating mountains on a first class map, may derive no other idea than that mountains are there.

The map reader, on the other hand, can tell by the number and arrangement of the hachures what sides of the mountains are steep and precipitous and what slopes are long and gentle. He will recognize at a glance the long, gentle rise of ground between Omaha and Denver. The stretch between Cairo and the Nile cataracts will not simply represent to him so many inches on his map.

He is familiar with the various scales and instinctively turns the map distance into miles. If he proposes to make a long pedestrian journey in a well mapped country his map will give him a vivid impression of the work before him, for he has learned the art of recognizing the manifold aspects of a region from the symbols and coloring used by the cartographer to convey this varied information.—Chautauquan.

Savages of South America.

Two hundred miles beyond the mouth of the Rio Meta the Inirida river enters the Orinoco. I started up that stream with my canoe loaded with trinkets for exchange with the natives, who live in a condition of extreme savagery, although they are amiably disposed and usually harmless. They go entirely nude, save for the loin cloths, and get their subsistence by hunting and fishing, chiefly the latter.

I was much interested in their method of taking fish by their use of the bow and arrow.

For this purpose they employ arrows six feet in length made of reeds tipped with iron. While a canoe is paddled gently along in the shallows the marksman stands ready with his arrow on the string of the bow. As soon as a large fish is seen, if the approach can be made within range, the arrow is let fly and rarely fails to strike the prey.—Interview in Washington Star.

The Demands of Destiny.

Vamoose—Did you ever go to a fortune teller?

Van Arndt—Y[illegible] had to be identified. [illegible]on.

AN EXTINCT RACE.

Work of a Once Great People to be Shown at Chicago.

WONDERFUL EXHIBIT FROM YUCATAN

Fac-Similes of Gigantic Architectural Remains for the World's Fair.—Ruins of Uxmal.

Of all the departments at the Columbian exposition few if any will be more interesting to scholars than that of ethnology, and to Americans in particular the Yucatan and Central American exhibits will present many surprises. Scholars have thought it a reproach to the United States that its government and people have done no more in the way of exploring and searching for memorials of the ancient civilization, but there are almost insuperable difficulties in the nature of the country.

Hon. Edward H. Thompson, United States consul at Merida, after eight years' residence in Yucatan, has been detailed to arrange that country's exhibit at Chicago, the first time in twenty years that a consul has obtained leave of absence for such a purpose. He is a scientist of no mean order, has studied Mexican antiquities thoroughly and devoted most of his time while in Yucatan to the study of its ancient life. Much of what he has obtained will be on exhibition at Chicago, and in two or three years he will publish the results of his researches. For some months he has been having papier mache molds constructed of the ancient sculptures, and thirty huge cases of these molds have arrived at Chicago.

THE HEAD OF A SERPENT.

The ruins of Uxmal will be reproduced on an extensive scale, and among them will be a perfect facsimile of the temple and figure of the god Kukulkan, or the great feathered serpent. The body of the serpent is wrought in the stonework all around the building, and this will be represented entire. The original materials were principally marble and coarser varieties of limestone, and the work shows that the ancient Yucatecos possessed great skill in mechanical workmanship, though their ideas of art were but poorly developed.

The great forest or jungle covering the supposed kingdom of the ancient Mayas is about the size and shape of Ohio and covers portions of Yucatan, Guatemala and adjacant Mexican states. There once lived in that area from five to ten million people, according to Captain Del Rio, who explored part of it late in the last century, and Captain Dupaix, Brasseurdu Bourbourg, A. Le Plongeon and other recent explorers. The ruins of their cities are now spoken of as buried. They are in fact buried only in dense masses of tropical growth, of which the thorny shrubs and parasitic vines present the greatest obstacles.

In one instance it required a fortnight for a strong force of Indians employed by the explorers to cut their way along a street three miles in length, and after the vegetation is thus cut down the air is for some time almost poisonous. It is at all times, says Mr. Thompson, "very unhealthy work to penetrate those jungles, and many of the Maya Indians who assisted me died. Once indeed I came very near dying myself. These Indians are a very happy and contented race. They do not like work any better than the average aborigine, but I found them very useful in my researches."

One of the finest reproductions by Mr. Thompson will be that of an arched gate of the ancient palace at Labra. There are known to be remains of at least nine great cities in what is called Ancient Mayapan. Palmque, in the Mexican state of Chiapa, extends fifteen miles along the river Chacmas, and there fourteen large edifices handsomely built of brownstone have been "chopped out of the jungle," so to speak. Of these the one called the Palace has a raised foundation 40 feet high, 310 feet long and 260 feet wide, while the building on it is 288 feet long, 180 wide and 25 high, with fourteen doorways on each side and eleven at each end.

FROM AN ANCIENT TEMPLE.

Copan is three miles long and contains stone buildings sixty feet high, richly carved with arabesque designs. Quirigue, on the River Motagua, is simply a vast array of broken columns and monoliths, with no buildings standing. Mitla, in the Mexican state of Oajaca, is a similar ruin, but was evidently a splendid city. There is no certain way of determining the age of these ruins, for the tropical forest affords no guide, as do the old trees on the mounds in the Ohio valley. Certain it is that a great race once inhabited that region and cultivated those fertile plains, but passed away and left no literature that we can read. Mr. Thompson, however, like all who have explored and studied the country, is an enthusiast on the subject and believes that the secret of the lost race will soon be revealed.

Stutterers should read aloud from a book and pronounce each word very distinctly, repeating it as often as necessary, and it will be found that in time the habit of stuttering will have [illegible] disappeared.

The Ep[illegible]nch has decid[illegible]er with tea, [illegible]oodities wit[illegible]on the pa[illegible]

WOMEN AT ENGLISH RACES.

They Are Nearly Always Wealthy and Attend Because They Love Sport.

The women one sees at the races here are the women of the fashionable world, beautifully attired, escorted by gallants. They move about on the lawn, or preside at their luncheon tables under the trees or over their hampers in their carriages; they chat and promenade, take a light interest in the races, walk about the paddock and look at the horses, do the honors in a box or rest in their seats at the grand stand; but one doesn't see them hauling out money to put on a horse or chasing around to find out "what's good in this race." One doesn't see them consulting the tips in the morning papers, or Jack's tips, or anybody's tips, or in any way showing that they are afflicted with a severe attack of gambling fever.

The English women are the most charming feature of the English races. They, with their lovely toilets and holiday airs, give it the garden party flavor that helps to keep it a sport instead of a business.

But it's not in nature for them to always look on and never participate.

English women have a finger in the racing pie also. You'd hardly suspect it to watch them at the races, but they do. They are usually women who go racing for the love of the sport and who know more or less about the horses. When they want to bet they ask a commissioner, some gentleman who is betting for himself, or else some one they can tip for the trouble, to put a certain amount on a horse for them. No money passes on the course. The "settling" is all done away from there, and usually by letter and checks.

Women who bet heavily and continually—and there are such—transact their business directly with a bookmaker, just like a man. But this again isn't evident on the course. When such a woman fancies a horse she sends a telegram from her home the morning of the day he runs, making her bet, or she wires her bet—or "order"—from the course before the race. Usually, too, she's the sort of a woman who can retail the latest fashionable gossip in piquant style, while her equine "fancy" is adding to or subtracting from her bank account.

There are a great many English women who bet in this way, and who now and then stand to win tidy sums in the early books on big races. Then there's a lot of playful impromptu betting at places like Epsom and Ascot. I've seen ladies lean over the front of the boxes at Epsom and hand the shouting bookies who stand in line in front of them sovereigns and half sovereigns and name their horses, to give the day zest or "have it to say" that they were on a Derby or Oaks favorite.

And I've seen ladies going to and from the paddock at Ascot stop to have a look at the shouting ring, and go up to some bookie and make a bet "just to have the experience," and the bookie would be "as polite as a basket of chips," and the "experience" would be filed away with those other wonderful ones of hedged in lives, like a ride on Jumbo or a dash into the slums.—London Cor. Chicago Inter Ocean.

Native Wit in a Street Gamin.

Wit in the New York "young fellow," if sometimes brutal, is usually ready and often imaginative. An unmistakable oriental, in turban, baggy trousers, gay stockings and tinseled coat, sat on a bench in Madison square the other day, an object of interest to all the boys, and apparently not displeased at the attention he attracted. There came along presently, however, two rough looking young men, and one of them, pausing in front of the stranger, looked at him in undisguised astonishment. His first surprise over, he called back his fellow, who had passed on, and said, pointing to the oriental, "Jimmy, git on to this." The eastern stranger's splendor seemed to call up some strange picture in the rear yard of Jimmy's imagination, for his instant answer was, "Oh, Cinderella; pull his fringes."—New York Sun.

Fogg's Alarm Clock.

Fogg staid up very late yesterday morning, or very early, if you like that expression better—at any rate it was nearly 4 o'clock before he had roughly footed up the amount he would have to pay in hats and cigars and wine and oyster suppers and climbed into bed. He was to arise in good season, and set the alarm clock to ring "for all it was worth" at 7 o'clock. It rang with a vengeance, and fearful that it would awaken the whole household he reached up, smothered the bell with his hand and took the clock down into the bed to hold it until it would stop ringing. When he awoke again the bell had stopped ringing and he was still hugging the clock, which truthfully asserted that it was after 9.—Hartford Post.

Philosophy from a Child.

Two of the Virginians who have come to the Pasteur institute to be vaccinated against hydrophobia were in grave consultation. "I am sorry you told the doctor that he must not hurt you," said the elder, aged twelve. "I am sure you would rather suffer than die."

"No," replied the other, aged six, "I would rather die and be born again and not be bitten by a dog."

Savants have tortured their brains for centuries and not found truer philosophy, and the innocent say things that make the experienced turn pale.—New York Times.

A Grateful Old Woman.

A dean was visiting his parishioners when one of them, an old woman, [illegible] formed him that since they met "she [illegible] gone through a sight o' trouble [illegible] sister was dead, and there [illegible] job than that; the pig died [illegible] den, but it pleased the Lo[illegible] and they mun bow, th[illegible] Then the poor old lad[illegible] and said, "But there's [illegible] Allen, as I can say, a[illegible] the Lord's been pret[illegible]

A LAND SHIP.

Great Things Expected From it in Exploring African Wilds.

OVER LAND AND THROUGH WATER.

Forests, Jungles and Mountains will Offer no Obstructions.—Details of the Builders Plains.

Plans worthy of the authorship of Jules Verne have been undergoing a process of slow evolution in the brain of C. M. Lemery, of East Oakland, for nearly four years.

He has completed working drawings of a queerly contrived land ship, with which he proposes to roam through the undiscovered gold regions and the unexplored plains and depths of Africa, discovering long lost deposits of riches, the source of Solomon's gilded glories, gathering tons of precious ivory, revealing the unknown in books of travel and adventure, and generally winning wealth and fame if success shall reward his hopes.

His land ship is a big car of aluminum, strong and light, which is to climb mountains, jolt over logs, travel through forests and over plains, and like a duck plunge from the banks of rivers and lakes right into the water and speed uninterrupted to opposite shores. This contrivance would be at once the home, fort, shelter, means of transportation and traveling storehouse of the exploring party.

It is not the first attempt to combine a steam road engine and steamboat, yet the application appears to be an original one with Mr. Lemery.

Mr. Lemery seems to be neither an enthusiast nor an adventurer. He has no particular ambition to be a great explorer, and the whole thing is to him a business proposition. He is a quiet mannered man, thirty-one years old, and is a machinest and engineer by trade. He has been on the Pacific coast fifteen years, and during four years of that time was in business at Reno, Nev. He has spent a good deal of time prospecting for gold, and as a prospector he spent a good deal of time exploring the Sierra Madre mountains in Mexico.

About four years ago he became impressed with the idea that the Dark Continent was the one remaining new country where a poor man could get rich easily, and the idea has clung to him ever since. He believed that there was plenty of gold in African mountains forgotten or yet undiscovered, and he believes so yet.

He wanted to go there to prospect for mines, and in planning how he could travel long distances through an almost unknown country the idea of a steam engine to travel on land early occurred to him.

As strength and lightness are requisites Mr. Lemery proposed to build the land ship almost entirely of aluminun, which weighs 168 pounds to the cubic foot, while steel weighs about 475 pounds to the cubic foot. The cylinders of the engines would be of steel and much of the fittings and furniture inside of wood. The body of the land ship as planned is 50 feet long, 13 feet wide and 7 feet high.

It is to be made of aluminum plates one-fourth of an inch thick for the lower half and one-sixteenth of an inch thick for the upper half of the sides and the roof. In the rear end is a large space for wood, which can be cut and loaded anywhere, and the boiler stands abaft the center.

At the forward end are two twenty-four horse power cylinders working a shaft which bears a wheel outside the car at each end. By an endless chain the motion of this wheel is transmitted to a larger one between the two main wheels, fourteen feet in diameter, which are driven by means of chains passing over the driving wheel between them. The main wheels are built like a bicycle wheel, the spokes being aluminum rods one-fourth of an inch in diameter. The tires of the main wheels are eighteen inches in diameter. The large wheels have no axles connecting with the car.

The car rests on a shaft which passes through the driving wheels, and the main wheels are connected by a strong aluminum bar which supports the car and can revolve on the main shaft. The wheels could thus go over logs without elevating the car much, and the end of the bars bearing the front main wheels can be hooked up readily, making a three wheeled car, easy to turn around. The front end of the car rests on a single wheel, which turns readily in any direction.

At the front end is a drum, on which 800 feet of cable, to pull the car if necessary, or to pull obstructions out of the way, can be wound by a small engine for the purpose. The bottom of the car is a water tank, while another water compartment surrounds the outside of the car.

The interior is to provide living accommodations for twenty men. As a steamer the body of the car or land ship resembles on its bottom a flatboat or a scow schooner. A lever connects a propeller shaft with the machinery, and as the land ship climbs down into the water and begins to float, the propeller sends it onward over the glassy surface of some crystal lake, rippled only by the awful hippopotami. If the water trip be long the land wheels can be taken off and laid on the roof.

"You see," said Mr. Lemery, as he explained his drawings, "every part will be made so that it can be taken off very readily. I would expect to make from three to twenty miles a day with it, according to the troubles met in clearing away. They would be great in a forest, but I would avoid forests.

"Attached to this land ship I would have another car just like this except that it would have no machinery, and in it I would take a three years' supply of provisions and ammunition. The expense of an army of porters would be avoided. The car would be proof against the arrows of hostile natives, and in it we could defy thousands.

"Well, I haven't been able to figure closely on the cost of the ship yet, but I suppose one would cost about $20,000. I would like to get financial backing enough to build two of them and two supply cars in New York, and I ought to have $150,000. I would calculate on being gone five or six years. I would go mainly to prospect for gold. That country is full of it. No, I don't know just where I would go to look for it. I would go to most any of the mountains—perhaps the Mountains of the Moon. No, I do not know whether they have been prospected or not, but I don't think so.

"Yes, there's plenty of gold there. [illegible]lse did Solomon get his gold? I [illegible] a company of strong men wit[illegible] have three or fou[illegible]tor, a man to write th[illegible] and a scien[illegible]

Detecting Disease by the Eye.

It is perfectly possible, by means of the instruments of the Nineteenth century, to exactly learn the optical condition of an eye, to decide just what glasses, if any, are needed for its perfect working, and it is also possible to look in upon it, and by the appearance of its tissues and its blood vessels to decide as to the existence of serious disease when there are few other symptoms that point to it, when there may be none besides to be found in the body that positively prove it.

I may mention two classes of disease, one constitutional and the other local, which illustrate this statement. The eye mirror opthalmoscope is the instrument by which such things are settled. Bright's disease, a name carrying dread to many a household, is the constitutional disease to which I refer. In not a few cases the diagnosis of it is made by the examination of the retina with the eye mirror.

The expert will make no mistake if the eye gives evidence of it, for its signs are positive in minute bleeding from the blood vessels and peculiar fawn colored spots on the retina. The surgeon dreads to find them, because they are evidence of an advanced stage of the malady which prematurely destroys so many lives. Bright's disease is in fact a degeneration of many of the tissues of the body, the walls of the arteries being among them. In no part of the body can this degeneration be so readily detected as in the retina of the eye.—Cosmopolitan.

Pure Narcotic Death.

Under chloroform, as under all anæsthetic gases and vapors, there is a mode of death which may be called the final or natural. It need never be produced, and never could be except under the most unskillful management, and it is a long time in its progress. When death does occur in this manner it is by the slow extinction of the natural animal zymosis, and is illustrated, as to method, perfectly by the simple experiment of gradually extinguishing a candle in a confined space by introducing vapor of chloroform into the air that fills the space.

It can be illustrated also by the experiment of stopping ordinary fermentation by the presence of chloroform, and even by the simpler process of using chloroform vapor as a preservative of animal tissues from decomposition. All anæsthetics are open to kill in this manner, but that is the safest anæsthetic which puts out life in no other manner, which does not, that is to say, cause either of the reflexes of spasmodic character during administration.—Asclepiad.

When Jay Gould Was a Boy.

"At one time," said Mr. Woolhiser, who as a boy worked in the same store with Jay Gould, "while Gould was in the employ of Burnham he fell sick. My father, who was a general nurse and something of a doctor, attended him and brought him around all right. Not long after he recovered he met my father and said, 'You saved my life, and if at any time you are in need and I can help you I shall do so with pleasure.' Fortune has not smiled on my poor old father of late, and being in absolute need he wrote to Mr. Gould, telling him of his condition and asking for help. No reply was ever received. I think that our letters never reached Mr. Gould, or he would surely have helped us. I wrote to him only a few days before his death for the fourth or fifth time. Gould was always a good boy, and for awhile we slept together in the same bed in the old store in Roxbury. Jay never missed saying his nightly prayers before retiring."—New York World.

The Study of Philately.

Philately is a study. It is a pursuit that adds more to the life of the young collector than any other of his pleasures. Philately in the present generation is assuming vast proportions as an instructive science and is even now a formidable rival of numismatics. No longer is it called a mania or a craze, but a science teaching the geography, history, language and the morals of a country. Our philatelists are not mere schoolboys and girls, although they collect stamps, but men of mature minds; men well established in business and professions, men of sound judgment, intellectual and thoughtful men. And it is this fact that gives the young collector encouragement, the knowledge that such men do exist in the ranks of philatelists.—Ohio State Journal.

Raising Canary Birds.

In Germany the poorer classes are nearly all engaged in raising canaries. Several hundred thousand are shipped every year to all parts of the world. There is no industry like it in existence. The birds are strong and hardy and require very little attention; consequently among the peasantry every family has is aviary, which is a constant source of income, independent of the proceeds of their daily toil. The buyers for the New York houses make periodical trips through the country; the birds are bought and are soon on their way to America, where they quickly become accustomed to their gilded cages.—Pittsburg Record.

Shapes for Folding Napkins.

About 1650 Pierre David published the "Maistre d'Hostel," "which teaches how to wait on a table properly, and how to fold all kinds of table napkins in all kinds of shapes."

The shapes were: "Square, t[illegible] folded in bands and in the [illegible] double and twisted shel[illegible] double melon, sing[illegible] and chickens; tw[illegible] basket, par[illegible] in a pi[illegible]

WAR SONGS.

Two Poets Whose Well Earned Fame Will Endure for Ages.

FATHER RYAN'S EVENTFUL CAREER.

A Champion of the Confederacy.—Julia Ward Howe, Author of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic."

The faithful priest and ardent Virginian, Father Abram Joseph Ryan, was but forty-six years old at death, yet measuring time by its experiences he may be said to have lived two ordinary lives. He was in a way dedicated to the priesthood from his birth, for his mother was a woman of the most devoted piety, and even in his boyhood days in Norfolk, Va., he showed a marked tendency to the study and comtemplation of divine things. He had, however, scarcely completed his preliminary studies and been ordained to the priesthood when the civil war began, and he and his brother David were soon in the Confederate camp sharing in all the hardships of the soldier.

What a strange contrast does the life of Julia Ward Howe present! At first view it would seem that the supposed or conventional mentality of sex had been reversed; that the man was all fervent emotion and sentiment, the woman all hard, cold logic. She was from the start a Unitarian, he a Catholic; she the daughter of a well to do banker and a cultured wife, reared in comparative luxury and trained in the severest schools of fashionable self restraint, and he thrown at once upon a career of self denial and called to complete his education in the fiercest conflict of the age.

FATHER RYAN.

When the Confederacy went down Father Ryan was almost heartbroken. His "Conquered Banner," written soon after Lee's surrender and probably the best known of all his poems, is indeed a psalm of sorrow. He lived to become reconciled and to do good work as a journalist and lecturer, but realized long before his friends did that his span of life was to be short. On March 22, 1886, he entered the Franciscan convent of St. Bonifacius, at Louisville, and one month later died at the age of forty-six. Next to the "Conquered Banner" probably his feelings are best expressed in his poem, "The Sword of Robert Lee:"

Forth from its scabbard, pure and bright,
Flashed the sword of Lee!
Far in front of the deadly fight,
High o'er the brave in the cause of right
Its stainless sheen, like a beacon light,
Led us to victory.

* * * * * * *

Forth from its scabbard! How we prayed
That sword might victor be!
And when our triumph was delayed,
And many a heart grew sore afraid,
We still hoped on while gleamed the blade
Of noble Robert Lee.

Forth from its scabbard all in vain
Bright flashed the sword of Lee.
'Tis shrouded now in its sheath again;
It sleeps the sleep of our noble slain,
Defeated, yet without a stain,
Proudly and peacefully.

Father Ryan stood alone. Julia Ward Howe is but one—though by far the greatest one—of a talented and eminent family. As the wife and assistant of Dr. Samuel Gridley Howe, the philanthropist and inventor of the latest system for educating the blind, she would have been famous. As the sister of the somewhat noted Sam Ward she might have had a fame of a very different kind. As the daughter of Julia Rush Ward, poetess of the early years of America, she would still have had claims to public notice, and as the mother and teacher of Julia Romana Howe (Mrs. Michael Anagnos) she would have been entitled to the highest praise.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, MAY 26 1893

One of the modest New York lawyers whose knowledge of law was presumed by the Chinese Six Companies to be more profound than that of Congress and the late President Harrison combined has has expressed the opinion that the Supreme Court does not understand the question before it at all. The modest expounder of the Constitution adds that the registration act never contemplated the forcible deportation of Chinese. The latter statement is correct. The registration act did not contemplate the deportation of Chinese. It assumed that the Chinese would obey the law and thus save themselves from the penalty of deportation. It was not supposed by Congress that any considerable number of Chinese would refuse to register and thereby incur the penalty of deportation. If a deportation act had been passed it would doubtless have been declared an act of power not consistent with our organic law. But the real requirement was registration. Deportation was the penalty for neglect or refusal to comply with the law. It is possible that lawyers of the Choate stamp who encourage ignorant people to defy an act of Congress on the ground that it may be declared unconstitutional may be held to some kind of accounting. Is it consistent with the oath of a lawyer to induce a layman to disregard the law? A lawyer may accept a case against the Government and argue it to the best of his ability but he treads on dangerous ground when he advises his client to disregard an act of Congress. After inducing the Chinese to disregard the registration act on the ground that the Supreme Court would not sustain it, Mr. Choate cut a sorry figure before the court. He indulged in some lamentable talk about the hardship of deportation, while it was the hardship of registration that was before the court. The question the court had to consider was if the requirement of registration was unreasonable and in conflict with the constitution. That the Chinese Companies may consider themselves as swindled by Mr. Choate is quite possible. They relied upon his assurances that he could procure a decision that would release them from the obligations Congress had placed upon them. Possibly he thought he could. That he had very little ground for such thought appears from his failure to make a constitutional argument before this court.

There is no reason to doubt that President Cleveland and his cabinet are very anxious to enforce the Geary law, and there is equally little doubt that it will be enforced. It is a proposition of some difficulty, great labor and much expense, and the President and his advisors are men who are not liable to go off half-cocked. When Congress provided for the deportation of the Chinese it ought to have furnished the wherewithal with which to carry out its mandate. There is every reason to believe that our national legislators thought that the Celestials would obey the law, and hence the failure of adequate appropriations. As a general thing, special sessions of Congress are not popular with the people, but in this case we are inclined to think that the sooner Congress is convened the better. The tariff and Chinese bills could then be handled together. Under all the circumstances, an early special session is highly desirable.

One would imagine that every morning paper nowadays was a court journal. The movements of prin- es and dukes are recorded with as ttention to detail as if they on boxers or actors, who top of the ladder. every means in merican girl wears a d by

MOUNTAIN MISSIONS.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE "POOR WHITES" OF THE HILL COUNTRY.

A Southern Clergyman Refutes the Charge That Ignorance and Squalor Are Prevalent to Any Remarkable Degree In the Mountain Districts.

Sectionalists who desire to create for themselves a field of operations and an income in a charming and healthful southern climate not infrequently write very touching articles for the northern press on the deplorable condition of the "mountain whites" of the south and the need of "mission work" among them. Such persons, in descriptions of life among the mountains of western North Carolina and east Tennessee, "pile on the agony" in a marvelous manner. Sometimes they do it with an utter disregard for the truth. They represent the exception to be the rule, and picture scenes and conditions common enough in parts of the north and west perhaps, large cities as well as country places, but very rare among the people of the Appalachian region of the south. One would think from their accounts that the southern mountains were swarming with cave dwellers. The aim seems to be to perpetuate the ideas of that class of philanthropists who find a peculiar pleasure in contemplating poverty, ignorance and degradation in the south since the civil war.

Not long since The Sun noticed an appeal of this sort for aid to "mission work for mountain whites," showing that it was in effect a libel upon the people it professed to describe. Any person familiar with the Appalachian region of the south would see at a glance how absurd the whole thing was. The Christian Union for Dec. 31, 1892, contains a letter from Rev. D. Atkins, a Methodist minister of Hendersonville, N. C., which completely demolishes the "mountain white" myth. Mr. Atkins will be conceded to know what he is writing about. He was born and reared in the alleged God forsaken region of poverty, ignorance, vice and degradation. He entered college there, entered the ministry there and spent 17 years there as minister and teacher.

"As a Methodist minister," he says, "I have gone into the most out of the way places and mingled freely with all sorts of people in 20 counties of North Carolina and Virginia and in nearly all the worst parts of east Tennessee. I have visited these people at their homes, have eaten with them, slept in their houses and seen them in every condition." Yet Mr. Atkins has not once beheld the slum scenes Mrs. Paddock described in a recent number of The Christian Union. "Your correspondent," he says, "must have found some secluded spot I never saw, for in all my travels I never saw the things she writes of, and it seems strange that I should not even have heard of such things in all these years. There is poverty here and ignorance, too, but neither is in that prevalent form you would suppose from the article of Mrs. Paddock. You might live here an age and never hear of such savage and weird funeral customs as Professor Bemis, another correspondent writing from the south, told your readers about."

The situation is not such as was described by The Union's correspondents. Putting it in a nutshell, Mr. Atkins says of Mrs. Paddock's picture: "She has presented the very worst possible case that could be found in the remotest part and made it a sample of all the 2,000,000 here, so that if any one should receive an impression from such writing he would suppose no other kind of people could be found here."

As a matter of fact, the "mountain whites" are not a distinct class. Their ancestors, says Mr. Atkins, were not outlaws, but pioneers from the coast country. They generally own their farms and make a comfortable living. To say they hunt for a living is absurd. There is little wealth and not as much luxury as might be, but the people live decently. There are some log houses, three-fourths of which have windows. None are plastered with mud, as alleged, or without wooden floors. But few have only one room. Generally the houses are quite comfortable. All have good open fire places. Fuel is abundant and costs nothing, so that the correspondent's story of children "covering their limbs with warm ashes to keep from freezing" is specially absurd. The people, Mr. Atkins affirms, are already religious and moral. They observe Sunday and attend Sunday school. There is scarcely a district where there is not a school for at least three months in the year. Few persons are unable to read and write, and such cases are so rare as to excite surprise among the neighbors.

As respects the girls who were described as overworked and vicious, Mr. Atkins says not one in a hundred would know herself by that description. "The common virtues," he says—"chastity, honesty, truthfulness, etc.—are rather more prevalent than in other sections I have seen. The girls are healthy, strong and full of spirit. They marry at a good age, make excellent wives and mothers, and do much less hard work than their sisters of the north and west," and Mr. Atkins spent four years in the west. They do not work in the field. "It is by no means," says the writer, "the custom of the country. Home life is as pure as it is anywhere I have been." In a word, the "mountain white," with his abysmal degradation, is a myth and needs no "mission."—Baltimore Sun.

In Memory of Columbus.

A public library has been founded in Panama in commemoration of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America. Three hundred volumes were provided to start the library, and 300 more were donated by the Society Progresso del Istmo.—New York Evening Sun.

Might Try It.

Mrs. Binks—Do you believe that story a young woman swallowing a

Well, I dunno. Perhaps that razors were good ew York Weekly.

A Valuable Team.

The man from Saginaw was visiting the national capital to see the sights. One day, on Pennsylvania avenue, he saw a heavy, close, dark wagon, more like a black maria than anything else, and asked his guide what it was.

"It's rather strange about that," said the guide in the slowly didactic style. "You've been talking about the salaries of officials here, from the president's $50,000 a year down, but do you know the horses to that wagon beat them all?"

"That so?" said the Saginawster. "They don't look like they could earn more than $5 a day anyhow. I've got better horses than that to hire at $5 a day and feed."

The guide looked at his charge with pity.

"Why, my dear sir," he explained, "those horses draw millions from the treasury every year."

The Saginaw man wouldn't have it and said so with profane emphasis.

"But it is true nevertheless," insisted the guide. "That's the wagon they haul the gold and silver in," and the Saginawster looked at it steadily.—Detroit Free Press.

Whittier on Matthew Arnold.

Matthew Arnold went to see Whittier on his arrival, and it is needless to say that Whittier derived sincere pleasure from the visit, but Arnold's delightful recognition of Whittier's "In School Days" as one of the perfect poems which must live gave him fresh assurance of fulfilled purpose in existence. He had followed Arnold with appreciation from his earliest appearance in the field of letters and knew him, as it were, "by heart" long before a personal interview was possible. In a letter written after Arnold's return to England he says: "I share thy indignation at the way our people have spoken of him, one of the foremost men of our time, a true poet, a wise critic and a brave, upright man, to whom all English speaking people owe a debt of gratitude. I am sorry I could not see him again."—Annie Fields in Harper's.

Farce Comedies and Theaters.

A manager in New York—not the man one would have expected to say it, either—declares that farce comedies are working a general injury to theatrical interests: "To the legitimate theaters, because they are taking people away from them; to the public, because they are lowering standards of taste; to the variety shows, because they are being constantly recruited from them, and to the actors, as a class, because they induce a man to give up honest work and play at the gallery."—New York Sun.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ANTARE.

1st premium Trotting Stallion, 1891-2. Bred by S. L. Akens, Newman, Cal. Foaled April 5, 1887. Stands 15¾ hands high and weights 1250 pounds. Color, mahogany bay with black points; no white. By ANTEROS, 6020.

1st dam, Sallie W., by Iowa Chief, 525.

2d dam by Tornado, 502.

ANTEROS, 6020.

By Electioneer, 125, the greatest sire of trotters living or dead; 125 of his get having records from 2:08¼ to 2:30. Among this number are Palo Alto, 2:08¼; Sunol, 2:08¼; Arion, 2:10¼ at 2 years; Nutline, 2:31½ and Bell Bird, 2:26 as yearlings.

1st dam of Anteros, the great Columbine, dam of Anteeo, 2:16½
Antevolo, 2:19½
Antonia
Conrad
Coral, 2:18¾
Speedwell

Anteros is the sire of—
Doc Chreslie, 4 years, 2:21
Nellie F, 4 years, 2:25
Anterose, 4 years, 2:25
Major Ross, 2 years, 2:30
Wikeross, 2 years, 2:34¼
Enturoi, 3 years, 2:33¼
Montgomery, 3 years, 2:37½
Antero, 3 years, 2:38¼
Bessie B, 3 years, 2:47
Anteorian, 3 years, 2:57
Antare, 4 years, 2:57

Antare is a "horse attached to a pedigree," possessing that quality so highly prized among horsemen, INDIVIDUAL MERIT, having the power to transmit both his color and form to his progeny. His record was made after trotting four well contested heats the day previous and is the fastest time ever made by any stallion ever owned in Inyo county over any track in the 18th District.

ANTARE was awarded the first premium over all competitors at the District Fairs of 1891-2. At the fair of 1893 we propose to exhibit an "Antare Family," of twenty five of his colts, and we challenge the owner of any stallion in the 18th District to exhibit one or more colts two-years-old or under that can compare with the colts sired by this horse.

TERMS FOR THE SEASON, $25 00,

Payable on or before August 1, 1893.

Mares from a distance pastured free of charge but no risks taken.

S. P. SMITH, Manager.

WE WANT YOU

to act as our agent. We furnish an expensive outfit and all you need free. It costs nothing to try the business. We will treat you well, and help you to earn ten times ordinary wages. Both sexes of all ages can live at home and work in spare time, or all the time. Any one any where can earn a great deal of money. Many have made Two Hundred Dollars a Month. No class of people in the world are making so much money without capital as those at work for us. Business pleasant, strictly honorable, and pays better than any other offered to agents. You have a clear field, with no competition. We equip you with everything, and supply printed directions for beginners which, if obeyed faithfully, will bring more money than will any other business. Improve your prospects! Why not? You can do so easily and surely at work for us. Reasonable industry only necessary for absolute success. Pamphlet circular giving every particular is sent free to all. Delay not in sending for it.

GEORGE STINSON & CO.,
Box No. 488, Portland, Me.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.

Bee Keeper.

Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

Independence, Inyo Co., Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,

Sheriff and Tax-Collector.

INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,

COUNTY CLERK,

—AND—

Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,

INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES,

District Attorney,

—AND—

ATTORNEY AT LAW.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.

INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,

County Treasurer,

INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.

COUNTY SURVEYOR

—AND—

U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.

—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—

The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.

All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.

MACK & DENSMORE,

ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,

INDEPENDENCE CAL.

Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.

Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,

I. H. MULHOLLAND.

Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR

AT LAW,

Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.

(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)

Office and residence at the Johnson place, Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,

Physician & Surgeon,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

DR. J. S. MC QUEEN,

DENTIST.

Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery.

All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.

Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore.

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will presen the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.

FRANK FITZGERALD.

Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

FRED BURCKHARDT

Watchmaker & Jeweler

LONE PINE, CAL.

Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.

All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the oldstand "Mechanics Hall," Lone Pine.

FRED BURCKHARDT

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence . Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my ... which has been entirely rebuilt ... a style second to no one on this ... tains. A SPLENDID NEW ... LE provided for the amuse-

... E BAR

... most celebrated brands o ... rs and the Finest Havana

OFFICIAL.

Propagation License.

Notice to Breeders.

THE ATTENTION OF STOCKRAISERS and Breeders in Inyo County is called to the following provisions of Ordinance No. 44, Section 12:

"Every person who keeps a Stallion, Jack or Bull and permits the same to be used for the purpose of propagation, for hire, must annually obtain a license therefor from the Tax-Collector."

Parties failing to procure such Propagation License are guilty of a misdemeanor. Licenses are now due.

J. S. GORMAN, Tax-Collector.

Independence, April 6, 1893.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

THOMAS C. BOLAND, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM CRAPO, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Crapo, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the Complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36-100 Dollars [$337.36], on a balance of account for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by the Plaintiff to you in the County of Inyo, State of California, at your special instance and request; also for costs of suit, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36-100 Dollars, together with costs of suit.

Witness my hand and the Seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 4th day of May, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff.

ANNUAL MEETING

STEVENS DITCH COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Independence, California. Location of works, Inyo county, California.

The Regular Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of the Stevens Ditch Company will be held at the office of the Company, at the town of Independence, Inyo county, California, on Saturday, the Twenty-seventh day of May, 1893, at the hour of Two o'clock p. m., for the purpose of electing a Board of Directors to serve for the ensuing year, and the transaction of such other business as may come before the meeting.

By order of the Board of Directors.

P. H. MACK, Secretary.

Office—Independence, California.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE.

OWENS RIVER AND BIG PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Big Pine, Cal. Location of works, Big Pine, Cal.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT AT a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 18th day of April, 1893, an assessment (No. 7) of Twenty (20) cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary at the office of the Company, in the town of Big Pine, Inyo county, Cal.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on SATURDAY, the 27th day of May, 1893, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction and unless payment is made before will be sold on SATURDAY, June 17th, 1893, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

By order of the Board of Directors.

R. W. THOMAS, Secretary.

Office—Big Pine, Inyo county, Cal.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE

LONE PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Independence, California. Location of Canal, near Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

Notice is hereby given that at a regular meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 29th day of April 1893 an assessment (No. 4) of Twenty-five (25) cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the Company, in the town of Independence, Inyo county, California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on Saturday, the 3rd day of June, 1893, will be delinquent, and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before will be sold on Saturday, June 24, 1893 to pay the delinquent assessment together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

By order of the Board of Directors.

DAVID HOLLAND, Secretary.

Office—Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STAR, LANE CO., OREGON, Feb. 8th, 1892.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,

Dear Sirs:—I have used your KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE for the last twelve years never being without it but a few weeks in that time and I have made several wonderful cures with it. I cured a Curb of long standing. Then I had a four year old colt badly Sweenied; tried every thing without any benefit, so I tried your liniment, and in a few weeks he was well and his shoulder filled up all right, and the other, a four year old that had a Thoroughpin and Blood Spavin on the same joint, and to-day no one can tell which leg it was on. These statements can be proven, if necessary; the four year olds are now seven and can be seen any day at Cottage Grove, Or.

S. Z. PAXTON.

—Price $1.00 per bottle.—

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

BOOTS AND SHOES

MADE AND REPAIRED.

THE BEST MATERIAL.

FIRST CLASS WORK

Repairs ... c.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.

$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.

It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer without cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.

Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.

For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address

ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

D...
FOR SA...
Winter A...
Dried Prune...
Dried Peac...
Dried Apples.....
Other varieties of dr...
for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.

First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.

THE BAR

—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines,
Liquors,
& Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.

DENTISTS.

OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSFIELD, opposite the Southern Hotel.

Prompt and careful treatment given and the least possible pain inflicted. Address

WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS

A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATES AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.

To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce Street, New York

P. W. FORBES. P. H. MACK.

MACK & FORBES.

Real Estate Agents,

Address,

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY, the 8th day of March, 1893, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South-east corner of the south-east quarter of North east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98-100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of the Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 8-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7 & 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hahhah, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lots Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode, situate, lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispricada Lode."

That certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the North-west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12), and the South-west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South sixty-eight and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence North-westerly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty-four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North East quarter and the South-east quarter, and the North-west quarter and the North east quarter of the North-west quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-four and eleven twentieth (44 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres: Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney, at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and alis bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor upon the sale shall be made, balance on ... Superior Court.

Repaired.

HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH

Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence

EDWARD CHENOT

Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS Extensive Stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

....Consisting of....

GROCERIES,

PROVISIONS

Tobacco, Cigars,

WINES AND LIQUORS

FLOUR & GRAIN

Together with an Assortment of

DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING

ETC., ETC

Buyers and consumer should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

E. CHENOT.

Independence, Cal., March 9 1893.
n475tf

$6000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, Troy, N.Y., at work for us. Reader, you may not make as much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from $3 to $10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages. In any part of America, you can commence at home, giving all your time or spare moments to the work. All is new. Great pay for industrious work. All this ... We ...

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, MAY 26 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman .....A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman.....P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge.....GEO. M. GILL.
Sheriff.....JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk.....DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney.....P. W. FORBES.
Assessor.....P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer.....W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner.....H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed).....JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools.....J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist.....ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist.....A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist.....W. H. [illegible] CALMEYER.
4th Supervisor Dist.....JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist.....FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Rev. H. J. Winsor will preach on Sunday at Lone Pine 11 a. m.; Georges Creek, 2:30 p. m.; Independence 7 p. m.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

WEDNESDAY, May 24th.

Goodale vs. Hines—Filed notice of motion to dismiss injunction.

THURSDAY, May 25th.

Estate of Duncan Campbell, deceased—Entering decree of settlement of account and final distribution.

BORN.

PARKINSON—At Lone Pine, May 23, 1893, to Mr. and Mrs William Parkinson, a son.

Max Skinner came up from Mojave yesterday.

William Watterson of Bishop was in town yesterday.

Diphtheria is reported among the Indians at Black Rock.

J. C. Crocker came down from Big Pine on Wednesday, returning next morning.

Regular stated meeting of Inyo Lodge, No. 221, F. & A. M. to-morrow night.

John Reynolds is dangerous[illegible] typhoid fever [illegible]

[illegible] Wednesday from Empire, Nevada, and [illegible] opened a barber shop adjoining Irwin's saloon.

Billy Borgwardt arrived at Independence yesterday on his way from Bakersfield to Big Pine. He made the 200-mile trip on horse back.

Mrs. McBride of Hawthorne, who has been very ill with heart trouble at Keeler and Lone Pine, has improved rapidly of late. She was able to return to Hawthorne a few days ago.

Luke Regan met with a serious accident one day this week. He was going from Keeler to Lone Pine and in some way fell from the wagon, sustaining severe cuts and bruises about the head.

Yesterday four carloads of ore were sent over the C. & C. road from Minnietta. This ore belongs to J. J. Gunn. It is all high grade in lead and with an average of $125 a ton in lead and silver. There is plenty of ore in sight to continue regular shipments.

Miss Elsie and Master Julian Eibeshutz are expected to arrive at Independence on Monday's train. They both passed very creditable examinations in their respective schools. Miss Elsie received a graduating diploma and recommendation from the Denman Grammar School.

What is the matter with a Grand Fourth of July celebration at Independence? Big Pine celebrated last year, Bishop has the Fair this year, so that, to quote "Swamper", "to this peaceful and secluded hamlet should be relegated the task of duly celebrating the Nation's natal day."

Great improvement has been made on the stock and conveyances on the Keeler and Mojave stage line. The stage from the south gets into Keeler about 7 o'clock in the evening, and the stage to Mojave always arrives in plenty of time for the morning train to Los Angeles. Travelers are well pleased with the present condition of the line.

John E. Jones of Round Valley was out on the stage yesterday from Keeler for Los Angeles. Mr. Jones is suffering from vascular trouble of the heart and was advised that [illegible] a lower altitude than his home [illegible] Valley might be better for him; [illegible]

INTERESTING TO MINERS.

Every mining man in Inyo county is interested in the reduction works now building at Los Angeles. Last week C. Mulholland visited the works by invitation of the manager and gives the following report of what he saw and learned:

The company is organized under the laws of the State of Minnesota. The capital stock of the company is $500,000; the officers are seven Directors, one Secretary and one General Manager. The Directors are the following: John S. Sloane, President, Supervising U. S. Inspector of Steamships, St. Paul, Minn; Wm. Bostwick, Vice-President, Cashier Hudson River National Bank, Hudson, N. Y., F. S. Gardner Treasurer, Director First National Bank, Hastings, Minn. Wm. H. Scovill, Director, Scovill Manufacturing Co., Capitalist, Hudson, N. Y. Dr. H. Hadley Smith, Capitalist, Hudson, N. Y. W. R. Dorr, Director, General Manager Tin Plate Manufacturing Co, St. Paul., Minn. F. M. Endlich, Director and General Manager, Los Angeles, Cal.

The location of the works is on the east side of the Los Angeles river, in the city of Los Angeles. The tract belonging to company contains 17 1-10 acres and lies about half a mile south-west of the Sisters Hospital, a well known public building. One main line of railroad, the Terminal, joins the property on the north. The Santa Fe track is distant 1600 feet and the Southern Pacific 2600 feet distant. From the first named track a switch is already built to the works and machinery, lumber, stone and other material are delivered there. The other roads will build connecting switches to the works as soon as needed.

The entire plant was designed by Frazer and Chalmers of Chicago, under the personal supervision of the General Manager of the reduction works, and comprises the following: One smelter house, 60x45 feet; one dust chamber connected with same, 90x15 feet; one building 40x35 feet for boiler and engine; one building for sampling works, 60x43 feet; one shed for roasting furnace, 65x35 feet; storage bin to hold 500 tons of ore; a laboratory and office 26x24 feet. One smelting stack 48x120 inches inside measurement, capable of smelting 60 to 80 tons every 24 hours; one Root blower with separate engine and one elevator engine. The sampling room contains one large Blake crusher; three sets of steel shell rolls, two Bridgman automatic samplers and all requisite elevators, conveyors, belting and gearing of every kind to make the capacity of these works rate at 250 tons for every 24 hours.

The roasting plant consists of a reverberatory furnace having a daily roasting capacity of about thirty tons. This furnace is modeled upon the most improved plans which the experience of recent years has produced. The laboratory is fitted up with all the latest and most complete appliances, insuring rapidity and economy of work, as well as greatest accuracy in analysis and determination of metallic values in ores and products. This part of the plant is planned for a daily smelting capacity of 200 tons and is so arranged that it can be easily duplicated and form one complete plant of 400 tons daily. For the present only one smelting stack will be built but everything is prepared for the [illegible] two more. The works are now [illegible] refining [illegible] furnace & [illegible] machinery is [illegible]. A large [illegible] putting up [illegible] tons structures, [illegible] foundations for [illegible], boilers, dust [illegible] are all com[illegible] hoisting engines [illegible]. All of this [illegible] most solid and [illegible] will be carried [illegible] New Mexico, Arizona, [illegible] Mexico. The railroad now [illegible] from the new station called [illegible] Santa Fe road into southern Nevada is opening up an extensive and very productive mining region and will supply large amounts of ore. In a recent report to the Board of Directors the General Manager of the works says: "Inyo county ores are eminently desirable for the reason that they carry a sufficient amount of lime and iron to make them self smelting." The Manager confidently expects to get ores from Inyo at no distant day. It is his intention to visit Owens Valley as soon as the work of building and getting machinery in place is far enough advanced to enable him to take time for the purpose.

All suitable ores within the capacity of the works will be purchased subject to the following conditions: The ore will be sampled according to approved methods and its metallic contents and value ascertained. For all gold contained in the ore a uniform rate of $19 per ounce will be paid. For all silver from 90 to 95 per cent will be paid, basing the price on the New York value of silver on the day the ore shall be assayed. For lead from 30 to 40 per cent. of its value; for copper on the same basis as lead. For gold in ore to the amount of less than one-tenth of one ounce, 10 per cent of lead and 5 per cent. of copper, nothing. The company will pay freight charges on ore delivered at the works, but said charges will be deducted from returns made to shippers. Fixed prices will be arranged for working ores, the rates being about as follows: For neutral ore, $12.50 per ton; what is usually termed "dry silicious ores" may cost as high as $20 per ton, the rate increasing with the amount of silica or other deleterious matter in the ore. But if the ore should contain an excess of lime or iron, or both, some allowance will be made the shipper so that the price may fall below $12 50 per ton. Refractory ores such as contain arsenic, antimony or zinc, will pay a drawback to the smelter. For instance, an ore might be neutral yet contain 17 per cent. of zinc, and for such ore the working charge will be $21 per ton. Everything about the works gives evidence of solidity and stability. The General Manager says that everything will be so conducted that every consignor will speedily be convinced that his ore is treated in the most skilful manner and that the strictest integrity is maintained in making returns for every pound of ore received at the works. The main office of the company [illegible]

Railroad News.

Mr. Ryan completed the survey for the railroad to Mojave and returned to Los Angeles on Wednesday. The route selected runs east and south across Indian Wells Valley from near the old Nine Mile Canyon station. The heaviest grades are found at three points, namely, below Heiwei, at Little Lake, and going out of Indian Wells valley toward Mojave. These three stretches are each about two thousand feet in length and the grade two per cent or about 105¼ feet per mile. At all other points on the line the grade runs from almost nothing to about one per cent or 52.6 feet per mile. The Company intend to survey for a line from Mojave into Los Angeles. The route surveyed as above will bring the road within easy reach of the great mining region in the south end of the county.

F. E. Green, contractor for the railroad, expects to be at Independence next week. He comes to make arrangements for camps along the line of the road, and to make other preliminary arrangements for going ahead with the work. Several other parties from Los Angeles will be here early in the week to look after various enterprises.

Inspector of Indian Schools.

J. A. Leonard, United States Inspector of Indian Schools, went south by stage yesterday for Los Angeles. Mr. Leonard had been visiting the Indian schools at Bishop and Big Pine. His district includes New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Utah and California. He says that in all that vast region he has not seen any Indians that show such deep interest in the education of their children as those of Owens Valley. The schools here are in great need of books, maps and other appliances and Mr. Leonard will strongly recommend to the authorities at Washington that liberal provision be made for these and all else needed to put the schools in first-class working order. Mr. Leonard spoke words of warm praise for the teachers at Bishop and Big Pine.

During the continuance of the World's Fair reduced rates will be given on the Mojave and Keeler stage line to all parties on the way to Chicago. Round trip tickets from Keeler to Mojave will be sold for eighteen dollars. These tickets will be good till two weeks after the close of the Fair.

T. C. Boland is sending out about one carload of silver-lead ore per day. These shipments are from washed fine-dust from Cerro Gordo. A large quantity of this material has already been shipped.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NOTICE OF SALE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY AT PUBLIC AUCTION.

On SATURDAY, the 27th day of May, 1893, at 2 o'clock p. m., in front of the Court House in the town of Independence, I will sell the following personal property at public auction.

10 head of horses.
9 head of stock cattle.
25 shares of the capital stock of the "New Stevens Ditch Co."
3 sets of harness.
2 wagons.
2 stoves.
1 hay press.
1 watch.
1 lot of tools

J. W. MURPHY, Assignee.

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing, Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc.

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES, PEANUTS WALNUTS, TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MUNEY

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" WARE.

DO YOU SUFFER?

Rheumatism, Fits [epilepsy] Scrofula, Liquor, Morphine or Tobacco Habit, quickly and permanently cured by the wonderful BI-CHLORIDE of GOLD treatment.

RHEUMATISM (The uric acid entirely expelled from the blood). Cured in from five to thirty days.

FITS (Epilepsy) Permanently cured; no return of the disease from two to four weeks treatment.

SCROFULA And the worst cases of inherited blood taint quickly and permanently cured.

DRUNKENESS Opium, Morphine or Tobacco habit cured 10 to 20 days.

No restriction or publicity. Patients cured at their own homes. 40,000 sufferers cured in 8 years.

Full particulars without charge, address

DR. WOOD BI-CHLORIDE OF GOLD

HALE BROS. & CO.

A HARD RACE!

YOU WOULD HAVE ONE SHOULD YOU TRY TO BEAT OUR PRICES.

EMBROIDERIES—We are showing an immense variety in all widths grades and styles from gauzy swiss to heavy muslin

FULL FLOUNCINGS—In swiss, lawn, cambric and nainsook both scalloped and hemstitched, ranging in price from 50 cents to $2.50 per yd.

HALF FLOUNCINGS—In all the above styles. Prices from 50 cents to $1.50 per yd.

ALLOVERS—Choice varieties in all-over embroideries, carefully selected patterns. Prices 40cts. to $2 per yd.

EDGINGS & INSERTINGS.—An almost endles assortment of each. Some especially dainty patterns for infants' fine wear.

COLORED EMBROIDERIES—In navy blue and turkey red with white work; also white ground with red or blue work, with allovers to match.

LACES—A leader for this season is Point de Ireland. We have a large stock and the patterns represent the cream of the market. These laces are suited for trimming a large range of dress fabrics. Ecru is the popular color as it is neutral to harmonize with most any color. The prices vary with the widths from 15cts. to 75cts. per yd.

Samples of all kinds sent free on application.

BOURBON LACES—Black silk Bourbon laces are entirely new and very taking in appearance. Prices run from 50cts. to $1 75 per yd

CHANTILLY LACES—Colored silk Chantilly laces in an exquisite line of colors and new designs. Colors cream, white, maize, light blue, pink, navy, tan, gold brown, heliotrope, Eminence purple, bottle green, cardinal and lavender.

BLACK & CREAM—Silk laces in Guipure Spanish and Chantilly. The designs are new, and pleasing. They come all widths from very narrow to half flouncings.

FEDORA—Fedora laces in cream white. Some very beautiful effects we have ever seen. Send for prices and samples.

CHAMOIS GLOVES—Ladies cream white chamois gloves. A rapid seller among this season's novelties. Is soft and pliable. The wrists are bound in colors and buttoned with four large pearl buttons. Price $1.25 per pair.

BIARRITZ GLOVES—Ladies white Biarritz gloves, 8 button length mousquetaire, good grade and well made. Price, $1 per pair

Any information we can supply is cheerfully given.

HALE BROS. & CO.

825, 827, 829, 831, 833, 835 K St., and 1026 Ninth street.

Sacramento, Calif.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS. WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neihboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finger [illegible] racelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the best quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packages to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,

0-m RENO, NEVADA.

Scientific American Agency for PATENTS

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

-DEALER IN-

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Agent for

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:

Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE [illegible]

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday .....January 28th
" .....February 25th
" .....March 25th
" .....April 29th
" .....May 27th
" .....June 24th
" .....July 22d
" .....August 26th
" .....September 23d
" .....October 21st
" .....November 18th
" .....December 18th

THOS. C. BOLAND, W. M.

B. RHINE, Sec.

Freight! Freight!

BISHOP & MOJAVE

Through Freight Line.

George Meads,

PROPRIETOR.

Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. [illegible] ders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention

J. H. BULPITT, Bishop

THOMAS & HILL, Bishop

O. I. MAIRS, Independence

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO., Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

Customers supplied on all points on the C. & C. Railroad.

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.

Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

F. W. BEDFORD.....LESSEE.

Horseshoeing .....$2.00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see

F. W. BEDFORD.

INDEPENDENCE

MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROEPER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef, Mutton, Pork, Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every effort made to give satisfaction to patrons.

j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies

PROVISIONS &c.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R.

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, November 16,

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House	11:30 p. m.	5.50 p. m.
Dayton	12:00 p. m.	5:10 p. m.
Wabuska	2.55 p. m.	2:50 p. m.
Hawthorne	5 50 p. m.	11:10 a. m.
Luning	7:05 p. m.	9:55 a. m.
Sodа Springs	8:05 p. m.	9:15 a. m.
Belleville	9:15 p. m.	7:55a. m.
Candelaria	Ar. 10.00 p. m.	Lv. 7:20 a. m.
	No. 3.	No. 4.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Belleville	8 20 a. m.	5:25 p m.
Benton	11:50 a. m.	1:25 a.m.
Bishop Creek	2:00p. m.	11:00 a. m.
Alvord	2.45 p. m.	10:00 a. m.
Independence	4:20 p. m.	8:30 a. m.
Lone Pine	5:10p. m.	7:40 a. m.
Keeler	Ar 5:55 p. m.	Lv. 7:00 a. m.

Train 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (36 miles); Bodie (3 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salisbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leave Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downieville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbia (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON, General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER, General Freight and Passenger Agent.

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - Cal.

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro

feb12tf

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of

WINES, LIQUORS, & CIGARS

The most careful attention given to the comfort and amusement of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon.

sept-12 td

Inyo Stage [illegible]

Kitchen Economy

Actual tests show the Royal Baking Powder to be 27 per cent. stronger than any other brand on the market. If another baking powder is forced upon you by the grocer, see that you are charged the correspondingly lower price.

Bread, biscuit, cakes and muffins are not known in most delicate and perfect quality where Royal Baking Powder is not used.

Even More Necessary.

Indulgent Papa—Why, my dear, you had a party last month. How often do you wish to entertain your friends?

She—This one is not to entertain my friends, papa, but to snub my enemies.—Life.

A Convincing Portrait.

Mr. Harry Furniss, the well known caricaturist on the staff of Punch, tells the following anecdote, which amusingly illustrates some of the troubles of the harassed portrait painter:

A man once called upon a portrait painter and asked him to paint his father.

"But where is your father?" asked he of the brush.

"Oh, he died ten years ago."

"Then how can I paint him?" asked the artist.

"Why," was the reply, "I have just seen your portrait of Moses. Surely, if you can paint the portrait of a man who died thousands of years ago, you can more easily paint the portrait of my father, who has only been dead ten years."

Seeing the sort of man with whom he had to deal, the artist undertook the work.

When the picture was finished, the newly bloomed [illegible] patron was called in to see it. He gazed at it in silence for some time, his eyes filling with tears, and then softly and reverently said:

"So that is my father? Ah, how he is changed."

You Have a Bare Spot

In your garden or back yard which will be a beauty spot if you plant Seeds of the TIMOTHY HOPKINS COLLECTION OF SWEET PEAS. They will bloom all summer as fast as plucked. A packet of Seeds of 21 varieties mixed for only 10 cents, or large packet each variety $1.50.

A GARDEN FOR A DOLLAR

For a Dollar we will send, postage paid, either of the following collections of choice plants, each collection consisting of distinct varieties of the number mentioned, and each plant on its own roots:

12 Roses, or 12 Fuchsias, or
12 Carnations, or 12 Geraniums, or
12 Chrysanthemums.

25 packets of seeds of different varieties of flowers or vegetables (your own or our selection), $1. Send for our Supplemental List of Seasonable Specialties.

SHERWOOD HALL NURSERY CO.
S. W. COR. CLAY AND SANSOME,
SAN FRANCISCO.

"August Flower"

"I am ready to testify under oath that if it had not been for August Flower I should have died before this. Eight years ago I was taken sick, and suffered as no one but a dyspeptic can. I employed three of our best doctors and received no benefit. They told me that I had heart, kidney, and liver trouble. Everything I ate distressed me so that I had to throw it up. August Flower cured me. There is no medicinal to it." LORENZO F. [illegible], Appleton, Maine.

DR. GUNN'S IMPROVED LIVER PILLS

The Number "Three" in the Bible.

When the world was created we find it and its surroundings composed of three elements—air, water and land—the whole lighted by the sun, moon and stars. Adam had three sons mentioned by name, and so did Noah the patriarch. Daniel was thrown into a den with three lions for the crime of praying three times. Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego were rescued from the fiery furnace. Job had three special friends. There were three patriarchs—Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Samuel was called three times; Elijah prostrated himself three times on the dead body of the child; Samson deceived Delilah three times before she discovered the secret of his great power, and the Ten Commandments were delivered on the third day.

Jonah was three days and nights in the whale's belly. "Simon, lovest thou me?" was repeated three times. Paul makes mention of the Three Graces—Faith, Hope and Charity. The famous allegorical dreams of the baker and butler were to come to pass in three days. Then we have the Holy Trinity—Father, Son and Holy Ghost; the sacred letters on the cross were three in number, they being I. H. S.; so also the famous Roman motto was composed of three words—viz., In hoc signo.—St. Louis Republic.

A Tale of Two Barns.

There was a man named Hibbs who bought a farm, built a large, stately dwelling at the end of a long, shady avenue of maples and settled down to enjoy the comfort and independence of a farmer's life. He built a cozy little barn of logs and shingled it with clapboards.

There was another man of the name of Hubbs who bought a farm in the same neighborhood, built a cozy little dwelling of logs, shingled it with clapboards and settled down to the hard, grinding monotony of a farmer's life. This man Hubbs built a large, stately barn at the end of a long, shady avenue of maples. At the end of ten years Hibbs' big house had broken him up, and Hubbs' big barn had enabled him to buy Hibbs' stately dwelling for about half price and move it over on his own farm.

Hubbs has a big dwelling and a big barn and represents his county in the state legislature. Hibbs has a little log cabin and a little log stable and is trying to sell out to Hubbs. He wants to quit farming and travel with a peddling wagon.—Toronto Mail.

Unconscious Feminine Cruelty.

"Let me off at Thirteenth street, conductor," said a woman as she paid her fare on a Broadway car at Cortlandt street.

The car was packed, the place just two miles away and the woman a New Yorker. From 50 to 100 people would get on and off, half a hundred stops were to be made and something like a half to three-quarters of an hour would be consumed before reaching Thirteenth street.

Yet this woman, who bore evidences of more than ordinary intelligence in her face and from her easy self assurance every indication of being able to take care of herself, expected the conductor to remember her request and to put her off at the right street.

The Broadway conductors are the hardest worked, most abused and criticised railroad officials in this city, but this is the sort of thing they are called upon to endure every hour in the day. It is usually at the hands of women, and is unnecessary, foolish and cruelly in considerate.—New York Herald.

Modern Matrimony.

Jones (calling on Smith in the evening)—I thought I would find you at home. You don't go out much at night now?

Smith—No. I've given up all my clubs and societies. I should be glad to have you come up and spend an evening with me occasionally.

Jones—But your wife might think me in the way.

Smith—Oh, she's never home at night till late. Tonight she's at a meeting of the Ladies' Society for Supplying Thimbles to the Destitute Poor. Tomorrow night she goes to the Queen's Daughters, next night to the sociable of the Royal Women, and so on every night. Come up and see a fellow. It's awfully [illegible] to be married, I can tell you.—New York Press.

[illegible]icated by Sweet Odors.

[illegible]ites slept on beds stuffed [illegible]; the tyrant Dionysius [illegible] with them; Versus [illegible] garland on his head [illegible] over his litter [illegible] leaves inter[illegible]ted upon a [illegible] days and [illegible]rtained [illegible] floor

WON BY STRATAGEM.

By M. A. MAKINS.

"Will you play or sing something?" said Alice, looking in at the window. "Mr. Vanbruton is devoted to music. I always regret I am so stupid and cannot sympathize with him—do sing." Anna moved towards the piano and Mr. Vanbruton followed her to open it.

"Would you really like me to sing?" she asked him softly, and glancing at him with her deep, sleepy eyes.

"Indeed I should; nothing I should like better," he readily replied, and bestowing more interest upon her than he had hitherto done. "May I get your music for you?"

"I have none; I sing without my notes."

Inwardly blessing Providence that he was not obliged to turn over any leaves, which he generally failed in doing at the right time, the young man leant indolently against the piano and prepared to endure a song.

"Which sort do you like," inquired Anna; "a sad song or a gay one; an old or a new?"

"Any you like," he said absently. He could see Alice's white dress, as she paced the balcony slowly to and fro, and he was wondering how soon he would be released and able to join her.

Quietly, and without effort, Miss Rogers struck a few cords and then began to sing. She had chosen that song, "My Love Is Come," and surely never before had those passionate words been sung with so much passion. Vanished was that hard, cold voice, and in its place a rich, full contralto rang out into the evening air, which reached the passers-by and made them pause to listen and to envy such a glorious gift.

Who has the talent more to be desired, the painter or the singer? I think the latter; because, although the actual evidence of the former's gift lives long after the master himself has passed away, and is handed down from one generation to another, the great singer can create such wonderful pleasure at the moment, both to himself and others. He can stir hearts with a power no painter ever knows, and call to life emotions which lie dormant before a painting, however beautiful.

She ceased, the last notes died away, and still touching the keys gently with one hand, she looked up at her companion. He was bending forward with a look of unmistakable admiration in his gray eyes.

"Sing again; do sing again," was all he said, and she obeyed him. Song after song he insisted on until Alice appeared and declared that Anna would be tired. "Good night," she added to Mr. Vanbruton. "You must really go. I am dreadfully sleepy." He shook hands with both ladies, but with Anna last, saying to her "You will sing to me again to-morrow won't you?"

III.

How quickly time passes when we are happy; so quickly that we forget to enjoy the present moment so much as afterwards we think we ought to have done. We plan pleasures for the future, we look back with a regretful sigh at the past, but we never take sufficient pleasure in the present. We exclaim, "I was quite happy then," but do we ever say "I am quite happy now?"

Miss Rogers and Alice had passed a fortnight at Lucerne, the weather had been perfect, they had had a devoted young man nearly always in attendance, so surely they could say with truth that they were having an exceptionally good time. Two out of the trio certainly thought so whether they said it or not, and these two were walking together one hot afternoon towards the cathedral.

"To think that I have only known you a fortnight!" Mr. Vanbruton was saying. "I feel as if we had been friends for months, and yet the days fly by."

"Then you have not been bored?" observed his companion. "Yet we have spent a very idle life. I should have fancied that a young man like you would have begun to find time dragging somewhat."

"How could I?" he answered earnestly. "Yesterday you allowed me to row you on the lake, the day before we went for a drive, the day before that we lunched at Weggis', you and I alone; the day before we"——

"Stop! stop!" cried Anna, laughing. "I begin to feel quite ashamed of having inflicted my company upon you so much. It was too bad of Alice going off on excursions with her friends and leaving us behind."

"I feel very grateful towards her," he said quietly. "I shall always think of Lucerne as one of the most delightful spots on earth. Have you enjoyed this fortnight, Miss Rogers, I wonder?"

She turned her face away so as to hide the rich color which had stolen to her pale cheeks. "Lucerne will always live in my memory as the one pleasant experience in my life," she answered softly.

"You talk very bitterly sometimes," he said. "I often wonder if you really mean it."

"I am afraid I do," Anna sadly replied. "Would you care to hear my history, Mr. Vanbruton? It is not a particularly interesting or cheerful one, and I am a very commonplace heroine; but still it will show you that I have a little excuse to grumble."

"Indeed, I should like to hear it," he assented eagerly. "Let us rest here on this bench."

They sat down, and Anna proceeded with her story, gazing dreamily at the lake as she told it, and never suffering her eyes to meet his.

"We were never very well off," she began. "But I remember a time when we lived happily enough in a small suburban villa at Norwood. My mother died when I was quite young; she had been a great singer, and her death made a good deal of difference to us, as it was her earnings which had enabled us to [illegible] fairly comfortably. My father wrote for the papers and some periodi[illegible] I know now must have been a [illegible]t of man, but how I loved him! [illegible] constant companion, and would [illegible] him night aft[illegible] he wrot[illegible] him [illegible]

[illegible]w mean I have been; how mean I [illegible] he thought. "But I cannot give [illegible]. Alice does not feel for him [illegible]nd he loves me, not her. Yet [illegible]t Dick said? 'Be straightfor[illegible]ce,' and this is how I have [illegible] What am I to do?" And [illegible]d bad angels strove to[illegible]ting desperately for this [illegible] which will saw his mistake too late, and I think he fretted for our old happy days. Before long his health began to fail, and a cold settling on his lungs killed him, and I was left desolate—so very desolate! My only brother was ranching in America, but I had a bare pittance to live upon, and I at once left my step-mother and sought for a situation. I was lucky, as I thought, and became companion to an invalid lady, whose husband was in India. We began to be sincerely attached to one another, and for a year I was very happy. Then, one black day, the husband returned. He was a brute, and treated her badly, but she loved him devotedly, and never owned he could do wrong. How can I tell you what next happened? He turned his odious attentions towards the humble companion, and tried to make love to her almost before his sick wife's eyes. How I hated him! and one fine morning I told him so. He was mean and revengeful, and made out to his wife many wicked lies about me. She believed him, and would not listen to anything I had to say, so I was dismissed with ignominy. What was I to do then? Fortunately Dick, my brother, in the mean time, had returned from America. I went to him, and he gave me shelter until I had found another engagement. This time I was with a lady I had known in the days of my comparative prosperity; she was kind, but I had many hardships to put up with. I remained with her until I was four-and-twenty, when I became engaged to be married to a man who was a frequent visitor at the house. He was well off, young, and not bad looking, and I thought at the time that I loved him very much. A month before our wedding day, I threw up my "situation" and went home (to my brother's) to make preparations and get ready my small trousseau. Everything was arranged, even to the minutest detail of our wedding tour; when, just a week before the auspicious event was to take place, my adorer disappeared, leaving me a polite little note saying that he feared he should never make me happy, and that he was on his way to Australia, and, I heard afterwards, in the company of another lady. After this cheerful experience, I abjured matrimony, and felt a genuine hatred towards the male species. Well, I struggled on, sometimes with good luck, more often with bad, and here I am, having reached the mature age of nine-and-twenty, with nothing very brilliant to look back upon and nothing very joyous to look forward to. There, I have finished my tale of woe. Have you been edified?"

As she finished speaking, Anna rose from the bench, and they began to walk quickly towards the cathedral.

"Thank you very much for telling me," said her companion, and added eagerly, his fair face flushing and his voice trembling, "You say I may be your friend, but I seem to be so powerless to help you in any way."

"Have you not learnt by this time," said she sadly, "that a woman is not allowed to have any friends belonging to the opposite sex? I mean no real friends who could ever be of any service to her. The world does not recognize any such thing as a purely platonic friendship. If one of us happens to take an interest, however slight, in a man, or is remarked upon as seeming to enjoy his society, or he ours, the world instantly exclaims, with its usual disregard of the charity that thinketh no evil, 'How shockingly Mrs. A. or Miss B. is carrying on with that Mr. D.!' This same idiotic world cannot imagine that a man and woman having instincts in common, and a fine sympathy one with the other, may be most sincere friends without a spark of sentiment. Oh, no! If they find pleasure in one another's society they must be either one or the other, or both, madly in love. It is a mercy to think that in the next world we are promised that there shall be no marriage or giving in marriage, so perhaps we may be allowed to enjoy sensible friendships. Have I shocked you, Mr. Vanbruton? Perhaps my ideas are not strictly orthodox, but blame my bringing up for that."

"I think I agree with you in some respects," he answered thoughtfully. "But I think that there is a certain amount of danger in these friendships. One is apt to imagine or try to imagine it still only mere friendship when that little spark of sentiment has kindled a feeling that is akin to, if not precisely, love itself; we may hide it up and disguise it under its 'friendly' cloak to ourselves, but a chance word or sudden emotion will strip it bare and reveal to us, unfortunately too late, what it really is."

"No, no; that is quite contrary to my doctrine," said Anna half laughingly. "My two examples of this friendship have no inflammable sentiment. She would sympathize with him most heartily in his love affairs or any other affairs, he would listen with equal interest to her confidences, and so one would have quite trust in the other; until the kind remarks of this amiable world spoil what would otherwise have been a firm friendship until the end of the chapter."

By this time they had reached the top of the steps, and were standing at the cathedral door.

"I don't think I could be that sort of friend to you," he said softly and shyly.

"Why? Do you think Alice will object?" Anna asked scornfully. "When you are married"——

"Anna, Anna, listen," he interrupted passionately; "I must tell you. I have been longing to tell you. I do not care what Alice will say. I"——

He stopped abruptly. It was no good protesting to the air, and his companion had suddenly drawn aside the curtain at the entrance and had entered the church; so he slowly retraced his steps and went back towards the hotel. Meanwhile Anna was kneeling before an altar lit by a few little candles, which gave a glimmering, uncertain light, and only intensified the darkness around. There was a tremendous struggle going on within her breast. A loathing for herself had sprung up with a certain new born love, and mixed with a trembling joy that she loved and was loved in return was a feeling of contempt for her meanness in plotting, and succeeding so well, in taking away another woman's Degrees of Wisdom.

The merchant who is average wise, be more or less will advertise. But he is very much the wiser who's more than less an advertiser.—Lowell Courier.

Business Matters.

Mr. Wabash (to Miss Waldo, of Boston)—I suppose, Miss Waldo, that your father is in business in Boston?

Miss Waldo—Oh, yes; he is one of the prominent shoe manufacturers there.

Mr. Wabash—Ah, indeed. I have never had much business experience myself. Now, about how long does it take your father to make, say, a good eight dollar shoe?—New York Sun.

"HE WAS IN IT."

Judge Monroe so Decided in Favor of Kelly.—Kelly vs. Fenlow.

John J. Kelly vs. People's Bank et als. Plaintiff began this suit by seizing a lottery ticket, one-twentieth of a whole ticket, which had won $15,000 and had been forwarded to the People's Bank for collection, and in which he claimed one-fourth interest as owner. By consent, the ticket was cashed, and the unclaimed three-quarters were withdrawn, leaving the contested one-quarter, which was also claimed by Jno. W. Fenlow under control of the court.

The parties live in St. Louis, and have been quite unfortunate. In 1891 Fenlow, Kelly, Norleman, O'Keefe and Conners formed a quasi club, and on three or four occasions purchased five fractions of lottery tickets, said fractions costing $1 each, and each member contributing his proportion of the price, was equally interested in the winnings. Fenlow generally was charged with purchasing the tickets, and held them until the drawing.

The members usually paid their contributions before the drawings, and Fenlow paid the lottery ticket vendor.

In April, 1892, they invested (Connors had dropped out). All paid except Kelly, who had agreed to pay his dollar on the day preceding the drawing.

The tickets had been selected by Norleman. There was no further intercourse between the members of the club until after the drawing on Tuesday, April 12th, when it was learned that one of the four tickets had won $15,000. The tickets have been paid for by Fenlow, and the question for the court to decide is whether Fenlow paid for account of Kelly, one dollar or whether it was for his own account.

The day after the drawing Kelly tendered his dollar, but was told that he was "too late" and that he was "not in it."

The court concludes that Fenlow gave Kelly to understand that he (Fenlow) would see that Kelly's interest in the ticket would be paid for.

It is therefore ordered, adjudged and decreed that there be judgment in favor of John J. Kelly and against John W. Fenlow, decreeing Kelly to have been the owner of an undivided one-fourth interest in the lottery ticket, and that plaintiff receive and collect $3,750, representing the one fourth of the proceeds of the lottery ticket now on deposit.—New Orleans (La.) City Item, Feb. 7.

The annexation of Hawaii would give California the first opportunity of her mighty career to tell her young men to go West and grow up with the country.

Our readers will serve themselves by noticing the remarkable offerings advertised in another column by the Sherwood Hall Nursery Co. of Menlo Park and San Francisco, who are leaders on the coast in furnishing everything for the farm and garden.

Everything in the world may be endured except continual prosperity.

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED.

We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Porterfield & Losey, 838 Market street, San Francisco.

Pfunder's Oregon Blood Purifier is the best remedy for cleansing your system.

The situation at Washington is a struggle between the ax and the "ex."

ST. JACOBS OIL

The Great Remedy for Pain. Cures all the Aches and Pains of Man & Beast.

Letters from Mothers speak in warm terms of what Scott's Emulsion has done for their delicate, sickly children. It's use has brought thousands back to rosy health.

Scott's Emulsion

of cod-liver oil with Hypophosphites is employed with great success in all ailments that reduce flesh and strength. Little ones take it with relish.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

TAKE PFUNDER'S OREGON BLOOD PURIFIER. CURES KIDNEY & LIVER DISEASES, DYSPEPSIA, PIMPLES, BLOTCHES AND SK[illegible] DISEASES, HEADACHE, COST[illegible]

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

He—Has the young man a good reputation? She—Excellent. He has the reputation of being a millionaire.

PREVENTING FUTURE MISERY.

If there is, in this vale of tears, a more prolific source of misery than the rheumatic twinge, we have yet to hear of it. People are born with a tendency to rheumatism, just as they are with one to consumption or to scrofula. Slight causes may develop this. As soon as the agonizing complaint manifests itself, recourse should be had to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which checks its further inroads and banishes the rheumatic poison from the system. This statement tallies exactly with the testimony of physicians who have employed this fine blood depurent in their private practice. There is also the amplest professional and general testimony as to the efficacy of the Bitters for malaria, liver complaint, constipation, indigestion, kidney trouble, nervousness and loss of appetite and flesh. After a wetting, whether followed by a cold or not, the Bitters is useful as a preventive of the initial attack of rheumatism.

She—Do you think it possible for a man to love two women at once? He—Yes, fifty at once, if they were all like you.

SAFE, QUICK AND EFFECTIVE.

The valuable curative properties of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS are due to the employment of the highest medical and chemical skill. They are purely vegetable, and in ingredients and method have never been equalled; safe, quick and effective in their action; they do not burn or blister, but soothe and relieve while curing, and can be worn without causing pain or inconvenience.

Do not be deceived by misrepresentation. All other so-called Porous Plasters are imitations, made to sell on the reputation of ALLCOCK'S.

Ask for ALLCOCK'S and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

When a woman is trying to write a letter on a half-sheet of paper, much may be said on both sides.

HOW'S THIS!

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.

We the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligation made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

The exact value of any man's religion may be determined by noticing the effect that it has on his conduct.

An Article of True Merit.—"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are everywhere popular as a cure for Throat Diseases and Coughs, and this popularity is based upon real merit. Sold only in boxes.

A surgeon is the man who has to carve out his fortune if he gets any.

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

TO BRACE UP the system after "La Grippe," pneumonia, fevers, and other prostrating acute diseases; to build up needed flesh and strength, and to restore health and vigor when you feel "run-down" and used-up, the best thing in the world is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It promotes all the bodily functions, rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, and through it cleanses, repairs, and invigorates the entire system.

For the most stubborn Scrofulous, Skin or Scalp Diseases, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and kindred ailments "Discovery" is the only remedy guaranteed. [illegible] you have v[illegible]

Can you [illegible] ing than t[illegible] proprietors o[illegible] It is this: "[illegible] we'll pay you $[illegible]

OPIUM Morphi[illegible] to 20 da[illegible] DR. J. STE[illegible]

"A FAIR [illegible] GAIN."

S[illegible]

RHEUM[illegible]

Moore's Re[illegible]

ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—[illegible] pleasure [illegible] MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY m[illegible] and was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest be[illegible] cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor [illegible] could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude, MRS. N. V. STEELE.

SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

Mr. R. H. Churchill
Mt. Vernon, Wash.

An Honest Medicine

Rheumatism Cured — Health Built Up.

Mr. Churchill, formerly of Churchill & Taylor, surveyors and civil engineers, Mt. Vernon, Washington, writes: "Southern California was my home for many years. When I came here I began to be afflicted all over with

Rheumatism

And also pains in my back and a general feeling of being used up. My business takes me out in the elements all the time, and I found myself unfit for work. Reading an advertisement of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and learning also that the medicine was compounded in my own State of Massachusetts, I concluded this may be an honest medicine. I took it and am so much improved that I am out in all weathers [illegible] and travel all day with no fatigue and tired fe[illegible] To any [illegible] that feels bad all over I say take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has cured me." R. H. CHURCHILL.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills cure Liver Ills, Jaundice, Biliousness, Sick Headache and Constipation.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail. Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER, 25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. INJECTOR

Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50 cts. Injector free.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE

Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

HAVE YOU GOT PILES

ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BO-SAN-KO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

SUMMER INCUBATORS

Send for Catalogue.

HERCULES ENGINES

GAS AND GASOLINE — STATIONARY AND MARINE

For simplicity and success they beat the world!

Clean, no ashes, smell or dirt.

No engineer is necessary; they are easily managed.

Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question.

No battery or electric spark to care for.

No double or false explosions, so frequent with the unreliable spark.

The workmanship is the very best.

Our ignition tubes are a success; they explode every charge of gas which enters the cylinder.

Just light the burner, turn the wheel and it runs all day.

For [illegible] outfits for irrigating purpo[illegible] they run all day without an en[illegible]neer.

For hoisting outfits in mines they have m[illegible] with the highest approval. We give estimates on the entire plant.

Hercules Marine Engines for Launches, Schooners, Tow Boats, Etc.

PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY

MANUFACTURE[illegible]

405-407 Sansome Street, San [illegible]

INYO INDEPENDENT.
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
...RV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.
...ependence, Cal.
..., JUNE 23, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXV. NO. 1. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JUNE 23, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1182

INYO INDEPENDENT
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$4 00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.50
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

...R WOODS.

...chestnut burrs,
...wo and three;
...tridge whirs,
...ker bores his

...ch leaves float,
...ed in spring.
...airy boat
...g.

Now ... down the lane
The asters beckon, the robins call!
The shrunken brook grows broad again
And leaps in a laughing waterfall.
Over the stile and over the bridge,
Adown the path where the meek cows stray,
By glen and hollow and windy ridge,
Let us follow the woodland way.

Seal how the marvelous cloth of gold—
A Tyrian tapestry woven fine—
Wide as we wander is still unrolled,
Rustling under your feet and mine!
The breath of the woodland is joy to breathe—
The mingled odors of leaf and flower,
And clustering fruit where the wild vines wreathe
The oak tree's mossy tower.

Softly into the vistaed wood
Through painted windows the sunbeams smile;
The hushed winds walk in pensive mood
Down many a solemn gothic aisle.
The golden clouds hang low in air,
Wrapped in their folds the late sun rests,
And the tall trees stand as if in prayer
With their beards upon their breasts.
—Ida Whipple Benham in Youth's Companion.

He Met Mrs. King.

A gentleman who remembers the family of ex-Governor King in Bath, tells a story which illustrates the folly of judging from appearances. A gentleman, a stranger in Bath, called at the house and inquired for Governor King. Mrs. King, who answered the knock at the door, was in the midst of her morning's work and did not present a very prepossessing appearance. The governor was not in, and the gentleman asked if he could see Mrs. King. "I am Mrs. King." If the caller had charged her in so many words with telling a falsehood he could not have told her more plainly that he did not believe her.

With a smile and a pleasant word about the weather he turned about and went down town. There he found Governor King, who invited him to dinner. He accepted. The condition of his mind when the governor introduced him to Mrs. King can be better imagined than described.—Portland Express.

Poor Man's Belt.

Few geographies mention the district in the south known as the "Poor Man's Belt." It is a tract of country generally very sandy and producing little timber save the long leafed pine. It begins not far south of Richmond, and extends along the Atlantic and gulf coasts into Texas. Its length is not far from 1,800 miles, while it is from 50 to 150 miles in width. The soil is poor, but the forests produce not only lumber in abundance, but also large quantities of pitch, tar and turpentine. It got a bad name during slavery days because no cotton was raised in it, but since the south is beginning to look elsewhere than to the cotton field for its wealth, the "Poor Man's Belt" promises to become one of the richest parts of the southern states.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Grave of Camille.

Over twoscore years have passed since the woman who was the original of Camille died. She sleeps in the cemetery of Pere la Chaise. As is well known, it is the custom in France for all persons who have lost a relative or friend to go on the anniversary called "The Day of the Dead" to decorate the graves of the departed with flowers. Every year on that day an unknown hand deposits on the tomb of Marie Duplessis a superb wreath of white camelias. It is generally conjectured that the author of this touching act of homage is Alexandre Dumas.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Jungle Fires in South Africa.

In southern Africa a flame flickering up in the sun scorched thorn jungles often spreads with the rapidity of a prairie fire, and the traveler Brehm gives a graphic description of the resulting stampede of wild animals—antelopes, leopards, baboons, jackals and hyenas all dashing off at top speed, with a mob of short legged creatures making frantic efforts to keep their start of the devouring element.—San Francisco Chronicle.

It is related of the late Thomas Adolphus Trollope that he said with the simplicity which always characterized him: "My English novels I cannot recommend. I know very little practically of English life, but all that I have written of Italy and Italians is worth reading."

Don't forget that the patient little woman you call your wife was once your sweetheart. A caress now and then or a tender word costs so little and means so much to the woman of your choice.

Signal's Lil... ersey cow ...unts

NO MUSIC IN HER SOUL.

A Mother and Daughter Who Had Few Æsthetic Tastes in Common.

There was a big crush, as usual, to see the picture "Niagara in Winter." A steady stream of art critics climbed to the third story of the great emporium where it is exhibited, and although it was yet early in the day 7,000 persons had made the turnstile revolve. Rags, the newsboy, had managed to elude the man at the door, and Dives, of the avenue, was also there, but he had not been obliged to sneak in behind a female of ample proportions for fear of the Argus eyed janitor.

A man stood in the throng enjoying the great work of art, and his attention was attracted by a woman and a child at his elbow. The mother was fair and forty, the child thin and sickly, but with large, lustrous eyes that sparkled with an admiration too deep for words as she gazed spellbound upon the dark green-blue waters hurrying over the falls.

They had not been there more than a minute when the woman exclaimed:

"My, isn't it pretty? Ain't you glad, 'Liza, that we came?"

"Yes, mother, very," was the little girl's quiet answer.

Another thirty seconds, and the mother, evidently fidgety, said:

"Now, 'Liza, I guess we'll go. I want to see some of those pongee silks, and then perhaps those bargain handkerchiefs ain't all gone."

"Couldn't you leave me here, mother, and I'll meet you down stairs in a few minutes?" and the little girl looked longingly at the picture.

"Nonsense, child, you've seen enough of that. Why, I do declare, you're as bad as your father. He's always foolin round some junk shop lookin for an old master instead of attendin to his business. Leave you? Well, I guess not!"

And these two, with so little in common save their humanity, went their way, but the child turned her head for one more look as she crossed the threshold.—Boston Herald.

Brooklyn a City of Cats.

"You can call Brooklyn a city of churches if you like, but if I had the naming of it I should call it a city of cats." This remark was made by a western woman who was recently visiting friends in this city. She is a resident of Kansas City, and during her stay here was more impressed by the fact above stated than anything else. "I never saw anything like it," she said. "Why, there are more cats, I believe, to the square foot in Brooklyn than in any other five cities in the United States. They seem to be everywhere. There are hordes of them in the streets on every hand and most of them are miserable specimens too.

Where I live a cat is regarded as something of a pet. Here they are simply regarded as nuisances, and the average treatment they get consists of kicks and hard words whenever they get in anybody's way. I am not greatly interested in cats, but since I have come to Brooklyn my curiosity has been aroused purely on numerical grounds. As near as I can ascertain there is no special breed known as the Brooklyn cat. The ones here are just plain, half starved, everyday house cats, but there are lots of them."—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Wealth of Novelists.

According to Mr. Andrew Lang there are about 100,000 novelists in Great Britain. This statement is somewhat shorn of its terrors by the fact that out of this huge army of story tellers only 900 have succeeded in getting their works published. The remainder are still in the "declined with thanks" stage of their literary careers, and will in all probability remain there.

Mr. Andrew Lang takes a very discouraging view of the prospects offered by novel writing to those who propose to adopt it as a profession, the special gifts and training required being such as to render failure inevitable in the case of the great majority of these candidates for literary fame. The reflections suggested by this condition of things are not pleasant, for they all point to a world of human suffering of the most interest kind —a world of ... page 401 ...hopes, of diligence defeated, of despair and ruin. Strange it is to find so many people facing this fate for the sake of seeing themselves in print.—London Telegraph.

Lost Treasure of the Ancients.

What treasures of the ancient world may still lie hidden among the debris of the past! Where are the riches of Babylon and Nineveh; where are the secret treasure chambers of Egypt; where is the gold of the Phœnicians? Where is the tomb of Alaric, the Goth, that was crammed with all the richest spoils of Rome? Who has discovered the ...ret places of Mexico and Peru, ... the untold wealth of mighty ...was stored?—All t... ...ear

...arters.
...ld you dis-
...allowed

WHY THEY WIN.

Novel Device of a Broken Down Sport to Rejuvenate Old Race Horses.

UNEXPECTED BURSTS OF SPEED.

Winning Races From a Whole Field of "Selling Platers."—A "Doctor" Who Will Not Accept a Fee.

People who read the detailed accounts of winter races in the sporting dailies often see some reference to the fact that "the winner, who was at 20 to 1 in the betting, had received the injection," or the paragraph may read in this way:

"Haytienne filly, in the first race at Gloucester yesterday, was evidently crazed from having received a hypodermic injection, and at the post she got beyond control and bolted through the rail, throwing Jockey Casey, who escaped unhurt, but refused to mount the filly again. She was brought to the judges' stand, and Ham, who was substituted, managed her all right, the filly running second."

Another instance from a report of a race at Guttenberg: "Fairplay, the unworthy brother of Tournament, received the 'injection' before he was sent to the post for the last race at Guttenberg on Thursday last, and it set him crazy, the horse being almost unmanageable at the start, and when it came to a finish swerving out and bolting against the outer rail with such force that he severely injured the foot of Jockey Mason."

Some years ago there appeared on the turf as the nominator to a lot of stakes both in this country and Europe P. B. Ring, a Missourian, and a young man who had a little money and a colt by Volturno. The horse was an utter failure in stake races, and subsequently ran at Clifton and Guttenberg and other small tracks as Free Lance, but the writer does not remember of his having ever won a race of any kind. He was so bad a horse that Ring "went broke" before he got through with him.

While in the south, a little after his sorry experiences on the turf, Ring heard this story about an old colored man and his mule: A physician driving over one of the country roads came across an old man whose mule had balked, and whose efforts to make the animal stir had proved useless.

"What's the matter, uncle?" asked the doctor.

"Dis yere mule am balked, sah, an nothin won't start him. I'd gib a dollah to make um start, so I might get um home."

"I'll start him for you for nothing," said the doctor, who got out of his gig, armed with a hypodermic syringe loaded with morphine. Going alongside the obstinate mule, he jabbed the needlelike instrument into the hide of the animal. The brute reared on his hind legs, gave a bray that woke the echoes for miles around and started down the road on a gallop such as he had never shown before. The astonished darky started after the mule as fast as his legs would carry him.

The story set the bankrupt horse owner to thinking, and the result of his thinking is the use of the injection nowadays on the winter race tracks among the specimens of broken down animals that are trying to win races there for their owners. Ring is making a good thing out of it, and he has had so much hard experience that he is profiting by it and manages to make a very handsome income for himself without any risk. It is more profitable than playing the races.

Racegoers, as distinguished from the crowd of gamblers who go to the tracks for the sake of indulging their propensity for play, have wondered often what that sort of thing meant. Some of them had a chance to hear of the injection once or twice while the races were being run at the Brooklyn track, and where it was whispered about in very mysterious fashion that a certain horse would win a race because "he had got the injection." What that meant was all a mystery to them.

It means exactly what the words say in print. Some poor brute of a horse had been converted into a marked card for the use of the gamblers at the tracks by having injected into his veins, hypodermically, a mysterious fluid the secret of which is the possession of a broken down sport, who is known about the tracks as "Dr." Ring. That fluid does seem to give to certain horses a temporary renewal of life and an apparent amount of speed that they do not show when not under the influence of the hypodermic injections. The value of the fluid to give life to horses of no particular account was most remarkably shown in the case of the horse Blackthorn a couple of seasons ago at Guttenberg. Whenever he was treated with this injection he was certain to win his race. The odds against him were always long before he got the treatment, however.

Morphine and cocaine are the two drugs that are popularly supposed to be the ones used by Ring in his treatment of the horses, but which one it is, and whether it is both, no one knows, and Ring is shrewd enough to keep the secret to himself. Horse owners are afraid to try experiments, and they will trust no one but this mysterious "Dr." Ring, though other men have assured them that they can do all that the doctor can for their horses. Ring is very shrewd about using his stuff, and will only treat a few horses in the course of a month, and but one horse in a race can have the benefit of his treatment, if it is a benefit. So far the owners that have had dealings with him say that the treatment has left no bad effects with the animals after a race, though it sometimes acts to make the horses crazy and unmanageable instead of simply giving them additional speed.

"Dr." Ring accepts no fee from owners for treatment with his injection. He demands, however, that the owner whose horse he treats shall put a bet of twenty-five dollars on the horse for his benefit at the best odds to be had in the ring. The horses treated are always at a long price, and if the drug works successfully the doctor makes a very good thing out of it. If the horse does not win he suffers no loss, except the cost of the fluid, and he waits for another chance to get his pay out of the bookmakers.—New York Times.

A Rival's Act.

"Why, John, what is that awful spot on your coat?" asked the bride as the carriage rolled off.

"My hated rival couldn't find any rice to throw at me," said John, "so he pelted me with so... real mush."—Harper's...

The L...

Harry—Who's ...
...her side of the ...
Dear ...

FOR WEARING PEARLS.

Provoking Laws in Old Venice to Hamper the Adornment of Women.

In 1541 the Venetian senate made it a penal offense to wear more than one string of pearls, and that had to be not of higher value than 200 ducats. Even this did not satisfy them. In 1562 they gave the law a corollary that was almost indecent and perfectly adapted to enrage all the elderly matrons of the city. No women except the doge's wife and daughters were to wear any pearls after the tenth year of their marriage; nor were even young wives to wear more than a single necklace of an outside value of 400 ducats, the same to be duly stamped and appraised by the authorities.

The Venetian women revolted against certain other restrictions about dress materials. They were so angry that they formed an alliance and petitioned the pope on the subject. It was the best thing they could do, for his holiness annulled the obnoxious decree, which had emanated from the Venetian patriarch. Anon, however, they got to despise the various sumptuary laws which came upon them thick as autumnal leaves.

Nearly every one disregarded them. True, the executive employed spies whose business it was to go about "taking stock" of the people, measuring with their eyes the height of the ladies' dresses and guessing at their value. Now and again a prosecution occurred. If the gown was at fault for its sumptuousness both the owner and its maker were fined. If a lady was found with more pearls on her person than was permissible she was liable to a penalty of no less than 200 ducats, of which half went to the informer.

But it was by no means light and easy work—this of professional spy. The times had got so much out of joint that there was on an average a homicide daily in the city—without mention of the various disappearances which often had a sanguinary significance. A patrician might submit to pay the fine for extravagance, but it would afterward be excusable in the young bloods of the patrician's family if they waylaid the informer and either perforated him with their rapiers or knocked him on the head and tumbled him into a canal.—National Review.

He Could Control His Heart Beats.

Dr. E. A. Groux, surgeon of the Twenty-eighth New York regiment, who died in 1878, was during his life the most wonderful living human malformation. The surgeons regarded him with special interest because, having been born without a sternum—the sternum is the flat bone in the middle of the breast—he could control or suppress all the pulsations of the heart. The post mortem examination showed a deficiency of breast bone and a congenital fissure of the sternum, forked in shape, running up between the second and third ribs to the left of the median line.

Before his death there was a dispute among the faculty whether the outward indications of pulsation were caused by the aorta or right ventricle. The examination proved conclusively that they were caused by the right ventricle. There is said to be only one other case of similar malformation known and reported in the medical books—that of a Mr. Thompson, of England, who, by way of diversion, often stopped his heart from beating for a full two minutes!—St. Louis Republic.

Dangerous Puff Adders.

Dogs become frequent victims to snakes in South Africa through their keen sense of smell and their determination to investigate. One splendid large dog and two fox terriers met with their death near Port Elizabeth through the bite of puff adders.

Though there are other highly venomous and equally abundant snakes at the cape, they are more of the active cobra kind, while the puff adders are extremely sluggish and inactive reptiles which do not get out of the way, but he half hidden among the herbage or among roots and stones, with which they assimilate in color. By their hiss they betray themselves when danger threatens, and that is all.—Cape Town Letter.

A Four Footed Electrician.

Hove, a suburb of the fashionable watering place, Brighton, England, has been laying on the electric light. A tunnel was run under the footways, with culverts at convenient distances, so that there was no more trouble about the matter than when a man winds up his watch. A four footed electrician was extremely useful in passing the wires along the tunnel, for a smart little fox terrier acted as a sort of animated bodkin. With a cord fastened to his collar and his nose turned in the right direction, away he went with as much gusto as if he were pursuing a rat through a wheat barn, and hours of work were thus saved to the artificers.—New York Press.

A Beggar's Wealth.

The city of Avignon, France, has inherited almost 500,000 francs from ...n named Marcelin, who ha... ...e place as a beggar for ...
...eparing his bod...
...y the ... ...s and mo...
...word ... ...s. T...
...t to admi... ...t

TRACKWALKING.

A Branch of Railroad Work That Must be Very Ted ous.

KEEPING ROADBEDS IN REPAIR.

Looking for Loose Nuts and Protruding Spikes Alo g the Line.—Caugh Between Trains.

"A trackwalker, a trackwalker?" exclaimed one citizen when asked the definition of the term. "Why, yes; of course. A trackwalker is a fellow who walks the tracks. See? Just as easy! Now ask me somethi g real hard."

If pressed for a closer explanation of the long word's meaning, the citizen proceeds to get facetious: "Oh, watcher trying to ring in on me now? A trackwalker is—a trackwalker. When the carnivorous tramp is hunted from his lair in one city he emigrates to another. On the way thither, my friend, he is a valuable specimen of the genus trackwalker. When the manager of an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" troop folds up his pocketbook and, like an Arab, silently steals away, leaving sweet little Eva, good old Uncle Tom and religious Miss Ophelia to swear at his memory for their salaries, why, then they are very likely to become trackwalkers. Then, again, you might call hucksters who drive their wagons up and down the street car tracks track hawkers. He, he, he! See?"

Which all goes to show that the real bona fide trackwalker is comparatively an unknown cog in the great machine of the world. If that cog was suddenly taken out of place and thrown away the world would very soon discover its loss. From the crashing of wrecked trains would come the death rattle of the dying; from the ruddy glare of burning cars would come the shrieks of tortured wretches pinned beneath heavy timbers, and the one cry sounded from end to end of the land would be, "The trackwalker deserted his trust." Ride along any road for five or ten miles and you will overtake him, plodding along beside the track. He is not dressed in the latest cutaway diagonal, and his trousers, if noticed, bag at the knees. He only gets $1.50 a day here in the west, and in some eastern districts still less. He carries a wrench and a hammer, and now and then stops to tighten a bolt in a rail or drive a spike into a tie. He tramps along thus for twelve hours out of the twenty-four, and at the end of the day "can sleep without rocking."

A reporter found Daugherty yesterday in one of the pleasant wards of St. Mary's infirmary. Bending over him, with her sweet face full of sympathy, was one of the sisters of the order. "He's doing very nicely," she softly said, "but must not be excited."

"You see, it's my shoulder there now," exclaimed Daughterty, raising his left arm and dropping it to the sheet again with a shudder of pain. "It seems as though it was under a trip hammer and the hammer was pounding for all it was worth. Still it isn't as bad now as it was. Good gracious, but that old engine did hit me a clip!"

"How did it happen?"

"All fired sudden. I was walking along between the tracks, peaceable as you please, when down rolls a train on the left hand. Being afraid that the steam or something would hit me I stepped into the right hand track. Whack! Biff! Yours truly got it in the neck sure as you live. An engine was flying down the right hand tracks, you see, and I merely tried to stop it by putting my 'shoulder to the wheel.' I don't remember what happened then. The lights went out. When I arrived in sight of myself again I was here.

"My walk is from Carr street to the other end of the bridge in Madison. I'm not complaining of the walk at all, understand. They always treated me white as long as I've been working for 'em, which is only a couple of months. I'm just a little sorry that the company is such a new one. They haven't got any hospital of their own yet, you know. That's why I'm here. Of course I'm being treated splendidly here—just as if I was at home—but, you see, I don't know exactly who's going to pay these good sisters for taking care of me. I'd hate to see em do all their work for nothing."

Daugherty gazed reverently at the crucifix hanging on the opposite wall before answering. "Speaking of the work, it's all right. I get $1.50 a day, just the same as the other laborers on the road, and it isn't as hard as digging. All you've got to do is to be sure and go over your section as many times as you're ordered, and see that the rails are in proper shape. If you find a loose bolt you take your pinchers and tighten it. If you find a spike poking its head into the air, give it a clip with your hammer. That's all there is to the business. If you should happen to find something out of whack and can't fix it yourself, why, you go for help; that's all. You see, I know just enough about trackwalking to do my work well. I have never had any of the adventures that some of the men have. If you want to hear some funny stories you ought to go down to Twelfth and Gratiot streets.

"Some of those fellows have been walking the tracks all over the country for years. Some of 'em know every square inch of rail between here and New York, I'll bet, and can tell you with their eyes shut where they are if set down on any one of the roads between this town and Chicago. A fellow gets to know the weight of the ties on every mile he walks over, and from day to day learns to pick out which bolts are going to be loose and which spikes will poke their flat heads above the flanges of the rails. It's like anything else; if you stay with it you'll learn it as you do your friends' faces, and it becomes a sort of instinct."

The Tonic Sol-fa System.

The present year will witness the fiftieth anniversary of the tonic sol-fa system, which has done so much, and, we may safely say, will do so much more in the future, to spread the knowledge and the love of music among the people. Mr. Spencur Curwen, son of the inventor and most energetic propagator of the system, seizes the opportunity for a very interesting review of its history and characteristics in Good Words. Coldly received, disparaged and even derided in many influential quarters, it is now able to confound its opponents by the incontestable evidence of its fruits.

As Mr. Curwen observes, in this jubilee year there are hundreds of musicians who have successfully climbed the ladder his father placed for them—bachelors and doctors of music, fellows of the College of Organists, associates of the Royal Academy of Music, vocalists and performers of repute. Mr. Ben Davis, not many years ago, was singing in tonic sol-fa choirs, and he constantly advises opera singers who wish to read at sight to learn the system.

A doctor of music who graduated the other day at one of our universities testifies that without the tonic sol-fa system he does not think he could possibly have done the work. Such authorities as Dr. Helmholtz, of Berlin; Sir John Herschell, Mr. Bosanquet, General Thompson, Dr. Bridge, Mr. Henry Leslie, Lord Rayleigh, Mr. A. J. Ellis and many others not less noteworthy have given their sanction to the system.

In a Den of Copperheads.

John Saley, a deaf and dumb boy of Pittsburg, went out with the intention of picking raspberries. He had about filled his pail, when his attention was attracted by an unusual motion in the bushes near him. A moment later a monster copperhead snake appeared from under a bush. Before the lad could move the snake had coiled itself and leaped at him.

The stroke was short, but some of the green poison from its fangs fell on Saley's trowsers. The boy became paralyzed with terror. A moment later the reptile had formed its deadly coil again, and once more leaped forward to strike. It measured the distance with fatal accuracy, for the deadly fangs were buried deep into Saley's right leg. The pain aroused the boy from his terror and he jumped back. The snake strove to hold on to the leg. Then the boy fainted from fright.

Neighbors ran to the spot just in time to prevent the copperhead from striking again. One of the men seized a club and with a blow broke the snake's back as it was recoiling. The reptile measured eleven feet. A physician cauterized the wound, but the poison had penetrated the boy's system. Investigation showed that young Saley had wandered into a den of copperheads.—Cor. Philadelphia Press.

Chinese and Their Burials.

The Chinese of this city and New York, it is said, will hereafter bury their dead in Cypress Hills cemetery instead of in the cemetery of the Evergreens, as has been their custom. This action is said to be taken because the Evergreens cemetery officials have increased the price of graves from ten to twenty dollars each. They have purchased an acre of ground in Cypress Hill cemetery for $1,000 and will have cheaper rates in the future. The Chinese allege that twenty dollars is too much to pay for a grave which is tenanted for only five or six years, as every Chinaman makes a contract with the company that employs him under which the company agrees to send his body back to China. This transmigration of bodies takes place once every five years, the skeletons being packed in tin cases when the proper time comes. The last shipment was made only a short time ago. The skeletons then came from some of the old graves in the cemetery of the Evergreens.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Graduates Didn't Understand.

There are many persons who think it about time to conduct the commencement exercises of Harvard university in English instead of in Latin. The continuance of the ancient custom caused much amusement for those present, for when President Eliot closed his Latin remarks by inviting the senior class to mount the platform to be presented with their degrees, not a man stirred.

When the invitation was repeated, Chief Marshal Cunnock started up the platform steps, but a pull from behind, given by a less sanguine classmate, was too much for him, and he turned to go down again. A broad motion of the hand from President Eliot (given in English) finally induced him to continue, and thus the class followed to receive their degrees.—Boston Saturday Gazette.

A Book Agent's Suit.

Charles W. Dumont, the general agent for the Encyclopædia Britannica, commenced suit against Joseph M. Hawthorne, the West side attorney, to recover $5,000 damages for an alleged illegal restraint of liberty. It seems that Mr. Dumont sold a set of the Encyclopædia to an attorney who has desk room in Mr. Hawthorne's office. The payments not being made Mr. Dumont went after the books, but was informed by Mr. Hawthorne that the attorney owed him, and he intended to keep the books to secure himself. When Mr. Dumont undertook to leave the room the door was locked. Mr. Dumont thereupon fired the books through an open transom and squeezed himself through after them. Hence the suit.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Last year the total receipts of the New York postoffice were $6,386,520.24 and the total expenditures $2,476,358.61, including $1,121,034.29 expended for free delivery service, giving a net revenue of $3,910,161.63, and exhibiting an increase in the total receipts of the office over the previous year of $359,538.13.

Don't persist in repeating "Phew! how hot it is!" Everybody, including yourself, is aware of the fact, and you should avoid trite utterances which are inevitably boresome, besides being indications of a narrow range of intellect.

GOULD'S BOYHOOD

The Story of One Who Worked With Him as a Fellow Clerk.

RESULT OF HIS FIRST LOVE AFFAIR

Tribute From a Man Who Liked Him Very Much When Both Were Humble Clerks in a Country Store.

James H. Woolhiser, now of Brooklyn, who worked with Jay Gould in the general store in Roxbury, Delaware county, N. Y., tells an interesting story of the great financier's life in the town where both were born. Mr. Woolhiser lived there until a few years ago, when he moved to Brooklyn.

"Jay Gould," said Mr. Woolhiser to a reporter, "worked on his father's farm, which was about six miles out of town. He tended cattle. I first heard of him when he started to go to the Roxbury high school. He walked from his home to the school and back again every day. His desire to acquire a good education was the talk of the town, and in this way I first heard of him. He was pointed out to me by my father as a model young man. He made but few friends among his schoolmates, evidently preferring to be by himself.

"When I was sixteen years old," continued Mr. Woolhiser, "I went to work in the store of J. E. Burnham. You could buy almost anything from a postage stamp to a mowing machine in that store. I had been working there but a short time when one fine morning I was surprised to see young Gould enter the store and ask Mr. Burnham for a position. He was hired at a salary of five dollars per week. The following Monday morning he went to work as a clerk and assistant bookkeeper. He did all kinds of work. Upon several occasions I have seen him sweep the floor of the old store. He worked hard, and although always very pleasant was never very talkative. During the leisure time of the day he would grab a book and begin to study.

"For a long time after he had been employed he would leave the store as soon as the day's work was finished and walk home. As time moved on, however, he became more friendly, and in the evenings after the work was done he would sit with us around the stove. Those were happy days. We would take turns in telling stories. We would also eat hard boiled eggs, which we cooked ourselves, and drink cider. Jay was not at all backward in telling stories when it came to his turn and could drink and eat as much as any of us. His abstracted air at times led me to the impression that he had something on his mind, and one day I asked him if he had any trouble. He laughed at me.

"I remember quite well an incident that happened in the store one day while Jay was waiting upon a customer and that settled in my mind what was troubling him. He was serving a regular customer when he suddenly stopped while in the act of wrapping up a bundle and said, 'I don't think it is any trouble to become a millionaire if one sets out to make himself one.' The man addressed laughed and said that he had set out to become a millionaire, but saw no hopes of ever arriving at the mark. Gould did not reply, and the man went out saying that he would wait patiently for Gould to become a millionaire.

"Often after that we chaffed Gould about his statement and asked him what his plans were for becoming rich.

"'Why,' replied Gould, 'it's as easy as can be. Work hard and don't be foolish. When you get a little money put it where it will double itself. Keep doubling all your money, and the result will be satisfactory.'

"Burnham had a pretty daughter named Maria," continued Mr. Woolhiser, "and Gould had been working in the store but a short time when he became very attentive to her. She was a pretty blond, and all the boys of the town fairly worshiped her, and when it became generally known that Gould was calling steadily on her he was envied by all the young fellows. He attended a party with her one night and barely escaped getting into a fight with one of Miss Burnham's admirers.

"Gould had been working in the store about two years when Burnham was elected to the legislature, and Jay was left in charge of the store. While in Albany Burnham received a letter from a man in Margaretville telling him that some property in the latter place could be bought at a bargain. In some unaccountable way Gould learned of the bargain and bought the property himself without telling his employer a word about it. He made the purchase while Burnham was negotiating for it. The day that Burnham arrived in Roxbury Jay left the store, saying that he was going fishing. He went direct to Margaretville and bought the tract of land a couple of hours before his employer arrived at the place. When Burnham learned of Jay's act he became angry, and drove back to his store discharged him with but few words. To cap the climax, Maria Burnham entered the store just as Jay was about to leave and told him never to call upon or speak to her again. That was the beginning of his business career and the end of his first love affair.

"Jay knocked about Roxbury for some time after his discharge, and then took up surveying, of which he had learned a little. In a few months he had surveyed and made a map of Delaware county and wrote a history of the antirent wars. Both the map and history sold well. Buoyed up by the success of his work, Jay next published a map and history of Ulster county. He next engaged in the cattle raising industry, and to save the expense of help he would drive his cattle to the market, a distance of sixty miles. He kept at this for some time, and then secured a position with an engineer to survey the Adirondack mountains. While in these mountains he met Colonel Pratt, with whom he afterward went into partnership."

From that time Mr. Woolhiser saw nothing more of Jay Gould until he moved to Brooklyn.—New York World.

The River Nile.

The Nile has a fall of six inches to the thousand miles. The overflow commences in June every year and continues until August, attaining an elevation of from twenty-four to twenty-six feet above low water mark and flowing through the valley of Egypt in a turbulent body twelve miles wide. During the last thousand years there has been but one sudden rise of the Nile, that of 1820, when 30,000 people were drowned. After the waters recede each year the exhalations from the mud are simply intolerable to all except natives. This mud deposit adds about eight inches to the soil every century and throws a muddy embankment from twelve to sixteen feet into the sea every year.—Minneapolis Times.

A tornado at Trenton, Ga., carried off the roof of a house, leaving a sick man in his bed unharmed but shelterless. His neighbors at once built a temporary shelter over him.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, JUNE 23 1893

The bank of Riverside is reported to be amply able to pay depositors every cent due them, and will resume operations with credit fully restored. The panic that caused temporary suspesion was groundless.

The conviction of Flood, the cashier who stole $164,000 from a bank at San Francisco, does not mean that all big thieves will be punished in future, but only that the limit has been raised. No professional of that kind will now think it safe to steal anything less than a half million dollars.

While banks have been failing all over the country those of Los Angeles are growing in capital and the business is increasing with rapidity unknown in any other city in the United States. Last week the clearing house returns showed an increase of 53 per cent over that of the corresponding week of last year. Week after week for months past has shown a similar growth.

Alas for Chief Justice Fuller, he is doomed to everlasting damnation, sure. It was a fearful sin to open the gates of the World's Fair on Sunday. But the Chief Justice can console himself with the reflection that no hell could be worse than an eternal association with the howling fanatics who would shut the gates of the Fair on Sunday against the toiling thousands who cannot go there any other day of the week.

In the German elections, so reported, the socialists made greatest gains wherever there was most intelligence among the voters. Evidently socialism means something very different in Germany from what it appears to mean in Chicago. The thinking masses of Germany appear to be rapidly reaching the point where the issue must be squarely met by the people on one side and the Emperor on the other. As the German armies consist of the best class of men among the great mass of the people, it may well be doubted if they can be depended upon to shoot down their fathers and brothers for refusing blind submission to the will of one man. England in dealing with two tyrant kings has set an example that may not be lost upon Germans. The fate of James might serve for William. He don't appear to have head enough to be worth treating as Charles was treated.

The murder of Mike Tovey was as cold blooded a crime as was ever committed. The murderer waited till the stage was close to him, took careful aim, fired deliberatey and the unfortunate messenger fell from the seat dead, not a word, nor even a groan being heard from him. Tovey had on many trying occasions given proof of courage that would not fail in presence of any danger. He was well known in Inyo county, and his courage was respected. Cool and deliberate as this murder was, if the murderer has money enough to employ an able attorney he may escape the gallows. If it were not for the frequent cheating of justice by legal quibbling, such crimes as this would not be so frequent and so boldly committed. A knave or a fool on a jury may defeat justice and save the most heartless scoundrel from being hanged like a dog, as he deserves; or a stupid pedant or corrupt politician placed upon the bench may defeat the ends of justice. These are not mere possibilities only. They are of such common occurrence that the constant repetition of such crimes as the murder of poor Tovey is the result.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Freight! Freight!

BISHOP & MOJAVE

Through Freight Line.

George Meads,

PROPRIETOR.

Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:

J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.

☞ Special rates given on car-load lo

(Official.)

DELINQUENT TAX LIST! A. D. 1892.

County of Inyo

State of California.

A

Abbott, F P—Lone Pine School District, S hf of section 6, Twp 12 S R 39 E, 320 acres schl tax ..... $ 14 54

B

Boland, H B—Lone Pine School District; cabin formerly known as Clem Ogg's in Cerro Gordo; schl tax 6 03

Bartlett, J W—Lone Pine School District. E hf of sec 16 Twp 22 S R 42 E, 320 acres, schl tax 14 54

Bamber, John—Lone Pine School District, All of section 16, Township 22 S, R 42 E, 640 acres; schl tax 28 58

Bridger, W H—Lone Pine School District, All section 16, Township 19 S, R 39 E, 640 acres; schl tax 28 58

Baker, Moses—Big Pine School District. Ne qr of Se qr sec 19, Twp 9 S R 33 E, 40 acres 1 63

C

Crapo, Wm—Lone Pine School District. Lot and house in Cerro Gordo formerly known as Blandry's residence. Schl tax. Poll and Hospital 12 10

Chickering, H G—Lone Pine School District. In town of Panimint, House and lot known as Chick's residence 2 46

Clark, Alvina C—Independence School District. E hf of Se qr sec 36 Twp 13 S R 35 E 80 acres. Schl tax 3 87

Calloway, J W—Lone Pine School District. Persnl prpty. schl tax 2 93

Konda, Joe—Warm Springs School District. Sw qr sec 2 Twp 8 S, R 33 E. 160 acres. The above is subject to mortgage given by Joe Konda to Henry Ehners, Dated November 25, 1891. Book E, page 111. Second Installment del 3 83

D

Doby, Joe (Indian)—Fish Springs School District, W hf Se qr sec 9, Twp 10 S, R 34 E, 80 acres. Schl tax 3 08

Diaz, Joe (Indian)—Round Valley School District, W hf of Ne qr sec 8, Twp 7 S, R 32 E 80 acres 10 46

E

Enas, A—Lone Pine School District. House and lot in town of Darwin. Schl tax and Poll and Hospital tax 9 07

Enos, W S—Undivided ½ interest in Ne qr, E hf of Nw qr, Nw qr of Ne qr, Ne qr of Sw qr section 12, Sw qr of Se qr, Se qr of Sw qr section 1, Twp 14 S, R 35 E. 200 acres. The above is subject to mortgage given by W S Enos to B J Stevens dated January 21 1891. Book E, page 456, original value $1800. See folio 192 Schl tax. Personal property 3 48

F

Farmer, Richard J—Independence School District. N hf of Ne qr section 24, Se qr of Se qr section 13, Twp 13 S, R 35 E Sw qr of Sw qr section 18, Twp 13 S, R 35 E, 160 acres. School tax 8 24

Fahrenking, H—Lone Pine School District, Fractional N hf qr and E hf of Nw qr section 4, Township 19 S, R 37 E 117 acres. Schl tax 16 49

G

Graham, Rose—S hf and Nw qr, N hf of Ne qr, S hf of Ne qr section 10, Twp 8 S, R 31 E; Ne qr of Nw qr, sec 36, Twp 7 S, R 31 E, 640 acres 29 30

Gordon, Clara V—Independence School District. Ne qr of Se qr, E hf of Ne qr sec 7 S, R 32 E Se qr of Se qr sec 8, Twp 7 S, R 32 E, 160 acres 7 78

Gibson, W F—Lone Pine School District, All of section 36, Twp 19 S R 39 E, 640 acres Schl tax 28 56

Gould, A J—Lone Pine School District. House and lot in Darwin known as Gould's, on South Main St. Schl tax 2 48

Geyer, John—Lone Pine School District. House and lot in town of Keeler. Lot 18 Block 3. Schl tax 3 02

Gilbert, A D & Robinson, J W—Milton School District. Improvements on Nw qr sec 15, Twp 12 S, R 34 E 2 75

Geiger, D M—Warm Springs School District E hf of section 36, Twp 7 S, R 34 E 320 acres 14 90

Greenly, W A—Station School District, mill-site and five stamp quartz mill at Cottonwood Creek, Deep Spring Mining District known as Greenly's mill, 5 acres 4 04

Gilesky, Frank—Station School District. A Mortgage interest in property of Jas Peregrine, described as S hf of Sw qr, Nw qr of Sw qr sec 27, N hf of Se qr, W hf of Ne qr, Se qr of Nw qr sec 28, Twp 6 S, R 33 E. See folio 165 ..... 11 75

H

Holbert & Conger—Warm Springs School District. Mortgage interest in property of Chas. A. Collins described as Se qr of Ne qr, Se qr of Sw qr and Se qr sec 1 Twp 8 S R 33 E. See folio 33 ..... 23 00

Hannah, Mary E—All of sec 36, Twp 24 S, R 38 E, 640 acres 29 40

Hughes, J F, Estate of—Lone Pine School District. Whitlkent mine in Cerro Gordo Mining District, La Desperado mine in Cerro Gordo Mining District, undivided ¼ interest in steam arastra and mill-site in Beveridge Mining District. Schl tax 8 72

Hamilton, Wm—Lone Pine School District. Station building, corral and water pipe situated about 8 miles Nw of Darwin on the Darwin and Keeler road. Schl tax 6 36

Hogg, A M—Lone Pine School District, Se qr section 16, Twp 24 S, R 38 E, 160 acres. Schl tax 7 51

Harold, Frank—Bishop School District. A mortgage interest in property of W. O Mercuey described as lots in Academy addition to town of Bishop, lots 5 and 8 block 2. Ne qr of Nw qr sec 32. E hf of Sw qr, Nw qr of Se qr sec 29, Twp 6 S, R 32 E. See folio 13. Schl tax 38 03

I

Inyo Mining Company—Station School District. Buildings and machinery on Government land known as the Inyo Mining Company property, situated about four miles north of Laws. Pers property 12 14

J

Jackson, Henry—Lone Pine School District. House and lot on Main St in town of Darwin known as Jackson's dwelling. School tax *2 46

Johnson, Jim (Indian)—Big Pine School District, Se qr of Ne qr section 13, Twp 9 S, R 33 E, 40 acres 1 63

Jargerson, M—Independence School District. Sw qr sec 19, Nw qr sec 30, Twp 13 S, R 36 E. Se qr sec 24, Twp 13 S, R 35 E. N hf of Ne qr, S hf of Ne qr, Ne qr of Se qr sec 35, Twp 13 S, R 35 E, 642 acres. Schl tax 31 55

Jones, Bill (Indian)—Fish Springs School District, Nw qr of Ne qr section 21 Twp 10 S R 34 E, 40 acres. Schl tax 1 79

Jacobs, Silas N—Lone Pine School District. Sw qr section 16, Twp 24 S, R 38 E, 160 acres Schl tax 7 02

L

Lichens, Josephine—Lone Pine School District, W hf of section 36, Twp 21 S, R 39 E, 320 acres. Schl tax 14 53

Lawson, Yaltis C—N hf of sec 36, Twp 25 S, R 39 E, 320 acres 14 90

Lee, Sam—Lone Pine School District In the town of Keeler, lot 3 block 6. Schl tax 1 65

Los Angeles Mill and Mining Company—Lone Pine School District, Townsite of Tecopa, Petting Springs Mining District, Gunsight mine, Resting Springs Mining Dist., North extension Gunsight Mine, quartz mill and machinery 45 88

Livingston, A—Lone Pine School District. S hf of Nw qr, Nw qr of Nw qr, Nw qr Sw qr, sec 7, twp 19 S, R 37 E, 160 acres 2nd Installment 6 65

M

Molino, Jesus—Lone Pine School District. Saloon building known as Molino's, also the C. Harry house. School tax. Poll and hospital 11 93

Madison, R—Personal property. School tax 98

Montano, Manuel—Lone Pine School District Personal property. School tax 1 38

Mulgrae, C—Lone Pine School District. Lot and house in Cerro Gordo, on north side. Persnl propty 2 47

Merryman, R—Warm Springs School District, E hf of Ne qr, E hf of Se qr, section 24, Twp 8 S, R 35 E, 160 acres. School tax 9 23

Mulholland, Chas—Independence School District, Ne qr of section 32, Twp 13, S, R 36 E, 160 acres. Improvements on unpatented land at Georges Creek. school tax 11 34

Merginson, L S—Lone Pine School District. N hf of Nw qr, Sw qr of Ne qr, sec 16, Twp 24 S, R 38 E, 120 acres. Schl tax 5 76

McEvoy, Alex D—S hf 16, Twp 24 S, R 38 E. 320 acres 14 90

McNally, Mrs. C—Station School District. Mortgage interest in property of G. H. Mase, described as Ne qr of Nw qr, N hf of Ne qr sec 27, Sw qr of Se qr, sec 22, Tp 6 S, R 33 E See folio 145 ..... 6 13

McLean, N—Lone Pine School District. Persnl prpty. Schl tax 4 32

N

Naylor, Mrs. J—Lone Pine School District In Keeler, Lot 9 block C. Schl tax 1 67

Nickerson, R B—Lone Pine School District. Lot and House in Cerro Gordo. School tax 77

Nerney, D W—Big Pine School District Personal propty 15 86

O

O'Hare, Catherine—Bishop School District All of section 36, Twp 8 S, R 33 E, 640 acres Schl tax 35 06

O'Hara, Lillian—Bishop School District. A mortgage interest in property of J. E. Dunlap, property known as Drake's Hotel, in Bishop. See folio 44. Schl tax 8 60

Olds, Jim (Indian)—Fish Springs School District, W hf of Nw qr, section 14 Twp 11 S, R 34 E, 80 acres, schl tax 3 08

P

Powers, Jas H—Lone Pine School District, W hf of Sw qr, Sw qr of Nw qr, Ne qr of Sw qr section 36 Twp 26 S R 37 E, 160 acres Schl tax 3 86

Plunkett, Andy—Lone Pine School District. House on hillside north of the town of Cerro Gordo formerly known as John Humphys dwelling 1 87

Pabst, David—Lone Pine School District, five stamp prospecting mill Beveridge Mining Dist. in Craig Canyon. Schl tax 2 68

Parker, Jas E—Independence School District. In town of Independence, fractional lots Nos 9 and 11 block 20; personal property, schl tax 11 55

Potter, A F—Lone Pine School District. N hf of section 16, Twp 24 S, R 38 E, 320 acres. Schl tax 14 54

Poleta Gold Mining Co—Poleta Mine, 600 by 1500 feet in Poleta Mining Dist. 20 acres Schl tax 11 80

R

Reilly, Mrs. M—Lone Pine School District. House and lot N side of Main st, near Market, in town of Darwin Block 14 schl tax 2 75

Rappan, R A—Lone Pine School District. Sw qr sec 16, Twp 20 S, R 37 E, 160 acres. Schl tax 9 33

Richards, T—Lone Pine School District. Saloon stock and fixtures. Schl tax 2 10

Rathbup, T W—Lone Pine School District. Personal property. Schl tax 82

Runyon, S N—Lone Pine School District. Lots in Keeler, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 15 and 16 block 2. Schl tax 5 85

Reynolds, E J—Union School District. S hf of Sw qr section 12, Twp 14 S, R 35 E. N hf of Nw qr sec 13 Twp 14 S, R 35 E, 160 acres. Second Installment 5 43

Reynolds, Aaron—W hf of Se qr, Sw qr of Ne qr, Se qr of Nw qr sec 25, Twp 13 S, R 35 E Second Inst 3 86

S

Sing Tong, Mrs—Lone Pine School District. In town of Lone Pine, house on Bogole land Schl tax 88

Silva, Frank—Lone Pine School District, Lot and house in town of Darwin N side of Le Cyr St, block 19 ..... 3 63

Sainz, Albert—Lone Pine School District. House and lot in Cerro Gordo formerly known as John Hertel's dwelling. School tax. Poll and Hospital tax 10 47

Sainz, Amando—Lone Pine School District. House and lot in Cerro Gordo next N side of John Hertel's dwelling. Schl tax 1 89

Smith, Jas. H—Independence School District Lots 1 and 2 in Nw qr and 1 and 2 in Sw qr sec 31 Twp 13 S, R 36 E. Schl tax 19 10

Spraunce, Stanley—Station School District, In town of Laws, 50 by 100 feet lot 16 block K 4 58

Steward, Charles—Improvements on S hf of Ne qr N hf of Se qr, sec 28 Twp 9 S, R 34 E Personal propty 11 09

Sais A E—Bishop School District. In town of Bishop, lots 1 and 2, block C. The above is subject to Mortgage given by A. E. Sais to J. H. Bulpitt, Dated January 26, 1892. Book F, page 26. School tax poll and hospital, pers prpty 15 78

T

Thaw, Barbara—Union School District, All of section 16, Twp 14 S, R 35 E, 640 acres School tax 33 98

Thomson, N S—Lone Pine School District. House and lot N side of Main st in town of Darwin. Schl tax 88

Thomas, John—Lone Pine School District. One-half interest in Helen Gray mine, Cerro Gordo. One-half interest in Owl mine, Cerro Gordo. Schl tax 2 46

Trepier, Victor—Lone Pine School District, Lot 50x75 feet on Main street in town of Cerro Gordo formerly known as Dr. Gould lot. Schl tax 1 96

Twaddle, Thomas—Lone Pine School District, Quartz mill and building situated at Cook Springs in Death Valley, formerly known as the Ibex Company's property. Five acres. Schl tax 30 99

U

Unknown Owner—Lone Pine School District. In town of Lone Pine, lots 5 and 8 in block 7. Schl tax 1 24

Unknown Owner—Lone Pine School District, Stamp mill formerly known as the Emigrant Mill, in Lee Mining District 15 13

Unknown Owner—Lone Pine School District, In Lone Pine, lot 4 block 25. Schl tax 1 24

Unknown Owner—Lone Pine School District, Land known as Rhodes' Ranch, at Resting 50 acres. Schl tax 6 34

Unknown Owner—Warm Springs School District. W hf of Nw qr section 27 twp 7 S R 33 E, 80 acres 4 38

Unknown Owner—Lone Pine School District, In town of Lone Pine, N hf of lot 7 block 8. Schl tax 1 92

W

Wells, Maria L—Lone Pine School District, Nw qr section 36, Twp 22 S, R 37 E, 160 acres. Schl tax 7 48

Wilkinson, H E—Lone Pine School District. Personal prpty. Schl tax 1 32

Williams, Ben—Round Valley School District N hf of Sw qr sec 3, Twp 8 S, R 31 E 80 S of of block H in town of Bishop. The above is subject to mortgage given by Benjamin Williams to John Albers, Nov. 10, 1888. Book D, page 627 75

Wah Lee, Dr—Lone Pine School District. Lot and house in Cerro Gordo. Persnl property. Schl tax 1 82

Z

Zigler, Jeff—Lone Pine School District. Personal property. School tax 2 57

Public Notice

Is hereby given that unless the foregoing taxes and costs are paid I will on Wednesday

The Twenty-eighth day Of June, 1893,

Between the hours of 9 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., to wit, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., commence to sell the foregoing real and personal property at public auction in front of the Courthouse in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, and that I will continue such sale from day to day, according to adjournments, until the whole real property described in the foregoing, or so much thereof as may be necessary, shall be sold, and that I will sell the smallest quantity of each assessment of said property that will be taken by any person for the amount of said taxes and costs, in gold or silver coin of the United States.

Dated this 1st day of June, A. D. 1893.

J. S. GORMAN,
Tax Collector of Inyo county, California.

OFFICIAL.

Propagation License.

Notice to Breeders.

THE ATTENTION OF STOCKRAISERS and Breeders in Inyo County is called to the following provisions of Ordinance No. 44, Section 12:

"Every person who keeps a Stallion, Jack or Bull and permits the same to be used for the purpose of propagation, for hire, must annually obtain a license therefor from the Tax-Collector."

Parties failing to procure such Propagation License are guilty of a misdemeanor. Licenses are now due.

J. S. GORMAN, Tax-Collector.
Independence, April 6, 1893.

ASSESSMENT NOTICE

LONE PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Independence, California. Location of Canal, near Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

Notice is hereby given that at a regular meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 29th day of April 1893 an assessment (No. 4) of Twenty-five (25) cents per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the Company, in the town of Independence, Inyo county, California. Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on Saturday, the 3rd day of June, 1893, will be delinquent, and advertised for sale at public auction; and unless payment is made before will be sold on Saturday, June 24, 1893 to pay the delinquent assessment together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

By order of the Board of Directors.

DAVID HOLLAND,
Secretary.

Office—Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

BOOTS AND SHOES

MADE AND REPAIRED.

THE BEST MATERIAL.

FIRST-CLASS WORK

Repairs done Promptly.

Prices Reasonable.

30-tf A. J. DAVIS, Independence,

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STAR, LANE CO., OREGON, Feb. 8th, 1892.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,

Dear Sirs:—I have used your KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE for the last twelve years never being without it but a few weeks in that time and I have made several wonderful cures with it. I cured a Curb of long standing. Then I had a four year old colt badly bowgalled; tried every thing without any benefit, so I tried your liniment, and in a few weeks he was well and his shoulder filled up all right, and the other, a four year old that had a Thoroughpin and Bloed Spavin on the same joint, and to-day no one can tell which leg it was on. These statements can be proven, if necessary; the four year olds are now seven and can be seen any day as Cottage Grove, Or. S. Z. PAYNE

——Price $1.00 per bottle.——

DR. B. J. KENDALL ... Enosburgh ... BY ALL ...

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES,
District Attorney,
—AND—
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
NOTARY PUBLIC.
☞ Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty. ☜
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
☞ Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Office and residence at the Johnson place Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

DR. J. S. MC QUEEN,
DENTIST.
Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery.
All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.
Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore.

NOTICE.
ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will presen the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.
FRANK FITZGERALD.
Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
☞ All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the oldstand "Mechanics Hall," Lone
FRED BURUKHARDT.

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.
THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.
BAR
...t celebrated brands o... and the Finest Havana ...
...IRWIN, Proprie...

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.

$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.

It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer without cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.

Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.

For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address

ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.
Winter Apples ..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes ..... 12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches ..... 10 cts.
Dried Apples ..... 10 cts
Other varietieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
☞ First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.
THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines, Liquors, & Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSfield, opposite the Southern Hotel.
Prompt and careful treatment given and the least possible pain inflicted. Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATES AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO., Newspaper Advertising Bureau, 10 Spruce Street ...

P. W. FORBES. MACK ...

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate ... designed, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will ... sale, to the highest bidder ... money of the United States ... to confirmation by the ... the County of Inyo, State ... and after TUESDAY, the ... 1892, and within six months ... right, title, interest and ... Allen Hannah, deceased ... death, and all the ... the said estate ... has, by oper... quired other ... said John A ... death in and ... parcels of land ... County of Inyo ... testator's deceased ...

The South half ... the South half of the south west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of, in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South-east corner of the south-east quarter of North-east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98-100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of the Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hahnah, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lots Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet, undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode, situate, lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispricada Lode."

That certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the North-west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12), and the South-west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South sixty-eight and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence North-westerly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty-four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North East quarter and the South-east quarter, and the North-west quarter and the North east quarter of the North-west quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-four and eleven twentieth (44 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres: Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney, at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER.
Executor of the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah deceased.

Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1893.

J. W. Murphy.
BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS Extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDIS
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES.
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
☞ Buyers and consumer should call and examine ... pric before purchas ...

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS AND
LEVI STRAUSS & CO'S
SPRING BOTTOM
EVERY PA...

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, JUNE 23 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

ADLAI STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman	A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman	P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge	GEO. M. GILL.
Sheriff	JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk	DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney	P. W. FORBES.
Assessor	P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer	W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner	H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed)	JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools	J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist	ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist	A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist	W. H. UHLMEYER.
4th Supervisor Dist	JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist	FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Rev. H. J. Winsor will preach on Sunday at Lone Pine 11 a. m.; Georges Creek, 2:30 p. m.; Independence 7 p. m.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

FRIDAY, June 16.

Filed answer of A. D. Gilbert and A. F. Mairs to amended complaint in the case of Baxter et al vs. Gilbert et als.

SATURDAY, June 17.

Filed answer and cross complaint of O. I. Mairs in the case of Baxter et als vs. A. D. Gilbert et als.

TUESDAY, June 20th.

Issued letters of administration to E. W. Flenniken in the estate of Eleanor Flenniken, deceased.

TUESDAY, June 22nd.

Issued decree of foreclosure and order of sale in the case of Clements vs. Meroney et als.

McCARROL—At Black Rock, June 15, 1893, Andrew J. McCarrol, a native of New York, aged 63 years.

P. H. Mack got home from San Francisco on Wednesday.

Andrew Fyfe came down on Wednesday from the Montezuma mine.

Robert O'Neil, of Bishop, was in town at the beginning of the week.

E. W. Flenniken came down from Bishop last Monday on business.

Sheriff Scott arrived here from Fresno on Wednesday. He left next morning with a prisoner in charge.

John Morton came up from Keeler yesterday; he returned a few days ago from Madera, Fresno county.

Estray Notice.

About October 15, 1892, there came to my place at Camp Independence a mare and colt. The mare is a dark brown; no brand visible; scar over the nose as if from a cut by barb wire. The colt is a horse, the same color as the mother. The owner is hereby notified to pay expenses and take said animals away, or they will be sold at public auction to pay said expenses on Saturday, the 1st day of July, 1893, at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m.

FRED SCHABBERD,
Camp Independence.

Quibbing.

The State Board of Examiners refuse to audit any more claims for coyote scalps. An appeal to the Supreme Court and an order from that tribunal would be the only way to compel the Board to audit the claims. It is a curious fact that the Governor refused to veto the act providing for payment of these claims, and now, as a member of the Board of Examiners, refuses to audit claims preferred under the very act he helped to make a law. The excuse for refusing to audit the claims is that no special appropriation for the purpose was made by the Legislature, and the Examiners won't allow drafts to be made upon the General fund. If it is a bad law it should be repealed; but while it is in force the State should honestly pay every claim fairly earned under its operation.

Old Country Wages.

In Scotland and Ireland it is the custom for farm laborers and servant girls to hire out for terms of six months duration. The engagements are made in the spring and fall of each year, the wages paid being higher in summer than in winter. An Irish newspaper gives the following rates paid by farmers to their help for the present season of six months:—Plowmen and other laborers, $32.50 to $40.00; herders and boys big enough to do [illegible] 50

Arrested for Murder.

Yesterday morning Sheriff Scott, of Fresno, left here having in custody a man known by the name of William Thompson. Last Saturday morning this man was arrested on the train at Citrus by Sheriff Gorman. The crime charged against Thompson is murder, and the circumstances as told by Sheriff Scott are as follows: Last September Thompson was working at a sawmill at Pine Ridge in Fresno county. He had been drinking and went to an Indian camp not far from the sawmill. There he got into a quarrel with the Indians, and with a knife cut one man in a horrible manner, killing him on the spot. He attacked another Indian and mutilated him in the way that Apaches have done to white men. An officer was sent to arrest Thompson, but was driven off by the latter, and threatened to be served as the surviving Indian had been. Thompson then left and was next heard of as being near Havilah, in Kern county. A message was sent to Sheriff Scott, who in the mean time had been elected to office, telling him where Thompson was. He at once telegraphed back to Bakersfield that he would start immediately after the man. This message was made known in Bakersfield, soon after it was received there, and Thompson was warned in time to get away before the arrival of the officers. The man came up throgh Walker's Pass to Keeler, and from there went to work at Cerro Gordo. Sheriff Gorman had a description of the murderer, and having found that it corresponded with the man at Cerro Gordo, determined to arrest him. Thompson had saved money enough to travel and had come to Keeler last Friday intending to get away on the train next morning. A telegram from Keeler informed Sheriff Gorman of the movements of Thompson, and the arrest followed. The prisoner is a very powerful man, evidently resolute and dangerous. When searched the only weapon found upon him was a clasp knife, one blade being at least four inches long, straight, sharp pointed, and with a keen edge. The capture of Thompson, is chiefly due to H. E. Wilkinson of Keeler. Mr. Wilkinson identified the man from the description given, and by telegraph kept Sheriff Gorman informed of his movements; and did this so quietly that Thompson did not suspect he was being watched.

A Successful Process.

The leaching process of working ores has not been much practiced here, but Andrew Fyfe is making a success of it at the Montezuma mine. After the furnace at Elna was burned about eight years ago, work at the Montezuma mine was stopped. During the time the mine had been worked much ore had been thrown in the dump, because it was fine, like sand, or gravel. This is the ore that is now being leached. Mr. Fyfe experimented with the ore till he was satisfied money could be made by leaching it, and then he got a small plant and went to work. The principal part of the plant is tanks, and with three got at the brewery here, Mr. Fyfe has now enough to work twelve tons of ore each day. The ore carries from eight dollars to thirty dollars gold and from 18 ounces to 20 ounces silver per ton. None of the lead is saved, and of this the ore carries 28 per cent. The ore at the dump is first screened, to get rid of all that is reduced to condition of dust, as this would pack too solid to permit the liquid to leach out the metal. From the size of wheat up to the size of beans is found to be the most favorable for leaching. The concentrates obtained by leaching are worth from sixteen hundred to eighteen hundred dollars per ton; these will all be sent to Salt Lake for reduction. Hyposulphide of soda and a very small portion of sulphate of copper are the chemicals used in leaching. Mr. Fyfe says these cost about fifty cents for each ton of ore worked. On the dump there is now at least two thousand tons of ore ready for working. In the mine is plenty of ore in sight, and when the dump shall be exhausted a crusher will be erected to reduce the ore taken from the mine to a proper condition for leaching. Several years ago Sheriff Gorman, who was then working the furnace at Swansea, smelted 300 tons of this ore, and got substantially the same returns of gold, silver and lead that Mr. Fyfe gets from it. Mr. Gorman still has the records kept, when he smelted the ore, and these show returns as stated.

When the creamery at Bishop was put in operation a few months ago, the supply of milk was one thousand pounds daily. Now over six thousand pounds of milk are received daily. The creamery is steadily growing in favor with owners of cows, and the butter and cheese are first-class and command ready sale.

Notice of Sheriff's Sale Under Foreclosure.

GILBERT CLEMENTS vs. W. O. MERONEY AND FRANK HARROLD. } Order of Sale and Decree of Foreclosure and Sale.

UNDER AND BY VIRTUE OF AN ORDER of sale and decree of foreclosure and sale, issued out of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, of the State of California, on the 22nd day of June, A. D. 1893, in the above entitled action, wherein Gilbert Clements, the above named plaintiff, obtained a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale against W. O. Meroney, defendant, on the 22nd day of June, A. D. 1893, for the sum of $286.61, lawful money of the United States, besides interest and costs, which said decree was on the 22nd day of June, A. D. 1893, [illegible] judgment book 1 of said County [illegible] I am commanded to sell all of [illegible] lots, pieces or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and bounded and described as follows:

The north-east quarter of the north-west quarter of Section thirty-two, and the east half of the south-west quarter and the north-west quarter of the south-east quarter of Section twenty-nine, all in Township Six South of Range thirty-two East, Mount Diablo Meridian, containing one hundred and sixty acres.

Also that other lot of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo, and particularly described as follows, to-wit: Lots Nos. five (5) and eight (8) in block Q as appears by the plat of the Academy Addition to the Town of Bishop Creek (now Bishop) now on file in the Office of the County Recorder of the County of Inyo, State of California, to which for further description, reference is hereby made, being the lots of land on which is erected the [illegible] and Hall of the said defendant Meroney. [illegible] with all and singular the tene[illegible] hereditaments and appurtenances thereto [illegible] in any wise appertaining. [illegible] by given that on Mon[illegible] A. D. 1893, at 12 [illegible] front of the Court [illegible] I will, in [illegible] decree of [illegible] described [illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNdersigned, Administrator of the estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of P. W. Forbes, in the Court House, at the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the said County of Inyo, State of California.

EDWARD JOHN REYNOLDS,
Administrator of the estate of Fredrick J. Reynolds, deceased.

Dated at Independence, Cal. June 13th, 1893.
P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Administrator.
jn16 5t

ANTARE.

1st premium Trotting Stallion, 1891-2. Bred by S. L. Akens, Newman, Cal. Foaled April 6, 1887. Stands 15¾ hands high and weighs 1250 pounds. Color, mahogany bay with black points; no white. By ANTEROS, 6020.

1st dam, Sallie W., by Iowa Chief, 525.

2d dam by Tornado, 502.

ANTEROS, 6020.

By Electioneer, 125, the greatest sire of trotters living or dead; 125 of his get having records from 2:08¼ to 2:30. Among this number are Palo Alto, 2:08¾; Sunol, 2:08¼; Arion, 2:10¼ at 2 years; Nutline, 2:31¼ and Bell Bird, 2:26 as yearlings.

1st dam of Anteros, the great Columbine, dam of Anteeo, 2:16¾

Antevolo, 2:19½
Antonia
Conrad
Coral, 2:18¼
Speedwell

Anteros is the sire of—

Doc Chresl'e, 4 years, 2:21
Nellie F, 4 years, 2:25
Anterose, 4 years, 2:25
Major Ross, 2 years, 2:30
Wakeross, 2 years, 2:34¼
Entrurio, 3 years, 2:33¼
Montgomery, 3 years, 2:37½
Antero, 3 years, 2:38¼
Bessie B, 3 years, 2:47
Anteorian, 3 years, 2:57
Antare, 4 years, 2:57

Antare is a "horse attached to a pedigree," possessing that quality so highly prized among horsemen, INDIVIDUAL MERIT, having the power to transmit both his color and form to his progeny. His record was made after trotting four well contested heats the day previous and is the fastest time ever made by any stallion ever owned in Inyo county over any track in the 18th District.

ANTARE was awarded the first premium over all competitors at the District Fairs of 1891-2. At the fair of 1893 we propose to exhibit an "Antare Family," of twenty-five of his colts, and we challenge the owner of any stallion in the 18th District to exhibit one or more colts two-years-old or under that can compare with the colts sired by this horse.

TERMS FOR THE SEASON, $25 00,

Payable on or before August 1, 1893.

Mares from a distance pastured free of charge but no risks taken.

S. P. SMITH, Manager.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California,

THOMAS C. BOLAND, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM CRAPO, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Crapo, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the Complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36-100 Dollars [$337.36], on a balance of account for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by the Plaintiff to you in the County of Inyo, State of California, at your special instance and request; also for costs of suit, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36-100 Dollars, together with costs of suit.

Witness my hand and the Seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 4th day of May, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff.

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MUNEY

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" WARE.

INDEPENDENCE

SHAVING [illegible]

J. TUCKER [illegible]

HAIR CUTTING [illegible] IN ANY STY[illegible]

HALE BROS. & CO.

If you have never tried for the benefits others derive from our prices, prompt and careful service given through the

MAIL ORDER DEPARTMENT.

Send us a trial order 'twill be conclusive evidence that our business methods are right and large and growing patronage merited.

ITEMS OF EXCEPTIONAL VALUE.

MEN'S DRAB HATS with wire brim ventilated all around sweatband makes a desirable head covering for outdoors summer wear; price 50 cents. Also a line of Cork hats at same price.

MEN'S SUMMER SUITS in some 20 different patterns of either light or dark coloring, comes in sack or frock styles at the popular price of $10.

CHILDREN'S SUITS in all the new designs and colorings of light or dark. Ages 4 to 14 years; price $3.50 $4.00 and $5.00.

HALE'S $2 50 Shoes for men have proved a great success and are without doubt the best value of a medium priced dress shoe to be had anywhere, any style last, tip toe or plain in either hook and lace or gaiter style; price $2.50.

GENTS' domestic balbriggan underwear, a good imitation of the imported, of plain unbleached color, an extra strong value at 50 cts. per garment.

FOR HOUSE KEEPERS.

AN extra value in a heavy unbleached double damask table linen 58 in. wide, all linen and will wash white; price 50 cents per yard.

AN extra value in already bleached double damask table linen 58 in. wide, pretty scroll patterns, pure linen, and not weighed with any inferior substance; price 50 cts. per yd.

A bargain in Ladies medium weight cotton hose; absolutely fast black, perfect in shape and finish, comes in boxes of ½ doz., for $1.00 per box, which we do not break.

HALE'S 10 cent boxes of note paper contain a quire of fine satin finish and 24 envelopes.

HALE BROS. & CO.

825, 827, 829, 831, 833, 835 K St., and 1026 Ninth street.

Sacramento, Calif.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS, WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neighboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finger Rings, Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry outside of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the best quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packages to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,
0-m RENO, NEVADA.

NOTICE OF MEETING OF BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, will meet as a Board of Equalization on

MONDAY, JULY 3, 1893,

At the office of the said Board, in the town of Independence, to examine the assessment book and equalize the assessment of property in said County for the year 1893, and will continue in session for that purpose until the business of equalization is disposed of.

D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of the Board of Supervisors.

DELINQUENT SALE NOTICE.

OWENS RIVER AND BIG PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Big Pine, Inyo County, Cal.

NOTICE—There are delinquent upon the the following described stock, on account of assessment No. 7, levied on the 18th day of April 1893, the several amounts set opposite the names of the respective shareholders, as follows:

Names.	No. Cert.	No. Sh's.	Am't
C. Engle	5	208	8475
Geo. W. Gilliam	14	83	16 60
W. R. Tibbetts	2	418	83 60
J. B. Steward	1	84	10 20
Charles Steward	17	93	18 60
F. Fitzgerald	17	360	72 00

And in accordance with law, and an order of the Board of Directors, made on the 18th day of April, 1893, so many shares of each parcel of such stock as may be necessary, will be sold at public auction, at the office of the said Company, Big Pine, Inyo County, California, on Saturday, the 17th day of June, 1893, at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m. of said day to pay said delinquent assessment thereon together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

R. W. THOMAS, Secretary.
Office—Big Pine, Inyo county, California.

DO YOU SUFFER?

Rheumatism, Fits [epilepsy] Scrofula, Liquor, Morphine or Tobacco Habit, quickly and permanently cured by the wonderful BI-CHLORIDE of GOLD treatment.

RHEUMATISM (The uric acid entirely expelled from the blood)—Cured in from five to thirty days.

FITS (Epilepsy) Permanently cured; no return of the disease from two to four weeks treatment.

SCROFULA And the worst cases of inherited blood taint quickly and permanently cured.

DRUNKENESS Cured in from 20 to 30 days
Opium, Morphine or Tobacco habit cured 10 to 20 days.

[illegible] restriction or publicity. Patients [illegible] their own homes. 40,000 suf[illegible] 8 years.

[illegible] without charge, addre[illegible]

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Agent for

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:

Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE · CAL.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates

Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleas[illegible]

[illegible] Livery [illegible]

BIG INDEPENDENCE ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

Customers supplied on all points Of the C. & C. Railroad.

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

F. W. BEDFORD.....LESSEE.

Horseshoeing.....$2.00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see
F. W. BEDFORD.

INDEPENDENCE

MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROEPER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef,
Mutton,
Pork,
Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every ort made to give satisfaction to patrons.
j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies

PROVISIONS,

&c., &c., &c.

A. K. EUGLEY,

Big Pine, Cal.

BELL'S Flouring Mills

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,
[illegible]nce, Cal

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R.

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, November 16,

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1 Leave—	To Mound House. No. 2. Arrives—
Mound House	11:30 p. m.	5.50 p. m
Dayton	12:00 p. m.	5:10 p. m
Wabuska	2:05 p. m.	2:50 p. m
Hawthorne	5.40 p. m.	11:10 a. m
Luning	7:05 p. m.	9.55 a. m
Soda Springs	8:05 p. m.	9:15 a. m
Belleville	9:15 p. m.	7:55a. m
Candelaria	Ar. 10:00 p. m.	Lv. 7:20a. m
	No. 3. Leave—	No. 4. Arrives—
Belleville	8:20 a. m.	5:25 p m.
Benton	11:50 a. m.	1:35 a.m.
Bishop Creek	2:00p. m.	11:00 a. m
Alvord	2.45 p. m.	10:00 a. m
Independence	4:20 p. m.	8:30 a. m
Lone Pine	5:10p. m.	7:40 a. m
Keeler	Ar. 5:55 p. m.	Lv. 7:00 a. m

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

At HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (3 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

At LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salisbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leavin Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville Grantsville and Belmont.

At CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stage for Columbus (8 miles), Silver P[illegible] Montezuma Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D A BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - Cal.

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patron can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of WINES, LIQUORS, & CIGARS

The most careful attention given to the the amusement and comfort of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-12 td

Inyo Stage Company.

REGULAR LINE

—FROM—

Mojave To Keeler.

FINE COACH FAST STOCK.

The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful

Redrock Canyon

And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.

Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m

Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.

W. K. MILLER,
Prop

If You Want The Best.

ALTHOUGH you may have had good luck with but few failures in making cake and biscuit in the old-fashioned way with soda and sour milk, or soda and cream of tartar, you will have better luck and (following directions) no failures with the Royal Baking Powder.

The truth of this must be evident when you remember that in the leading hotels and restaurants, and in the homes of our city cousins, where the latest and best methods are invariably employed, and where the most beautiful and dainty food is always set out for the guests, the Royal Baking Powder is exclusively used for all quickly risen food.

Royal Baking Powder never disappoints; never makes sour, soggy or husky food; never spoils good materials; never leaves lumps of alkali in the biscuit or cake; while all these things do happen with the best of cooks who cling to the old-fashioned methods, or who use other baking powders.

If you want the best food, Royal Baking Powder is indispensable.

In Australia there is manufactured a hat which is said to resemble the Panama hat very closely. It is made from the unexpanded leaves of a native plant, which are immersed in boiling water, and then dried. The fiber obtained by this treatment is plaited as in South America.

Railway statistics show that the American takes twenty-seven railway trips a year, the Englishman nineteen, the Belgian eleven, the Frenchman, the German, Swede, Norwegian and the Spaniard five each, while the Turk, the Swiss and the Italian take but one each.

Here is something for people who keep their carriages. A mirror is attached to the girdle of a driver of a fashionable turnout in St. Petersburg. This enables the lady who rides in the phaeton to see all the following equipages without turning her head.

Thin Children Grow Fat

on Scott's Emulsion, because fat foods make fat children. They are thin, and remain thin just in proportion to their inability to assimilate food rich in fat.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod Liver Oil is especially adaptable to those of weak digestion—it is partly digested already. Astonishing how quickly a thin person gains solid flesh by its use!

Almost as palatable as milk.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

2 lfs

If you will send us your name and address, we will send you free our SUPPLEMENTARY LIST OF SEASONABLE SPECIALTIES—Seeds, Plants and Bulbs, which if planted now, will yield a Garden full of bloom.

If you send a Dime, we will send you a large packet of Seeds of the TIMOTHY HOPKINS COLLECTION of SWEET PEAS, 21 varieties, mixed. From our List you can choose a Flower or Vegetable Garden for a Dollar.

SHERWOOD HALL NURSERY CO.
S. W. cor. Clay and Sansome Streets, San Francisco.

"German Syrup"

William McKeekan, Druggist at Bloomingdale, Mich. "I have had the Asthma badly ever since I came out of the army and though I have been in the drug business for fifteen years, and have tried nearly everything on the market, nothing has given me the slightest relief until a few months ago, when I used Boschee's German Syrup. I am now glad to acknowledge the great good it has done me. I am greatly relieved during the day and at night go to sleep without the least trouble."

DR. GUNN'S ONION SYRUP
FOR COUGHS, COLDS AND CROUP.
GRANDMOTHER'S ADVICE.

In raising a family of nine children, my only remedy for Coughs, Colds and Croup was onion syrup. It is just as effective to-day as it was forty years ago. Now my grandchildren take Dr. Gunn's Onion Syrup which is already prepared and more pleasant to the taste. Sold everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents. Take no substitute for it. There's nothing as good.

PISO'S CURE FOR
Consumptives and people who have weak lungs or Asthma, should use Piso's Cure for Consumption. It has cured thousands. It has not injured one. It is not bad to take. It is the best cough syrup. Sold everywhere. 25c.
CONSUMPTION.

Fabulous Prices for Books.

The most costly book in the world is the missal sent by Pope Leo X to Henry VIII of England at the time when the title Defender of the Faith was conferred on that much married monarch. For a number of years the book remained crown property, but Charles II, who had little use for missals, gave it to the ancestor of the Duke of Hamilton, in whose family it remained until a few years ago, when the library of the duke was sold at auction. The missal was purchased by the German government, which paid for it in cash the enormous sum of £10,000. A much higher price than this, however, was once offered for a single volume.

In 1512 Pope Julius II was in need of money and endeavored to borrow. He was at that time the possessor of a Hebrew Bible, which for some cause the Jewish people of Venice desired to purchase. They offered to pay weight in gold for the book, which was so heavy that the united strength of two men could barely lift it. The book was weighed and the estimate made of its weight in gold was £20,000. Julius deemed this sum inadequate and declined to sell, so that the Vatican Hebrew Bible is justly entitled to the distinction of being the most valuable book in the world.—Mirror.

Woman and Government.

The army and the navy, we trust, are only incidents in the progress of the race, but so long as they exist man has a prominence in the affairs of life. He is the executive arm in war, as, figuring as policeman, he is in civil processes. And perhaps it was inevitable that, having this responsibility, he should make the laws regulating national life, and gradually all sorts of laws.

If we could get rid of the tremendous war and governmental machinery life would be a sort of picnic, and then women would come to the front again, for they manage a picnic much better than men can. This is the highest sort of compliment, for woman has a head for organization and details and economy, as is sufficiently evident in the most highly civilized nation, France, where she is pre-eminent in business matters.—Charles Dudley Warner in Harper's.

Most Horrible of All Dreams.

No words are strong enough to point out the danger of slow poisoning by drugs which are often taken to procure sleep, whether it be an alcoholic nightcap, morphine, opium, chloral or any other. The medical man has recourse with reluctance to these as a last and temporary resort, and only he can tell how many lives are wrecked by the illtimed use of them and their subsequent abuse. Of all horrible dreams none is so awful as those which assail people who habitually use these false comforters. Better than all the drugs in the world for procuring sleep are simple food, a regular life and a calm mind.—Cassell's.

An Industrious Turkey.

Henry Curfright, of this township, has the best paying turkey hen in this county. Early in the spring she began laying, and after she had laid the usual number of eggs went to sitting. She was broken from sitting and soon laid another sitting, and this time was permitted to sit and hatched out a brood of young turkeys. During the entire time she was sitting she laid an egg regularly every other day, and since she has been out with her young she has still laid every other day. This information was given us by Mr. Curtright, and he is a truthful man.—Paris (Mo.) Appeal.

Appreciate a Courtesy.

In a recent issue the Japan Gazette says: "We desire to express on behalf of all British residents our recognition of the kindly courtesy displayed by the United States man-of-war in harbor in firing a salute of twenty-one guns in honor of her majesty the queen's birthday when there was no English man-of war here to do so."

On one occasion Bishop Selwyn was going down the River Waikato with a Maori, when the latter, who was very lazy, left off paddling the canoe, at the same time muttering that if Selwyn were not a bishop he would—well, "go for him." In a moment the bishop told the man to turn the ca[illegible] ashore, where, stripping himself [illegible] thing episcopal, he said, poin[illegible] robes, etc.: "The bishop lies th[illegible] is here. I am quite ready; co[illegible] Maori did not "come on," h[illegible] quietly resumed his work withe[illegible] murmur.—London Tit-Bits.

THE HIDDEN WILL.

AMANDA M. DOUGLAS IN THE BOSTON TRUE FLAG.

I.

THE old house at Chorley Cliffs had a tenant at last. An invalid lady with an only daughter desired a seaside residence for the summer, and hearing of this secluded mansion, applied by letter. As her references were satisfactory, and the rent offered in advance, Mr. Harton congratulated himself on his good fortune, and sent some workmen to render the place habitable.

It was a crazy, rambling, dilapidated, moss grown affair, not bearing on its crest that odor of sanctity considered desirable in a well ordered community. Old Capt. Chorley, its founder, had been a seafaring man all his days. Wonderful legends were still related about him when the old dames of the neighborhood held a tea drinking. It had never been definitely settled whether his vessel was a slaver, or, worse yet, one of the few remaining piratical craft that still occasionally scoured the ocean. She came and went in secrecy; the sparse population on the northern end of Long Island at that period, the many little bays and harbors, and the different crafts constantly passing at that point, rendered evasion an easy matter. Whatever his business might be, he increased in wealth, purchased a large tract of land and built the castle like structure on a jut of rocky ground overhanging the sea. Much and varied taste had been displayed on both exterior and interior, but now the windows had fallen in; the gray stone had begun to crumble in several places; storms had found their way through roofs and crevices, despoiling carved wainscoting, painted ceilings and curious furniture that might have been imported from every quarter of the globe.

During one of his expeditions Capt. Chorley had married, and on his return a wife and child were added to the treasures already stowed away in the prison like mansion. A few of the gentry called on Mrs. Chorley, but she did not seem disposed to be friendly with her neighbors. The fishermen's wives remembered seeing her walk up and down the beach below the house, pale and silent, leading a little boy who clung timidly to her and never strayed off to play.

After awhile another son was added to the family, and this event was succeeded by Mrs. Chorley's death. The old, forbidding looking servant brought up the children until they were old enough to accompany their father to sea, as he seemed to desire this mode of existence even after he had acquired a fortune. At 25, Harold, the elder, became a tall, handsome Spanish West Indian, relinquished his roving life and turned farmer on his father's estate.

Capt. Chorley's death occurred at sea, of a malignant fever he had contracted at an unhealthy port. Throughout his illness he had raved continually of a will and a casket locked up in the tower. This had been built on the side overlooking the bay, and being much higher than the house, it was said a light used to be placed in it whenever the captain was expected home. Indeed, he had furnished up one room as a private library and study, and on the return of the younger son with the sad tidings immediate search was made throughout this apartment for the document, but in vain. There was but little love between Mrs. Chorley and her brother-in-law, and when, after escritoires, heavy, cumbersome chests, and all manner of out of the way places had been hunted through, she came down the stone steps one morning with a haughty, triumphant face, holding up to the brothers a casket of cedar wood, curiously bound with brass, whose luster was sadly tarnished, a bitter, suspicious thought flashed up in Vincent's heart.

She described with some degree of ostentation the spot where she had found it—an old closet quite distinct from the study. She also insisted upon the lawyer being called in before it was opened. This was a Mr. Harton, a young attorney who had been in the village scarcely a year.

Vincent Chorley sat in sullen silence, a strange presentiment of coming evil shivering through his whole frame. He was hardly surprised when he found his brother possessor of the house and farm, and a generous income, beside which his seemed a mere pittance. The ship was bequeathed to him, but it was old and unseaworthy; beside, Vincent had no greater love for a seafaring life than his brother. Consequently his disappointment was great, and high words passed between them. Mrs. Chorley's attempts at pacification were made with an evident desire of widening the breach, and the quarrel ended by an angry separation.

Vincent sold his vessel, embarked in mercantile pursuits, married, and at his death bequeathed his heritage of hatred to his son. Harold died childless, and a year afterward Mrs. Chorley surprised every one by bestowing her hand upon Lawyer Harton, who was still poor, and several years her junior. The fortune had been left to her without a single restriction. A new house was built, two daughters added to the family circle, but it was rumored Mr. and Mrs. Harton did not lead a happy life. He certainly held some secret power over her, at which she chafed and grew mutinous, and at these seasons carried her head more loftily than ever, looking down upon him with undisguised contempt.

One morning she went out, and, not having returned by evening, her husband went to seek her among the neighbors, while two of the servants set forth to explore the old house. Ascending the tower they found her in the study, seated before a table in the attitude of writing. Her eyes were staring into space with a fixed, stony gaze; the pen had fallen from her hand: [illegible] Death [illegible] upon her, and she was buried with a great show of respect by Mr. Harton. The mysterious death caused intense excitement, and Chorley Cliffs soon began to have quite a respectable ghost of its own.

Another incident occurred to give it still greater notoriety. Allingham Chorley, the only survivor of the family, a tall, fine looking young man, came into the neighborhood and demanded the privilege of searching the old stone house. Without directly accusing any one, he boldly declared his grandfather's will had never been found or else destroyed. For the first day Mr. Harton followed his steps like a shadow, much as he dreaded to enter the hated mansion. At evening some sharp words passed between them, and whether it was a premeditated assault or an accident of the moment could not be clearly made out, but Mr. Harton was precipitated over the edge of the declivity into the water below, and rescued by some fishermen in a small boat. He immediately made a deposition against Allingham Chorley, charging him with forcibly throwing him from the cliff with intent to murder him. At first the young man laughed, and declared with cool audacity that Mr. Harton had plunged into the bay himself; but when he saw matters assuming a serious aspect, and a warrant issued for his arrest, decided flight to be the wiser course. Mr. Harton seemed quite delighted at thus being rid of his adversary.

No one cared to live in the old house, so it had gone on falling to ruin. For several seasons Mr. Harton had advertised it for a summer residence, but with no success; consequently he was delighted to find a tenant now.

The work of renovating went on rapidly. By the first of May a sufficient number of rooms were in order, and Mrs. Bertrand, her daughter and servant came to take possession. Mr. Harton brought his eldest child over to call upon the ladies. Miss Harton was tall, haughty and very mature looking for 17. The union of races in this case had not increased the power of beauty. With her mother's dark complexion, Miss Harton inherited her father's steely gray eyes and brown hair; her features were regular, yet lacked warmth and spirit, but her figure was undeniably fine. She looked five years older than Dora Bertrand, who was her senior by a few months. The young people did not assimilate very readily; indeed, Dora was almost frightened by her guest's state and demeanor.

"I am very glad we shall not live here always," she said to her mother, after the visitors had gone. "I am sure, if Miss Harton is a sample of the young ladies, I shall find very few pleasant acquaintances. And, somehow, I cannot like Mr. Harton a bit, although he is so anxious for our comfort."

"Do not judge too soon," responded Mrs. Bertrand. "There is another sister for us to see; she may be different."

And different she certainly was. They met her when they went to return the call; her sister being absent, she was compelled to play the hostess. She was a brunette, and though possessing neither the fine figure nor regular features of the elder, more than made up the lack by her vivacity and gay good humor. Mrs. Bertrand was really glad, for Dora's sake, that they had found so companionable a young lady, and warmly invited her to make herself no stranger at the Cliffs.

Olive Horton was no less delighted with the prospect of so pleasant a friend. Not, indeed, that she suffered from loneliness, for she was welcome at many a fireside where Mr. Harton and Clara would not have deigned to show themselves. Yet among the people who visited the house Olive found few to her liking, and both father and sister frowned down any attempt on her part to establish a circle of her own.

As Mrs. Bertrand found it impossible to procure a piano in the neighborhood, and judged it too great a distance to have hers removed for the few months they expected to spend in the country, she accepted Mr. Harton's proposal that Dora should come over daily and practice with Olive; and this led to a complete intimacy. Olive resembled her father and sister as little in character as in person. Cool, calculating, suspicious, and stealthy, Mr. Harton seemed ever on the lookout lest some one should gain an advantage over him; while Olive was frank, free and careless to a fault. There was not a trace of pride or haughtiness in her, and many of the village people who shrank from her sister brightened into smiles when her merry face appeared at the doorway.

Mrs. Bertrand was not at all surprised as she saw the girls rushing in eagerly, one afternoon, their faces flushed with rapid walking, and heard Dora exclaim:

"O, mamma, Olive has the key to the tower, and we are going up to explore it. She says almost every one believes it's haunted;" and Dora gave a gay, birdlike laugh.

"I'm so glad you are not afraid of ghosts, Mrs. Bertrand," Olive said, crossing the room to kiss her. "It's so nice to have you and Dora live in this old house; but no one would ever come before, they were all so afraid of its being haunted."

"A very foolish belief, my dear," returned Mrs. Bertrand, in that placid tone which most people use to iterate old truths that few trouble themselves to examine.

"Come, Dora," and Olive led the way.

They crossed the wide hall and entered a small passage. The tower, although joined to the main building, was quite separate from it interiorly. There were more rooms in the house than Mrs. Bertrand cared to use, so nothing had been said about the tower further than that Mr. Harton had informed her it was kept as a sort of store room for useless rubbish. More than once Dora had evinced a restless curiosity concerning it; and Jane, the domestic, had speculated considerably about the ghost, and wondered why Mr. Harton kept the premises so closely locked.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Calvin Meek, a colored man, who was stealing a ride in the first coach of the passenger train, was found over the engine of that train. When the freight engine mowed its way under the coach Meek was thrown up and came down upon the steam drum, to which he was pinned by a mass of wreck[illegible] was removed after the g[illegible] While his injuries [illegible]

Dancing Is Healthful.

Have you ever noticed that every once in awhile there comes a perfect storm of protests about that much abused and long suffering pastime, dancing? It is something like the yellow fever or cholera scare; it comes without warning and almost overwhelms one, and then in a little while some other topic is absorbing public interest, and the harmless waltzer, who never meant a bit of evil to anybody and is really too good natured to wish any one otherwise than well, is left in the enjoyment of his favorite pleasure until, for the lack of something else, the poets, the preachers and the reformers inveigh against it, and in denunciations the most awful predict terrible catastrophes to overtake the idle minded who spend so much of their time in an "insanely mad gyration."

But it is some comfort to know that an eminent English physician regarded dancing a very healthful exercise, and recommended it without fail to his languid lady patients. He considered that after a long dinner the body needs exercise, and he commended dancing as the very best form in which that exercise could be taken, affording relaxation to the mind and inciting activity of the body.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Franklyn W. Lee, author of "A Shred of Lace," is a well known newspaper man of St. Paul, and a descendant of Chancellor Kent. Although but twenty-seven years old he has edited two papers, written a novel and published a volume of verse, both of which have enjoyed wide popularity. He will bring out another story in September.

HOITT'S SCHOOL FOR BOYS.

One of the most delightful spots on the Pacific Coast is the old Reddington place, near Millbrae, San Mateo County, California, now occupied by Hoitt's School for boys. Ira G. Hoitt, Ph. D., Ex-State Superintendent is master of this school. The number of pupils is limited to fifty. The teaching force is large and first-class. No where are boys better taught and better cared for, in every respect, than at this deservedly popular school.—S. F. Examiner.

A litterateur and a litteratease
They wedded, as happy as birds;
And of course, as is plain to the veriest goose,
The rest of their life they had words.

SELF PRAISE.

Self-praise is no recommendation, but there are times when one must permit a person to tell the truth about himself. When what he says is supported by the testimony of others no reasonable man will doubt his word. Now to say that ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS are the only genuine and reliable porous plasters made is not self praise in the slightest degree. They have stood the test for over thirty years, and in proof of their merits it is only necessary to call attention to the cures they have effected and to the voluntary testimonials of those who have used them.

Beware of imitations, and do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

He—I have arranged to go abroad this summer. I propose now — She—Oh, darling, this is so sudden. But see papa.

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED.

We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Porterfield & Losey, 838 Market Street, San Francisco.

Waiter (insinuatingly)—I hope you will not forget me, sir. Departing Guest—No, indeed. I'll write to you every once in a while.

"Brown's Bronchial Troches" are an effective Cough Remedy. Sold only in boxes. Price 25 cents.

There is something wrong if you feel spiteful whenever you see another woman wearing a better bonnet than you can afford.

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell.

How to Come to a Stop.

SAINT JACOBS OIL TRY IT

When we least expect them, accidents will befall us, a verification of the old adage that the unexpected always happens. The following recites how an active business man was suddenly brought down.

THE TRAIN STOPS.

CINCIN., O.—"Recently while in the act of alighting from my car, I stepped upon a stone, which, turning suddenly under my foot, threw me to the ground, with a severely sprained ankle.

THE MANAGER STOPS.

Suffering exceedingly, I was helped into my car, and my man rubbed me most generously with arnica and kindred remedies, but to no avail.

A POINT TO STOP AT.

Reaching a station where St. Jacobs Oil could be procured, two bottles of it were bought, and the application of it resulted at once in a relief from pain, which had well nigh become unbearable. I was out and about my work in three days."

W. W. PEABODY,
Prest. & Genl. Man. O. & M. R. R.

THAT'S THE ST. JACOBS OIL POINT

The Pain Stops.

TRADE S.S.S. MARK.

CURES SCROFULA

Mrs. E. J. Rowell, Medford, Mass., says her mother has been cured of Scrofula by the use of four bottles of S.S.S. after having had much other treatment, and being reduced to quite a low condition of health, as it was thought she could not live.

S.S.S. Cured my little boy of hereditary scrofula which appeared all over his face. For a year I had given up all hope of his recovery, when finally I was induced to use S.S.S. A few bottles cured him, and no symptoms of the disease remain.

INHERITED SCROFULA

MRS. T. L. MATHERS, Matherville, Miss.

Our book on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free.
SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

TRAINED Male or Female
[illegible]AN, NURSES
[illegible]or the Sick.
[illegible]n Ness Avenue,
San Francisco, Cal.
[illegible]ance Telephone 2579.

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

She's an awful woman the neighbors say,
And keeps her husband on misery's brink;
Yes, I saw her in a buggy to-day,
When she actually drove her horse to drink.

BIRDS OF PASSAGE

Between this and the other side of the broad Atlantic, in the shape of tourists, commercial travelers and mariners, agents "on the road," steamboat captains, ship's surgeons and "all sorts and conditions" of travelers, emigrant and new settlers appreciate and testify to the preventive and remedial properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in sea sickness, nausea, malarial and rheumatic trouble, and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. Against the prejudicial influences of climate, crudely cooked or unaccustomed diet and impure water, it is a sovereign safeguard, and has been so regarded by the traveling public for over a third of a century. No form of malarial fever, from the calentura of the Pacific and the broken bone fever of the Mississippi, to its milder types, can resist the curative action of this benignant preserver and restorer of health, a veritable boon to persons in feeble health or liable to incur disease.

"Captain, why do they distribute liquor to sailors on shipboard?" "Well, you know, every Jack should have his gill."

HOW'S THIS!

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.

We the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligation made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

Knowledge is power, except in the case of the man who knows he is whipped.

Pfunder's Oregon Blood Purifier is the best remedy for cleansing your system.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

FROM HEAD TO FOOT you feel the good that's done by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It purifies the blood. And through the blood, it cleanses, repairs, and invigorates the whole system.

In recovering from "La Grippe," or in convalescence from pneumonia, fevers, or other wasting diseases, nothing can equal it as an appetizing, restorative tonic to build up needed flesh and strength. It rouses every organ into natural action, promotes all the bodily functions, and restores health and vigor.

For every disease that comes from a torpid liver or impure blood, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Biliousness, and the most stubborn Skin, Scalp, or Scrofulous affections, the "Discovery" is the only remedy so certain that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

For a perfect and permanent cure for Catarrh, take Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Its proprietors offer $500 reward for an incurable case of Catarrh.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail, Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER. 25c.

SHILOH'S VITALIZER CATARRH REMEDY.

Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50cts. Injector free.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

Mrs. J. N. Aughenbaugh
Of Etters, Pa.

Blood Poisoning

Intense Suffering 11 Years.

Hood's Healed the Sore in Seven Weeks—A Perfect Cure.

"I will recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as first-class. It has proved its merits to us. Twelve years ago my wife was picking raspberries when she scratched herself on a brier, the wound from which soon developed into a terrible sore, between her knee and ankle. Notwithstanding all we did for it, it continued discharging for eleven long years. We tried medical skill on every side, with no effect. About a year ago she read of Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to try it herself, and while taking the first bottle she felt better and continued with it until to-day she is entirely well and better than ever. The sore was healed up in seven weeks. Her limb is perfectly sound. We attribute her cure entirely to Hood's Sarsaparilla." JACOB N. AUGHENBAUGH, Etters, York Co., Pa.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

HOOD'S PILLS cure all Liver Ills, Biliousness, Jaundice, Indigestion, Sick Headache.

SUMMER INCUBATORS.
ON INSTALLMENTS. Send for Catalogue.
W. C. BEACH, Ripon, Cal.

INVALID COODS.

Rolling Chairs
Reclining Chairs
Back Rests
Commodes.
Send for Catalogue.
W. A. SCHROCK, 21 New Montgomery St. S.F.

PATENTS
BEST LEGAL ADVICE. BEST PATENTS OBTAINED.
DEWEY & CO.,
220 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO,
WASHINGTON, D. C., LONDON, ETC.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE
Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

HAVE YOU GOT PILES
ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BO-SAN-KO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

TAKE PFUNDER'S OREGON BLOOD PURIFIER.
CURES KIDNEY & LIVER DISEASES, DYSPEPSIA, PIMPLES, BLOTCHES AND SKIN DISEASES, HEADACHE, COSTIVENESS.
PURE BLOOD

YOUNG MEN!
The Specific A No. 1.
Cures, without fail, all cases of Gonorrhœa and Gleet, no matter of how long standing. Prevents Stricture. Belongs an internal remedy. Cures when everything else has failed. Sold by all Druggists.
Manufacturers: The A. Schoenhelt Medicine Co., San Jose, Cal.
Price, $1.00.

"IT IS IGNORANCE THAT WASTES EFFORT." TRAINED SERVANTS USE
SAPOLIO

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF
Moore's Revealed Remedy.
ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude
MRS. N. V. STEELE.
SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

For Simplicity and Success they beat the world.

HERCULES ENGINES
GAS AND GASOLINE — Stationary and Marine

Their economy for intermittent [illegible] is beyond qu[illegible]

Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day.

No Engineer is necessary; easily managed.

No battery or electric spark to care for.

For pumping outfits for irrigating purposes they run all day without an engineer.

No double or false ex[illegible]ment

June 30, 1893
August 15, 1894

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

Independence, Cal.

FRIDAY, JUNE 30, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXV. NO. 2. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JUNE 30, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1183

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$4.00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.50
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

OUR WEDDING DAY.

Our wedding day, dear heart,
Well I remember
How crisp the hoar frost lay
That chill December.
I was a foolish thing.
How my heart failed me;
Little you knew or guessed
What 'twas that ailed me.

I had my doubts of you.
Only just fancy!
Would you have thought it, Jack,
Of your fond Nancy?
People kept telling me
Men were deceivers;
Women most foolish folk,
Heedless believers.

Would you be kind? I asked,
And my heart fluttered;
True to the marriage vows
Your lips had uttered?
Ten years ago, dear love—
How the time passes.
Jack! drink my health again;
Fill up our glasses.

Don't wipe my tears away;
They're not for sadness.
My heart is full today
Only of gladness.
How true you've been to me
None can guess ever;
Husband, stand by me still,
Never to sever.

As o'er the frosty sky
Wintry clouds hasten,
Our joys in future, Jack,
Trials may chasten.
Still hand in hand we'll step,
Fearing no morrow;
Wind blows the clouds away,
Love chases sorrow.

Our wedding day is o'er—
Twelve the clock's striking.
Look at me, Jack—am I
Still to your liking?
Don't say a word, you goose;
Only remember
I love you better now
Than that December.

—L. E. Tiddeman in Once a Week.

For a Girl's Summer Trunk.

If you wear a fluffy bang you want your alcohol lamp.

If you wear laced shoes you want a dozen pairs of shoestrings.

If you varnish or polish your shoes you want a new bottle of blacking.

If you are inclined to sunburn you want a pot of strawberry cream or some cold cream.

If you are fond of reading you want your favorite books.

If you ever use pins you want a block of black ones and a paper of white ones.

If you are a good girl and mend your clothes you want some spools of thread, your needles, your thimble and some buttons.

If you make yourself sweet with infant powder and a puff you want a sealed package of powder.

If you use bonnet pins to fasten on your hat you want a dozen of them.

If you are inclined to be ill tempered and petulant you want unlimited patience.

If you are inclined to be careless and inconsiderate you want a very large package of energy and friendliness.

And if you are lacking in politeness then you want to remember that surely she who claims to be a Christian must, before everything else, be gentle in her manners.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Expensive Buttons and How to Wear Them

"I would like three buttons."

A maid in a Louis Quinze coat and a bias cut tailor made skirt, stretched her pretty chin up over the counter in a Broadway store.

"Why not buy six?" said her companion.

"Why, my dear, they are three dollars apiece."

"Three dollars apiece! I don't see any sense in buying such expensive buttons and hiding them under the chiffon, as is the fashion this season."

There's where you lack subtlety. Everything in fashion this year is veiled. Jeweled buttons are all the go, but they must not be exhibited in an out and out audy way; their charms must be deftly obscured behind a thin veiling of chiffon or lace. Why, when a person can just see a little sparkling of a gem through lace that person always wants to look the second time, whereas if the whole ornament be displayed the costume does not get so much attention.—New York Recorder.

How a Woman Earns Forty Dollars a Week.

A few days since a woman of good family, but of reduced circumstances, entered the office of a well known managing editor while I happened to be there, and talked with a degree of persistency that suggested that her heart was very much in her work about printing the portrait of the wife of a western millionaire in the paper. She had no end of photographs of the large and pudgy features of the western woman's face, and after she had talked for some time without making any impression I asked her if she would not tell me frankly what her interest was in pushing the social notoriety of her western friend so vigorously. "Forty dollars a week," said she calmly. "She is anxious to be kept before the public and I am anxious to get her name into the society columns and have her portrait published wherever it is possible. That's what she pays me for." It struck me as being a mighty good price, but then it's not much of a business.—Blakely Hall in Brooklyn Eagle.

Don't Wash Out Your Beauty.

The eyes should always be wiped toward the nose, as it presses out the fine lines from the corners. Every woman has heard of the virtues of rainwater for the complexion, but it is hard to procure this in city houses. A good substitute is to keep a pitcher of water for toilet use in which lemon, orange or cucumber peel is allowed to soak. Water so impregnated, it is said, imparts a healthy glow and really freshens the complexion, while it softens the skin.—New York Journal.

A Queen's Annual Bath.

The queen of Madagascar takes a bath once a year. While she observes her annual custom the populace sing hymns and play drums. When she emerges from the tub, arrayed in robes of royalty and decorated with crown jewels, a mighty cheer goes up from an unwashed crowd. In Madagascar it is regarded as an act of tremendous courage to submit to the cleansing influences of water.—London Times.

Going to Church in Mexico.

One class of Mexican buildings there is whereof, save only at night, the doors never are closed—the churches. From dawn until darkness comes again the church doors stand open, and whoever will may enter to seek solace in prayer. Though less than in the period preceding the passage of the laws of reform—which swept away at a single blow the priestly rule that undermined the civil power—the church is an active part of Mexican daily life. Going to church is not an office fixed for a small part of a single day in the week and celebrated only in garments of price; every day and all day long there is a constant flow and ebb of humanity through the friendly open doors to and from the friendly shelter from the sorrows of the world.

In the very early morning working people—cargadores and aguadores and such like humble folk—surrender a few minutes of their working time that they may begin their day with prayer. A little later come the house servants on their way home from market, bringing their market baskets with them, and usually having in their wake a little dog, whose decorous gravity suggests the possibility that in these early devotions he also has a share. At 8 o'clock the mass is celebrated, when the women of the upper classes—the men are conspicuous by their absence—throng the churches; and thereafter, being clad in black and wearing lace mantillas, add greatly to the picturesqueness of the streets as they go homeward.

Then come the venders of milk and vegetables and poultry and wood and charcoal and other household supplies—country people who wish to make their sacrifice of prayer before daring forth from the city, and who, if they have had luck in their small cheatings, may be disposed also to thanksgiving. Even on a Sunday—the only day that he would be sure of finding the doors open—a charcoal seller would not be encouraged to hitch his donkey to a lamp post in front of a fashionable church in New York, and thereafter to enter the church and say his prayers. Quite the contrary.—Harper's Weekly.

Phosphorus Produced by Electricity.

The large and increasing demand for phosphorus, not only for the manufacture of matches, but for its subsidiary applications in the organic syntheses which form one branch of modern chemical industry, and in the production of many of the phosphor alloys that have recently come into vogue, has made the question of its economical production of much commercial importance, as well as of technical interest. In the method of manufacture at present generally employed, the chief cost lies less in the raw materials than in that of the plant and labor necessary for the production of phosphorus from them. Electricity has been introduced into this process with increased yield and decreased cost.

The new process is quite simple, consisting merely in feeding in the raw materials, passing the current between suitable electrodes, and collecting and condensing the volatized phosphorus in the usual way. When it is remembered that formerly mineral phosphates had to be treated with sulphuric acid, the liberated phosphoric acid separated from the calcium sulphate produced at the same time by filtration, the solution of the former concentrated by evaporation, mixed with charcoal and heated strongly in small retorts, before reaching the stage in which the mere application of current now brings the raw material, the immense advantage of the new treatment will be seen.

The most important feature involved is the application of heat in the very spot where its usefulness is greatest, doing away at one stroke with the clumsy practice of external firing at present employed in this and many kindred industries.—New York Telegram.

Mildred's Prayers.

Little Mildred, a sweet, golden haired "tot" of six, had been taught to say, "Thank God for a good breakfast" or dinner or supper, as the case might be, after a meal.

The other morning her parents, for good and sufficient reasons, restricted her to oatmeal for breakfast. When she had finished she clasped her little hands and began. "Thank God for"——

Then the raspberries and the ham and eggs and various other appetizing things that she had not been allowed to partake of attracted her attention. She paused for a moment, and then letting her hands fall to her side, while a look of deep dejection overshadowed her pretty face, she said:

"Oh, God, I'se only had oatmeal for breakfast this morning. Amen."

Her mother, like most good and devout mothers, has taught her that if she wants anything and is a good girl and prays for it she will be sure to get it. The other night she overheard little Mildred praying earnestly in her childish way for a velocipede.

"'Cause you know, God," added the child, in conclusion, "I'se been a good girl, and mamma told me that if I was a good girl and asked you for anything you would let me have it. Amen."

Now the mother is much perplexed because she doesn't want Mildred to have a velocipede and at the same time she doesn't want to shake her childish faith in the efficacy of prayer.

I think that it will end in Mildred's getting the velocipede.—New York Herald.

A Newspaper Man Sells Langtry a Mine.

There are incidents of Langtry's visits to California which are of interest and which have never been published. It has been said, and with truth, no doubt, that she did many shrewd things in the way of advertising. At one time she rented a house somewhere out in the Mission and tried to make everybody believe she intended to remain there until gathered to her father's, when she would be laid away in an elaborate vault in Laurel Hill cemetery, or some other city of the dead. But it was all a myth.

Then she bought some ground over in Nevada, had a hole dug in it and called it the Langtry mine. Sam Davis, a well known newspaper man, says he sold her the ground for $200. She was in the statue scene of Galatea in "Pygmalion and Galatea," and during the scene Davis was in the wings. She dared not move a muscle. He said in a low voice: "Is it a bargain for $200? I'll consider that it is if you don't shake your head." The statue remained still, and when the Lily came out afterward she was so taken with the originality of the scheme that she paid the money over at once.—Cor. St. Louis Republic.

Banana Fiber.

Manilla rope is made in the Philippine islands of the stem of the banana. This stalk, which usually grows to be six inches in diameter and from fifteen to twenty feet high, has a very valuable fiber from which are woven beautiful textile fabrics. Many of the finest India shawls and wrappers worn by the ladies of fashion are manufactured from this fabric. So, too, an excellent article of paper is made from it.—Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine.

A DREARY LIFE.

Multifarious Tricks of Prison Inmates to Kill Time.

TRAGEDIES BEHIND THE BARS.

Men Who Deliberately Maim Themselves in Order to Evade the Regular Routine of Prison Life.

There are many incidents in the prison life of convicts that are out of the ordinary, and may be said to form part of their pleasures, although some are weird and tragic enough in themselves to be classed as anything but pleasures. I recollect on one occasion that I was appointed a special "trusty" over a tall, lank, dark featured young southerner who, in a moment of hopeless desperation, had cut his throat.

Teddy, as we will call him, had been a headstrong boy, and his parents could not control him, and after a youthful vagabondage he had enlisted in the regular army, where he was always in trouble. When under my care in the special hospital ward to which he had been sent he related much of his past life to me, and I learned that he had attempted to take his life when he was a soldier in the same manner as he had done in state prison.

He was not a bad sort of fellow, but being of a sensitive nature, as well as unreasonable, he allowed his gloomy thoughts to master him, and this would result in periods of depression and subsequent desperation, and he cared not what he said or did. In fact, he was inclined to emotional insanity.

One night, while my fellow trusty and I were engaged in conversation, he lay on his cot pondering over his gloomy fate, when something we said aroused him, and he flew into a rage, got up and grappled me in a desperate manner.

I quickly flung him back on his cot and pinioned him, telling my fellow trusty—a mere boy—to ring up the guard.

It was a terrible struggle to keep him in subjection until the guard arrived, for his frenzy gave him almost superhuman strength. He quieted down as soon as the guard arrived and said he was a fool for getting into such a temper, and as he feared the straitjacket he promised to behave himself in the future.

He, however, in another of his frenzied attacks attempted to tear open the wound in his throat, and it was by no means an easy matter to prevent him doing so. But a reasonable and sympathetic talk generally conquered his excitability. He finally was sent to the insane asylum.

One morning as prayer was being said in the prison chapel one of the convicts set up a howl and began barking like a dog, after which he clapped his hands—one, two, three; one, two, three—and this caused a general murmur of mixed merriment and expectation.

Two guards immediately passed to the end of the form on which he was sitting and were hustling him out of the chapel when he flew into a rage, struggled with them and hurled horrible curses at them as well as at the officiating chaplain, who was a particularly obnoxious man to the prisoners. Whether the fellow was insane or not I cannot say. The prison authorities thought he was not, and he was roundly punished for his escapade.

I was hospital trusty, and a long line of prisoners were being attended to by the doctor for real or imaginary ills. One of the prisoners on this particular occasion had nearly served his term of sentence, and he was to have been examined in order that the medical officer could report on his condition.

I was preparing a dose of common stuff for the prisoner standing next but one to him when he fell forward on the floor and blood gushed from his mouth in a stream. He had ruptured a blood vessel, and in spite of the doctor's efforts the poor fellow died.

Malingering is a very general method among prisoners to shirk the monotony or the labor consequent on their imprisonment. Anything that will relieve the tediousness and is at hand is brought into action. One here in the quarry will mash his finger in order that he may be sent to the hospital.

Another there will—quite accidentally of course—fall down the corridor steps and sustain such injuries as to insure a quiet time of convalescence on a hospital diet, and so forth; but the prison doctor is au fait with all classes of malingers, and uses his experience in treating such as come before him. Consequently the good times often anticipated never materialize.

I know one ignorant, soft headed fellow who became really ill by eating the soap he was allowed with which to perform his daily ablutions. Often had cases come before me where soap eating had put men into a feeble state of health and lent a sickly aspect to their countenances, but this fellow was sick, and no mistake.

After a course of treatment which was in itself as bad as the cause for it he was, however, restored and sent into solitary confinement as a further punishment. He never ate soap again, but, I may remark, he was subsequently poisoned by eating some of the vegetable growths around where he, with his fellows, was wont to labor.

All things considered, the malingerer comes out only second best, but it must be a terrible punishment that causes men to resort to it in order to lighten their burdens.

The two most notable cases I have ever met of this kind were where a man boldly put his foot under a falling mass of stone in the quarry, causing it to be terribly crushed and to be eventually amputated; and, in the second case, where a man feigned rheumatism and underwent every conceivable torture at the hands of the prison physician, who knew the fellow was shamming.

Plenty of Water.

Thirsty Lady—Is there any water aboard, Captain (excursion boat)—Only 'bout four feet, mum; but please don't tell anybody.—New York Weekly.

One Way of Getting a Living.

Have you ever met one of those "genials" who are so careless as to always take the change that belongs to you?

There are several of them in New York. You can find one any day along Broadway. An Englishman who came over recently ran afoul of one last week, very much to his sorrow. It so happens that this Englishman is of very good family. Though his people are quite wealthy and he has always been used to the luxuries of life and the niceties of refined society, he struck a streak of hard luck. He had got down to his last bill, which was a two dollar scrip. At this stage of the affair he met the "genial," who is supposed to be fairly prosperous and whom the Englishman had met before in London.

Regardless of his limited finances the Englishman, through force of habit, promptly invited the "genial" into the Fifth Avenue hotel. The "genial" accepted condescendingly.

The Englishman threw down the two dollar bill, the change was brought, the "genial," in the most absentminded way imaginable, gathered it up and put it in his pocket. Then they walked.

Of course the Englishman thought it a mistake and was too well bred to mention it. As he had not another cent to his name he had to walk home—and he was living in Sixty-sixth street.

The next day some money arrived, and he told the story in a down town cafe.

"Mistake!" exclaimed one of the party. "Nonsense! I know a dozen men he has done that to. It is the biggest source of income he has got."

There are queer ways of getting a living in New York.—New York Herald.

The Death of Lincoln.

The first floor of the house where Mr. Lincon was carried was composed of three rooms, opening on the same corridor. It was in the third, a small room, that the dying man lay.

His face, lighted by a gas jet, under which the bed had been moved, was pale and livid. His body had already the rigidity of death. At intervals only the still audible sound of his breathing could be faintly heard, and at intervals again it would be lost entirely.

The surgeons did not entertain hope that he might recover a moment's consciousness. Judge William T. Otto, a thirty years' friend of Mr. Lincoln, was standing at the bedside holding his hand; around the bed stood also the attorney general, Mr. Speed, and the Rev. Mr. Gurney, pastor of the church Mr. Lincoln usually attended.

Leaning against the wall stood Mr. Stanton, who gazed now and then at the dying man's face, and who seemed overwhelmed with emotion. From time to time he wrote telegrams or gave the orders which, in the midst of the crisis, assured the preservation of peace. The remaining members of the cabinet and several senators and generals were pacing up and down the corridor. Thus the night passed on. At last, toward 7 o'clock in the morning, the surgeon announced that death was at hand, and at 7:20 the pulse ceased beating.

Every one present seemed to emerge from the stupor in which the hours of night had been spent. Mr. Stanton approached the bed, closed Mr. Lincoln's eyes, and, drawing the sheet over the dead man's head, uttered these words in a very low voice, "He is a man for the ages."—Scribner's.

Eating Before Retiring Beneficial.

There has been quite a revolution of late years in many countries in regard to the connection between eating and sleeping, and it is stated that a radical change is likely to take place before long in the practice of a great many families in England. The popular idea is that eating at night is highly injurious to the constitution. It is now recognized that nature contradicts this notion. Provided a man is hungry and his stomach is in proper condition, the practice is not only harmless, but rather beneficial. To go to bed on an empty stomach is apt to drive sleep away altogether.

Three or four hours before bedtime a substantial dinner or supper should be eaten, and on going to bed some simple food should be taken every night by those who have an inclination for it, and especially by delicate persons or invalids. Persons invariably feel drowsy after a heavy meal, and, on the other hand, wakefulness is often merely an indication of hunger. The digestive organs having finished with it the blood flows once more to the head, bringing with it consciousness. The prevalent notion seems to be that the digestive organs rest simultaneously with the brain. Physiology does not support this proposition. Innumerable cases can unfortunately always be found of men, women and children complaining of sleeplessness, solely occasioned by hunger, the satisfying of which would be immediately followed by sleep.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

When Women Were Captured.

In Deuteronomy xx, 14, women are classed as spoils, and in Deuteronomy xxi, 11, 14, are the regulations to be observed in taking to wife a woman captured in war. In the song of praise attributed to Deborah and Barak, when exulting over the defeat and death of Sisera, we find (Judges v, 30): "Have they not speed? Have they not divided the prey—to every man a damsel or two?"

These are all cases of capture de facto, and they show conclusively that the Israelites captured women and took them to wife. That it was also a common practice among the neighboring nations we infer from I Samuel xxx, 5, where David's two wives are carried off by a raiding party of Amalekites.—Colonel A. B. Ellis in Popular Science Monthly.

The Atmosphere in the City of Churches.

Many people fancy that some parts of Brooklyn are more salubrious than others, and this without regard to such local conditions as contiguity to canals, sewers or factories. One lady, who had been somewhat of an invalid for years, declared that she was almost cured of asthma by moving from a house near Fort Greene park to a house on the park slope, not more than two miles away and hardly fifty feet higher. Faith may have had something to do with it.—New York Sun.

A Woman's Age.

A woman ought to be as willing to tell her age as to tell her name or the name of the town she lives in. With critical ears waiting to hear and speak disagreeable comments, no one can blame her for keeping silence about a purely personal matter. No son or daughter of a true mother or a chivalrous father ever makes the subject of age, or any other that might cause pain or annoyance, a matter of conversation.—Helen M. North in Harper's Bazar.

A New Word.

A new word—"hyjennikin"—has been coined in Boston to describe a reception given by ladies of a camera club. It is that any one would sit up late ... e, but it is as good as "e... r than "electrocution."

GIANTS' BONES.

An Amazing Collection of Remains of Prehistoric Animals.

CREATURES THAT WEIGHED TONS.

Eighty-foot Lizards.—Ferocious Kangaroos of Immense Size.—Reptilian Monsters.

Professor O. C. Marsh, who directed the gathering of the government collection, has mines of his own all over the west, from which he can draw to order the most astonishing variety of gigantic creatures. He made the remark the other day that there was one small valley he knew of where relics of the ancient mosasaurus were so plentiful that, passing through it recently, he noticed the skeletons of six of those mighty swimming lizards, each eighty feet in length, in sight at one time.

Usually these amazing fossils are found imbedded in solid rock. After they have been roughly quarried out, the sandstone or other matrix inclosing them is carefully chiseled away from the bones. The latter receive a coat of glue to keep out the decomposing air, and any that are broken or splintered are bound up with twine, after which they are packed for shipment. When one of these beasts of antiquity died, its carcass being covered up with sediment that afterward became stone, the skeleton was apt to be preserved entire and with its parts in position, all ready for mounting in a museum.

A new reptile was found in Wyoming the other day in such a complete state, which has been named brontosaurus. It was sixty feet long, stood fifteen feet high when alive, and weighed twenty tons. Cast in the rock from which it was taken was a perfect mold of one of its eyeballs, with which it looked upon the world three millions of years ago. It had a very small head, a long and flexible neck, a short body and a huge tail.

In the same neighborhood, also, has been discovered recently another reptilian monster called the triceratops, which had an enormous bony frill around the back of its neck. This surprising development, measuring six feet across, was intended for the attachment of great muscles that were necessary for holding up the huge head. The animal, though tremendously massive, was only thirty feet long, but it was covered with plates of armor and had a sharp and horny beak, not to mention a horn on its nose and another on its forehead, the latter two and a half feet in length.

A MINE OF HUGE SKELETONS.

In Colorado have been found great deposits of the bones of titanosaurs, the biggest land animals that ever existed. They grew to be sixty-five feet long and stood forty feet high when erect upon their hind legs. Instead of browsing, as did the brontosaur and triceratops, upon the luxuriant aquatic vegetation around the lake borders, they fed upon the foliage of trees on the mountain sides. Likewise did the iguanodon, several times as heavy as the elephant, which had a nipping beak like a turtle's and also walked erect, using its huge tail for a support and towering to the height of forty or fifty feet.

In the mesozoic epoch or "Age of Reptiles," when these creatures lived, these and other similar herbivorous animals were the biggest of the beasts. One of them, the atlantosaur, was 100 feet long, its thigh bones, many of which have been found, measuring eight feet in length and twenty-five inches through.

They had various methods of pursuing existence. Some went on all fours and had backbones that were mere shells filled with warm air from their lungs, which served them as floats while they walked in the sea shallows in water deep enough to cover their backs, extending their long necks to crop the vegetation alongshore. Of this sort was the camerasaurus, eighty feet in length.

Others had enormously long hind legs, on which they were able to wade out far into the ocean after seaweed, and were provided with not fewer than 2,000 teeth for grinding their food. Such was the mighty kangaroolike hydrosaurus. Yet other species dwelt on land, like the triceratops, and these were provided usually with armor and horns for defense.

A FORTY-FOOT KANGAROO.

It would seem as if such monsters as are described need have feared no living foes, but in fact they were a common prey to great numbers of frightful carnivorous reptiles, smaller in size, but of tremendous activity and fierceness, which fed upon these unwieldy vegetable eating giants.

Most terrific of all, perhaps, was the incredibly ferocious laelaps, which was forty feet long, stood twenty-five feet high on its hind legs, and was built like a kangaroo. It was the most astonishing jumper that ever existed, with teeth for cutting and sharp claws on the front feet evidently designed for tearing out the eyes of victims or adversaries.

Hardly less formidable, and equally large, was the stegosaur, which was sheathed in armor plates from two to three feet in width, and employed as a weapon of offense its powerful tail, armed near the end on both sides with sharp spikes two feet long. This animal walked erect also, and one of its peculiarities was a great enlargement of the spinal cord at the lower end of the back.

In fact, this expansion of brain material, intended to provide for the wagging of the mightly spiked tail, was ten times as big as the brain in the skull itself. Equally large and dangerous were the megalosaur and the dinosaur, their jaws armed with huge saberlike teeth, which went about on their hind legs looking for something to devour. Against such fearful foes what chance had the peaceful cetiosaurus and elasmosaurs, dwelling in marshes and shallows with the bulk of six or eight elephants.

Nevertheless some of the herbivorous land reptiles referred to like the gigantic horned and armored agathumas, could make a good fight with the carnivores, and were so well able to defend themselves that they lived and multiplied in the same regions with the latter. But most of these vegetable feeders had no other means of defense than kicking, which they could do with some effectiveness with hind legs fifteen feet or so in length.—Rene Bache in New York Sun.

Major M. P. Handy says it has been decided to hold the next convention of the International League of Press Clubs at St. Paul, May 18, 19 and 20. These dates have been selected in order that the delegates may participate in the press congress at Chicago during the week of May 22. The eastern party will leave New York in a special train over the New York Central on the morning of May 16. The party will return to Chicago on the way home on the night of May 21. They will disperse after participating in the congress.

... New Orleans occurs this ... Day.

Something for Shoppers to Think About.

Two women kept a street car waiting nearly a minute the other day while they ran to overtake it. Their hand baggage proclaimed them travelers. After they had recovered somewhat from their unusual spurt one said anxiously to the other, "Now do you think you have everything?" The other replied with equal distress of countenance, "Everything I believe but the black ribbon for a belt and those small vest buttons; but," she went on as if a ray of hope remained, "I can probably get those in Brookline." Her companion assented to this as one gently tolerant and willing to indulge a cheerful view of a rather doubtful matter.

All of which is a text, and here is the sermon: Isn't it foolish to rush about to the very verge of departure to finish a long list of shopping, to spend more money than you meant to and more strength perhaps than you have to spare, on the mistaken supposition that there is only one chance of getting a great lot of things, many of which come under the head of only possible needs? Most of the shops furnish mail order cards to any desiring such, all are prompt to fulfill an out of town commission, and it is almost impossible in these days of widespread communication to get to a point hopelessly beyond metropolitan reach.

And, secondly, the majority of the small towns and villages are supplied with a stock sufficient to meet all ordinary demands. You may not find silk underwear nor filoselle on sale in an Adirondack camp, but you will find much more than belt ribbons and vest buttons in every Brookline you travel to. Scores of women come home in the autumn with unwrapped parcels in their trunks whose contents they wore themselves out to procure in July because they might need and not be able to obtain them. It is not necessary and it does not pay.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

How He Won Her.

Permit me to suggest a plan through which a young lady became engaged while she was visiting at Cape May Point last summer. This girl—a wealthy westerner, by the way—had flirted desperately with and finally refused a man well known to club life in New York. He did not give up the ship, however, but went down to Cape May Point to see the cruel one. They went in bathing and he taught her to float, although she couldn't swim a stroke. One day she was floating and he was swimming, with one hand placed beneath her shoulders to keep her steady.

After she had been looking up at the bright blue sky for what seemed to her half an hour, the young man told her they were far from shore, with fifty feet of water between them and the bottom of the sea. She begged him to swim back toward the beach, when suddenly he withdrew his hand and she commenced to sink. She uttered a little cry, but he immediately supported her again. Then he told her, while the cool, salt waves swashed around them, that he loved her to distraction, that he had grown desperate and that unless she promised to marry him then and there he would let her drown, and for a second time he momentarily withdrew his hand.

The western girl didn't dare move, but she sobbingly confessed that she had loved him all along, and that she would marry him, of course, and that he ought to know she was just acting silly when she refused him. Then the young man stopped swimming and stood up in four feet of water, and when he had helped the girl to stand she found herself close to shore, but a few hundred feet down the beach, away from other bathers. She kept her engagement, too, and they were married in January.—Philadelphia Press.

A Woman with Sporting Blood.

There is a woman on the west side whose husband wishes the races had been run in Hindoostan instead of Buffalo. She has become an inveterate gambler. Yesterday he came home to find his wife discussing the price with a tramp who wanted to bring in a cord of wood. It seems that the price had been fixed at thirty cents. The husband unseen listened to the conversation. "Now," said his wife, "let's flip a coin to see whether it shall be thirty cents or fifty cents."

The tramp won.

"Now," said he, growing in the confidence that he had struck a snap, "let's flip again to see whether it shall be a dollar or a dollar and a half."

"Done," said the woman, too deeply wrapt in the gambling spirit to notice that it was a case of "heads I win, tails you lose."

Again the tramp won.

At this moment the husband, who was beginning to see a mortgage suspended over his house, interposed an objection, to the great displeasure of the tramp.—Buffalo Enquirer.

Silk Undergarments Galore.

Many women who have in past times longed for the luxury of silk underwear can now revel in them, for good strong surahs and washing silks, but especially surahs, white or tinted, can now be purchased at incredibly low prices, and they are so easily cleaned and freshened that the price for the "doing up" that was asked for the old style skirts, befloounced and bedecked with lace frills, bands, points and insertions, is saved over and over again by the adoption of surah garments in their place. There are few toilets that do not look and hang infinitely better over silk skirts, and the present sheathy style of dress really demands them. Of course, there is a sense of neatness and freshness about fine linen and muslin garments, and, in their place, they have no rivals; but for certain uses silk is supreme.—Albany Journal.

An Entertaining Dentist.

There is a prosperous dentist in West Twenty-third street whose clientele is composed largely of very rich and very emotional young ladies. While filling and crowning their molars this lucky tooth doctor sings nursery rhymes, old folk ballads and snatches of comic opera in a small but soothing tenor voice.—New York World.

AWFUL SUSPENSE

Startling Adventure Three Miners had in a Prospect Hole.

THE SHADOW OF DEATH UPON THEM.

Ike Failed to Hook the Rope to the Bucket, and Down the Shaft the Iron Bound Barrel Fell.

Big Sandy Thompson and Simpson, his partner, had finished filling the ore bucket with a goodly load of the tough, worthless rock in which they had been burrowing for months, and leaning on their shovels watched it go swinging slowly up toward the little 4 by 7 patch of daylight that showed the entrance to the shaft, 127 feet above them.

Down the deep hole came muffled screechings from the rope as it wound upon the drum and the creaking of the ill adjusted "whim," and they could hear Ike Wisdom's vicious objurgations as he urged their sullen little beast round and round in the dusty circle in which he had plodded, pulling up the bucket, until he had grown one-sided.

Simpson was dumpish and morose. He scraped querulously in the rock dust with his shovel and roundly berated the luck that had sent him to Colorado to dig in a hole for nothing. He cursed Colorado and he cursed Park county; he cursed the bacon on which he subsisted until, as he pathetically said, he was "ashamed to look a hog in the face," and he cursed the mine and old Sandy Thompson, who sat idly pounding away a nice round hole he was finishing up with artistic care for the reception of a dynamite stick.

Old Sandy grinned quizzically at Simpson through his bushy red whiskers and puffed silently at the malodorous black pipe, which was the joy of his life. He was used to Simpson's discontented mutterings and they disturbed the silent phlegmatic old Scot no more than the buzzing of a fly.

IKE'S CARELESSNESS.

Ike, at the top of the shaft, when the bucket came up, kicked the board under it. The lopsided beast turned in his tracks and let the load swing down, and Ike tugged it out on the dump and emptied it with much panting and effusion of sweat. Then he dragged the ponderous tub back slowly. Empty, it was a pretty good load for a man, being built of thick, oil soaked staves, hooped almost solidly from bottom to top with heavy irons, and thickly incrusted with hard, heavy clay and bits of rock driven into every crevice by long use.

Ike prided himself much on the dexterity with which he handled this big bucket by its great wrought iron bail. He swung it jauntily over the mouth of the shaft, and as he had done a thousand times before with graceful success, kicked the board from under it as he swung the rope around to hook it in its accustomed place.

But the hook clanging against the bail failed to catch. The great bucket disappeared like a shadow into the shaft's dark mouth.

Ike lunged wildly forward to catch it, lost his foothold and he, too, went into the shaft.

Down at the cool bottom of the hole Simpson was still at his dismal cursings.

"I wish," said he petulantly, "I had never seen this cussed hole. I wish I was dead. I—good God, Sandy, the bucket's loose!"

THE FALLING BUCKET.

Sandy's burly frame flew up like an acrobat's. In the twinkling of an eye he was pressed into the corner of the shaft, clutching back so hard against the rocky walls that the tips of his tanned fingers whitened.

Simpson had dropped his pick, and he, too, was pressing the rocks, holding back his breath, flattening his outstretched hands against the resistless walls.

And still the open space in the center of the shaft's bottom seemed scarcely big enough to drop a hat in.

Simpson tried to close his eyes, but tried in vain. They were fixed beyond the power of his will upon the falling bucket. He could see it dropping, lunging from side to side of the narrow hole. He saw it tear clouds of dust from the clay hardpan, saw it reach and strike the deeper layers of porphyry.

It bounded from side to side of the hole; striking now and again on a jutting fragment and tearing it loose, it rattled and clattered against the hard rock. It seemed to come so slowly—far more slowly than it used to when the rope had let it down.

To Simpson years, centuries seemed to pass as the bucket clanged and rattled against the sides of the shaft. He thought with the all vivid rapidity of men thus facing impending death. He saw his old home in the Missouri bottom lands, his mother's face and the face of the maiden who waited his return.

And he saw the blood dabbed face of the man he had stabbed over the faro table down in Tuscon. He wished now that he had never quarreled with that man.

THE SUSPENSE ENDED.

It was an actual relief to see that the bucket was coming faster now; wherever its iron bound sides touched the porphyry they ground streams of sparks that glittered wickedly in the half darkness. Its rattlings and clangings had merged into a continuous rolling ear stunning roar. He made his eyes close at last.

There came a crash terrific and resounding, and Simpson found himself standing stiffly against the rock wall, laughing feebly like a hysterical schoolgirl and stupidly fingering at a long rent in his flannel under which he was beginning to feel the smart of an equally long red furrow scratched across his breast.

Across the tangle of twisted and bent hoops and splintered, riven staves that filled up the bottom of the shaft he saw old Sandy also standing sturdily up. Sandy was gazing up the shaft, his red whiskers bristling with rage. Simpson followed his gaze. He saw hanging by his wrenched arms from the fifth round of the ladder that run down the shaft, Ike Wisdom, twisting about to look down upon them with scared white face. He had caught at random upon the ladder as he tumbled into the shaft.

Sandy shook his fist at the clinging man vehemently. "Now, ye think ye're domned smart," he roared.

And they had to lay off three days while they went down the trail to Fairplay and lugged back the half of a coal oil barrel wherewith they fashioned a new ore bucket.

All the odd moments of these three days were spent in impressing upon Ike Wisdom the positive necessity of hooking the rope to the new bucket before he kicked away the board.—Kansas City Times.

A Frenchman who had by chance passed over a narrow plank lying across a deep gorge in the dark, on viewing the spot the next day fell down dead while contemplating the dangers of the previous night.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, JUNE 30 1893

The gold monometalists who absurdly imagine that the present serious condition of affairs is due the fact that the Government is purchasing silver should ask themselves why monometallic Australia, where gold is the only legal tender, is in the throes of a financial crisis, relatively far more serious than that threatening the United States. A little study of the subject at the antipodes would teach the Wall street blatherskites that the "smash" in Australia is due to precisely the same trouble now menacing us. Owing to the demonetization of silver and the consequent contraction the price of wool has declined over fifty percent, and Australia is now obliged to give two bales of wool where she formerly gave one to pay a debt. In the United States the farmers in the North are paying their creditors two bushels of wheat where they were formerly required to pay one, and the Southern cotton planter is obliged to give a great deal more of his staple than formerly to settle up. Under such conditions it is preposterous to suppose that the country can prosper. Nor will it until the producer once again receives something like a fair return for his products.

The New York World takes this rosy view of the financial situation in a late issue: "The gold reserve in the treasury is below $90,000,000, and the drain continues. But there is in this fact no occasion for alarm and the Secretary manifestly feels none. The banks hold more than $100,000,000 and have no reason whatever for continuing to hold it. Legal tenders answer every purpose that gold can in their hands. Many banks have already turned gold into the Treasury, and those of New York, which have as yet done nothing, are reported to stand ready with $20,000,000, subject to the Secretary's call. There are short crops in Europe and large ones here. Grain will begin moving in August in large volumes. Drafts against bills of lading will turn the tide of gold shipments this way within sixty or ninety days almost certainly. Finally, should the change be longer postponed than there is reason to expect we have the resource of a bond issue with the matchless credit of the country behind it. We shall get gold when we need it. But it is not the policy of the Administration to resort to a bond issue until the necessity for it is apparent.

The State Board of Trade has taken up the matter of holding a commercial fair in San Francisco this winter, made up from the principal exhibits at the Chicago Columbian Exposition. If the San Francisco public can be aroused to vigorous action the project can be carried to a successful conclusion. The press and people of the interior will lend their best energies toward its success. If only a united and earnest effort can be made success can be secured. Unfortunately, however, the Bulletin and Stock Report are unmistakably hostile to the project and are doing all in their power to discourage and throw cold water on it. The Bulletin is wroth because the scheme was suggested by M. H. de Young of the Chronicle and the Report fumes because holding the fair would give the Southern Pacific freight and passengers to haul.

The enquirer for the causes of the hard times now prevalent throughout the country will find an interesting lesson in the figures forwarded from Washington showing the decline in our exports, and the awful drain of gold from the country. The pernicious legislation of the Billion Dollar Congress has reaped its reward, and the harvest is the frightful crop of failures in every line of business throughout the country.

The Sacramento Bee has interviewed George Sontag at his residence at Folsom prison. He assured the Bee reporter that he and his brother and Evans were not guilty of train robbery, and had nothing to do with the Collis affair. This ought to settle the question. Probably it was the railroad detectives who did the job.

The Examiner has been receiving a series of very emphatic rebukes from the press for its attempts to palliate the crimes of Evans and Sontag, and to apotheosize the bandits as heroes and much abused men.

Silver is out of sight. We wonder what the explanation will be.

Shot While Going For a Doctor.

It was in Pittsburg some seven years ago that my wife woke me up one night and said that our little boy was very sick and would I go for a doctor. I said of course I would, and slipping into my clothes I grabbed my hat and started out. When I reached the first corner, I passed a stranger who was running the other way. I cut diagonally across the street and ran toward the center of town. Pretty soon I heard footsteps some distance back, and then several shots were fired. I felt as though some one had thrown a stone and struck me on the leg, but I couldn't run any more worth a cent. I stumbled down and then drawing myself up put my hand where I felt the pain and found that my leg was moist with blood. I easily realized that I was shot. The possessor of the revolver drew up before me panting for breath and exclaimed, "You will rob people, will you?" It was a policeman. I began to upbraid him most thoroughly.

Explanations nor execrations did not help the matter any, and I was taken in a patrol to the station. I repeated my story and insisted that a doctor should be sent to my house. The desk sergeant finally did as I wished, and our family doctor called at the house, and later came by the station. It did not take me long to convince the station officers that I was not the party, and was set at liberty and removed to my home. When I was able to get around again, I sued the city for $5,000, and I got it.—Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Amelie Rives' Newsboy.

"There is a young man in Mobile," said Colonel Robert McEachin of Winchester, Va., "who has cause to remember Amelie Rives twice a year. When the now distinguished lady was a little girl and lived in that city, she became fondly attached to a newsboy who cried out his papers every morning in the neighborhood in which she lived. She met him one day and a friendship sprang up between them that has lasted to the present time. After the boy's stock of papers were sold in the morning he would call for the pretty little blue eyed miss, and they would take long strolls down Froscute road, plucking the orange blossoms and the magnolia blooms. They soon got to be familiar figures on Government street, as they would walk along that busy thoroughfare with the young girl's head garlanded with wreaths of beautiful flowers and the little boy's arms filled with vines and evergreens. Then Miss Rives moved far away into Virginia, but she never forgot her newsboy friend, for it was her custom almost daily to write him. The boy met with a misfortune some years ago which crippled him for life. He is poor, but his purse is twice a year replenished by a postoffice order from Mrs. Chanler. One of these arrives in Mobile on his birthday, which is in June, and the other on Christmas day."—St. Louis Republic.

A Queer Performance.

Several years ago a Hampshire baronet was amazed to find that, although he went to bed clothed as is customary, yet he invariably awoke naked in the morning and could not find any trace of his missing garment. A great number of shirts disappeared in this inexpicable manner, and as every nook and corner in the room was searched without result the baronet at last told one of his intimate friends, and requested him to sit in the room all night and watch developments. This the friend did, and after the baronet had for some time given audible evidence that he was asleep the watcher was surprised to observe him get out of bed, open the door and proceed with a quick pace along a corridor, descend the stairs and emerge into an open yard.

Suddenly the baronet, divesting himself of his only garment, seized a pitchfork and buried the linen in a dunghill. Afterward he proceeded leisurely back to his bed. In the morning the baronet, incredulous at what his friend related, repaired to the dunghill, and after digging for some time found several shirts stowed away in this anything but pleasant receptacle.—Boston Globe

When Traveling Was Dangerous.

Hounslow heath, Finchley common and Gadshill, in the neighborhood of London, were celebrated haunts of the highwayman, and the secluded roads of Epping forest, on the route to Cambridge, were often the scenes of plunder in broad daylight. These desperate robbers at last became so dangerous, and the peril of their attacks so serious to travelers of all kinds, as well as to the postmen, that the government passed a law making highway robbery an offense punishable by the death of the criminal and the confiscation of all his property. But robberies still occurred.

In 1785 mail coaches, protected by armed guards, took the place of postboys. The coaches carried passengers also, and as these generally carried arms the mails were better protected, but still daring and oftentimes successful attacks were made upon them.—St. Nicholas.

The Glass Industry.

The progress of the glass industry in America has been far from constant. It has suffered severe and violent fluctuations, amounting almost to annihilation. Several times it has needed to be born again. But the sum total of these successes and vicissitudes has been the establishment of an industry which, while it is the oldest, is also at the present time one of the most promising and most highly developed of all our industries.—Professor C. H. Henderson in Popular Science Monthly.

A London Idea.

In certain London restaurants each customer is allowed to make his or her tea. The waitress lights the gas burner, which is affixed to each table, and sets thereon a silver kettle. Then she presents to the teamaker a silver caddy divided into compartments and offering a choice of Souchong, Ceylon or green tea. Any one who is compelled to drink the lukewarm stuff called tea at restaurants will appreciate the new idea.—London Letter.

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS
AND
LEVI STRAUSS & CO'S
SPRING
BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED

CRUEL FRIENDS.

How a Dear and Loving Woman Tried a Mother's Patience.

In no respect are the friends outside the sanctuary of home crueler than in acting upon the conviction that what Mrs. Stowe defines as "terms of undress intimacy" with us justifies them in parcelling out our time to suit their convenience and pleasure. Women are most unconscionable in this species of torture. Men have been slaves to business for so many centuries that the masculine guest or neighbor, albeit a favorite crony, has a glimmering appreciation of the fact that his associates must have time in which to earn a living. The cruelest of friends is the woman who does nothing in particular and at no particular time and is so fond of you, who have a specific occupation and set hours for carrying it on, that she cannot be happy away from you and finds the day savorless which has not been salted by a comfortable talk between you and herself.

A very fiend of affectionate barbarity was a rich and idle woman who chose as her bosom friend the busy wife of a city clergyman and the mother of five children. Of these children she was also the governess until the boys were ready for the college preparatory school and sent her three girls from the family schoolroom to Smith and Vassar. She judged rightly that she would lay the foundation rudiments of thorough scholarship more conscientiously than hired instructors and enjoyed the noble task.

Her husband's parishioners were cognizant of her expressed desire that that part of the day lying between 9 and 1 o'clock should be devoted to her pupils, and, to the credit of those who did not aspire to the honor of such intimacy at the rectory as might warrant reversal of household arrangements, it may be stated that her eccentricity in this regard was generally respected.

The wealthiest vestryman's wife, by virtue of her peculiar attachment to the industrious housemother, spurned regulations not of her own making and declared her independence by word and deed. The rector's wife loved her for her many excellent qualities and valued her answering esteem. I think, nevertheless, that Mephistopheles would have been a more welcome apparition than the smiling visage that presented itself twice or thrice each week at the study door with the coaxing apology:

"I know you can't bear morning calls, but I was actually famishing for a glimpse of you. I'll just sit over here in the corner with my fancy work and never lisp a syllable—just feast my eyes and ears. The children don't mind the presence of mamma's dearest friend."

The children did mind, and mamma more than they, an intruder who distracted eyes and thoughts and embarrassed recitations none the less for the frequency of the visitation. A gravel stone in the shoe is one of the minor ills of the daily walk to which the flesh is slow to become reconciled. A common acquaintance could have been denied at the outer entrance, or had she reached the penetralia could have been bowed out into the drawing room. An uncommon friend grappled with the sufferer at a fatally short distance.—Marion Harland in Harper's Bazar.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday ..... January 28th
" ..... February 25th
" ..... March 25th
" ..... April 29th
" ..... May 27th
" ..... June 24th
" ..... July 22d
" ..... August 26th
" ..... September 23d
" ..... October 21st
" ..... November 18th
" ..... December 18th

THOS. C. POLAND, W. M.
B. RHINE Sec.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

- KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE. -

STOCKTON, CAL., Dec. 16th, '92.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.

Gentlemen:—Having read one of your Treatise on the Horse and seeing the Spavin Cure advertised, I thought I would try it. I had one horse with a prominent Spavin of 12 months standing. I removed it with ⅓ bottle. I tied a pone fore foot on same side the spavin was and compelling the horse to rest on lame leg while I took a surcingle and drew it across the hock or spavin until the hock or spavin got very warm with the friction, then putting on Spavin Cure. I had a mare that had a running lump on her nose for 12 or 14 months. I rubbed the Spavin Cure from her eyes down to nostrils, then from back of jaw bone down under the throat for a week. I have not seen any discharge for two months.

Yours truly, HUGH McDADE.

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

WE WANT YOU

to act as our agent. We furnish an expensive outfit and all you need free. It costs nothing to try the business. We will treat you well, and help you to earn ten times ordinary wages. Both sexes of all ages can live at home and work in spare time, or all the time. Any one anywhere can earn a great deal of money. Many have made Two Hundred Dollars a Month. No class of people in the world are making so much money without capital as those at work for us. Business pleasant, strictly honorable, and pays better than any other offered to agents. You have a clear field, with no competition. We equip you with everything, and supply printed directions for beginners which, if followed faithfully, will bring more money than will any other business. Improve your prospects! Why not? You can do so easily and surely at work for us. Reasonable industry only necessary for absolute success. Pamphlet circular giving every particular is sent free to all. Delay not in sending for it.

GEORGE STINSON & CO., Box No. 488, Portland, Me.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Sheriff's Sale Under Foreclosure.

GILBERT CLEMENTS vs. W. O. MERONEY AND FRANK HARROLD. } Order of Sale and Decree of Foreclosure and Sale.

UNDER AND BY VIRTUE OF AN ORDER of sale and decree of foreclosure and sale, issued out of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, of the State of California, on the 22nd day of June, A. D. 1893, in the above entitled action, wherein Gilbert Clements, the above named plaintiff, obtained a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale against W. O. Meroney, defendant, on the 22nd day of June, A. D. 1893, for the sum of $256.61, lawful money of the United States, besides interest and costs, which said decree was on the 22nd day of June, A. D. 1893, recorded in judgment book 1 of said Court, at page 401, I am commanded to sell all those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and bounded and described as follows:

The north-east quarter of the north-west quarter of Section thirty two, and the east half of the south-west quarter and the north-west quarter of the south-east quarter of Section twenty-nine, all in Township Six South of Range thirty-two East, Mount Diablo Meridian, containing one hundred and sixty acres.

Also that other lot of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo, and particularly described as follows, to-wit: Lots Nos. five (5) and eight (8) in block Q as it appears by the plat of the Academy Addition to the Town of Bishop Creek (now Bishop) now on file in the Office of the County Recorder of the County of Inyo, State of California, to which for further description, reference is hereby made, being the lots of land on which is erected the Store and Hall of the said defendant Meroney.

TOGETHER with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, or in any wise appertaining.

Public notice is hereby given that on Monday, the 17th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 12 o'clock noon of that day, in front of the Court House door of the County of Inyo, I will, in obedience to said order of sale and decree of foreclosure and sale, sell the above described property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy said judgment, with interest and costs, etc., to the highest and best bidder for lawful money of the United States.

Dated the 22nd day of June, 1893.

J. S. GORMAN, Sheriff.

P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff. [23-4t.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

W. J. HOSKINS, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM GREEN and B. F. LEWIS, Defendants.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in the office of the Clerk of said Inyo county.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Green and B. F. Lewis, Defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff in the Superior court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment of this Court for the foreclosure of a certain mortgage described in said complaint and executed by the said William Green on the 31st day of May, 1890, to secure the payment of a certain Promissory Note dated May 31st 1890, made by the said William Green for the sum of $400.00, bearing interest at the rate of one and one fourth per cent. per month, payable monthly, and if not paid when it becomes due, to be added to the principal and bear interest at the rate as described in said complaint on the facts, which complaint alleges that no part of the principal or interest thereon has been paid; that the premises conveyed by said mortgage may be sold and the proceeds applied towards the same; that a promissory note and interest thereon and the payment of fifteen per cent. of the amount found due the plaintiff as attorney's fees, and for costs of this action; and in case such proceeds are insufficient to pay the same, that judgment be docketed against said William Green, defendant herein, for the balance remaining due, and also that the said defendants, and all persons claiming by, through or under them, or any of them, may be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, claim, lien, equity of redemption, and interest in and to said mortgaged premises, and for other and further relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Witness my hand and the Seal of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 29th day of June, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HASKINS, Clerk.

J. D. LEWIS, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Propagation License.

Notice to Breeders.

THE ATTENTION OF STOCKRAISERS and breeders in Inyo County is called to the following provisions of Ordinance No. 44, Section 12:

"Every person who keeps a Stallion, Jack or Ball and permits the same to be used for the purpose of propagation for hire, must annually obtain a license therefor from the Tax-Collector."

Parties failing to procure such Propagation License are guilty of a misdemeanor. Licenses are now due.

J. S. GORMAN, Tax-Collector.

Independence, April 6, 1893.

Freight! Freight!

BISHOP & MOJAVE

Through Freight Line.

George Meads,

PROPRIETOR.

Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:

J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.

☞ Special rates given on car load lots

BOOTS AND SHOES

MADE AND REPAIRED.

THE BEST MATERIAL.

FIRST-CLASS WORK

Repairing done Promptly.

Prices Reasonable.

A

SC-4f

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES,
District Attorney,
—AND—
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
NOTARY PUBLIC.
☞Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.☜
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
☞Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo county, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR
AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Office and residence at the Johnson place Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

DR. J. S. MCQUEEN,
DENTIST.
Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery
All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.
Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.

FRANK FITZGERALD.

Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and keyed.
☞All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics Pall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURCKHARDT.

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.
THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to no one on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.
THE BAR
Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.
JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.

$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.

It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer without cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.

Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.

For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address

ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.
Winter Apples..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes.....12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches.....10 cts
Dried Apples.....10 cts
Other varieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
☞First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.
THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines, Liquors, & Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSFIELD, opposite the Southern Hotel
Prompt and careful dentistry rendered at the lowest possible rates consistent.
Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
Those who want their advertising to pay, will consider no bids except for thoroughly good, effective work in the various sections of our Select List.
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce Street, New York

P. W. FORBES. P. H. MACK
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY the 8th day of March, 1893, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South-east corner of the south-east quarter of North east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98.100; thence Northeast following the meanderings of the bed of Bishop Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy Place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hallahan, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lot Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode, situate, lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispiritada Lode."

That certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and one-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the North west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12) and the South west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South six-eighty and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence Northwesterly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty-four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North East quarter and the South east quarter, and the North west quarter and the North east quarter of the Northwest quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-one and eleven-twentieth (41 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres. Together with ten shares of the capital stock of the Ward Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at George Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale is declared made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER.

Executor of the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased.

Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1893.

J. W. Murphy.

BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.

Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2 00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS EXTENSIVE Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
☞Buyers and consumers should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 9 1894.
n47tf

$5000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, Troy, N.Y., at work for us. Reader, you may not make as much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from 50c to $10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages, any part of America, you can commence at home, giving all your time, or spare moments only to the work. All is new, great pay for every worker. We start you, furnishing everything. EASILY, SPEEDILY learned. PARTICULARS FREE. Address at once, GEORGE STINSON & CO., PORTLAND, MAINE

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, JUNE 30 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman .....A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman.....P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge.....GEO. M. GILL.
Sheriff.....JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk.....DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney.....P. W. FORBES.
Assessor.....P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer.....W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner.....H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed).....JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools.....J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist.....ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist.....A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist.....W. H. UHLMEYER
4th Supervisor Dist.....JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist...FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Rev. H. J. Winsor will preach on Sunday at Lone Pine 11 a. m.; Georges Creek, 2:30 p. m.; Independence 7 p. m.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

TUESDAY, June 27th.

Goodale vs. Hines—Filed amended complaint.

WEDNESDAY, June 28th.

People vs. August Sutz—Filed information. Defendant appeared for arraignment and P. H. Mack appointed special attorney for the defendant, who was allowed until Friday, June 30th, at 11 o'clock a. m., in which to plead.

THURSDAY, June 29th.

J. V. Skinner, Insolvent—Filed return of sale of personal property and petition for confirmation.

Hoskins vs. Gheen—Filed affidavit for publication of summons. Issued summons. Filed order for publication of summons.

There will be a picnic and ball at Lone Pine on the Fourth.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Anton were up from Lone Pine on Tuesday last.

Thanks are tendered S. A. Densmore for the first peaches of the season.

Robert O'Neal came down from Bishop last Monday, returning yesterday.

The sum of over two hundred dollars was realized from the delinquent tax sale.

Mike Anton, Fred Burckhardt and M. Castro were up from Lone Pine on Tuesday.

Supervisor J. Wilson and Chas. M. Green of Lone Pine visited Independence on Wednesday.

Sheriff Gorman has been busy during the week selling the property advertised in the delinquent tax list.

It was reported at Independence yesterday that silver mining had been discontinued at Cerro Gordo.

There will be the grandest Fourth of July celebration at Reno this year ever held in the State of Nevada.

It is reported that Bertrand Rhine has resigned his position as Receiver of the Land Office at Independence.

The Directors of the 13th District Agricultural Association will meet at Independence on Friday evening next.

Felix Meysan was in town early in the week. He was on his way home from a visit to his mine west of Round Valley.

Hon. P. Reddy is expected to arrive in the Valley to-day and go on to Darwin. He will be at Independence about the 9th.

Charley Anthoney is enjoying himself in San Francisco. He will get lost occasionally but turns up smiling in the morning.

William Horton, Thos. Williams and J. G. W. Brechtel of Round Valley were at Independence last Saturday on land business.

Mrs. A. Church arrived from Hawthorne on Monday's train and will spend several weeks at Independence visiting with her parents.

J. D. Lewis Esq. came down from Bishop on Wednesday to attend to business in the Superior Court. He will return to-morrow morning.

O. I. Mairs is putting up a large quantity of hay this year. Besides his own extensive ranch he will cut Gormah's, Malone's and Lake's crop.

The Nevada State Fair will begin at Reno on September 18th, lasting six days. On the week following the State Fair, Ormsby county will hold a Fair at Carson.

Mrs. J. J. Stewart returned home to Lone Pine last Friday. She had been in San Francisco for seven months for surgical treatment and is now thoroughly cured.

Bishop will celebrate the Fourth with appropriate exercises, games, races, and a ball in the evening. There will be two trotting races at the track between local horses.

Mrs. Coyle and Miss Nellie Coyle, mother and sister of Mrs. D. Clough, arrived at Big Pine last Friday from Somers. They expect to make their future home in Owens Valley.

It is said that W. R. Johnson had three car-loads of silver lead ore ready to forward this week, but the telegraphic reports of the great drop in the price of silver prevented his shipping.

SILVER

Has Taken An Unprecedented Drop.

On Wednesday the telegraph announced a depreciation in silver quotations, since which time the price has continued to fall and this morning the unparalled figure of 55 cents per ounce was announced. The cause of this wonderful decline is not yet known here.

The Darwin Homicide.

Last Saturday Sheriff Gorman received a telegram from Keeler announcing the fact that Neil McLean had shot and killed John McFetridge, alias "Three Finger Jack," at Darwin. McLean was then at Keeler on his way to Independence to give himself up. On Monday a preliminary examination was held before Justice Irv. H. Mulholland. E. A. Reddy was called and sworn and testified that on the night previous to the shooting McFetridge had taken McLean to Mr. Reddy's residence at the Defiance mine under cover of a shotgun and in his presence had threatened a number of times to kill McLean. He also testified to the statement McLean had made to him in regard to the affair. McLean was watering his horses at the watering trough near the saloon conducted by McFetridge when the latter approached him in a threatening manner. McLean, warned by the occurrence of the night before, had armed himself with a double barreled shot gun. He fired one barrel at McFetridge, and the other would not work. As the gun was loaded with No. 8 shot no execution was made. McFetridge then ran toward his saloon, and McLean, knowing that a loaded shot gun was kept there, made for the same place. McLean got hold of the gun first, and McFetridge ran into Anthony's store. He disappeared for a time, and when McLean next caught sight of him, he fired a heavy charge of buckshot, struck McFetridge about the face and breast, killing him instantly. J. A. McKenzie testified to the fact that McFetridge had threatened to kill McLean without warning. On motion of the defendant's attorney the case was dismissed, there being no sufficient grounds to constitute a crime of action. McFetridge had the reputation of being a gun fighter and having killed several men. McLean is a teamster, a sober and industrious man having a wife and family. McFetridge was unmarried.

Sold Whisky To An Indian.

On Monday last August Sutz, better known as "The Shoemaker," was arrested at Lone Pine by R. S. Carrasco on a charge of selling whisky to an Indian known as Tom Heskett. He was examined in Justice Spear's Court and held for trial in the Superior Court. His bail was fixed at $1,000, and failing to give it he is now a guest of the county pending his trial. The evidence is very direct and in consequence Mr. Sutz will have an opportunity to pass judgment upon the bay climate.

Estray Notice

About October 15, 1892, there came to my place at Camp Independence a mare and colt. The mare is a dark brown; no brand visible; scar over the nose as if from a cut by barb wire. The colt is a horse, the same color as the mother. The owner is hereby notified to pay expenses and take said animals away, or they will be sold at public auction to pay said expenses on Saturday, the 1st day of July, 1893, at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m.

FRED SCHABELL,
Camp Independence.

Senator Leland Stanford died at his residence at Palo Alto last week. Mr. Stanford was intimately connected with public affairs in California for over thirty years. He amassed an enormous fortune out of his connection with the Central Pacific railroad, and just what disposition he has made of it is not yet definitely known. The greatest monument he has left is the University which bears his name.

Carson has one of the finest race-tracks on the Coast and as a number of good horses are now being trained there it is kept in good condition. Horsemen east of the Sierras could find no better place to work their horses than at Carson. There is plenty of good hay and grain in the vicinity which can be had at reasonable prices.

Capt. E. A. Reddy and Jas. A. McKenzie came in from Darwin last Monday as witnesses in the case of the People vs. Neil McLean. Mr. Reddy states that during the past six months a great deal of dead work has been done in the Defiance mine and that a tunnel will tap the ledge in a few days. An ore body has been opened up recently that promises to yield good returns.

Supervisor Frank Fitzgerald will arrive at Independence on Monday's train from San Francisco, where he has been undergoing a course of surgical treatment under Dr. Morse at the German Hospital. He expects to be present at the meeting of the Board of Supervisors next week and then go on to Los Angeles.

R. Way has been putting in full time on the county vault lately. He will have the structure completed on contract time and ready for the inspection of the Board next week. H. P. Carter is now engaged on the carpenter work. The value of the building to the citizens of Inyo county cannot be over estimated.

W. F. Matlack returned on Wednesday to his home at Independence after an absence of several months at Angels Camp, Calaveras county. He says that place is a thriving town of about 1,500 inhabitants. Business of all kinds is brisk and there are no idle men.

W. B. Dougherty arrived at Independence Wednesday from San Francisco and expects to make his home here. Mr. Dougherty was County Clerk of Inyo county in the 70's and is consequently well known to all old Inyoites.

At a special election held at Independence last Saturday the proposition of levying a special school tax for the purpose of raising funds to employ an extra teacher was carried by a vote of 35 to 2.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNdersigned, Administrator of the estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of P. W. Forbes, in the Court House, at the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the said County of Inyo, State of California.

EDWARD JOHN REYNOLDS,
Administrator of the estate of Fredrick J. Reynolds, deceased.

Dated at Independence, Cal. June 13th, 1893.
P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Administrator.
jn16 5t

ANTARE.

1st premium Trotting Stallion, 1891 2. Bred by S. L. Akers, Newman, Cal. Foaled April 6, 1887. Stands 15¼ hands high and weighs 1250 pounds. Color, mahogany bay with black points; no white. By ANTEROS, 6020.

1st dam, Sallie W., by Iowa Chief, 525.

2d dam by Tornado, 502.

ANTEROS, 6020.

By Electioneer, 125, the greatest sire of trotters living or dead; 125 of his get having records from 2:8¾ to 2:30. Among this number are Palo Alto, 2:08¾; Sunol, 2:08¾; Arion, 2:10¼ as 2 year; Nutline, 2:31½ and Bell Bird, 2:26 as yearlings.

1st dam of Anteros, the great Columbine, dam of Anteeo 2:16¾

Antevolo, 2:19¾
Antonia
Conrad
Coral, 2:18¾
Speedwell

Anteros is the sire of—
Doc Chrestien, 4 years, 2:21
Neldine, 4 years, 2:25
Anteroso, 4 years, 2:25
Major Ross, 2 years, 2:30
Wickersham, 2 year, 2:34¾
Enturian, 3 years, 2:33¼
Montgomery, 3 years, 2:37¼
Antero, 3 years, 2:38¼
Bessie B, 3 years, 2:37
Anteoran, 3 years, 2:57
Antare, 4 years, 2:37

Antare is a "horse attached to a pedigree," possessing that quality so highly prized among horsemen, INDIVIDUAL MERIT, having the power to transmit both his color and form to his progeny. His record was made after trotting four well contested heats the day previous and is the fastest time ever made by any stallion ever owned in Inyo county over any track in the 18th District.

ANTARE was awarded the first premium over all competitors at the District Fairs of 1891-2. At the fair of 1893 we propose to exhibit an "Antare Family," of twenty-five horses, and we challenge the owner of any stallion in the 18th District to exhibit one or more colts or fillies under that can compare with the colts sired by this horse.

TERMS FOR THE SEASON, $25.00,

Payable on or before August 1, 1893.

Mares from a distance pastured free of charge but no risks taken.

S. P. SMITH, Manager.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

THOMAS C. ROLAND, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM CRAPO, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Crapo, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff, in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment for the sum of Three hundred and forty-seven and 35-100 Dollars ($347 35) on a balance of account for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by the Plaintiff to you in the County of Inyo, State of California, at your special instance and request; also for costs of suit, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 35-100 Dollars, together with costs of suit.

Witness my hand and the Seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 4th day of March, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff.

The Newest Styles

OF

Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc.

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries and canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" WARE.

INDEPENDENCE

SHAVING PARLOR.

J. TUCKER, Prop'r.

HAIR CUTTING IN ANY STYLE.
SHAMPOOING AND BATHS.

Adjoining Irwin's Old Corner Saloon.

HALE BROS. & CO.

If you have never tried for the benefits others derive from our prices, prompt and careful service given through the

MAIL ORDER DEPARTMENT.

Send us a trial order 'twill be conclusive evidence that our business methods are right and large and growing patronage merited.

ITEMS OF EXCEPTIONAL VALUE.

MEN'S DRAB HATS with wire brim ventilated all around sweatband makes a desirable head covering for outdoors summer wear; price 50 cents. Also a line of Cork hats at same price.

MEN'S SUMMER SUITS in some 20 different patterns of either light or dark coloring, comes in sack or frock styles at the popular price of $10.

CHILDREN'S SUITS in all the new designs and colorings of light or dark. Ages 4 to 14 years; price $3.50 $4.00 and $5.00.

HALE'S $2 50 Shoes for men have proved a great success and are without doubt the best value of a medium priced dress shoe to be had anywhere, any style last, tip toe or plain in either hook and lace or gaiter style; price $2.50.

GENTS' domestic balbriggan underwear, a good imitation of the imported, of plain unbleached color, an extra strong value at 50 cts. per garment.

FOR HOUSE KEEPERS.

AN extra value in a heavy unbleached double damask table linen 58 in. wide, all linen and will wash white; price 50 cents per yard.

AN extra value in already bleached double damask table linen 58 in. wide, pretty scroll patterns, pure linen, and not weighed with any inferior substance; price 50 cts. per yd.

A bargain in Ladies medium weight cotton hose; absolutely fast black, perfect in shape and finish, comes in boxes of ½ doz., for $1.00 per box, which we do not break.

HALE'S 10 cent boxes of note paper contain a quire of fine satin finish and 24 envelopes.

HALE BROS. & CO.

825, 827, 829, 831, 833, 835 K St., and 1026 Ninth street.

Sacramento, Calif.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS. WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neihboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finger Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the best quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packages to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,
0-m RENO, NEVADA.

NOTICE OF MEETING OF BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, will meet as a Board of Equalization on

MONDAY, JULY 3, 1893,

At the office of the said Board, in the town of Independence, to examine the assessment book and equalize the assessment of property in said County for the year 1893, and will continue in session for that purpose until the business of equalization is disposed of.

D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of the Board of Supervisors.

DELINQUENT SALE NOTICE.

OWENS RIVER AND BIG PINE CANAL COMPANY.

Location of principal place of business, Big Pine, Inyo County, Cal.

NOTICE—There are delinquent upon the the following described stock, on account of assessment No. 7, levied on the 18th day of April 1893, the several amounts set opposite the names of the respective shareholders, as follows:

Names.	No. Cert.	No. Sh's.	Am't
C. Engle	5	208	8.75
Geo. W. Gilliam	14	83	16.60
W. R. Tibbetts	2	418	33.65
J. B. Steward	1	81	10.20
Charles Steward	17	93	18.60
F. Fitzgerald	17	360	72.00

And in accordance with law, and an order of the Board of Directors, made on the 18th day of April, 1893, so many shares of each parcel of such stock as may be necessary, will be sold at public auction, at the office of the said Company, Big Pine, Inyo County, California, on Saturday, the 17th day of June, 1893, at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m. of said day to pay said delinquent assessment thereon together with costs of advertising and expenses of sale.

R. W. THOMAS, Secretary.
Office—Big Pine, Inyo county, California.

DO YOU SUFFER?

Rheumatism, Fits [epilepsy] Scrofula, Liquor, Morphine or Tobacco Habit, quickly and permanently cured by the wonderful BICHLORIDE of GOLD treatment.

RHEUMATISM (The uric acid entirely expelled from the blood) cured in from five to thirty days.

FITS (Epilepsy). Permanently cured; no return of the disease from two to four weeks treatment.

SCROFULA And the worst cases of inherited blood taint quickly and permanently cured.

DRUNKENNESS Opium, Morphine or Tobacco habit cured 10 to 20 days.

No restriction or publicity. Patients cured at their own homes. 40,000 sufferers cured in 8 years.

Full particulars without charge, address

DR. WOOD BICHLORIDE OF GOLD INSTITUTE,
215 Powell St., San Francisco Cal.

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Agent for

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:

Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE • CAL.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates

Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

Thos. Williams.

SIGNOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO., Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for outdoor parties.

Customers supplied on all points Of the C. & C. Railroad.

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

F. W. BEDFORD.....LESSEE.

Horseshoeing .....$2.00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see

F. W. BEDFORD.

INDEPENDENCE

MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROPPER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef,
Mutton,
Pork,
Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every effort made to give satisfaction to patrons.

j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies

PROVISIONS,

&c., &c., &c.

A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

BELL'S Flouring Mills

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,
Independence.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R.

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, November 16,

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House	11:30 p. m.	6.50 p. m
Dayton	12:00 p. m.	6:10 p. m
Wabuska	2:05 p. m.	3:50 p. m
Hawthorne	5:50 p. m.	11:10 a. m
Luning	7:05 p. m.	9:35 a. m
Soda Springs	8:05 p. m.	9:15 a. m
Belleville	9:15 p. m.	7:45a. m
Candelaria	Ar. 10.00 p. m.	Lv. 7:30a. m
	No. 3. Leave—	No. 4. Arrives—
Belleville	8 20 a. m.	4:35 p m.
Benton	11:50 a. m.	1:35 a. m.
Bishop Creek	2:00p. m.	11:00a. m
Alvord	2.45 p. m.	10:00 a. m
Independence	4:20 p. m.	8:30 a. m
Lone Pine	5:10p. m.	7:40 a. m
Keeler	Ar. 5:55 p. m.	Lv. 7:00 a. m

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

At HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (36 miles); Bodie (65 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

At LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leave Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Benton, Grantsville and Belmont.

At CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stage for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma Allda Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - Cal

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of WINES, LIQUORS, & CIGARS

The most careful attention given to the the amusement and comfort of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-23-tf

Inyo Stage Company.

REGULAR LINE

—FROM—

Mojave To Keeler.

FINE COACH
FAST STOCK.

The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful

Redrock Canyon

And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.

Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m

Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.

W. K. MILLER,
Propr.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Where the best food is required, the Royal Baking Powder only can be used.

I have found the Royal Baking Powder superior to all others.—C. Gorju, late Chef, Delmonico's, N. Y.

When a Disabled Ship Is Saved.

Any gross misconduct on the part of the salvors, and especially any embezzlement of the property saved, forfeits the whole claim to salvage. The responsibility of salvors respecting the preservation and protection of property continues as long as the property is subject to the decree of the court.

Salvors in possession have a qualified property in the ship or cargo saved, and they cannot be divested of this interest until it is taken from them by adjudication. It is not necessary, however, that they should remain in actual possession in order to maintain their rights.—New York Evening Sun.

Information from an Information Bureau.

He was one of the "Cholly" variety, with a smooth face and a shiner in his scarf. He demanded of Major Miller, the Chesterfield of the Kimball counter:

"Ah, is Mr. Jones in?"

"No, he's out, sir."

"When will he be in?"

"When he returns from being out, sir."—Atlanta Constitution.

"Almost as Palatable as Milk"

This is a fact with regard to Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. The difference between the oil, in its plain state, is very apparent. In you detect no fish-oil taste. As it is a help to digestion there is no after effect except good effect. Keep in mind that Scott's Emulsion is the best promoter of flesh and strength known to science.

Scott's Emulsion

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

21 lfs

If you will send us your name and address, we will send you free our SUPPLEMENTARY LIST OF SEASONABLE SPECIALTIES—Seeds, Plants and Bulbs, which if planted now, will yield a Garden full of bloom.

If you send a Dime, we will send you a large packet of Seeds of the TIMOTHY HOPKINS COLLECTION of SWEET PEAS, 21 varieties, mixed. From our List you can choose a Flower or Vegetable Garden for a Dollar.

SHERWOOD HALL NURSERY CO.

S. W. cor. Clay and Sansome Streets, San Francisco.

"August Flower"

"I am happy to state to you and to suffering humanity, that my wife has used your wonderful remedy, August Flower, for sick headache and palpitation of the heart, with satisfactory results. For several years she has been a great sufferer, has been under the treatment of eminent physicians in this city and Boston, and found little relief. She was induced to try August Flower, which gave immedaite relief. We cannot say to much for it." L. C. Frost, Springfield, Mass.

DR. GUNN'S IMPROVED LIVER PILLS

A MILD PHYSIC

ONE PILL FOR A DOSE.

A movement of the bowels each day is necessary for health. These pills supply what the system lacks to make it regular. They cure Headache, brighten the Eyes and clear the Complexion better than cosmetics. They act mildly, neither gripe nor sicken as other pills do. To convince you of their merits we will mail samples free, or a full box for 25 cents. Sold everywhere. Dosanko Med. Co., Philadelphia. F

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by Druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

Oatmeal and the Scots.

It is a mistake to imagine that the brawny Scots are the pure product of oatmeal; brawny Scots, the Scots or Caledonians of Ossian, existed long before oatmeal was made, and not very small or tame Scots were they either. Were one to live the life of a Scotch highlander, roam over heather clad and mist moistened hills until he had the appetite and faculty for sleep of a cannibal, then he might eat his raw oatmeal, and in a few generations he might turn into a brawny Scot and compete at the Caledonian or the queen's games, but the poor invalid who needs pepsin and cascara sagrada had better leave oatmeal alone. It is not oatmeal alone that makes the giants of the Scotch Grays or the giants that march beneath the nodding plumes of the famous Black Watch; the oatmeal is a mere circumstance or coincidence.

It is claimed that the British few conquered the India's millions because the former are beef eaters and the latter feed on rice and religiously abstain from flesh. If the principle holds good the bull should be devoid of that courage that has passed into a proverbial expression, denotive of the fiercest, unflinching, and persistent courage—a quality, which coupled with its name, has given to the fiercest of dogs its special designation and which also conveys the idea of the aggressive push of the Anglo-Saxon race.—Sanitary Era.

The Children's Room.

The room set aside for the children is usually such a doleful place that it is no wonder the little folks persist in straying from their own particular domain, going upon little excursions to the drawing room, the library or the kitchen, any one of which is far pleasanter than the quarters up stairs that have been assigned to them.

Mothers argue: "Anything is good enough for the children when they are young—they are so destructive, you know. After awhile I will fix up their quarters, but so long as they are small it doesn't matter much what they have so long as they are comfortable."

Would that mother be comfortable in a room where the lookout gives one only a glimpse of back streets and brick walls? Would she think it comfortable to catch her toes daily in a holey carpet of a hue so dingy it is enough to drive even a baby into a fit of artistic despair? Would she be comfortable with no pictures on the walls, which are covered only by a soiled wall paper, the pattern of which is unpleasantly suggestive of all sorts of crawling things? To be warm and have enough to eat is not all the comfort required even by a baby, though many mothers appear to think so, judging from the quarters of their little ones.—St. Louis Republic.

In the Woods.

A gentleman who recently went far into the Maine woods to look after his lands, on coming to a lumberman's camp thirty miles from nowhere, was struck with astonishment and held up his team involuntarily at the edge of the opening. The cause was the strains of a parlor organ, played in an artistic manner, which came from the camp. His surprise was not lessened on meeting at the camp door the organist and cook, a handsome young lady, as neat and tidy as a new pin, who looked after the house for her father and his crew. She had taken her organ into the woods to "beguile the drowsy hours" and make things more homelike. As might be expected, the gentleman found that camp "way ahead" of those not enlivened by woman's smile and cheery presence, and he thought he never knew before how much music there is in an organ. It's the new order of things in camp life in the Maine woods.—Lewiston Journal.

A Giant Emperor.

Maximinus, the giant Roman emperor, could twist coins into corkscrews, powder hard rocks between his fingers and do other seemingly impossible things. When angered he often broke the jaw of a horse or the skull of an ox with his fist. His wife's bracelet served him for a ring, and every day he ate sixty pounds of meat and drank an amphora of wine.—St. Louis Republic.

Modern Education.

Here is the latest London board school story. The budding son of an undertaker in Lambeth was asked by the inspector to name the degrees of comparison of the word "ill." With the paternal instinct full upon him he at once replied, "Positive, ill; comparative, dead; superlative, buried!"

Court Poets.

The custom of having a court poet—one whose duty it is to write to order, as it were—is at present confined to England among civilized nations. In ancient times the custom was well nigh universal. Every court had its poet and painter, as well as its dwarf and buffoon.—Exchange.

Statistics of Church Livings.

There are at present 1,074 Church of England livings with an annual income of less than £100; 1,817 of a value of from £100 to £150 a year; 2,274 between £150 and £200 a year; 4,355 between £200 and £300 a year, and 4,105 over £300 a year.—London Tit-Bits.

"If you are in doubt," says Talleyrand, "whether to write a letter or not—don't!" And the advice applies to many doubts in life besides that of letter writing.—Bulwer.

When an editor, in speaking of the decease of a fellow citizen, says he was "only about fifty," you can safely bet that the editor has passed that sunny period himself.

The modern Italian wine jars, holding about twenty quarts, are almost identical in shape and size with the amphoras found in Pompeii.

The creoles on the Island of Cuba use a decoction of rosemary leaves, which they pretend softens and cleanses the hair.

"As big as a whale" might be rather small, as there is a species of the cetacean genus hardly three feet long.

THE HIDDEN WILL.

AMANDA M. DOUGLAS IN THE BOSTON TRUE FLAG.

The two girls had to use their utmost strength to turn the key, and as the door slowly opened it displayed a wide stone staircase thick with dust, over which floated a few filmy bars of sunshine from a window higher up. The damp, musty odor and strange silence awed them a little, but quickly recovering themselves, they began to ascend. At this first landing a door opened into a room, and a narrow flight of stairs beside it ran up to the next story, which was much smaller, and from thence to a third, which was contracted into a mere observatory. The windows in all the stories were deep set and narrow, full of cobwebs, and the panes of glass broken in many places. Some old chests, dilapidated chairs, and several pieces of antiquated furniture were strewed around, while the so called study contained many curiosities which might have been valuable in any other place. But now they were so covered with dust and mold as to be scarcely distinguishable.

The girls ran to every window for a view of the surrounding prospect, and vainly tried to find a way through the roof to the cupola with which the tower was crowned. It was evident, from the steps leading to it, that it had once been used. Failing in this they returned to the study.

"Here was where they found my mother," said Olive, standing by the table, and pointing to the high backed chair.

"Here was where they found my mother."

Dora shivered a little as the picture presented itself to her mind. All the long summer day Mrs. Chorley had sat there, never heeding the sunshine or the darkness of purple twilight slowly deepening into night. Dora had seen her portrait, and the vivid, girlish imagination conjured her up again, until she could almost seem to see her. More to break the spell of terror that was creeping over her than gain any real information, Dora said:

"Was she not writing something?"

"Yes," replied Olive. "Old Persis, who used to live with mother when she was Mrs. Chorley, and was afterwards our nurse, came over that night to search for her. Papa was very angry, and discharged her when she said mother meant to make known some secret about the will."

"Suppose some day another will should be found?" the true will, Dora was on the point of adding, for Jane inclined to the belief with which old Persis had tinctured the neighborhood; and in spite of her love for Olive, Dora had always experienced a leaning that way.

"Oh, it couldn't be," replied Olive. "Grandfather said they would find his will in the tower, and even uncle, who was so very angry, could not disprove it. If he had found it instead of mother I suppose he wouldn't have said a word. Only Persis says he loved Uncle Vincent the better, and it is strange he should give him so little and leave all the rest to his other son. There are portraits of them here in this old closet; let us take a look at them."

After pulling out several articles and making such a dust they were almost stifled, they came to the pictures, old oil paintings that, though much injured by time and want of care, still preserved a tolerable likeness.

"This was Mr. Harold Chorley," said Olive, "and that Uncle Vincent. I don't know why I call him so; he was no real relation to me, and it always makes papa angry. Yet I cannot help feeling sorry for him."

Both were portraits of young men, the elder dark, stern, with piercing, jetty eyes and an abundance of black, curling hair. The other was much fairer, with hair of a rich chestnut, and laughing eyes of a most indescribable hue. The whole face wore a frank, generous expression, a happy lightheartedness that won Dora in an instant.

"I believe I like Mr. Vincent Chorley's the better," she said.

"Oh, I do, a great deal. And old Persis, who saw his son, said they were exactly alike. You know Mr. Allingham came after mother's death. Clara and I went back to school immediately, so we did not see him."

"Did he really try to murder your papa?"

"Certainly. Poor fellow, I suppose he was very angry. I wonder what has become of him. It is seven years since he was here."

Dora could not keep her sympathies from straying to the outcast. She had not at all recovered from her first dislike to Mr. Harton, and it seemed to her so much more natural and right that a descendant of the family should inherit its privileges in preference to those who could claim only the merest shadow of relationship. Yet she could not express these thoughts to her friend, and so the conversation soon turned to other themes, and presently they went down to have a talk with Mrs. Bertrand about ghosts.

Olive staid to tea, and shortly after dusk a servant was sent for. When Jane was making all safe for the night she came to the little parlor, where Dora sat reading alone, as her mother always retired early, and exclaimed:

"Oh, Miss Dora, the tower door is open!"

The young girl sprang up half terrified the first instant, then, laughing away her fear, said:

"Olive must have forgotten to lock it. I thought it was fast, and that she had taken the key with her."

"But you won't think of sleeping without first having that shut? Come, let us go lock it."

"I do believe you are afraid, Jane. We have lived here two months, and no ghost has made its appearance. Did you suppose it was fastened up in the tower?"

"Don't laugh, Miss Dora. I'm not so sure, after all, there isn't something of the sort. I don't see how that woman could rest in her grave with such a burden on her mind. I should not be at all surprised to see her come walking down stairs some day with the true will in her hand."

"Hush, Jane. Mamma says it is wrong to pay so much attention to gossip. Olive's mother couldn't have forged a will, and Mr. Harton, you know, had been in the village only a short time. Probably it's all right. You'll have to turn this key, though; the lock is rusted. There, good night, ghost."

The fearless child laughed lightly as they returned to the parlor, eliciting Jane's warmest admiration for her bravery. After the servant left her the book dropped listlessly from her hands, and she fell in a reverie about Allingham Chorley and his father, whose portrait had made so deep an impression on her mind.

The next day Olive came over to announce that she was going to travel with her father and sister, and would probably be absent a month. The maid was packing, and they expected to start early the next morning. Dora was really sorry to lose her companion, but when the impulsive Olive declared that she had half a mind to stay at home, she would not listen a moment to such a proposition.

"Let me bring you the key of the tower," Dora said, when they had kissed good-by for the third or fourth time. "You left it last night."

"Oh, no matter; I'll bequeath it to you for a few weeks, and if you see the ghost don't fail to tell me."

Dora promised.

She found herself very lonesome in the days that first followed Olive's departure. She took her walk regularly over to Mr. Harton's for her music, but it was dull work. Frequently she would pause in her playing and study the picture that hung above the piano—the likeness of the Spanish woman when she was Mrs. Chorley. There was a later portrait of her, but this first interested Dora most. The resolute, haughty eyes; the lips set together with a firmness that indicated great power, and the strange unconquerableness written on every feature. Gazing at her, it was impossible not to dream over her story.

The woman who supplied Mrs. Bertrand with butter and garden vegetables was a daughter-in-law of the old woman who had been Mrs. Chorley's servant so long. Since her quarrel with Mr. Harton Persis had been especially bitter against all the family save Miss Olive, whom she loved tenderly. Jane, being a newcomer in the place, and rather disposed for gossip, was quite a godsend to her. On her part Jane retailed her information to Dora, who soon understood the family history perfectly well.

Persis declared Mrs. Chorley had never been the same woman after her second marriage, and that she felt assured Mr. Harton had managed to entangle her in some villainy, or he could never have ruled her so completely. "You should 'a seen how she carried her head in Mr. Chorley's time," the old woman would generally conclude with.

It appeared singular to Dora that Mr Harton should wish to remain in a place where he was regarded with so much suspicion when he had ample means to enable him to live elsewhere. As Mrs. Bertrand preferred the quiet of her room much of the time, Dora was left to her own speculations and amusements, and having little else to occupy her attention, had become deeply interested in the history connected with Chorley Cliffs. Now she visited the old tower daily. Her nature was not superstitious or fearful, and the many curious relics there pleased her greatly.

II.

It was a bright night with a full moon. Dora had lain awake a long while, listening to the ticking of the clock, the regular breathing of her mother, and the heavier respiration of Jane. The sleeping apartments were on the side toward the tower, nearly all the rooms being on one floor, as the house itself was low. Many a time vague imaginations had floated through Dora's mind, and even now she could not refrain from going over the old story. Then a crash of something startled her, a smothered sound, as if it came through walls, and in the direction of the tower. With senses painfully acute, she sat upright in bed, and strove to catch another token of the real or imaginary intruder. In vain. Only the sleepers on either hand broke the perfect stillness, and presently the voice of her mother, requiring some trifling attention. So she composed herself to sleep again, but the incident recurred to her in the morning, and immediately after breakfast she set out to explore the tower, her heart beating with quite a new emotion.

The neighborhood was extremely quiet and at this point quite thickly settled, so it was hardly possible any one would attempt to enter such an old place where no valuables were kept.

She ascended the steps slowly, and on reaching the second floor took a comprehensive survey. The study looked as usual; not a thing had been disturbed. Raising her eyes they rested on a window overlooking the main house. The sash seemed to her displaced and several new panes of glass missing. Following out the suggestion, her eyes wandered to the floor, which was strewn with numerous fragments. Her first impulse was to fly down stairs and give the alarm; then she reflected a moment. Might not the wind—but no, there had been scarcely a breath the preceding night, certainly not enough to dislodge the window frame. She drew a chair to the wall, and climbing up, took hold of it. Yes, it was loose. There seemed traces of a recent disarrangement—finger marks in the dust and the disturbance of moths and spiders that had built homes for themselves in the corners. The window had evidently fallen out; this was the noise she had heard in the night. If it had lain there on the floor she would not have felt a whit disturbed, but it must have been put back by human agency. What could any one hope to gain after effecting such an entrance?

TO BE CONTINUED]

Danger in Milk.

Tubercular meningitis is a common disease among children in large cities, where the milk supplied is always old and otherwise open to suspicion. In the light of facts developed it is fair to assume that in a large proportion of cases the cause lies in the milk. That a certain milk does not unpleasantly affect the parents is no evidence that it is free from harmful properties. Children are more susceptible to poisons than they, whether mineral, vegetable or the germs of disease.—Boston Herald.

ADVICE TO PARENTS.

Parents looking for a school in which to place their boys are advised to put them in Hoitt's Oak Grove School. The master, Dr. Ira G. Hoitt, is well known as an educator. The school is limited to fifty pupils and special attention is given to each one. The location near Millbrae in San Mateo county is charming.

Peculiar Effects of the Grip.

"I wonder if the grip will make a visit to this city," said young Van Braam as he and his friend Larimer sat at breakfast at Mrs. Hashcroft's boarding house.

"It wouldn't surprise me if it did," replied the latter. "By the way, did you ever hear of such queer effects following any other disease as come after the grip in many cases?"

"I don't know that I have. Still, one never knows what is going to follow an attack of typhoid fever."

"True enough, but the effects of grip are more startling. What do you think of a St. Louis man who had a relapse from grip and his teeth all dropped out?"

"I don't doubt it. I heard of a case where a relapse from grip was followed by the patient's eyes dropping out."

"Young gentlemen," interrupted Mrs. Hashcroft, "when did you have the grip?"

"Never had it," both replied simultaneously.

"I was almost sure you had, for in some cases it leaves its victims incapable of telling the truth."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Scene in a Russian Church.

A miracle working picture of the virgin lady of Smolensk attracted much attention, and many kisses were lavished on the glass which protected it. While we were examining with some interest this highly venerated work of art a woman dressed like a peasant approached us carrying a basket covered with a white cloth. From this basket she produced a small phial containing an oily looking liquid, which she offered for sale. It had been specially blessed, she said, by coming in contact with the miracle working virgin, and was warranted to cure all manner of diseases.

Strongly she pressed its virtues upon us, saying, "Although you are Germans and foreigners and dumb to what is going on, you ought to make some sacrifice for the Mother of God." As we still declined to make the purchase, she opened the cork, put some of the oil on the tip of her finger and was about to proceed to anoint us. However, at this point we slipped through the crowd and escaped her further attentions.—Chambers' Journal.

A Great Artist's Early Effort.

A man named Beneville, in company with his two sons, passed through Greville every Saturday on his way to the market of Beaumont, which was about a league farther, in order to show some donkeys. These three men had large figures, and to see them mounted on their donkeys, which they had ornamented with false ears, appealed to the imagination of Francois. He began one day to represent this grotesque little cavalcade, and did it successfully. A short time after he had finished it the blacksmith of the neighboring village, who had seen the drawing, asked, and was allowed, to take it for a few days, and he put it in a conspicuous place in his shop, that the men with the donkeys who came often to his place, might see it. At their next visit the first object they spied was this picture, and they at once recognized the party. The father immediately asked who in this place had enough talent to make such things. He was told it was the little Millet.—Pierre Millet in Century.

The heads of persons beheaded for state offenses were formerly exposed to view on long poles upon London bridge. The last head exhibited was that of Venner, the fifth monarchy zealot, beheaded in the reign of Charles II.

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED.

We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Porterfield & Losey, 838 Market Street, San Francisco.

"Charge, Chester, charge!" were the last words of Marmion; and yet, he never heard of a Chicago restaurant, or he would have died sooner.

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell.

The Best Cure is that which truly cures Promptly and Permanently, and St. Jacobs Oil Shows a Thousand Proofs of the worst cases of Pain It Has Cured.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE

Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

"Are cable cars healthy?" asks an exchange. As a matter of fact, neighbor, the grip never made its appearance in this country until the introduction of the cable cars.

BIRDS OF PASSAGE

Between this and the other side of the broad Atlantic, in the shape of tourists, commercial travelers and mariners, agents "on the road," steamboat captains, ship's surgeons and "all sorts and conditions" of travelers, emigrant and new settlers appreciate and testify to the preventive and remedial properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in sea sickness, nausea, malarial and rheumatic trouble, and all disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. Against the prejudicial influences of climate, crudely cooked or unaccustomed diet and impure water, it is a sovereign safeguard, and has been so regarded by the traveling public for over a third of a century. No form of malarial fever, from the calentura of the Pacific and the broken bone fever of the Mississippi, to its milder types, can resist the curative action of this benignant preserver and restorer of health, a veritable boon to persons in feeble health or liable to incur disease.

A great peach crop is promised from Delaware. This will make up for the backwardness of the plum crop from Washington.

OF INTEREST TO ATHLETES.

James Robinson, the athletic trainer at Princeton College, Princeton, N. J., says:

"I have found it imperative to have sure and simple remedies on hand in case of cuts, bruises, strains, sprains, colds, rheumatism, etc. Shortly after entering upon my profession, I discovered such a remedy in ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. I tried other plasters, but found them too harsh and irritating. ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS give almost instantaneous relief, and their strengthening power is remarkable. In cases of weak back put two plasters on the small of the back and in a short time you will be capable of quite severe exercise. In "sprint," and "distance" races and jumping, the muscles or tendons in the legs and feet sometimes weaken. This can invariably be relieved by cutting the plaster in narrow strips, so as to give free motion, and applying on muscles affected."

The man who said you couldn't eat your cake and have it too evidently was not a dyspeptic.

HOW'S THIS!

We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.

We the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligation made by their firm.

WEST & TRUAX, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.
WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Price 75c. per bottle. Sold by all Druggists. Testimonials free.

The World's Fair is a big thing, and so is the railroads' fare.

A Cough, Cold, or Sore Throat require immediate attention, as neglect results in some incurable Lung Disease or Chronic Throat Trouble. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" will invariably give relief.

You can drive a horse to water, but, unlike man, you cannot drive him to drink.

Pfunder's Oregon Blood Purifier is the best remedy for cleansing your system.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

SUNSHINE comes, no matter how dark the clouds are, when the woman who is borne down by woman's troubles turns to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. If her life is made gloomy by the chronic weaknesses, delicate derangements, and painful disorders that afflict her sex, they are completely cured. If she's overworked, nervous, or "run-down," she has new life and strength.

"Favorite Prescription" is a powerful, invigorating tonic and a soothing and strengthening nervine, purely vegetable, perfectly harmless. It regulates and promotes all the proper functions of womanhood, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and vigor. For every "female complaint" and disturbance, it is the only remedy so sure and unfailing that it can be guaranteed.

If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

GIVEN UP TO DIE

Great Suffering With Liver Complaint

Hope Almost Gone—Read What Hood's Sarsaparilla Did

Mrs. R. A. Hamilton
Fresno, Cal.

"I have been troubled with what attending physicians called liver complaint and enlargement of the spleen. Sores gathered and broke, and for a long time I doctored for piles without good results. At last I could not walk across my room, and took to my bed, as many thought, to die. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and have continued with it for six months. I am entirely cured and do all my housework. It has all been brought about by Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. R. A. HAMILTON, cor. Fresno and L Streets.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Hood's Pills cure Constipation by restoring the peristaltic action of the alimentary canal.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail, Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER 25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY.

Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50cts. Injector free.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING

For sale by all Druggists. 25 Cents a bottle.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES

ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BOSANKO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

TAKE PFUNDER'S OREGON BLOOD PURIFIER.

CURES KIDNEY & LIVER DISEASES, DYSPEPSIA, PIMPLES, BLOTCHES AND SKIN DISEASES, HEADACHE & COSTIVENESS.

PURE BLOOD

YOUNG MEN!

The Specific A No. 1.

Cures, without fail, all cases of Gonorrhœa and Gleet, no matter of how long standing. Prevents stricture, it being an internal remedy. Cures when everything else has failed. Sold by all Druggists. Manufacturers: The A. Schoenhelt Medicine Co., San Jose, Cal. Price, $3.00.

"HE THAT WORKS EASILY, WORKS SUCCESSFULLY." CLEAN HOUSE WITH

SAPOLIO

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF

Moore's Revealed Remedy.

ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude MRS. N. V. STEELE.

SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

HERCULES

GAS AND GASOLINE

Stationary and Marine

ENGINES

For Launches, Schooners, Tow Boats, Etc.

For Pumping, Mining Hoists, Printing, Sawing, Turning Lathes, Soda Water Works, Etc.

For simplicity and success they beat the world. Clean, no ashes, smell or dirt. No engineer is necessary; they are easily managed. Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question. No battery or electric spark to care for. No double or false explosions, so frequent with the unreliable spark. The workmanship is the very best. Our ignition tubes are a success; they explode every charge of gas which enters the cylinder. Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day. For pumping outfits for irrigating purposes they run all day without an engineer. For hoisting outfits in mines they have met with the highest approval. We give estimates on the entire plant.

PALMER & REY, MANUFACTURERS,

405-407 Sansome St., San Francisco, Cal.

S. F. N. U. No. 571. New Series No. 22

INYO INDEPENDENT.
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.
Independence, Cal.
FRIDAY, JULY 7, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXV. NO. 3. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JULY 7, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1184

INYO INDEPENDENT
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$1 00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.50
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

A Touching Incident.

A group of emigrants was gathered in the long, dreary passage which opens on the bay at the Jersey City station, and as the passengers waiting for the midnight train strayed that way they observed a stolid, pathetic look on each face that told of some greater sorrow than the loneliness of a strange land. There were the aged grandmother, the father and mother, and a family of half grown children—little men and women—who moved and talked and looked like their elders. But they were all silent now and sat motionless on the hard benches on which their rude luggage was piled.

Between the father and mother was a rough bed, extemporized from shawls and comforters and a coarse cloth coat, and on that bed the youngest of the family was sleeping; but there was that in the aspect of the group that denoted such a deep sorrow that one of the passengers approached and asked:

"Is the child sick?"

The Danish people shook their heads—it was an unknown tongue to them. But one of the boys, who had picked up a few of the necessary English words from his fellow travelers on the steamship voyage to this country, answered, without moving a muscle of his face:

"Yesh—shleeps."

An hour later an official stopped and looked at the group. Then he turned down, with no ungentle hand, the coverlid from what he believed to be the sleeping child.

"Why," he exclaimed, starting back, "this child is dead."

"Yesh," said the boy who could speak English, "shleep—dead."

And these people had sat by their dead for nearly eight long hours, racked with anxiety as to what they should do, distracted with grief, yet unable to speak a word of their trouble to the many sympathizing hearts that were within reach of them.

They left the little yellow haired girl baby, consigned to a foreign grave, and went on their way; but though they shed no tears, there was that in their blue eyes that told of a deep wound, and doubtless in their new home they will miss the quaint little figure in its blue woolen dress and round white cap and tiny wooden shoes—the Danish baby that lies alone under the shade trees of Jersey City.—Youth's Companion.

Two True Fish Stories.

"Just after the first World's fair banquet," said Abram Williams, a prominent fire insurance manager, "a party of gentlemen were talking in one of the parlors of the Palmer House, where the feast was spread, and, as will happen sometimes, you know, the conversation drifted to fish stories. And fish stories reminded Delegate White, of the south, of an experience he had in New Mexico.

"'The fish were so plentiful,' said Mr. White, 'that all our party needed to do when we wanted a dinner of fish was to take two boards or shingles, and forming them in the shape of a scoop just dish out as many as we needed for a meal.'

"When Mr. White had finished there was a moment's silence, then Edwin Walker, attorney for the St. Paul road, quietly said:

"'That's not much of a fish story, Mr. White. Why, when I was traveling up one of the small rivers in southern Alaska I saw fish in such great numbers that the water could not be seen. It was a most remarkable thing, and I have never heard of the like before or since. They were actually so thick that they were wedged in the water, heads down, and all that could be seen was thousands of their wriggling tails sticking up out of the water, each one, of course, having an individual motion of its own.' A shout of laughter greeted Mr. Walker from every one except Mr. White, whose face flushed up hotly, then paled until it was whiter than a sheet, as he said:

"'But, Mr. Walker, my story was true.' 'And so was my story true,' responded Mr Walker.

"And the best of it was that Mr. Walker's story was literally true, as Mrs. Walker later in the evening testified. It was in the spawning season, and just above the spot where the remarkable sight was witnessed was a narrow rapids. The salmon went up the stream in such quantities that many were crowded out of the water, and gave to the scene literally the aspect told by Mr. Walker."—Chicago Globe.

Affixing the Great Seal.

The secretary of state has no right to affix the great seal of the United States to any paper without a "warrant" from the president authorizing him to do so. This warrant is always filed with the document so sealed, and reads as follows:

I authorize and direct the secretary of state to cause the great seal of the United States to be affixed to [whatever the document may be] dated this day, and signed by me, and for so doing this shall be his warrant. — —
President of the United States.

The great seal is affixed to nothing but treaties, proclamations, commissions, pardons and passports. The old seal, which had been in use since the foundation of the government, was worn out and replaced by a new one in the early part of 1886. It is a curious fact that the old one which was used so long was imperfect and never did answer to the description set down in the statutes.

Although using the seal is supposed to be a solemn affair, and the penalty for its improper use is so tremendous, it is left in charge of a clerk, just like any other piece of furniture, and it is doubtful if the secretary sees it twice a year. During the early days of the government it was guarded with much vigilance, as its appearance upon any document was known to give that document the force of law, but now the people look to the newspapers and not to a piece of parchment for their information.—St. Louis Republic.

Spoiled His Business.

A boy with ragged clothes and with face and hands that had not been troubled with water for many days, perhaps months, entered the office of Tax Collector Stewart Saturday morning and begged the loan of a dime. "I will give you one," said the tax collector, "if you will take that piece of soap there and get under that hydrant and wash yourself." The boy took the soap and putting his head under the hydrant undid the work of many weeks in a few minutes.

He was completely transformed when he arose from his ablutions. The tax collector gave him the dime and remarked, "That is the best money you have ever earned." "Best nothing," replied the boy scornfully, "you have played hob with my business."—Atlanta Journal.

Harps of Wood.

Two Frenchmen, the brothers Forre, have invented a new kind of harp, made entirely of wood. Instead of strings the inventors use strips of American fir. The sound is produced, as in the ordinary harp, by the contact of the fingers; but the players wear leather gloves covered with resin. The tone of the instrument is of remarkable purity.—New York Telegram.

AMERICAN BEAUTY

Comparative Measurements of Girls in the East and West.

THE CALIFORNIA MAIDEN LEADS.

She is Said to be Nearer Perfect as to Form Than Her Sister in New York. —Tight Lacing.

A sculptor's ideal of beauty is evolved on mathematical principles. A perfect woman is 7 or 7½ or 8 heads tall; her shoulders are two heads wide; her legs are 3½ to 3¾ heads long; her waist is 3 heads in circumference. But the size of heads varies in women who are equally perfect in shape; the head of the Venus de Medici is nearly one-eighth less in proportion than that of the Venus of Milo or the Cnidian Venus of Praxiteles, which was esteemed by the ancients the most perfect statue in existence. The Medici Venus is a slim, slender girl, whose proportions resemble the statues of Psyche. Living reproductions of her are more frequently seen in New York than here.

There fell into The Argonaut's possession a list of measurements of the proportions of a young lady of San Francisco, who is looked upon as being beautiful and having a fine figure—in short, a typical California girl. With these we have compared a similar ground plan of a New York girl which we secured at the time Professor Sargent was collecting statistics concerning the young women in eastern seminaries; likewise the measurements of Ballow's well known ideal beauty. They compare as follows:

	California girl. Ft. In.	New York girl. Ft. In.	Ballow's ideal. Ft. In.
Height	5 6½	5 5½	5 6
Length of head	8¾	8	8½
Circumference of bust	35	30½	32
Circumference of hips	35	30	32
Circumference of waist	24	19½	26
Circumference of neck	12½	12½	13
Width of shoulders	17½	15½	16½

The weights of the first and the last are between 130 and 135 pounds, while the New York girl weighs about 126.

Polycletos, an old Greek sculptor from Licyon, left rules governing the relative proportions of the female frame. He said that twice the thumb was once round the wrist, which it is not, unless the thumb is unusually large and the wrist unusually slender; that twice the wrist is the size of the neck, which is about the case in a well proportioned woman; that twice the neck is once round the waist, which is about so. But he also says that the hand and foot and face should all be of the same length, which is very rarely the case, and that the body should be six times the length of the foot, which would limit most men, whose feet average ten inches in length, to a stature of five feet. The gentleman from Licyon is evidently not a trustworthy guide.

Referring to the above table, it will be observed that the waist of the New Yorker is much smaller than that of the other two. The fashion of small waists is the rage in the east, and the desired result is obtained by tight lacing, which is carried to such an extent that the physiognomist is lost in amazement as to where the lady has bestowed her vital organs. No statue in existence exhibits such a disproportion between the waist and those portions of the trunk which lie above and below it. The compression of the girth is a mere fashionable fad which good taste must condemn. Our California girl wears a 24-inch corset, which might easily be reduced to a 23-inch if the wearer saw fit to sacrifice comfort to eastern fashion. There are belles in New York who are not satisfied till they have squeezed themselves into a 17-inch corset. Such persons, it would seem, would have enjoyed the Scottish boot.

The bust and hips should, in a perfectly formed woman, be exactly the same in circumference. They are so in Ballow's ideal, in the Venus of Milo, in the Cnidian Venus and in the California girl. In the New Yorker the circumference of the bust is half an inch greater than that of the hips, which is probably the work of art, not nature.

Ballow does not give the dimensions of his ideal's feet or hands. He merely says that they are "in proportion," which is rather vague. The rule among sculptors is that the foot should measure one head, which is unsatisfactory, as some large women have small heads, and some small women large heads.

The female foot is probably smaller in New York society than here, for the simple reason that it has less to carry. Shoemakers say here that they sell more 4 and 4½ shoes than any others, but many ladies in society buy 3½, 3, and even 2½ shoes. The knights of St. Crispin do not believe in the sculptor's rule about feet. They say that small feet, like large wits, are a gift from heaven, and may be found attached to persons of any dimensions. Everybody has observed that there is no necessary connection between the hands and the figure; that some slim girls have large hands, and some girls with opulent figures small hands and fingers.

Take all the measurements together, and the conclusion is forced that the Californian girl more closely resembles the Cnidian Venus than the Venus of Medici, and that a representative Californian statue should be cast after a study of that masterpiece as well as of the Venus of Milo and the Venus Callipyge.—San Francisco Argonaut.

A CLOCK is to be seen at Brussels which comes about as near being a perpetual motion machine as can be invented, for the sun does the winding. The following is the method by which it works: A shaft exposed to the solar rays causes an updraught of air, which sets the fan in motion. The fan actuates mechanism which raises the weight of the clock until it reaches the top, and then puts a break on the fan till the weight has gone down a little, when the fan is again liberated, and proceeds to act as before. As long as the sun shines frequently enough, and the machinery does not wear out, the clock will keep in perpetual motion.—London Tit-Bits.

An Engineer's True Story.

"That reminds me of my experience on a cold day a year or two ago," said old Bill Adams. "I was pulling out 411 then. I remember we used to call her the 44, sort of 4—11—44, you know. Well, I was coming in on her one beastly cold day with a long string of grain loads behind me. Forty-four began to leak badly just after I left Ashland, and by the time I got to Raymond hill she wouldn't hold plug hats. She was worse than seven fishnets. It was cold enough to freeze a brass monkey, and my fireman was making a good many remarks about the old man who had 44 out in such shape. I got her to going as hard as I could to run the hill, and when we struck the up grade I was giving it to her for all she was worth.

"She was pounding like the old Nick, and before we got half way up I was afraid we wouldn't get over. Well, we got pretty near to the top, when she threw up her tail and laid down. She was leaking so fast I was afraid she would die on me, and I didn't dare back off to make another run for the hill. So I whistled off brakes and slid back. It was so cold that there was a streak of ice all along where we had been, formed out of the water that 44 had leaked. I noticed that as we slid down, and when we got to the bottom I told my fireman I was going to make a try on a new scheme.

"A good wagon road runs around the foot of Raymond hill and crosses the track on the other side from where we were. I put a brace on the rail just where I thought I could jump into the road, and let her go. It was kind of risky, but I thought it was worth trying. Well, sir, she struck that brace and went into the road without a quiver. The brace held, and the grain loads followed as slick as grease. The water that leaked out of 44 was frozen as soon as it struck the ground and it made a fair track of ice for the train, and it was the easiest kind of slipping.

"Old 44 just followed that road as if she'd been trained to it, and when we struck the other side of the hill she dropped onto the rails as if she had been looking for them. It was just plain sliding down hill from that on, and when we struck the bottom we had force enough to shove us in on to the elevator side track, and we stopped just exactly where I wanted to. Couldn't have done it better if we'd had four engines."

Old Bill sighed sadly in remembrance of his great scheme, and the other boys walked silently away and left him dreaming of it.—New York Sun.

Waiting for a Train.

It is a good thing for a boy to obey orders, but there is such a thing as interpreting them too literally. A certain milkman, who lives in the country town of L——, and collects milk from the neighboring farmers, had in his employ a boy whom he sent about with a wagon every morning picking up the supply. There is a rather dangerous railroad crossing on the road, and when the boy began work for him, the milkman said, "When there's a train coming, just stop and sit still in your wagon until it gets by."

The boy went about his task, but instead of collecting the milk in about an hour and a half, as should have been done, he took at least two hours and sometimes more.

The farmer grumbled a little, but the boy said nothing, and as he seemed honest nothing was done.

One evening the milkman went out over his "collecting route" to see some of his customers.

"What ails that boy of yours?" asked one of the farmers.

"Why, nothing, only that he's rather slow, I guess."

"Slow? Well, I guess you'd think he was slow if you saw him resting for half an hour in his wagon down here by the railroad track every morning."

The milkman called the boy as soon as he reached home.

"Is it true that you stop half an hour every morning down at the railroad track?" he asked.

"Generally I have to," said the boy.

"Have to? What do you mean?"

"Why, you told me when there was a train coming to wait till it got by. Well, there's a crook in the track there, so't I never can see whether there's a train comin down the track or not. So I stop and wait till there's one goes by anyway, and then I just skip over lively."—Youth's Companion.

Left and Right Handedness.

Physiologists and others have given much time to the discussion of left and right handedness as exhibited in the human species. The opinion now generally held is that the preferential use of the right hand is not due in individual cases to early training, but to a superior developement of the left lobe of the brain, which, as is well known, is connected with the right side of the body.

The general use of the right hand in preference to the left may be ascribed to the education of the races through generation after generation. No animal shows any unusual inclination for the special use of the right limbs. The attribute belonging solely to the human race probably arose gradually from the use, by the earlier races of men, of the right arm in fighting, while the left side arm was reserved to cover the left side of the body, where wounds, as their experience showed them, were most dangerous.

Those who neglected this precaution would be most likely to be killed; and hence, in the lapse of time, the natural survival would make the human race in general "right handed," with occasional reversions, of course, by "atavism" to the "left handed" condition. The more frequent and energetic use of the right limbs would react upon the brain and bring about the excessive development of the left lobe of that organ, such as now generally exists. The left hand should be used as much and as often as possible, thus adding strength to both mind and body.—St. Louis Republic.

A Pitiable Procession.

In upper Broadway may be seen a procession of six sandwiches—that is, men with big signs on front and back—slowly promenading up and down. Three of the men are white haired, respectable looking old men out of luck, and three have the appearance of good for nothings in the prime of ablebodied manhood. Each man carries a flag, and the signs, painted upon white oilcloth, come down to their heels. They advertise a cheap shoe house.

There is something pathetic in these old men reduced to such a method to earn a livelihood. If the joyous schoolboy, the ambitious student, the happy father or the respected merchant could anticipate such an end would life be worth living? Would he consent to live it out to this extreme—reduced from fortune to poverty, alone, forsaken by kindred, walking the streets of New York a human sign? What a story of human hopes, great expectations, love, sorrows and degradation lies entombed between those bits of painted oilcloth!—New York Herald.

ALL ARE WEALTHY

A Quaint Village in Pennsylvania and its Curious People.

A COMMUNITY OF CELIBATISTS.

There Would be a Fortune for Each if the Common Property were Divided. —Co-operation.

About one hour's ride from Allegheny on the Fort Wayne road, near Beaver, known by the very suggestive name of Economy, is a quaint village founded in 1805 by a company of several hundred Germans, half of whom landed at Philadelphia. They were brought over at the instigation of one Herr Rapp, who had preceded his religious followers to look up a suitable settlement. Five hundred of the beautiful and productive acres upon which these Economites then settled, upon which the remaining number, only about forty souls now, still abide, were at that time purchased from the grandfather of James G. Blaine.

The town has one of the loveliest situations imaginable. It begins on the very edge of a bluff overlooking the Ohio river. The streets are at right angles with the river's course, and prettily bordered with shade trees, back of which sit the prim houses, commonly minus a front door, and so spaced that each household has its own kitchen garden. Another peculiarity of these houses is a singular decoration of grapevines, which are trained to espaliers so as to cover the space between the tops of the lower windows and the bottoms of the upper windows. The vines grow in vandykes, and you have no idea how oddly pretty is such an arrangement.

Your quiet here will not be disturbed by so much as the ring of a doorbell, nor by any sound more startling than the Sunday like crow of the finely bred and very numerous rooster, which has the full freedom of the hamlet, or, mayhap, by the rumble of the distant train or the puff of the locomotive under the bluff. Economy might fitly be called the silent village. The now deserted factories and breweries attest that once this was a busy, and, in consequence, a noisy place. This in early days, when the society numbered hundreds. A Rip Van Winkle lethargy has fallen upon the place now. As you walk the silent, well kept streets you will likely meet only an occasional little old man in a light blue jacket and tall broad brimmed hat, quite suggestive of that worn by our Quakers.

Or perchance one of the homelike dames may be abroad in Norman cap and stuff gown. If so, their surprise upon meeting you, a stranger, and so differently dressed, will not cause them to forget the courteous "good day" they religiously give you. There is nothing in the manner or appearance of these uncommon people to give you a suspicion of millions, yet in the language of the street "that is the size of it."

Forty millions on the co-operative plan, in land, gas, oil and railroad and bank stocks. Only about forty members in the society at present, the majority having reached and several having passed the three-score-and-ten limit. And what eventually is to become of the millions? The very question I asked, and was told "The Lord would take care of that."

You can spend your time uniquely here, seeing things of interest to be found nowhere else. Your patronage is not solicited and your presence not particularly desirable. Yet, if you are sweetly persuasive, you can find accommodations at the one hotel, which, like the one store, belongs to the society, and is not run for money. The town really prefers to be left alone. The hotel, before railroad days, was the favorite stopping place on one of the main stage routes out of Pittsburg.

If you are too poor to pay as you go, you are as welcome as if a millionaire, and both bed and board are yours "without money and without price." If you are a tramp you will find an annex hotel kept up on purpose for your brotherhood, where you will meet travelers from all points of the terrestrial compass. To the inquiry, "How do you know these are worthy ones?" you will be answered, "We don't know. But that makes no difference. Better feed a dozen unworthy men than refuse a deserving one." How's that for real charity?

Their hospitality is on a very generous scale all the way through. Though not gormandizers, they live well. Their cattle are all blooded, many of them imported from Germany; therefore, the richest cream and sweetest butter are yours, together with fresh vegetables cooked to the queen's taste.

At the co-operative laundry, which, by the way, is supplied with modern machinery, you will see a novel wash day. Each family has this day only once in three weeks, and they go in families, several washing the same day.

At the store supplies are given out as is the wine, simply for the asking. Each one is supposed to have earned all, he can consume. As each labors for all there is no occasion for jealousy or selfishness. There is no room for waste, since there are no opportunities for using more than can be eaten or worn.

Your interest will center in the "Big House," or, as I prefer to call it, the Executive Mansion of Economy. In this house live the religious and financial heads of the community—old Father Henrici, the present and third religious leader; young Mr. Duss, the present financial manager and Father Henrici's successor, and several others. Mr. Duss is a scholar and a gentleman in all that those terms imply. His one time wife, by whom he has two children, is beautiful and womanly. These people, aged thirty-two years, respectively, two years ago took the vow of celibacy and became leaders in the order. Several other additions were made about that time, the converts being comparatively young people, and thus the religion gathered an impetus, the first for a number of years.

I should like to devote a column to the quaint little church and the yet more quaint clock in the tower—every bit made right there by home talent. This clock, like the people for whom it tells the hours, is not to be frustrated by any new fangled time in existence, but ticks off the same sun time it was first made to tick.

Entering the church you will be struck with its plainness, and unless you have been living in Quakerdom it will seem odd to you that, though these men and women may live together under one roof, they may not sit together in church or be laid side by side in the churchyard. No luxury anywhere; the more luxury the less religion is the idea. Two organs are played simultaneously during services. The religious head of the society has since the beginning conducted all church and funeral services and remains seated the while. Communion services are conducted only once in a year.—Cor. Philadelphia Times.

WITS SHARPENED IN THE STREETS.

Ten Cents' Worth of Talk with a Blue Eyed Match Peddler.

"Matches!"

The voice had that peculiar nasal drawl characteristic of the commercial child of Israel. Its owner peered into the doorway of a little office on the water's edge down town and repeated the cry, giving it an interrogatory inflection. He saw four young men sitting on stools in the middle of the office. They were reporters. Seeing no evidences of hostility in their aspect the little peddler entered the room.

He was a broad browed lad about twelve years old, with big blue eyes, full of the light of speculation, and brown, curly hair. His trousers, which had many patches, evidently had not been on intimate terms with the top of his battered shoes for several years.

"Do you vant to puy some matches?"

There was not a trace of politeness in his tone. His confidence was almost aggressive. He had none of the suavity of the successful merchant. His voice and manner were those of a boy who had fought his way unassisted to the height he had attained. He addressed his inquiry to all the young men. One of them asked, "How much?"

"Teeventy cents a package; teeventy poxes in a package."

"I'll buy a box on one condition."

"Vaat's that?"

"That you'll stay here and talk with me a moment."

"Vell, vaat'll I talk about?"

"About yourself. How much money do you make a day?"

"Somedimes a tollar; somedimes seventy-fife cents; somedimes a tollar and a halluf."

"How much do you pay for your matches?"

"Sevendeen cents."

"How much do yo sell them for?"

"Teeventy cents."

"What profit does that give you?"

"Dree cents. If you pay me teeventy-fife cents I make eight cents."

"How many boys are in the business?"

"More poys as gustomers—a million, I tinks."

"Are they all Hebrews?"

"Yes."

"Have you a license to peddle?"

"No."

"What do you do when a policeman catches you selling?"

"He ask me, 'Haf you a license?' I say: 'Matches! Vill you puy matches? He ask again, 'Vere's your license?' I say, 'I sell you matches.' He tinks I'm greenhorn, and he says, 'Get out you tammed ignorant sheeney,' and I gets out."

"How long have you been in this country?"

"Five years."

"How long have you been peddling."

"Five years."

"Where do you come from?"

"Outside of Berlin."

"How much do I owe you for this package?"

"Teeventy-five cents."

"That five cents too much."

"No; I sharge you fife cents for the talk and interruption to peezness."

"Where do you sell most of your matches?"

"In office pildings."

"What do you sell them for there?"

"If a man looks rich I sell for feefty cents. If he won't puy for that I sell for forty, dirty, teeventy-five—no less in office pildings. This is a long talk. I sell you now for dirty cents. Teeventy in a package.'

"All right; I'll take this package. Good day."

"Good day."

The reporter opened the package and found twelve boxes.—New York Sun.

Tree Growth Makes a Lawsuit.

A few years ago a tree exerted its wonderful power in a manner to bring on a lawsuit and make much trouble all around. A dam had been built, and the water for power so backed up as to make it level with the back line of the owner's property.

As it is considered a scientific fact that the trunks of trees once formed cannot elongate, a mark was made on a trunk near the breastwork at exactly so many feet above the height of the dam, so that on a repair it would be known just how high to rebuild. At the time referred to the breastwork was renewed, and with confidence reconstructed according to the infallible figures as recorded by the tree. Strange to say, the water was backed up six inches higher than before, the back water overflowing on neighbors' property, and hence the suit.

Numbers of expert opinions were sought, the writer and the late Professor Asa Gray being among those who had to give their views. Clearly the trunk could not stretch six inches, and only for the naked fact that the surveyors were sure of what the actual facts corroborated, the water was six inches higher than when the dam was first constructed. At last some one's horse sense pointed out what experts in science could not see. The tree was growing in a solid rock, its roots mostly passing over the surface and down the edge.

The annual growth of these roots, thickening them, could not force that rock deeper into the earth, but it did lift the whole tree. Year by year these roots added to their thickness on the rocky face possibly the sixteenth of an inch, this soft, cellular material actually lifting the huge tree by that much, so that in ninety years the mark on the trunk would be six inches higher than at first—had, apparently, stretched itself that much. This being settled, the breastwork had to go down that much in order that justice might be done between neighbors.—Thomas Meehan in Philadelphia Ledger.

He Owned the Pew.

"That reminds me of an incident to which I was a witness," said Dan O'Sullivan, the newspaper reporter. "It was in the old Catholic church in Buffalo. There was some sort of a celebration on, and the church was crowded. In the midst of the service a little old Irishman, who was in the enjoyment of a fortune he had worked hard to get, and who was the lessee of the second pew from the front, entered. He walked impressively down the center aisle, as becomes a man of independent means. Upon reaching his pew he saw that several strange ladies were occupying it. There was room for him, but that wasn't enough. He placed one hand on the back of the front pew, and with a wave of the other said in a voice loud enough to be heard all over the church:

"'Come out av that now.'

"Very much surprised and confused, the ladies obeyed, and then they were treated to another sensation by the lessee's saying:

"'Now in wid yez again an' make yerselves ter hum. Oi only wanted yez ter know az who owned the pew.'

"He was as polite as they make them, and he accompanied his command with such a sweeping gesture and winning smile that the ladies complied and the interrupted priest resumed."—Chicago Post.

VOICE CULTURE.

Interesting Facts for Girls From an Authority on Singing.

GOOD HEALTH THE FIRST REQUISITE

No Reason Why American Girls' Voices Cannot be Trained at Home.—Take Off Tight Corsets.

Surely there is no reason why American girls should not become as fine singers as any on the globe. They have all the requisites of perseverance, superior mental endowments and ambition. The American singers who have become famous have been trained abroad, but I hold that they can be educated at home if they are properly taught. Health is the road to success in singing as well as in other professions. The new gospel of music I would teach to the young women of America is technique, physique and grace. It is no Delsartean fad, or anything of the kind, but common sense.

There are hundreds of so called remedies and little secrets intended to make the voice clear and smooth, such as eating dried plums, or swallowing glycerine in homeopathic phosphates. My secret is health. Body and soul and voice are so nearly connected that the disease of one means the blight of the others.

Take a healthy woman and you will never find in her those capricious freaks and nervous depressions which make life a burden to her and her friends. Unfortunately the weaker sex is granted privileges which tend to make her enjoy the sensation of enacting the role of a nervous, fading, drooping lily. Nine times out of ten if she would remove her vicelike corsets she would soon become a healthy rose.

Health and voice are as nearly connected as physical and mental health, and the voice is the thermometer of health. A change in the physical state is first noticed in the voice and the beginning of anæmia has the effect of making the voice feeble and untrue (below the pitch). Where is the young girl who does not suffer occasionally in a more or less degree from this sickness of today?

What is the remedy, or rather the preventive? The most dangerous enemy of health is tight lacing. It is not expected that a young girl should at once recognize the far reaching and destructive effects of this most pernicious abuse, but their mothers should use all their influence to check a danger so serious to future generations.

Lacing compresses that part of the lungs so necessary to easy breathing and singing. If the lungs are so tightly compressed that they cannot expand at the sides they must find relief by going to the upper or lower part.

Every one knows, or should know that the upper part of the lungs is the weakest, and most of the irritations of the lungs begin there. It is by no means an edifying sight to see a lady singing "with her shoulders," as I heard it called. The opposite, the abdominal breathing, is well enough for a man, but it can become very dangerous for a woman.

In spite of this well known fact many renowned singing teachers make this kind of breathing the Alpha and Omega of their method for men and women alike.

There are some voices which have resisted every training and could not be killed in spite of their masters. These voices, although they exist in a small minority, will make the reputation of a teacher, whether deserved or not. But if a teacher is enabled to choose his material and to discard voices he does not think worth cultivating he ought to have a success with every single pupil. The voice is like a delicate plant; the gardener cannot produce it, but he can nurse and cultivate it with most careful love. If the voice meets all the requirements in the early days of training there is no need to worry about progress later, for success is assured.

The most difficult part of voice culture should be taught first, viz., the free and easy development of the tone and equalizing of the registers. If a singer acquires these they will enable him or her to reach the highest point in art. The old singing master, Porpora, used to say that one might be able to write upon one piece of music paper all that a singer needed for instruction.

In spite of renowned conservatories the mere tone development is still the wonderful "secret." Generally the greatest attention is paid, not to tone development, but to a musical education in all directions and branches. How shall a singer succeed who has not been taught right in the first place? We know a good many succeed who are taught wrongly, but that is because they have voices that defy all attempts to kill them. He or she will have to learn for himself or herself what to do, and do it.

Great allowance should be made for those who do not study singing for the purpose of making it their profession. The system that I advocate makes a principal point of the hygienic benefit to be derived therefrom, as it combines voice and body culture. As I said before, a healthy voice exists only in a healthy body. Overheated rooms are conducive to all the physical ills and aches known to man. No matter how many heavy wraps are put on before leaving a superheated room, it is almost impossible to preserve the lungs. The dangers are too sudden, and not even the most robust can stand them. The body should be so hardened that it does not require warm rooms.

Should children be taught singing? The development of the ear is one of the slowest but most fundamental parts of instruction. A child is more apt to catch the sound of different dialects and idioms. I know this from experience, because my father, being in the German army, was often transferred to different places in the empire, and although I was in my childhood years I rapidly picked up the dialect in each province, and the result was that I spoke all so fluently no one could tell where I was born.

Now, this is an example for my claim that the ear and taste of a child ought to be trained early to avoid that tiresome work of undoing in later years many faults and bad habits.

I cannot imagine the feeling of becoming tired from singing. Unfortunately I am acquainted with the agony of feeling a voice fade away and becoming only a sad echo. When I was eleven years old I did too much. Oh! if I only could have stopped a great many tears might have been saved me. There was a silver lining to the cloud that came, because I then went through a careful musical education, including method, theory and anatomy of hand and arm. However, my love for singing had not ceased, and I began again, though most timidly, my vocal studies, and gained back by arduous study what was formerly a gift of nature. This taught me much, and to my misfortune I attributed my ability to work against every fault in the voice of a singer.—Baroness Anna Von Meyerinck

ORIGIN OF A SLANG PHRASE.

A Politician Tells How "To Eat Crow" Passed Into the Language.

The origin of the expression "to eat crow" caused some dispute in an up town clubhouse one evening recently, and one white headed old politician accounted for it in this way:

"Years ago," he said, "a soldier stationed on Governor's island wandered up into the city and out upon the pasture lands just north of Chambers street to have some fun. There he spied a crow hopping about among the cows, and he instantly aimed his gun at it and shot it dead. As he did so a ragged little boy, who had been watching him dashed off with a wild yell in the direction of a distant house. The soldier laughed at what he thought to be the boy's terror at the report of the gun, and laying it down carefully at the foot of the tree he went to pick up the crow.

"After that something else attracted his attention, and he did not think of his gun again till he heard an angry voice behind him, and turning around he found himself gazing straight down the barrel. A furious Dutchman was at the other end of the gun. The soldier had shot the Dutchman's pet crow, the boy had borne testimony to the deed, and now for the penalty.

"Sparing you the recital of the heated conversation which followed, the result was that the Dutchman spared the soldier's life only on condition that he would straightway eat the crow he had shot. The soldier argued vehemently, but to no purpose. He finally secured permission to pluck the crow and cook it a little over a fire made with a few chips. Then he began to eat, but before he had eaten more than half of the carrion bird he became so sick that he swore he would rather be shot than finish it.

"The Dutchman's wrath seemed to be appeased by this time, however, and he restored the soldier his gun and bade him begone. The soldier took the gun, but instead of begonning he instantly took aim at the Dutchman's head and vowed to blow his grains out if he did not at once eat the other half of the crow. The Dutchman was compelled by fear of death to swallow the rest of the loathsome flesh, and then the soldier departed, leaving the injured Dutchman ready to burst with rage and chagrin.

"The latter swore vengeance, and next day appeared on Governor's island and made complaint to the commandant that one of the soldiers had wantonly shot his tame crow. The commandant told the Dutchman to pick out the offender and he should be punished. The Dutchman pointed to a soldier not far away and identified him.

"Calling the soldier to him, the commandant said sternly, 'Did you ever see this man before?' pointing to the Dutchman.

"'Yes, sir,' replied the soldier, with a laugh in his eye, 'I dined with him yesterday.'

"This answer so amused the Dutchman, besides reminding him of how all his friends would laugh at him should the story get out, that he refused to push the complaint against the soldier, and 'to eat crow,' meaning to suffer anything mortifying or humiliating, passed into a proverb from that day."—New York Tribune.

The Literature of Old Shoes.

Miss Gray has collected some interesting literature on the subject of old shoes for the use of students. It includes some quaint advertisements clipped from old newspapers in the first part of the present century and toward the end of the last by Mr. Henry M. Brooks of Salem, the scholarly antiquarian and secretary of the Essex institute. Mr. Brooks has also made for the purpose a number of notes from "Felt's Annals."

Among the information thus given we find that the highest price of men's shoes in 1670 was 5 shillings, for those of women 3s. 8d. In 1672 a committee of Boston, considering that people in low circumstances "will wear no other boots or shoes generally but of the newest fashion and highest price," proposed that a law be passed that no shoemakers should sell to any inhabitants shoes of 11 or 12 sizes above 5 shillings a pair, and so in proportion as to other sizes. —Boston Herald.

Undemonstrative Americans.

How many American boys over 15 kiss their parents? They've outgrown such "soft" demonstrations, and all because they have not been held to the pretty custom.

Anyhow we Americans are curiously undemonstrative among ourselves. I have seen men—brothers—parting who were thrilled by the strongest motives toward each other, and somehow they seemed as helpless as dumb animals in expressing it. Each knew how the other felt, of course, but only because he knew what he felt himself. He couldn't do anything, he couldn't say anything, because he was a man and an Anglo-Saxon.—Washington Post.

Couldn't Spare Him.

Mrs. Witherby—Is it necessary, dear, for you to attend the directors' meeting as often as once a week?

Mr. Witherby—Yes, darling; they might get along without some of the others, but I have such a good financial head that I have to act as banker. —Clothier and Furnisher.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, JULY 7 1893

SUPERVISORS' PROCEEDINGS.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, COUNTY OF INYO. } MONDAY, July 3, 1893.

Above being day and date fixed by law for regular meeting of Board of Supervisors and ex-officio Board of Equalization of said County and State, Chairman Robert Love being present and Supervisor John Wilson appearing it was thereupon Ordered, That said Board do adjourn until Wednesday, the 5th day of July, 1893 at the hour of 7 o'clock p. m.

Approved: R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
By J. E. PARKER, Deputy.

WEDNESDAY, July 5th.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, met pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Robert Love, chairman; Supervisors A. C. Freeman, Frank Fitzgerald, W. H. Uhlemeyer, and John Wilson.

Minutes of proceedings of last day of preceding regular meeting and of July 3d of present term read and approved.

R. S. Miner, special counsel appointed by order of the Board made April 7th, 1893 to represent the interests of Inyo county in the case of El Dorado county vs. L. Meiss, in the Supreme Court, pertaining to the validity of Ordinance No. 41, governing the license of sheep business, appeared before the Board and stated that he had complied with such order and had filed a brief in the matter and argued the case before the Court.

Upon motion of Supervisor Freeman, seconded by Supervisor Wilson, the Auditor was directed to draw his warrant upon the General Expense Fund in the sum of $350 in favor of said R. S. Miner in full payment for such services.

Adjourned until 9:30 o'clock a. m. of Thursday, July 6, 1893.

R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

WEDNESDAY, July 5, 1893.

At the above named time the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, sitting as a Board of Equalization, met pursuant to adjournment from July 3, 1893, there being present Robert Love, Chairman, and members and Supervisors A. C. Freeman, Frank Fitzgerald, W. H. Uhlmeyer, John Wilson.

Adjourned to meet July 6, 1893, at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m.

R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

THURSDAY, July 6, 1893. 9:30 a. m.

Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, met upon day and hour above named pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Supervisors Fitzgerald, Freeman, Uhlmeyer and Robert Love, Chairman, presiding.

The Board proceeded to examine affidavits and coyote scalps on file and authorized Clerk of the Board to certify to claims as follows:

NAMES.	NO. SCALPS.	AM'T
W. T. Grant	2	$10
Felix Meysan	2	10
I. H. Mulholland	8	40
Deep Spring John	10	50
Deep Spring Tom	8	40
Indian Dick	3	15
	33	$165

Said scalps were destroyed by fire as the law directs.

Claims against the County were examined, considered and allowed as follows:

Wm. Smale, material and labor for the branch jail at Bishop for $13 allowed on General Expense Fund in sum of $12 50

Fred H. Skinner, for attendance upon Frank Mitchell, $24 80, allowed on General Expense Fund in sum of $14.

Georgia J. Johnson for reporting criminal cases in Justice's Court, Third Township, for $22 50, allowed on General Expense Fund for said sum by the following vote: Ayes, Supervisors Freeman, Uhlmeyer, Wilson; Noes, Supervisors Fitzgerald and Love.

J. S. Gorman, postage	$ 13 50
Henry Rhine, interpreting	3 00
H. P. Cartier, repairs, Courthouse	38 60
W. A. Chalfant, printing	16 37
Independence Water Co., water	13 00
I. L. Woodin, Co. Physician	125 00
D. Stubblefield, wood	130 00
I. H. Mulholland, County printing	240 65
C. Mulholland, Justice fees	6 00

Nathan Rhine, for sundries, $10 53. Of Hospital Fund, $7; General Expense Fund, $2 53; Road District No. 5 Fund, $1.

Upon motion of Supervisor Fitzgerald, seconded by Supervisor Uhlmeyer, Board of Supervisors adjourned to meet on Friday, July 7, 1893 at the hour of 9:30 o'clock a. m.

R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

THURSDAY, July 6, 1893.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, sitting as a Board of Equalization, convened pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Chairman Robert Love and Supervisors Freeman, Fitzgerald, Uhlmeyer and Wilson.

Having duly received the County Assessment Roll for the year A. D. 1893 from the Assessor the Board proceeded to examine the same.

At 5:30 p. m., on motion of Supervisor Fitzgerald, seconded by Supervisor Wilson, the Board adjourned to meet July 7, 1893, at the hour of 2 o'clock p. m.

R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

SHE TURNED THE TABLES.

How a Little Homely Knowledge Saved a Young Lady Much Discomfort.

A young lady through her knowledge of housewifery rather turned the tables upon a would be jester one day and let that individual, who was of the male persuasion, into a little secret of considerable importance to those who have occasion to work in the kitchen as amateurs.

The two were members of a party visiting an Adirondack camp in the Saranac lake region. Every one was well acquainted, and the days passed merrily away until a heavy rainstorm drove the ladies and the less enthusiastic fishermen indoors and compelled them to seek other forms of amusement. The rain continued to fall almost without intermission for several days, and as a means to relieve the monotony the gentleman already referred to proposed that the various members of the party try their hand at cooking the next meal.

Permission was obtained from the host, the members of the party laughingly agreed to the proposition, and the guide, whose duty it was to act as cook, was for the time sent about other business. The gentleman acted as chef, and with a knowledge obtained from serving on the house committee of a prominent New York club proceeded to assign various work to his aids and appointed the young lady first vegetable cook for the express purpose of making her peel onions, the odor of which she loathed.

When the party adjourned to the kitchen to begin preparations, a large supply of strong odored red onions was brought to the lady, and she was requested to remove the outer cuticle. The acting chef and the others who had been let into the secret made merry over the supposed discomfiture of the first vegetable cook, but the latter smiled sweetly and uttered no protest.

"Bring me a deep pan," she said to her helper, and when this was produced she filled it to the brim with water. Then she tucked up her sleeves to the elbow, showing just the prettiest pair of arms in the world, and removing her rings set to work peeling the onions under water with a deftness that showed how familiar she was with the work and depriving it of all its offensiveness.

It was a revelation to the man, who had looked either for a vigorous protest, or had expected to see the eyes of the vegetable cook water from the effects of the onion juice. The amateur dinner was in every way a success, but none of the cooks achieved a greater triumph than the one whose practical experience showed to the others the common sense method of peeling onions.—New York Herald.

A Life Work.

Mr. Sutherland got hold of a prodigious Clarendon and Burnet and made it the richest and most extensive pictorial history in existence or ever likely to be in existence. He found nearly 19,000 prints and drawings for it and no less than 731 portraits of Charles I, 518 of Charles II, 352 of Cromwell, 273 of James II and 420 of William III. If, remarks Mr. Percy Fitzgerald, we only think how few are the portraits of Charles I, and these mostly copies after Vandyke, we shall have an idea of the labor and exploration necessary to gather up the 731. Think also of the pains and cost in cleaning, "laying down," "insetting," and "inlaying" these portraits, the binding, arranging, etc., and we shall not be surprised to learn that this folly occupied the fanatical Sutherland such a lengthy portion of his life.

When finished, it filled 67 huge volumes and had cost £12,000! We may conceive all the visitings of print shops, the turning over boxes of prints, the groveling among winds and lanes, the correspondence and the endless paying of money! To give a finish to his labors a catalogue was prepared of all the engravings. This filled two great quartos. At Sutherland's death the work was carried on by his widow, who is reported to have given as much as £80 for a single plate!—Temple Bar.

Peculiarities About Tramps.

"A fact about your professional vagrant or tramp is that they never want to go back to the place from where they were sent," says a penitentiary superintendent. "For instance, if one is sent in from along the Susquehanna road, on his discharge he usually requests to be sent north, east or south, or any direction that will take him away from that in which he was apprehended.

"Only the other day a tramp sent from Otsego begged to be sent to Hudson. He begged so hard that I gave him a ticket to Hudson. The next day he was back again. 'They pulled me as soon as I stepped from the train,' he said. County officers, you see, are always on the lookout for tramps because of the mileage received for bringing them here. Work? No, they wouldn't show any inclination or desire for work if they had to lay in the penitentiary for months. But we compel them to earn their keep, very much to their disgust. Usually I set them to work cane seating chairs."—Albany Journal.

Mrs. Mossman Was Petrified.

In June, 1884, Mrs. Abigail Mossman was interred at the Hazelwood cemetery in Poweshiek county, Ia. Not long since relatives determined to remove the remains to another cemetery. The workmen engaged to perform the job found the coffin filled to overflowing with red colored mineral water. This was drained off, whereupon it was found that the corpse, with the exception of the fingers and toes, was perfectly petrified. The hair was perfectly natural, as was also a bouquet of roses that lay on her breast. After a thorough examination by relatives and friends the coffin was again closed and covered in.—St. Louis Republic.

A Kind Mistress.

It was raining in torrents.

"Julie!" said madam to her maid, "be quick and run across to the milliners and tell her not to forget my hat."

"Can I take Azor out with me, madam?"

"Are you mad, Julie? Can't you see for yourself that the weather is not fit to turn a dog out of doors?"—Evenement.

KIT CARSON IN ITS PRIME.

It Had Seven Thousand Hustling Citizens Where Now but a Hundred Remain.

"In 1870 you might have traveled 1,000 miles and not have found as lively a town as Kit Carson, Colo.," said Station Agent Billy Dunaway the other day as the Kansas Pacific train lingered before the station house at the now quiet little town on Big Sandy creek in eastern Colorado. "This was then the terminus of the Denver line of the Union Pacific, and you can just bet the camp was a hummer. There were over 7,000 people here, and a gayer crowd you never saw. The population was made up of railroad men, cowboys, mule skinners, gamblers and a preacher.

"The latter was sometimes lonely, but the 6,999 other people in camp were fairly sociable and managed to have a moderately good time, and everything ran wide open, and in the palmiest days of the camp there were 47 saloons, 7 dance halls, 2 theaters and all the other things necessary to the lubrication of existence in the gay and bounding west. For two years things were redhot, with fights, shooting matches and lynching bees nearly every night.

"Some of the old time engineers who were jerking steam over the line then say a regular daily news item in railway circles for awhile was to the effect that a man or two had been hung the night before to the bridge on the Sandy. The lynching of a man for murder was an unusual event, but dire vengeance was wreaked on the petty burglar, horse thief or other unprincipled offender who did not have the nerve to shoot, but sneaked around after dark to do his nefarious work. When dealing faro, the gamblers preserved peace and quietude in the game by wearing two 6-shooters silently swinging from their belts, and when in a game of 'stud' the pack was always secured from being blown away by one of these same free moral agents. Some stiff games were played in those days, and when a cowboy came in off the roundup, or when the freighters came in from a long trip off to Mexico and Arizona, or pay day on the line came along, money was stacked a foot high on the cloth.

"After the camp had been running in this way for two years the road was put on through to Denver, and the crowd followed. Where once you could see over 7,000 people there are now a hundred or so, and all that remains of the former glory of this namesake of old Kit Carson is the nameless barnyard you see up there on the hill, a lot of broken beer bottles and desertion."—Denver News.

A Disturber at a Rehearsal.

Julius Eichberg writes: "At the occasion of a musical festival in Dusseldorf I witnessed a scene that produced general and not unjustifiable excitement among those present. It was at the last rehearsal of Beethoven's ninth or choral symphony, and the great hall was filled with people from near and far anxious to hear the then but little known work. While the orchestra played the first movement we noticed a dark bearded, spectacled, middle aged man in the audience, who had a score before him and was gesticulating wildly, being evidently very much dissatisfied with the performance. Suddenly he arose, advanced toward the orchestra and began to shout:

"'This is all wrong. It was not thus that my immortal friend, Beethoven, wanted his masterpiece to be played. You ought to play it much slower, and in this way.' He began to beat time vigorously to the astonished musicians, entirely ignoring Mendelssohn, who conducted the symphony. At this moment several people forcibly ejected the disturber from the hall. The man was the well known Professor Anton Schindler, Beethoven's constant friend during the last years of his life and the author of a 'Biography of the Master.'"—Boston Journal.

Leopard Shooting.

Mr. Simson writes thus: "I consider that exposure to a leopard on foot, with due precaution and a proper weapon, is only a fair sporting risk, and accidents must happen occasionally." Mr. Simson is certainly entitled to speak. He shot many leopards on foot; he was twice badly wounded by a leopard, but on one of these occasions a third leopard unexpectedly attacked him from behind, when he had already killed two others in the same patch of grass jungle.

Mr. Simson mentions that an old French gentleman whom he knew used to go about hunting for leopards with a nondescript sort of dog, half pariah and half spaniel. "When the dog smelled a leopard, he would cock his ears and point out from a respectful distance where the leopard lay. The Frenchman kept on peeping and peering about, wholly regardless of anything the leopard might do in the way of attack, till he could sight the animal. He then killed him almost to a certainty with a single shot."—Chambers' Journal.

Helping on a Good Cause.

Philanthropist—I am exerting myself in behalf of a worthy object, and my first thought was to come to you for assistance.

Scribe (the writer)—Well, sir, I am willing to assist by tongue or pen.

Philanthropist—We would be pleased to have you use your pen in our aid.

Scribe (flattered)—My services are at your command.

Philanthropist—Thank you, sir. Now please get your pen and affix your signature to this subscription paper, and you can pay the 5 guineas at your convenience.

Scribe (in changed tone)—Oh!—London Tit-Bits.

Wearing the Hair In Japan.

Japanese men and women in their own country are distinguished chiefly by their hair. The men shave the crown of the head, while the women not only allow all their own hair to grow, but frequently add to it by purchase. The hair is usually twisted and coiled in the most fantastic way. The higher a woman's rank the more elaborate is her coiffure.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS AND LEVI STRAUSS & Co's SPRING BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Sheriff's Sale Under Foreclosure.

GILBERT CLEMENTS vs. W. O. MERONEY AND FRANK HARROLD. } Order of Sale and Decree of Foreclosure and Sale.

UNDER AND BY VIRTUE OF AN ORDER of sale and decree of foreclosure and sale, issued out of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, of the State of California, on the 22nd day of June, A. D. 1893, in the above entitled action, wherein Gilbert Clements, the above named plaintiff, obtained a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale against W. O. Meroney, defendant, on the 22nd day of June, A. D. 1893, for the sum of $286 61, lawful money of the United States, besides interest and costs, which said decree was on the 22nd day of June, A. D. 1893, recorded in judgment book 1 of said Court, at page 401, I am commanded to sell all those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and bounded and described as follows:

The north-east quarter of the north-west quarter of Section thirty two, and the east half of the south-west quarter and the north-west quarter of the south-east quarter of Section twenty-nine, all in Township Six South of Range thirty-two East, Mount Diablo Meridian, containing one hundred and sixty acres.

Also that other lot of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo, and particularly described as follows, to-wit: Lots Nos. five (5) and eight (8) in block Q as appears by the plat of the Academy Addition to the Town of Bishop Creek (now Bishop), now on file in the Office of the County Recorder of the County of Inyo, State of California, to which for further description, reference is hereby made, being the lots of land on which is erected the store and Hall of the said defendant Meroney.

Together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, or in any wise appertaining.

Public notice is hereby given that on Monday, the 17th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 12 o'clock noon of that day, in front of the Court House door of the County of Inyo, I will, in obedience to said order of sale and decree of foreclosure and sale, sell the above described property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy said judgment, with interest and costs, etc., to the highest and best bidder for lawful money of the United States.

Dated the 22nd day of June, 1893.

J. S. GORMAN, Sheriff.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff. [23-6.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

W. J. HOSKINS, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM GREEN and B. F. LEWIS, Defendants.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in the office of the Clerk of said Inyo county.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Green and B. F. Lewis, Defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment of this Court for the foreclosure of a certain mortgage described in said complaint, and executed by the said William Green, the 31st day of May, 1890, to secure the payment of a certain Promissory Note dated May 31st 1890, made by the said William Green for the sum of $700.00, bearing interest at the rate of one and one fourth per cent. per month, payable semi-annually, and if not paid when it becomes due, to be added to the principal and bear interest at like rate, as described in said complaint on the 31st day of May, 1891, which complaint alleges that no part of the principal or interest thereon has been paid; that the premises conveyed by said mortgage may be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said promissory note and interest thereon, and the payment of 15 per cent. of the amount found due the plaintiff as attorney's fees, and for costs of this action, and if the said proceeds are insufficient to pay the same, that judgment be docketed against said William Green, defendant herein, for the balance remaining due, and that the said defendants, and all persons claiming by, through or under them, or either of them, may be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, claim, lien, equity of redemption, and interest in and to said mortgaged premises, and for other and further relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Witness my hand and the Seal of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 29th day of June, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
J. D. Lewis, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Propagation License.

Notice to Breeders.

THE ATTENTION OF STOCKRAISERS and breeders in Inyo County is called to the following provisions of Ordinance No. 41, Section 12:

"Every person who keeps a Stallion, Jack or Bull and permits the same to be used for the purpose of propagation for hire, must annually obtain a license therefor from the Tax-Collector."

Parties failing to procure such Propagation License are guilty of a misdemeanor. Licenses renew due.

J. S. GORMAN, Tax Collector.
Independence, April 6, 1893.

Freight! Freight!
BISHOP & MOJAVE
Through Freight Line.
George Meads,
PROPRIETOR.
Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:
J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.
Special rates given on car-load lots

BOOTS AND SHOES
MADE AND REPAIRED.
THE BEST MATERIAL.
FIRST-CLASS WORK
Repairs done Promptly.
Prices Reasonable.
A. J. DAVIS, Independence.
30-tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
AND
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES,
District Attorney,
AND
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
NOTARY PUBLIC.
Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
AND
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo county, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Office and residence at the Johnson place, Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M.D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

DR. J. S. MCQUEEN,
DENTIST.
Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery
All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.
Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore

NOTICE.
ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.
FRANK FITZGERALD.
Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and polished.
All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURCKHARDT

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.
THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPectfully invited to call and inspect my establishment which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.
THE BAR
Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.
JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.
$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.
It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer with out cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.
Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.
For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address
ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
DEALERS IN
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.,
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.
Winter Apples..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes..... 12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches..... 10 cts
Dried Apples..... 10 cts
Other varieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.
THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines, Liquors, & Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSFIELD, opposite the Southern Hotel.
Prompt and careful treatment given and the easiest possible pain inflicted. Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough, effective work than the various sections of our Select List.
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce street, New York

P. W. FORBES. P. H. MACK.
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal. P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY, the 8th day of March, 1892, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the South-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South-east corner of the south-east quarter of North-east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98-100; thence Northeast following the meanderings of the bed of Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 3, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hallhall, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lot Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode, situate, lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Disgraciada Lode."

That certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nineteen-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the north west quarter of the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12) and the South west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South six-eighty and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence Northwesterly along a small arroyo or swale to a point twenty-four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North East quarter and the South East quarter, and the Northwest quarter and the North east quarter of the Northwest quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North one-quarter and eleven-twentieth (44 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres. Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney at Independence, Cal., or delivered to the Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, to the hour of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER,
Executor of the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased.

Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1893.

J. W. Murphy.
BLACKSMITHING
AND
General Iron Work.
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2 00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES.
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumers should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 9, 1894.
n4761f

$5000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, 708 N. 2nd street, St. Louis, Mo., a young man who began without capital or experience. Any person can do the work. Any person can do it. Any person can do it. Any person can do it

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, JULY 7 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman ..... A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman ..... P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge ..... GEO. M. GILL.
Sheriff ..... JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk ..... DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney ..... P. W. FORBES.
Assessor ..... P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer ..... W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner ..... H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed) ..... JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools ..... J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist ..... ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist ..... A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist ..... W. H. UHLMEYER
4th Supervisor Dist ..... JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist .. FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Rev. H. J. Winsor will preach on Sunday at Lone Pine 11 a. m.; Georges Creek, 2:30 p. m.; Independence 7 p. m.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

WEDNESDAY, July 5th.

Estate of John William Meyer, deceased—Filed petition for order of sale of real estate. Filed order to show cause.

Goodale vs. Hines—Filed demurrer to amended complaint.

MARRIED.

CARPENTER—MORTON.—At Independence, July 5th, by Rev. H. J. Winsor, Philip Carpenter and Miss Lillie B. Morton.

Fair directors meet to night

Board of Supervisors and Board Equalization in session this week.

Choicest steers are quoted in the San Francisco market at 6 cents.

County Clerk Hession attended the celebration at Bishop on the Fourth.

J. C. Miller was in town a couple of days this week. Also George Gillum.

The hay crop in Owen Valley this year will be the heaviest ever harvested.

Leslie L. Lane came over from Bakersfield last week and is visiting at Bishop.

D. Stubbefield has been laying in a supply of winter's wood for the county.

Charley Robinson did a land office business in snow at Independence on the Fourth.

Louis Munzinger came down from Bishop on Wednesday, returning yesterday morning.

W. A. Lamar Esq., is visiting with relatives at San Jose. He will be home next week.

Sheriff Gorman will start up the valley to-morrow to summon jurors needed in the Withrow trial.

R. S. Miner Esq. arrived from Bridgeport last Monday, and is attending to professional business

R. Way is putting the finishing touches on the county vault. He will be through this week.

Webb H. Walker was in town last Monday. Webb has met with good success as Sheep License Tax Collector.

Jake Shoemaker was down from Big Pine early in the week. He is getting ready to commence logging for the Big Pine saw mill.

Wm. McDonald is hard at work getting everything in readiness to start the Big Pine saw-mill. He says he will soon be turning out lumber.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eaton and family have arrived from Los Angeles and have taken up their residence on the ranch recently purchased from J. R. Mottet.

Typhoid fever is raging in Oakland. The city authorities are greatly alarmed and are making use of all precautionary efforts to stop the spread of the disease.

J. M. Horton has been very ill for over a month past. He received a slight hurt on one of his fingers and blood poisoning set in. He is now out of danger but is still very weak.

Under Sheriff Holland started for San Quentin last Saturday, having in charge August Siltz, sentenced to two years imprisonment for selling whiskey to an Indian.

Supervisor Fitzgerald returned from San Francisco last week, having visited Los Angeles on the way. Mrs. Fitzgerald remained at Los Angeles visiting with her sisters.

J. J. Gunn met with good success in his recent shipment of ore to Portland. The various lots of ore assayed higher than was expected and Mr. Gunn was fortunate enough to conclude the transaction before the tremendous drop in silver occurred.

Queen Victoria has announced that she will give about $500 of her hard earned savings to the widows of the seamen who went down with the Victoria. In their most abusive moments the enemies of the queen never accused her of recklessness in the expenditure of her private income.

John Sontagg died at Fresno about half past one o'clock Monday afternoon. But little surprise was created as it was known for several days that the bandit could not possibly live. His brother George, who headed the outbreak at Folsom lies in a critical condition from the effect of his wounds.

The Fourth in Owens Valley.

At Bishop the Fourth was celebrated with all the old-time enthusiasm. The day was ushered in with military salutes fired at day break. The town had been handsomely decorated the night before and the first beams of the rising sun reflected from "Old Glory" as the emblem of Freedom gently undulated in the morning breeze. A base ball game between a nine from Laws and one from Big Pine was first on the programme and resulted in the favor of the former. Literary exercises were then rendered filling up the time pleasantly until noon. In the afternoon two races were trotted at the Driving Park. The first race The first race was won by Inyo, owned and driven by Irv H. Mulholland. Ben Benton, owned and driven by R. W. Scott, was second by a length each heat, Antare and Alvah being drawn. best time 3:01½. The second race was contested for by a two-year-old colt by Antare, owned and driven by E. Sterling and a two-year-old by Fallston owned and driven by R. W. Scott. The race was won easily by the Antare colt. Games and amusements for the children were enjoyed in town. A grand ball was given in the evening which was largely attended.

At Big Pine there was no regular attempt made at a celebration. In the evening, however, a ball was given at the Big Pine Hotel. That place now can boast of a fine ballroom and excellent music, and the people of that vicinity showed their appreciation of the fact by attending the affair in a goodly number and keeping the ball going until morning.

At Independence ice-cream and fire-crackers entertained the little folks during the day, and in the evening a very pleasant social dance was given at the Agricultural Pavilion. It was well attended and all who were present report having enjoyed themselves immensely.

At Lone Pine were various amusements for the little folks and Miss M. Meysan read the Declaration of Independence in a spirited and stirring manner. The usual patriotic songs were sung, and Rev. H. J. Winsor delivered an address. A basket pic-nic lunch was spread to which everybody was made cordially welcome. A grand ball followed in the evening.

Meteorological Summary.

Following is the report of the Weather Bureau Station at Keeler for the month of June, 1893.

Mean barometer	29.770
Highest barometer	29.950
Lowest barometer	29.548
Mean temperature	76.0
Highest temperature, 31st	94.0
Lowest temperature, 13th	51.0
Greatest daily range temperature, 33.8 th.
Least daily range temperature, 13th, 12th.
Prevailing direction of wind, S. W.
Total movement of wind, 5139 miles.
Extreme velocity of wind, direction and date, 41 miles S. W. on 22d.
Total precipitation, 0.0 inches.
Number of days on which .01 inch or more of precipitation fell, 0.
Number of clear days	19
Partly cloudy days	1
Cloudy days	0

H. E. WILKINSON, Observer,
Weather Bureau.

J. Marshal arrived at Independence on Wednesday. Mr. Marshal returned from Darwin to Keeler for a long time and about a year and a half ago went to Redlands. He says times are very dull in Southern California.

The Assessment Roll of taxable property in Inyo County for the year 1893 shows an increase of $99,259 over last year. The State and County tax rate for the present year will be about $1.80 per $100, which is an exceedingly creditable showing.

In accordance with a proclamation issued by the President Congress will meet in special session on the 7th of August. It is expected that the entire time of Congress will be given to financial legislation.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE WHY ORDER OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE SHOULD NOT BE MADE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of the estate of John William Meyer, deceased.

John W. Lacey, the Administrator of the Estate of John William Meyer, deceased, having filed his petition herein, duly verified, praying for an order of sale of all the real estate of said deceased, for the purposes therein set forth,—

It is therefore ordered by the Judge of said Court that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased appear before the said Superior Court on Saturday, the 5th day of August, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at the Court-Room of said Superior Court, at the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo, State of California, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Administrator to sell all of the real estate of said deceased.

And that a copy of this order be published at least once a week for four consecutive weeks in the Inyo Independent, a newspaper printed and published in said Inyo county.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated July 5th 1893.
P. H. Mack, Attorney for the Administrator.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday ..... January 28th
" ..... February 25th
" ..... March 25th
" ..... April 29th
" ..... May 27th
" ..... June 24th
" ..... July 22d
" ..... August 26th
" ..... September 23d
" ..... October 21st
" ..... November 16th
" ..... December 18th

THOS. C. ROLAND, W. M.
B. RHINE, Sec.

WE WANT YOU

To act as our agent. We furnish an expensive outfit and all you need free. It costs nothing to try the business. We will treat you well, and help you to earn ten times ordinary wages. Both sexes of all ages can live at home and work in spare time, or all the time. Any one any where can earn a great deal of money. Many have made Two Hundred Dollars a Month. No class of people in the world are making so much money without capital as those at work for us. Business pleasant, strictly honorable, and pays better than any other offered to agents. You have a clear field, with no competition. We equip you with everything, and supply printed directions for beginners which, if obeyed faithfully, will bring more money than will any other business. Improve your prospects! Why not? You can do so easily and surely at work for us. Reasonable industry only necessary for absolute success. Pamphlet circular giving every particular is sent free to all. Delay not in sending for it.

GEORGE STINSON & CO.,
Box No 488, Portland, Me.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNdersigned, Administrator of the estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of P. W. Forbes, in the Court House, at the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the said County of Inyo, State of California.

EDWARD JOHN REYNOLDS,
Administrator of the estate of Fredrick J. Reynolds, deceased.

Dated at Independence, Cal. June 13th, 1893.
P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Administrator.
jn16 5t

ANTARE.

1st premium Trotting Stallion, 1891-2. Bred by S. L. Akers, Newman, Cal. Foaled April 6, 1887. Stands 15¾ hands high and weighs 1250 pounds. Color, mahogany bay with black points; no white. By ANTEROS, 6020.

1st dam, Sallie W., by Iowa Chief, 525.
2d dam by Tornado, 502.

ANTEROS, 6020.

By Electioneer, 125 the greatest sire of trotters living or dead; 125 of his get having records from 2:8¼ to 2:30. Among this number are Palo Alto, 2:08¾; Sunol, 2:08¼; Arion, 2:10¼ at 2 years; Nutline, 2:13½ and Bell Bird, 2:26 as yearlings.

1st dam of Anteros, the great Columbine, dam of Antero 2:18¾
Adelaide, 2:19½
Aldomia
Conrad
Coral, 2:18¾
Speedwell

Anteros is the sire of—
Boo Chief c. 4 years, 2:21
Nellie c. 4 years, 2:25
Anteros, 4 years, 2:25
Major Ross, 2 years 2:30
Wilkinos, 2 year, 2:34¾
Entiruce, 3 years, 2:33¼
Montgomery, 3 years, 2:27¼
Antero, 3 years, 2:38¼
Bessie B 3 years, 2:27
Anteoram, 3 years, 2:37
Antare, 4 years, 2:37

Antare is a "horse attached to a pedigree," possessing that quality so highly prized among horsemen, INDIVIDUAL MERIT, having the power to transmit both his color and form to his progeny. His record was made after trotting four well contested heats the day previous and is the fastest time ever made by any stallion ever owned in Inyo county or any track in the 18th District.

ANTARE was awarded the first premium over all competitors at the District Fairs of 1891-2. At the fair of 1893 we propose to exhibit an "Antare Family," of twenty five of his colts, and we challenge the owner of any stallion in the 18th District to exhibit one or more colts two years old or under that can compare with the colts sired by this horse.

TERMS FOR THE SEASON, $25 00,
Payable on or before August 1, 1893.

Mares from a distance pastured free of charge but no risks taken.

S. P. SMITH, Manager.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

THOMAS C. ROLAND, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM CRAPO, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Crapo, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the Complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment upon contract in the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36-100 Dollars [$337 36] on a balance of account for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by the Plaintiff to you in the County of Inyo, State of California, at your special instance and request; also for costs of suit, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36-100 Dollars, together with costs of suit.

Witness my hand and the Seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 8th day of May, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] DENNIS J. HESSION, Clerk.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff.

The Newest Style

OF

Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies' Wears etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, DRESDEY WARE.

INDEPENDENCE

SHAVING PARLOR.

J. TUCKER, Prop'r.

HAIR CUTTING
IN ANY STYLE.
SHAMPOOING
AND BATHS.

☞ Adjoining Irwin's Old Corner Saloon. ☜

HALE BROS. & CO.

If you have never tried for the benefits others derive from our prices, prompt and careful service given through the

MAIL ORDER DEPARTMENT.

Send us a trial order 'twill be conclusive evidence that our business methods are right and large and growing patronage merited.

ITEMS OF EXCEPTIONAL VALUE.

MEN'S DRAB HATS with wire brim ventilated all around sweatband makes a desirable head covering for outdoors summer wear; price 50 cents Also a line of Cork hats at same price.

MEN'S SUMMER SUITS in some 20 different patterns of either light or dark coloring, comes in sack or frock styles at the popular price of $10.

CHILDREN'S SUITS in all the new designs and colorings of light or dark. Ages 4 to 14 years; price $3.50 $4.00 and $5.00.

HALE'S $2 50 Shoes for men have proved a great success and are without doubt the best value of a medium priced dress shoe to be had anywhere, any style last, tip toe or plain in either hook and lace or gaiter style; price $2.50.

GENTS' domestic balbriggan underwear, a good imitation of the imported, of plain unbleached color, an extra strong value at 50 cts. per garment.

FOR HOUSE KEEPERS.

AN extra value in a heavy unbleached double damask table linen 58 in. wide, all linen and will wash white; price 50 cents per yard.

AN extra value in already bleached double damask table linen 58 in. wide, pretty scroll patterns, pure linen, and not weighed with any inferior substance; price 50 cts. per yd.

A bargain in Ladies medium weight cotton hose; absolutely fast black, perfect in shape and finish, comes in boxes of ½ doz., for $1.00 per box, which we do not break.

HALE'S 10 cent boxes of note paper contain a quire of fine satin finish and 24 envelopes.

HALE BROS. & CO.

825, 827, 829, 831, 833, 835 K St., and 1026 Ninth street.

Sacramento, Calif.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS. WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neighboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finger Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the best quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

☞ All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packages to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,
O-m RENO, NEVADA.

DO YOU SUFFER?

Rheumatism, Fits [epilepsy] Scrofula, Liquor, Morphine or Tobacco Habit, quickly and permanently cured by the wonderful BICHLORIDE of GOLD treatment.

RHEUMATISM (The uric acid entirely expelled from the blood) cured in from five to thirty days.

FITS (Epilepsy) Permanently cured, on return of the disease from two to four weeks treatment

SCROFULA And the worst cases of inherited blood taint quickly and permanently cured

DRUNKENESS Opium, Morphine or Tobacco habit cured 10 to 20 days.

No restriction or publicity. Patients cured at their own homes. 40,000 sufferers cured in 8 years.

Full particulars without charge, address

DR. WOOD BICHLORIDE OF GOLD INSTITUTE,
215 Powell St., San Francisco Cal

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.

Bee Keeper.

Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STOCKTON, CAL., Dec. 19th, '92.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.

Gentlemen:—Having read one of your Treatise on the Horse and seeing the Spavin Cure advertised, I thought I would try it. I had one horse with a prominent Spavin of 12 months standing. I removed it with ½ bottle. I tied upon one fore foot on same side the spavin was and compelling the horse to rest on lame leg while I took a surcingle and drew it across the hock or spavin until the hock or spavin got very warm with the friction, then putting on Spavin Cure. I had a mare that had a running from her nose for 12 or 14 months. I rubbed the Spavin Cure from her eyes down to nostrils, then from back of jaw bone down under the throat for a week. I have not seen any discharge for two months.

Yours truly, HUGH McDADE.

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL

MERCHANDISE

Agent for

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:

Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE - CAL.

New House,
New Furniture,
Low Rates

☞ Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

Thos Williams,
Proprietor.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

☞ Customers supplied on all points ☜

☞ Of the C. & C. Railroad. ☜

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

F. W. BEDFORD ..... LESSEE.

Horseshoeing ..... $2 00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see
F. W. BEDFORD.

INDEPENDENCE

MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROEPER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef,
Mutton,
Pork,
Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every effort made to give satisfaction to patrons.
j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE,
GROCERIES
MINERS
Supplies

PROVISIONS,

&c., &c., &c.

A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

BELL'S Flouring Mills

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

Independence, Cal A. N. BELL.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, November 16,

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House	11:30 p. m.	5.50 p. m
Dayton	12:00 p. m.	5:10 p. m
Wabuska	2:45 p. m.	2:50 p. m
Hawthorne	5 50 p. m.	11:10 a. m
Luning	7:05 p. m.	9:55 a. m
Soda Springs	8:05 p. m.	9:15 a. m
Belleville	9:15 p. m.	7:55a. m
Candelaria	Ar. 10.00 p. m	Lv. 7:20a. m
	No. 3.	No. 4.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Belleville	8 20 a. m.	5:25 p m.
Benton	11:50 a. m.	1:35 a. m.
Bishop Creek	2:00 p. m.	11:00 a. m
Alvord	2.45 p. m.	10:00 a. m
Independence	4:20 p. m.	8:30 a. m
Lone Pine	5:10 p. m.	7:40 a. m
Keeler	Ar 6:55 p. m.	Lv. 7:00 a. m

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (36 miles); Bodie (3 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri weekly stages (leavin Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stage for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak Montezuma Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

S. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - Cal

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

☞ Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known and livery stables, patron can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of

WINES,
LIQUORS,
& CIGARS

☞ The most careful attention given to the entertainment and comfort of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-12 td

Inyo Stage Company.

REGULAR LINE

—FROM—

Mojave To Keeler.

FINE COACH
FAST STOCK.

The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful

Redrock Canyon

And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.

Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m

Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.

W. K. MILLER,
Propr.

THE SAN FRANCISCO BOARD of HEALTH.

We, the members of the Board of Health of the City and County of San Francisco,

Cordially approve and recommend the Royal Baking Powder. It is absolutely pure and healthful, composed of the best ingredients, of the highest strength and character.

In our judgment it is impossible make a purer or stronger Baking Powder than the Royal.

JOS. R. DAVIDSON, M. D.
HENRY M. FISKE, M. D.
CHAS. MCQUESTEN, M. D.
T. J. LETOURNEX, M. D.
Members San Francisco Board of Health.

The Worthy Novel.

The novel that is worthy of the name, and which is calculated to render a broader service than the pecuniary compensation of its author, is the one which takes the problems of life as they present themselves to us all, and by the example of the characters portrayed teaches us the way to their proper solution; that presents us with types of manly and womanly character that may inspire the reader to emulation of their excellences, and that is withal a natural, helpful, concrete story of a life of lives. Such a novel is worth all the literary freaks that ever have been or ever will be produced.—Donahoe's Magazine.

Experience in coin storage shows that different articles of food require different degrees of temperature for their preservation, varying from 33 degs. Fahrenheit for eggs to from 15 degs. to 26 degs. for poultry and various kinds of game.

The marriage license clerk in Washington reports that seldom is he asked to issue a license on Friday. He attributes this to a very generally respected superstition as to ill luck that attends any enterprise begun on Friday.

They all Testify

To the Efficacy of the World-Renowned Swift's Specific.

The old time simple remedy from the Georgia swamps and fields has gone forth to the antipodes, astonishing the skeptical and confounding the theories of those who depend solely on the physician's skill. There is no blood taint which it does not immediately eradicate. Poisons outwardly absorbed or the result of vile diseases from within all yield to this potent but simple remedy. It is an unequaled tonic, builds up the old and feeble, cures all diseases arising from impure blood or weakened vitality. Send for a treatise. Examine the proof.

Books on "Blood and Skin Diseases" mailed free.
Druggists Sell It.
SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.,
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

In the Early Days of cod-liver oil its use was limited to casing those far advanced in consumption. Science soon discovered in it the prevention and cure of consumption.

Scott's Emulsion

of cod-liver oil with Hypophosphites of lime and soda has rendered the oil more effective, easy of digestion and pleasant to the taste.

Prepared by Scott & Bowne, N. Y. All druggists.

"German Syrup"

I must say a word as to the efficacy of German Syrup. I have used it in my family for Bronchitis, the result of Colds, with most excellent success. I have taken it myself for Throat Troubles, and have derived good results therefrom. I therefore recommend it to my neighbors as an excellent remedy in such cases. James T. Durette, Earlysville, Va. Beware of dealers who offer you "something just as good." Always insist on having Boschee's German Syrup.

DR. GUNN'S ONION SYRUP
FOR COUGHS, COLDS AND CROUP.

GRANDMOTHER'S ADVICE.

In raising a family of nine children, my only remedy for Coughs, Colds and Croup was onion syrup. It is just as effective to-day as it was forty years ago. Now my grandchildren take Dr. Gunn's Onion Syrup which is already prepared and more pleasant to the taste. Sold everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents. Take no substitute for it. There's nothing so good.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

Consumptives and people who have weak lungs or Asthma, should use Piso's Cure for Consumption. It has cured thousands. It has not injured one. It is not bad to take. It is the best cough syrup. Sold everywhere. 25c.

Ancient Cures.

The incantations of Apuleis are sense and soberness compared with those of his Christian successor, Marcelius (A. D. 480). "If a man's nose bleeds whisper in his ear on the same side, 'socsocam skyma' thrice nine times, and you may still go on saying it." Toothache, if it occurs on a Tuesday or Thursday and if the moon is waning, may be cured by repeating seven times "argidum margidum stargidum." Even his prayers compare unfavorably with those of Apuleis: "In ophthalmia look out for the first swallow, then run silently to the nearest spring, wash your eyes and pray God that you may be free from it for that year, and that all the pain may pass into the swallow."

The whole book is full of similar absurdities, which he defends by the invariable empiric argument that patients have got well after practicing them.

We must not, however, suppose that this superstition was in any way favored by Christianity. It was indeed a Christian bishop who introduced the disastrous doctrine that the signs of the zodiac preside over the various organs of the human body, but the church disapproved both of the science and the theology of Priscillian, and he was executed as a magician and heretic A. D. 385. —London Hospital.

Farragut's Battles.

Many circumstances combine to make Farragut's engagements noteworthy. All three were battles of ships against forts and under the most embarrassing conditions of narrow channel and adverse current, heightened at length by the first effective employment of torpedoes in war. They marked the termination of the era of wooden walls, cast iron guns and smooth bores. The little ironclads did not have the entire approval of the admiral. It was hardly to be expected that he should have respected such nondescripts as the monitors very highly, and he fought his battles from the old standpoint of strong offense rather than of safe defense.

He was the last of the old school commanders to fight an old style battle, and a long line of gallant captains are worthily closed in him. No prejudices marked his action. He took his modern ships past the batteries of New Orleans and Port Hudson because he had settled in his own mind that under existing old conditions ships had a good chance against forts, but he waited months before attacking Mobile in order to let the ironclads arrive.—Army and Navy Journal.

Kola Nut as a Beverage.

Major J. W. M. Cotton presided over a meeting of the Royal Botanic society, at which preparations of the kola nut were submitted as a beverage possessing in a marked degree the qualities not only of cocoa and chocolate, but also of tea and coffee. Attention was called to the little use made in the economic world of the number of plants produced in the world possessing many useful properties which were passed over in neglect.

In the last fifty years enormous strides have been made in the use of steam, electricity and machinery generally for the service of man, but little attention has been given by commerce to the utilization of new vegetable foods, beverages, fibers and timbers. In half a century only one or two new fibers—not the best—cocoanut and esparto grass, have been brought into extensive use.—London Telegraph.

Better Than Politics.

Friend—What are you working at now?

Inventor—Greatest thing of the age—a dollar in the slot voting and weighing machine. It collects the poll tax, counts the votes and so beautifully discriminates that there'll be no more trouble, no more politics, no more speeches, no more brass bands and, best of all, no more boodlers.

"My stars! What's the idea?"

"Simple as A B C. The machine only counts the votes of those under a certain weight. Quick as the party in power begins to get fat on the spoils of office their votes are thrown out, and the half starved minority walks in, and when the new party gets fat it goes out, and so on."—New York Weekly.

The importance of microbes to the growth of plants has been practically demonstrated by M. Laurent, of France, who obtained only one-fourth as much buckwheat from sterilized mold as he did from soil swarming with bacteria.

THE HIDDEN WILL.

AMANDA M. DOUGLAS IN THE BOSTON TRUE FLAG.

Dora knew it would not do to needlessly disturb her mother and Jane. They were comfortably situated; the quiet and retirement satisfied Mrs. Bertrand completely, and her health had improved visibly since her coming to Chorley Cliffs. It would be unfortunate to leave it just now, and impossible to stay unless the mystery was solved, or shared with some one. Jane would make a poor confidant; indeed, no persuasions could induce her to enter the tower, so she would be of no assistance in case of a search. Oh, if Olive were only here! And then Dora thought her wisest plan would be to go down stairs and lock the tower door, leaving the old place alone with its secret. So she rose and went slowly toward the door, and then gathering courage, peeped in the closet, which was partially opened. No pallid ghost or burly form of midnight burglar met her view; only the bright, cheerful face of Vincent Chorley, that seemed ready to banter her out of her fears. For many moments she stood irresolute, then made a hasty examination of the place. It was not possible for any one to be concealed there. What if she were mistaken, after all? Perhaps Olive might have taken the window out, and the noise in the night might have proceeded from some other cause. She went cautiously around the study—it was quite reassuring to find nothing unusual there.

Then she entered the passage, and considered whether she should go down or up. It would be an advantage to satisfy herself thoroughly; then she would not be in momentary fear of causing her mother some sudden alarm. Without any positive mental decision, she began to mount the steps slowly, and on reaching the top drew a long breath of satisfaction. The morning sun poured through the eastern window in golden floods—the whole place was full of filmy radiance.

How Dora Bertrand first became aware she was not the only inmate of the place, I can hardly tell. It was a vague impression at first, something shadowy and almost imperceptible, then it grew into a fear, and next a reality. Spellbound by terror, her own respiration seemed almost to stop, while every instant the other's breathing became more regular and distinct. The intruder was certainly asleep. There was but one place shielded from her observation—the quaint carved wooden settle, whose high back was towards her. It seemed hours before she could command sufficient strength to take another step, so slowly passed these dull moments of terror. At length the point was reached, and she saw—something real and physical, but not the generally received idea of a housebreaker.

A young man of six or eight and twenty, in a careless but graceful position, one arm under his head for a pillow, the other drooping over the edge of the settle, and displaying a firm white hand that would not have shamed a lady. His hair and beard were of a sunny brown, the upper part of his broad forehead clear and fair as a girl's, but the rest of his face many shades darker, the fervent color of the sun's tropical touch. It was a handsome, manly countenance, and losing her fear, she began to consider where she had seen it before.

A pleasant, familiar face, one on which she could place the smile, and remember precisely how the eyes would look when the drooping lids were raised. Where could she have seen it? She had no fear of it now, and longed impatiently for him to awake. He seemed in no hurry, though; but presently the sun rays began to steal over his face, and then he stretched, yawned and began slowly to open his eyes. They did not rest on Dora Bertrand for some moments, however, and then he sat upright suddenly, as if he had received an electric shock, his face growing perceptibly paler every instant. She stood quite still, unable to speak or fly.

"Are you Olive Harton?" he asked, at length, in a constrained tone.

"No." She remembered, then, how she had come to know the face so well and added, "But you are Allingham Chorley."

"I cannot deny it," he said, with a haughty gesture, "and I may be confessing to friend—or foe."

There was a silence of some seconds; then he began:

"How did you come here this morning?"

"I live in the house;" and Dora longed to add something more assuring, yet scarcely knew what to say.

"Indeed!" he said, in a surprised tone. "I thought the house was empty. I did not know Mr. Harton would dare to let it;" and there was a perceptible sneer on his lip and in his voice.

"We came here in May," Dora added.

"I was here in March and heard then it had never been tenanted. Mr. Harton is home, of course?"

"No, the family are all away and will not return in several days."

"I must beg you to pardon me," he said, rising, "for thus entering your abode. If I had been aware of your residing here or of Mr. Harton's absence, I should not have chosen this course. There are reasons why I do not care to have my presence here known; yet, believe me, I would not on any account have disturbed or alarmed you. May I trust that I have not given you too severe a fright?"

Dora could not but smile at thus finding herself on familiar terms with a person who a short half hour ago was the object of her deepest solicitude and fear. As if interpreting the smile, he held out his hand frankly, and said, in deep, honest tones that carried faith with them:

"Let us be friends. I need a friend here sadly, for I am an unwilling alien in the house of my fathers. I will prove to you some day that I am not utterly unworthy of confidence."

Dora took the proffered hand. He seemed so little like a stranger that in a few moments she found herself relating not only the event that had disturbed her midnight quiet, but many incidents concerning the Hartons; and he in turn, when he found she knew the episode of his supposed attempt on Mr. Harton's life, related what had befallen him since. He had spent five years at the west, in a mercantile house, and two in Europe. Now the business had passed into other hands on account of the death of his employer, and finding a lull in his hitherto busy life, he had determined to come to Chorley Cliffs, and if possible make a thorough search for the lost will.

"On my return from Europe last March I came out here for a few hours, and satisfied myself a little as to matters concerning the house. I concluded my safest course would be to gain the tower unknown to any one. Its reputation of being haunted might favor me a little, I thought. I reached the next town below here in time to obtain my supper, and shortly afterward started to walk hither. The night was so beautiful that I loitered on the way, consequently I did not arrive here until the lights were out, and not dreaming of the place being inhabited, proceeded at once to gain entrance. I tried two of the doors below, and found them fastened, as I supposed I should; then I mounted the roof, and finding the woodwork of the window partially decayed, with the aid of my knife soon forced an entrance. I should have been more careful had I supposed the noise would alarm any one. And now, what is my sentence to be for thus feloniously entering your residence? Please be a little merciful."

"It was not my house," returned Dora, with a smile, "so I may be lenient. But do you really hope to find the will?"

"My father died in the positive belief there was a will hidden away somewhere. His brother's wife found hers in a closet in the room below, a place he had searched through vainly. Indeed, he felt well convinced she must first have put it there. Mr. Harton acted very suspiciously, I think, after his wife's death. He was not at all willing for me to enter the tower. Now, if he felt really satisfied as to my grandfather's will, why should he object to any search I might like to make? My present purpose is to penetrate every conceivable nook or possible hiding place—that is, if I can gain your mother's permission to stay here awhile."

Dora remained talking until she heard Jane's voice calling her to her morning's duties. Promising to arrange for an interview between Mr. Chorley and her mother, she ran down, received a small scolding from the impatient Jane, who wondered what she could find in that old ghost tower to interest her so much. She read awhile to her mother and then assisted Jane with the dinner, finding no time for the conversation she had promised herself. However, Jane was going to spend the afternoon with a sick neighbor, and when Dora saw her walk down the garden path in all the glory of clean dress and white apron she took out her sewing and sat down beside her mother with a satisfied smile.

"Mamma," she began, after a considerable silence, "do you think it would be wrong for Mr. Chorley to come here and search the place for his grandfather's will?"

"Why, no, child," said Mrs. Bertrand. "But you know he could not do it openly, on account of his former trouble with Mr. Harton. So he would have to remain concealed, and work quietly. Should you disapprove very much of such a course?"

"It is not likely he will come, Dora. Why do you seem so interested?"

"I think he will, mamma; indeed, I have seen him."

Mrs. Bertrand gave a sudden start, glancing around almost as if she expected to see him, too.

"Where is he?" she asked. "Surely not in the village? It is well Mr. Harton is away."

"He is here in this house, or rather in the tower, and wishes to see you."

"To see me! When did he come? Are you sure it is he, Dora?"

"Quite sure; he looks so like the picture of his father. And now do not be frightened, mamma, while I tell you the whole story;" and Dora came and knelt beside her mother, while she repeated the incidents of the morning, leaving out much of the alarm she had experienced.

Mrs. Bertrand was greatly surprised, and quite undecided what course to pursue, but Dora pleaded so warmly in Mr Chorley's behalf, that she at length said:

"I think we might manage it but for Jane."

"But Jane is very trusty when one really confides in her. I think she would be proud of having a secret to keep."

So presently Dora went to summon Mr. Chorley, who succeeded in deepening the good impression the young girl had begun. He was very manly and straightforward, and when he repeated his father's dying charge Mrs. Bertrand began almost to believe in the possibility of a will being found.

They were still talking earnestly when a shadow passed the window. Dora sprang into the hall, closing the door behind her, and found an old friend, but most unwelcome guest, entering the wide doorway. She stood quite still, her face paling visibly.

"My darling Dora, I have frightened you almost to death, have I not?" said the gay, pleasant voice of Olive Harton.

"I was not expecting you—when did you return?"

"At noon, and I couldn't wait, I wanted to see you so. We returned sooner than we intended, and Clara's lover came with us. She is to be married immediately. And your mother—is she quite well?"

"Improving all the time. Excuse me a moment, Olive, dear, while I go and prepare her for a visitor. Come in the parlor."

"No, I'll sit here," and Olive took one of the chairs in the hall.

There was no mode of egress from Mrs. Bertrand's room save into the hall, and consequently Mr. Chorley was a prisoner. After a moment's consideration, Mrs. Bertrand came forth with her daughter, and all three entered the parlor opposite.

"I don't believe you are a bit glad to see me," Olive said, with an embarrassed laugh. "You did not use to make such company of me."

Both Dora and her mother tried to place their guest at ease as rapidly as possible, and Mrs. Bertrand judged this would be more readily done by leading her to talk of her journey. In a few moments Olive launched into a lively description of all she had seen, and expressed her delight in the approaching wedding: "only," she ended with, "I don't like Clara's lover, and I am afraid I never shall."

Mrs. Bertrand gave her some gentle, motherly advice, but Olive soon changed the subject by inquiring what Dora had busied herself about the last three weeks.

After this there came a little awkward lull, and Olive rose to go.

"Oh," she said, pausing in the hall, "have you seen the tower ghost yet, Dora? Come, let us take a turn in the old rookery."

TO BE CONTINUED.

CHICKEN OR DUCK.

I see the chicken in the tree
When the day has faded blue and sped,
And there she sits contentedly
Among the apples red.

I see the white duck down the hill
A-waddling till the pond is found,
And diving 'neath its bosom still,
And splashing round and round.

The duck yearns not to mount the tree
And perch upon the cradled limb,
The hen cares not to plunge in glee
Into the pond to swim.

Tho' each contented seems to me,
And more than happy with her luck,
I don't know which I'd rather be,
A chicken or a duck.

—R. K. Munkittrick.

Water Too Much for an Arizona Mob.

Right in San Francisco today lives a man who was a ringleader of a mob in Tucson that was foiled in a most peculiar way in an attempt to lynch a prisoner who was charged with murdering a prospector. Court was in session at the time and the prisoner was confined in a cell in the Tucson court house, through the main entrance of which was the only way of access to the jail from the street. An adjournment had been taken for the day, and, as it happened, the only man left at the court house was the janitor, a slow, methodical old fellow named Hand.

Rumors had been circulated for several days that an attempt would be made to lynch the prisoner referred to, but as no demonstrations had been made the sheriff had grown careless, and had removed the guard. Just about the dusk of the evening in question, the old janitor, who was enjoying a smoke on the court house steps, saw a mob approaching, and in an instant realized its meaning. Slowly removing his pipe from his mouth, he laid it carefully aside and stepped into the corridor of the building.

A section of fire hose stood near, and deliberately unreeling it, he screwed it onto the hydrant and adjusted the nozzle. He stood there in readiness, and when the leader of the mob reached the doorway he turned the water on full force. Owing to the great elevation of the reservoir the pressure is enormous, and the stream as it struck the leader staggered him. He hesitated and turned to face his companions. That settled it, and before they could recover from their surprise every man in the mob was drenched from head to foot.

The stream seemed to increase in force and volume, and one after another the would be lynchers fled. In five minutes not one of them could be seen in any direction, and when the sheriff put in an appearance old Hand had reeled up the hose and was again seated on the steps smoking away as if nothing had happened.—San Francisco Call.

Birds on the Wing.

Perhaps no birds spend more of their lives on the wing than parrots and pigeons, the latter being also among the most graceful and rapid of the inhabitants of the air.—Sports Afield.

Reticent.

Cleverton—Was Miss Griggson bored by my talk last night?

Dashaway—I couldn't get her to say. —New York Truth.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbing sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.

A Question of Priority—Bessie Prim—You mustn't eat with your fingers. Take a fork. George Prim—Fingers were made before forks. Bessie Prim—Yes; but not your fingers.

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED.

We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Porterfield & Losey, 838 Market Street, San Francisco.

A poor little fellow called Vaughn
Was playing one day on the laughan,
When a whirlwind came nigh,
Took him up to the skigh,
And none could tell where he had gaughan.

For Throat Troubles and Coughs, use "Brown's Bronchial Troches." They possess real merit.

Jagson says many a man thinks he is seeing life when he is really courting death.

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell.

NOTHING LIKE IT.

40 YEARS OF PAIN CURED. THE CASE.

N. ALBANY ST., ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 19, 1881. For over 40 years I have been a victim of rheumatism. I was persuaded to try St. Jacobs Oil. I have used two bottles, and a man more free from rheumatism never walked our streets. My limbs that were once stiff and lame are now as light and limber as in my youth.

JOS. EDSELL.

AFTER FIVE YEARS.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 5, 1887. Suffered many years—injury to hip resulting in rheumatism, muscular weakness and contracted cords. Two bottles of St. Jacobs Oil relieved me so that I now walk about and attend to daily duties at 62. I heartily endorse it.

JOS. EDSELL.

$75.00 to $250.00 can be made monthly working for B. F. JOHNSON & CO., RICHMOND, VA.

TRAINED NURSES Male or Female
For the Sick.
ADDRESS: F. E. GOODBAN, 1117 VAN NESS AVENUE, Near Post St., San Francisco, Cal.
Long Distance Telephone 2579.

PATENTS
BEST LEGAL ADVICE. BEST PATENTS OBTAINED.
DEWEY & CO.,
220 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO,
WASHINGTON, D. C., LONDON, ENG.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE
Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

S. F. N. U. No. 572. New Series No. 23

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.....

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

He bought Cordage stock at 90,
And Sugar Trust at par.
Next week he hopes to get a job
To drive a cross-town car.

COMPLETELY UPROOTED.

How many remedies there are which merely relieve without uprooting disease. The contrast with sterling medicines which such palliatives afford, not only enhances the dignity of the former, but serves to emphasize the folly of employing half-way measures when thorough ones are available. A marked instance of this is the effect, on the one hand, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in cases of chills and fever and bilious remittent, and on the other of ordinary remedies in maladies of this type. By the Bitters, malarial complaint in every stage, and of the most malignant type, are completely conquered and lose their hold upon the system. They are rarely, if ever, dislodged by the ordinary resources of medicine, although their symptoms may unquestionably be mitigated through such means. The same holds good of indigestion, biliousness, kidney complaint, rheumatism, nervousness and debility. By the Bitters they are cured when many remedies fail.

Charles Dudley Warner says the difference between "faith cure" and "mind cure" is that mind cure doesn't require any faith and the faith cure doesn't require any mind.

HEALTH IN OLD AGE.

Edward Collinson, Queens, N. Y., says:

"I commenced using BRANDRETH'S PILLS over fifty-five years ago. I first bought them in London, and have continued using them since I came to this country in 1836. I am now over seventy-five years old, hale and hearty, and attribute my wonderful health to the persistent use of BRANDRETH'S PILLS. Occasionally I have a bad cold or severe attack of rheumatism, indigestion or biliousness, but four or five doses of BRANDRETH'S PILLS always cure me. Whenever my children have been sick with scarlet fever, measles, acid stomach, disordered digestion or costiveness, a few doses of BRANDRETH'S PILLS restored their health at once."

It is odd that some of the loudest and most vulgar flannels are the most shrinking.

Pfunder's Oregon Blood Purifier is the best remedy for cleansing your system.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

LOOK AT THE SIZE of the ordinary pill. Think of all the trouble and disturbance that it causes you. Wouldn't you welcome something easier to take, and easier in its ways, if at the same time it did you more good? That is the case with Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're the smallest in size, the mildest in action, but the most thorough and far-reaching in results. They follow nature's methods, and they give help that lasts. Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Sick and Bilious Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are promptly relieved and permanently cured.

"If we can't cure your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case or of how long standing, we'll pay you $500 in cash." That is what is promised by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Doesn't it prove, better than any words could, that this is a remedy that cures Catarrh? Costs only 50 cents.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail, Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER 25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. INJECTOR
Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50 cts. Injector free.

INVALID GOODS.

Rolling Chairs
Reclining Chairs
Back Rests
Commodes.
Send for Catalogue.
W. A. SCHROCK, 21 New Montgomery St. S.F.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP
FOR CHILDREN TEETHING
For sale by all Druggists. 25 Cents a bottle.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES
ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO
DR. BO-SAN-KO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

TAKE PFUNDER'S OREGON BLOOD PURIFIER.
CURES KIDNEY & LIVER DISEASES, DYSPEPSIA, PIMPLES, BLOTCHES AND SKIN DISEASES, HEADACHE & COSTIVENESS
PURE BLOOD

BLOOD POISON A SPECIALTY. Primary, Secondary or Tertiary Syphilis permanently cured in 15 to 35 days. You can be treated at home for the same price and the same guarantees; with those who prefer to come here we will contract to cure them or refund money and pay expense of coming, railroad fare and hotel bills, if we fail to cure. If you have taken mercury, iodide potash, and still have aches and pains, Mucous Patches in mouth, Sore Throat, Pimples, Copper-Colored Spots, Ulcers on any part of the body, Hair or Eyebrows falling out, it is this Syphilitic BLOOD POISON that we guarantee to cure. We solicit the most obstinate cases and challenge the world for a case we cannot cure. This disease has always baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians. $500,000 capital behind our unconditional guarantee. Absolute proofs sent sealed on application. Address COOK REMEDY CO., 1035 to 1037 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.

YOUR WIFE CAN START IT.
HERCULES GAS OR GASOLINE ENGINE.
Palmer & Rey, S. F., Cal. and Portland, Or.

Profoundly Grateful

For Help Derived From Hood's Sarsaparilla

"I am profoundly impressed with the medical virtues of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I was threatened with cancer, and disagreeable eruptions on my back and other places. The cancer was appearing on my lip. Providentially I obtained a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and by the time it was gone, the bad symptoms had nearly all disappeared. I have used four bottles, and I believe it has Saved Me From Premature Death.

I am now almost 73 years of age, and I work like a tiger. And I know that Hood's Sarsaparilla has had much to do with my vigor and strength." REV. O. H. POWER, 2924 Hanover street, Chicago, Ill.

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla CURES

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner Pills, assist digestion, cure headache. 25c.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

HERCULES GAS OR GASOLINE ENGINE.

NO BOILER

Is needed to run the Cheapest and best Hoisting outfit in the market, the Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine. They have met with the highest approval in mines.

NO WIND

To run the wind mill when water is wanted, often causes the owner to become discouraged. Get a Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine and you can pump water at any time.

NO COAL

To haul when running the Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine; no ashes, smell or dirt. Always ready, and a boy can start it. Workmanship the best.

NO MAN

Who has water to pump, machinery to run, hoisting to do, etc., can afford to be without a Hercules Gas or Gasolene Engine. For simplicity it is the best.

NO BATTERY

Or electric spark to care for. Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day. Expense does not start until you commence to run the engine, and stops when through.

WHAT IS IT

That a Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine cannot do? It is used for wood-working machinery, bean cleaning machinery, hoisting works in mines, running machine shops, shoe factories, churns, carpet-beating machinery, ice cream freezers, electric dynamos, sewing machines, printing machinery, electric motors, paint mills, elevators, pumping water, sawing lumber, bottling soda water, sawing wood, and many other classes of work.

For further particulars address

PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY,
401-7 Sansome Street,
SAN FRANCISCO, : : : CALIFORNIA.

YOUNG MEN!
The Specific A No. 1.
Cures, without fail, all cases of Gonorrhœa and Gleet, no matter of how long standing. Prevents stricture, it being an internal remedy. Cures when everything else has failed. Sold by all Druggists.
Manufacturers: The A. Schoenhelt Medicine Co., San Jose, Cal.
Price, $3.00.

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF
Moore's Revealed Remedy.
ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude
MRS. N. V. STEELE.
SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

"A FAIR FACE MAY PROVE A FOUL BARGAIN." MARRY A PLAIN GIRL IF SHE USES
SAPOLIO

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

Independence, Cal.

FRIDAY, JULY 14, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXV. NO. 4. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JULY 14, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1185

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$4 00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.00
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

Words In the Telephone.

Long distance telephoning has become a little science on its own account and has called into existence a class of operators who are valuable by reason of the clearness and sharpness with which they can pronounce words while speaking rapidly.

It has also developod the fact that the French language is better adapted to the purposes of the telephone than the English. The ordinary business of the long distance telephone between Paris and London is carried on in the French language. It is stated that the considerable proportion of sibilant or hissing syllables in English renders it a less easy and accurate means of communication.

Certain English words are especially difficult of transmission by telephone. The word "soldier" is cited as one of these. Proper names frequently occur in the midst of an otherwise perfectly audible and intelligent conversation which the ear cannot possibly catch. These must be spelled out, involving delay.

Expert telephone operators in the press service between Paris and London have succeeded in transmitting messages in the French language at the rate of 190 words a minute. This is at a much swifter rate than ordinary speech.—Youth's Companion.

The Profit In Foam.

Some people deplore the use of foaming preparations in soda water, claiming that such additions are totally uncalled for and unwarranted, but it must nevertheless be conceded that soda foam can bring forward several valid arguments in its own favor. In the first place, it aids greatly in keeping the gas from escaping too rapidly from the tumbler. In the second place, it undoubtedly adds greatly to the dispenser's profits, for it is claimed that by adding two ounces of foaming preparation to a gallon of sirup the confectioner can draw 50 more glasses than without the foam.

Thirdly, we must remember that the appearance of any article of food or drink plays fully as important a part as its taste in increasing the appetite and stimulating the gastric secretions, and when we bear all these facts in mind we shall be inclined to look upon the snowy foam with more leniency. And, indeed, however we may look at it, there is no denying the fact that it has come to stay, and to stay probably for a considerable period of time, so we must make the best we can of the matter.—Thomas Warwick in Confectioners' Journal.

Story of a Lustrous Diamond.

One of the finest diamonds in the world was found not long since in the Brazilian sands. It came in a novel form. A small quartz rock was found, about the size and shape of an egg, lying in the sands along the bank of the Amazon in Brazil. This was carried home by a Brazilian peasant, who was attracted by its odd shape and light weight. For some time it lay in his home with a number of other geological specimens, a mere curiosity. Happening one day in handling it to drop it on a stone block, it burst open and lay in halves on the block. The hollow interior that gave the light weight to the stone was filled with blood red sand. In this sand lay the diamond, a sparkling stone of the rarest quality. The stone was later sold to a diamond merchant and left the finder exceedingly wealthy.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Where Styles In Hats Rarely Change.

Dr. Doran tells us that the Natal "fashionables" wear hats a foot high in height, made of the fat of oxen. They first gradually anoint the head with a pure grease, which, mixing with the hair, fastens the hat on during the lifetime of the wearer. The Myantses make a hat of a board 12 inches by 6. They place it on their heads, draw the hair over it and seal it with wax. They cannot lie down without keeping their necks straight, and when they comb their hair, which they do once or twice a year, they have to spend considerable time in melting the wax before they can get their hats off.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Bound to Get Even.

A man went up on the elevated who chuckled delightedly to himself and finally confided to his companion the cause of his mirth.

"You see," said he, "my wife is always giving me things she wants—house furnishings and the like—for a gift. I'm going to get even with her.

"I'm going to give her a year's subscription to three scientific magazines I have to take."

And the gentlemen chuckled in unison, while the women going up town with drawing room bric-a-brac to present to their husbands glared frigidly at the plotter.—New York World.

Scientific Calculations.

An electrical writer has calculated that the firing of a small pistol sets free about 600 foot pounds of energy, while a watch consumes about 1-54,000,000th of a horsepower, the energy of the bullet being sufficient to keep the time for two years. An Edison telephone transmitter requires about 1,000th of the energy in a watch. It would therefore be worked for 2,000 years on the energy exerted in the pistol. A lightning flash of 3,500,000 volts and 12,000 lampheres, lasting 1-21,000th of a second, would run a 160-horsepower engine for 10 seconds.—New York Telegram.

Frozen Water Not Pure.

The popular idea that water is purified by freezing has been again disproved by recent careful experiments, which show that the average amount of impurity retained by the ice is 34.3 per cent of organic matter. As organic matter is the more objectionable of the two, the case is worse than was formerly supposed.—New York Press.

Work of the Types.

The editor who at the last moment had to substitute "dead" for "ill," but who forgot the qualifying adverb, furnished his readers with the surprising news that "our esteemed fellow citizen, Simon Smith, is lying dangerously dead."—Washington News.

BEST OF TRAMPS.

Old Johnny Appleseed, Who Planted a Great Many Orchards.

A PIONEER OF THE GREAT WEST.

Cooked His Meals in a Tin Pot Hat and Went About Barefooted, Sowing Apple Seeds and Tracts.

One of the quaintest, queerest and most original characters that ever trod the trackless wastes of the western wilderness was Jonathan Chapman, known as old Johnny Appleseed. Pioneer, philosopher philanthropist and pomologist was he, taking no thought of himself and living for others only. He would not, could he prevent it, suffer the slightest harm to be done to the meanest of living creatures. In the great western solitudes he led the life of the primitive Christian, taking a thought only of the hour and letting a wise Providence look out for the future. He thought hunting morally wrong, and he would let a mosquito sit on him and suck his blood until the insect was satiated to bursting.

This odd old man was the pioneer orchard planter of the west. For over twenty years he wandered over the states of Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Missouri, planting apple seeds and selling and giving away the seedlings. Many of the great apple orchards of the west owe their origin to Johnny Appleseed. Old Johnny was born in Boston in 1775. In 1801 he appeared in the territory of Ohio with a load of apple seeds, which he planted in various places in and about Licking Creek. The first orchard originated by old Johnny was on the farm of Isaac Stodden, in what is now Licking county, O.

"I have often wondered why there was such a widespread ignorance of old Johnny Appleseed in the west," observed a friend of the writer recently. "Even among horticulturists his name is scarcely known. There certainly was no character any more fully identified with the west than he in his day."

Thus it is with all who have ever heard anything of the quaint old man. The wonder is that his name is not a byword and his history a part of the common school curriculum of the day.

The early western pioneers who knew him but slightly considered old Johnny a vagabond. From cursory observation it would appear that their views were pretty well founded. A more uncouth individual it would have been difficult to find. His garments were a bundle of rags. His shoes, when he wore any, could scarcely be held on his feet by bits of twine, so dilapidated and worn were they. His pinched and grizzled features were covered by a growth of very shaggy beard. His hair was quite long and very much faded by constant exposure to wind and weather.

But old Johnny's crowning glory was an old tin mush pot that had a long handle. This battered old culinary utensil he wore for a hat. When he was tramping through the western forests the old man always cooked his meals in the old mush pot. The cravings of hunger satisfied, he would give the pot a careful washing, put it on his head and tramp on. This was his practice for over two decades. The old pot was bright enough on its inside, but its exterior was a sight to behold, so blackened and battered was it.

With all his uncouthness of personality, however, old Johnny Appleseed had an intellect as keen as the most polished scholars of the day. His ideas were far in advance of his time. Those who have received personal impressions of the old man say that he was a philosopher whose purity of thought was as clear as a perennial spring and whose life was as simple as that of a child.

The name Johnny Appleseed was given him by the early settlers with whom he came in contact because he nearly always carried a bag full of apple seeds with him. These seeds by infinite toil he gathered from the cider presses among the Dutch farmers in Pennsylvania.

When a sufficient quantity of the seeds had been gathered old Johnny would load the fruit of his labor in a canoe and start on a voyage down the Ohio river into the great wilderness of the west. In Indiana and Illinois, wherever there was the faintest suspicion of a settlement, he went and planted his apple seeds. Sometimes he would select an open place in the forest, his judgment telling him that some day the white man would be there. The discovery of fruit bearing apple trees in the woods in these states has led many to believe that the apples are indigenous to the soil.

When Indiana and Illinois became well settled, old Johnny extended his wanderings west of the Mississippi river and planted his apple seeds on Missouri soil. In the wigwam of the Indian and the cabin of the pioneer he was known and always welcome. He must have made twenty such annual trips as the one above described. When his seedlings became large enough he gave them to the settlers or sold them for food and clothes.

One of the most peculiar characteristics of old Johnny Appleseed was his religion. He led a simple, moral and harmless life. He was the follower of the new church, a Swedenborgian, and he never lost an opportunity to expound his doctrines. He carried with him always a little bundle of tracts. These he distributed among the early settlers on the border of civilization. When he would make his return trips he would take those tracts up and leave new ones in their places. His advent in Ohio in the early days created a sensation. The simple minded people of the towns and villages knew nothing but the old faith, and their belief was strong in superstition.

Some thought he was crazy, and therefore treated him with compassion; others thought he was possessed of a devil and would not allow him to enter their houses. At this time, however, a member of the Baptist church of Richland county, O., a school teacher and the best read man in the county, invited the strange pilgrim to his home. The Ohioan said afterward that he found his guest to be one of the best posted and most brilliant minded persons that he had ever had the pleasure of meeting.

Those who knew the old man say that he was in constant fear of hurting some insect or animal. One night he built his camp fire in the woods and prepared to cook his evening meal. The mosquitoes were very thick about the fire and some of them flew into it and were scorched. This so worried old Johnny that he took his old mush pot hat, filled it with water and quenched the fire.

It is said that the strange old man to whom the west is indebted for most of its great apple orchards died in Allen county, Ind., near Fort Wayne. A person who knew him says that his death was a triumphant passing into glory. He lay on the grass with his face toward the setting sun. His countenance was wreathed with smiles of rapture, and as the last beams of the great luminary died out of the west the vital spark left its abode of flesh and passed into the great unknown.—Chicago Herald.

THE WISDOM OF ENGLISH SCHOOLS.

Some Amusing Answers from Ambitious Future Schoolmasters.

We have it on Biblical authority that when the blind lead the blind they both fall into the ditch. If Mr. Oakley's report for 1890 on training colleges for schoolmasters be taken as an index of the intellectual caliber of the gentlemen who are to instruct our youth in the mysteries of education when it is free, the state of culture in the next generation will be very "ditchy" indeed. Very wisely the inspectors do not give any clew to the particular college whose students produce the most amusing blunders.

To confuse Roger Bacon with Francis of the same ilk, commonly called Lord Bacon, but more properly Lord Verulam and Viscount St. Albans, is excusable in any one whose knowledge of English literature is crammed for an examination; but when a future schoolmaster gravely informs the education department that "Viscount Verulam was the first British martyr who suffered death under Nero," the public may be excused for asking whether the vengeance of Shakespeare has not at last fallen upon Mr. Donnelly and the Bacon society.

Probably it was the indisputable fact that blacksmiths deal with iron and that steam engines are largely made of this metal which induced a gentleman to propound the theorum that "Adam Smith was noted as the inventor of the steamship of Glasgow in the present reign," the last item of information having no doubt been thrown in for picturesque effect. Pendragon is variously described as "a god of five dragons," "a dragon of five legs," "St. George and the dragon," "huge cliffs discernible at a great distance"—anything, in fact, except the real meaning of the word.

Plainly the examination papers prove that the training colleges are not homes of poetry. Two lines given for correction were:

This England never did nor never shall Lie at the proud foot of a conqueror!

One candidate's correction was, "Foot should be feet, for a conqueror would have two feet;" another sapiently observed, "A foot cannot be proud—the word is misplaced;" a third, evidently a cynic with unpatriotic as well as unpoetic feelings hypercritically observed, "This sentence is wrong, for England has lain at the foot of a conqueror, to wit, William the Conqueror;" and, as if to enforce his cynicism, the candidate actually underlined the word "has." Then, again, several students mixed their patriotism with anatomy. Says one, "It is incorrect to say proud foot, as the foot is not affected by such a very human feeling as pride;" another puts it, practically, that "A country is too large to be at anybody's feet."

Two gentlemen, strong in physiology, put it that "foot should be feet, it being natural that a conqueror should have both feet," forgetful of the doughty Witherington, who "when his legs they were cut off, he fought upon his stumps;" and "Foot is wrong, because it is not natural to suppose anything with only one leg." And, lastly, a plain, blunt man says, "If England was to be subdued the conqueror would be proud, not his foot." After these exhibitions of English, as it is understood in our training colleges, it is not surprising to find a student gravely informing his examiners that Dr. Johnson wrote the Bible.—London Telegraph.

Odd Items in Old Churches.

There are odd items in many of our old churches of which we are quite unaware, and there are many others which, though seen, we pass by with scarcely a glance at them for want of understanding their meaning or use.

The penitential cell in the Temple church is one such. High up in the thickness of the north wall, looking down, through two narrow openings, upon the magnificent rotunda, with its mystic circle of porphyry columns and effigies of crosslegged knights lying full length on the glistening pavement, and into the long chancel, is a small stone cell, too short for a man to lie down in at full length, and too low for him to stand upright in, in which recusants were confined for penance.

A narrow stone stair winds up till it arrives at the small, strong, low door of access to it, and passes on to the triforium around the rotunda, now lined with monuments to the memory of legal worthies formerly on the walls of the church below. Word has been handed down to us that a knight, Walter le Bachelor by name, was led up this stair, thrust into this cell and with irons on his limbs left to die of starvation, when his body was dragged down the winding stair and buried in the grounds outside.

Perhaps it is this tradition that gives the stony cell an enchanting and pathetic interest that brings it back again to the minds of those who have looked into it, long after the busy traffic of the Strand, close by, has effaced the memory of the showy Elizabethan splendor of the Templars' hall and parliament room, with their carved oak and painted glass.—Gentleman's Magazine.

The Value of American Forests.

Probably you will be surprised when I tell you that the annual increase of the forests by natural growth, representing the interest which we are at liberty to draw without impairing the principal, exceeds in the United States alone ten times the value of the gold and silver output of this country, and is worth more than three times the product of all our mineral and coal mines put together. If to the value of our total mining product be added the value of all the stone quarries and petroleum resources, and this sum be increased by the estimated value of all the steamboats, sailing vessels and canalboats plying in American waters, it will still be less than the value of the annual forest product of the nation by a sum sufficient to purchase at cost of construction all the canals, buy up at par all stocks of the telegraph companies, pay their bonded debts and equip all the telephone lines.—Interview in Washington Star.

Twisted Wire Nails.

The twisted wire nail—a cross between a screw and the ordinary plain wire nail—is said to be working its way into popular favor, and is believed to represent as great an improvement upon the plain wire nail as that useful invention is over the old cut nail. The twisted wire nail not only crushes the fibers of the wood less than the two other forms of nail, but by its screw shape possesses a much greater holding power than the other forms.—New York Telegram.

After Them.

Excited Citizen—Do you know that the Graball bank has closed and not an official can be found? Do you know we suspect they have run?——

Police Officer—Y-e-s, we know all about it.

"Oh, you do, eh? Well, what have you done?"

"Oh, we're after 'em hot an heavy. We've already caught the janitor."—New York Weekly.

CURIOUS SCENES.

Going Through Antique Formalities in the English Parliament.

RECEPTION OF THE "BLACK ROD."

How the House Visits the Lords.—Ceremony of Agreeing to Bills Passed by the Peers.

It is question time in the house of commons, and ministers are laboriously reading their answers to the long list of printed questions on the paper. Presently, with no apparent reason, the outer doors of the chamber, usually wide open, are shut and locked and the doorkeeper stands guarding them, peeping through a tiny wicket in the door as if he expected an inconvenient dun.

But, no; the doors have only been locked on the same principle that the little boys on the towing path of the Cam shut the gates when they see an undergraduate approaching, in order to have the pleasure of opening them again—for a consideration. What the consideration of the doorkeeper of the house of commons may be is not known to the public, but the very instant that the stranger approaching has made three modest taps on the door, the watchful attendant flings it open and announces the visitor with a stentorian shout of "Black Rod."

Slowly does the elderly gentleman in braided uniform who bears this title and the short rod that confers it advance up the floor of the house, bowing scrupulously three times in his passage.

Arrived at the table, he summons "this honorable house" in the name of the crown immediately to attend at the house of peers to hear the royal assent given by commission to various bills. Having given his message, he slowly retires backward, bowing again with the mystic three bows.

SPEAKER AND BLACK ROD.

Without a word all the members rise in their places, and the speaker leaves his chair and joins Black Rod, who has been waiting for him at the bar of the house. Side by side in brotherly converse they walk off, followed by the sergeant-at-arms and two or three members as representatives of the house, while strong lunged policemen in the lobby bellow out: "Make way for Black Rod!" "Make way for the speaker!"

In the house of lords a quaint but not unimpressive spectacle awaits one. Through the stained glass windows of the beautiful chamber the sunlight is streaming, lighting up the richly carved woodwork and the decorated ceiling, and making the red benches below seem redder than ever. Indeed, on the floor of the house red, a crimson red, is the single note. Row upon row of crimson benches, all empty, and on the woolsack three silent peers robed in red. At the table, scarcely noticed in the blaze of red, are three silent clerks in wig and gown; that is all.

But by this time the speaker and his companions have reached the house of lords, and have placed themselves in a little pen opposite the woolsack and the throne. There they stand, patiently or impatiently, throughout the ceremony.

The first business is the reading of the commission appointing certain peers to act on behalf of her majesty. The document is very long and very legal. The number of peers named to serve on the commission seems legion.

HER MAJESTY'S PEERS.

There is the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Connaught; there is "the most reverend father in God and my well beloved and trusty councillor," the arch bishop of Canterbury; there is the arch bishop of York, and many other notables. Finally comes Lord Halsbury, "lord chancellor of that part of my kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland called Great Britain," and at these words of the reading clerk the lord chancellor, hitherto motionless on the woolsack, raises his three cornered hat in response to a deep bow from the clerk.

The next name is the Earl of Limerick, and the clerk bows again, and another three cornered hat is raised by another figure on the woolsack. The same double bow is repeated at the name of Lord Windsor, the third of the three figures.

The document then recites that these numerous commissioners, "or any three of them" shall have power to act for the queen, and notify her assent to the bills passed by parliament—"Given at Windsor by the queen herself, signed with her own hand."

This ends the first stage of the proceedings. The lord chancellor then immediately, without moving, makes a little speech to the empty benches, which he addresses as "My lords," and calls upon the "clerks at the table to pass the bills in the usual manner."

The two other clerks now step forward and stand one at each side of the table. One reads the titles of the bills, the other announces her majesty's assent. But this bald statement gives but a poor idea of the acted scene, for the bows have been altogether omitted.

PLENTY OF BOWING.

No ceremony is complete without a bow, and the passing of bills in the house of lords seems to an onlooker all bows. The junior clerk, as he takes each bill from the table, turns to the woolsack and makes a profound bow to the commissioners. Rising, he reads the title of the bill and then bows again. As soon as this bow is over the senior clerk on the other side of the table makes his bow to the woolsack.

This bow over he turns around to the representatives of the commons penned up under the clock, and in a clear voice pronounces the crucial words, "La reine le veut;" then turns round again and makes another deep bow to the red robed peers on the woolsack.

All this ceremonial is gone through with every bill, and as the titles of the bills are read it is not easy to avoid a smile at the incongruity between the nature of the bill and the antique formality by which it is passed into law. At length the high pile of bills is disposed of, and the last of the bows has been made. The three figures in red then simultaneously raise their triangular hats to the faithful commons in the pen, and these promptly retire. At the same moment the lords commissioners leave the woolsack and vanish through another door.

The scene is over, but a last touch of comedy is given to the ceremony by the speaker on his return to the house of commons. Immediately he has taken his seat he rises and says, "I have to inform the house that this house has been to the house of peers there," etc. The house, unmoved at the information, proceeds to the next business.—London Queen.

Maine Has Ice to Sell.

A Maine man, they say, has just invented an artificial ice freezer. This man is guilty of high treason to the state and should be dealt with accordingly. Maine wants no artificial ice freezers.—

MAINTAINING DISCIPLINE.

A Hasty Conductor's Attempt to Make a Passenger Respect the Boss.

Congressman Mason, of Illinois, told a story the other day of a somewhat remarkable experience he had not long ago on a one horse railway.

"There was only one passenger car," he said, "and it was full. So was the conductor. At all events I thought so from the way he addressed me concerning a valise by my side.

"'Take that thing into the baggage car!' he remarked very peremptorily.

"I looked at him somewhat surprised, and without making any response.

"'Do you hear what I say?' he demanded.

"'Yes, I do,' I answered.

"He went away to collect some tickets. When he came back about ten minutes later he looked angry.

"'I thought I told you to take that valise into the baggage car,' he yelled.

"'I heard you,' I responded, mildly.

"'Then why haven't you done it?'

"'Because I don't propose to.'

"'You don't, eh?'

"'No, I do not.'

"He roared, 'I'd have you know that I'm the boss of this train, and I don't put up with impudence from no dudes. You snake that bag out of here or I'll chuck it through the window in just two minutes.'

"At that moment we slowed up, approaching a station, and the conductor went out on the platform. More passengers got aboard, and when we came back several persons were standing up in the aisle. I just sat still, wondering to have been called a dude for the first time in my life.

"'What!' shouted the ticket puncher upon his return. 'You won't pay any attention to what I say, eh? Well, here goes!'

"With that he picked up the valise and threw it out of the car window. We were going at the rate of about fifteen miles an hour at the time. I said nothing, and a quarter of an hour later he came through again and spoke to me. Evidently he had been reflecting that possibly he had exceeded his authority.

"'I wouldn't have done it,' he said, half apologetically, 'only you riled me, and discipline's gotter be maintained on board a train.'

"'Oh, that's all right,' I replied, with entire composure.

"'Well, what are you going to do about it?' he asked.

"'About what?'

"'Why, the bag.'

"'Oh, nothing,' I said.

"'But weren't its contents valuable?'

"'I don't know, I'm sure,' I responded.

"'You don't know?'

"'No,' I said. 'It wasn't my valise.'

"My dear boy, you never saw a man so totally flabbergasted as that conductor was in all your born days. I got off at the next station, and I haven't the slightest idea how he managed to fix things up with the owner of the bag, who had left it on the seat beside me while he went into the baggage car to smoke."—Washington Cor. New York Sun.

Sight and Smoking.

The question of smoking was the topic under discussion, and one of the party advanced a theory that if a person were blind he could not tell whether he were smoking or not. The idea was scouted by the devotees of the pipe, and the discussion waxed warm. Finally it was proposed to make a practical test of the question, and bets on the result were immediately on.

A new pipe was procured and one of the tobacco users was selected to try the experiment. After his eyes were bandaged a pipe filled with tobacco was given him. The experimeter heard the noise of a striking match, and when a few moments later he was asked if he was smoking he replied, "Like a tar kiln."

He puffed away contentedly at the unlighted pipe, and could hardly believe his eyes when the bandage was removed and he saw that the pipe was not lighted.

The bandage was replaced, and during the operation the tobacco was ignited by a taper, and when the pipe was given him the bowl resembled a young Vesuvius, but the smoker calmly insisted that no fire had been near it.

The experiment was tried on others, and almost invariably with the same result.—New York Times.

Fasting Spittle and Other Panaceas.

"Can any one tell me the therapeutical value of fasting spittle?" asked a quiet man; "I know that old wives, as the saying is, take great stock in it for warts, birthmarks, corns, bruises and even small cuts. Indeed, old nurses seem to believe that their saliva in the morning before taking food is a panacea for every kind of skin complaint. But did you ever hear of the nap of an old beaver or silk hat being used as a styptic? You will find it a capital one, and for burns and scalds, if placed over the wound in sufficient quantity to keep out the air, it will draw out the heat rapidly, as any hat manufacturer will vouch.

"Deep sea fishermen and fishmongers generally hold that nothing is better than a piece of fishskin. Eelskins are commonly used to cure rheumatism, and are considered infallible by some. A negro minstrel once told me that nothing stopped bleeding and assisted nature's healing work so well as burned cork."—New York Recorder.

Great Ocean Routes Around the World.

Like railway traffic, steamer traffic follows certain main routes or grand trunk lines, having numerous feeders or subsidiary lines. The great ocean thoroughfares of the world are: The route across the Atlantic, through the Mediterranean sea, Suez canal and Red sea, to India, China, Australia and eastern Africa; the route by the Pacific ocean to Japan, China and Australia; the route by the Atlantic ocean down the east coast of South America, and around Cape Horn to western America and Australasia, and the route down the Atlantic and the west coast of Africa, around the Cape of Good Hope, to east Africa, Australasia and the east. The number of steamers traversing these grand routes, and those tributary to them, is estimated to be more than 11,000.—Lieutenant Ridgely Hunt in Scribner's.

Late Stragglers Always Suffer.

Bluffer—What's that? You don't mean to attend our reception tonight? I'd just like to know why?

Bliffers—Well, if you must know, every time I have attended any sort of a gathering at your house, I've lost my hat.

Bluffer—Well, why do you always stay so infernally late?—New York Weekly.

Wanted His Welcome to Last.

Spatts—Miss Elder is much older than I thought.

Hunker—Impossible!

"Well, I asked her if she had read 'Æsop's Fables,' and she said she read them when they first came out."—New York Epoch.

HEALTH AND FOOD

Wise Words of Several Notable Men on an Important Subject.

THE GOSPEL OF GOOD EATING

"No Man Can be a Christian if His Stomach is Out of Order," Says Dr. Talmage. Gould's Simple Diet.

Since eating is the only subject on earth, or in the heavens above the earth, or in the waters under the earth, which engages the thought of every human being, daily at least, it is not surprising that wise men have said many notable things about it. Robert B. Roosevelt, ex-minister to the Hague, who is known as the successor of Sam Ward, the most famous bon vivant of America, is perhaps as notable an example as can be cited today of the quickening, generous impulses which good living gives to a broad nature. He has said:

"More divorces are due to an ill regulated kitchen, when the trouble arises with the man, than from an ill regulated morality. No husband ever deserted or abused a wife who always gave him a perfect dinner, unless driven to it by dire force. Good cooking is at the foundation of all happiness, for there can be none without it, and it should be taught in our public schools before even the 'three Rs.'"

Dr. Alexander B. Mott, in one of his invaluable kitchen articles, speaks of "wickedly ignorant cooks."

Jay Gould says, "I do not myself believe that any man can stand the strain of a large business unless he lives on the simplest food he can get." But Richard A. McCurdy, the president of the Mutual Life Insurance company, declares emphatically in favor of French cookery, and says: "An American salad to a person just home from the other side looks absolutely naked. It is almost indecent."

E. B. Harper says, "The gospel of good living is the most important of all things earthly."

Dr. Talmage says, "No man can be a Christian if his stomach is out of order." And again, "One great cause of evil in this world is irregularity of meals."

Henry Ward Beecher before he had dyspepsia himself spoke in a similar strain denouncing sickness as criminal.

EMINENT TESTIMONY.

Dr. Robert Collyer said: "I think the American people, take them all in all, are the best livers of any people in the world. I was only too glad when I got to a land where I could live twice as well as I could in my native country."

Charles A. Dana is seventy-two years old. When he was asked some time ago how he preserved his youthful vigor as marvelously as he has done, he said: "I live well and take rational exercise. I have no hobbies about plain and simple food, but eat everything I can get that is good and that I know by experience agrees with me. Theories about eating are all nonsense. Experience must govern every sensible man's selection of his food."

Such sayings could be quoted by columns and would only emphasize the importance which every intelligent man appreciates, if he stops to think of it, of care and discrimination in the use of food. It was for almost a century a standing reproach to this nation that its people, richer in food than any other people on earth, were almost the worst cooks and altogether the most foolish feeders in the world. It is to the infinite credit of the present generation that such a thing can no longer be justly said.

Manifestly, the first duty of him who would live properly, is to select his food nicely; the second is to see that it is well prepared. An "ocean greyhound" might as well be expected to cross the ocean with nothing but peat and kindling wood in his bunkers as a man can be expected to make the voyage of life on such food as many men use.

New York has occasion for just pride in the matter of her food supply, but the system of distribution in vogue is so wretchedly poor that not one housekeeper in a score, and not one person in a thousand who is not a housekeeper, has anything like an adequate notion of what may be had in the market. There are food centers. The enormous trade necessary to supply 2,000,000 of people with their daily rations must, of course, be concentrated in certain places. These centers or markets, however, are so placed that it would be a physical impossibility for all the family buyers to procure their supplies excepting through middlemen.

LIVING IN THE METROPOLIS.

The consequence of this is not only that the cost of living is enhanced, but that the people are unable, without special effort, to learn what there is available for food. It would be easy to make up a list of thousands of varieties of fish, flesh, fowl, vegetables, fruits and excellent food preparations, all of which are available to any housekeeper in New York. But what housekeeper has a knowledge of one-half or one-quarter of such a list? The butchers and grocers who supply families are ready enough to furnish any item that may be desired, but few retail dealers can keep enough variety in stock to give their customers even an approximate idea of what a range of choice they really have.

Yet no item in the long list is neglected. Among the 2,000,000 there will be enough people who do know of it and who appreciate it to consume the supply. So it happens, as it did in the case of the famous boarding house keeper, who was such an excellent provider that she knew exactly how much to cook. There was never a morsel left over at her table. Fortunately, different people require different foods. Men are not as pigeons, that they should all thrive best on a diet of corn only. For the New Yorker the vision of St. Peter is daily an accomplished fact. The great sheet comes down from heaven with all manner of food in front of him.

What he has to do is to arise, choose and eat, for the slaying has been done for him.—New York World.

Buying Lumber.

One of our selectmen was once commissioned to buy the lumber for a new bridge. His ideas of measurement were murky, but he did his best. When the lumber, cut after his schedule, was on the ground the carpenters pointed out to him in emphatic language that certain of the beams were far too long to bridge the stream and others as much too short. The selectman pensively scratched his head, then he brightened up and said, "But, brethren, don't ye think they'll everige abeout right?"—Cor. Boston Commonwealth.

A Meteorological Station in Pekin.

The highest meteorological station in Europe is on the top of the Sonnblick, in Austria. It is 10,168 feet above the level of the sea. The oldest station of the same character is at Pekin, China. It was founded in the year 1279, and still contains three of the original instruments.—St. Louis Republic.

Coloring Food Products.

Sausages—both meat and skin—are dyed with aniline colors for the purpose of hiding the color of unhealthy or stale meat which may have been used. Jams, especially plum jams, are generally dyed with aniline colors, and sugar confectionery is hardly ever without such artificial dye. Ale is darkened with burned sugar, as also are brandies and whiskies.

It must be admitted that in by far the majority of these cases the color used is entirely harmless and has no influence on the health of the consumer. Yet there are a number of aniline colors which are positively poisonous even when pure. Such colors are picric acid and its salts, martius yellow, safranine, methvien blue, dinitrocresol and aurantia.

Others, unobjectionable in themselves, become poisonous owing to their mode of manufacture, which leaves in the products poisonous impurities, such as arsenic (rarely), salts of copper, tin or zinc. The manufacturer of sausages or jams has not the least idea whether the color he uses may not belong to one or other of the above, to which doubtless many others could be added, and even if the quality of color consumed by one individual may be exceedingly small it is palpably evident that no such manufacturer should have the right to use such colors.—Drugs, Food and Drink.

Condition of Indian Pariahs.

The condition of the unfortunate pariahs in India continues to occupy the attention of philanthropic persons. Apart from a series of careful investigations undertaken by the missionaries, Mr. Tremenheere, the collector of Chingleput, has been personally inquiring into the subject, and he has embodied the result in a report to the government. While the missionaries, however, have been met with a peremptory official denial of their allegations, Mr. Tremenheere has been severely rebuked by the government, who pronounce his statements "sensational," and declare his proposals to be "utterly impracticable."

Yet those who have a personal knowledge of the unhappy victims of caste prejudice declare that they are oppressed by a system which can only be described as slavery. The pariah, it is said, finds it difficult, if not impossible, however hard he may struggle for an independent existence, to hold a plot of land, and even the humble cot which shelters him is no longer his own if it should unfortunately happen to take the fancy of some covetous and scornful village "marasdar."—London News.

Showing a Pass.

As a rule, the man who rides on a free pass does not seriously object to showing it, but he does hate to be annoyed and suspected by the conductor. A passenger on the Royal Blue was requested to show his pass four times between Baltimore and Philadelphia.

"Look here, Mr. Conductor," said he at last, "is there anything wrong with that pass? Did you ever see one before?"

"If you were in my place, you couldn't see them too often. You don't know perhaps that only about 1 pass in 10 is good on the vestibuled trains, and when a conductor turns in one that isn't he is responsible and must stand the loss. Yours seems to be all right, and we shall not worry you again."

It seems to be the custom of most roads to give free pass holders the benefit of the slower trains.—New York Tribune.

Handwriting on Iron.

It was a fortunate accident that led to the discovery of the method of transferring handwriting to iron. An iron founder, while experimenting with molten iron under different conditions, accidentally dropped a ticket into a mold. He presently found that the type of the ticket was transferred to the iron in distinct characters. Following up the idea which this fact suggested, he procured a heatproof ink, with which he wrote invertedly on ordinary white paper. This paper was introduced into the mold before the molten iron was poured in. When the mold cooled the paper had been consumed by the heat, but the ink, which had remained intact, had left a clear impression on the iron.—St. Louis Republic.

Bound to Be Ready.

There was an extremely ludicrous and noticeable performance in a Portland church Sunday. In the middle of the service the sexton was seen to tiptoe up the aisle and whisper to a well known physician, who picked up his coat and hat and started out. In about two minutes an equally well known undertaker who sat about six seats farther back on the same aisle picked up his coat and hat and also tiptoed his way out, evidently deeming it a case of sure death and desiring to be in time.—Bangor Commercial.

A Family Ticket.

Mr. Suburb—See here! What did you take up my family commutation ticket for?

Railroad Superintendent — That ticket has been presented to our conductors by forty different women within a month.

Mr. Suburb—That's all right. They were servant girls.—New York Weekly.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, JULY 14 1893

SUPERVISORS' PROCEEDINGS.

FRIDAY, July 7, 1893.
9:30 o'clock a. m.

Pursuant to adjournment the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, met as above.

Present, Supervisors Fitzgerald, Freeman, Uhlmeyer and Wilson, Robert Love, presiding.

Minutes of preceding day's proceedings read and approved.

Claims against the County were examined, considered and allowed as follows:

L. Wood, oil etc	$ 3 75
Mrs. M. Lewis, hospital contract	163 65
Mrs. M. Lewis, hospital contract	156 00
H. Levy, conveying sick	2 50
P W Forbes, District Attorney, for $32 50, allowed in sum of	31 70
I J Woodin, hospital attendance	41 00
D J Hession, Clerk, postage etc	16 50
J W Murphy, repairing	2 50
W F Schalten, making coffin, $15, allowed in sum of	12 50
O I Mairs, boarding prisoners	11 50
A W Eibeshutz, vault doors, sunds	531 60
Wm Smale, Constable fees, $10 40, allowed in sum of	8 00
R C Spear, Justice fees, for $45 40 allowed in sum of	34 20
W T Bunney, Treasurer, postage	3 20
Samuel Meredith, digging grave, for $10 allowed in sum of	5 00
A C McDonald, Justice fees, $44 75 allowed in sum of	42 25
L L Woodin, Co Physician, claim reconsidered and allowed sum of	112 50
P A Chalfant, Assessor, Deputy etc	299 25

Board adjourned to meet on Saturday, July 8, 1893, at the hour of 9:30 o'clock a. m.

R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

FRIDAY, July 7, 1893.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, sitting as a Board of Equalization, convened pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Chairman Robert Love and Supervisors Freeman, Fitzgerald, Uhlmeyer and Wilson.

Minutes read and approved.

The Board thereupon resumed examination of the Assessment Roll of 1893.

Upon motion of Supervisor Fitzgerald, seconded by Supervisor Uhlmeyer, ordered unanimously that the assesment of John Eldred be stricken from the Roll.

At the hour of 5 o'clock p. m. the Board adjourned to meet July 8, 1893, at 1:15 o'clock p. m.

R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

SATURDAY, July 8, 1893.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, met at above stated time.

Present, Robert Love, chairman, presiding, and Supervisors Freeman, Fitzgerald, Uhlmeyer and Wilson.

Minutes of preceding meeting read and approved.

Whereupon the Board proceeded to examine claims as follows:

I J Woodin, for attendance upon order of acting Coroner in case of Wm Bennett, deceased, for $90, allowed in sum of $90 on the Hospital fund.

Nellie Wilson, for $5 50, as witness in Mitchell case, was rejected.

On motion of Supervisor Uhlmeyer, seconded by Supervisor Wilson, claim of I J Woodin in the sum of $57 for holding post mortem examination upon body of Wm Mitchell, rejected at last session of the Board, was reconsidered and upon motion of Supervisor Fitzgerald, seconded by Supervisor Wilson, was ordered allowed on the General Expense fund in sum of $30.

Petition of residents and landholders in Road District No. 3¼, in Township 8 S, R. 33 E., M. D. M., praying that a county road be granted in said Township and Road District, was granted.

Petition of P. H. Mack, asking that an order be made directing the County Auditor to draw a warrant in favor of petitioner in sum of $30 39 was read, it appearing from the report of expert Harris that said sum was due from petitioner because of his omission while County Auditor in 1889 and 1890 to charge certain tax-payers with certain special school taxes; that thereunder the petitioner paid into the County Treasury said sum, which under laws governing such cases he was not legally required to do. It so appearing to the Board Ordered: That a warrant be drawn on the Salary Fund in favor of P. H. Mack for said sum of $30 39.

Petition of T. J. Richards asking for repair of road crossing slough in section 22, Township 7, was referred to Commissioner of Road Dist. No. 3¼.

Report of School Trustees of Independence School District, accompanied by the official returns of the special election held June 24, 1893, by which it appears that the question of raising a special school tax in the sum of $520 for the employment of an assistant teacher was carried affirmatively, was received, examined, approved and placed on file.

Report of J. H. Shannon, County Superintendent of Schools, showing census returns for the school year ending June 30, 1893, was examined and approved.

Petition of citizens praying for erection of a bridge across the Rawson and Ford ditch laid over till the October meeting of the Board. Petition of residents of Road District No. 2 praying that a county road be surveyed and viewed in said district laid over until October meeting.

Application of W. H. Huff for refunding of special school taxes erroneously assessed and collected, was granted and Treasurer directed to refund to said Huff the sum of 25 97 from the Independence District Bond fund.

Claim of Refles S. Carrasco for Constable fees in sum of $24 30 allowed on the General Expense fund in said amount.

At 12 o'clock m. Board adjourned to meet Monday, July 10th, 1893, at 9 o'clock a. m.

R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

SATURDAY, July 8, 1893.
1:15 o'clock p. m.

Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, sitting as a Board of Equalization, met pursuant to adjournment.

Present Robert Love, Chairman, and Supervisors Fitzgerald, Freeman, Uhlmeyer and Wilson.

Minutes of preceding meeting read and approved.

Board continued the examination of the Assessment Roll for the year A. D. 1893.

Adjourned to meet on Monday, July 10, 1893, at 1:30 o'clock p. m.

R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

MONDAY, July 10, 1893.
9 o'clock a. m.

Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, met as above pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Robert Love, Chairman, and Supervisors Freeman, Fitzgerald, Uhlmeyer and Wilson.

Minutes of preceding meeting read and approved.

Board proceeded to examine the military roll for 1893 and after correction the Assessor was directed to attach his affidavit thereto, whereupon it was approved and ordered placed on file.

In the matter of the petition from citizens of Road District No. 3¼, praying for a new road in said District, the action granting the same was reconsidered and upon motion of Supervisor Freeman, seconded by Supervisor Uhlmeyer, said petition was rejected.

Upon petition presented by citizens it was upon motion of Supervisor Uhlmeyer, seconded by Supervisor Wilson, Ordered: That G. W. Brady be and is hereby appointed Janitor of the Inyo County Court House and grounds for the term of one year, commencing July 10, 1893, and ending July 9, 1894. That the duties of said Janitor shall be to keep in good clean order the Court House rooms and grounds and all property connected therewith, said duties to be performed under the Supervision of the Sheriff. That compensation for such services be and is hereby fixed at the rate of $30 per month. Clerk was directed to issue certificate of appointment.

Upon examination of the monthly and quarterly reports of the County Treasurer, and the quarterly report of the County Auditor for the quarter ending June 30, 1893, the same were ordered accepted and approved.

Ordered: That the sum of $75 25 be transferred from the Rebate fund to the General Expense fund and that said Rebate fund be dispensed with.

Board adjourned to meet on Tuesday, July 11, 1893, at the hour of 9:30 a. m.

R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

MONDAY, July 10 1893.
1:30 o'clock p. m.

Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, sitting as Board of Equalization, met at above stated time pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Robert Love, Chairman, Supervisors Fitzgerald, Freeman, Uhlmeyer, Wilson.

Minutes of preceding meeting read and approved.

Board continued its examination of the Assessment Roll of 1893.

Adjourned to meet July 11, 1893, at 1:30 o'clock p. m.

R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

TUESDAY, July 11, 1893.
9:30 o'clock a. m.

Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, met at above stated time pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Robert Love, Chairman, and Supervisors Freeman, Fitzgerald, Uhlmeyer, Wilson.

Minutes of preceding meeting read and approved.

Petition of citizens of Bishop praying for the appointment of fire commissioners being under consideration, on motion of Supervisor Freeman, seconded by Supervisor Fitzgerald, Ordered: That J. L. Bourland, John Black and H. N. Gunter be and hereby appointed Fire Commissioners in and for the town of Bishop.

Claim of Mrs. F. K. Andrews for interpreting in case of People vs. Mike Williams, an Indian, allowed on the General Expense fund in sum of $3.

J. E. Dunlap, for Justice fees in case of People vs. Jasper Williams and People vs. Mike Williams allowed on General Expense fund in sum of $10.

Joseph Seely, for making abstract of lands for the Assessor's office, allowed on the General Expense fund in sum of $20.

The Board proceeded to examine the fire-proof vault and the contract, specifications and plans in connection therewith.

On motion of Supervisor Fitzgerald, seconded by Supervisor Wilson, it was unanimously ordered that said fire-proof vault be accepted at the contract price of $4,185.

The claim of R. Way, contractor, for sundry extras in the amount of $348 86, being under consideration,

Ordered: That said R. Way be and is allowed on the General Expense Fund the sum of $258 72, the sum to be full compensation for all extra work and material heretofore authorized, and the extra labor now allowed for, outside of and in addition to the specified contract price. Auditor directed to draw his warrant for said sum of $258 72.

Ordinance No. 49, relative to and governing certain licenses was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the following vote:

Ayes: Supervisors Frank Fitzgerald, A. C. Freeman, John Wilson, W. H. Uhlmeyer Robert Love.

Nays: None.

Board adjourned to meet July 12, 1893, at 9 o'clock a. m.

R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

TUESDAY, July 11, 1893.
1:30 o'clock p. m.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, sitting as a Board of Equalization, met at above stated time pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Robert Love, Chairman, and Supervisors Freeman, Fitzgerald, Uhlmeyer Wilson.

Minutes of preceding meeting read and approved.

Board continued examination of the Assessment Roll for the year A. D. 1893.

Ordered that in assessment of Peter McGann the valuation of $1,100 on 40 head of mules be reduced to the amount of $800.

Ordered: That the Clerk notify the following named persons to appear before this Board on Saturday, the 22d day of July, 1893, at the hour of 9 o'clock a. m., and show cause why their several assessments for the year 1893 should not be raised as hereinafter specified, said time in which to appear being the notice required by law.

Names Taxpayers.	Assessed for.	Raised to
Ida C. Adams	120 acres land, $240	$ 360
John Baxter	80 " " 160	240
Horace Bellows	170 " " 320	480
"	160 " " 480	640
"	5000 goats 5000	5000
G. P. Bourland	160 acres land 320	480
S. A. Bell	120 " " 620	700
"	80 " " 160	240
"	80 " " 400	480
A. O. Collins	646 " " 2240	2900
"	240 " " 840	900
—To be added	30 head stock cattle @ $9	270
	18 head cattle @ $5	90
A. A. Cashbaugh	150 acres land 800	924
"	80 " " 200	240
"	124 " " 360	372
Conn & Trudo	1200 " " 2920	3650
"	machinery 1500	2000
"	Improvements 600	700
D. Campbell Est.	(?) 3574	4004
Juan Divas	220 head stock cattle
"	300 head cattle 2800	3610
S. A. Densmore &	Lands and
E. E. Densmore	Improvements 4518	4653
A. W. Eibeshutz	Merchandise 2500	3000
E. H. Edwards	Merchandise 3000	4500
James Hexod	604 acres land 1509	1809
L. A. James	400 " " 1600	2000
Mrs. A. Lubken	320 " " 1820	2340
Margaret Lewis	160 " " 1120	1440
John Morton Est	Lot & imprvmts 670	1000
A. R. Conklin	640 acres land 1280	1920
C. L. Meyers	160 " " 460	430
J. S. McGee	80 " " 240	320
J. McMurry	160 " " 480	640
S. J. McMurry	160 " " 640	800

Board adjourned to meet July 12, 1893, at the hour of 1 o'clock p. m.

R. LOVE, Chairman.
Attest: D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

WEDNESDAY, July 12, 1893.
9 o'clock a. m.

Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, met as above stated, pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Robert Love, Chairman, Supervisors Freeman, Fitzgerald, Uhlmeyer, Wilson.

Minutes of preceding meeting read and approved.

Upon application, Ordered: That John S. Gorman, Sheriff and Tax-Collector, be and is hereby granted leave to absent himself for the period of forty days from the time of departure.

Reports of County Road Commissioners were examined and approved as follows:

Commissnr Robert Love, R4 Dist. No. 1
" " " " " No. 2
" A C Freeman, " " No. 3
" WHUhlmeyer " " No. 4
" " " " No. 5
" John Wilson, " " No. 5¼
" " " " " No. 6
" F Fitzgerald, " " No. 7

Board proceeded to examine claims and vouchers of Road Commissioners for labor and material in the several Road Districts, which were allowed and Auditor directed to draw warrants as follows:

A C Freeman,	R4 Dist No. 3	Fund	$87 20
WHUhlmeyer	" " 4	"	47 00
"	Salary	"	35 70
"	Bridge	"	189 74
"	R4 Dist No. 5	"	119 65
"	Salary	"	15 60
John Wilson	R4 Dist No. 5¼	"	48 00
"	" " 6	"	72 90
"	Bridge	"	89 00
F Fitzgerald	R4 Dist No. 7	"	13 40

Ordered: That the various Road Districts of Inyo County as heretofore constituted and existing be and are consolidated and established as follows:

Supervisor District No. 1 shall constitute and comprise Road District No. 1.

Supervisor District No. 2 shall constitute and comprise Road District No. 2.

Supervisor District No. 3 shall constitute and comprise Road District No. 3.

Supervisor District No. 4 shall constitute and comprise Road District No. 4.

Supervisor District No. 5 shall constitute and comprise Road District No. 5.

Ordered: That R. P. Hession and S. G. Gregg be and are hereby appointed Road viewers to inspect and establish the line between the place of Thomas Williams and the ranch of Mark Watterson, known as the Naylor ranch.

Thereupon the Board proceeded to examine the report of the late Grand Jury and the report of Walter J. Harris, expert.

Ordered: That the District Attorney be and he is hereby ordered to commence action against P. H. Mack and bondsmen for the sum of $393, deficiency as Recorder for the years 1889 and 1890.

[This amount is for recording mining location notices, the fees for which Mr. Mack claims he was entitled to retain. ED]

Ordered: That the District Attorney be and he is hereby ordered to commence action against J. N. Yandell and bondsmen for the sum of $35.41 as Auditor and $239.44 as Recorder, deficiencies for the years 1891 and 1892 respectively.

Orderd: That the sum of $499 heretofore set aside out of the Bridge Fund for construction of bridge across Owens River at Georges Creek be returned to the Bridge Fund.

Adjourned to meet at the hour of 4 o'clock p. m. at which hour they reconvened, all the members being present.

Following claims were passed upon and allowed on the Salary fund and Auditor directed to draw his warrants accordingly.

Per diem and mileage of Supervisors.

Supervisor Love	$67 70
Supervisor Freeman	83 00
Supervisor Uhlmeyer	51 00
Supervisor Wilson	121 00
Supervisor Fitzgerald	65 40

Whereupon Board adjourned until Monday, July 24, 1893, at the hour of 8 o'clock a. m., to meet for the purpose of Equalization of taxes for the year 1893.

WEDNESDAY, July 12, 1893.
1 o'clock p. m.

Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, sitting as Board of Equalization, met at above stated time pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Robert Love, Chairman, and Supervisors Fitzgerald, Freeman, Uhlmeyer and Wilson.

Minutes of preceding meeting read and approved.

Ordered: That the Clerk notify the following named persons to appear before the Board on Monday, the 24th day of July, 1893, at the hour of 8 o'clock a. m., and show cause why their several assessments for the year 1893 should not be raised as hereinafter specified.

Name Taxpayers.	Assessed for.	Raised to
Mrs. M. Powers	200 acres land $1400	$1800
Harmony and Pacific Coast B. Co.	Borate lands 37100	40000
F. E. Russell	1600 acres land 3200	4000
Aaron Reynolds	160 acres land 320	480
N. Rhine Estate	Merchandise 6000	8000
Frederike Rhine	240 acres land 480	720
C. B. Rawson	2280 " " 4560	5700
Rafael Rossi	160 " " 320	480
Mrs. J. V. Skinner	160 " " 320	480
Manuel Silva	480 " " 960	1440
J. A. J. E. Shepherd	200 " " 400	600
" "	135 head mules 2225	2430
J. H. Stoutenbrgh	440 acres land 880	1300
J. B. Stinson	120 " " 600	720
J. H. Smith, add.	6 cows @ $20	120
Frank Shaw	480 acres land 1200	1440
F. Schabbell	160 " " 1120	1280
J. B. Steward	160 " " 640	900
Gustav Sanger	560 " " 2300	2800
"	320 " " 800	900
"	640 " " 1280	1920
"	add 100 horses @ $15	1500
"	add 80 cows @ $9	720
"	add 40 calves @ $5	200
J. R. Turner	640 acres land 2140	2420
W. R. Thornton	160 " " 400	400
"	1000 goats 1000	1000
R. W. Thomas	80 acres land 160	240
A. C. Van Fleet	80 " " 400	640
C. F. Widdison	160 " " 1200	1440
B. F. Williams	160 " " 400	480
L. Wood	Merchandise 1800	2000
Frank Whitmore	50 head cattle @ $9	450
Thomas Webb	50 head cattle "	450
Wm. Watterson	520 acres land 4160	4780
Mrs. L. L. Woodin	400 " " 1000	1200
Mark Watterson	160 " " 1120	1280
"	240 " " 1200	1440
C. A. Walter	160 " " 480	800
Schuyler Williams	160 " " 640	800
"	280 " " 740	840
Mrs. Emily Euler	50 " " 70	80
Enoch Enlow	70 " " 420	500
J. M. Newlon	160 " " 1120	1280
S. J. Newlon	160 " " 1340	1440
Mrs S M Newman	160 " " 1120	1280
Mrs M Reinhakle	180 " " 1120	1280
R. Hession	40 " " 240	320
R. P. Hession	160 " " 400	640

Whereupon the Board adjourned to meet as a Board of Equalization on Monday July 24, 1893, at the hour of 8 o'clock a. m.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Sheriff's Sale Under Foreclosure.

GILBERT CLEMENTS vs. W. O. MERONEY AND FRANK HARROLD. | Order of Sale and Decree of Foreclosure and Sale.

UNDER AND BY VIRTUE OF AN ORDER of sale and decree of foreclosure and sale, issued out of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, of the State of California, on the 22nd day of June, A. D. 1893, in the above entitled action, wherein Gilbert Clements, the above named plaintiff, obtained a judgment and decree of foreclosure and sale against W. O. Meroney, defendant, on the 22nd day of June, A. D. 1893, for the sum of $286 0.61, lawful money of the United States, besides interest and costs, which said decree was on the 22nd day of June, A. D. 1893, recorded in judgment book 1 of said Court, at page 401, I am commanded to sell all those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and bounded and described as follows:

The north-east quarter of the north-west quarter of Section thirty two, and the east half of the south-west quarter and the north-west quarter of the south-east quarter of Section twenty nine, all in Township Six South of Range thirty-two East, Mount Diablo Meridian, containing one hundred and sixty acres.

Also that other lot of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo, and particularly described as follows, to-wit: Lots Nos. five (5) and eight (8) in block Q as appears by the plat of the Academy Addition to the Town of Bishop Creek (now Bishop) now on file in the Office of the County Recorder of the County of Inyo, State of California, to which for further description, reference is hereby made, being the lots of land on which is erected the store and Hall of the said defendant Meroney.

Together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging, or in any wise appertaining.

Public notice is hereby given that on Monday, the 17th day of July, A. D. 1893, at 12 o'clock noon of that day, in front of the Court House door of the County of Inyo, I will, in obedience to said order of sale and decree of foreclosure and sale, sell the above described property, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy said judgment, with interest and costs, etc., to the highest and best bidder for lawful money of the United States.

Dated the 22nd day of June, 1893.

J. S. GORMAN, Sheriff.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff. [23-4t.

BOOTS AND SHOES
MADE AND REPAIRED.
THE BEST MATERIAL.
FIRST-CLASS WORK
Repairs done Promptly.
Prices Reasonable.
A. J. DAVIS,
30-tf Independence,

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS AND
LEVI STRAUSS & CO'S
SPRING BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES,
District Attorney,
—AND—
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
NOTARY PUBLIC.
Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Office and residence at the Johnson place Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Freight! Freight!
BISHOP & MOJAVE
Through Freight Line.
George Meads,
PROPRIETOR.
Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:
J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.
Special rates given on car-load lots

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated, satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics Hall," Lone
FRED BURCKHARDT.

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.
THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.
THE BAR
Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.
JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.
$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.
It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer without cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.
Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.
For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address
ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.
Winter Apples..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes.....12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches.....10 cts
Dried Apples.....10 cts
Other varieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.
THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines, Liquors, & Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSFIELD, opposite the Southern Hotel.
Prompt and careful treatment given on the easiest possible pain inflicted. Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATES AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce Street New York

P. W. FORBES. P. H. MACK.
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY, the 8th day of March, 1892, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South east corner of the south-east quarter of North east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98-100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of the Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lots Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode, situate, lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispricada Lode."

That certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the North west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12), and the South west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South sixty-eight and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence North-westerly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty-four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North East quarter and the South east quarter, and the North-west quarter and the North east quarter of the North-west quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-four and eleven twentieth (44 11-20) rods; thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres: Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER.
Executor of the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased.

Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1892.

J. W. Murphy.
BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS Extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDIS
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES.
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumer should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 9 1894.
n4761f

$6000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, Troy, N.Y., at work for us. Reader, you may not make as much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from $5 to $10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages. In any part of America, you can commence at home, giving all your time, or spare moments only to the work. All is new. Great pay SURE for every worker. We start you, furnishing everything. EASILY, SPEEDILY learned. PARTICULARS FREE. Address at once, GEORGE STINSON & CO., PORTLAND, MAINE.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, JULY 14 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman ..... A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman ..... P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge ..... GEO. M. GILL.
Sheriff ..... JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk ..... DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney ..... P. W. FORBES.
Assessor ..... P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer ..... W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner ..... H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed) ..... JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools ..... J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist ..... ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist ..... A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist ..... W. H. UHLMEYER.
4th Supervisor Dist ..... JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist .. FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

MONDAY, July 10, 1893

J. V. Skinner, an insolvent debtor—Order approving sale of personal property.

John Baxter et al. vs. A. D. Gilbert et al—Filed demurrers to answers on part of A. D. Gilbert and A. F. Mairs and O. I. Mairs.

WEDNESDAY, July 12, 1893.

Estate of Eleanor Fleuniken, deceased—Filed inventory and appraisement

THURSDAY, July 13, 1893.

J. V. Skinner, an insolvent debtor—Filed petition for discharge. Filed order of notice to creditors upon application for final discharge.

Baxter et al vs. Gilbert et al.—Filed substition of Attorney.

Diaz vs Rhine—Filed supplemental answer.

Estate of John A. Hannah, deceased—Filed order fixing and allowing attorney's fees.

John L. Sullivan has married Rose Coghlan, the actress.

J. H. Bulpitt of Bishop was in town a couple of days this week.

Miss Ettie Wood has returned to San Francisco to attend school.

Hon. P. Reddy and P. H. Mack leave to-day for Darwin to remain several days.

A full report of the proceedings of the Board of Supervisors will be found on another page.

Miss Nellie Coyle came down from Big Pine last Monday and visited with friends in Independence during the week.

Rev. H. J. Winsor being out of town for a few days, there will be no preaching services on Sundays, July 16th and 23rd.

The board of Supervisors adjourned Wednesday. They will meet again as a Board of Equalization on Monday, July 24.

At their recent session the Board of Supervisors passed Ordinance No. 49, requiring brewers to pay a license of $20 per quarter.

John F. Brown arrived at Independence a few days ago from Washington. He is on a visit to his brother-in-law, County Treasurer Bunney.

Mrs. J. W. P. Laird arrived at Independence yesterday from Bakersfield. She is accompanied by her son Rollin. Mr. Laird is expected here about the end of the month.

Judge N. D. Arnot of Alpine County is at Independence. He will try cases in the Superior Court for which Judge Gill is disqualified. He will probably be here during all of next week.

There well be a social dance at the Pavilion, Independence, to-morrow evening to which all are cordially invited. Excellent music will be furnished, and a good time assured.

Sheriff Gorman has been granted leave of absence by the Board of Supervisors and will visit his mother in the East, whom he has not seen for over twenty years. He will incidentally take in the World's Fair en route.

The Supervisers, sitting as a Board of Equalization, raised the assessment of sixty-five tax-payers. The gross aggregate of all these increased assessments amounts to $32,826. When the Board again meets on July 24 the work of investigating assessments will be resumed.

Hon. P. Reddy arrived at Independence on Wednesday and will remain in town for about ten days. He is engaged to try a case in the Superior Court for the Plaintiffs in the suit of John Baxter et als vs. A. D. Gilbert.

Three months ago Supervisor Wilson got an appropriation for building a bridge across Owens river at Georges Creek. A condition of the appropriation was that the settlers should subscribe part of the cost. An endless wrangle started about where the bridge should be located, and the result has been that the Board of Supervisors this week ordered the money that had been appropriated to be returned to the General Fund.

INDEPENDENCE

SHAVING PARLOR.

J. TUCKER, Prop'r.

HAIR CUTTING IN ANY STYLE. SHAMPOOING AND BATHS.

Adjoining Irwin's Old Corner Saloon.

Packed by Big Money.

The Denver, Salt Lake and San Francisco Railroad Company was incorporated July 1st for $10,000,000. The incorporators, as placed on record, are: John Evans, capitalist; W. N. Byers, banker; E. W. Rollins, banker; George Tritch, banker; F. A. Reener, J. S. Brown, J. J. Riethmann, J. W. Nesmith, K. W. Woodbury, J. H. Porter and H. M. Porter. The incorporators are among the leading citizens of Colorado and represent at least $50,000,000. John Evans, who is largely at the back of the enterprise, has never yet recorded a failure. He built the South Park Railroad to Leadville., and to him was due the Fort Worth extension to Colorado. He never takes a step until certain of his ground, and, the gentlemen who are associated with him are equally keen and successful financiers. Their names and ex-Governor Evans' activity are an assurance that the road is not a paper road. The contemplated line has been the main subject in commercial circles, as Denver now sees the opening of vast fields in Colorado and Utah and a direct outlet to the Golden Gate. Enough money is already at hand to proceed with the preliminary work.

Records Safe at Last.

After many years talk the county at last has a good safe building for county records. Solid stone walls, vaulted roof of brick arches on iron beams and concrete floor. The building has separate compartments for the records of the County Clerk, Auditor and Recorder and for the County Treasurer. The doors are of the best safety pattern and were imported from St. Louis. The contracter, Mr. R. Way of Bishop, carried out the specifications of his contract to the fullest extent, and the county has got full value for the amount expended, the total amount being about $4,800. All who were at Independence when the town was burned seven years ago fully appreciate the value of this building, when they think of the work that was then done in saving the whole records of the county from destruction. The present Board of Supervisors will have an honorable record of their service in this very useful building.

Fair Arrangements

The Fair Directors met last Friday at Independence. The bond of B. H. Yandell as Secretary was referred to the Finance Committee. A special committee was appointed to revise the premium list for the next Fair. The Printing Committee was authorized to advertise the Fair in the newspapers of the District and also to procure 1,000 copies of the premium list in pamphlet form. A committee was appointed to secure a pavilion for the Fair at a reasonable rent and to make necessary arrangements for the Fair at Bishop. As the citizens of Bishop had furnished no official report of the amount subscribed for race purposes, the Directors decided to take charge of the Fair only and leave the management of the races to the Eastern Slope Land and Stock Association. The Finance Committee was authorized to make arrangements for borrowing $2,000 to pay premiums at the coming Fair.

ORDER OF NOTICE TO CREDITORS ON APPLICATION FOR DISCHARGE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of J. V. SKINNER, an insolvent debtor.

J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor, having applied to this Court for a discharge from his debts,

It is hereby ordered, that the Clerk of this Court give notice to all Creditors who have proved their debts to appear before this Court at the Court-Room thereof, on the 19th day of August, 1893, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., and show cause, if any they have, why the said J. V. Skinner should not be discharged from all his debts, in accordance with the statutes in such cases made and provided.

It is further ordered, that notice of said application be given to the Creditors by mail, and by publication once a week for four weeks in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper published in said Inyo County.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated July 13, 1893.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Insolvent.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE WHY ORDER OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE SHOULD NOT BE MADE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of the estate of John William Meyer, deceased.

John W. Lacey, the Administrator of the Estate of John William Meyer, deceased, having filed his petition herein, duly verified, praying for an order of sale of all the real estate of said decedent, for the purposes therein set forth,—

It is therefore ordered by the Judge of said Court that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased appear before the said Superior Court on Saturday, the 5th day of August, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at the Court-Room of said Superior Court, at the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo, State of California, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Administrator to sell all of the real estate of said deceased.

And that a copy of this order be published at least once a week for four consecutive weeks in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said Inyo county.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated July 5th 1893.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for the Administrator.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday ..... January 28th
" ..... February 25th
" ..... March 25th
" ..... April 29th
" ..... May 27th
" ..... June 24th
" ..... July 22d
" ..... August 26th
" ..... September 23d
" ..... October 21st
" ..... November 16th
" ..... December 18th

THOS. C. BOLAND, W. M.
B. RHINE, Sec.

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.

FRANK FITZGERALD.

Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNdersigned, Administrator of the estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of P. W. Forbes, in the Court House, at the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the said County of Inyo, State of California.

EDWARD JOHN REYNOLDS,
Administrator of the estate of Fredrick J. Reynolds, deceased.

Dated at Independence, Cal. June 13th, 1893.
P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Administrator.
jn16 5t

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

W. J. HOSKINS, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM GREEN and B. F. LEWIS, Defendants.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in the office of the Clerk of said Inyo county.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Gheen and B. F. Lewis, Defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment of this Court for the foreclosure of a certain mortgage described in said complaint and executed by the said William Gheen on the 31st day of May, 1890, to secure the payment of a certain Promissory Note dated May 31st 1890, made by the said William Gheen for the sum of $800.00, bearing interest at the rate of one and one-fourth per cent. per month, payable semi-annually; and if not paid when it becomes due, to be added to the principal and bear interest at like rate, as described in said complaint on file herein, which complaint alleges that no part of the principal or interest therein has been paid; that the premises conveyed by said mortgage may be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said promissory note and interest thereon, and the payment of 15 per cent. of the amount found due the plaintiff as attorney's fees, and for costs of this action; and in case such proceeds be insufficient to pay the same, that judgment be docketed against said William Gheen, defendant herein, for the balance remaining due, and also that the said defendants, and all persons claiming by, through or under them, or either of them, may be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, claim, lien, equity of redemption, and interest in and to said mortgaged premises, and for other and further relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Witness my hand and the Seal of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 29th day of June, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
J. D. LEWIS, Attorney for Plaintiff.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

THOMAS C. BOLAND, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM CRAPO, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Crapo, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the Complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36/100 Dollars [$337.36] on a balance of account for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by the Plaintiff to you in the County of Inyo, State of California, at your special instance and request; also for costs of suit, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36/100 Dollars, together with costs of suit.

Witness my hand and the Seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 4th day of May, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff.

The Newest Style

OF

Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies'
Wear, etc., etc.

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES, PEANUTS WALNUTS, TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" WARE.

RESTORE YOUR VIGOR.

Catarrh, cents on plus on be absorbed in nasal passages, [illegible] or risk. Instant relief [illegible] Home treatment. [illegible] Sends complete [illegible] Home Treatment [illegible]

HALE BROS. & CO.

If you have never tried for the benefits others derive from our prices, prompt and careful service given through the

MAIL ORDER DEPARTMENT.

Send us a trial order 'twill be conclusive evidence that our business methods are right and large and growing patronage merited.

ITEMS OF EXCEPTIONAL VALUE.

MEN'S DRAB HATS with wire brim ventilated all around sweatband makes a desirable head covering for outdoors summer wear; price 50 cents Also a line of Cork hats at same price.

MEN'S SUMMER SUITS in some 20 different patterns of either light or dark coloring, comes in sack or frock styles at the popular price of $10.

CHILDREN'S SUITS in all the new designs and colorings of light or dark. Ages 4 to 14 years; price $3.50 $4.00 and $5.00.

HALE'S $2 50 Shoes for men have proved a great success and are without doubt the best value of a medium priced dress shoe to be had anywhere, any style last, tip toe or plain in either hook and lace or gaiter style; price $2.50.

GENTS' domestic balbriggan underwear, a good imitation of the imported, of plain unbleached color, an extra strong value at 50 cts. per garment.

FOR HOUSE KEEPERS.

AN extra value in a heavy unbleached double damask table linen 58 in. wide, all linen and will wash white; price 50 cents per yard.

AN extra value in already bleached double damask table linen 58 in. wide, pretty scroll patterns, pure linen, and not weighed with any inferior substance; price 50 cts. per yd.

A bargain in Ladies medium weight cotton hose; absolutely fast black, perfect in shape and finish, comes in boxes of ½ doz., for $1.00 per box, which we do not break.

HALE'S 10 cent boxes of note paper contain a quire of fine satin finish and 24 envelopes.

HALE BROS. & CO.

825, 827, 829, 831, 833, 835 K St., and 1026 Ninth street.

Sacramento, Calif.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS. WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neihboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finer Rings, Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the est quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packaes to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,

0-m RENO, NEVADA.

DO YOU SUFFER?

Rheumatism, Fits [epilepsy] Scrofula, Liquor, Morphine or Tobacco Habit, quickly and permanently cured by the wonderful BI-CHLORIDE of GOLD treatment.

RHEUMATISM (The uric acid entirely expelled from the blood) Cured in from five to thirty days.

FITS (Epilepsy) Permanently cured; no return of the disease from two to four weeks treatment.

SCROFULA And the worst cases of inherited blood taint quickly and permanently cured.

DRUNKENESS Opium, Morphine or Tobacco habit cured 10 to 20 days.

No restriction or publicity. Patients cured at their own homes. 40,000 sufferers cured in 8 years.

Full particulars without charge, address

DR. WOOD BI-CHLORIDE OF GOLD INSTITUTE,
215 Powell St., San Francisco Cal

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.

Bee Keeper.

Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STOCKTON, CAL., Dec. 19th, '92.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.

Gentlemen:—Having read one of your Treatise on the Horse and seeing the Spavin Cure advertised, I thought I would try it. I had one horse with a prominent Spavin of 12 months standing. I removed it with 3 bottles. I tied upon one foot on same side the spavin was and compelling the horse to rest on lame leg while I took a surcingle and drew it across the hock or spavin until the hock or spavin got very warm with the friction, then putting on Spavin Cure. I had a mare that had a running from her nose for 12 or 14 months. I rubbed the Spavin Cure from her eyes down to nostrils, then from back of jaw bone down under the throat for a week. I have not seen any discharge for two months.

Yours truly, HUGH McDADE.

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Agent for

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California: Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE - CAL.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates

Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

Thos. Williams, Proprietor.

BIG BOOM ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO., Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

Customers supplied on all points

Of the C. & C. Railroad.

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

F. W. BEDFORD ..... LESSEE

Horseshoeing ..... $2.00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see
F. W. BEDFORD.

INDEPENDENCE

MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROEPER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef, Mutton, Pork, Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every ort made to give satisfaction to patrons.
j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies

PROVISIONS, &c., &c., &c.

A. K. EUGLEY,
Bi Pine, Cal.

BELL'S Flouring Mills

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

Independence, Cal. A. N. BELL,

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R.

TAKING EFFECT

Sunday, November 16,

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House	11:30 p. m.	5.50 p. m.
Dayton	12:00 p. m.	5:10 p. m.
Wabuska	2:05 p. m.	2:50 p. m.
Hawthorne	5:50 p. m.	11:10 a. m.
Luning	7:05 p. m.	9:55 a. m.
Sodа Springs	8:05 p. m.	9:15 a. m.
Belleville	9:15 p. m.	7:55a. m.
Candelaria	Ar. 10.00 p. m.	Lv. 7:20 a. m.
	No. 3.	No. 4.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Belleville	8:20 a. m.	5:25 p. m.
Benton	11:50 a. m.	1:35 a. m.
Bishop Creek	2:00 p. m.	11:00 a. m.
Alvord	2:45 p. m.	10:40 a. m.
Independence	4:20 p. m.	8:30 a. m.
Lone Pine	5:10 p. m.	7:40 a. m.
Keeler	Ar. 5:55 p. m.	Lv. 7:00 a. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (36 miles); Bodie (33 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downieville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stages for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma, Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - Cal

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and Livery Accommodations in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of WINES, LIQUORS, & CIGARS

The most careful attention given to the the amusement and comfort of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-12 td

Inyo Stage Company.

REGULAR LINE

—FROM—

Mojave To Keeler.

FINE COACH FAST STOCK.

The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful

Redrock Canyon

And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.

Stage leaves Mojave, TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS at 6 o'clock p. m

Stage leaves Keeler, MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS at 7 o'clock a. m.

W. K. MILLER, Propr.

There are a few people left who still follow antiquated methods of raising bread, biscuit, cake and pastry with home-made mixtures of what they suppose to be cream of tartar and soda, compounded haphazard, but there are very few

The best housekeepers use the Royal Baking Powder instead. Its scientific composition insures uniform results. By its use alone can the finest flavored, most wholesome food be produced. To any housekeeper who has not used the Royal Baking Powder we would like to send our Cook Book, free. Mark your request "For instruction."

Royal Baking Powder Company,

106 Wall Street, New-York.

SPLENDID PROGRESS.

The Peoples Home Savings Institution.

In nothing has the character of the industrial population of this city exhibited itself with greater force than in the general habit of saving their surplus earnings. It indicates a far-seeing resolve to earn a home for their later years, and to lay by something for possible emergencies. The state has a watchful care for its citizens, and surrounds those institutions which receive and invest the savings of the poor with such severe restrictions that nowadays a loss is impossible except under the most careless and criminal management.

The Peoples Home Savings Bank at 805 Market Street is one of these institutions that commends itself to the most vigilent official. It was founded only four years ago, and in its directory are men of wealth and financial ability, whose standing in the community assure sagacious management and invite unlimited confidence.

The last report of the bank shows that its deposits amounted on the first of January, 1893, to $2,065,000, an increase for the year of over $400,000. It pays interest from the date of deposit, and in the last six months of 1892 the depositors received ½ per cent on term deposits and 4 1-6 per cent on the ordinary deposits.

The president is Columbus Waterhouse; vice-president, F. V. McDonald; secretary and manager, J. E. Farnum, and Dorn & Dorn are its attorneys. The Pacific Bank is the treasurer.

Curiosities of Composition.

The following items are from papers on English history, and should be weighed, considered, chewed and digested:

"Alfred the Great was the first to introduce time, which he did by means of candles."

"Roger Bacon, by means of his custom of writing books, became very poor."

"The pope wished him (Roger Bacon) to write, but paper and pencils were so dear that he could not do so till some time after, when he wrote a book called 'Opus Majus.'"

"Van Tromp swept the channel with a brougham at his masthead."

"Newton invented the fluxions of light."

"Marlborough is first heard of at the battle of Turenne."

"Cranmer was a weak minded man and went to the steak recanting."

"Eliot was one of the best cloquists in England."

"The clergy clung to the king because they were afraid of the Lollards, and the king turned merchant and made vast sums of money."

"William I was very strong and had a savage countenance and never allowed himself to be tampered with."

"The friars were instituted by religious fanatics who did not like monks who only drank wine and eat."

"Lottery loans were loans borrowed and repaid at very low interest. But some of the money which was borrowed government in repaying it—the people who put it were chosen by lot, and had it paid back at a very high interest."

"Newton invented the laws of gravitation and the motions of the planets."—All the Year Round.

Climbing a Cocoanut Tree.

Cocoanuts when ripe fall to the ground, and when necessary are plucked by men who climb up. It sometimes makes one's blood run cold to see them run up the trees like monkeys.

Two ways are practiced for mounting the trunk. In the case of a small tree, or at an odd moment, the man walks up the trunk, keeping his feet flat against it and throwing his weight back from it as much as possible, retaining his position at the same time by the tension of his arms.

The other and safer plan is to pass a loop of cord around the feet, which are thus kept close together, and grasp the trunk of the tree, the arms in the meantime assisting the climber, who moves upward in a series of jumps.—Frank Leslie's Monthly.

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.....

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

"August Flower"

"I have been afflicted with biliousness and constipation for fifteen years and first one and then another preparation was suggested to me and tried, but to no purpose. A friend recommended August Flower and words cannot describe the admiration in which I hold it. It has given me a new lease of life, which before was a burden. Its good qualities and wonderful merits should be made known to everyone suffering with dyspepsia and biliousness." JESSE BARKER, Printer, Humboldt, Kas.

S. F. N. U. No. 573. New Series No. 24

The Coming Game in England.

At the Queen's club, West Kensington, an exhibition was given of the new lawn game Tema, which has recently been introduced. The game, which can be played with equal enjoyment by both sexes, possesses many claims to popular favor. It can be followed in any season, and by as few as four or as many as fourteen persons at once. Skill, agility and a good eye are far more requisite than mere physical strength, and the proper manipulation of the wand by means of quick wrist turns develops and renders flexible the muscles of the arm and wrist.

A screen of wood or canvas, fixed in a light frame, and having in the center a circular aperture eighteen inches in diameter is erected. Behind the hole is fixed a bag net, and the main object of the players, who stand some distance away, is to throw a number of colored balls by means of the wand into this bag. The wand has at one end a peculiar shaped crook for holding the ball, but some little skill is necessary to retain the ball in it for the purpose of making the throw. The number of "pot balls" to be scored by each side before it can complete the first stage of the game corresponds with the number of players on each side.

When either side has scored the number of "pot balls" agreed upon, it enters upon the second stage and it once obtains a single "zoned" ball. Whichever side then first succeeds in scoring its "zoned ball" wins the game. The public exhibition of the new pastime was witnessed with interest, and a favorable opinion of its merits was expressed by many of the spectators.—London News.

Two Illustrious Invalids.

Gounod is at his villa at St. Cloud, and is reported to be in very bad health. In fact he has been forbidden by his physician not only to undertake any work, but even to receive callers. The Count de Lesseps is also in very feeble health, and he does not rally from the attack which prostrated him after the investigations into the affairs of the Panama canal were commenced. But when a man has reached the age of eighty-seven every illness that seizes him at once assumes an alarming aspect.

It is no wonder that the "grand old Frenchman" should have collapsed during the past few weeks, especially since the seizure of the books and papers of the company has been effected, an operation which took place some days ago. The once busy and animated scene which the offices on the Rue Caumartine were wont to present has been exchanged for a dreary aspect of desertion. The long years of misplaced public confidence are ended at last.—Paris Cor. Philadelphia Telegraph.

The Thrasher's Song.

Ah, these are gay times up in the country, for the song of the thrasher will soon be heard in the big farmyard, and the women folk will be hard pressed indeed to make pie and doughnuts enough to satify those hungry men.

Thrashing time is always welcome on the farm where I have been. It seems like a touch of winter gayety injected into the midst of summer. Of course I am talking now of the thrashing of winter wheat. The big thrashing machine goes from farm to farm and the men board around, take turns in helping out one another, and spark the girls with zeal mingled with discretion.

Thrashing, the farmer's wife tells me, is the hungriest work there is, and you would think so if you could see those fellows eat. A crock of doughnuts melts away like butter before a roaring fire, and as for pie, potatoes or pancakes, you have to hustle to keep up with them.

Mrs. Bradley Martin's Diamonds.

Mrs. Bradley Martin's diamond tiara is, perhaps, the most magnificent one owned by any woman not of royal lineage. As a rule, tiaras carry only small and inferior gems, which combined make a fairly good showing, but Mrs. Martin's is composed of carefully selected diamonds. Many are rare solitaires. The seven points of the tiara are tipped with single gems, each of great value. The cost of the ornament, which was made in London, is acknowledged by Mrs. Martin herself to have been considerably more than $100,000. A necklace of rubies that once belonged to Marie Antoinette is among the treasures of Mrs. Bradley Martin's jewel collection. It cost a small fortune.—New York Sun.

A Belled Buzzard.

A buzzard with a bell about its neck was found dead in the cornfield of Cornelius H. Shipley, near Gist, about six miles from Westminster, a few days ago. A small bell was attached to its neck by a wire. On the tongue or clapper of the bell was the Roman numeral I and the letter D. For several years past a buzzard, carrying a bell in the manner thus described, has been seen in many and widely separated places in the western counties of Maryland. Whether this is the same bird is not known.—Baltimore Sun.

At a fire in Georgia, there being no water at hand, some little colored boys pelted it with watermelons which were growing in a neighboring field, and the melons bursting soon quenched the flames.

The Hidden Will.

Amanda M. Douglas in the Boston True Flag.

Dora would fain have declined, but Olive pushed on in gay unconcern. It was well her eyes or suspicions were not very acute, or she would have discovered some traces of Mr. Chorley's recent search. Dora fairly trembled, and was thankful when they reached the hall.

"I may as well take the key home, I suppose," Olive exclaimed. "Papa might happen to ask about it."

"Oh, not now," said the frightened Dora. "I want it a few days longer."

"Very well. But how oddly you act, Dora; and first you are pale, then crimson—what is the matter?"

"Nothing;" and Dora laughed to hide her agitation, walking with her companion to the end of the garden, and promising to come over early the next morning.

"It is too bad," Dora said, vehemently, when she returned, "that the Hartons should have come back just now."

"I must be expeditious in my search," returned Mr. Chorley. "If you will not be frightened, I think that I should like to work a little to-night."

Both ladies consented. When Jane returned she was informed Mr. Allingham Chorley had come to search the tower and desired the strictest silence on the matter. He accepted Dora's invitation to come down to tea, and Jane declared in confidence to her young mistress as she was washing up the tea things "that she almost hoped Mr. Chorley would find the will, he was such a nice looking, pleasant young gentleman."

On the third day Dora was alarmed by seeing Mr. Harton walk rapidly up the path with a flushed and angry face. She was glad her mother had gone to ride with the doctor, and confronted Mr. Harton with all the bravery she could summon. He rudely demanded the key of the tower, and told Dora that she had no right to enter it, that it was his property and he had let her mother no privilege whatever. She took the key from the nail and handed it to him, much relieved when she saw him turn away.

As if reconsidering, he wheeled suddenly round and marched straight to the tower door. Dora sprang forward, her heart beating in great bounds, and said, with sudden vehemence:

"Let me go, too; please do."

"Get away!" And he pushed her roughly aside.

She sank down on the floor in strange, breathless pain, and listened with intense eagerness for some sound. At last she heard it—too surely. Mr. Chorley had been discovered. Half an hour elapsed before Mr. Harton came down, and then he strode through the hall and garden like a madman.

Dora ran out doors eagerly and gave a glance to the window by which Mr Chorley had entered. Moment after moment she watched, hoping to see him escape, but all was silent as the grave. Wringing her hands, she said, over and over again:

"What can I do for him? How shall I save him?"

Jane was equally perturbed, and even Mrs. Bertrand, though she tried to be very impartial, could not repress her sympathy, and even began to plan some mode of assisting him. But she had hardly laid aside her bonnet, when Mr Harton and his myrmidons reappeared.

Allingham Chorley had just time to slip a tiny note in Dora's hand, unperceived by Mr. Harton, as he passed through the hall, closely guarded. It contained these words:

DEAR LITTLE FRIEND—Do not be disturbed on my account. I have been rather unlucky, but it will come right in the end, I am convinced. I was in the observatory when Mr. Harton entered, so had no chance of escape. Please do not answer any questions if you can avoid them. I shall send for a legal friend of mine immediately, and when he comes I have a favor to ask of you.

Your grateful friend, A. C.

Before night Chorley Cliffs and the village were in a high state of excitement, and the wildest stories were circulated. Jane resolutely refused to admit any of her gossiping cronies, and busied herself about Mrs. Bertrand.

In a few days it was settled that the case was quite strong against Mr. Chorley. In order to relieve the Bertrands from suspicion, he had frankly stated to Mr. Harton how he gained admission One of the men who had been in the boat, and rescued Mr. Harton from a watery grave on the occasion of Mr. Chorley's first visit, suddenly remembered with great distinctness that he had seen the two men quarreling, and that Mr. Chorley had pushed his antagonist off the cliff. He was ready to swear to this on the trial, which would soon be brought on. Mr. Harton visited Mrs. Bertrand and obligingly offered to release her, if she wished to leave the house before her term expired. She would have done this at once but for Dora's persuasion. The young girl could not analyze the strange tie that bound her to the place, but she pleaded earnestly to remain until October, as their original plan had been.

Just time to slip a tiny note in Dora's hand.

The friend that Mr. Chorley had sent for was a long while making his appearance, as the summons followed him from place to place, being always a little too late. He arrived a few days before the trial, and, calling on Miss Bertrand, brought her another note from Mr. Chorley. In this he said he had searched everywhere except under the study floor, and he wished now to have this done under the supervision of his friend, Mr. Townley, who was to defend him on the trial. It was his desire Dora should be present through the search.

Mr. Harton gnashed his teeth in impotent rage when he found he could not prevent this. He had intended to demolish the tower at his earliest convenience, but his daughter's marriage and the approaching trial had demanded too much of his attention to allow him to engage in it immediately. But he was present when the workmen began to remove the floor, and never left them for an instant.

It seemed as if this would be as unsuccessful as all the rest. No casket or package of any kind was found. Dora drew a long sigh of disappointment.

"I am afraid we must be convinced now," Mr. Townley said to her.

"I hope your client will be satisfied," was Mr. Harton's sneering retort. "We will adjourn now, if you please."

Dora followed reluctantly. Stepping from beam to beam, a nail caught her dress, and she stooped to unfasten it. She was in the center of the room, where the oaken table and high backed chair generally stood, and, pausing, a curious place in the beam attracted her attention. Calling to Mr. Townley, he began to examine it.

"Hand me a chisel," he said to one of the workmen; and slipping it in a little crevice, which looked as if at some time a square had been cut out and replaced, a vigorous wrench brought up the piece.

There was a cavity containing a box that looked like dingy, rusted iron. Mr. Townley brought it up to light with an air of triumph, while Mr. Harton staggered back in ghostly whiteness.

"We will open it," Mr. Townley said "There are a sufficient number of witnesses;" and, failing to force the lock drew off the hinges. Yes, there was the will. Dora could not repress a glad cry of joy.

Mr. Townley glanced it over, and then said to Mr. Harton:

"Can you tell me the date of your will?"

"Fifteenth of May, 18—. It was drawn up the last time Capt. Chorley was at home."

"This will is dated five years before that, but there is a codicil attached which bears the date of May 24."

Mr. Harton gave a despairing groan Mr. Townley proceeded to read it. By the first will the property was divided equally between the two boys; the codicil provided, if Harold, who was then married, should die childless, his wife should retain only a life interest in the portion, and at her death it should revert to Vincent. The same provision was made for Harold, if Vincent should die first and childless.

During this reading a new thought had occurred to Mr. Harton. He would make his antagonist prove this will was written by Capt. Chorley before he left the Cliffs on his last voyage. It might be impossible to find the date of his going. So, although angry and disappointed, he declared he would contest the will to the last point.

Then the two lawyers went to work with avidity to hunt up the missing date. Mr. Townley was successful Capt. Chorley had remained at the Cliff two days after making the addition to his will. Allingham Chorley's claim was established beyond a doubt.

How the document Mrs. Chorley discovered ever came into existence remained forever a secret. Mr. Harton was found dead in his bed the next morning, the passion and excitement of the last few days having culminated in an attack of heart disease. He had forbidden Olive to visit at the Cliffs, but now Mrs. Bertrand and Dora went to comfort the poor child. Clara and her husband were suddenly recalled home, the latter excessively indignant at the turn affairs had taken, and utterly refusing to do anything for Olive. If it pained or humiliated Clara to know she had been married solely for her wealth, she made no sign to those about her.

With his master's eye no longer upon him, the witness against Allingham Chorley wavered and grew confused, and finally admitted that it might have been an accident. The prisoner was honorably discharged, and warmly congratulated on his good fortune.

The first use he made of his freedom was to walk over to the Cliffs. Dora stood at the gate. She had so much to say, yet her eyes drooped under the gaze that met hers, and a strange, sweet crimson suffused her cheeks. He took both white hands in his, and kissed the sweet, silent mouth, and then, instead of going in immediately, walked up and down with her under the trees.

Late that evening they finished the conversation. She did it on this wise:

"I want you to ask poor Olive to come and live with us. She has lost everything, you know."

"And we have gained everything—fortune, love and friends. I believe I owe most of them to you, so you shall have your wish. We will try to make Olive happy."

They kept their word. To this day Olive insists that Dora discovered the ghost of the tower, and the sweet wife says, laughingly:

"A very substantial ghost."

THE END.

How Will Vacations Affect Education?

I do not know that an effect of summer migration on the country school is often observable. Exceptional instances exist, and cases may be numerous. The increasing disposition of families to prolong their stay in the country beyond the limits of the city school vacation suggests that the time may not be far distant when those who control the village schools will adjust the terms and studies so as to enable children from the city to continue work during a portion of their stay.

The similarity of courses in all graded schools favors this transfer, and by painstaking a fair adjustment might be reached. This would take away from many city families a chief objection to prolonging their sojourn, and would result in a positive benefit to the inhabitants. Lacking some such arrangement, the migratory habit must soon lead to the establishment of private schools in some districts to accommodate temporary residents. — Edward Hungerford in Century.

An Honest Deacon.

"I believe the world is honest," is the conclusion of a prominent real estate man. "Last Sunday I went to church, and when the plate was passed I dropped in a coin which was plugged—there are still a few in circulation—and after the service the deacon who had waited on me handed back the coin. But he deserved no special credit for that. I know a dozen fellows who did the same thing."—Chicago Tribune.

Four Rare Birds.

The Zoological society has just acquired two specimens of the apteryx in addition to the two which have been already exhibited for some months. All the four birds are temporarily placed in the tortoise house pending alterations in the insect house, which will be their permanent resting place. These birds should be attractive to the visitor for several reasons. In the first place, they are somewhat difficult to catch a glimpse of. Fortunately for themselves—for they have no doubt flourished and multiplied on account of this very habit—but unfortunately for the public, they are nocturnal; the rarity of their appearance will therefore add to their interest when they are seen.

In the second place, they are remarkable even among "wingless" birds for the very rudimentary character of their wings, which a life entirely devoted to a nightly hunt after worms has almost improved away altogether; but if the apteryx has no wings worthy the name, it has a pair of very stout legs which allow it to hurry over the ground at a very respectable rate, and to defend itself by vigorous kicks. The apteryx only occurs in New Zealand, and it has been said to make its nest in a way which seems very characteristic of its antipodean habitat. Instead of depositing its eggs in a nest and then sitting upon them, the apteryx first buries its egg and then digs a hole underneath it, in which it remains, and thus sits not upon but under the nest. It must be admitted, however, that this statement has been disputed.—London Daily News.

Why Silk Is So Expensive.

To produce sufficient silk to make a dress requires more time and capital than most people would imagine. If we take one and a quarter pounds as the weight of pure silk required, this would be equal to two pounds of raw silk. To produce two pounds of raw silk would require the entire silk obtained from 7,000 to 8,000 worms, allowing a percentage for death by disease and other casualties.

It may be interesting to state that these young worms when newly hatched would scarcely weigh one-quarter of an ounce, yet in the course of their life, which only lasts some thirty to thirty-five days, they will consume about 300 to 400 pounds of leaves and increase in weight about 9,000 times.

Consumers of silk will not wonder at its high value when they consider that to raise two pounds of raw silk so much time and money is required. Besides the original cost of the eggs or young worms, they require feeding at regular intervals daily with mulberry leaves, and consume the above weight of leaves during their life. This is a large item of expense if the cultivator does not grow and gather his own leaves, but is compelled to purchase them.—Textile Mercury.

Mr. Lower says that there were lately living in a small town in Kent fifteen persons whose hereditary name was Hall, but who, for the sake of distinction, bore the elegant designations of Dogg Hall, Feathertoe, Bumper, Bubbles, Pierce Eye, Faggots, Cula, Jiggery, Pumble Foot, Cold Flip, Silver Eye, Lumpy, Sutty, Thick Lips and Old Hare.

PROVED TO BE THE BEST.

Tested and proved by over thirty years' use in all parts of the world, ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS have the indorsement of the highest medical and chemical authorities and millions of grateful patients who have been cured of distressing ailments voluntarily testify to their merits.

ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS are purely vegetable. They are mild but effective, sure and quick in their action, and absolutely harmless.

Beware of imitations, and do not be deceived by misrepresentation. Ask for ALLCOCK'S, and let no solicitation or explanation induce you to accept a substitute.

Curious enough, the Island of Man is the isle of woman. Manx women have the full right of suffrage.

Pfunder's Oregon Blood Purifier is the best remedy for cleansing your system.

Nobody likes men with furious tempers; no one cares to live with a woman who has a vixenish tongue.

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell.

Try Germea for Breakfast.

JUST A LITTLE

pain neglected, may become

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, SCIATICA, LUMBAGO.

Just a little

SPRAIN

may make a cripple.

Just a little

BRUISE

may make serious inflammation.

Just a little

BURN

may make an ugly scar.

Just a little

COST

will get a bottle of

ST. JACOBS OIL,

A PROMPT and PERMANENT CURE.

Years of Comfort against Years of Pain for

JUST A LITTLE.

A copy of the "Official Portfolio of the World's Columbian Exposition," descriptive of Buildings and grounds, beautifully illustrated, in water color effects, will be sent to any address upon receipt of 10c. in postage stamps by THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., BALTIMORE, MD.

DROPSY

TREATED FREE.

Positively Cured With Vegetable Remedies.

Have cured thousands of cases. Cure cases pronounced hopeless by best physicians. From first dose symptoms disappear, in ten days at least two-thirds all symptoms removed. Send for free book testimonials of miraculous cures. Ten days' treatment free by mail. If you order trial, send 10c. in stamps or pay postage. DR. H. H. GREEN & SONS, Atlanta, Ga. If you order trial return this advertisement to us.

DR. GUNN'S IMPROVED LIVER PILLS

A MILD PHYSIC

ONE PILL FOR A DOSE.

A movement of the bowels each day is necessary for health. These pills supply what the system lacks to make it regular. They cure Headache, brighten the Eyes and clear the Complexion better than cosmetics. They act mildly, neither gripe nor sicken as other pills do. To convince you of their merits we will mail samples free, or a full box for 25 cents. Sold everywhere. Bosanko Med. Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by Druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

HOITT SCHOOL ACCREDITED BY THE UNIVERSITIES.

Hoitt's Oak Grove School has been placed on the list of schools whose graduates are admitted to the State University wit out examination. Dr. Hoitt's recommendation is also good for admission to the Stanford University. This school is located near Millbrae, san Mateo county, and ranks as one of the best and most popular schools for boys on the Pacific Coast.—San Francisco Chronicle, June 2 1893.

Nothing more completely baffles one who is full of trick and duplicity than straightforward and simple integrity in another.

COMPLETELY UPROOTED.

How many remedies there are which merely relieve without uprooting disease. The contrast with sterling medicines which such palliatives afford, not only enhances the dignity of the former, but serves to emphasize the folly of employing half-way measures when thorough ones are available. A marked instance of this is the effect, on the one hand, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in cases of chills and fever and bilious remittent, and on the other of ordinary remedies in maladies of this type. By the Bitters, malarial complaint in every stage, and of the most malignant type, are completely conquered and lose their hold upon the system. They are rarely, if ever, displaced by the ordinary resources of medicine, although their symptoms may unquestionably be mitigated through such means. The same holds good of indigestion, biliousness, kidney complaint, rheumatism, nervousness and debility. By the Bitters they are cured when many remedies fail.

When you make a mistake don't look back at it long. Take the reason of the thing into your mind and then look forward.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Son—That's my fault, father. Why doesn't the landlady wipe it off?

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED.

We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Porterfield & Losey, 838 Market Street, San Francisco.

Jagson says a church is like a woman in one respect—unless it is in debt it is dead.

ROOT AND BRANCH, the poison in your blood, however it may have come or whatever shape it may be taking, is cleared away by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It's a remedy that rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, and through it cleanses and invigorates the whole system. Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, Enlarged Glands, and the worst Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, are perfectly and permanently cured by it.

Unlike the ordinary Spring medicines or sarsaparillas, the "Discovery" works equally well at all seasons. All the year round and in all cases, it is guaranteed, as no other blood medicine is. If it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. You pay only for the good you get.

Isn't it safe to say that no other blood-purifier can be "just as good?"

If it were, wouldn't it be sold so?

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail. Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER 25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. INJECTOR

Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50cts. Injector free.

Mr. W. H. Toles
San Francisco, Cal.

To Prevent Illness

There is Nothing Equal to Hood's Sarsaparilla.

"In my opinion, one of the greatest mistakes people make is to lock the door after the horse is stolen, or in other words, to wait until they are sick in bed before they do anything for the poor body. Neither my wife nor myself were real sick; I attended to my business, and my wife to her household duties daily. But we had dull, heavy headaches, and a little over exertion would tire us greatly, and my appetite was very poor. So I bought three bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took one, and my wife nearly all of the other two, and the result was perfectly satisfactory. The effect was like magic, and I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla saved us a severe sickness and a big doctor's bill. If people would only remember that 'an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure,' there would be less suffering in the world. My advice to all who are not feeling well is take Hood's Sarsaparilla according to directions, and you will be well and happy." W. H. Toles, 145 12th Street, San Francisco, Cal.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

HOOD'S PILLS cure Constipation by restoring the peristaltic action of the alimentary canal.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

$75.00 to $250.00 can be made monthly working for B. F. JOHNSON & CO., RICHMOND, VA.

LADIES CAN MAKE $100.00 monthly, no book canvassing or peddling, done at home, cut this out and send with your name and address for particulars to J. J. EVANS, 406 California st., San Francisco, California. (P. & R.

IRON BEDS, $6.00.

Fine Bedding, Hair Mattresses, Floss Mattresses, Wire Mattresses, and Pillows.

Send for Catalogue.

W. A. SCHROCK 21 NEW MONTGOMERY ST. San Francisco, Cal.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE

Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING For sale by all Druggists. 25 Cents a bottle.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES

ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BO-SAN-KO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

TAKE PFUNDER'S OREGON BLOOD PURIFIER. CURES KIDNEY & LIVER DISEASES, DYSPEPSIA, PIMPLES, BLOTCHES AND SKIN DISEASES, HEADACHE, COSTIVENESS. PURE BLOOD

YOUNG MEN! The Specific A No. 1. Cures, without fail, all cases of Gonorrhœa and Gleet, no matter of how long standing. Prevents stricture, it being an internal remedy. Cures when everything else has failed. Sold by all Druggists. Manufacturers: The A. Schoenhelt Medicine Co., San Jose, Cal. Price, $3.00.

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF

Moore's Revealed Remedy.

ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude MRS. N. V. STEELE.

SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

"DON'T BORROW TROUBLE." BUY

SAPOLIO

'TIS CHEAPER IN THE END.

HERCULES GAS AND GASOLINE ENGINES STATIONARY AND MARINE

For simplicity and success they beat the world!

Clean, no ashes, smell or dirt.

No engineer is necessary; they are easily managed.

Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question.

No battery or electric spark to care for.

No double or false explosions, so frequent with the unreliable spark.

The workmanship is the very best.

Our ignition tubes are a success; they explode every charge of gas which enters the cylinder.

Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day.

For pumping outfits for irrigating purposes they run all day without an engineer.

For hoisting outfits in mines they have met with the highest approval We give estimates on the entire plant.

Hercules Marine Engines for Launches, Schooners, Tow Boats, Etc.

PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY

MANUFACTURER

405-407 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

Independence, Cal.

FRIDAY, JULY 21, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXV. NO. 5. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JULY 21, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1186

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$1 00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.00
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

DEATH OF A KNOWING CAT.

A Connecticut Feline That Was Universally Liked and Petted.

Tommy Tucker is no more. Hartford's well known cat bid farewell to earth after an eventful life of 15 years. Few cats enjoy the honorable career that had been the lot of Tommy Tucker. When a little mite of a kitten, with no claim to pedigree and with no home, he wandered into the paper warerooms of E. Tucker's Sons, on Trumbull street. He made friends, and from that day until his death he found a comfortable home.

Only once in all his life did he leave his home for a brief interval. Two years ago he was locked out one night. Not appreciating what he considered an injustice, he started for the home of Mr. Tucker on Edwards street. He failed to reach the home of his master, and also lost his bearings as to the location of the store. For seven days he was not seen at the warerooms, when he was returned by a lady who found him and recognized him as Tommy Tucker. During the seven days he lost seven pounds of flesh. His joy at finding his home was manifested as only a cat can show joy.

Tommy was a handsome cat. He was of the tiger variety, with a good showing of long white fur. His nose, breast and front feet were white, which were kept scrupulously clean at all times, as well as the rest of the body. The light and dark marking was sharply defined and the features were strong. The eyes were big and bright as new Columbian half dollars and the whiskers long. Tommy when in his prime weighed 17 pounds. In his old age he weighed somewhat less.

Tommy could perform many tricks and seemed very fond of his accomplishments. He would shake the hands of visitors and sit up when asked to. He was especially fond of ladies and in suitable weather would sit in front of the store to receive the attentions showered upon him by the admiring passersby. When young Tommy was fed with milk, and each morning a bowl was placed in front of the store with 5 cents to pay the milkman, it was the custom of the cat to look into the bowl to make sure that the money was not forgot ten. At times when the dust was blowing a cover would be placed over the bowl. Tommy was bound to find out if the nickel was in the bowl, and would push the cover off. If the coin was seen, he would rest content until the milkman arrived, but if the bowl was empty he would make the fact known by an unusual activity between the office and the store front. —Hartford Times.

How a Whale Fights.

Approaching a whale at all times is like going into battle, notwithstanding the abandon of the fishermen. Have no fear that the right whale will swallow you. He could not do so even if he were so disposed, as his gullet is only large enough to admit a good sized herring. The sperm whale could swallow a man if he desired to do so, but he is no more inclined to swallow a man—particularly with his clothes on—than you would be to swallow a small bird with its feathers. But he will crush you in his ponderous jaws if he is a fighting bull, and eject you in detail.

He will also chew up and spit out pieces of the demolished boat, break up the wooden utensils floating upon the water and fight every piece of wood until more than seven baskets of fragments may be taken up, and having tired himself out in this way he will lay off, angrily slapping the water with his fins, and challenge some other boats, or perhaps, in rare cases, attack the vessel.—J. T. Brown in Century.

Not Big Pay For City Men.

Two young fellows who were taking a pedestrian tour through the Berkshire hills recently lost their way after making the ascent of Mount Everett, and at nightfall were glad to seek quarters at a lonely farmhouse. The woman in charge got up an excellent supper, killing a chicken for them, gave them clean, comfortable beds and had a savory breakfast ready in the morning. When they asked how much they should pay her, she replied in a deprecating way that as times were a little hard she would have to charge them more than they might like to pay, but 12½ cents apiece would be satisfactory. She was astonished when they gave her $1, and probably thinks to this day that she entertained Vanderbilts unawares.—New York Sun.

The Love of Books.

A certain housekeeper, who takes a just and noble view of books, almost frightened her parlor maid into spasms by the stern reprimand which she gave her on this subject. The poor maid had just let fall one of her mistress' favorite volumes. "Never!" she uttered in a deep and trembling voice, "never drop a book in my house again. I would almost as lief have you drop the baby."—New York Times.

Louisiana's Oyster Crop.

Statistics for the year 1890 show that 189,000 barrels of oysters were fished in the state of Louisiana at a gross cost of $250,000. They were sold for $410,000, leaving a profit of $160,000. In considering these figures it should be borne in mind that the industry is in its infancy.—Chicago Tribune.

GROVES OF SIDON.

Scenes of Rare Beauty in the Ancient Phœnician City.

PARADISE OF FRUIT AND FLOWERS.

Phœnicia as She Appears To-day.—The Dress and Arms of its People.—Black Tents of Kedar.

The dewdrops glittered in the light of the just rising sun, and the air was heavy with sweet odors of hundreds of orange and lemon trees with white blossoms. The scene was a picture of marvelous fertility. Orange thickets, yellow and white with their double burden of fruit and flowers; lemon, apricot and fig trees, interspersed with the more tropical palm and date, all growing in the greatest luxuriance. At times we saw the queer shaftlike leaves of the banana, often 10 feet in length. An occasional mulberry orchard explained the presence of an enterprising silk manufactory near by. Every few yards little brooks babbled along, the absolute essential of this luxuriance.

It is not strange that this paradise of flowers and fruit is much frequented by the inhabitants of the crowded, dirty town. No one can ride through these fair gardens and fail to perceive why the worship of the old Sidonians was so closely connected with the grove, and how from nature's rich profusion about them they learned to worship the idea of fertility, which was the essence of their religion. The ancient Sidon, too, was not crowded down close by the sea, but was situated farther back in the plain, and thus was enriched by a ring of emerald.

On the outskirts of the gardens we came to the catacombs of old Sidon, which have been excavated by the French. In the soft limestone rock extend long series of connected chambers which have contributed a few rude statues, several sarcophagi and mummies to the very few mementos which we have of that enterprising people who secured their alphabet in Egypt and carried it to Greece, and thus transmitted, with certain changes, the letters with which we communicate our 19th century ideas. More of the æsthetic art of Phœnicia is to be seen today in Athens than in all Palestine. There in the Mycenæ room one can see the richly inlaid daggers, the beautiful ornaments and the facsimiles of the beaten gold cups which were also manufactured by these artisans of oriental antiquity to grace the temple of Solomon at Jerusalem. Every ruin of that ancient world, whether in Phœnicia or not, when laid bare bears ample testimony to the skill and enterprise of this Semitic nation of traders.

Leaving these old tombs and the thoughts that they inspired, we were soon studying Phœnicia as she appears today. On our left extended the Lebanon range, while in the distance rose Mount Hermon, clad in snow, glistening like Pentelicus marble in the midday sun. On the right was the blue sea, into which we ere long took a plunge. Before us the narrow bridle path extended, now through fertile although only half cultivated fields, now over a rocky promontory, which often jutted into the sea. Habitations were rare and generally huddled together for protection against the Arab incursions.

On the highways we often met these modern representatives and probable descendants of the ancient Midianites. Tall, muscular fellows, with the dark Semitic countenance and black beard, clad with the striped abba, a square piece of goat hair cloth folded and sewed above the shoulders, the chief garment of the patriarchs and the mantle of Elijah the Tishbite. Underneath they wore the kimbez, the long flowing tunic, which appeared when they threw back their abbas. About their heads was tightly wrapped the silken kefiyeh, crowned with the two heavy goat hair coils, which encircled the tops of their heads like a large, black serpent. About the waist was tightly bound the girdle, adorned with huge, odd shaped knives, or, if he be a civilized Arab, with pistols.

An ugly looking speer 15 or 20 feet long completed the outfit, an outfit well calculated to engender green envy in the heart of an American cowboy. A little detour enabled us to visit the black tents of Kedar, the abode of these perennial campers out. It is a rectangular edifice 15 or 20 feet long, supported on poles which 40 or 50 centuries of inherited experience has taught them to skillfully place at exactly the right angle. This palace of thickly woven goat hair cloth is held in position by strong guy ropes. The sides are raised or lowered at will, according to the position of the sun or the direction of the wind.

Within a curtain separates the women's apartment from the common reception room. The cooking outfit, like the dwelling, is characterized by its severe simplicity, since fortunately the Arab does not demand a many course dinner, and long years of practice have taught him to dispense with a superfluity of dishes, which is generally more than one for a family.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

He Finally Paid the Fee.

A man lately went to a Lewiston clergyman with his betrothed to be married. He drew the minister aside and whispered, "I have no money." "Well, you can pay me when pay day comes around." The marriage was performed. Then the man whispered, "We want the certificate." "Well, you can have that when you pay the fee. I'll reduce the fee to $2." "Well," said the man, putting his hand into his pocket, "I may as well pay you now," and he did.—Bangor Commercial.

Beware of gorgeous red and yellow autumnal leaves and shrubs and climbing plants which are not known to be harmless. Our two poisonous native plants display the most brilliant autumnal colors of any species in our woods and byways.—Salem Gazette.

General Butler's Brain.

By his enemies General Butler was called every vile name under the sun except fool. Even the bitterest among them gave him the credit of having an extraordinary quality of brains. Butler's head, like Daniel Webster's, increased with his years. His brain weighed four ounces more than Webster's, which was one of the largest on record. The brain of a man of average intelligence weighs from 46 to 53 ounces, that of an idiot about 23 ounces, that of a woman from 41 to 47 ounces. The size of the brain was believed by the ancients to bear a general relation to intellectual capacity of the individual. Cuvier's brain weighed rather more that 64 ounces, that of Dr. Abercrombie 63 ounces, and that of Dupuytren 62½ ounces. These were men of unusual intelligence.

On the other hand, it is well known that these weights have been equaled by the brains of persons who never displayed any remarkable intellect. There was a mulatto in Cincinnati whose brain weighed 68 3-8 ounces. He had been a slave and was never regarded as particularly intelligent. He was illiterate, but is said to have been reserved, meditative and economical. The brain of Carey, the Irish informer, weighed 61 ounces.—New York Tribune.

A Dog That Recognizes a Tune.

All dogs, no more than all people, can distinguish one tune from another, but some dogs can, among them a fox terrier of birth, but it must be admitted of little breeding, called Tug. There is a family in town, living in a fourth story apartment, of which different members are apt to come home at odd hours of the night, and from one reason or another frequently without a night key. It is the custom in that case for the member outside to whistle "The Warrior Bold," a tune that dates back from old courting day signals. The family ear is now so attuned to this melody when whistled that it will waken any member out of the soundest sleep.

This sensitiveness was not supposed to extend to the dog, but the other evening a belated member, coming home just after the door was closed and aware of the pain it would give the janitor, she deftly whistled "The Warrior Bold." The family was remote, but Tug, sound asleep on her chair, heard the tune in her sleep, jumped up and ran into the room where the family was and called their attention in the liveliest barks to the tune outside.—New York Evening Sun.

Elevator Courtesies.

A few years ago every man in an elevator bared his head at the entrance of a woman. It is not so now, as every one who has occasion to enter the large office buildings knows.

In the country the courtesy is still continued. At least that is the experience of a man who entered the elevator in the Wauregan House, Norwich, Conn., recently.

The hotel is five stories in height, and the gentleman's room was on the third floor. He did not object at all when the car had ascended to the second floor to have the boy return to the office floor to take on a lady. He did think it was carrying elevator courtesy almost too far, however, when upon reaching the third landing the boy turned and said: "I'll take this lady up to her floor—the fifth—now and will let you out on the way down. You don't mind, do you?"

The man did mind, but of course, while doing a great deal of thinking, he said nothing.—New York Herald.

Art In Burmah.

The workmen of Burmah, although they have little idea of composition, are wonderfully fertile designers of details. They can all draw with freedom and grace. Their legends are full of stirring incidents and deal with a varied range of characters, from the puny human infant to the grotesque man eating monster. Their standards of masculine and feminine beauty differ from ours, but are nevertheless quite possible. Without the insight, the delicate refinement of the Japanese, they are free from the extravagance of the Chinese, and there is nothing in their art so debased as the representations of Hindoo gods.—Magazine of Art.

Prehistoric Trepanning.

One can understand how that if a piece of skull had been regarded as in contact with a demon or spirit it would be respected as an amulet, and that so the rondelles removed from the heads of men who had been subject to epileptic fits would acquire a virtue in the eyes of the ignorant and superstitious and be employed as charms. And this seems to be both the simplest and most intelligible explanation of the phenomena of hole pierced heads and of the wearing of the portions removed from those heads by men and women who had not themselves been trepanned.—Popular Science Monthly.

Musical Directions.

The following good story is told of the secretary of a musical society: A gentleman rang his doorbell one evening recently and asked if a Mr. —— lived there.

"No," said the intensely musical Henry, pointing up the street, "he lives about an octave—I mean eight doors—higher."—Exchange.

TAKEN FOR A SPY.

A Correspondent's Escape From the Hands of a Paris Mob.

SAVED FROM DEATH BY A WOMAN.

Archibald Forbes Roughly Handled by Infuriated Parisians.—Scenes After the Siege.

On the 1st of March, 1871, the day of the entry of the German troops into Paris, rather a curious experience befell me. While as yet within the German cordon in the Place de la Concorde, I observed that I was being dogged. I had no sooner passed out of the cordon than I was vehemently assailed by an angry mob, who insisted that I was a Prussian spy. A detachment of National Guards holding a police post rescued me at the bayonet point from the genial enthusiasts who were dragging me along the street on my back, with the expressed intention of drowning me in the basin of an adjacent fountain.

A good deal of my clothing had been torn off me, but that was a trifle. Overhauling myself in the police station, I discovered that along with half of my greatcoat had disappeared my notebook, which was in the pocket of the missing section of the garment. This was a most serious misfortune.

In those times I had accustomed myself to write out at full length in my notebook the description of scenes or events of which I was a witness, detailing in form ready for the printing the accounts of incident after incident as the incidents successively evolved themselves. From the summit of the tower of Longchamps I had looked down that morning on Kaiser Wilhelm's great review of his army on the race course, and my description of that remarkable scene, at least two columns long, was in the lost notebook.

One result of this concurrent writing out is that the writer's memory does not charge itself with the recollection of what has been committed to paper; and thus I had not only lost the actual "copy" already indited and out of hand, but was destitute of the power to reproduce the lost matter.

While I was internally bewailing myself, a citizen in a fine glow of triumph rushed into the police station. "Voilà!" he shouted, as he waved aloft my notebook in one hand and my coat tail in the other. "Here is damning evidence that the prisoner is a wicked spy! Here are the vilain's notes, the lies he has been writing down concerning our unhappy Paris!" I could have embraced the excited ouvrier, frowsy as he was; he had done me an incalculable benefit in his effort to seal my doom. His face was a study when, in the gladness of my heart, I offered him a five franc piece.

Presently, under an escort of National Guards, I was marched through a couple of streets to the bureau of a sitting magistrate. My companions were a gentleman in a blouse, who was accused of having stolen an ink bottle; a tatterdemalion detected in selling a couple of cigars to a Bavarian cavalryman, and a woman whom the Paris mob had stripped and painted divers colors because she had been caught parleying with a Prussian drummer.

The magistrate was so good as to deal with me first. Fortunately I was able to produce to him my British passport and my journalistic credentials. He called in his sister, who had lived in England, to assist him in deciding on the authenticity of those documents. She promptly pronounced in their favor, and his worship became immediately gracious.

He told me I was free, and was good enough to lend me an old coat in which to walk to my hotel, at the same time gracefully begging me to excuse what he termed "the little inconvenience I had experienced on account of the not unnatural excitement of the Paris populace."

The magistrate's good sister sent me to a bedroom, where I washed off the most flagrant stains of the recent unpleasantness. Outside the mob was still howling fiercely. Time was very precious to me. I could not endure to wait indefinitely, yet I did not care to offer myself to the tender mercies of the gentlemen of the pavement. The sister in this strait proved herself a ministering angel.

She said there was a door opening in a quiet side alley, and actually offered to escort me to my hotel, which was close by. As we walked I told the good soul I did not know how to thank her. Had it been her servant I could have found no difficulty in requiting the good office, but a lady——

"Oh," she broke in, "that is not so difficult. I will put my pride in my pocket. My brother has a fair salary, but he has not seen a franc of it for six months. We are gentlefolk; we cannot join the crowd outside the baker's shop, and, O mon Dieu! we are actually starving," and the poor woman burst into tears. "We could not take charity," she continued, sobbing, "but I have heard of that kind don anglais which, they say, is now being distributed freely; if only one could get a little aid from its bounty?"

We had a subdepot in my hotel; I myself was one of the accredited subalmoners; some of the commissioners were living with me. I hurried the lady into a room where there was no one to notice her emotion; then found John Furley and told him the little story.

THE PEOPLE WHO SUFFERED.

Furley is a man of energy. In five minutes a big hamper had been packed full of comestibles and a porter had it on his back, waiting for the lady's commands. With the chivalry of a fine gentleman Furley respectfully announced to her that one of his men was at her disposition. She came out into the passage, looked down at the great basket, whose open mouth disclosed inter alia a leg of mutton, a couple of fowls, a great honest loaf and sundry vegetables. She gave a great gasp and I thought she was going to faint. She was anæmic from sheer want, but she rallied, tears helping her, and then she went silently away, with her veil down over her face and the stalwart porter tramping behind her.

It was such people as those, with pride and fixed salaries which were not paid, who suffered worst during the siege; and they, too, it was who were the most difficult to relieve when the siege was over, but without as yet any alleviation of their misery. The women were the most stubborn.

The concierge would assure the almoner that the two old ladies on such an etage were literally starving. The two old ladies, when you pushed their button, would appear statelily gracious. Yes, they would say—yes, the English were a kind people, and the good God would reward them. There were some poor creatures in the roof who were in pressing need. For themselves, thanks, but no, they could not accept charity; and then the door would close on the wan eye and hollow cheeks. Ah me! it was melancholy work.—Archibald Forbes in Nineteenth Century.

A Terrible Appetite.

A prominent physician of Louisville claims to have a case which is unique in the history of medicine, and is that of a child of six years old which has developed an appetite for her own blood. The child is that of respectable parents, who are exceedingly sensitive on the subject of the little one's unheard of characteristics, and their reluctance to have the matter made public has prevented the doctor reporting the case for the benefit of the profession. He has, however, taken into consultation a famous English physician, who agrees with him in pronouncing the case unparalleled.

The child is an intelligent little girl, of a gentle disposition and apparently quite healthy. When asked why she wants to suck her blood she declares she is thirsty for it and cannot help doing it. Her singular appetite is of only about six weeks' duration, and was first noticed by her mother finding her one morning bathed in blood, with a wound torn in her forearm.

Supposing a rat had bitten her the doctor was summoned, who, questioning the child, was horrified to hear her frankly state she had inflicted the wound herself. She has repeated the act some half a dozen times since at irregular intervals, and narrowly escaped bleeding to death on one or two occasions. She has been severely punished for the act, but to no avail. Her parents declare that there is nothing in the family history to explain the thing. It is thought the child will outgrow the morbid appetite. —Philadelphia Times.

To Obviate Trolley Poles.

If the invention of Dr. Bates, of this city, stands the test of experiment the entire electric railway system of overhead wires and poles will soon be superseded by a simple conduit bolted to the center of the track. Some such invention is greatly needed. The overhead maze of wires is a constant source of delay and danger. The place for all electric wires, whether for railways, telegraphs or telephones, is underground, or properly insulated and protected in conduits, as proposed by Dr. Bates.

The main difficulty to be apprehended with the new invention is with snow and ice in winter. The slot which admits the trolley arm from the car into the conduit is protected from rain and dust by a steel strip which acts with a spring. If this strip and spring can protect the slot alike from rain and dust in summer, and from snow and ice in winter, the invention may prove to be one of the most important in years. President Lowry deems the invention to possess considerable merit, and will undoubtedly give it thorough trial.—Minneapolis Tribune.

His Hair Quickly Bleached in a Cavern.

William Gormly is a farmer in Hickory township. He has been making a tunnel in the side of the hill to a spring for the purpose of carrying water to a field below. John Grimes was employed to dig the tunnel.

When he had proceeded about thirty feet into the hill, and was about twenty feet from the surface, he found himself in a cavelike hollow, the roof of which was rock, in which there was a crack from which he could see light. When he reached the hollow, or cave, the hill apparently sank in where he had been digging, and he found himself a prisoner twenty feet under ground. He called for help, and later Mr. Gormly procured assistance, and, after working all night, released him, after being in the hole eighteen hours.

Mr. Grimes' hair was jet black when he entered the tunnel, but it turned snow white during the time he was imprisoned.—Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Ice Cure.

About two years ago a contributor to The North American Review called attention to the hygienic value of refrigeration, and predicted that climatic fevers would yet be cured in ice cooled hospitals. That prediction seems to have been verified by an actual experiment. Havana papers publish circumstantial reports from Santiago de Cuba where a Spanish physician is treating, and invariably curing, yellow fever patients in a camera polar (polar chamber), i. e., in a sanitarium reduced by means of ice to a temperature nearly 40 degs. below the average of the outdoor atmosphere. The result appears plausible enough, and the only puzzle seems why Yankee enterprise has not long ago acted upon the hint that the first night frosts put a stop to the malarial disorders of our gulf states.

New Sugar Process.

It is claimed that a new process has recently been made in the manufacture of sorghum sugar by which gum substances may be eliminated from the saccharine matter, and which will make the cane yield from fifty to seventy pounds more sugar to the ton than it has been doing. Professor Wiley, who has been experimenting in this, says that sorghum sugar will bring about three cents a pound and possibly four cents. This will give the farmer more for his product than anything else he can produce, and still leave a good profit to the manufacturer.—New York Journal.

The Voucher Was Slow, but It Came.

A case of better late than never was brought to light recently. James W. Miller, Sr., who was postmaster at Hamilton, Boone county, Ky., under President Lincoln, has received a voucher for $18 for salary due him. He was postmaster nearly thirty years ago.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Borers of the city artesian well at Fort Worth, Tex., are of the opinion that the drill will soon penetrate a huge volume of boiling water, as the temperature increases with every few feet they go down, and at last accounts was 121 degs. at a depth of 2,900 feet.

By the will of Leslie Frederick Morgan, of London, four-tenths of his estate, valued at $250,000, is to be divided into four equal shares and distributed among the poor or any deserving charities of Philadelphia, St. Louis, Chicago and San Francisco.

"DEVIL DICK."

A Reckless Teamster Who Played With Cans of Nitroglycerin.

THROWING EXPLOSIVES AT A LYNX

Holding a Package of the Deadly Stuff While Another Fellow Pitched Stones at it on a Wager.

"There were a good many reckless and dare devil chaps among those whose business it was to haul and handle nitroglycerin in the early days of that explosive agent in the oil regions," said George Place, who was one of the first to work at making and canning nitroglycerin for the wells, under the Roberts patent; "but there was a teamster named Dick Warner who would dare and risk more with the terrible stuff than any other person thereabout. He was known as Devil Dick, and it was a fit name for him. He had a chum named Dan Sutton, who was almost as reckless as Dick, and I have seen him and Dick play catch many a time with cans of glycerin they were unloading, the dropping of one of which to the ground would have more than likely wiped out of existence every person around the well.

"It got so that whenever Dick Warner had a load of nitroglycerin to unload at the well everybody else, except Dan Sutton, took to the woods and staid there until the stuff was out of their custody. Once Devil Dick held a great can of nitroglycerin above his head and let a drunken driller named Patterson throw ten stones at it from a distance of thirty feet, on a bet of twenty dollars that he couldn't hit the can once out of the ten times. This was at Roan's camp, and the whole camp watched the insane proceeding from safe distances on the hill. One of the stones hit Dick on the arm, not two inches below the can, and knocked it out of his hand. He caught the can, though, before it reached the ground, or the throwing match would have ended there and then with the burial of such bits of Dick and the driller as could be found, and they would have been exceedingly few and small. The driller came close to the can several times during the trial, but failed to hit it, and Dick won his bet.

BOMBARDING A LYNX.

"In those days the woods all through the oil regions were full of wild animals, and it wasn't an uncommon sight to see a bear or a Canada lynx or a catamount prowling round the camps or isolated oil villages. The lynx was frequently very aggressive and bold, and it was greatly feared by the drillers and others at the wells. More than once men had been attacked by lynxes, and James Carker, a pumper, was so badly hurt in fighting off one that had jumped from a tree upon him as he was driving through a piece of woods, that he died of his injuries. One day Devil Dick was on his way to a well with a load of nitroglycerin torpedoes, and he picked Dan Sutton up on the way. On a stretch of the road through what was known as Conway's woods, Dan discovered a big Canada lynx stealing along through the branches of the trees at one side of the road, and keeping even with the wagon. He called Dick's attention to the animal, and Dick said that it was watching for a chance to attack them, but declared that if it followed them as far as Clary's opening he would get rid of the dangerous beast.

"Clary's opening was a gap in the woods and a ravine twenty feet wide and as many deep. The lynx did follow the men as far as the opening, and Dick stopped his wagon.

TICKLISH SUSPENSE.

"The lynx crouched a few feet away from the edge of the nearest wall of the ravine, and before Sutton surmised how Dick intended to get rid of the animal Dick grabbed up a can of nitroglycerin and hurled it with all his strength at the lynx, which was not over twenty feet away. The can struck the soft body of the lynx square in one side and knocked the animal over on its back. The flesh and fur of the lynx did not offer resistance to the can sufficient to cause concussion enough to explode it, but the can rolled on the ground and slowly down a gradual decline that led from where the lynx lay to the edge of the ravine wall.

"Sutton, with all his recklessness in handling nitroglycerin, stood aghast at this deliberate risking of their lives by Dick, for he knew that the instant the can rolled into the ravine and struck the rocks below the terrible explosion that had been so luckily averted by Dick's good aim at the lynx would follow. Quicker than a flash he jumped from the wagon, tore like mad up the ravine, and stood beneath the spot where the torpedo would tumble into the gully when it reached the edge.

"A scraggy bush of some kind grew out of the top of the wall, and just as Sutton reached the spot the can of nitroglycerin had rolled to the edge and struck against the main stem of the bush. The can had struck it a trifle out of the center, and the heavier end of the torpedo moved on an inch or two, until it extended a little over the edge.

KILLED ON A RAILROAD.

"Sutton stood below with upreached hands to catch the can if it fell, but there it hung against the bush, in a position that looked as if a breath of wind would topple it over into the ravine.

"All this had occupied but a few seconds. As soon as the torpedo lodged against the bush Sutton ran back to the road, shouting to Dick to drive on so they could get to a safe distance before the falling of the can and its certain explosion on the rocks below. But when he got to the wagon he saw Dick with another torpedo raised, ready to hurl it after the first one. He lowered it, though, and looked around at Sutton as if he was disappointed.

"'The infernal wildcat's give me the slip, Dan, and took to the woods,' said he. 'Lord! but I'd like to bust one o' these shells on him!'

"That was probably the first and last time a wild animal was ever hunted with four-quart nitroglycerin torpedoes, and that was the last trip Devil Dick ever drove for the company he was working for. He wasn't discharged because he so recklessly endangered life and property by throwing cans of nitroglycerin at a lynx, but because he drove on from the ravine without getting back the first can he threw, and the company would not stand such a waste of their property.

"Dick handled nitroglycerin for four years after that, and never had an accident. He then quit the business and went to braking on the Allegheny Valley railroad. He was killed at Miller Farm before he had railroaded a week."—New York Sun.

A twelve-year-old Auburn boy rapped at the teller's wicket of an Auburn bank the other day, called the cashier up and asked for the loan of three dollars with which to buy a bicycle. He was that much short and had heard that they loaned money there.—Lewiston Journal.

No More Pearls from Wisconsin.

The pearl fishing craze in Wisconsin, which was at its height in numerous rivers a year ago, seems to have ended as speedily as it came. Pearls were found in the clams in many rivers, but none of any particular value was found except in Sugar and Pecatonica rivers in southern Wisconsin. Not only has the stock of pearls been exhausted, but the clams have been practically exterminated. No good pearls have been found for several months,

It is the opinion of dealers that profitable pearling in Wisconsin rivers is practically ended for several generations at least, as there are few clams remaining in the rivers which produce pearls, and it will require many years for the clams to multiply sufficiently. Besides there is no knowing how many years are required to produce the pearls, even were the clams to become numerous again. There is no means of estimating the value of the pearls taken from Sugar and Pecatonica rivers while the excitement lasted, though it would undoubtedly run far up into the thousands of dollars.

Pearls were sold in the market here for all sorts of prices, from a few shillings up to nearly $1,000. One firm in Milwaukee sold three to a New York dealer for $1,600, while hundreds of others brought prices ranging from $50 to $300, and some of the choicest were sold by New York dealers, it is said, for as high as $5,000 each. There is yet great demand for Wisconsin pearls, and their scarcity, it is believed, will tend greatly to increase their value. It is a pity that "the goose which laid the golden egg," or rather the clams which produced the pearls, should have been so ruthlessly exterminated. — Milwaukee Sentinel.

Fashions for Men.

The popular color for morning suits this season is brown. There are dozens of shades of that color. The russet browns and the dull browns, in which there is a slight mingling of gray, are the shades that go off best. Trousers have undergone some slight alterations as regards shape since last year. They follow the shape of a peg top somewhat, and are worn loose at the knees and tight over the boots. Stripe patterns are considered better taste than checks.

The frock coat is more fashionable than ever, and only in a few details does it differ from last season's shape. It is considered to look very elegant on tall men with good figures, but neither a very tall, thin man or a little, stout man ought to wear a frock coat. It makes the one look like a lamppost and the other literally all coat.

I learned a thing or two about the mysteries of sartorial art in the course of a conversation with a leading tailor the other day. He said: "Judicious padding will hide a multitude of faults in a man's figure. We get a gaunt looking man sometimes, with sloping shoulders. He wishes to be made to look important. Well, we put as much padding as we can into both his waistcoat and coat, and give him an inch or an inch and a half artificial elevation in the shoulders."

The newest overcoats worn by turfmen are made exactly like a frock coat at the back. In front they are like the ordinary Chesterfield. I was shown a new material in a heather and gray mixture with a large check in dull red, called the Scots Guards plaid. It makes up well for race course suits. The Prince of Wales and Lord Lonsdale have both had suits of it.—Pall Mall Budget.

Figures of Two Big Railroads.

An interesting comparison was recently made of two of the greatest railroad corporations in the world, one English, the other American. The Pennsylvania system, regarded as one aggregation, though it includes more than 100 minor corporations, represents 7,915 miles of railroad and a canal, a share and bonded capital of $700,000,000, gross earnings in 1890 of $133,000,000 and the movement in the same year of 137,000,000 tons of freight and 84,000,000 passengers.

The English corporation referred to—the London and Northwestern—has an authorized capital of $533,877,979 and 1,916 miles of road, on which the gross receipts for one year were $29,651,339. The disparity in gross receipts per mile is not extremely large, but the capitalization of the English line is vastly greater, in proportion to mileage and traffic, than that of the American system.—Mechanical News.

The Jeddo Tunnel.

The greatest engineering feat in the history of anthracite coal mining is about to begin. It is the commencement of what will be known as the Jeddo tunnel, which will be driven for the purpose of draining the flooded mines of Jeddo and Harleigh. It will be constructed from Butler Valley, Pa., to the bottom of Ebervade mammoth vein, a distance of three miles, through solid rock, and will be eight feet square in the clear.

The scheme of tunneling through the mountains first occurred to John Markle, who is to be president of the company. It will open an inexhaustible supply of coal and furnish employment to thousands of people for many years to come. It will also serve the double purpose of draining all the collieries in the valley. —New York Telegram.

Plenty of Kentucky Snakes.

The crop of rattlesnakes in the surrounding knobs is the largest in the memory of the first settlers. Many with rattles high up in the teens have been killed, and some of enormous size. As the greatest numbers have been killed on the Casey side of the line, it is especially lucky that no one has been bitten, for not a drop of snake medicine is procurable in all that country.—Stanford (Ky.) Interior Journal.

A Great Loss.

The late Dr. Hodge, of Princeton Theological seminary, once asked a student for the definition of eternity. The student replied that he used to know the definition, but had forgotten it. "Oh, my, my!" said Dr. Hodge, "what a pity! The only man in the world who ever knew what eternity is has forgotten!"—San Francisco Argonaut.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, JULY 21 1893

The policy that built up monopolies at the expense of the people is well illustrated in the case of the late Jay Gould. When he was living he paid taxes on a half million of dollars. Each time that he gave a return of his property for assessment, he made oath that the valuation included all he owned subject to taxation. After his death the inventory showed that taxes should have been paid on $10,700,000, and that is the value now actually taxed. The actual value of the estate is estimated at from sixty millions to eighty millions of dollars. The heirs of Gould bitterly resisted the increase of taxation, but they could not swear away the official inventory of the estate. A poor man must pay taxes on the cash value of all the little property he may own, but the millionaire did not pay to exceed one dollar on each one hundred and fifty that he owned. It is such facts as these that lead to revolutions in politics and even in nations.

That consummate old hypocrite, John Sherman, pretends to work himself up into a great heat because Col. James H. Platt, president of the Denver paper mills, says that the few words demonetizing silver were surreptitiously inserted in the bill of 1873 which killed the legal tender quality of the white metal. This is no new allegation, and it is perfectly true. Senators John P. Jones, Wm. M. Stewart, H. M. Teller and a dozen other members of both houses who voted on it, have repeatedly made the same charge. It was substantiated in the report of the senatorial committee of 1879, of which John P. Jones was chairman. General Grant, who was President at the time of the passage of the bill, said that he would never have signed it had he known that it contained such a clause. Senator Sherman talks about hanging. All right-minded men are willing to see him go and hang himself, like a second Judas. He has thirty pieces of gold in his pocket for participation in the infamous act.

It must be a novel sensation for Bob Ingersoll to find himself in——fighting in the same line with the evangelical churches. Yet he is. He is defending the Chinese and denouncing the Geary bill, and the arguments are the same the Presbyterians, the Methodist Episcopalians and other religious conventions of the East recently used. But we need not care much about what Bob Ingersoll says. He is an attorney, and he doubtless speaks for the Chinese in that capacity and no other. We fancy that Attorney T. D. Riordan's note book shows to a dollar how deep Mr. Ingersoll's sympathy for the Chinese is. The softness of the eloquent Robert's heart is not to be judged by his pathos. We all know, for example, how touchingly he can talk about the poor, the sick and the suffering, and yet while tear-blinded and sighing like a furnace, Mr. Ingersoll has managed to lay aside $600,000 or so, upon which, they say, he maintains a grip that Sandow himself might envy.

An Irrigation Congress is to meet at Los Angeles on October 10th. So great is the importance of this meeting that the United States Secretary of State, Mr. Gresham, has instructed the diplomatic officers of the United States to bring the matter to the attention of the government to which each is accredited and invite them to send delegates thereto. One of the chief objects of the meeting will be for delegates to give information of the extent of land that may be irrigated in the territory represented by each; the character of land, the quantity of water available, the products best suited to the soil and climate, the need for railroads and all other facts connected with the development of regions that can be improved by irrigation. Great results for the whole of Southern California are certain to grow out of this congress. The Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles has written requesting that Inyo county be represented at the meeting. No basis of representation has as yet been published but it is proposed that the Board of Supervisors of each county appoint two delegates. Every citizen of Inyo county now fully realizes that it is from Los Angeles only that we may hope for aid in developing the resources of the county. We should not fail to be represented at the Irrigation Congress.

(Official.)

Treasurer's Report.

To the Hon. Board of Supervisors, Inyo County State of California.

GENTLEMEN:—I herewith hand you my report of the receipts and disbursements of this office for the Quarter ending June 30th, 1893. Respectfully submitted,

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 3rd day of July, 1893. D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

RECEIPTS—

Apr. 1, 1893, Cash on hand		$31 351 20
3, J. S. Gorman, Tax-Collector		1,229 78
3, P. A. Chalfant, Assessor		10 20
3, Joseph Silva, Int S schl land		11 20
3, E. H. Edwards, Int S schl ld		32 00
3, J. S. Gorman, Tax-Collector		45 17
3, J. S. Gorman, fees		24 40
3, D. J. Hession, fees		191 50
3, L. D. Mathews, Int S schl ld		203 45
27, P. H. Mack, fees 1889-1890		168 70
		33,3 2 69
May 1, J. S. Gorman, Tax-Collector		4,353 96
1, P. A. Chalfant, Assessor		704 73
1, J. S. Gorman, fees		28 00
1, J. S. Gorman, Tax-Collector		97 20
1, D. J. Hession, fees		202 00
2, P. A. Chalfant, pers prp 91-2		6 86
4, E. P. Colgan, State Controllr C. & C. R. R. Tax		1,242 49
5, P. A. Chalfant, Assessor, tax M. Muldoon, 1891		69
10, Marion L. Smith, Int S schl ld		44 80
18, J. H. Dehy, Int State schl ld		11 20
25, J. N. Yandell, fees Clerk 91-2		13 20
		49,007 82
June 5, P. A. Chalfant, Assesor		588 28
5, J. S. Gorman, Tax-Collector		639 78
5, W. H. Walker, Sheep licence		5,861 25
5, W. H. Walker, fees		63 00
5, P. A. Chalfant, Assessor, tax J. L. Bourland, 1891		6 90
5, J. S. Gorman, fees		45 93
5, J. S. Gorman, Tax-Collector		34 94
5, D. J. Hession, fees		174 10
6, P. A. Chalfant, Assessor, tax E. Robinson, 1890		1 25
4, State Treasurer, Commissns		92 44
4, State Treasurer, S Schl Fd		1,226 60
12, J. A. Linscott, Int S schl ld		16 00
		48,753 35

DISBURSEMENTS—

Apr. Salary	paymnt of war	1,185 98
Hospital Fund	" "	366 75
Bishop Bonds, old	" "	64 88
Fish Springs Building	" "	10 00
General Expense	" "	2,780 51
Bridge Fund	" "	233 61
General Road Fund	" "	40 27
Sundry Road	" "	431 78
Milton School	" "	365 00
Union School	" "	90 35
Lone Pine School	" "	155 00
Big Pine School	" "	127 60
Fish Springs School	" "	21 00
Round Valley School	" "	14 27
Independence school	" "	122 12
Irving School	" "	169 00
Station School	" "	80 00
Big Pine Building	" "	24 90
Union Library	" "	5 8
Rebate Fund	" "	7 68
		6,281 18
May Salary	" "	1,221 98
General Expense	" "	755 00
Bishop Bond, old	" "	99 74
Hospital	" "	32 00
Bishop School	" "	74 05
Warm Springs School	" "	266 37
Union School	" "	51 00
Round Valley School	" "	81 50
Fish Springs School	" "	47 63
Lone Pine School	" "	159 50
Irving School	" "	10 00
Independence School	" "	34 00
Big Pine School	" "	149 50
Irving Library	" "	84 45
Warm Spring Library	" "	71 61
Fish Springs Building	" "	45 00
Bishop Bond	" "	1,092 00
Big Pine Bond	" "	175 00
Union Bond	" "	297 00
State Genrl Settlmt	" "	2,488 81
		13,553 01
June Salary	" "	1,099 98
General Expense	" "	750 00
Road Dist. No. 3½	" "	49 00
Lone Pine School	" "	60 37
Union School	" "	12 00
Irving School	" "	37 00
Big Pine School	" "	121 10
Milton School	" "	12 00
Station School	" "	78 67
Bishop School	" "	119 25
Independence School	" "	217 88
Hospital	" "	52 00
		16,133 29
July 1, 1893, Cash balance on hand		32,620 12
		48,753 38

Treasurer's Trial Balance, July 1, 1893.

To the State General Fund	$ 243 31
Salary "	9,518 69
General Expense "	1,864 82
Hospital "	782 53
Bond "	3,155 47
County Road, "	190 01
General Road "	1,977 00
To the various Road District Funds:
No 1	222 79
No 2	248 82
No 3	145 57
No 3½	2 66
No 4	66 89
No 5	190 51
No 5½	152 10
No. 6	129 55
No 7	95 88
Unapportioned County	134 21
Road Poll Tax	502 60
Bridge Fund	976 07
Swamp and overflowed Land	1,264 82
Institute	58 00
Teachers Library Fund	27 00
Coroner's	84 90
Rebate Fund	75 29
Unapportioned Property Tax	538 99
To the various School Dist. Funds:
Round Valley	$ 88 82
Irving	145 51
Bishop Creek	242 11
Station	79 54
Warm Springs	119 49
Big Pine	124 52
Milton	94 83
Independence	195 03
Fish Springs	31 34
Union	110 82
Lone Pine	213 27
To the various School Dist. Library Funds:
Milton	$ 51 47
Round Valley	73 94
Irving	41 67
Bishop	81 35
Station	120 42
Warm Springs	9 73
Big Pine	237 75
Independence	53 78
Union	45 08
Lone Pine	75 59
Fish Springs	54 41
To the Bishop old bond	71 02
Warm Springs Bond Fund	181 39
Independence " "		130 11
Bishop " "	511 01
Union " "	61 08
Big Pine " "	67 78
Fish Springs " "	99 85
Lone Pine " "	1,794 53
Independence Bdg Fund	49 00
Fish Springs " "	56 40
Lone Pine " "	6 290 40
Cash Balance		$32 620 12
	$32,750 23	$32 750 23

Examined, accepted and approved by the Board of Supervisors this 10th day of July 1893

R. LOVE,
Chairman.

(Official.)

Auditor's Report.

Quarterly report of the County Auditor of Inyo county, Cal., for the Quarter ending June 30th, 1893

June 30 Exhibit showing the amount of warrants drawn and registered and upon what funds since Mar. 31, 1893, date of last report. Inyo county, (sum total of warrants) drawn		$11 987 46
General Exp. Fund	4 295 51
Salary Fund	3 510 94
School Fund	2 765 37
Hospital Fund	400 75
Rebate Fund	7 68
Bridge Fund	233 61
General Road Fund	40 27
Fish Springs Sch. Fund Bd	55 00
Big Pine Schl Dist Bd	21 50
Bishop Schl Dist Bd	99 74
Fish Sprg Schl Dist Bd sold	64 88
Rd Dist. No. 2 Fund	73 00
" " " 3½ "	52 00
" " " 4 "	86 40
" " " 5 "	149 08
" " " 5½ "	39 00
" " " 6 "	67 65
" " " 7 "	30 25
	$11 987 46	$11 987 46

June 30 Exhibit showing the amount of indebtedness of Inyo county, interest not included and how distributed among the various Funds
Inyo County	$66,490 55
Inyo Co. Bonds 1,000		65 500 00
Old General Fund		990 55
	$66 490 55	66 490 55

June 30 Exhibit showing present financial condition
Inyo county (total indebtedness)	$66,490 55
Less cash, in County Treasurer's hands subject to pay indebtedness		$32 620 12
Rem'ng Indebtedness		33 870 43
	$66 490 55	$66 490 55

Respectfully submitted to the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County. D. J. HESSION, County Auditor.

Examined, accepted and approved this 10th day of July, 1893, by the Board of Supervisors.

R. LOVE,
Chairman.

Ordinance No. 49.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, Do Ordain As Follows:

SECTION 1. Section 7 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January 1892, and which ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et seq., and was amended by Ordinance No. 47, by the said Board of Supervisors, on the 5th day of April, 1893, which said amending Ordinance is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 139 et seq., is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 7. Every person who at a fixed place of business sells any malt or fermented liquors, wines or distilled liquors, whether on commission or otherwise (except wine of cultivated productions when sold by the producers thereof, and fermented or malt liquors when sold by the manufacturer thereof, on the premises on which the same shall be manufactured), must obtain from the Tax-Collector, and for each branch of said business, a license, and must pay quarterly therefor the sum of Forty Dollars. And every such manufacturer of any malt or fermented liquors, who sells the same on the premises on which such liquors may or shall be manufactured must obtain from the Tax-Collector, for such business a license, and must pay quarterly therefor the sum of Twenty Dollars.

SECTION 2. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after twenty-five (25) days from its passage.

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same, in the "Inyo Independent," a newspaper printed and published in the said County of Inyo, at least two (2) weeks said publication to be made said time and before the expiration of said twenty five (25) days.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

(SEAL)

Attest: D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 49 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the Eleventh day of July, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Supervisors Frank Fitzgerald, A. C. Freeman, John Wilson, W. H. Uhlmeyer, R. Love.

Noes: None.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

(SEAL)

Attest: D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

[Endorsed.]

ORDINANCE NO. 49.

Adopted July 11, 1893

D. J. HESSION Clerk.

Recorded July 11, 1893, in Book "B" of Ordinances, at pages 163 et seq.

D. J. HESSION,
County Recorder.

By J. E. PARKER,
Deputy.

ORDER OF NOTICE TO CREDITORS ON APPLICATION FOR DISCHARGE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of J. V. SKINNER, an insolvent debtor.

J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor, having applied to this Court for a discharge from his debts,

It is hereby ordered, that the Clerk of this Court give notice to all Creditors who have proved their debts to appear before this Court at the Court-Room thereof, on the 19th day of August, 1893, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., and show cause, if any they have, why the said J. V. Skinner should not be discharged from all his debts, in accordance with the statutes in such cases made and provided

It is further ordered, that notice of said application be given to the Creditors by mail, and by publication once a week for four weeks in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper published in said Inyo County.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated July 13, 1893.

P. H. MACK, Attorney for Insolvent.

A WINTER NIGHT.

This winter night against the pane
I hear the beating of the rain;
The mad wind shrieks a harsh refrain
This winter night.

Within my room is warmth and light;
The friendly fire blazes bright,
And—God! out in the bitter cold,

How many mortals struggle on,
With love and hope and gladness gone—
Poor human sheep outside the fold—
This winter night.

—Robert Loveman in Youth's Companion.

A QUESTION OF VALUES.

"Kisses are cheap," said Bob Malee,
Flashing a wicked glance at me,
"Cheap I call, when a girl so fair
Stoops to be kissed by John St. Clair."

Ne'er a word do I deign to reply
As I watch the sunset fade and die,
And in the shadows that fall about
Much of life's sweetness seems shut out.

He kissed me, yes, ere he went away;
'Twas a memory, he said, he could keep for aye;
And Bob don't know. Ah, what man could Guess one-half that a woman would?

A year later, with softened tread,
Bob comes in and says, "He's dead!"
"St. Clair?" I ask, and now there lies
A wondering question in Bob's blue eyes.

"I thought—you know—Bess, is it true
That the fellow was really nothing to you?"
I raise my eyes; they are stern and cold;
Bob's are not—they're ablaze and bold.

"My darling! Mine! Ah, at this late day—
For I know now why he went away."
"But my kisses are cheap—I remember, you see."
"They are more than untold wealth—to me."

—Yankee Blade.

A Costly Bible.

The most expensive illustrated book yet made is said to be a Bible now owned by Theodore Irwin of Oswego. It is valued at $10,000, for Mr. Irwin paid that sum for the work. The original was in seven volumes, 16mo., and by the addition of drawings and engravings it was enlarged to 60 volumes, each 16 by 24 inches, which occupy 17 feet of space on the shelves. This remarkable book contains 3,000 pen and pencil drawings, etchings, engravings, lithographs, oil and water color paintings and mezzotints. Among the illustrations are parts of the "Great Bible of Cranmer," printed in 1553; parts of the "Bishop's Bible," printed in 1568; parts of the "Nuremburg Bible," the first illustrated Bible published, printed in 1746, and of "Luther's Version" and the "Breeches Bible." The extender has brought together not only all that could be found of the best and rarest efforts at illustrating the text of the Bible, but also the art of modern painters and engravings, making it the most complete and valuable copy of the Bible in existence.—Washington Star.

Fashions In Glass.

Very few years ago nothing would please fat glass blown to the utmost thinness, either plain or engraved with ornamental designs, but now we have returned to the heavy faceted decanters and goblets, which we were brought up to despise. Which is the stricter taste? Undoubtedly that which we have just discarded for the special quality of glass, which can be rivaled in no other material, is its transparency and capacity for being blown into exceeding lightness. When cut into facets, the former quality is impaired, the latter is not displayed, and the object depends for beauty on its brilliancy, in which it competes at a disadvantage with rock crystal. The virtue of an art consists not less in bringing out the highest quality of material than in revealing the mind of the artist.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday ..... January 28th
" ..... February 25th
" ..... March 25th
" ..... April 29th
" ..... May 27th
" ..... June 24th
" ..... July 22d
" ..... August 26th
" ..... September 23d
" ..... October 21st
" ..... November 18th
" ..... December 16th

THOS. C. LOLAND, W. M.

B. RHINE, Sec.

BOOTS AND SHOES
MADE AND REPAIRED.
THE BEST MATERIAL.
FIRST-CLASS WORK
Repairs done Promptly.
Prices Reasonable.
A. J. DAVIS,
Independence.
30-tf

WE WANT YOU
to act as our agent. We furnish an expensive outfit and all you need free. It costs nothing to try the business. We will treat you well, and help you to earn ten times ordinary wages. Both sexes of all ages can live at home and work in spare time, or all the time. Any one anywhere can earn a great deal of money. Many have made Two Hundred Dollars a Month. No class of people in the world are making so much money without capital as those at work for us. Business pleasant, strictly honorable, and pays better than any other offered to agents. You have a clear field, with no competition. We equip you with everything, and supply printed directions for beginners which, if obeyed faithfully, will bring more money than will any other business. Improve your prospects! Why not? You can do so easily and surely at work for us. Reasonable industry only necessary for absolute success. Pamphlet containing full particular is sent free to all. Delay not in sending for it.
GEORGE STINSON & CO.,
Box No. 488, Portland, Me.

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.
For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the
Scientific American
Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS
AND
LEVI STRAUSS & CO'S
SPRING BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES,
District Attorney,
—AND—
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
NOTARY PUBLIC.
Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Office and residence at the Johnson place, Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Freight! Freight!
BISHOP & MOJAVE
Through Freight Line.
George Meads,
PROPRIETOR.
Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:
J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.
Special rates given on car-load lots

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics Hall." Lone Pine.
FRED BURCKHARDT.

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.
THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment which has been entirely rebuilt an furnished in a style second to no one on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.
THE BAR
Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.
JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.
$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.
It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer without cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.
Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.
For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address
ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.
Winter Apples ..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes ..... 12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches ..... 10 cts
Dried Apples ..... 10 cts
Other varieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.
THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines, Liquors, & Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSFIELD, opposite the Southern Hotel
Prompt and careful treatment given and the easiest possible pain inflicted. Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce street, New York

P. W. FORBES P. H. MACK
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY the 8th day of March, 1892, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows to wit Commencing at the South-east corner of the south-east quarter of North-east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98-100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of Bishop Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hallhah, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lots Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode, situate, lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispiricada Lode."

That certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the North west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12) and the South west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range Nu twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South six-eight and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence North-westerly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North East quarter and the South-east quarter, and the North-west quarter and the North east quarter of the Northwest quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range Nu twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-four and eleven twentieth (44 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres: Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER.
Executor of the last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah deceased.

Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th 1893.

J. W. Murphy.
BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS Extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumers should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT
Independence, Cal., March 9 1884.
n47tf

$6000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, Troy, N.Y., at work for us. Reader, you may not make as much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from 5 to 10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages in any part of America, you can commence at home, giving all your time, or spare moments only to the work. All is new. Great pay SURE for every worker. We start you, furnishing everything. EASILY, RAPIDLY learned. PARTICULARS FREE. Address at once, GEORGE STINSON & CO., PORTLAND, MAINE.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, JULY 21 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman	A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman	P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge	GEO. M. GILL
Sheriff	JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk	DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney	P. W. FORBES.
Assessor	P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer	W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner	H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed)	JOSEPH STELY.
Supt. Schools	J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist	ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist	A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist	W. H. UHLMEYER
4th Supervisor Dist	JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist	FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Dr. J. Becker, German Pastor, will be at Independence on Friday, July 28th, and will preach at the M. E. Church on the following Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The sermon will be in the German language. Everybody cordially welcome.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

MARRIED.

KINSLEY—BODLE—At Big Pine, July 12th, by Rev. C. L. Logan, Albert L. Kinsley and Miss Eva L. Bodle.

TRACEY—SMITH—At Big Pine, July 12th, by Rev. C. L. Logan, J. W. Tracey and Miss Emma Smith.

GROB—SHIRLEY—At Bishop, July 13th, by Rev. G. W. De La Mayr, Fred Grob and Miss Jennie Shirley.

E. L. Smith was up from Lone Pine yesterday.

Ben Laskey was up from Lone Pine early in the week.

See notice of house to rent. The terms are very reasonable.

Emmons Spencer Esq. was down from Big Pine a few days ago.

Several parties will leave town in a few days for a trip in the high Sierras.

Regular stated meeting of Inyo Lodge No. 221 F. & A. M. to-morrow night.

J. J. Stewart came up from Lone Pine last Tuesday, returning the same day.

S. P. Sueden Esq. of Bishop spent several days in town this week on legal business

The Board of Equalization meets next Monday. If you have any growl you must be on hand.

Bert Rhine and J. E. Shepherd visited Bishop last week and attended the Odd Fellows Lodge there.

Charley Robinson brought in a four-pound trout on Wednesday which he caught in one of the lakes west of town.

The weather yesterday and to-day has been delightfully cool. The sky has been cloudy, with showers threatening.

What's the matter with the Index anyway? It seems to have a terrible grudge against Independence and everybody in it.

The first crop of alfalfa has about all been cut in this vicinity and the yield is extra heavy. Farmers are now cutting grain.

The committee on program for the coming 18th District Fair, has the premium list under advisement and will soon publish it.

Scott Broder came down from Fish Springs last Tuesday for supplies. He had nothing new to report in mining matters.

The frame work of the new school house at Lone Pine blew down on Wednesday night. We have not learned the extent of the damage.

Hon. P. Reddy and P. H. Mack Esq. returned from Darwin yesterday. Mr. Reddy went to Benton and will go from there to San Francisco.

Every alternate Saturday evening a social dance will be given at the Pavilion by Mr. J. Tucker. The affair last Saturday evening was very enjoyable.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Craig and Miss Cora Craig started for San Francisco on yesterday morning's train. Miss Cora will remain at Oakland to attend school.

Mr. Reddy has eight men employed in the Defiance mine at Darwin. Outside of the Defiance there is practically no other mining being done in that region at present.

Rain began falling this morning about three o'clock and continued steadily. There seems to be an increase each year in the rainfall along the eastern slope of the Sierras.

The Independence School Trustees are fitting up the large ante-room in the school to be used as a class-room for the primary grade. R. Way constructed a new brick flue this week.

Walter A. Lamar Esq. arrived at Independence on Tuesday morning coming by way of Mojave from a visit to his relatives at San Jose. He reports having had a very pleasant trip.

A most unfortunate accident is reported from the neighborhood of Bishop. A son of T. J. Richards was in the brush near his father's house on Tuesday and called to his elder brother to come out and kill a wildcat. The older boy, a lad about fourteen years old, came out with a shotgun, and mistaking his little brother, a boy of twelve, for the animal, shot and killed him instantly, the charge hitting the little fellow in the breast.

Cloud Burst

Since the close of the last term of the the Independence school Mr. A. E. Janvier has been engaged in mining in Mazourka Canyon. He had a cabin about five miles from the Independence depot. About two o'clock this morning it began raining and fearing his supplies would get wet, Mr. Janvier went out and brought them in. Near the cabin is an old channel, and down this a torrent of water was rushing. Mr. Janvier went to bed again but was soon awakened by a roar of water. Just south of the cabin is a dry gulch, and a vast stream of water was pouring out of this. He put on his boots and overalls and was looking out of the window when he heard a creaking behind him. He at once climbed through the window and gained a high bank a few feet from the cabin. Hardly had he done so when the cabin seemed to melt in the raging flood. It was not carried away bodily, but sank in the torrent. As soon as the waters subsided, which they soon did, owing to the heavy grade of the canyon, Mr. Janvier started for town. He was bare-headed with no coat or vest. He found contents of the cabin strewn along the canyon for over a mile. Some articles were partly covered with sand and others with huge bowlders on top of them. The wood road is badly washed out, and wagons cannot travel it until extensive repairs are made. The loss to Mr. Janvier is a serious one, but he is deeply grateful that he got off with his life; for had he been in the cabin a few moments longer, he must have inevitably been drowned.

A Notable Visitor.

Vice-President A. E. Stevenson is making an extensive visit to the Pacific Coast and is meeting with an enthusiastic reception everywhere. While at Los Angeles last week he drove the last spike in the big wharf at Santa Monica. Mr. Stevenson is informing himself thoroughly of the condition and needs of the Pacific Coast, and his visit cannot help but be of great benefit to us. The only way in which an Eastern man can obtain a fair idea of the Pacific Coast territory, and the unlimited extent of our unparalelled resources is by a personal investigation. At the coming extra session of Congress there will be such legislation as will be of vital importance to us. And that the administration may act intelligently is due the fact of the visit Vice-President Stevenson.

Please Settle Up.

All parties indebted to the undersigned are requested to settle on or before August 25th next. All accounts then unpaid will be placed in the hands of an attorney for collection.

L. LASKY,
Lone Pine.

For Rent.

A two-room, furnished house, suitable for small family. Good cellar. Garden and plenty of good water. For terms etc. apply to

W. F. MATLACK,
Independence.

In the Mississippi Valley during the past few months 170 lives have been lost by tornadoes, and property destroyed to the volume of a million and a half of dollars. No wonder that thousands of farmers are looking toward California for homes. If our State had no other attraction than entire immunity from those dreadful visitations, that alone would draw many settlers here.

A party in charge of Dr. Gilbert from the Leland Stanford Jr. University, were at Independence early in the week. They came through the mountains by way of Kern River to Lone Pine and will return by way of Long Valley and the Yosemite.

F. W. Bedford started for Mojave on Wednesday. He expects to secure a situation in the car shops there in accordance with an offer recently made him. Mrs. Bedford has gone to Bishop on a short visit to her parents.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE WHY ORDER OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE SHOULD NOT BE MADE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of the estate of John William Meyer, deceased.

John W. Lacey, the Administrator of the Estate of John William Meyer, deceased, having filed his petition herein, duly verified, praying for an order of sale of all the real estate of said decedent, for the purposes therein set forth.—

It is therefore ordered by the Judge of said Court that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased appear before the said Superior Court on Saturday, the 5th day of August, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at the Court-Room of said Superior Court, at the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo, State of California, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Administrator to sell all of the real estate of said deceased.

And that a copy of this order be published at least once a week for four consecutive weeks in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said Inyo county.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated July 5th 1893.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for the Administrator.

INDEPENDENCE

SHAVING PARLOR.

J. TUCKER, Prop'r.

HAIR CUTTING IN ANY STYLE, SHAMPOOING AND BATHS.

☞ Adjoining Irwin's Old Corner Saloon. ☜

DR. J. S. MC QUEEN,

DENTIST.

Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery. All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.

Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.

FRANK FITZGERALD.
Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNDERSIGNED, Administrator of the estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of P. W. Forbes, in the Court House, at the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the said County of Inyo, State of California.

EDWARD JOHN REYNOLDS,
Administrator of the estate of Fredrick J. Reynolds, deceased.

Dated at Independence, Cal. June 13th, 1893.
P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Administrator.
jn16 5t

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

W. J. HOSKINS, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM GREEN and B. F. LEWIS, Defendants.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in the office of the Clerk of said Inyo county.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Green and B. F. Lewis, Defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment of this Court for the foreclosure of a certain mortgage described in said complaint and executed by the said William Green on the 31st day of May, 1890, to secure the payment of a certain Promissory Note dated May 31st 1890, made by the said William Green for the sum of $800.00, bearing interest at the rate of one and one-fourth per cent. per month, payable semi-annually; and if not paid when it becomes due, to be added to the principal and bear interest at like rate, as described in said complaint on file herein, which complaint alleges that no part of the principal or interest therein has been paid; that the premises conveyed by said mortgage may be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said promissory note and interest thereon, and the payment of 15 per cent. of the amount found due the plaintiff as attorney's fees, and for costs of this action; and in case such proceeds are insufficient to pay the same, that judgment be docketed against said William Green, defendant herein, for the balance remaining due, and also that the said defendants, and all persons claiming by, through or under them, or either of them, may be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, claim, lien, equity of redemption, and interest in and to said mortgaged premises, and for other and further relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Witness my hand and the Seal of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 29th day of June, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
J. D. Lewis, Attorney for Plaintiff.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

THOMAS C. ROLAND, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM CRAPO, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Crapo, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the Complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36-100 Dollars ($337.36) on a balance of account for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by the Plaintiff to you in the County of Inyo, State of California, at your special instance and request; also for costs of suit, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 36-100 Dollars, together with costs of suit.

Witness my hand and the Seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 4th day of May, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff.

The Newest Style

OF

Fashionable Clothing Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES, PEANUTS WALNUTS, TOYS!

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" WARE.

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

RESTORE YOUR EYESIGHT

Cataracts, scars or films can be absorbed or paralyzed nerves restored, without the knife or risk. Diseased eyes or lids can be cured by our home treatment. "We provide." Hundreds convinced. Our illustrated pamphlet, "Home Treatment for Eyes," free. For full 5 ft. box, by mail, $1.00. "The Eye," Glens Falls, N. Y.

HALE BROS. & CO.

If you have never tried for the benefits others derive from our prices, prompt and careful service given through the

MAIL ORDER DEPARTMENT,

Send us a trial order 'twill be conclusive evidence that our business methods are right and large and growing patronage merited.

ITEMS OF EXCEPTIONAL VALUE.

MISS'S DRAB HATS with wire brim ventilated all around sweatband makes a desirable head covering for outdoors summer wear; price 50 cents. Also a line of Cork hats at same price.

MEN'S SUMMER SUITS in some 20 different patterns of either light or dark coloring, comes in sack or frock styles at the popular price of $10.

CHILDREN'S SUITS in all the new designs and colorings of light or dark. Ages 4 to 14 years; price $3.50 $4.00 and $5.00.

HALE'S $2 50 Shoes for men have proved a great success and are without doubt the best value of a medium priced dress shoe to be had anywhere, any style last, tip toe or plain in either hook and lace or gaiter style; price $2.50.

GENTS' domestic balbriggan underwear, a good imitation of the imported, of plain unbleached color, an extra strong value at 50 cts. per garment.

FOR HOUSE KEEPERS.

AN extra value in a heavy unbleached double damask table linen 58 in. wide, all linen and will wash white; price 50 cents per yard.

AN extra value in already bleached double damask table linen 58 in. wide, pretty scroll patterns, pure linen, and not weighed with any inferior substance; price 50 cts. per yd.

A bargain in Ladies medium weight cotton hose; absolutely fast black, perfect in shape and finish, comes in boxes of ½ doz., for $1.00 per box, which we do not break.

HALE'S 10 cent boxes of note paper contain a quire of fine satin finish and 24 envelopes.

HALE BROS. & CO.

825, 827, 829, 831, 833, 835 K St., and 1026 Ninth street.

Sacramento, Calif.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS. WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neihboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finer Rings, Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the 1st quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

☞ All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packaes to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,

O-m RENO, NEVADA.

DO YOU SUFFER?

Rheumatism, Fits [epilepsy] Scrofula, Liquor, Morphine or Tobacco Habit, quickly and permanently cured by the wonderful BI-CHLORIDE of GOLD treatment.

RHEUMATISM (The uric acid entirely expelled from the blood) cured in from five to thirty days.

FITS (Epilepsy) Permanently cured. No return of the disease from two to four weeks treatment.

SCROFULA All the worst cases of inherited blood taint quickly and permanently cured.

DRUNKENESS Opium, Morphine or Tobacco habit cured 10 to 20 days.

No restriction or publicity. Patients cured at their own homes. 40,000 sufferers cured in 8 years.

Full particulars without charge, address

DR. WOOD BI-CHLORIDE OF GOLD INSTITUTE,
215 Powell St., San Francisco Cal

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.

Bee Keeper.

Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STOCKTON, CAL., Dec. 19th, '92.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.

Gentlemen:—Having read one of your Treatise on the Horse and seeing the Spavin Cure advertised, I thought I would try it. I had one horse with a prominent Spavin of 12 months standing. I removed it with ⅓ bottle. I tied upon one fore foot on same side the spavin was and compelling the horse to rest on lame leg while I took a surcingle and drew it across the hock or spavin until the hock or spavin got very warm with the friction, then putting on Spavin Cure. I had a mare that had a running from her nose for 12 or 14 months. I rubbed the Spavin Cure from her eyes down to nostrils, then from back of jaw bone down under the throat for a week. I have not seen any discharge for two months.

Yours truly, HUGH McDADE.

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

DEALER IN

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Agent for

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:

Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE - CAL.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates

☞ Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in fact, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

Thos. Williams,
Proprietor.

BUSINESS ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

☞ Customers supplied on all points ☜

☞ Of the C. & C. Railroad. ☜

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

F. W. BEDFORD.....LESSEE.

Horseshoeing .....$2.00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see

F. W. BEDFORD.

INDEPENDENCE

MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROEFER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef,
Mutton,
Pork,
Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every ort made to give satisfaction to patrons.

j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer In GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies

PROVISIONS,

&c., &c., &c.

A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

BELL'S Flouring Mills

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House	10:05 a. m.		5:30 p. m.
Dayton	10:45 a. m.		4:50 p. m.
Wabuska	12:50 p. m.		2:30 p. m.
Hawthorne	4:05 p. m.		10:45 a. m.
Luning	5:50 p. m.		9:30 a. m.
Soda Springs	6:40 p. m.		8:40 a. m.
Belleville	7:50 p. m.		7:20 a. m.
Candelaria	Ar. 8:35 p. m.		Lv. 6:45 a. m.
	No. 3. Leave—		No. Arrives—
Belleville	7:50 a. m.		5:35 a. m.
Benton	11:30 a. m.		1:45 p. m.
Bishop Creek	1:20 p. m.		11:10 p. m.
Alvord	2:05 p. m.		10:10 p. m.
Independence	3:40 p. m.		8:40 p. m.
Lone Pine	4:00 p. m.		7:45 p. m.
Keeler	Ar. 5:20 p. m.		Lv. 7:00 p. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (36 miles); Bodie (39 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's. tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stage for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma Allda Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

AT KEELER with stages from Cerro Gordo (9 miles), Darwin (24 miles), and Mojave (110 miles)

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - Cal

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

☞ Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of WINES, LIQUORS, & CIGARS

☞ The most careful attention given to the amusement and comfort of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-12 td

Inyo Stage Company.

REGULAR LINE

—FROM—

Mojave To Keeler.

FINE COACH FAST STOCK.

The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful

Redrock Canyon

And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.

Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m

Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.

W. K. MILLER, Propr.

Nothing can be substituted for the Royal Baking Powder and give as good results.

No other leavening agent will make such light, sweet, delicious, wholesome food.

If some grocers urge another baking powder upon you, it is because of the greater profit upon it. This of itself is evidence of the superiority of the "Royal." To give greater profit the other must be a lower cost powder, and to cost less it must be made with cheaper and inferior materials, and thus, though selling for the same, give less value to the consumer.

To insure the finest cake, the most wholesome food, be sure that no substitute for Royal Baking Powder is accepted by you.

TELEPHONE LINES.

The Sunset Company to Stretch its Wires Over New Areas.—They Want Money to Do it.

The Sunset Telephone and Telegraph Company has voted to issue bonds to the amount of $750,000 to extend service throughout the State. One line through the San Joaquin Valley has just been completed as far as Fresno and Tulare, while down the coast a line extends as far as Soledad. There is also a southern division running from San Luis Obispo to San Bernardino, taking in Los Angeles, San Diego and all the thriving Southern towns. At present men are working on the gap between Soledad and San Luis Obispo, which will ere long be covered by telephone and telegraph wires. Once the connection is made between these two points San Franciscans can talk to Los Angeles and beyond.

The Northern line goes as far as Vina, taking in Sacramento and the principal towns of Northern California by branch lines. Between Vina and Albany, Or., there is a gap to be covered.

The Sunset wires in Washington cover a large area between Snohomish and the Oregon border, where they make connections with the Oregon Telephone Company's wires. To supplement these latter lines communication between Portland and Spokane will be established and then the Northwest will be a network of speaking wires.

A Band of Boy Brigands.

An amusing instance of the contagion of example has recently been afforded by a case in the Berlin police court reports. The outrage on the Turkish railway and the stories of brigands which have lately filled our newspapers seem to have acted on the imagination of two boys named Oscar Scheffner and George May. They determined to become bandits, and they prevailed on several of their schoolfellows to join them. The average age of the band was thirteen. They inaugurated their defiance of the law by boldly playing truant, and then they took refuge in the wilds of the Grunewald, where, in true brigand fashion, they hid themselves.

After a night passed in this fashion they felt the pangs of hunger, and consequently they sallied forth at an early hour and seized the milk cans and baskets of new rolls which had been left at the doors of the neighboring villas. This, however, they thought was scarcely heroic, and their next step was to garrote an old gentleman who was taking a morning stroll in the park. Somehow or other the Berlin police got wind of the affair, and the juvenile bandits were seized. They are now languishing in grewsome dungeons, where, by means of a cane administered at intervals, it is hoped that they may be made aware of the historic fact that in northern Europe brigandage is an anachronism.—Pall Mall Budget.

The Queen's Plate.

According to Edmun Yates, $2,500,000 worth of plate was displayed at the queen's state banquet at Windsor castle. One service for 130 persons is of gold and the other of silver. A great silver wine cooler made for George IV weighs 7,000 ounces. The entire plate at Windsor is valued at nearly $9,000,000, and includes quaint pieces taken from the Spanish Armada; a peacock of precious stones from India, valued at $200,000; a tiger's head, also from India, which has a solid ingot of gold for a tongue and crystal teeth, and a wonderful collection of splendidly ornamented gold shields one, made for George IV out of snuff boxes, being worth $50,000.

A Sleep Walking Feat.

In the swampy districts of France the men are accustomed to walk over the marshy ground on stilts. A sleep walker on one occasion buckled on his stilts and crossed a swollen torrent in the dark. On awaking he had not the courage to perform the same feat in daylight.—

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.....

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

"German Syrup"

Two bottles of German Syrup cured me of Hemorrhage of the Lungs when other remedies failed. I am a married man and, thirty-six years of age, and live with my wife and two little girls at Durham, Mo. I have stated this brief and plain so that all may understand. My case was a bad one, and I shall be glad to tell anyone about it who will write me. PHILIP L. SCHENCK, P. O. Box 45, April 25, 1890. No man could ask a more honorable, business-like statement.

S. F. N. U. No. 574. New Series No. 2

THE MERRIEST OF GIRLS.

Jolly Japanese Maidens Are Much Prettier Than They Are Pictured.

In physiognomic mobility and variety and definiteness of expression, Japanese women are doubtless, as a rule, inferior to our women. But by way of atonement they have a fixed facial expression of amiability and girlish sweetness that is extremely fascinating. This charming expression, which is a result of the habit of obedience, kindly disposition and desire to please, inbred and cultivated from their childhood, is common to all classes from the humblest to the highest.

In courtcousness, æsthetic tastes, good manners and personal cleanliness the lowly and ignorant women of Japan are far superior to the corresponding grade in America or Europe, and, indeed, to many who make pretenses to a higher sphere.

Besides the expression of amiability there is another one of contentment and absence of worry that attracts one in these women. This is found even in the servant maids, who are always at beck and call; even in the muddy, malodorous rice fields, under a hot sun; even in the poor women and girls who, for one cent an hour, spend ten hours a day stirring tea with their bare hands in a hot kettle.

As regards sparkling, laughing eyes, it would be difficult to find anything to match the dark orbs of the Japanese maidens when you chaff them in English, which sounds so funny to them, or in your Japanese, which sounds more funny still. They are the merriest girls in the world, always ready to laugh on the slightest provocation, and their laugh is as musical as their language.

They are naturally fond of reading, and there is a large literature especially written for them by authors, male and female. As regards the latter, Mr. Aston remarks:

"I believe no parallel is to be found in the history of European letters to the remarkable fact that a very large proportion of the best writings of the best age of Japanese literature was the work of women."

Were I asked, "Are Japanese women beautiful?" I should say that Japanese women are rarely beautiful, because they age too soon, but Japanese girls are often extremely pretty, and as a rule delightfully sweet, fascinating and girlish. Japanese men, perhaps, seems to us somewhat feminine in physical appearance, but in Japan itself this does not strike the eye, because the women are so much more so. They are, indeed, the most womanly women in the world.—Henry T. Frick in Cosmopolitan.

The Fashionable Shade.

Gray is a clean looking color, and one that is at present fashionable, with a reasonable prospect of several shades remaining in style throughout the coming season.

Several manufacturers have exerted themselves to give us remarkably pretty gray mixtures, but the cry arises that brunettes and sallow blonds cannot wear gray.

Sallow blonds may wear a rich cardinal surah, crepe, chiffon or China silk plastron, with the front of the collar of the same.

Reddish blonds are not sallow and are fortunate in being able to wear gray pure and simple.

Brunettes will find that gray becomes wearable for them if brightened with a vest, yoke or plastron of old rose, pink, orange, yellow or red, using a soft, silken fabric for the contrasting color. Never put blue with gray, and only use white or cream if blessed with a rose leaf skin; then it is lovely in effect.

Gray may be trimmed with black gimp for any complexion if one of the colored vests spoken of above is worn.

A gray hat is harder to manage, coming nearer the face, but this must be faced with a becoming tint.—Dry Goods Economist.

The Useful Lemon.

The importance of maintaining the system in a state of absolute regularity and equilibrium as to all its physical functions, if beauty is to be secured and preserved, cannot be overrated, and yet is most often overlooked. No woman keeps a good complexion whose digestion is out of order. The liver and bowels should also operate without jar or hindrance. This is of the most imperative moment. Half a lemon, diluted in a little water and taken before breakfast, is excellent to preserve the regularity of the system. Most fruit, indeed, has this effect, taken fasting. For heat spots on the skin mix lemon juice with sweet cream and apply to part affected.—Herald of Health.

The Latest Bang.

The latest hair bang is called the Bernhardt bang, and was originated by a countryman of the celebrated actress. Its effect is entirely novel. All the heaviness that false hair usually brings to the face is banished by the Bernhardt, which has a light part in the middle of the brow, where a light fluff falls nearly to the eyes on each side and forms a softly curled wave of hair, but waved with the old pervading air of lightness.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

AN EXCITING BATTLE.

In Which a Young Bull Succeeds in Vanquishing a Rhinoceros.

"Speaking of exciting combats," said Colonel Gregory, of New York, to a group of his friends here, "I witnessed one about ten years ago that beat anything I aver saw. When a mere schoolboy I was taught that the 'backleyers, as the Hottentots called their oxen, could be taught wonderful feats of skill, and became valuable assistants in war. That they would gore, kick and trample to death with incredible fury any enemy, but were perfectly friendly and a valuable protection to every member of their own kraal. Whether this is true or not I have never been able to definitely determine, but during a short sojourn in south Africa at the time I mentioned I saw what convinced me of their ferocity in fighting.

"I was in the edge of Zululand on a mission for an uncle, who was making a fortune in mercantile pursuits, and stopped for a day or two with a splendid specimen of the native, whose handsome wife and bright children made me almost forget their color. The children had a pet blackleyer—a young bull—which they called Hulo, and which they fondly believed could vanquish any beast on earth. The second night of my stay it was time of full moon, and was so warm that after my first nap I arose and went out into the beautiful night, and found my host and his eldest son, a lad of sixteen, there already. Hulo in his pen seemed very impatient, and young Omak let him out into the space in front of his father's hut. Here the graceful and spirited animal stood sniffing the air, shaking his head till his long, beautiful horns glistened in the moonlight and his bright eyes sparkled in evident anxiety.

"I was just on the point of asking what it meant when a heavy running sound approached us, and out of the forest into the open space came a magnificent looking specimen of a horrible looking brute, which I saw at a glance was a rhinoceros. I at once sprang for my gun, and my host and his son did the same, all of which took but a second. The rhinoceros still stood there, glancing from us to Hulo. We could scarcely see his disgusting little eyes, and disliked to take chances on shooting in the moonlight, for our guns were loaded with leaden bullets, and so thick are the skins of these animals that iron or tin bullets are used for hunting them. We were saved any trouble, however, for Hulo, with a bellow, gave challenge to combat.

"The rhinoceros was clumsy and dull, but nothing could withstand his assaults and it seemed as if he would never tire. He would make a rush at Hulo, and as soon as Hulo's horns would cut him in the sides and flanks he would turn and rush at him again. Finally the young bull showed signs of fatigue and changed his attack from the sides to the rear. Here he found vulnerable places on the inside of his enemy's thighs, and sent forth a bellow which plainly indicated joy. No matter how often or which way the rhinoceros would turn Hulo was behind him, tearing his legs to pieces with those keen, sharp, swordlike horns of his, while the blood ran in streams. It was impossible for the heavier brute to evade his quicker enemy, and at last, realizing this, every thrust by the victorious bull brought forth a bellow of rage and despair from the denizen of the forest, followed by a note of victory by Hulo.

"The movements of the rhinoceros became slower and slower as he was being more and more cut to pieces, and at last sitting down he tried to turn fast enough to front and ward off his active enemy. It was all to no purpose, however, and delay was only prolonging the death agony, so at a word from his father young Omak walked up and sent a bullet through its eye and it rolled over dead. I shall never forget the picture that followed. As soon as the enormous animal rolled over, the young bull sprang upon his vanquished enemy and sent forth challenge after challenge of rage, defiance and victory! Standing there with his head high in the air, and his horns covered with blood from tip to base, and his face, nostrils, chest and forelegs a solid sheet of blood and flesh, he formed a picture in the moonlight that one could never see and forget."—Galveston Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Points About Watermelons.

The finest watermelons in the world are to be found in Galveston, and are served in first-class restaurants and special cafes in place of ice cream. There it is the regular thing for young men to take their girls out for watermelon. The fruit is never sliced, but served in halves, no matter how large the melon or how small the eaters. Each of the halves are served on a platter, and the only eating utensil is a silver dessert spoon.

Salt, sugar and nutmeg are provided for the convenience of those who use seasoning. The same usage prevails in first-class restaurants in Georgia and other melon centers. Outside of these, the go-as-you-please style predominates. The leaders of fashion, or the quality, usually fix the local styles.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Why She Succeeds.

"I can't understand why she is so much cleverer than I," said a woman of another, her rival in society and her superior in tact. "Easy enough to understand," said her husband—it is only husbands who dare to say disagreeable things—"You, like other women, say to men? 'Oh, I know you,' but she leaves them with the impression that they have deceived her. That belief is so comforting to a man."—New York Recorder.

The Father of the Constitution.

It is not generally known that James Madison was called the father of the Constitution because he was the author of the resolution presented to the Virginia legislature leading to the invitation to the thirteen states to send delegates to a convention to form a more perfect Union which resulted in the meeting of the constitutional convention, in the deliberations of which Madison took part.—Chicago Tribune.

Don't Wear White to a Picnic.

Why do women persist in wearing white dresses to picnics? They look sweet enough to hug when they set out, but ye saints, how they look on the return home! A more depressing sight than a pretty girl in white after a picnic is not to be found. Do wear some other color, girls. You may not look quite so killing in the morning, but when you come home with the cows in the evening you'll feel twice as clean and look as if you had a friend or two in the world.—Exchange.

Warm Weather Dresses.

"It is, indeed, a stupid and indolent woman who cannot have dainty, pretty dresses this season!" exclaimed a young woman, who was just putting the last stitches into a delicate organdy.

"Just think of it, here is this dress; it took fourteen yards of goods and I have spent two days' time on it, and it is pretty enough to wear anywhere. I have just finished a black organdy, and it is a beauty. The skirt is made with five straight widths and a deep hem. Above the hem is a ruffle sixteen inches deep with a hem three-fourths of an inch wide and a shirred standing heading. The waist is made with tucks the form of a yoke, and the lower part of the waist gathered into the round belt. The sleeves are very full at the shoulders, and as close to the lower arm as is comfortable. The collar and the front are trimmed with a finger wide plaiting of the goods, set on in jabot fashion. I wear with this dress a very long sash made of a full width of black India silk, tied in a very long, loose bow at the back. I don't like stumpy bows, they give one a humpbacked effect.

"There are lovely new fabrics in cotton, the most delicate 'see-through' muslins; and there is a charming material somewhat like the old fashioned barege, made up with ruffles bound with silk or ribbons. Such dresses are exceedingly pretty, and are useful for home or watering place wear, for morning or informal days.

"India silk dresses are made with demi-train, trimmed with lace ruffles, either set on plain or draped in festoons or following a scalloped or pointed pattern.

"A number of pretty costumes have been made with princess bodies, with the sides draped in panier fashion. One model has narrow fronts, draped over the side sections, and with the ends left long enough to tie in a very large sash bow, with ends falling almost to the hem of the skirt. Sash ends with lace or fringe are pretty, and one slender figure has a very long, wide sash drapery, with one edge elaborately trimmed with lace. This sash is drawn around the waist, the lace trimmed edge falling over the skirt of the dress. The ends are tied in a loose knot, and cover a large portion of the back of the dress. A shoulder drapery in similar fashion is knotted at the front, the ends falling below the waist line."—New York Ledger.

Bowling and Quoits for Women.

Bowling has come to be recognized as a standing attraction in the way of winter sport, and an excellent substitute is provided for summer use in the game of lawn bowls. A number of different sized black balls are provided, flattened at one side. These are numbered, and two light wooden balls are used in playing. This is very much like the original game of bowls which was played in olden times on the green, and is full of interest. A very large lawn is not required for the playground, and a great deal of interest is attached to the game. It is as simple as the game of tenpins, and fully as fascinating for outdoor amusement.

Quoits have long been recognized as a good game among men, but there is no reason why it should not be popular with women, if the weights are not made too heavy. As a substitute for this, however, the game of ring toss has been provided. Rings formed of light materials are thrown at a series of pegs, each one possessing a different value. The game is made up by the person scoring the greatest number of points in a certain number of throws, and much accuracy is sometimes attained by the players.

Somewhat similar to this is pitchette. A large board is furnished, upon which are a series of pegs, each one bearing a number. This board is intended to stand upright, and rings are thrown at it from a certain distance so as to catch and hang upon one of the pegs. Much skill is called for in the playing of the game, and the first attempts are generally lamentable, which shows that there is more to the game than is imagined at first sight.—Harper's Bazar.

Have Worked for the Government.

A good many distinguished women have at different times been compelled to seek employment in the government service. Mrs. Stephen A. Douglas, the widow of the "Little Giant," reduced to poverty by her husband's unfortunate speculations, for a time held a clerkship in the treasury. During the lifetime of her husband she was a brilliant leader in society, and while in the treasury married an army officer of high standing. The daughter of a decayed Washington family was married from the treasury to a wealthy German baron. A niece of General John Sedgwick once held a place there.

Mrs. Commodore Wainright, a descendant of Franklin, and two granddaughters of Jefferson have been clerks in the government service. Mrs. Attorney General Brewster was a clerk in the bureau of internal revenue in the treasury department, and Mr. Brewster, then a Philadelphia lawyer, occasionally came to see her when she was a clerk. She was the orphan daugher of Robert J. Walker, once secretary of the treasury. A female cousin of General Rawlings, formerly secretary of war, and a cousin of William H. Seward have held government clerkships.—Washington Cor. Boston Journal.

Vandals in the Adirondacks.

Visitors from the Chateaugay lakes, Adirondacks, says that the glory of that region of trout and deer has departed. Notwithstanding the liberal stocking that has been done every year, the trout are small and scarce. The miners use giant powder in the spring holes and on the spawning beds, and the hotel keepers are afraid to complain. In addition to this, many of the residents go up the side streams and catch fingerlings by the hundred. This is always fatal to good fishing. As long as the little fish are left undisturbed, the stock is kept up; but going up the little brooks and fishing them out is killing the goose that lays the golden egg.—Forest and Stream.

Voice Figures.

A coming "fad" or pursuit will be that of voice figures. A book on the subject has been written explaining and illustrating this new discovery of the forms produced by the human voice. At a recent reception in London some glass screens were provided, upon which, after certain preparations, were thrown the figures developed by the voice. These were very exact and well defined and resembled a plant or seaweed. We shall undoubtedly have these exhibitions in New York drawing rooms before another season has passed, as the subject is exciting much attention abroad.—New York Times.

Fire Winds.

California, from the Mexican frontier to the redwood regions of Mendocino county, has been visited by a sirocco of the ultra Mediterranean sort. In Fresno, the much advertised paradise of raisin culture and co-operative communities, the heat rose to 114 degs. in the shade; in Nagra to 110 degs.; in Sonoma to 109; in Healdsburg (on the Russian river, far north of San Francisco) to 108 degs. San Francisco itself escaped, thanks to the irrepressible counter currents of sea winds, but Sacramento, a little further inland, thought itself lucky to get off with 106.—Philadelphia Times.

The Ball Player in Bronze.

The baseball player has long been immortalized in the public prints, but it remained for Douglas Tilden, a deaf mute sculptor of San Francisco, to immortalize him in bronze. Not long ago he completed a handsome statue entitled "The Ball Thrower," and presented it to the city of San Francisco. The figure is of life size and is mounted upon a red granite base and a Mentone sandstone pedestal four feet high. The site of the statue is south of the Garfield monument in San Francisco's park.—Bloomington Eye.

Anything that looks cool is certainly attractive on a hot day. A restaurant keeper in New York city has increased the number of his patrons materially the past two or three weeks by displaying in his doorway a huge cake of ice, in the center of which fish or tempting cuts of beef are displayed. This enterprising restaurateur has an ice machine with which he is able to manufacture the ice needed for daily consumption.

Recent statistics show the estimated population of the world to be 1,487,600,000, an increase of 8 per cent. in ten years. Europe is the most thickly settled, having a population of 380,200,000, or 101 persons to the square mile. North America has 89,250,000, or fourteen to the square mile, an increase of 20 per cent. in the past decade.

A change in the weather will often cause disagreeable spots upon the complexion in the summer. The remedy may often be found in simple cooling drinks.

COMPLETELY UPROOTED.

How many remedies there are which merely relieve without uprooting disease. The contrast with sterling medicines which such palliatives afford, not only enhances the dignity of the former, but serves to emphasize the folly of employing half-way measures when thorough ones are available. A marked instance of this is the effect, on the one hand, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in cases of chills and fever and bilious remittent, and on the other of ordinary remedies in maladies of this type. By the Bitters, malarial complaint in every stage, and of the most malignant type, are completely conquered and lose their hold upon the system. They are rarely, if ever, dislodged by the ordinary resources of medicine, although their symptoms may unquestionably be mitigated through such means. The same holds good of indigestion, biliousness, kidney complaint, rheumatism, nervousness and debility. By the Bitters they are cured when many remedies fail.

Silversmiths and cutlers have exhausted their ingenuity in trying to devise some apparatus for gracefully eating asparagus.

ATHLETES OF THE PRESENT DAY.

J. E. Sullivan, Secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union, President of the Pastime Athletic Club, and Athletic Editor of The Sporting Times, writes:

"For years I have been actively connected with athletic sports. I always found it to my advantage to use ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS while in training, as they quickly remove soreness and stiffness; and when attacked with any kind of pains, the result of slight colds, I always used ALLCOCK'S with beneficial results. I have noticed that most athletes of the present day use nothing else but ALLCOCK'S PLASTERS."

How we all admire the wisdom of those who come to us for advice.

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED.

We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Porterfield & Losey, 838 Market Street, San Francisco.

A Call to Arms—"Come, John, and take the baby."

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell

Try Germea for Breakfast.

THREE TROUBLES.

3 Three things which all workingmen know give the most trouble in their hard-strain work are: Sprains, Bruises and Soreness.

THREE AFFLICTIONS.

3 Three supreme afflictions, which all the world knows afflict mankind the most with Aches and Pains are: Rheumatism, Neuralgia and Lumbago.

THREE THINGS.

3 to do are simply these Buy it, try it and be promptly and permanently cured by the use of

ST. JACOBS OIL CURES ALL PAIN

$75.00 to $250.00 can be made monthly working for B. F. JOHNSON & Co., RICHMOND, VA.

AGENTS MAKE MONEY selling World's Fair History. Outfit 50 cts. which we rebate on 5 books. Large Commissions. Allowance for freight. Agents wanted for other books also. Circulars free. F. B. Cheney & Co., 56 Fifth avenue, Chicago, Ill.

DR. GUNN'S ONION SYRUP FOR COUGHS, COLDS AND CROUP.

GRANDMOTHER'S ADVICE.

In raising a family of nine children, my only remedy for Coughs, Colds and Croup was onion syrup. It is just as effective to-day as it was forty years ago. Now my grandchildren take Dr. Gunn's Onion Syrup which is already prepared and more pleasant to the taste. Sold everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents. Take no substitute for it. There's nothing so good.

PISO'S CURE FOR

Consumptives and people who have weak lungs or Asthma, should use Piso's Cure for Consumption. It has cured thousands. It has not injured one. It is not bad to take. It is the best cough syrup. Sold everywhere. 25c.

CONSUMPTION.

A Saranac, Mich., teacher, received an excuse for absence written on a shingle. The request was added to use the shingle on the pupil if he did not make up lost time.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbing sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Rose—Does Mr. Verydull know anything? Lillian—Know anything! He doesn't even suspect anything.

Pfunder's Oregon Blood Purifier is the best remedy for cleansing your system.

PUT TO FLIGHT

—all the peculiar troubles that beset a woman. The only guaranteed remedy for them is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. For women suffering from any chronic "female complaint" or weakness; for women who are run-down and overworked; for women expecting to become mothers, and for mothers who are nursing and exhausted; at the change from girlhood to womanhood; and later, at the critical "change of life"—it is a medicine that safely and certainly builds up, strengthens, regulates, and cures.

If it doesn't, if it even fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

What you are sure of, if you use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, is either a perfect and permanent cure for your Catarrh, no matter how bad your case may be, or $500 in cash. The proprietors of the medicine promise to pay you the money if they can't cure you.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail, Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER 25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY.

Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50 cts. Injector free.

-How is Your Blood?-

I had a malignant breaking out on my leg below the knee, and was cured sound and well with two and a half bottles of S.S.S. Other blood medicines had failed to do me any good. WILL C. BEATY, Yorkville, S. C.

TRADE S.S.S. MARK

I was troubled from childhood with an aggravated case of Tetter, and three bottles of S.S.S. cured me permanently. WALLACE MANN, Manville, I. T.

Our book on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

PATENTS

BEST LEGAL ADVICE. BEST PATENTS OBTAINED.

DEWEY & CO., 220 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO, WASHINGTON, D. C., LONDON, ENG.

A Little Red Spot

Appeared on my left leg below the knee, and it gradually spread until I was covered with blothes and patches, which the physician called psoriasis, itching and burning terribly. I scratched and scratched only to increase my agony. Finally Rev. Father Canteveel urged me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I did so with joyous and wonderful result. The large scales pealed off, the spots grew less and disappeared, the itching and burning subsided and I am perfectly cured, equal in health to any man. And it is all due to Hood's Sarsaparilla." THEO. DESTICHE, Green Bay, Wisconsin.

Mr. Destiche.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner Pills, assist digestion, cure headache. Try a box.

No Hotel Extortion

Guests will be booked now on the European Plan,

For World's Fair Accommodations

at $1.50 per day each, two in a room

—AT THE—

Great Eastern

60th Street and St. Lawrence Ave., CHICAGO.

The largest in the world, and practically fire-proof. Write to Copeland Townsend, (formerly manager Palmer House) Manager, Chicago, Ill.

BLOOD POISON

A SPECIALTY. Primary, Secondary or Tertiary Syphilis permanently cured in 15 to 35 days. You can be treated at home for the same price and the same guarantees; with those who prefer to come here we will contract to cure them or refund money and pay expense of coming, railroad fare and hotel bills, if we fail to cure. If you have taken mercury, Iodide potash, and still have aches and pains, Mucous Patches in mouth, Sore Throat, Pimples, Copper-Colored Spots, Ulcers on any part of the body, Hair or Eyebrows falling out, it is this Syphilitic BLOOD POISON that we guarantee to cure. We solicit the most obstinate cases and challenge the world for a case we cannot cure. This disease has always baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians. $500,000 capital behind our unconditional guarantee. Absolute proofs sent sealed on application. Address COOK REMEDY CO., 1325 to 1331 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.

LADIES CAN MAKE $100 monthly, no book canvassing or peddling, done at home, cut this out and send with your name and address for particulars to J. J. EVANS, 406 California st., San Francisco, California.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE

Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING For sale by all Druggists. 25 Cents a bottle.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BO-SAN-KO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

TAKE PFUNDER'S OREGON BLOOD PURIFIER. CURES KIDNEY & LIVER DISEASES, DYSPEPSIA, PIMPLES, BLOTCHES AND SKIN DISEASES, HEADACHE & COSTIVENESS. PURE BLOOD

YOUNG MEN! The Specific A No. 1. Cures, without fail, all cases of Gonorrhœa and Gleet, no matter of how long standing. Prevents stricture, it being an internal remedy. Cures when everything else has failed. Sold by all Druggists. Manufacturers: The A. Schoenhelt Medicine Co., San Jose, Cal. Price, $3.00.

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF Moore's Revealed Remedy.

ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude MRS. N. V. STEELE.

SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

"WHERE DIRT GATHERS, WASTE RULES."

GREAT SAVING RESULTS FROM THE USE OF

SAPOLIO

HERCULES ENGINES

GAS AND GASOLINE — STATIONARY AND MARINE

For simplicity and success they beat the world!

Clean, no ashes, smell or dirt.

No engineer is necessary; they are easily managed.

Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question.

No battery or electric spark to care for.

No double or false explosions, so frequent with the unreliable spark.

The workmanship is the very best.

Our ignition tubes are a success; they explode every charge of gas which enters the cylinder.

Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day.

For pumping outfits for irrigating purposes they run all day without an engineer.

For hoisting outfits in mines they have met with the highest approval We give estimates on the entire plant.

Hercules Marine Engines for Launches, Schooners, Tow Boats, Etc.

PALMER & REY TYPE FOUNDRY

MANUFACTURER

405-407 Sansome Street, San Francisco, Cal.

INYO INDEPENDENT.
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.
Independence, Cal.
FRIDAY, JULY 28, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXV. NO. 6. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., JULY 28, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1187

INYO INDEPENDENT
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$4 00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.50
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

THE GLIMPSE.

Just for a day you crossed my life's dull track,
Put my ignobler dreams to sudden shame,
Went your bright way, and left me to fall back
On my own world of poorer deed and aim.

To fall back on my meaner world, and feel
Like one who, dwelling 'mid some smoke dimmed town,
In a brief pause of labor's sullen wheel,
'Scaped from the street's dead dust and factory's frown.

In stainless daylight saw the pure seas roll,
Saw mountains pillaring the perfect sky;
Then journeyed home to carry in his soul
The torment of the difference till he die.
—William Watson in London Spectator.

AN AFRICAN KING.

Whreabo, king of all the Bassas, died at his head town in the interior of Grand Corah, a trading station of Liberia. The Bassas are a very numerous and intelligent people, inhabiting a large district on the west coast of Africa, and Whreabo was one of the most interesting characters on the coast. His father was Boyer, who repeatedly waged war to prevent the Americo-Liberians from settling at Grand Bassa. Boyer, however, fell a victim to the vengeance of the Liberian laws, and died a bloody death, but not before he had instilled hatred of the civilized blacks in the mind of his son and heir.

After Boyer's death Whreabo attempted to take control of the government of his tribe, but he was prevented from doing so by his brother Taipu, who will be remembered by many old traders as Tom Will. For months the Bassa savages, in factions supporting respectively Whreabo and Taipu, engaged in a guerilla war. Neither side gained any decided advantage. Taipu, however, had always been more or less friendly to the Americo-Liberians, so when the merchants of Monrovia demanded that the troubles which interrupted trade should end the Liberian government exerted its power for his benefit, with the result that Whreabo was driven to an asylum in the bush, while Taipu took his father's town, his wives and all the Bassa country.

Taipu was not long permitted to enjoy the dignity which he had usurped. Trouble arose from cruelties inflicted on Liberia's citizens by the Vie people, a warlike tribe farther north, and diverted the attention of the Liberian government from the affairs of Bassa. This was Whreabo's opportunity, and he took advantage of it. He endeavored to oust his brother from power, and success followed his arms. It was not many weeks before the dead body of Taipu, swathed in many bandages, stood mummylike in a corner in his chief widow's hut awaiting burial; and Whreabo began to rule over the country.

The fact that Whreabo had secured power in Bassaland gave the Liberian merchants excellent reason for alarm. Almost all export articles, such as oil, skins, camwood, ivory and rice are gathered in the Bassa district, and this field, controlled by a chief hostile to Liberia, meant that all commerce in this direction would be brought to disaster. Events soon made it plain that Whreabo intended to hold no peaceful relations with his civilized brothers. He looted the factories of Liberian merchants, drove the traders from their stations and issued an edict that no produce of any kind was to be sold to Liberians by any of his people under pain of instant death.

The "palaver" ground in Whreabo's town became a theater wherein were performed many bloody acts. Hundreds of the followers of the dead Taipu daily lost their heads, and for weeks the savage chieftain held high carnival with death, until, feeling secure, he gathered his hordes around him and prepared to descend on Grand Bassa for the purpose of driving the Liberian settlers into the sea.

The Vies in the north at this time, encouraged by the intriguing English of Sierra Leone, were offering such stubborn resistance to the Liberian forces that the Liberian government found it impossible to do anything for the relief of its citizens in Bassaland, and it was decided to issue an order that Grand Bassa be abandoned and all Liberian citizens leave the country. On the day when it had been determined to make this order public there arrived in the port of Monrovia, the Liberian capital, the bark Edwards. This vessel came from England and brought a beautiful negress, who called herself Jacinto Boyer.

From Jacinto's earliest day stirring incidents marked her life. While little more than an infant she had been stolen from her parents, who were Mandingoes, and sold to Portuguese slave traders. The vessel which was bearing her to Brazil was captured by an English gunboat, and the prow was turned toward Sierra Leone, where the human cargo was to be turned over to the English authorities. This slaver was wrecked before she reached her destination, and of all on board the only ones saved were the officer in charge of the vessel and Jacinto.

Shortly after the Englishman and Jacinto were cast on the beach they were discovered by the savages, and by them were taken to Boyer, at his chief town in the interior. Boyer was then in the midst of his struggle with the Liberians, and the civilized man who fell into his power was fortunate if he was killed without torture.

When the Englishman was brought into Boyer's presence he raised his phon to strike him, but Jacinto sprang forward and threw her little arms around the intended victim.

"No! No! King," she said, "give me the white man." The sudden action of the little captive arrested Boyer's arm. All the Bassa women are extremely ugly, and the beauty of the Vie girl so pleased the chief that he hesitated. Whreabo, then a lad of ten years, was an interested spectator, and when the young girl made her plea his precocious eyes discovered that she was fair, and struck by a sudden fancy to earn favor in her sight he joined her in petitioning his father to spare the white man's life.

"The strange maiden shall be thy wife, and the white man be a slave to both of you," was the answer of Boyer.

A few months after this Boyer was killed, and his town was taken by the Liberians. The Englishman was rescued and returned to Europe with Jacinto. There she was educated, and when she grew into womanhood, despite all of the efforts of her friends, she took passage on the Edwards for Africa, where she intended to devote her life to missionary work among the Bassas. Arriving at Monrovia when she did, the Liberian authorities refused her permission to proceed to Bassaland, but securing the services of two Kroo boys, she embarked in a frail canoe and stole away. After four days and nights on the ocean she reached her destination and she sent the Kroo boys back to Monrovia. She discarded all clothes, and in the costume of the country—a cloth around the loins—began her journey for the chief town of the Bassas.

Arriving at Whreabo's town, Jacinto found him busily preparing for his warlike expedition against his enemies, but when she in her beauty presented herself before him and told him who she was, his purpose changed. Instead of proceeding to war he gave orders for feasting and general rejoicing to celebrate the return of his long lost bride. Jacinto accepted this position, and used her influence in such a way that Whreabo forgot his warlike intentions. By degrees she so influenced him that he dismissed his other wives. She induced him to look upon the Liberians without hatred, and so changed him that eventually, from being that colony's enemy, he became a bulwark to protect it from its foes. Finally she won him to Christianity.

For many years this woman exerted an influence for good over the savage chief, but some ten years ago she died. Since then Whreabo has never left his town, but aged, blind and feeble, patiently waited for the final summons.—New York Sun.

The Mistletoe.

Kissing under the mistletoe is a relic of Scandinavian mythology. Loki hated Balder, the Apollo of the North, and as "everything that springs from fire, air, earth and water," had been sworn not to hurt the celestial favorite, the wicked spirit made an arrow of mistletoe, which he gave to blind Homer to test. The God of Darkness shot the arrow and killed Balder. Being restored to life at the urgent request of the gods and goddesses, the mistletoe was given to the goddess of Love to keep, and every one who passed under it received a kiss, to show that the branch was the emblem of love and not of death. The mistletoe is a parasitical plant which flourishes on the branches of many kinds of trees in northern Europe. It is the viscum album of botanists, and is frequently found on the apple, and less often on the oak. The druids regarded it with peculiar reverence, from its connection with the oak, the favorite tree of their divinity, Tutanus, who seems to have been identical with the Phœnician god, Baal, or the sun. The plant is very rarely found in Scotland and nowhere in Ireland. It abounds in some parts of England.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Sings Sweetly Though Nearly 80 Years Old.

Mrs. Emma Bostwick, once known as the American Jenny Lind, has probably retained her voice to a greater age than any other public singer. She is now seventy-seven years old, but her voice is still pure and fresh, and she sings in admirable time and tune. She is the daughter of an English violinist, named Gillingham, and began her career on the concert stage when only twelve years of age. By the time she was twenty she was widely and favorably known. Her voice had a range of three octaves. Theodore Thomas, then a rising young violinist, was among those who took part in her concerts.

She was married in 1836, but did not retire from the concert stage. For a number of years she was the soloist of the New York Philharmonic society. She has never sung in opera, and the wonderful preservation of her voice is to be attributed partly to that, and partly to the care she has observed in her diet and mode of life.—Exchange.

Our Two Orange States.

In the United States oranges and lemons are produced only in California and Florida. The orange crop of the latter is practically out of the way before that of the former is ready for the market. The California orange is of slower growth than the Florida product and does not decay so soon. The orange season in California lasts five months, beginning Jan. 1, and it will be prolonged in future, as the people are planting Valencia oranges, which do not ripen till July. The lemon is more sensitive to frost than the orange, and it is produced with more difficulty in Florida than in southern California, for the reason that the former state is more subject to frost.—L. A. Sheldon in Forum.

The "Maneater of the Gulf."

The region in the vicinity of the northern extremity of the Gulf of California is inhabited by a rare and terrible creature—a member of the lizard tribe—called the "Maneater of the Gulf." He is hardly large enough to warrant his awe inspiring name, being only about fifteen inches long, but is one of the most poisonous creatures known to naturalists. He is a member of the lizard family, some akin to the famed Gila Monster, and his body is almost as brittle as glass.—St. Louis Republic.

There is a curious instance of an echo at Tatenhill, Staffordshire. The tower of the church there has an echo that repeats five times the syllables uttered at the centrum phonicum, which is about seventy yards distance. Whispering galleries can scarcely be considered anything but odd items in our sacred edifices. Of these there are examples in Gloucester cathedral and St. Paul's.—Gentleman's Magazine.

The republic of Honduras is very rich in the valuable wood called mahogany. A survey of these forests estimates the value of the trees of this variety which are fit for market at $200,000,000.

SUMMER OF 1816.

Extraordinary Weather in New England During June and July.

OVERCOATS AND MITTENS IN SUMMER

Suicides Through Fear That the Sun was Cooling Off.—People Froze to Death in June.

"I haven't heard much else but talk about the weather since I came to New York," said Nonagenarian James Winchester of Vermont, who is visiting his daughter in this city, "and you have had a pretty snug winter for here, I suppose, but I remember the year that was winter from one end of it until the other, and when the weather was so severe in June that a terrible snowstorm prevailed on the 17th of that month, and people were frozen to death in the month of roses. I don't think there are many people who have as vivid a recollection of the year without a summer as I have, for various reasons, one being that there are few surviving who were as old as I was in that year, and another is because a near relative of mine was frozen to death in Vermont on June 17 of that year, which was the year 1816.

"I was 14 years old then, and lived in Vermont, where I have always lived, and where that memorable season was at its very worst, as in the other New England states in June snow fell but 5 inches deep, and in New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey it was nowhere deeper than 3 inches. In Vermont it was 10 inches on the level. I mean the great snow of June 17. Snow fell several times during that month, and ice froze every day in the month. In fact, there were snow and ice in every month of 1816.

"That snowstorm of June 17 was one of the severest ones I ever saw, even in the depth of winter in that locality of severe snows. An uncle of mine had some sheep in a back pasture lot. To get to that lot he had to go through a piece of woods for nearly a mile. The weather had been very cold all through June. The big storm of the 17th began along about noon, and my uncle started after dinner to go to the sheep pasture to fix up a shelter of some kind for the sheep. No one had any idea, cold and eccentric as the season had been up to that time, that we could have a fall of snow that would amount to anything at that time of year. I was at my uncle's when he left home to go to the sheep lot, and as he went out of the door he said to his wife in a jocular way:

"'If I'm not back in an hour, call the neighbors and start them after me. June is a bad month to get buried in the snow, especially when it gets to be so near the month of July.'

"Nothing more was thought of the matter. The snow increased in fury, and by night it had drifted so that the roads were almost impassable, but even then, and when it grew dark, none of us felt uneasy about uncle. The weather had become bitter cold. When night set in in earnest, and there was no sign of my uncle's return, his wife sent me and my cousin, who was two years younger than me, to alarm the neighbors and tell them that we believed uncle had been lost in the snow and had perished.

"We had a hard time getting to the nearest neighbor's, less than a mile away, and there gave the alarm, but could go no further. The neighbor summoned others, and, in spite of the severity of the night they searched the woods until morning, but no sign of the missing man could be found. The search was taken up by others the following day and all of the next night, without any trace of him being discovered, except that he reached the pasture and built a shelter of boughs in one corner of the lot, under which the sheep were huddled. On the forenoon of the third day the searchers found my uncle buried in the snow a mile from the pasture, in almost an opposite direction from home. He was frozen stiff.

"He had evidently become bewildered in the blinding storm and had wandered about until he succumbed to fatigue and cold. It seems a most improbable thing that a person ever fell a victim to a snowstorm in the middle of June in this latitude, but I have this sorrowful knowledge of one instance, at least, where such a thing was only too true.

"The wind during June, July and August of 1816 was continuously from the north, and it blew fiercely and cold. Farmers wore heavy overcoats and mittens while about their work every day during those months. There was but little use of planting anything, nothing grew to speak of, but they did plant corn as usual, and planted with mittens on.

"There was very little rain during the entire season. The great piles of firewood that always accumulated during the summer months at the farmhouse back doors in readiness for winter didn't accumulate in 1816. They were needed for current use. July was colder even than June, and August was colder than July. Ice half an inch thick formed in July, but in August it froze an inch and more. There was a heavy snowstorm on Aug. 30. The whole summer was as bleak and dreary as November. There was not a green thing to be seen anywhere. The first two weeks in September brought the first real warm weather there had been during the year. The thermometer went up to 70 degrees, which was 25 degrees warmer than it had been since May.

"The general opinion had been that the cause of the cold summer was a sudden and rapid cooling of the sun by some violent disturbance, and many believed that the end of all things was at hand. The appearance of the warm spell in September, though, dispelled that fear for a time, but on the 16th of the month the cold weather returned suddenly, and the calamity believers were once more made miserable by their old fear. One old man, James Gooding by name, was so hopeless over the prospect that he killed all his cattle and then hanged himself, after vainly trying to induce his wife to make away with herself also, to escape the terrible and gradual death by freezing and starvation, which he believed was to be the common doom.

"Cold increased from the middle of September until winter returned, and it may truly be said that, in Vermont at least, the year 1816 had neither spring, summer nor autumn. There wasn't grain enough grown that year to seed the next year, and those who were lucky enough to have more of the crop of 1815 on hand than they wanted for their own use had no difficulty in selling it for $5 and more a bushel."—New York Sun.

Waiting to Be Called.

The solicitor of a mountain district of North Carolina a few years back was J. M. Gudger. On one occasion five colored men of unusual blackness of tint were on trial. When the case was called, the judge, noticing the group, inquired, "What have you now, Mr. Solicitor?" Instantly came the reply, "A flush of spades, your honor."—San Francisco Argonaut.

HE MET HER ONCE.

One morning in May I chanced to be strolling down an avenue noted as a fashionable promenade. The day was bright, and I felt vexed that I had inadvertently picked up my umbrella instead of a cane. However, the annoyance soon merged into gratification, for suddenly the sun disappeared, and a drenching shower scattered the pedestrians in every direction. My umbrella proved of little avail, and nearing the Hotel —— I ran up the steps leading to the ladies' entrance. Hastily opening the outer door, I was soon in the vestibule.

There stood a woman whose appearance I shall never forget. She was of medium height and plainly, though fashionably dressed. Her face was not beautiful, but it was strikingly intellectual, and, furthermore, it possessed that charm called by the English fetching. That she was of gentle birth I instinctively felt confident, but what impressed me more deeply was the expression of grief, of trouble, which the first glance at her face revealed. She also appeared quite unable to control her nervousness. Pretending to allow my closed umbrella to drip before entering the house, I stood almost at her side, glancing out the glass paneled door and watching her at intervals. She showed in every motion she was not at ease.

At length, without knowing what prompted me to do so, I said:

"Pardon me, but may I be of any service to you?"

"If I might borrow your umbrella for a few moments, I shall be under lasting obligations to you."

She refused politely but firmly my repeated efforts to persuade her to let me call a cab, and saying, "I will return it to you here," she tripped rapidly down the steps and turned in the direction of "up town."

I entered the hotel and lighted a cigar. As I sat smoking, at peace with the world, I wondered what it was that so troubled the little woman. My cigar finished, I returned through the corridor and again stood in the vestibule. The sun had reappeared and was shining brightly. I stepped aside to allow a woman to enter, and was about to close the door for her when she said:

"Sir, I think these are for you."

With this she handed me a card, a tuberose almost hidden in three leaves of English ivy and my umbrella. I glanced at the card; it read, "Mrs. Alfred B——." It was the name of a man beside whose deathbed I had sat years before in Arizona! Above the name was written with a pencil, "With many thanks for the courtesy of a stranger."

Was this poor old B——'s wife? Over and over again I asked myself this question. Though B—— and I had been chums in old cavalry days, and I had known him to be a married man, yet I had never met his wife. Unaccountable as it may seem, this woman filled my thoughts. I threw down the evening paper impatiently and went to the play. It was useless. I still saw that troubled face.

"Surely," I said mentally, "if B——'s wife is in trouble, I may claim acquaintance with her through his memory, if not by the instrumentality of the umbrella episode. It was stupid in me not to have asked the maid where she lived. But perhaps the card bears her residence. Yes, '84 —— avenue.' I will call tomorrow."

I rested badly and arose unrefreshed. By 12 o'clock I was well on my way toward her dwelling. I passed 80 and thought hers is the second door beyond. Alas! A large bow of black crape encircled the bell-knob, and the long ends floated languidly in the breeze.

"This explains her uneasiness," I said as I passed by rapidly. "I wonder if it is her mother? Possibly a child. I will see by the newspapers."

I went to my club and there one after the other read the death notices. "Strange!" I muttered. "I will learn later." But later the result was the same. Perplexed and strangely uncomfortable I sought various diversions, and with a splitting headache the next morning I once again wandered toward her house. The crape was still there. No sign of life was visible—the closely drawn curtains shut all from my view. First on one corner, then on the other, I spent most of the day watching the house. The evening papers were again scrutinized. Absolutely nothing! What did it mean?

The following day found me once more at my post. At noon a hearse turned into the avenue. I followed slowly. It stopped before her door, and just as I was passing a casket was being borne down the steps. It was not her child; the size of the casket gave me this much information. I looked back. Several persons clothed in deep mourning were entering the two carriages at the door. As they slowly progressed I followed in their wake. I felt positive of their destination. I was near the steps of the church as the persons alighted from the carriages. "Yes, that must be she." To be sure, I could not see her face beneath the heavy veil, and I was conscious of some change in her figure, but this I attributed to the somber apparel.

I entered the scantily filled church and occupied one of the rear pews. The words of the old clergyman scarcely reached me. A hymn was sung; a prayer followed. Then up the aisle in slow procession moved those who wished to take a farewell look at the dead.

"Will she think it vulgar curiosity in me?" I asked myself as I took my place in line. "She will see me, of course, as I pass her pew."

But she did not. The head I thought to be hers was bent down as if in prayer. I neared the casket, and there stood longer than I should have done, spellbound. The troubled look had entirely disappeared, and in its place shone an expression of heavenly composure.

I took from my buttonhole the tuberose and laid it upon her breast. The card is among my most valued possessions.—Philadelphia Times.

Presence of Mind In the Last Century.

An anecdote, showing that the presence of mind of a lady of the last century was quite equal to that of the present day, is told of the celebrated Frau von Stein. While entertaining some guests at dinner a servant entered the room bearing aloft in magnificent style the piece de resistance, a fine saddle of venison.

Owing, however, to some lack of dexterity on the fellow's part, the meat, greatly to the consternation of all present, slipped off the platter from its elevated position and fell upon the floor.

But the lady of the house, the least disconcerted of all, calmly remarked, "Take it away and bring in the other piece."

When the "other piece," which, as may be surmised, was the same redecorated, appeared, and the Duke of Weimar, one of the guests, was asked if he might be served to some, he was unable to refrain from the joke and replied: "No, thank you. I prefer some of the other piece."

How the quick witted hostess met this blow is not stated by the chronicler.—New York Times.

ARABIAN HORSES.

Their Marvelous Intelligence and Rare Beauty Described.

NEVER LEAVE THEIR NATIVE LAND.

The Pedigree Sacredly Guarded by the Tribe.—Wonderful Feat of the Famous Omar I.

"It is said that Arabian horses have deteriorated, Count. Can it be true?"

"No, madam, it is impossible for the true Arab horse to deteriorate so long as the Arab tribes follow the same laws, and so jealously guard these rare breeds from loss by sale or theft. They have a race of horses called the Levantine, which they offer in exchange for money and merchandise. These horses have excellent points, are showy, handsome, well trained and in every way desirable, but they no more compare to the true Arab breeds than a clumsy cart horse to the swift runner."

"Are there many distinct breeds?"

"There are but five, and every one entirely different and with distinctive marks. Those most highly prized, most rare and valuable, are the Nedijer and the Osman. The other three—the Abdalla, Dakir and Mohammed—although of blood as pure, and as impossible to obtain by purchase, have not the same matchless beauty."

"But were not the horses presented to General Grant by the sultan thoroughbred Arabs?"

"Certainly not. They were only the common Levantine horses, showy and stylish, strong and with fine points, but they were not thoroughbreds, as the sultan has never had a pure thoroughbred Arab in his stables."

"Is this fact generally known and believed?"

"It is of course well known in Europe among such horsemen as study the different breeds and have seen the true Arab in its native land. These fine breeds which I have mentioned are considered so precious that every precaution is taken, not only by the owners, but by the whole tribe, to prevent their sale or loss by intrigue, and the Arab tribes, with all their peculiar creeds of hospitality, have never arrived at that state of civilization which could induce them to give away such treasures."

"If an owner should be tempted by an enormous price to part with a mare or stallion—there are no geldings—he would be put to death by his tribe, while the man who had the temerity to seek such a purchase must do so at the risk of his life.

"The famous Omar I, who now belongs to the empress of Austria, the finest horse woman in Europe, traveled three days and nights over the hot and barren plains of the Arabian desert with but two quarts of barley for food and an occasional tuft of the Sahara clover. Only twice was there water found for him to drink. Fleet as a bird, he ran, seemingly unconscious of his burden, and arrived at the wall before Cairo apparently as fresh as when he started. The two Sluhgi, enormous gray hounds called antelope catchers, which were a part of Omar's outfit and always traveled with him, were lagging miles behind, footsore and weary; but Omar neighed cheerfully, encouraging them to approach, and promising to them rest and refreshment in his sympathetic whinnies."

"Will you describe him?"

"His skin was black, and shone through a fine glossy coat of silver gray hair; his mane full and long, and his tail, which swept the ground, was pink. About fifteen hands high, in form the most beautiful that can be imagined in any four footed animal, he was fleet as the wind, graceful as the antelope, trained to every agile movement, and with an endurance inconceivable. In disposition faultless—kind, gentle, caressing and obedient—he had never known whip or spur, or even a harsh word, giving always the best he knew."

"Does he still live?"

"He was alive when last I heard, and is now about forty years old and in his prime, as the Arab horses are almost as longlived as a man."

"Do they make good war horses?"

"In battle their extraordinary evolutions remind one of the gyratory movements of the swallow when it flies. They turn and wheel with such rapidity that it is impossible to get a shot at them, and if they run nothing can catch them, their wonderful wisdom and cunning leading them and their riders out of difficulties the most serious."

"Where are they found?"

"In Mecca, Medina, Palestine and the Persian gulf are found the Nedijar and Osman. They have the Abdalla race in the Atlas mountains as well as between Afghanistan and the Persian mountains, where also live the Mohammed and Dakir breeds. These horses descended as their looms from father to son, and no possession is so precious as these exquisite animals. Their pedigree is carefully preserved with that of the family's own, and their names descend as do those of the generations of kings. Sometimes many or all the members of a tribe will be each a part sharer in a horse, and this horse is left by will to a successor. One cannot sell his share without permission from the rest, be he ever so much in need, and it must be an unusual circumstance, indeed, which could gain such permission."

"Doubtless their pedigree dates a long way back."

"The legend regarding them, which is said to be a true one, is this: During the reign of Mohammed he sent his grand vizier with his army in the hope of conquering China. For five years they traveled over mountain and valley, through forest and desert, climbing rocky precipices to descend on the other side into the rivers and streams. Unparalleled hardships befell them on their long journey thither, and were not lightened on their return, inasmuch as every horse died on the road except five beautiful mares. From these and the Dzigguetai (pronounced Gigati) are descended the five rare breeds so closely guarded by the Arab tribes.

"The Dzigguetai are the wild Arabian stallions of the desert, outmatching and outwitting the wary and cunning Arab in his various devices to approach them, never letting him get nearer than half a mile. After exhausting every other artifice, the Arabs have lain concealed in the desert by being buried in the sand for days and nights, with the fruitless hope of securing them by throwing their lasso at long range. But these untamed and untamable creatures, with their intelligent instinct, scented danger from afar, and kept their half mile distance between themselves and their would be captors.

"In this dilemma it occurred to the far seeing Arabian that this race could at least be perpetuated and improved by arranging some equine marriages. Picketing the five beautiful mares near their hunting grounds, they were offered as brides to the Dzigguetai and accepted. The result gave everything most valued in the horse, as well as matchless beauty."

JEALOUSY.

It was 4 o'clock. Louise was running along the pebbly paths of her garden, flitting among the rose bushes like a butterfly and stopping from time to time to breathe the perfume of a newly blown flower. M. Jacques de Beauchamp entered the garden. The little widow, perceiving him, hid herself behind an orange tree. But Jacques ran to her, and surprising her kissed her on her forehead.

"Ah, Monsieur de Beauchamp," she cried, "that is not nice of you."

Louise was of medium height. She had very small hands and feet, white shoulders and thick black hair. Her teeth were so white that when she laughed they glistened like pearls.

Louise leaned upon the arm of M. de Beauchamp, and they went into the parlor. They agreed so well that they had planned to be married. Nevertheless each of them had a defect. M. de Beauchamp was jealous and Mme. de Viry was coquettish.

"Louise," he said to her, "you will drive me to despair. You say that you love me, but how can I believe it when I see you smiling at every admirer and giving to every comer so sweet a reception? When I see you in society so full of life and gayety and hear your ringing laughter from the midst of a circle of ardent admirers, it is impossible for me to tell you the tortures and anguish I endure."

"What can I do, dear?" inquired Louise. "I am gay, it is true, but is that a crime? And why should I be cold to those who approach me only to say pleasant and agreeable things?"

"You are a coquette, and your laugh makes me despair because if you laugh thus against my wish it must be only to show your teeth. You know very well how adorable you are when in laughing with a fixed purpose you throw back your head and show your pretty white neck."

"But what must I do to prove my love for you? It is becoming desperate. Ask of me what you please, but do not ask me not to laugh any more. I am only happy when I am glad and free to be light hearted."

M. de Beauchamp assumed a solemn air. "You said to me one evening that you would make for me the sacrifice of your life. I do not ask so much as that. But listen. Do you wish to make me the happiest man on earth?"

"You have but to speak."

"Even at the price of suffering?"

"Yes, at any price."

"Well, then, make me the sacrifice of one tooth."

"What are you demanding of me? It is barbarous!"

"Only a tooth—the smallest one, in the front. And afterward you may laugh as much as you please."

"But you will think I am ugly and will not love me any more."

"I swear to you there is no other way to assure my happiness."

The countess rang the bell. John, her valet, took her orders and came back a quarter of an hour later with a gentleman carrying in his hand a leather case such as is used by surgeons.

"Who is that person?" asked M. de Beauchamp.

The countess answered:

"It is Mr. James, the American dentist."

The little countess entered her boudoir, followed by Nito, his tail between his legs, as if he understood that something serious was about to happen. Louise returned shortly afterward ashamed and humbled and gave to M. de Beauchamp a little tooth as white as milk, which he carried to his lips and covered with kisses. Seeing this tribute of affection Louise ran away.

Jacques had the tooth set in a medallion and carried it religiously around his neck as a souvenir.

From that day the little countess became very sad. Only upon rare occasions was her face lighted up by a smile. She kept aloof from society as much as possible, but when she was forced by her social duties to appear among her friends they saw her keeping apart from the others or sitting in a corner with a serious air, her mouth closed like a prison door.

Jacques did not easily recognize her. In fact, she was greatly changed.

"Poor countess," said some evil minded ones, "she is getting old. How changed she is! She seems to be mourning the dead."

And Jacques felt his love diminish little by little. He began to understand that what he loved in her was especially her smile, her playfulness, her gayety, and he also became sad. The more he tried to regain his love, which seemed to be leaving him, the more he realized that he himself had killed his passion.

One day he went in despair to Mme. de Viry.

"Louise," he said, throwing himself at her feet, "do you love me still?"

"I have sworn to love you always, and the stiller you are the better," she answered.

"Will you prove to me the sincerity of your words?"

"I ask nothing else."

"Well, then, if you love me have the dentist put in a new tooth."

"What folly is this?" said Louise, weeping. "I was right when I said that you would not love me any more. That is just like you men. And you reproach us for being capricious."

"Louise, I beg you to forgive me. I curse my jealously—my foolishness."

"So you are only regretting the weakness with which I acceded to your caprice?"

"I am desolate and full of remorse."

"You recognize the cruelty of your unreasonable request?"

"I will reproach myself for it all my life."

"Would you be happy if I had disobeyed you?"

"I would give anything for that."

The little countess gave a burst of laughter, which showed all her teeth complete.

"What does this mean?" asked M. de Beauchamp, holding in his fingers the medallion in which was incased as a souvenir the little pearl of the sacrifice.

The countess opened the mouth of Nito, saying, "Here is the victim."

"Ah," cried M. de Beauchamp, "you never loved me!"—From the French.

Wordsworth In His Own Home.

That Wordsworth entertained a high idea of womanhood in the abstract is undoubted and is evident in most of his poetry, but it is equally true that he could ill support contradiction or interference from the ladies of his own family, from whom, by the way, he was likely to meet with very little of either. He was lord paramount in his home—the central figure of a group of devoted and faithful admirers, who could see no flaw in anything he said or did. His sister and sister-in-law resided constantly with them, joining wife and daughter in one invariable chant of praise of his great gifts and veneration for his genius.

Under such circumstances who would wonder at the growing weakness for universal approbation which is said to have beset in his latter days the grand old Lake poet?—Cornhill Magazine.

HOUSE SLANG.

A Conversation Between Two College Graduates.

SLANG BY MEN IS BAD ENOUGH,

But When Well Bred Young Women are Addicted to the Habit it Becomes Intolerable.

Dear girls, avoid slang. There are so many reasons why you should not use it, and only one excuse in its favor that I have ever heard from any reliable authority! Here it is:

Oliver Wendell Holmes, in one of his racy breakfast table talks, says: "Don't think I undervalue the proper use and application of a cant word or phrase. It adds piquancy to conversation as a mushroom does to a sauce." That this is the idea most young people have when they first begin to use it all will admit, but unfortunately it is like moderate drinking in its tendency, so insinuating in its growth as a habit, and they become so "addicted to it" (to follow out the simile), that it seems impossible to make themselves intelligible without it. I have heard young ladies (?) talking who seemed to have an entire vocabulary composed of slang which would be as utterly unintelligible to a well bred English or Scotch girl as Chinese or Greek.

To quote the veteran philosopher again: "These expressions come to be algebraic symbols of minds which have grown too weak or indolent to discriminate. They are the blank checks of intellectual bankruptcy. You may fill them up with whatever idea you like. It makes no difference, for there are no funds in the treasury upon which they are drawn."

That of course is very severe, but I have often heard quite clever and well educated young ladies using those odious "blank checks" to such an extent that any one not knowing them intimately might readily have supposed their "intellectual bank" empty.

I wonder what Dr. Holmes would have thought of an actual conversation between two young ladies in good society, so called, who sat behind me in the grand stand at a baseball match last summer. I can give it almost verbatim:

"Say, Jen (abbreviated form of Jennie; 'life is too short' to use the whole of a person's name), who is the 'fly' looking 'snide' in the yellow striped 'get up?'"

"Oh, 'come off the roof!' To pretend you don't know Cob. (C. O. B. are the young gentleman's initials wittily converted into 'Cob.') After the way you 'went for' him at the ball last week! You can't 'stuff' me with that kind of gag, Miss Innocent."

"Oh, is that Cob? He must be 'off his nut' to 'rig' himself in such a 'swagger' way."

"Oh, Jen, look at Cob now! He is horribly 'rattled.' Mabe (short for Mabel) 'slung a glance' at him, and he lost his head as well as his base."

"Is she 'mashed' on Cob?"

"Ha, ha! 'Pull down your vest!' Do you think Mabe is 'off her base?' She likes him 'to trot her round' and 'stump up the needful' for ice cream, etc., but she likes Alf Jones better 'all the same-ee.' You can 'bet your sweet life' she won't marry Cob."

"Look at him now. 'You bet' he's 'hustling!'"

"Get there, Eli!" "Ruddigore!" "That was a 'boss' run!" and so on ad finitum, ad nauseum. All this in a perfectly audible voice, and they were seemingly unaware that there was anything vulgar or out of the usual in their conversation. Probably there was not, and yet those two young ladies were college graduates and were possessed of more than average ability.

If you think this description exaggerated, listen critically to the next unrestrained conversation between two young ladies whom you know to be guilty of using slang freely. I fancy I hear you say, "But I never could talk like that." Take care! Just as confident ones as you have begun by using a few slang words—"they are so cute and expressive, you know!"—and ended by forming a vulgar and enslaving habit which took great strength of mind and firm perseverance to break. The worst stage of a slang devotee is when she grows utterly unconscious of or indifferent to the habit. There is very little hope of improvement for her. The only safe way is never to form the habit at all.

Dear young girls, on you the "language of the future" in great measure depends. You are the coming mothers and teachers and will have an all powerful influence in molding the language of the next generation to come and numberless generations after that. See to it that it is a language of intelligence, grace and purity.—Miss Frank Davis.

The Value of a Good Address.

Young men should study to talk well—to state their propositions with a clearness and force that will make their hearers feel that the speaker has reached the gist of the matter, and that his opinion is of some weight. You will notice a man coming into the office. There is something in his very appearance and the way he carries himself that commands respect and attention. A canvasser for a book came into my office only yesterday who was a splendid illustration of it. I had no intention of buying his cyclopedia. But he was well dressed and intelligent. He seemed to understand my wants, and in five minutes we were talking busily together. He sold me $120 worth of books.

I think that a good personal address is something too little cultivated. I would rather have it than a profession.—Interview in New York Press.

A gentleman, having had his boots cleaned by a boy in a Dublin street, paid the shoeblack with a considerable degree of haughtiness, on which the little fellow, when the other had got a short way off, said:

"Arrah, now! all the polish you have is on your boots, and I gave it to ye."—

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, JULY 28 1893

The appointment as United States Senator of ex-Governor Perkins must have surprised many people, and those who were supposed to be nearest the Executive ear will feel the most chagrin. The choice is a good one. Mr. Perkins is a strong, able hard-working, conscientious Republican, one of three of his party who, as a Gubernatorial candidate, has snatched victory from defeat in the past twenty years. His record is clean, and he will serve the State well. He is a business man more than a politician, and, knowing what California needs, will seek to gain for her money for waterways, to deepen harbors, to erect public buildings and carry on those improvements that other States have been assisted to make by the Government. In securing for California appropriations that she should have had years ago, United States Senator Perkins will be doing the hardest kind of work to secure his election eighteen months hence, to the accomplishment of which he has practically pledged himself by accepting the commission from the Governor. Those who thought that ex-Governor Perkins would receive the nomination were in the minority. Indeed he did not expect the honor himself. The bitter fight made for the place by some of the leading candidates made it impossible for Governor Markham to bestow the commission on any of them, and the result was that a gentleman who had made no struggle to get it, and who, therefore stirred up no opposition, received the appointment. Propably it was a wise thing for Mr. Markham to do. He chose a good man, broke no friendships and left his party intact.

Collis P. Huntington is reported to have issued a circular in New York warning bankers to have nothing to do with any bonds that may be issued by the proposed Stockton and Bakersfield railroad, on the ground that the completion of that road will impair the value of Southern Pacific securities. He is said to claim that the business of the San Joaquin Valley at present rates is necessary for the payment of interest on bonds issued against the three valley roads that form a part of the Southern Pacific system. It is possible that New York bankers may be interested in keeping up the market price of Southern Pacific bonds, but the body of the people are not. The Southern Pacific system has never been managed in the interests of the people of California. It was bonded at twice or more the cost of the roads to increase the private holdings of its owners. Some of the bonds have been sold, but the invested bonds constitute the bulk of the assets of several large estates. The people want a competing railroad. In this case they are going to have what they want. If roads that are bonded at $40,000 a mile cannot compete with roads not costing more than $20,000 a mile, the $40,000 roads will have to be content with reduced dividends on watered securities.

Two railway magnates are at present in Los Angeles. First is Mr. T. R. Gabel, the young and energetic general manager of the Atlantic and Pacific railway. This gentleman is the Napoleon of railway officials in the interior of the American continent, and he has youth and enterprise enough to carry him to the highest rounds of railway distinction. The other is Mr. D. G. Scofield, the vice-president of the Nevada Southern, whose business career in California gives promise of a noble outcome. Considering the great part the Atlantic and Pacific has had in the incidental development of Southern California, far too little has been heard of that powerful corporation.

In these dull times the press of this country should feel deeply grateful to the correspondents who are doing so much to stir up a war between France and Siam. Of course Siam, unaided, would have as much chance in a fight with the Republic as a bone usually has with a mastiff; still the efforts to "sic" the countries on each other are quite laudable.

The Duke of Veregua came to America and on his return to Spain found that all his wealth had been lost by unfortunate speculation. His great ancestor, Christopher Columbus, came to America and went back in chains. America appears to be a "hoodoo" to the house of Columbus.

SUPERVISORS' PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY, July 24, 1893.
8 o'clock a. m.

Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, sitting as Board of Equalization, met at above stated time pursuant to adjournment.

Present, Robert Love, Chairman, and Supervisors Frank Fitzgerald, A. C. Freeman, W. H. Uhlmeyer, John Wilson.

Minutes of preceding meeting read and approved.

Whereupon the Board proceeded to the equalization of the Assessment Roll of 1893 as follows:

A. W. Eibeshutz sworn and testified. Valuation of merchandise ordered raised from $2,500 to $2,750.

A. W. Eibeshutz and Fred Schabbell sworn and testified as to value of 160 acres of land assessed to Fred Schabbell. Valuation of said land ordered raised from $1120 to $1280.

Aaron Reynolds sworn and examined as to value of 160 acres of land assessed to said Reynolds and valuation thereof ordered raised from $320 to $480.

D. J. Hession sworn and examined as to value of 160 acres of land assessed to J. W. McMurry. Valuation thereof ordered raised from $480 to $640.

Communication from J. B. Stinson protesting against raise of valuation for 120 acres of land was read and said land ordered raised from $600 to $720.

Communication from A. R. Conklin protesting against raise on 640 acres land presented and read and Joseph Seely sworn and examined. Valuation on said land assessed to A. R. Conklin ordered raised from $1280 to $1600.

Binc Bellows, as agent for Horace Bellows, sworn and examined relative to values. Valuation of property of said Horace Bellows ordered raised as follows, to wit:

On 160 acres land from	$320 to	$480.
160 acres land from	480 to	600.
5,000 goats from	5000 to	7500.

John Shepherd and Joseph Seely sworn and examined relative to value of real and personal property assessed to John and J. E. Shepherd. Valuations ordered raised as follows: On

260 acres land from	$ 400 to	$ 600
135 head mules from	2225 to	2430

Ida C. Adams and Joseph Seely sworn and examined as to value of land assessed to said Ida C. Adams. Ordered that valuation on 120 acres land be raised from $240 to $300.

Board took recess until 1:15 o'clock p. m., all members being present.

It appearing upon the application of C. A. Walters and upon competent evidence presented that the N. E. ¼ of Sec. 6, Twp 13 S. R. 35 E., assessed to said Walters, does not belong to him, the same was ordered stricken from the roll.

J. C. Crocker and Gustav Sanger sworn and testified as to value of property assessed to said Sanger. Whereupon valuations of Sanger's assessment were ordered raised and additions made thereto as follows: On

320 acres land from	$ 800 to	$ 960
640 acres land from	1280 to	1920
Added 80 head stock cattle @ $9		720
15 head calves @ $5		75
100 head horses @ $15		1500

Estate of D. Campbell. Valuation on 160 acres land ordered raised from $320 to $480.

E. H. Edwards, valuation on merchandise ordered raised from $3000 to $3750.

Joseph Seely appeared for Conn & Trudo by request and valuations of property assessed to said Conn & Trudo ordered raised and fixed as follows: On

1200 acres land from	$2920 to	$3660
Machinery	1500 to	2000
Improvements	400 to	700
Additional, 20 tons borax @ $50		1000

It was further ordered that valuations of property assessed to tax payers hereinafter named be increased from and to the sums stated as follows, to wit:

Tax-payer.	Assessed for.	Raised to.
John Baxter	80 acres land $ 160	$ 240
G I Bourland	163 " " 320	480
Mrs S A Bed	120 " " 360	500
	80 " " 160	240
	50 " " 100	150
A O Collins	640 " " 2,560	2560
	240 " " 840	960
	added 30 stock cattle @ $9	270
	added 18 calves @ $5	90
A A Cashbaugh	160 acres land 800	920
	80 " " 200	240
	124 " " 300	372
John Divas added 80 stock cattle @ $9		720
SAKEDensmore lands	1518	1518
James Reed	601 acres land	1800
G A James	400 " " 1600	2000
Mrs A Lutken	320 " " 1920	2240
Mrs M Lewis	160 " " 1120	1400
John Morton est lots in Keeler	670	1000
C L Meyers	160 acres land	560
J S Meyers	80 " " 240	320
S J McMurry	160 " " 640	800
Mrs M Powers	200 " " 1400	1600
Pacific Coast Borax Co	borate land 37100	40,000
F G Russell	1600 acres land 3200	4800
Nathan Rhine	merchandise 6000	8000
Frederike Raine	240 acres land 480	720
E Rawson	2800 " " 4500	5,000
Rafael Rosetti	160 " " 320	400
Mrs J V Skinner	160 " " 321	480
Manuel Silva	480 " " 960	1440
J H Stoutenburgh	400 " " 800	1,200
J H Smith added 6 cows @ $20		120
Frank Shaw	480 acres land 1200	1440
J B Steward Est	160 " " 640	900
John Thrane	640 " " 2,440	2420
W R Thorington	160 " " 400	480
	1000 goats 1000	1,000
R W Thomas	80 acres land 160	240
A C Van Fleet	80 " " 400	640
C E Windasmu	160 acres land 1280	1440
Ben T Williams	160 " " 400	480
L Wood	merchandise 1800	2000
F Whitmore, add 50 head cattle @ $9		450
Thos Webb, add 50 head cattle @ $9		450
Wm Watterson	520 acres land 4160	4640
Mrs L L Woodin	400 " " 1000	1250
Mark Waterson	160 " " 1120	1280
	240 " " 1200	1400
Schuyler Williams	160 " " 640	800
	280 " " 740	840
Mrs Emily Enloe	10 " " 70	80
Enoch Enloe	70 " " 420	560
J N Newlon	160 " " 1120	1280
S J Newlon	160 " " 1340	1440
Miss M Newman	160 " " 1120	1280
Mrs M Reinhakle	160 " " 1120	1280
R Hession	40 " " 240	320
R P Hession	160 " " 400	640

Ordered by the Board of Supervisors: That in the matter of the action heretofore ordered brought against J. N. Yandell and his sureties to recover certain sums due Inyo county for official fees, the District Attorney be and he is hereby directed to credit said Yandell with the sum of $35 41 as Auditor and the further sum of $15.40 as Recorder, upon claims and offsetts duly presented to and allowed by this Board.

Ordered: That the County Auditor and the County Treasurer are hereby directed to transfer the sum of $2000 from the Salary fund to the General Expense fund.

The following claims for Supervisors' mileage and per diem were allowed and Auditor directed to draw warrants therefor upon the Salary fund:

Supervisor Love	$20 70
Supervisor Freeman	18 00
Supervisor Uhlmeyer	15 00
Supervisor Wilson	16 80
Supervisor Fitzgerald	20 40

At the hour of 6 o'clock p. m. the Board adjourned until Monday, September 25, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 49.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, Do Ordain As Follows:

SECTION 1. Section 7 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et seq. and was amended by Ordinance No. 47, by the said Board of Supervisors, on the 5th day of April, 1893, which said amending Ordinance is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 190 et seq., is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 7. Every person who at a fixed place of business sells any malt or fermented liquors, wines or distilled liquors, whether on commission or otherwise (except wine of cultural productions when sold by the producers thereof, and fermented or malt liquors when sold by the manufacturer thereof, on the premises on which the same shall be manufactured), must obtain from the Tax Collector, and for each branch of said business, a license, and must pay quarterly therefor the sum of Forty Dollars. And every such manufacturer of any malt or fermented liquors, who sells the same on the premises on which such liquors may or shall be manufactured must obtain from the Tax Collector, for such business a license, and must pay quarterly therefor the sum of Twenty Dollars.

SECTION 2. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after twenty-five (25) days from its passage.

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same, in the "Inyo Independent," a newspaper printed and published in the said County of Inyo, at least two [2] weeks; said publication to be made said time and before the expiration of said twenty-five [25] days.

R. LOVE,
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

{SEAL}

Attest: D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 49 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the Eleventh day of July, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Supervisors Frank Fitzgerald, A. C. Freeman, John Wilson, W. H. Uhlmeyer, R. Love.

Noes: None.

R. LOVE,
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

{SEAL}

Attest: D. J. HESSON,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

[Endorsed.]

ORDINANCE NO 49.

Adopted July 11, 1893.

D. J. HESSION Clerk.

Recorded July 11, 1893, in Book "L" of Ordinances, at pages 163 et seq.

D. J. HESSION,
By J. E. PARKER, County Recorder.
Deputy.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE WHY ORDER OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE SHOULD NOT BE MADE

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of the estate of John William Meyer, deceased.

John W. Lacy, the Administrator of the Estate of John William Meyer, deceased, having filed his petition herein, duly verified, praying for an order of sale of all the real estate of said decedent, for the purposes therein set forth,—

It is therefore ordered by the Judge of said Court that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased appear before the said Superior Court on Saturday, the 5th day of August, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at the Court-Room of said Superior Court, at the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo, State of California, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Administrator to sell all of the real estate of said deceased.

And that a copy of this order be published at least once a week for four consecutive weeks in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said Inyo county.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated July 5th, 1893.

P. H. MACK, Attorney for the Administrator.

ORDER OF NOTICE TO CREDITORS ON APPLICATION FOR DISCHARGE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of J. V. SKINNER, an insolvent debtor.

J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor, having applied to this Court for a discharge from his debts,

It is hereby ordered, that the Clerk of this Court give notice to all Creditors who have proved their debts to appear before this Court at the Court-Room thereof, on the 19th day of August, 1893, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., and show cause, if any they have, why the said J. V. Skinner should not be discharged from all his debts, in accordance with the statutes in such cases made and provided.

It is further ordered, that notice of said application be given to the Creditors by mail, and by publication once a week for four weeks in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper published in said Inyo County.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated July 13, 1893.

P. H. MACK, Attorney for Insolvent.

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS
AND
LEVI STRAUSS & CO'S
SPRING BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

W. J. HOSKINS, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM GREEN and B. F. LEWIS, Defendants.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in the office of the Clerk of said Inyo county.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Green and B. F. Lewis, Defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment of this Court for the foreclosure of a certain mortgage described in said complaint and executed by the said William Green on the 31st day of May, 1890, to secure the payment of a certain Promissory Note dated May 31st 1890, made by the said William Green for the sum of $800.00, bearing interest at the rate of one and one-fourth per cent. per month, payable semi-annually; and if not paid when it becomes due, to be added to the principal and bear interest at like rate, as described in said complaint on file herein, which complaint alleges that no part of the principal or interest therein has been paid; that the premises conveyed by said mortgage may be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said promissory note and interest thereon, and the payment of 15 per cent. of the amount found due the plaintiff as attorney's fees, and for costs of this action; and in case such proceeds are insufficient to pay the same, that judgment be docketed against said William Green, defendant herein, for the balance remaining due, and also that the said defendants, and all persons claiming by, through or under them, or either of them, may be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, claim, lien, equity of redemption, and interest in and to said mortgaged premises, and for other and further relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Witness my hand and the Seal of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 29th day of June, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
J. D. LEWIS, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday	January 28th
"	February 25th
"	March 25th
"	April 29th
"	May 27th
"	June 24th
"	July 22d
"	August 26th
"	September 23d
"	October 21st
"	November 18th
"	December 16th

THOS. C. ROLAND, W. M.
B. RHINE, Sec.

BOOTS AND SHOES
MADE AND REPAIRED.
THE BEST MATERIAL.
FIRST-CLASS WORK
Repairs done Promptly.
Prices Reasonable.
30-tf A. J. DAVIS, Independence.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.
We have made arrangements with Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., publishers of "A Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," which will enable all our subscribers to obtain a copy of that valuable work free by sending their address (enclosing a two-cent stamp for mailing same) to DR. B. J. KENDALL CO., ENOSBURGH FALLS, VT. This book is now recognized as standard authority upon all diseases of the horse, as its phenomenal sale attests, over four million copies having been sold in the past ten years, a sale never before reached by any publication in the same period of time. We feel confident that our patrons will appreciate the work, and be glad to avail themselves of this opportunity of obtaining a valuable book.
It is necessary that you mention this paper in sending for the "Treatise." This offer will remain open for only a short time.

WE WANT YOU
to act as our agent. We furnish an expensive outfit and all you need free. It costs nothing to try the business. We will teach you well, and help you to earn ten times ordinary wages. Both sexes of all ages can live at home and work in spare time, or all the time. Any one anywhere can earn a great deal of money. Many have made Two Hundred Dollars a Month. No class of people in the world are making so much money without capital as those at work for us. Business pleasant, strictly honorable, and pays better than any other offered to agents. You have a clear field, with no competition. We equip you with everything, and supply printed directions for beginners which, if obeyed faithfully, will bring more money than will any other business. Improve your prospects! Why not? You can do so easily and surely at work for us. Reasonable industry only necessary for absolute success. Pamphlet circular giving every particular is sent free to all. Delay not in sending for it.
GEORGE STINSON & CO.,
Box No. 488, Portland, Me.

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.
For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the
Scientific American
Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

RESTORE YOUR EYESIGHT
Cataracts, scars or films can be absorbed and paralyzed nerves restored, without the knife or risk. Diseased eyes or lids can be cured by our home treatment. "We prove it." Hundreds convinced. Our illustrated pamphlet, "Home Treatment for Eyes," free. Tom Lipton: "I tell everybody what is in me." "The Eye," Glens Falls, N.Y.

MONEY Beginners earn from $75 to $200 per week, and more after a little experience. We can furnish you employment, and will teach you free. You work in your own locality, wherever you live. Both sexes, all ages. We start you. No risk. Can work in spare time, or all the time. Full information FREE. TRUE & CO., AUGUSTA, MAINE.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES,
District Attorney,
—AND—
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
NOTARY PUBLIC.
Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "INDEPENDENT" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Office and residence at the Johnson place, Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Freight! Freight!
BISHOP & MOJAVE
Through Freight Line.
George Meads,
PROPRIETOR.
Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:
J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.
Special rates given on car-load lots

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURCKHARDT

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence, Cal.
THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.
THE BAR
Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.
JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.
$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.
It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer without cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.
Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.
For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address
ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.
Winter Apples ..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes ..... 12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches ..... 10 cts
Dried Apples ..... 10 cts
Other varieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.
THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines,
Liquors,
& Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSFIELD, opposite the Southern Hotel
Prompt and careful attention given and the easiest possible pain inflicted. Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1030 newspapers divided into STATES AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce Street, New York

P. W. FORBES P. H. MACK.
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal. P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY the 8th day of March, 1892, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 16 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South east corner of the south east quarter of North east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98-100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of the Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hallhah, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lots Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode, situate lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispricada Lode."

That certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the north west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12), and the South-west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South sixty-eight and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence North-westerly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North East quarter and the South east quarter, and the North-west quarter and the North east quarter of the North-west quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-four and eleven-twentieth (44 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres: Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER.
Executor of the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah deceased.

Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1893.

J. W. Murphy.
BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2 00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumer should call and examine my stock and price before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT
Independence, Cal., March 9 1884.
n47tf

$6000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, Troy, N.Y., at work for us. Reader, you may not make as much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from $5 to $10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages. Live in part of America, you can commence at home, giving all your time, or spare moments only to the work. All is new. Great pay ALL for every worker. We start you, furnishing everything. EASILY, RAPIDLY learned. PARTICULARS FREE. Address at once, GEORGE STINSON & CO., PORTLAND, MAINE.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, JULY 28 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman .....A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman.....P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge.....GEO. M. GILL.
Sheriff.....JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk.....DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney.....P. W. FORBES.
Assessor.....P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer.....W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner.....H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed).....JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools.....J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist.....ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist.....A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist.....W. H. UHLMEYER
4th Supervisor Dist.....JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist..FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Rev. H. J. Winsor will preach on Sunday at Lone Pine 11 a. m.; Georges Creek, 2:30 p. m.; Independence 7 p. m.

Dr. J. Becker, German Pastor, will be at Independence on Friday, July 28th, and will preach at the M. E. Church on the following Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The sermon will be in the German language. Everybody cordially welcome.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

JUDGE N. D. ARNOT, presiding.

FRIDAY, July 21, 1893.

Emily J. O'Neal vs. Robert O'Neal—Filed decree of divorce.

TUESDAY, July 25, 1893.

On motion of Attorney F. E. Densmore Sardis Summerfield was admitted to practice in this Court.

T. E. Sisson et als. vs. John Albars et als.—Defendants' demurrer overruled.

WEDNESDAY, July 26, 1893.

T. E. Sisson et als. vs. John Albars et als.—Filed stipulation. Case dismissed on motion of plaintiffs.

THURSDAY, July 27, 1893.

N. T. Piper vs. J. F. Turner et als.—P. H. Mack Esq entered of counsel for defendants. Demurrer overruled and defendants allowed thirty days in which to answer.

Estate of B. S. Glover, deceased—Order for final distribution.

T. C. Boland was up from Keeler last Saturday.

Coroner H. H. Howell is down from Bishop.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Yerington have returned from their trip to Honolulu.

The full proceedings of the Board of Equalization will be found in this number.

A fire at Susanville, Lassen County, last week destroyed over $100,000 worth of property.

Thos. J. Goodale came down from Fish Springs on Tuesday and spent a couple of days in town.

J. D. Lewis Esq. came down from Bishop early in the week, and spent several days in town.

Judge Madden came up from Keeler on Tuesday. Time is adding years and dignity to his corporeal substance.

On his recent visit to Independence Supervisor Robt Love was accompanied by his sister, Miss Jane Love.

Hubert Howe Bancroft has published a "Worlds Fair Book" that contains much valuable information.

It is reported that the Eaton-Moffitt camping party have not yet got further than Cottonwood Creek owing to the storm.

Governor Markham has appointed ex-Governor George C. Perkins to the United States Senate to succeed Leland Stanford deceased.

Al Stock has gone to the World's Fair and Dave Pittman is filling his position as conductor on the Southern division of the C. & C.

Miss Georgia Johnson of Bishop attended the session of the Superior Court this week in her official capacity of Court Reporter.

Invitations are issued for an "A Home" to be given by the Misses Bird at their residence at Camp Independence on Friday evening next.

J. Tucker announces that the social dance set for Saturday evening will be postponed one week. Devotees of Terpsichore take notice.

Miss Lena Thomsen started for San Francisco on Tuesday's train. She expects to undergo a course of surgical treatment at the German Hospital.

Attention is directed to the advertisement of John Clarke's Livery Stables, at Bishop. This is an old established firm and thoroughly reliable.

Los Angeles farmers are discussing the practicability of shipping hay to Europe. The hay crop of Southern California this year is the heaviest ever known.

Will there be any racing at Bishop during the coming Fair? If so a programme should soon be issued that horsemen may have time to get their animals in condition.

The down train last Monday was delayed a couple of hours by washouts caused by cloudbursts in the Inyo range. Assistant Superintendent R. J. Laws was on board.

End of The Academy Cases.

In the Superior Court on Wednesday of this week, Judge Arnot presiding, the case of T. E. Sisson et als. vs. John Albars et als was called. The demurrer presented by the defendants was declared by the Judge to be well taken, but at the same time was overruled and the case ordered to trial on its merits. On the preliminary skirmishing it became very evident that the plaintiffs must lose their case. A recess was taken and when Court reconvened the stipulations were presented by the attorneys in the case, embodying the following facts: That the case be dismissed without further judgment for or against either plaintiffs or defendants except judgment for dismissal, and that each of the parties pay their own costs. That the judgment rendered by the Justice Court of the Second Township be declared of no effect and fully satisfied and discharged. That stipulations contained shall apply and be binding in all cases appealed from the Justice's Court of either the First or Second Townships where the action is prosecuted for subscriptions for funds for the erection of Inyo Academy. That any and all of said actions be and are hereby dismissed. J. W. P. Laird Esq. of Bakersfield and P. W. Forbes Esq of Independence were attorneys for defendants and S. Summerfield Esq. for the plaintiffs. This will definitely close all litigation in what is known as the "Academy cases." The plaintiffs paid the defendants the sum of one hundred dollars in consideration of the compromise. The following named parties were down from Bishop as parties or witnesses in the suit. John Clarke, J. H. Burpitt, J. L. Bourland, C. L. Logan, J. H. Stoutenborough, John Albars, S. J. Newlon, Louis Munzinger, W. O. Mooney C. A. Levy, Jas. Chamberlain and W. B. Hutchings.

Feels Discouraged

The following letter will serve as an excellent illustration of how the unsettled condition of silver affects the miner. For more than two decades Frank Fitzgerald has been following mining as a vocation. From the Modock mines he has taken hundreds of thousands of dollars. At times when leads "pinched out" and no silver was forthcoming he hung on with grim pertinacity, through all sorts of reverses, until his efforts were crowned with success. Now the uncertainty that he will receive any adequate return for his ore when mined naturally produces a feeling of despondency and he does not feel like repairing the heavy damage he has sustained. When men of his well-known determination of character feel so gloomy at the outlook it becomes doubly evident that the silver mining industry has received a terrible blow.

KEELER, July 26, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.—The Modock road is washed out so as to be of no use for a long time to come. As far as I can learn here I do not think I will attempt to repair it at all. The road between here and Darwin is also in a bad condition but I will have it O. K. in a few days. Gunn's water pipes are also badly damaged and mine ditto. Cannot estimate damage but it is bad enough to give a person a dose of the blues. FRANK FITZGERALD.

Please Settle Up.

All parties indebted to the undersigned are requested to settle on or before August 25th next. All accounts then unpaid will be placed in the hands of an attorney for collection.

L. LASKY,
Lone Pine.

For Rent

A two-room, furnished house, suitable for small family. Good cellar. Garden and plenty of good water. For terms etc. apply to W. F. MATLACK,
Independence.

John W. P. Laird Esq. arrived at Independence on Tuesday from Bakersfield. Mr. Laird was counsel for the defendants in the Academy cases tried in the Superior Court during the week, and incidentally took occasion to greet many old friends. He has met with merited success in the more extensive field of practice at Bakersfield. He expects to return home next week.

The young people of Independence took advantage of the presence in town of Junius Liebert, representing the musical department of Bancroft & Co., and Wednesday evening gave an impromptu social at the Pavilion. Mr. Liebert manipulates the ivories in a masterly manner and discoursed the latest popular music to an appreciative audience.

Among other visitors in town this week were Wm. Derby and W. J. Phillippy of Bishop, J. C. Crocker and Jas. Herod of Big Pine, Gustav Singer of Alvord and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, Miss Ella Adams and Miss Mattie Johnson of Lone Pine.

The roads generally throughout the county are reported in bad condition, caused by the heavy rains of last week. The various Road Commissioners are busily engaged repairing the damages as far as practicable.

Sardis Summerfield Esq. of the law firm of Summerfield and Torreyson, Carson, was admitted on Tuesday to practice in the Superior Court of Inyo county. Mr. Summerfield was plaintiffs' attorney in the Academy case.

Thos. Webb and H. Giles arrived here from Long Valley yesterday. Mr. Giles has been painfully troubled with his eyes, being nearly blind. He expects to go to an optician for thorough treatment.

Albert Lewis, Hi. Hamilton and George Parish have just returned from a camping trip to Lake Rhods. They say that feed is very short yet but that big fish are quite plentiful.

H. E. Wilkinson, the weather boss, came up from Keeler yesterday. He has a great deal to answer for because of the erratic condition of his protégé for the past two weeks.

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.

FRANK FITZGERALD.

Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

Good Gold Prospects.

Supervisor Wilson was in town this morning. He reports the roads all right in his district. The river is running over the Lone Pine bridge, but as the structure is a very substantial one there is no danger of it going out. Mr. Wilson says that quite a party will soon go into the Beveridge country, where some excellent prospects have recently been opened up. The Carrasco boys and Jim Stansbury have just concluded a run of gold ore in the steam arastra at the old McElvoy mill and made a good clean-up. Mr. Wilson will keep the arastra running and will probably start the mill. The ruinous depreciation of silver has the effect of stimulating gold mining to a greater degree of activity. The miner must work or starve, and as silver is comparatively valueless, the old gold fields will be thoroughly prospected over.

Back From Inyo.

W. N. Cook of the Central mine returned Sunday from Inyo county. He says that the country in the vicinity of Bishop is now a beautiful sight. Everything is of luxurious growth, and the crops will be abundant. Mr. Cook made several prospecting trips into the mountains of Inyo. He is of the opinion that it will some day prove to be a big mining region. But very little mining has ever been done there, and he says the general formation is favorable for quartz ledges and Mr. Cook's judgment on a mining proposition is second to none.—Walker Lake Bulletin.

JOHN B. CLARKE,

Successor to John Clarke,

—PROPRIETOR—

John Clarke's Bishop Stables,

BISHOP, CAL.

First-class Turnouts of Every Kind.

Fine Horses and Carriages.

Horses Boarded for any Time,

Best of Care and Attention

MISCELLANEOUS.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNdersigned, Administrator of the estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of P. W. Forbes, in the Court House, at the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the said County of Inyo, State of California.

EDWARD JOHN REYNOLDS,
Administrator of the estate of Fredrick J. Reynolds, deceased.

Dated at Independence, Cal. June 13th 1893.
P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Administrator.
jn16-5

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

THOMAS C. BOLAND, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM CRAPO, Defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in said County of Inyo in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Crapo, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the Complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within this County, or, if served elsewhere within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 34-100 Dollars [$337.34] on a balance of account for goods, wares and merchandise sold and delivered by the Plaintiff to you in the County of Inyo, State of California, at your special instance and request; also for costs of suit, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of Three hundred and thirty-seven and 34-100 Dollars, together with costs of suit.

Witness my hand and the Seal of said Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 4th day of May, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Plaintiff.

The Newest Style

OF

Fashionable Clothing

Dry Goods, Ladies'

Wear, etc., etc.

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain

Flour, etc., constantly

on hand.

CANDIES,

PEANUTS

WALNUTS,

TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" WARE.

SEVENTH

ANNUAL FAIR,

Agricultural District No. 18.

BISHOP, INYO CO., CAL.

Septembes 19 to 22, 1893.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS. WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neihboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finer Rings, Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the est quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packaes to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,

9-m RENO, NEVADA.

INDEPENDENCE

SHAVING PARLOR.

J. TUCKER, Prop'r.

HAIR CUTTING IN ANY STYLE. SHAMPOOING AND BATHS.

Adjoining Irwin's Old Corner Saloon.

DR. J. S. MCQUEEN,

DENTIST.

Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery.

All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.

Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.

Bee Keeper.

Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STOCKTON, CAL., Dec. 19th, '92.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.

Gentlemen:—Having read one of your Treatise on the Horse and seeing the Spavin Cure advertised, I thought I would try it. I had one horse with a prominent Spavin of 12 months standing. I removed it with ½ bottle. I tied upon one fore foot on same side the spavin was and compelling the horse to rest on same leg while I took a surcingle and drew it across the hock or spavin until the hock or spavin got very warm with the friction, then putting on Spavin Cure. I had a mare that had a running from her nose for 12 or 14 months. I rubbed the Spavin Cure from her eyes down to nostrils, then from back of jaw bone down under the throat for a week. I have not seen any discharge for two months.

Yours truly, HUGH McDADE.

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO., Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL

MERCHANDISE

Agent for

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:

Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE · CAL.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates

Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

Thos. Williams,
Proprietor.

BIG 10P ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

Customers supplied on all points

Of the C. & C. Railroad.

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

W. F. MATLACK.....PROP'R.

Horseshoeing .....$2.00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

INDEPENDENCE

MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROEPER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef,
Mutton,
Pork,
Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every ort made to give satisfaction to patrons.
j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies

PROVISIONS,

&c., &c., &c.

A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

BELL'S Flouring Mills

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House.....	10:05 a. m	5:30 p m.
Dayton	10:45 a. m.	4:50 p. m.
Wabuska	12:50 p. m	2:30 p. m.
Hawthorne	4 05 p. m.	10:45 a m.
Luning	5:50 p. m.	9:30 a. m.
Soda Springs.....	6:40 p. m.	8:40 a. m.
Belleville.....	7:50 p. m.	7:20 a. m.
Candelaria.....	Ar. 8:35 p. m	Lv. 6:45 a. m.
	No. 3. Leave—	No. Arrives—
Belleville.....	7 50 a. m.	5:35 a. m.
Benton	11:50 a. m.	1:45 p. m.
Bishop Creek	1:20p. m.	11:10 p. m.
Alvord.....	2.05 p. m.	10:10 p. m.
Independence. ...	3:40 p. m.	8:40 p. m.
Lone Pine.....	4:00p. m.	7:45 p. m.
Keeler.....	Ar. 5:20 p. m.	Lv. 7:00 p. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

At HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (36 miles); Bodie (36 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

At LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville Grantsville and Belmont.

At CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stage for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

At KEELER with stages from Corro Gordo (9 miles), Darwin (24 miles), and Mojave (110 miles)

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, · Cal

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer

Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor.

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of

WINES,
LIQUORS,
& CIGARS

The most careful attention given to the the amusement and comfort of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-12 tf

Inyo

Stage

Company.

REGULAR LINE

—FROM—

Mojave To Keeler.

FINE COACH
FAST STOCK.

The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful

Redrock Canyon

And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.

Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m

Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.

W. K. MILLER,
Propr.

If you want cake, biscuit and bread that are superior in lightness, sweetness, and delicious flavor, you can have them only by using

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE

We recommend the Royal Baking Powder as superior to all others. It is indispensable for finest food.

—United Cooks and Pastry Cooks Ass'n of the United States.

AMAZONS OF THE FORGE.

The Hardy and Vigorous Female Blacksmiths Employed in England.

Efforts are being made in Great Britain to secure legislation that would prohibit the employment of women and girls in the business of making nails, spikes and chains. It has been said that female employment in this direction was of compulsion, not of choice. Philanthropists have pictured the dingy smithy, with its lurid glare of leaping sparks, its sonorous chime of the falling hammer, and the British amazon with the biceps of an athlete pounding the red hot metal. Eve waiting on Vulcan has invoked the pity and caress of humanity and furnished the text for many a political tirade against the government and civilization that made such conditions a necessity in industrial life.

We have nothing to say against this crusade for female emancipation, though if the truth be told the amazons of the black country, with its countless furnaces and its smoke darkened sky, are by no means the serfs they seem to be.

We do not believe in female employment in such a muscular business as making spikes and chains. The forge is no place for a woman, but if she chooses to swing a hammer, who can prevent it? It may be an abnormal predilection, and by no means coincident with the parlor and piano idea of the modern Eve, but in an age when women are captains of ships and running the municipal government of cities, no law can annul the right of the gentle sex to make the shoe or pound the anvil.

That there are two sides of this question of female blacksmiths can no longer be doubted, since a delegation of lady ironworkers waited on the home secretary to protest against interference with their rights. There was nothing savoring of sickness, atrophy or nervousness in this amazonian deputation. If dry goods were but poorly represented, force and flesh were here in robust conditions.

One of the speakers had reached the modest age of fifty-seven years, of which quite fifty had been spent hammering iron, with occasional relapses, during which she had bequeathed fourteen children to her husband's care and the census of the nation.

A lass of sixteen years, who wielded a hammer weighing eighteen pounds, pleaded her improvement in health as a reason why the law should not interfere with her business. Appearances justified her logic, for she had the nerve of a lioness and the shoulders of an athlete.—Age of Steel.

Face Massage.

Face massage is becoming more and more popular. This is the process as given by one operator: She begins by washing the face in soft, tepid water with a honeycomb sponge well soaped with a creamy white soap of her own manufacture. A warmer lather is then introduced, then a third and fourth follow, the last as hot as can be borne. The face being thus thoroughly cleansed and heated, a yellow-white cream, containing soothing emollients, is rubbed in, the whole surface gently but firmly massaged, the lines being carefully rubbed in an opposite direction.

The friction, if capably done, tends to restore the muscular power to any tissues wasted by illness and other causes. Now the face is well rinsed in scented water, removing any particles of grease, then it is steamed by a vaporizer, the fumes of which are exhaled from a fragrant tonic water which is varied to suit different skins. A soft towel is used in wiping the face and a cooling powder applied. The processs often leaves the complexion fairer, and it has been found beneficial to victims of neuralgia, though not all neuralgia will yield to surfuce treatment.—San Francisco Examiner.

Woman's Dress Reform.

The masculine press, the masculine pulpit and the masculine platform have been declaiming against some of the abuses in woman's apparel for generations. But it has all done about as much good as it would have done to protest against the sunrise or the precession of the equinoxes. It has been conclusively demonstrated that masculine criticism has no appreciable effect upon feminine fashion. But now that women have taken up the matter themselves, the evils which have been so long apparent will be speedily abolished. Woman suffrage in the same way will become an accomplished fact whenever the great mass of women take up the agitation in dead earnest themselves.—Boston Globe.

The Wives of Great Men.

An item is going the rounds stating that the wife of Joel Chandler Harris is a pretty brunette, with beautiful teeth, sparkling eyes, winning smile and engaging manners. This is no doubt true, and what is true of Joel's domestic existence is true of that of every man of prominence. None of this class of citizens has yet been discovered with a plain or disagreeable wife. The homely woman has no show in this world evidently. If she has got a husband and he becomes prominent, at once she is transformed into a perfect beauty. That's the way of the world.—Indianapolis Sun.

Six Years in a Cellar.

A horrible affair has just been discovered at Itegehem, in Belgium. A family named Vanden Eynde, consisting of two brothers and a sister, live there on their own estate. Six years ago there was another brother, called Louis, who went away from the village to serve his time in the army, but although he was very soon discharged as unfit for military service, the family always replied to questions about him, saying that he was still a soldier.

Lately, however, mysterious reports were spread, and recently the family were surprised by the appearance of the burgomaster, accompanied by several other officials and a doctor. In spite of protests, they searched the premises, and when they opened one of the cellars a horrible sight met their eyes. Cowering in a corner, on a filthy heap of straw, was the lost brother, who looked more like a wild animal than a man.

A continual idiotic laugh was the only sign of life he gave, for he was not capable of making any movement of his own accord. Even his head staid in whatever position it was turned by the doctor who examined him. His unnatural family confessed that when he returned from his regiment he was slightly mad, and to save the expense of putting him into a lunatic asylum they had tied him up in the cellar, where he had remained for six years. The brothers and sister were arrested, and the imbecile was removed to an asylum.—Galignani Messenger.

As a Man Sees It.

The letter fluttered into the sanctum yesterday. It was from a man to a woman, and he was trying to give her, in his enthusiastic masculine way, his idea of the girls of Narragansett Pier and the costumes they wear. Here is what he says. Comment is unnecessary:

"I want to tell you that the women here are the most glorious creatures on the face of the earth. They go swinging about in the independent, healthy manner you never see except at the seashore or among the mountains. Say, why are they always sick in town and ready for twenty mile tramps when they get out here?

"Of course you want to know what they're wearing. They all have dresses made of flannel or something, with white shoes, white caps, lots of ribbons and furbelows flying, and white parasols with loads of white lace bunched all over the tops. The skirts are cut bias (is that right?), and there's something round the bottom that I think you women call a panel—or perhaps it's a flounce. Why can't women dress like that all the time? Why don't you speak to 'em about it."—New York World.

Plowed Up Seventeen Thousand Dollars.

A few days ago a young farmer named Edwards, while plowing near Southerland Springs, struck an iron pot whose top projected a half inch above the surface. It was apparently filled with earth, but its great weight led to an investigation. Under an inch of dirt were many doubloons of gold. The leather in which they were wrapped was rotten, but save for a greenish mold the coins were uninjured. They were all doubloons. Edwards loaded his treasure in a wagon, drove to San Antonio and deposited it in bank, saying nothing of the find until his return. The amount is $17,000.

There has long been a tradition in Southerland Springs neighborhood that Santa Anna buried treasure there on his retreat after his defeat at the battle of San Jacinto in the war of independence, and various searchers have hunted for it. The pot was originally sunk deep, but the rains of more than half a century had denuded it of its covering.—Cor Chicago Tribune.

A Curious Ohio Family.

Living near Waynesville is a family named Yeazel, who lately moved there from Clinton county. Recently the head of the family entered a hardware store at the first named place and called for seven hoes. The clerk was astonished whereupon the farmer explained that he had brought but four hoes with him from Clinton county, and wanted seven more to keep his sons and himself busy.

He is possessed of eleven children, the mother and only daughter having six fingers on each hand, two of the boys six toes on each foot, and one having seven toes on one foot. The family cultivates tobacco and is regarded with much curiosity by the neighbors on account ofthe extra supply of fingers and toes.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Games Forbidden on Sunday Only.

There is a suspicion, doubtless unfounded, that those whose word is law at the Desplaines camp meeting are moving backward in their course with regard to the rules denying nearly all secular amusements to young people. The directors explain that they have no objection to croquet, tennis and sitting in hammocks on any day except Sunday, and the rules prohibiting these pleasures apply to that day only. To many Methodists it will appear ominous that any rules were necessary forbidding youthful Methodists to play games on the Sabbath.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

HIS HOUSEKEEPER.

"Miss Jenny!"

"Well, Mr. Tressaly?"

"I'm thinking of going to housekeeping."

"Are you, Mr. Tressaly?"

"Yes. The fact is, I'm tired of boarding, and I think it would be a nice change, and—and—I fancied you might recommend a housekeeper."

"A housekeeper? What sort of one, Mr. Tressaly?"

"Oh, some nice old woman or other—somebody who can make a snug little home!"

Jenny's eyes sparkled, and her pretty brows contracted with the momentary twitch.

"I think I can recommend the very person you want," said Miss Hope, curving her lip.

"Can you? Oh, Miss Jenny, I shall be a thousand times obliged to you. I'll engage her immediately, and I can look up the house afterward, you know. Who is she?"

"Well, it's my aunt, Miss Zeruiah Plant. She's staying here now, and it has always been her ambition to assume the charge of a gentleman's household. I'll call her at once, and you can settle preliminaries as soon as you please."

Miss Jenny swept out of the room with the steps of a tragedy queen. Luke followed her with his eyes until the door was closed, and then leaned back in his chair with a deep sigh.

"If I only dared ask that girl to marry me!"

Miss Plant was feeding her gray parrot when Jenny came into her room. She was not young—moreover, she was not pretty—and she wore spectacles and a "false front," yet Miss Plant was still on the qui vive for a chance in the lottery matrimonial.

"Aunt, dear," said Jenny demurely, "I have just received a proposal for you."

"For me? Oh, go 'long!" tittered Miss Plant, dropping the lump of sugar she was about to regale Pretty Polly with.

"No, but Aunt Zeruiah, I'm in earnest."

"Who is it?" said Aunt Zeruiah, putting her hand on her heart and mechanically feeling to see if her glossy black curls were all straight.

"Mr. Tressaly. He wants to go to housekeeping and needs some lady of mature judgment to preside over his household—so go in and see him."

Miss Zeruiah waited to hear no more, but made a drive for the door, leaving Jenny to finish the ministration to the gray parrot at her leisure.

"You sent for me, sir?" said Miss Zeruiah, tripping into the parlor and sinking with girlish confusion into an easy chair opposite Mr. Tressaly.

"Yes," said Luke unconsciously. "I wished for a capable housekeeper. Do you think you would be willing to take charge of my home?"

"Yes," giggled Miss Plant, hiding her blushes in a lilac edged handkerchief. "That is, if you don't think me unmaidenly in so soon giving my consent."

Luke stared; he thought Miss Plant a very old woman, but nevertheless he went on:

"I am very particular about my coffee. I suppose you understand all these little details?"

"O' course I do," said Aunt Zeruiah. "I can cook first rate, though I say it who shouldn't say it. My coffee's as clear as wine."

"Well, I think we may consider this as an engagement."

"I calc'late so," said Miss Plant, again taking refuge in her lilac bordered kerchief.

"I should like you to come as soon as possible, as I wish to engage a house immediately," said Luke, rising.

"Oh, certainly," smiled Miss Zeruiah. "When is it to be?"

"When is what to be?"

"Why, the wedding?"

"What wedding?"

"Why—ours, to be sure! Ain't we going to be married?"

"My good woman," said Tressaly, turning red to the roots of his hair, "here is some enormous mistake. I merely wished to engage a housekeeper; I never dreamed of proposing to you!"

"Well, I am sure!" shrieked Miss Zeruiah, every false curl bristling with her agitation. "I'll have you to know that I don't need to go out to service, and I'm as good as you be any day of the week! And if you calculate to insult a poor, lone woman you'll find out you've waked up the wrong passenger! I'll prosecute you, I will, you good for nothin dandy!"

And Miss Plant rushed furiously from the room, leaving Luke in a state of astonished bewilderment difficult to describe.

"Upon my word, here's a pretty misunderstanding," quoth Luke aloud. "Fancy me married to that old maid. I'd rather board by all odds, for— Hush! What's that?"

It sounded like a suppressed giggle. Luke walked straight to the door whence the mysterious sound proceeded and caught Miss Jenny Hope's two little resisting hands ere she could escape from her ambuscade.

"Don't, Mr. Tresally!" said Jenny between her bursts of laughter.

"I will!" said Luke undauntedly. "It serves you right for laughing at me!"

"And you don't want to marry Aunt Zeruiah after all?" said Jenny, the brown eyes brimming with fun. "Why, I thought you wanted a housekeeper!"

"So I do," quoth the valiant Luke.

"Then why don't you marry Aunt Zeruiah?"

"Because I had rather marry you."

"Nonsense," faltered Jenny, turning rose red and trying desperately to escape.

"No, it isn't nonsense, Jenny," said Luke, stooping down to get a better look into the blushing, averted face. "Seriously, Jenny, will you have me? No—you shan't go until I have had an answer, my heart's little queen. Yes or no—will you marry me?"

"I—suppose—so," said Jenny, with a mischievous sparkle through her downcast lashes—"that is, if you and Aunt Zeruiah can't come to an understanding!"

Luke Tressaly did set up housekeeping some three months subsequently. And he says he likes it better than boarding.—Buffalo News.

A Ball of Twine Picked Up at Sea.

Captain Chadwick of the schooner Henry Souther of Thomaston, Me., lying at Woodall's shipyard in Baltimore, possesses a ball of twine which has a history. One morning in September, on a voyage from Brunswick, Ga., to an eastern port, Captain Chadwick noticed a string flying out from the mizzen mast of his vessel about the crosstrees. It extended as far as the eye could follow it above the water. A man was sent aloft to pull in the string, and after it was all gathered aboard it made a large ball of manilla twine.

At the time the string was discovered the nearest land was 35 miles distant. As such twine was not used on the Souther, Captain Chadwick was puzzled to account for its presence. The only solution was that it had been used to fly a kite or a captive balloon, which had escaped, and that it had been blown across the Chadwick's mast. Mrs. Chadwick measured the cord, which is 1,000 feet long.—Hartford Times.

Boys Take Long Swims.

Two lads, each about twelve years of age, swam across the St. Lawrence between Levis and Quebec, yesterday, a distance of over three-quarters of a mile, at high water; but this feat was eclipsed a few days since by two other lads named Bertie Russell, of Quebec, and Duncan Anderson, of Chaudiere, who, it is claimed, successfully swam the entire distance from Chaudiere basin to Orleans island, which must be fully nine miles.—Montreal Witness.

WIFE AND WEALTH.

It was 3 o'clock in the morning in the office of a morning newspaper. Every fellow in the crowd was a bachelor, and each one was informing the other in all seriousness that he should marry.

"What for?" inquired Claude Brown of Frank Jones.

"Because," replied Frank, "it is the only proper way to live."

"Well, if you think it's such a great snap, why don't you get married?"

"Thunderation, man! how's a fellow to buy a whole steamboat when he hasn't money enough to buy a splinter off a stage plank?"

"What's the matter with marrying a rich girl?"

"Where's the girl?" queried Charlie.

Smith argued awhile against matrimony, and at 3:30 started for home. He was thinking the conversation over, and as he trudged along it occurred to him that a bachelor was not only a knot on a log, but he was a very lonesome knot.

His way led him through the aristocratic portion of the city, and as he passed a fine house his reverie was disturbed by the peculiar click of a turning lock, and the matrimonial line of thought was knocked all away by the reportorial instinct, and he saw instead of a blushing, blooming Mrs. Smith a burglar cracking a millionaire's dining room and making off with his silver.

He thought of the beautiful scoop he was going to have on the other fellows, and slipping into the shadow he waited and listened.

Click went the lock again as if the burglar was nervous and was more anxious to open the door than he was to preserve the ordinary burglarious quiet.

The reporter scrutinized the door closely and discovered that the robber was not on the outside, but was evidently within and was working his way out, and he felt a thud of excitement at the thought of being able to capture the man with the boodle on his person.

He slipped his revolver out of his pocket, turned it on the door, and an instant afterward the door sprung, and Charley was ready to cry, "Throw up your hands," when instead of a burglar what appeared to be a ghost came out.

"It can't be a ghost," he whispered in an assuring tone to himself, "for ghosts don't unlock doors. They just come right through them, but if it isn't a ghost, what the deuce is it?"

He hadn't long to wait, for whoever or whatever it was came out into the vestibule and down the steps slowly, as if uncertain of its movements, and when about half way to the pavement stopped.

"Whew," said the reporter, "it's a woman, and she's got on a nightgown. I'll have to see about this," and with his revolver ready in case of accident he stepped out of the shadow and spoke to the ghostly walker.

"Good evening" he said nervously.

"No, excuse me, I mean good morning. If you're going to market, maybe you'd better go back and put on an ulster."

Ordinarily Charlie would have been more gallant, but this was anything but an ordinary affair, and he didn't require newspaper instinct to tell him so.

The sheeted figure made no reply, but moved again and came toward him. The cold chills chased each other down his back, and he looked for a policeman with the usual result.

"Stand back," he said; "this pistol ain't loaded, but it might go off."

But on it came, and Charlie found that his legs wouldn't move in spite of all he could do to make them.

One step more, and he stood face to face with his strange discovery, and Charlie saw that it was not only a woman, but a young and handsome one, and he began to feel better.

"I beg your pardon," he said, "but the night air is cool, and you appear to be dressed rather lightly. Can I render you any assistance? Is there any one in the house that has frightened you?"

Still no answer, and Charlie, emboldened by his own words, stepped to the young woman's side and gently took her by the arm.

She turned her face to him, and then the mystery was solved.

"Another 'La Somnambula' of the stage, with a reporter as first tenor and leading man. Well, this is a go!"

"I've got to take her in the house anyhow, that's plain," he said to himself, and he gently led the willing walker back to the door and rang the bell and rang it with a 40-horsepower draft.

The next minute the beautiful sleep walker was no longer asleep, but wide awake, and Charlie had a plump young woman in his arms in a dead faint, and he made a dash with his burden into the hall, only to meet a healthy young man even more en deshabille.

"What's this?" he shouted, making a grab at Charlie's throat.

"Shut the door, you idiot," gurgled Charlie, dropping the girl on the floor and almost putting his foot on her, after the manner of sic semper tyrannis.

"What does this mean?" again shouted the young man, and the remainder of the family came tumbling down stairs, none of them fixed to see company.

"Let go of me and shut that door, and I'll tell you," wheezed Charlie. "You don't want to raise the neighborhood and bring the patrol wagon, do you?"

Some of the other members of the family by this time had rescued the reporter and shut the door, and while the mother and servants carried the unconscious girl up stairs Charlie told the father and son how he had met the young lady and what the trouble was.

Both men knew him by sight and had met him on 'change and elsewhere, and it was not difficult to explain the situation.

When he reached the office next day, a note was waiting for him, and he was invited to call that evening on the mother of the young lady.

He called, of course. He saw the mother, he saw the daughter, blushing and beautiful, and now if Charlie is a bachelor much longer there will be a breach of promise suit or some other dreadful calamity, for Charlie's mind is made up.—Philadelphia Item.

How Chinese Hatch Fish.

The Chinese have a method of hatching the spawn of fish and thus protecting it from those accidents which generally destroy a large portion of it. The fishermen collect with care from the margin and surface of water all those gelatinous masses which contain the spawn of fish, and after they have found a sufficient quantity they fill with it the shell of a fresh hen's egg, which they have previously emptied, stop up the hole and put it under a sitting fowl. At the expiration of a certain number of days they break the shell in water warmed by the sun. The young fry are presently hatched and are kept in pure, fresh water till they are large enough to be thrown into the pond with the old fish. The sale of spawn for this purpose forms an important branch of trade in China.—Gardeners' Magazine.

The other night at Retford Junction, England, an immense swarm of bees settled in a lamp case on a signal, and the lamp could not be placed in position without considerable danger. Consequently the signal was abandoned all night and fog signals substituted.

Rev. Edward Beecher's adopted daughter received at her baptism the name of Voice Adams. She was one of a family of fifteen children, whom her father, a great-grandson of John Quincy Adams, supported by lecturing on "The Voice of Nature."

A Tame Mountain Lion.

In Colorado I visited a hunter's store and saw a mountain lion—the only one, as its owner asserted, which had ever been tamed. It was in a little back room chained to an iron staple in the floor, round which it was pacing, uttering low growls.

It appeared very much like a small panther and seemed anything but tame, snarling at us as if it longed to spring. It was in awe of its master, however, and cowed down every time he cracked his whip. He made it do several tricks with a retriever dog, which did not seem to like the task very well.

"Come and kiss Miss Pussy," said the man, and the dog went up to it, laid a paw upon its neck and licked its face.

The master then put a piece of meat on her nose and told the dog to fetch it away.

"He doesn't care for this part," was his comment. "She has had him by the throat once or twice. Just look at her iron paws? One blow would lay you dead as mutton. What, you brute, you would, would you!"

Miss Pussy had tried to gnaw his boot and needed to be lashed off.

"Do you ever take her out?"

"Oh, yes, she goes walking with me in the mountains sometimes. I take her chain off when we're out of town, but I'm precious careful to follow her and never let her step behind me!"—"A Ride Through Wonderland."

New Zealand Mutton.

The sheep farmer, it seems, finds that he can deliver his sheep, with a fair profit, for 2 pence a pound at the nearest port or freezing point. The killing and freezing process is undertaken chiefly by companies, which have established freezing stations at various convenient points along the coast, and which ship the carcasses, consigned to agents in London or elsewhere. One of the sights of the day at the Albert docks is the arrival of one of the New Zealand Shipping company's fine steamers, perhaps the Tongariro or the Rimutaka, or some other of the fleet with the sonorous Maori names, and to see the subsequent discharge of some 27,000 carcasses, each neatly wrapped in its winding sheet of white calico.

The whole year's exportation now figures to about 2,000,000 frozen carcasses and is rapidly increasing. Yet with all this depletion the number of sheep in the colony is rapidly increasing. The flocks have largely increased in number, and the export of wool has risen from about 64,000,000 pounds in 1882 to 108,000,000 in 1891.—All the Year Round.

Lucky Strikes.

Stories of unexpected fortunes are as common as blackberries. Somebody is always making or finding or inheriting a heap of money which seems to himself almost to have come from the clouds. Worthless shares become valuable, as happened to more than one man in the history of Devon great consols. A workingman discovers a rich mine, as Mr. Graham did in South Australia; or a relative from whom nothing was expected suddenly heaps everything on the kinsman who bored him least, as occurred last year within our own knowledge in a southern country. Only last week a pauper in a poorhouse was declared heir to £300,000, a sum which he probably could not have put down accurately on a slate, but which had been earned in Australia by a relative who died intestate.

HOITT'S OAK GROVE SCHOOL.

Millbrae, San Mateo county, Cal. Number of pupils limited. A first-class home school for boys. Accredited at the State University or the Stanford University. Fall term opens August 1st. Catalogue on application to Ira G. Hoitt, Ph. D., Master. (Ex-State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

"Why do you call your new cook book Misery?" "Because she loves company."

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbing sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Blessings may come in disguise—but what's the use if a fellow never penetrates it.

REGENERATION.

To secure a normal and regular tissue change throughout the body use BRANDRETH'S PILLS. This tissue metamorphosis consists in constantly proceeding waste of tissue and its regeneration. BRANDRETH'S PILLS are the best solvent of the products of disintegration of the tissues and increases their elasticity. They are an alterative and eliminative remedy, which allay irritation and remove obstruction by aiding nature and are of great benefit in cases of temporary and habitual constipation, torpid liver, biliousness, headache, indigestion, rheumatism and diseases arising from an impure state of the blood.

BRANDRETH'S PILLS are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless, and safe to take at any time.

The candidate who shakes hands is not necessarily in touch with the people.

ST. JACOBS OIL

The Great Remedy for Pain. Cures all the Aches and Pains of Man & Beast.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by Druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.....

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

'Tis June, and the song of the bobolink
Is heard where feedeth the frisky cow,
And the office-seekers begin to think
It's pretty near time for clover now.

COMPLETELY UPROOTED.

How many remedies there are which merely relieve without uprooting disease. The contrast with sterling medicines which such palliatives afford, not only enhances the dignity of the former, but serves to emphasize the folly of employing half-way measures when thorough ones are available. A marked instance of this is the effect, on the one hand, of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters in cases of chills and fever and bilious remittent, and on the other of ordinary remedies in maladies of this type. By the Bitters, malarial complaint in every stage, and of the most malignant type, are completely conquered and lose their hold upon the system. They are rarely, if ever, dislodged by the ordinary resources of medicine, although their symptoms may unquestionably be mitigated through such means. The same holds good of indigestion, biliousness, kidney complaint, rheumatism, nervousness and debility. By the Bitters they are cured when many remedies fail.

A Whole Day Apart—Bernard—Why are you so sad, Mabel, darling? Mabel—I was just thinking, dearest, that this was the last evening we could be together until to-morrow!

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED.

We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Porterfield & Losey, 838 Market Street, San Francisco.

The man who never made a mistake in his life breaks his record when he begins telling any one about it.

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell

Try Germea for Breakfast.

SIX POINTS, out of many, where Doctor Pierce's Pellets are better than other pills:

1. They're the smallest, and easiest to take—little, sugar-coated granules that every child takes readily.
2. They're perfectly easy in their action—no griping, no disturbance.
3. Their effects last. There's no reaction afterwards. They regulate or cleanse the system, according to size of dose.
4. They're the cheapest, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get.
5. Put up in glass—are always fresh.
6. They cure Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Sick or Bilious Headaches, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail, Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER 25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. Injector

Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50 cts. Injector free.

"August Flower"

"What is August Flower for?" As easily answered as asked. It is for Dyspepsia. It is a special remedy for the Stomach and Liver.—Nothing more than this. We believe August Flower cures Dyspepsia. We know it will. We have reasons for knowing it. To-day it has an honored place in every town and country store, possesses one of the largest manufacturing plants in the country, and sells everywhere. The reason is simple. It does one thing, and does it right. It cures dyspepsia.

FARMER'S DELIGHT.

Their Wives Can Handle it.

Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine.

Palmer & Rey, S. F., Cal., Portland, Or.

$75.00 to $250.00 can be made monthly working for B. F. JOHNSON & CO., RICHMOND, VA.

AGENTS Wanted for the Best Books. Large Commission. Freight Allowance. Send for circulars.

F. B. CHENEY & CO., 56 FIFTH AVENUE, CHICAGO, ILL.

DR. GUNN'S IMPROVED LIVER PILLS

A MILD PHYSIC

ONE PILL FOR A DOSE.

A movement of the bowels each day is necessary for health. These pills supply what the system lacks to make it regular. They cure Headache, brighten the Eyes and clear the Complexion better than cosmetics. They act mildly, neither gripe nor sicken as other pills do. To convince you of their merits we will mail samples free, or a full box for 25 cents. Sold everywhere. Bosanko Med. Co., Philadelphia. F

IRON BEDS, $6.00.

Fine Bedding, Hair Mattresses, Floss Mattresses, Wire Mattresses, and Pillows.

Send for Catalogue.

W. A. SCHROCK 21 NEW MONTGOMERY ST San Francisco, Cal

S. F. N. U. No. 575. New Series No. 26

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

"My trouble began with inflammatory rheumatism in my left leg above the knee. As a result of poulticing a running sore formed, and I was in a terrible condition. In about six months my physician removed a piece of bone, I all the time suffering great pain. I could not stand on my leg and was obliged to walk with a crutch. I bought half a dozen bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and soon after I began taking it the sore stopped discharging and healed up. I threw away my cane and crutch and can walk as well as ever. All my friends know how I used to suffer and I am so thankful to

Mr. Hauer.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

for my perfect cure." CHARLES W. HAUER, 23 W. Patrick Street, Frederick, Md.

Hood's Pills Cure Sick Headache.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE

Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING For sale by all Druggists. 25 Cents a bottle.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES

ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BO-SAN-KO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

YOUNG MEN! The Specific A No. 1. Cures, without fail, all cases of Gonorrhœa and Gleet, no matter of how long standing. Prevents stricture. It being an internal remedy. Cures when everything else has failed. Sold by all Druggists. Manufacturers: The A. Schoenheit Medicine Co., San Jose, Cal. Price, $3.00.

HERCULES

Gas and Gasoline

ENGINES

Hundreds of them Sold and in Use.

Hercules -:- Engines

FOR

Launches, Schooners, Tow Boats,

ALSO FOR

Wood-working Machinery, Bean Cleaning Machinery, Hoisting Works in mines, running machine shops, shoe factories, churns, carpet-beating machinery, ice cream freezers, electric dynamos, sewing machines, printing machinery, electric motors, paint mills, elevators, pumping water, sawing lumber, bottling soda water, sawing wood, and many other classes of work.

NO COAL

To haul when running the Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine; no ashes, smell or dirt. Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day. For simplicity and success it beats the world. The workmanship the best.

NO MAN who has water to pump, machinery to run, hoisting to do, etc., can afford to be without a Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine. Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question. No double or false explosions.

Palmer & Rey Type Foundry,

MANUFACTURER,

405 SANSOME ST., SAN FRANCISCO.

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF Moore's Revealed Remedy.

ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude, MRS. N. V. STEELE.

SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

"IT IS IGNORANCE THAT WASTES EFFORT." TRAINED SERVANTS USE

SAPOLIO

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

Independence, Cal.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 4, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXV. NO. 7. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., AUGUST 4, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1188

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$4 00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.00
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

FLIRTATION.

You ask me why my heart's as gay
As it was only yesterday.
An hour before she proved untrue,
And left me in this horrid stew,
With all her modiste's bills to pay.

You know, ma chere, it is my way
To never fret when women play
Me false, in spite of which e'en you—
You ask me why!

"That's not the reason, sir," you say.
Granted! If I might dare—"I may?"
Ahem! Her exit gives the cue
For me to try my luck with you!
"You guessed as much?"—and yet, perdieu!
You ask me why!

—Kate Field's Washington.

A Good Judge of Human Nature.

A noted Methodist minister of Ohio tells of an incident that occurred on a train on which he was traveling eastward to attend a conference. When the train had left the second station beyond D——, the conductor, who chanced to be a parishioner of the doctor, came up to him and said: "Brother C——, there's a woman in the next car who says she had her pocket picked since getting on the train at D—— and says she has no money to pay her fare. Now, as you are a good judge of human nature, I would like to have you talk to her and see if she is a worthy object for a free ride."

The Rev. Mr. C—— promptly acceded to the request and went into the next car, where the conductor pointed out the woman in question. Mr. C—— walked leisurely up the aisle, and stopping at the seat occupied by the woman said: "So, my good woman, you have met with a misfortune in having your purse stolen. Would you mind telling me just how it occurred?"

Just then the woman raised her eyes and shrieked: "Oh, Mr. C——, please don't have me arrested. Please don't. I'll never steal again." Mr. C——, who was completely dumfounded, finally recognized the woman as a former servant of his household who had decamped unceremoniously the previous week with a valuable portion of his wife's wardrobe.

It is hardly necessary to say that the conductor kindly waited until he reached the next station before putting her off. Much to his disgust it proved to be her destination.—Chicago Herald.

Meeting People.

It is only the little ones of whom there is reason to be afraid. Small natures, mean spirits, people who measure by petty standards and have not the grace of charity are those whose judgments of crude and bashful youth are likely to be severe or unkind. The broad minded, the great hearted, those whose opinion is best worth having are those whom a "nobody" who is unpretentious, modest, and who does his best to be agreeable, need never fear to meet. How many are the tremors and nervous miseries which young people might spare themselves if they could remember this!

When modesty becomes timidity, it is often well to stop before yielding to it and ask one's self, "Of whom am I afraid?" The sensible and truthful answer should be, "Of the criticism of the least worthy and least important people whom I know."—Youth's Companion.

Losing No Time.

I think it was in the year 1871 that I remember Gladstone's paying me a visit at 6 o'clock in the evening. We began talking on political and theological subjects, and became both of us so engrossed with the conversation that it was 2 o'clock at night when I left the room to fetch a book from my library bearing on the matter in hand. I returned with it in a few minutes and found Gladstone deep in a volume he had drawn out of his pocket—true to his principle of never losing time—during my momentary absence. And this at the small hours of the morning.—Dr. Dollinger in "Conversations."

The Man of All Others.

Three girls are exchanging confidences and telling each other what sort of men they like best.

First Girl—I like a man with a past. A man with a past is always interesting.

Second Girl—That's true, but I don't think he is nearly so interesting as a man with a future.

Third Girl—The man who interests me is the man with a present.—Exchange.

Mysterious Robberies.

Police Captain—Did you investigate the robberies in the St. Closette flats?

Detective—Yes, but have nothing to report.

"No clew?"

"None so far. I went around to the museums and arrested all the living skeletons on suspicion, but every one of 'em proved an alibi."—New York Weekly.

The Secret Out.

Helen—Why do they charge so much for sending a messenger boy a few miles up town?

Jack—Probably because he outgrows his uniform before he gets back.—Clothiers and Haberdashers' Weekly.

Do They Wear Their Stock?

First Burglar—No use to break into that place tonight.

Second Burglar—Why?

First Burglar—It's the night of the diamond merchants' banquet.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Economic entomology is that branch of the science which, looking beyond the mere collection and classification of insects, has to do with the control of those which injuriously affect agricultural products.

The college endowments of Massachusetts are said to amount to $10,650,000; the value of college buildings and grounds foots up $5,013,000, and the value of scientific apparatus makes another $1,020,000.

The frog, owing to its peculiar structure, cannot breathe with the mouth open, and if it were forcibly kept open the animal would die of suffocation.

No man can write his signature twice exactly alike, and it is declared by some experts that if two signatures are precisely alike one is certain to be a forgery.

To Tell a Man's Status.

It was a young married woman who spoke. She was dining with her husband on the piazza of a hotel.

"If you have any doubt," said she, "about the relationship of a man and woman when you see them at a place like this there is one very sure way of settling whether or not they are married. When the waiter makes out the check for the dinner, watch the man who is going to pay it. If he nervously clutches at the check, crushes it in his hand and hands the waiter a ten dollar bill without looking to see how much he owes, he is not even engaged to the girl who is with him, and stands in mortal dread of her opinion of him.

"If he takes the check and scans it with some care and then quietly hands to the waiter a sum approximating the total, he is very likely engaged to the girl, and is willing for her to think him businesslike and precise.

"If, however, he allows the waiter to place the check on the table, and leaves it there for his companion to see and study, then they are married. It is only the married man dining with his wife who will sit back and think of other things while his check awaits settlement in full view of the lady opposite. Before marriage he would not allow her mind to realize anything so unromantic as the price of the delicate viands she consumed, and even during the engagement he would not permit her to think of such material questions.

"A year after marriage, however, they discuss together the prices on the bill of fare, and when the check is made out the wife is more anxious than the husband to know how much it comes to. Therefore, the married man allows his dinner checks to remain on the table for his wife's inspection."—New York Letter.

Catching Terrapin.

In the shoal waters along the coast south of Cape Henlopen terrapin are caught in various ways. Dredges dragged along in the wake of a sailing vessel pick them up. Nets stretched across some narrow arm of river or bay entangle the feet of any stray terrapin in their meshes, but these require the constant attendance of the fisherman to save the catch from drowning. In the winter, in the deeper water, the terrapin rise from their muddy quarters on mild, sunny days and crawl along the bottom. They are then taken by tongs, their whereabouts being often betrayed by bubbles.

Turtles will rise at any noise, and usually the fisherman only claps his hands, though each hunter has his own way of attracting the terrapin. One hunter whom I saw uttered a queer guttural noise that seemed to rise from his boots.

Whatever the noise, all turtles within hearing—whether terrapin or "snapper"—will put their heads above water. Both are welcome and are quickly sold to the marketmen. The snapper slowly appears and disappears, leaving scarcely a ripple, and the hunter cautiously approaching usually takes him by the tail. The terrapin, on the contrary, is quick, and will descend in an oblique direction, so that a hand net is needed unless he happens to come up near by. If he is near enough the man jumps for him. The time for hunting is the still hour at either sunrise or sunset.—St. Nicholas.

Queer Collection in the Dead Letter Office.

No brief list could summarize the innumerable strange things that have fallen into the hands of the dead letter office in Washington. There are opium pipes and packages of refined opium, bottled specimens of different kinds of mineral formations thrown up by the Charleston earthquake, boxes of cartridges, percussion caps, quantities of firecrackers and torpedoes, false teeth, corn husking gloves, every imaginable sort of kitchen utensils, carpenters' tools, horns, tambourines, banjos, harmonicas, gold headed canes, and even "spirit photographs."

Many of the objects accumulated come under the "unmailable" head, being of glass or "pointed instruments" which might damage the mails. Bottles or surgical tools are not carried by Uncle Sam unless inclosed in wood or tin. One hundred dollars' worth of nuggets of virgin gold in a box came in a while ago and are awaiting a claimant. Likewise a damaged plug hat, which had no address, and a grotesque doll about the size of a baby. There are some gloves from the steamship Oregon which were 114 days under water, though they seem to be fairly respectable now and might be worn at a stretch. Some wedding cake is exhibited in the museum that is fifty years old.—Rene Bache in New York Sun.

Young Men as Authors.

Keats was dead when just a little over his twenty-fifth year. Shelley wrote "Queen Mab" at twenty, and the "Prometheus Unbound" and the "Ode to the West Wind" at twenty-six. Byron startled the town with "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers" at twenty-one, and at twenty-four "woke up and found himself famous" by the publication of "Childe Harold." Burns was but twenty-seven when he was the lion of the season in Edinburgh. Campbell published his "Pleasures of Hope" at twenty-two. Chatterton was not eighteen when he finished his life's work. The great Shakespeare himself was famous when little more than a youth, and the same is true of the Shakespeare of France, Victor Hugo; and Goethe, by the bye, was known to all Europe at twenty-four.

Scott, on the other hand, was more leisurely. He made no serious effort as an author till he was over thirty, and he was over forty when "Waverley" was given to the world; and Thackeray also was verging on two score before "Vanity Fair" established his reputation.—Critic.

Only to Be Seen in Paris.

A beggar rather respectably dressed solicits alms from the customers seated at each of the tables outside a cafe on the boulevards. On reaching the last table, which is unoccupied, he counts his receipts and, satisfied with the sum total, sits down and in a tone of importance calls out, "Waiter, a bock!"—Paris Letter.

SMOKED BY PROXY

How Uncle Ira Tripp, a Rich Coal Operator, Stopped Smoking.

TWENTY-FIVE STRONG CIGARS A DAY.

Ordered by His Physician to Quit, the Old Man Hired a Smoker to Blow the Ordor in His Face.

"Uncle Ira Tripp, of Scranton," said a former resident of Scranton, now of this city, "was for years a familiar figure down town in New York, when the old Merchants' hotel was in existence in Cortlandt street. His tall, erect form, his immense flowing beard, white as snow, and, more than all, the peculiar manner in which he enjoyed his cigar, attracted attention to him at once.

"When Bill Schenck gave up the Merchants' and took the Westminster, up town, Uncle Ira became just as striking a figure in that part of the city, on his visits to New York. He was one of the oldest and richest individual coal operators in the Lackawanna valley, his father being one of the pioneers of the region, and settled on land that, when coal was discovered, proved to be in the richest part of the anthracite belt.

"Thirty years ago Ira Tripp, from one of the ruggedest of men, had gradually fallen into poor health. His physician told him that he was slowly dying from nicotine poisoning, and that unless he gave up smoking his end was not far off. For years he had smoked daily from twenty to twenty-five of the strongest imported cigars he could buy, and it was supposed that he was so wedded to the habit that it would be an impossibility for him to break it.

"But he did break it, and broke it square off, too, so far as smoking cigars himself was concerned; but he continued to enjoy his smoke right along, after a novel plan of his own. He bought the same kind of cigars he had always smoked, and then hired a man to accompany him wherever he went, smoke the cigars and blow every puff of the fragrant vapor into his face, so that he could inhale it.

SECONDHAND SMOKE.

"It wasn't long before Ira declared that he got just as much enjoyment out of his smoke at secondhand as he ever did when he was pulling away at his Perfectos himself. He had hard work, though, to get smokers who were willing or able to consume a couple of dozen strong cigars, one quickly following the other, in the course of a day and evening, and at the same time be companions agreeable to him. Two resigned after a few months' trial, one was discharged on the spot for inhaling the smoke before puffing it into the face of the gentleman for whose benefit and not his own pleasure he was smoking, and two died in the service.

"It was not until about fifteen years ago that Uncle Ira got a man that suited him exactly, and that was his colored man, John, who filled the bill in every respect, and became the old man's constant attendant and smoker. For all I know John was smoking for him up to the day he died.

"Some years ago, when Bill Schenck was still running the old Merchants', Uncle Ira was a guest there and of course had John along. At that time Karl Kase, a well known newspaper man of that day, since dead, was an habitue of the Merchants', and he and Uncle Ira got well acquainted. Karl suited Ira so well that he was content to let him rest John for hours at a stretch in doing the proxy smoking, a task which was most agreeable to the journalist, as he was a lover of the weed.

"One day Uncle Ira had business up town and he asked Karl to accompany him and do the smoking, and of course Karl went with him. They got on the front platform of a Sixth avenue car at Broadway and Vesey street, and Karl lit a cigar. As the car trundled along he kept puffing the smoke into Ira's face and Ira stood with his back against the end of the car enjoying the cigar with silent satisfaction.

AN INDIGNANT WOMAN.

"The deliberation and persistence with which the young man blew the smoke into the old man's face finally attracted the attention of an old lady in the car. She watched the proceeding for some time, her indignation steadily rising until she could no longer endure what she regarded as an outrage on the part of the young man against the gray whiskered old gentleman. She whipped out of her seat, threw the door of the car open, and grabbing Karl Kase by the shoulder, jerked him half way around, and then with one blow of her hand sent the cigar flying from his mouth far into the street.

"'There, you impudent young puppy!' she exclaimed. 'Ain't you ashamed of yourself, blowing your nasty smoke into that poor old man's face?'

"The poor old man and Karl were dumfounded for a moment, and then the situation struck Ira, and he threw his head back and laughed so loud that he could have been heard a block. Karl joined in the laugh, and the old lady, who had whipped back to her seat again, sat bolt upright and stared at the two in amazement. The other passengers in the car and the conductor and driver, although they had no idea of the peculiar relation there was between Uncle Ira and Karl Kase, were forced to laugh also; and the well meaning old lady stopped the car and flounced to the street in a high state of confusion and indignation.

"'An she was going to One Hundred and Fifty-fifth street!' said the conductor, which made Uncle Ira roar again, as he handed Karl a fresh Perfecto. That incident ever after was the old man's favorite anecdote."—New York Sun.

It is said that Alexander Rankin, the Scotchman who succeeded John Brown as Highland servant to the queen, has obtained almost as marked an influence in the royal household as Brown possessed. He is the personal attendant of the queen on every journey.

HOW RUBENS PAID A BILL.

He Painted a Fortune for His Ungrateful Landlord, Who Didn't Like It.

In the beginning of the Seventeenth century Peter Paul Rubens, whose name had not the same sound then as now, lived in Paris, at a modest inn near the palace of his patroness, Maria de Medici. Sometimes he had his pockets full of money and lived like a prince, but oftener he was without a pfennig; at any rate he paid his host very irregularly, or not at all. The host did not consider it an honor to board this great painter, and as he had a supreme contempt for art, he often cast insults at Rubens. One day when the innkeeper was in an especially bad humor he threatened to throw Rubens out of the door like a tramp and without further notice.

Rubens had just had an audience with Louvre, but did not possess a heller. What should he do? The tavern keeper would not reason, but wanted to see cash; under any circumstances money must be procured.

The artist took a small picture of his own from the wall and asked in a note written to one of his friends 1,200 lire for it. Half an hour later the messenger returned, saying that the gentleman would pay only 800 lire for it.

Rubens was furious, threw the picture on the ground and stamped upon it, while the host was still more furious, as his hopes, through this "daub," to get money were dispelled. He wanted to put his guest out on the pavement immediately, when Rubens gave his word of honor that he would pay his debt within eight days.

With these words Rubens hurried up stairs and locked the door. He left the room very seldom and never without taking the key with him. A week later he appeared before his host with a little hand trunk with these words:

"I have kept my promise. Upon the table in my room you will find more money than I owe you. Farewell, sir host!"

Then he left the inhospitable house with the mien of a grand seigneur, who had given rich alms.

The tavern keeper hurried up the stairs to the artist's room. The door stood open and the mass of money which was spread upon the table met his gaze. Fourfold Louis, double Louis, dollars and half dollars lay there in gay confusion. Naturally the good man thought he must quickly put his money in a safe place, but what astonishment and fury he showed when, upon touching a gold piece, he found that it was only painted! The miser, the tramp, had fooled him!

But his anger lessened somewhat when he saw on the walls the rich clothing that had been left by the painter. From the sale of this he could cover a great part of the debt. He reached for a cherry colored velvet mantle—what disappointment! That, too, like the other garments and the glittering gold, was only painted!

The unhappy host was pitied by all his friends who heard it.

The story became further known and the painter's fame grew and spread. Distinguished people streamed to the modest tavern to hear of Rubens' gay trick from the host himself and see the painted clothing—the table had been put in the garret as the owner wanted it out of sight—and many a dollar was spent in the tavern for the purpose of seeing these things.

One day a rich Englishman who doted on art was accidentally told of the deceptive table by the tavern keeper. He asked to see the table, admired it and offered to give the host as much cash in French gold and silver coins as was painted on the table. Naturally the host accepted and was rid of this "disagreeable" piece of furniture.—Philadelphia Times.

Aldermen as a Board of Directors.

It would clear away much misconception if the popular body in cities, instead of being spoken of and thought of as a local legislature, could be looked upon and considered as a board of directors. One of the most important grants wherein the powers of such a body in cities seem to pass beyond the functions of a board of directors is the right to adopt ordinances which are enforced by the police; but even as to this power it is to be borne in mind that city ordinances have no original authority. They are constantly declared invalid by the courts because they contravene statutes of the legislature or deal with matters not covered by the grant of power to the city corporation. The inferences to be drawn from this discussion are two. First, that the whole question as to what ought to be the business of the city and as to the best method of conducting this business is fairly open to discussion; second, that the question is one involving good judgment only. It does not involve the liberties of the people or touch any of the inherent rights of citizenship.—Seth Low in Century.

The Elephant's Memory.

The elephant has an excellent memory. It recollects friends well and it rarely forgets an injury. It is recorded of one that it smashed a cocoanut upon its driver's head and smashed the man's head at the same time, because the lazy, thoughtless fellow had broken a cocoanut on its skull the day before. A quartermaster engaged in superintending the removal of baggage in the camp by means of an elephant, became angry at the creature's refusing to carry more than a certain weight and foolishly flung a tent peg at its head. Some days afterward the elephant overtook the quartermaster as he was going through the camp, seized him with its trunk and neatly placed him among the branches of a tamarind tree, leaving him to reach the ground again in the best way he could.—New York Advertiser.

Burglars About.

Little Girl (weeping)—Somebody has stolen my doll.

Mother—Your doll! Which one?

Little Girl—The oldest and nicest one of all—the one that didn't have any legs or arms or hair or eyes or anything. Good News.

IN A VOLCANO.

Three Women Make a Perilous Descent into Popocatapel's Depths.

SIX HOURS SCALING A MOUNTAIN.

Plucky American Tourists Startle the Indian Guides by Going into the Sulphurous Crator.

At midnight they rose from the rude couches in the mountaineer's hut where they had rested, and made ready. How? By dressing warmly, wrapping their feet and limbs in fold upon fold of cloth, since at every step they must break the glazed crust, covering the unmelting snows beneath, and by shielding with thick veils their eyes and skin against the glare and sharp needles of the snow, though it was but moonlight.

Slowly then the three ladies, with their masculine friends, began the long walk. To each lady was assigned a guide familiar with the route, and it was his duty, as well as pleasure, to break the way for them by putting his larger foot down and through the crust, so that their labor was only to put their feet into his tracks.

Six mortal hours of plodding wearily onward and upward, hardly daring to look behind, at least not often, upon the world, seemingly lying in chaos behind them, but themselves pressing up the snowy heights before them, wrapped in the moist, cool glissance of the cloud land. Long, long before the sun broke through the clouds at their feet upon a sleeping, mist wrapped world below did they see his glorious flames spring from the far seas and reflected upon the heights toward which they climbed, though faint his glow till a late hour of that very, very early morning.

But at last, with their feet wrappings cut to pieces, they stood upon the borders of the volcano Popocatepetl. Glad enough were the wornout ladies to rest in a poor shelter, while their Indian guides and cook prepared their breakfast.

INVESTIGATING THE VOLCANO.

A faint mist lay rather than rose upon the air of the crater, and the odor of sulphur was already perceptible. When, breakfast being done and all preparations made, it became evident that the three Americans actually intended to descend to the sulphur beds in the bottom of the crater, the poor Indians were seized with terror. No woman's foot had ever touched these dens and caves, these mines of sulphur, from which their labor had drawn for centuries, from which Cortes obtained the means for the fiery conquest of their forefathers. These sources of supply would be bewitched, despoiled, should a woman's foot ever touch them.

They fell upon their knees and begged them to desist from the attempt. But the Americans had not braved the toil and danger of the ascent to return unsatisfied. Go down they would. The Indians shook their heads and sighed beneath their breath, and wondered what kind of men those fair gentlemen could be who did not seem to be able to hinder their wives from carrying out this awful resolution. But, since there seemed to be no help for it, they prepared themselves to let down these extraordinary burdens upon the windlasses.

Yes! there was nothing else for it but to go down as the gentlemen did upon the crossbeam of the rope, which the Indians slowly unwound from above the fair artist, if so she might be called, keeping herself from being dashed against the craggy, yellow seamed and stained walls by means of a strong cane or stick, with which she pushed herself away from the crater sides as she descended.

One of the ladies, not so strong as the others, became unconscious from the fumes of sulphur and had to be hurried up to the air again.

FASTER THAN TOBOGGANING.

What was the interior like? An immense, nearly circular chamber, of which the floor was an uneven, yellow tinted surface, like a caldron whose contents have hardened, while boiling, in huge bubbles. Crags and huge spikes, or half pillars or sulphurous masses filled in the weird shop of the sulphur gnomes. No language can fitly describe such an interior. Only those who are willing to pay the price which the Americans paid can have the remarkable sensation of seeing and being inside of a volcano. But once more restored to the upper air, not the least remarkable part of this adventure remained to be tried.

Standing on the border, the descent over the snow slopes up which they had toiled the night before looked sharp and dangerous; and too sharp and dangerous it was to attempt by foot as they had come up. The guides must take them down on the patatas. Broad plaited straw mats were these, as stiff as an ordinary half inch board. The guide sat in front with a steering pole, which was also a crook of safety, since, if the descent became too rapid, there was imminent danger of the whole party being pitched head over heels down the steep, perilous slope of ice. Behind the guide sat the ladies, as boys slide down hill, and at a given signal away they flew.

Such a sled trial! Tobogganing is child's play compared to it. The distance which it had taken six hours to climb was passed over again in just fifteen minutes. Then the whole party were once more below the snow limit and feeling that they had once more returned to the world in which they had previously passed their lives, for their other experiences had seemed to belong to another sphere than that of earth.—Cor. Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette.

Why He Took Down the Fire Escape.

A local hotel keeper gives a queer excuse for not having a fire escape from a bedroom in the second story. He says that he had one placed there a year ago, but the first two weeks three boarders skipped their bills by its means and then he had it taken out.—Springfield Republican.

THE FLYING YEARS.

As a dream when night is done,
As a shadow flees the sun,
As a ship whose white sails skim
Over the horizon dim,
As a life complete of days
Vanisheth from mortal ways,
As a hope that pales to fear—
Is the dying of the year.

As the first gold shaft of light
Shivers through the wreck of night,
As the thrill and stir that bring
Promise of the budding spring,
As new thoughts of life that rise
Mirrored in a sick man's eyes,
As strange joy to hearts forlorn—
So another year is born.

Glad or sad, a dwindling span
Is the little life of man,
Love and hope and work and tears
Fly before the flying years.
Yet shall tremulous hearts grow bold—
All the story is not told—
For around us as a sea
Spreads God's great eternity.

—Christian Burke.

A Honeymoon Incident.

A well known local carpenter tells a story that is intended as a good joke on his wife. When they were married, they rented apartments in a block, the rear of which overlooked one of the rivers, and among the wife's earliest culinary efforts was a batch of bread. The young husband sampled his wife's contribution to the world's stock of the "staff of life," and arising from the table playfully remarked:

"My dear, cast your bread upon the waters."

The wife took offense at the injunction, and as her husband left the house she flung the remaining loaf out of the window into the river. It struck a passing boat, crashing through the bottom and sinking in the water's murky depths. The next she knew the boatman, dripping wet, made a tour of the block, bent on discovering who dumped the hod of brick into his craft.—Binghamton Leader.

A Writer of Stories.

Just a few years ago a sharp nosed, bright eyed young man used to haunt the secondhand book stores of this city. He would buy and eagerly devour all the cheap novels, blood and thunder stories, etc., exposed for sale. One day he astonished an old bookseller whom he found reading an interesting story by informing him that he was the author of it. One day he disappeared, and later it was reported that he was writing for the weekly story papers in New York city.

The other day came the news that he was at the head of a novel publishing company and wrote about 100 continued stories himself yearly for his weekly story papers and library publications. He is said to have an income of about $50,000 a year. He has concealed his right name, it is declared, and writes under any number of noms de plume.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

One Thing Bishop Brooks Did.

On one occasion Bishop Brooks received a letter from a man in New York saying, "Will you please send me a list of all the publications in your diocese? On receiving it the bishop did not even smile at the absurdity of the request or seemed annoyed that a man should trouble him upon such a simple matter. He accepted it as something to fulfill.

"Do you think you can find what this man wants?" said he to his secretary.

"I guess so," came the reply, and the secretary, who knew the noble hearted bishop so well, spent half the night completing the task.—Boston Globe.

Mamma Caught Napping.

"Am I thin or fat, mamma?"

She had already been asking too many questions, but her mother answered her once more.

"Why, dear," she said, "you are not very fat, but you are fat enough for a little girl who is growing."

This reply was certainly diplomatic, but it did not apparently satisfy the child, for a few seconds later she came out with this terrible poser:

"Say, mamma, are there any little girls who are not growing?"—Boston Herald.

Settled In Advance.

Mr. Hunnimune—Now, as we are going to start housekeeping, Ethel, we should begin right. Order, you know, is heaven's first law, and there must be a head to every house, so——

Mrs. Hunnimune—That's all provided for, George. Mother's coming to live with us.—Exchange.

Kleptomania, which is so often used nowadays as a cloak for respectable stealing, is a form of monomania. Dr. Pritchard mentions a typical case of a madman who would never eat his food unless he had previously stolen it.

The temple of Ypsambul in Nubia is cut from a solid rock, and its entrance is guarded by four statues, each 65 feet high, 25 feet across the shoulders, the face 7 feet long, the ears over 3 feet.

The total annual loss from insects in the United States is estimated by the best entomological authorities at about $380,000,000.

The Greeks sometimes buried their dead in the ground, but more generally cremated them, in imitation of the Romans.

The average weight of the Chinese brain is said to be heavier than the average weight of the brain of any other race.

TRAVELERS' WOES

An Englishman Finds Many Annoyances in the United States.

CAB FARES AND SLEEPING CAR HEAT

How Strangers, Especially Those From England, are Swindled in Many of Our Larger Cities.

Although Mr. Rudyard Kipling may have a good deal to say for his peculiar view of American society, the real truth is that England and America can learn a good many things from each other. Englishmen are not all millionaires, and nobody quite likes to be openly swindled.

On the Atlantic the traveler is safe enough. Travel nowadays on board those ocean greyhounds is simply a luxury. But the moment foot is set on shore the stranger experiences that he is in a new country, where things are not exactly as they are at home. An Englishman's first instinct on arriving at the conclusion of a journey is to call a cab. He had better not indulge this fancy in New York. A passenger arriving by any of the liners at Liverpool would at once secure his luggage, have it conveyed to a cab, tip the porter and on being set down at his hotel would pay the cabman, say, half a crown. They manage things otherwise in New York. Heavy luggage must, in the first place, be "expressed" at a charge of 1s. 6d. each package. If there are ladies in the party, this item may mount up to something considerable.

Off you go in a ramshackle equipage with an Irish driver, possessing none of the fun of the old country. On arriving at the hotel you ask what the fare amounts to. And then the Englishman's gore rises. He is accustomed to stepping into a London hansom and driving a longer distance for a florin. But the Hibernian charioteer gravely calls for $3, $4 or $5, just according to the humor he may be in. And it has to be paid. The result is that when the traveler finds himself in his room it has probably taken 25 shillings to convey himself and his luggage from the landing place to the hotel. This of course is simply a gorgeous swindle. And the way to avoid it is, fortunately, equally simple.

The Americans travel with a single big trunk. Everything goes into it as into a handbag. This Noak's ark can be "expressed" at the same charge as a dressing case. And this done, Uncle Sam makes for the street car and reaches his hotel for 5 cents. This is the way to do it, but it is little short of a scandal that the law should not protect strangers.

As to hotels, something pleasant and unpleasant may be said. In all the cities these establishments are of the most palatial character and are conducted on both the American and European plans. No one should enter a house conducted on both plans. Should he do so the experience of our party may be his. We had written ahead to secure rooms on the American plan at one of the Fifth avenue hotels. The charge was $5, or £1, per day. Arriving late at night, we were "skied" in a garret.

Judge of our surprise when on entering the dining room we were calmly informed that no food was supplied on the American plan after 8 p. m., and that if one desired to have supper it should be served on the European plan. In other words, were expected to pay £1 a day for board and lodging on the American plan and pay for our supper in cash because the Boston train happened to be late! This of course was sheer impertinence. But we had to submit. It was too late to go elsewhere. At another of these gorgeous establishments we experienced another piece of sharp practice. The terms were $7.50 per day or 30 shillings each person. But on our arrival we stepped into the wrong room for luncheon—i. e., into the room for visitors on the European plan. The bill had to be paid in cash, and we had the extreme satisfaction of paying 11s. 6d. for two luncheons, in addition to a charge of 30 shillings per day. These are samples of the impudent swindles that await the traveler who is not prepared for them. The only safe plan therefore is to go to a house conducted on either one plan or the other.

I have said that the American hotels are gorgeous palaces, but they sadly lack the homely feeling of the English home. They seem to be huge rabbit warrens. They are the saddest and dullest places in the world. But, as a rule, the accommodation and the food are excellent.

As regards railway traveling, some things are better than at home, and others are worse. The rate of traveling is mostly slower, and the cost less than in England. But the cars are infinitely better, and traveling is, on the whole, pleasanter but for the heat. This is largely caused by the fact that the porter is generally a negro, and he heats the train up to his own ideas of comfort, but it is not pleasant for an ordinary Englishman to swelter in a car with the thermometer at 75 degrees or 80 degrees and then go out into an atmosphere below freezing point, or even below zero. The night traveling also shocks a stranger. In England there are ladies' sleeping cars. No such thing ever occurred to the American mind. Men and women shake down "promiscuous," and are curtained off in a kind of sealed compartment.

I confess to a preference for the English fashion, although Mr. Hannibal Chollop would, I suppose, have sneered at my prejudices as "European." But the Americans can give us points in regard to dealing with luggage. It is something to hand your luggage to the hotel porter, to receive from him at the railway station brass checks for it, to give these checks to a collector on arrival, and to find, for a small charge, your luggage at the hotel almost as quickly as yourself. Why English railway companies do not adopt this plan of dealing with luggage passes comprehension. There is hardly such a thing as a railway porter in the states. Then the dining car is a real work of art. It is a luxury to be able to get a comfortable meal excellently served without rushing to refreshment rooms and eating at a rate ruinous to digestion and to health. Some time or another, I suppose, John Bull will wake up.

In the matter of street cars the mother country is also sadly behind. In Boston, Washington, Montreal, Toronto and other cities the electric street cars are one of the chief means of rapid transit. But here again there is the fly in the ointment. An American car is never so full that it will not hold one more. The passengers crowd the cars, stand on the platforms and hang on to the steps. It is the American way of doing things, and this settles the question, but I prefer the English car, with only its allotted number of passengers.—London Graphic.

A Cincinnati rat, desiring comfortable quarters, utterly regardless of expense, fashioned its nest out of $525 worth of greenbacks which it found in a drawer. The owner of the greenbacks has confiscated the nest, and shows it to her visitors.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,

EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.

PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 4 1893

There is no question of the fact that banks are designed for the purpose of making money. To do this the money of depositors must be used. Just now there is a remarkable stringency in the money market. The fool public stands with a big club in its idiotic hands, threatening the banks. The banks are quite responsive, and perch themselves on their sacks of coin, wondering when they can dare put their deposits to their legitimate uses. And so, between the fool agitator and the frightened banker, industry is suspended, enterprise is comatose and a fatal blight rests upon the whole country. Congress in its special session can do much to change this state of things. The first annunciation that should come from that body ought to be the passage of a resolution pledging the credit of the United States to the parity of every form of money issued by it. That simple preamble and resolution will of itself place our finances on a rock of safety and restore confidence. The reason why everything is going to the devil is because it is now fully believed in Wall street that that vicious thoroughfare and Lombard street, London, control the United States, and that this country will voluntarily disembowel itself to please English financiers and imitation Englishmen. There will be a big reaction from that fool vagary when Congress shall assemble on the 7th of August. Instead of a base spirit of surrender and submission, it will be found that American patriotism never struck higher flights than it will in this mid-summer session of Congress.

There are now in Europe but two considerable elements of national greatness—money and military prestige. Taking these elements as creating the standard, France has become at one step the first of European nations. Its bluff against Siam has been successful. Its statesmen had nerve not to back down when the critical moment arrived. The British lion growled to no purpose. Germany smiled a great smile of satisfaction, but the smile produced no tangible results. France was prepared to fight, and England apparently was not. That Germany would have liked to see her great foe waste her strength on a neutral power may be assumed from the fact that Germany is human. The more strength France wasted on England the less it would have for the grand settlement of accounts which all Europe is looking for.

It is reported in Washington that the President will send a message to Congress on Hawaiian affairs in September, and it will advocate the adoption of a treaty giving to Hawaii the moral support of the United States pledging non-interference from foreign powers, thus giving the islands a right to govern themselves. That would be the true American course to pursue. Of course, if on a free, fair and full vote the Hawaiians desire annexation to the United States, they will probably be annexed.

The hearty welcome given Vice President Stevenson by the people of California, where he has visited, is a practical demonstration of the sentiment that prevails throughout the country, that the rulers of the States are the representatives of the people and not of any party.

The Jag institutes throughout the country seem to be accomplishing much good. More people have been rescued from the liquor habit in the past year through them than by the temperance orders in the past five years.

Vice-Admiral Tyron admits that it was his fault that the Victoria was run down and sunk. Like the Texas statesman who was found guilty of embezzlement, his heart still beats for his native country.

The unholy war now being waged against silver is being felt in single standard circles fully as much as in silver-producing States and Territories.

When one reads of the cyclones in the East he bethinks himself of certain atmospheric advantages of this climate.

A Hamburg scientist says that beer is a cholera preventive. Newspaper men and preachers who want to be safe will have to try it.

Those who sold short on Wall street are being sold short in large numbers.

A PRISON AND PALACE.

Behold the tall and lambent spire
Irradiate with sunset fire.
Those windows smit with twilight beams,
With evening's iridescent gleams;
How they reflect the early night,
Its mingling gold and lazulite,
And how those tall transfigured towers
Bloom 'gainst the night like granite flowers;
How grandly lifts yon burnished dome
A skyey shape of fire and foam!
"What are the buildings, friend?" said I.
"That loom against the eastern sky,
And dashed with many a sunset gleam
Look like the palace of a dream?"

"Them buildings, boss," the man replied—
A sly smile in his features pale—
"You just lookout you keep outside;
Them buildings is the county jail."

Pained at this ending of my dream,
This anticlimax to my theme,
I found a poultice for my pain
In this wise moralizing strain:

We all live in a county jail
Whose towering walls we cannot scale,
Though firmly, all in vain, we press
Against its granite stubbornness.
Dull, cold as fate, its walls arise
And shut our vision from the skies.
But when hope's sunlight falls upon
Its thick and heavy walls of stone,
They loom against the coming night,
Transfigured in a mystic light,
And, bathed in gold and amethyst,
The granite grows as soft as mist—
Transformed becomes the culprit's jail,
And from its towers cloud banners fling
Their gorgeous windings to the gale—
It is a palace of a king!

—S. W. Foss in Yankee Blade.

Bride Hunting For Bridegroom.

A policeman at Portobello on going his rounds very early one morning discovered a young man on the roof of a low building, and naturally believing him to be a burglar seized him. He was surprised on seeing that he was evidently in his best clothes, and still more so when on searching for burglar's tools he found only a piece of bride cake. The captive offering no explanation the officer was puzzled. Suddenly a party of young women—a bride and bridesmaid—approached in an excited state. They were evidently searching for some valuable which had been lost. On catching sight of the culprit there was a shout of "Why, here he is!" The poor bride seemed greatly moved.

During the marriage festivities he had for some unexplained reason slipped away from the scene, and his friends had divided into parties, searching high and low for the runaway. They were naturally greatly astonished that he had preferred a cold roof in winter time to the society of his charming bride. Without any more fuss they took possession of the fugitive from matrimony, who looked somewhat depressed, and bore him away in triumph.—Scotsman.

A Bewildered Sunflower.

Sir Robert Ball tells an amusing anecdote illustrating Moore's words, "The sunflower turns to her god when he sets the same look that she turned when he rose." An explorer, he said, intent on proving the truth or otherwise of this theory, took out a sunflower seed to the arctic regions and planted it there. In the course of time the plant came up and flowered vigorously—just, however, at the season when the sun never sets in the arctic circle; so the poor sunflower, true to its nature, followed the process of the sun, expecting it to disappear at night in the ordinary course, but as the sun did not set at all, the flower strained itself round and round until it twisted its own head off.

A Deathbed Scene.

A Scotch lad of 20 died, leaving a widowed mother, a sister and two brothers younger than himself. He had been their main support, and while dying was full of anxieties as to what should become of them. His last words were, holding the hand of the brother next to himself in years and looking at the poor sobbing woman, "Try and do as weel's ye can."—"Twenty-five Years of St. Andrew's."

Dimensions of the Coliseum.

The largest single structure in the world for audience and spectacular purposes is the Coliseum at Rome. It is in the form of an ellipse. Its long diameter is 615 feet, its short, 510; the height of the outer wall, 164. The arena is 281 feet long by 176 broad. The tiers of seats accommodate 100,000 spectators.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Valuable Cook.

Knowit—My cook is a treasure.

Wantoknow—You're in better luck than most people then.

Knowit—I wasn't till lately. You see, she had a row with the grocer, and to revenge herself she is very saving with the groceries. The bill is only half what it used to be.—Exchange.

A Lawyer's Defense.

Your honor and gentlemen of the jury, I acknowledge the reference of counsel of the other side to my gray hair. My hair is gray, and it will continue to be gray as long as I live. The hair of that gentleman is black and will continue to be black as long as he dyes.—Exchange.

A Cabman's Retort.

Irascible Old Gentleman (putting head out of 4-wheeler that is crawling along at an unconscionable pace)—I say, cabby, we're not going to a funeral.

Cabby (promptly)—No, and we ain't goin to no bloomin fire either.—London Tit-Bits.

In a list of 162 different firms and professional people who were engaged in business in Bay City, Mich., 25 years ago there is not one but who has undergone a change either in name or in partnership.

It does not seem possible to emphasize too strongly the importance, which indeed amounts to a necessity, of freeing the body of some of its waste products by physical exercise performed daily.

Photographers have begun to use storage battery plants, which operate a ruby colored incandescent light in the darkroom, and the effect on their health has been very beneficial.

The Tahitian when discovered was as uncultured as the Papuan now is, yet the former approached as near positive beauty as the latter does to positive deformity.

WOMEN GET OFF CARS BACKWARD.

They Are Usually Thinking of Walking Back Over the Route.

After the woman had rolled over two or three times in the dust and made a voluminous display of lingerie, she struggled to her feet. Her face was very red, her back hair was terribly mussed and her draperies in most inartistic disorder. She scornfully refused to give her name to the conductor, who rushed to her assistance, and would not say whether she was hurt. As she turned to walk away the conductor whistled "go ahead," and smiles began to show among the passengers.

"She's like all the rest of 'em," was the contemptuous comment of the conductor as he jumped on the car.

"I never knew a conductor who stopped his train at the right place," sneered a fat woman who overheard the conductor's remark. "It's the greatest wonder in the world that more people are not killed by the carelessness of them conductors. They haven't a bit of accommodation in their souls."

"Did you hear that woman?" inquired another passenger. "She blames the conductor for that woman's tumble and will in all probability alight from the car backward when she reaches her destination. I have been a close observer of this perverse habit of women who ride on the street cars, and believe that I have solved the problem.

"Why do they turn their faces the wrong way? I saw a theory advanced the other day in a newspaper that left handed women were never seen to take a tumble because their stronger arm aided them to retain their balance when alighting. But it really makes no difference whether a woman is left or right handed. She gets on a car and tells the conductor to let her off at Twenty-first street. She has been down town shopping and is in a hurry to reach home.

"All the time the cable is pulling her homeward she keeps thinking of how much she will have to do when her journey is ended. The conductor yells 'Twenty-first street!'

"She is aroused with a start from her study, intent only on getting off the car. You have noticed, no doubt, that a cable train always passes a crossing before it stops. There is the whole secret of a woman's many tumbles. She would be safe and happy if the conductor would only stop the train so she could step off at the right spot exactly. But the car passes the crossing, and unconsciously she turns her face in the direction she wishes to go. If she would wait until the car stops all would be well, but the thought that she is being carried past her destination makes her hurry. Before the car stops, she thinks of the few extra steps she will have to take if she is carried any farther and jumps off. You know the rest, and there is the true reason why 99 women in 100 get off a street car backward. The 100th woman is on the rear seat of the last car and steps off at the right place."—Chicago Herald.

Jeffrey and Wilson.

The two chief intellectual stars, Jeffrey and Professor Wilson—the one nearly 70, the other not far from 60, when I first knew them—both worthy and wise, were curious contrasts in every possible way. The little lord was small and delicate and dainty in build. Wilson—or Christopher North, as he was as often called—was a splendid athlete, tall and broad, who walked faster, ran faster and leaped higher than any one of his time; not knowing how to spend his health, strength and spirits; fair and blooming, too, as a girl, with hair which had been yellow, and when I knew him laid plentifully on his shoulders in gray locks.

Jeffrey prided himself on speaking "English." Christopher's tremulous burr would have betrayed him anywhere. Jeffrey was fastidiously neat and tidy; Christopher a notorious slut, sometimes seen in easy deshabille, or what his lively daughter Mrs. Gordon called "a state of nature," till late in the day, if not all day long. The judge hated early rising; the professor was often up and out before sunrise. Jeffrey had seldom taken part in the convivial excesses which were going out when we came; Christopher had become, and from all accounts not a day too soon, a rigid abstainer from every kind of stimulant. Both had lived their student years at Oxford. Jeffrey hated college life; Christopher adored it.—Longman's Magazine.

A Long Run.

Every actor likes to boast of a long run. He doesn't care whether it is a financially successful "run" or not. If it is not successful financially, it always is artistically, and so on a long run the success is bound to come in one way or the other.

"You had quite a long run, didn't you?" asked one actor of another up in the billiard room of the Five A's club recently.

The actor of whom this question had been asked had done the "leads" in a melodrama on a one night stand route for several weeks. Everybody in the club had said that the show would only stay out for a week. They were mistaken, for it did stay out nearly four weeks. The name of the attraction might have been "The Bucket of Blood." That would have fitted the play anyway better than the name under which it was billed.

"Oh, yes," replied the "lead," "it was a pretty long run, about a mile and a half. We would have done the turn easily cross lots, as we intended, but the sheriff was on to that game and had a deputy in the field, and so we had to stick to the road and sprint. We caught the last car of the train, and I hope that sheriff caught pneumonia. There is no reason why he should not have done so. We gave him violent exercise on a cold night."—New York Herald.

A Sure Sign.

When a young man talks about the business of "our firm" in a pitch of voice that can be heard from one end of a street car to the other, it is a sure sign that his wages have been raised to $6 a week.—New York Herald.

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS
AND
LEVI STRAUSS & CO'S
SPRING
BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

W. J. HOSKINS, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM GREEN and B. F. LEWIS, Defendants.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in the office of the Clerk of said Inyo county.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Green and B. F. Lewis, Defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment of this Court for the foreclosure of a certain mortgage described in said complaint and executed by the said William Green on the 31st day of May, 1890, to secure the payment of a certain Promissory Note dated May 31st 1890, made by the said William Green for the sum of $800.00, bearing interest at the rate of one and one-fourth per cent. per month, payable semi-annually; and if not paid when it becomes due, to be added to the principal and bear interest at like rate, as described in said complaint on file herein, which complaint alleges that no part of the principal or interest therein has been paid; that the premises conveyed by said mortgage may be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said promissory note and interest thereon, and the payment of 15 per cent. of the amount found due the plaintiff as attorney's fees, and for costs of this action; and in case such proceeds are insufficient to pay the same, that judgment be docketed against said William Green, defendant herein, for the balance remaining due, and also that the said defendants, and all persons claiming by, through or under them, or either of them may be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, claim, lien, equity of redemption, and interest in and to said mortgaged premises, and for other and further relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Witness my hand and the Seal of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 29th day of June, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

J. D. LEWIS, Attorney for Plaintiff.

ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE WHY ORDER OF SALE OF REAL ESTATE SHOULD NOT BE MADE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of the estate of John William Meyer, deceased.

John W. Lecompte, the Administrator of the Estate of John William Meyer, deceased, having filed his petition herein, duly verified, praying for an order of sale of all the real estate of said deceased, for the purposes therein set forth,—

It is therefore ordered by the Judge of said Court that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased appear before the said Superior Court on Saturday, the 5th day of August, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m. of said day, at the Court-Room of said Superior Court, at the town of Independence, in the County of Inyo, State of California, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Administrator to sell all the real estate of said deceased.

And that a copy of this order be published at least once a week for four consecutive weeks in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said Inyo county.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated July 5th 1893.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for the Administrator.

ORDER OF NOTICE TO CREDITORS ON APPLICATION FOR DISCHARGE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of J. V. SKINNER, an insolvent debtor.

J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor, having applied to this Court for a discharge from his debts,

It is hereby ordered, that the Clerk of this Court give notice to all creditors who have proved their debts to appear before this Court at the Court-Room thereof, on the 9th day of August 1893 at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., and show cause, if any they have, why the said J. V. Skinner should not be discharged from all his debts, in accordance with the statutes in such cases made and provided.

It is further ordered, that notice of said application be given to the Creditors by mail, and by publication once a week for four weeks in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper published in said Inyo County.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated July 13 1893.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Insolvent.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday ..... January 28th
" ..... February 25th
" ..... March 25th
" ..... April 29th
" ..... May 27th
" ..... June 24th
" ..... July 22d
" ..... August 26th
" ..... September 23d
" ..... October 21st
" ..... November 16th
" ..... December 18th

THOS. C. BOLANE, W. M.
B. RHINE, Sec.

BOOTS AND SHOES

MADE AND REPAIRED.

THE BEST MATERIAL.

FIRST-CLASS WORK

Repairs done Promptly.

Prices Reasonable.

A. J. DAVIS,
Independence.

30-tf

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.

FRANK FITZGERALD.

Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

RESTORE YOUR EYESIGHT

Cataracts, scars or films can be absorbed and paralyzed nerves restored, without the knife or risk. Diseased eyes or lids can be cured by our home treatment. "We prove it." Hundreds convinced. Our illustrated pamphlet, "Home Treatment for Eyes," free. Don't miss it. Everybody wants it. "The Eye," Glens Falls, N.Y.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,

Sheriff and Tax-Collector.

INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,

COUNTY CLERK,

—AND—

Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,

INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES. P. W. BENNETT.

BENNETT & FORBES,

ATTORNEYS AT LAW.

Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.

INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,

County Treasurer,

INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.

COUNTY SURVEYOR

—AND—

U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.

—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—

The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.

All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.

MACK & DENSMORE,

ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,

INDEPENDENCE CAL.

Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.

Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,

I. H. MULHOLLAND.

Office in the "Independent" Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.

(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)

Office and residence at the Johnson place, Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel

IRVING J. WOODIN, M. D.,

Physician & Surgeon,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Freight! Freight!

BISHOP & MOJAVE

Through Freight Line.

George Meads,

PROPRIETOR.

Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:

J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.

THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.

O. I. MAIRS, Independence.

W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.

Special rates given on car-load lots

FRED BURCKHARDT

Watchmaker & Jeweler

LONE PINE, CAL.

Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated to satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and laced.

All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics Hall," Lone Pine.

FRED BURCKHARDT

IRWIN'S SALOON

Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,

Independence, Cal.

THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPectfully invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.

THE BAR

Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.

JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.

feb12-tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.

$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $25 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.

It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer without cost of repairs than any other machine, Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.

Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.

For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address

ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,

—DEALERS IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.

We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.

THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit

FOR SALE CHEAP.

Winter Apples..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes.....12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches.....10 cts
Dried Apples.....10 cts

Other varieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.

S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel

Keeler, Cal.

John Barnes, Prop'r.

First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.

THE BAR

—Is constantly supplied with the finest—

Wines, Liquors, & Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.

DENTISTS.

OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSfield, opposite the Southern Hotel. Prompt and careful attention given on the least possible pain indicated. Address

WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS

A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.

To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List.

GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce Street, New York

P. W. FORBES P. H. MACK.

MACK & FORBES.

Real Estate Agents,

Address,
P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY the 8th day of March, 1893, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows to wit: Commencing at the South-east corner of the south-east quarter of North-east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98-100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of Oak Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hallahan, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lots Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode situate, lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispicada Lode."

That certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the North-west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12) and the South-west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South sixty-eight and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence North-westerly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty-four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North-east quarter and the South-east quarter, and the North-west quarter and the North-east quarter of the North-west quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North twenty-four and eleven-twentieth (24 11-20) rods; thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres; Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER,
Executor of the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah deceased.

Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1893.

J. W. Murphy.

BLACKSMITHING

—AND—

General Iron Work.

Wagons and Carriages Repaired.

HORSESHOEING, $2 00 for CASH

Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence.

EDWARD CHENOT

Independence, Cal.,

INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS extensive Stock of

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

....Consisting of....

GROCERIES,

PROVISIONS

Tobacco, Cigars,

WINES AND LIQUORS

FLOUR & GRAIN

Together with an Assortment of

DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING

ETC., ETC

Buyers and consumers should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.

E. CHENOT.

Independence, Cal., March 9 1894.
n47tf

$6000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, Troy, N.Y., at work for us. Sometimes one may put his time to much better use than to learn how to earn from $5 to $10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages, in any part of America, can live at home and earn money at the work we give. All is new. Great pay ALWAYS for every worker. We start you, furnishing everything. EASILY LEARNED. PARTICULARS FREE. Address at once, GEORGE STINSON & CO., PORTLAND, MAINE.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 4 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman .....A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman.....P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge.....GEO. M. GILL
Sheriff.....JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk.....DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney.....P. W. FORBES.
Assessor.....P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer.....W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner.....H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed).....JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools.....J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist.....ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist.....A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist.....W. H. UHLMEYER
4th Supervisor Dist.....JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist..FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Rev. H. J. Winsor will preach on Sunday at Lone Pine 11 a. m.; Georges Creek, 2:30 p. m.; Independence 7 p. m.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

The ladies invite all to a Grand Cantata and social evening at the M. E. Church on Tuesday, August 8th 1893. The Cantata is entitled "The Ship of Life" and is a beautiful piece of music. After the cantata, cake and ice cream. All come to wish Mr. Winsor good-bye.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

FRIDAY, July 28, 1893.

Estate of John McFarridge, deceased—Filed petition for letters of administration.

Estate of John T. McCoy, deceased—Filed petition for letters of administration.

Estate of James Parrish, deceased—Filed petition for letters of administration.

SATURDAY, July 29, 1893.

Estate of Maggie M. Campbell, a minor Filed order confirming sale of personal property.

Sarah E. Love vs. R K. Love—Filed complaint. Issued summons.

TUESDAY, August 2, 1893.

Estate of John W. Myer, deceased—Filed order appointing attorney for devisees, legatees, heirs and creditors not represented

Congress meets next Monday.

Ripe grapes should soon be in market.

Oats sell in San Francisco for $1.25 per hundred.

Lead fell in New York during the week from 3 60 to 3 45.

The dance to be given to-morrow night is indefinitely postponed.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Craig returned from San Francisco last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Scualten were down from Big Pine on Saturday last.

Scott Broder and James Daley were down from Fish Springs early in the week.

Tom Webb and H. D. Gill expect to start for Long Valley some time next week.

Al Stock writes that it costs him a dollar a mile to parade the Chicago boulevards.

Wells Barnes is officiating as Under-Sheriff during the absence of Dave Holland.

Mike Anton took a load of brick to Lone Pine yesterday to be used in the new school house there.

The Independence school will be taught this year by A. E. Janvier, Principal, and Miss June Salmter, assistant.

Thunder showers on the Inyos are a daily occurrence. The weather in town has been very warm and smitry.

O. I. Mairs will fatten a large number of beef cattle this Fall. He is putting up a considerable quantity of hay with that end in view.

The road between here and Lone Pine is now in good condition. Considerable complaint is heard of roads about Camp Independence.

Judge Arnot started for Alpine county last Saturday. He expects to remain there a few days and then go to Placerville to join his family.

John Shepherd, A. L. Conklin and Under-Sheriff Holland, accompanied by their wives, are on a camping trip to the Kern river country.

Pat Clinton came up from Cerro Gordo last Saturday. He is ailing with lead poisoning and will remain in town a couple of months to recuperate.

The Smith Brothers are fitting up their threshing machine and expect to start work in about ten days. The grain crop this year will be far above average.

The premium list committee has authorized a class for graded thoroughbred horses. Get out your young Percherons and Bronchos and stock them up a bit.

Rev C L Lugin lectured at Independence Wednesday evening on the World's Fair. His discourse was illustrated by a number of stereopticon views.

Cartier and Stecker are busy on the wood work of the new vault. The book cases have been moved in from the Recorders office and a number of new racks made.

A fellow at Panamint signing himself "R. Dicke," says he is a life long Democrat. If there was a Democrat at Panamint last election the returns failed to show it.

FOR AN OUTING.

There are many people right here in Owens Valley who do not realize what grand possibilities the Sierras right at our doors offer for a summer, outing either for a day, a week, or a month. For a day's trip leave Independence in the cool of the early morning, and a pleasant ride of two hours will take you up into the canyons from which debouch the two forks of Oak creek, Town creek, Palm creek, Shepherd's creek or Symmes' creek. On all of these there is excellent fishing, plenty of shade and lovely grassy banks where one may lounge. You can remain until sundown as less than an hour suffices for the home trip. The atmosphere is pure and invigorating, the water, clear and cold, and trout sufficiently plentiful to interest the most captious sportsman.

Onion Valley, a lovely little mountain meadow, nestles in the bosom of the high Sierras, about 10,000 feet above sea level. It is about twelve miles from town and can be reached in four hours easy travel. For those who have but a week's leisure this is undoubtedly the best place to go. It is within such easy distance that it can be reached and camp located and fitted up in one day. The scenery about the lovely spot cannot be surpassed for solitary grandeur. Cliffs tower to a culminating point of over four thousand feet above your camp. Waterfalls and cascades hundreds of feet high glisten like satin ribbons in the sunlight, and their deep muffled roar lulls you to sleep at night. There are a number of lakes, any of which can be reached in an hour's ride, and all filled with speckled beauties. Immense snow fields lie in tremendous gorges and merge into the light summer clouds which hover over inaccessible peaks. In the soft twilight huge boulders and needle like shafts of granite on the summits of the ridges assume all sorts of fantastic shapes. Each succeeding hour presents some new beauty, and with nothing human or artificial to interest you, nevertheless your week's holiday slips away ere you are aware, and every day possesses some interesting reminiscence.

Kern River is the favorite resort of those who can spend a month away from carking care. From Independence two days in the saddle will take you to "Runkles." Kern river is at that point a large stream, flowing through a deep, wide canyon, with just sufficient fall to make good riffle fishing. A tremendous landslide has dammed the river and formed a large lake in which trout up to five pounds weight abound. This country is far too large and its attractions too varied to give any idea of it in so short an article. A volume would be required to do it justice. Mt. Whitney, about which so little is known in the outside world, is within easy distance. Mile after mile of small meadows, connected like links of a chain, stretch away to the east and southward; in every one a small stream swarming with trout and bordered with a fringe of fragrant pine. In the awful gorges at the headwaters of the Kern deer and bear are plentiful. The wonderful attractions of this region have been so little exploited that it is not overrun with camping parties and this adds to its charm. Once known it cannot fail to attract visitors from all over the State.

Jack Moore and family have returned to Independence. Last fall Mr. Moore decided to try his luck in Washington and spent six months there. The result was very discouraging, and he has concluded that Inyo county is good enough for anybody. At present he is in the post-office as Deputy Postmaster.

J. C. Irwin and Arthur Smith have gone to Lenchau Springs on the Greenhorn Mountain. They will stop at Cottonwood and Olancha on the way and fish a few days. Pat Clinton is in charge of the Old Corner Saloon during Mr. Irwin's absence.

H. Giles started for New York last Saturday morning, from which point he expects to continue his journey to England. At Bishop he was joined by Thos. Williams of Round Valley, who is going to the World's Fair.

Mrs. F. Rhine and Miss Emily Rhine started for San Francisco on Tuesday's train. Mrs. Rhine was called to the city by a telegram stating that her sister was quite ill. She expects to return to about ten days.

P. W. Bennett Esq, a former resident of Independence, arrived here last Friday, looking for a business opening. As a result of his investigations the law firm of Bennett and Forbes has been established. See card.

Please settle Up

All parties indebted to the undersigned are requested to settle on or before August 25th next. All accounts then unpaid will be placed in the hands of an attorney for collection.

L. LACKY,
Lone Pine.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE JUSTICE'S COURT OF THIRD Township in the County of Inyo, State of California.

L. Wood, Plaintiff, vs. Jesus Encenas, Defendant.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Jesus Encenas, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Justice's Court of Third Township, County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer before the Justice at his office in said Township, the complaint filed therein, within five days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within the Township in which this action is brought; or, if served out of said Township, but within said County, within ten days; or, within twenty days if served elsewhere.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you for the sum of $225.85 alleged to be due and owing from defendant to plaintiff upon an account stated between plaintiff and defendant, at Independence, Inyo County, California, on the 12th day of June, 1892, which sum or $225.85 defendant agreed to pay to plaintiff. For costs of suit, as more fully appears by the complaint on file herein, to which you are referred.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to so appear and answer said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of $22.85 and costs of suit.

Make legal service and due return hereof.

Given under my hand this 2nd day of August 1893.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND,
Justice of the Peace of said Township.

F. E. DENEMORE, Attorney for Plaintiff.

MISCELLANEOUS.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 49.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, Do Ordain As Follows:

SECTION 1. Section 7 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et seq. and was amended by Ordinance No. 47, by the said Board of Supervisors, on the 5th day of April, 1893, which said amending Ordinance is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 190 et seq., is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 7. Every person who at a fixed place of business sells any malt or fermented liquors, wines or distilled liquors, whether on commission or otherwise (except wine of cultural production when sold by the producers thereof, and fermented or malt liquors when sold by the manufacturer thereof, on the premises on which the same shall be manufactured), must obtain from the Tax-Collector, and for each branch of said business, a license, and must pay quarterly therefor the sum of Forty Dollars. And every such manufacturer of any malt or fermented liquors, who sells the same on the premises on which such liquors may or shall be manufactured must obtain from the Tax-Collector, for such business a license, and must pay quarterly therefor the sum of Twenty Dollars.

SECTION 2. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after twenty-five (25) days from its passage.

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same, in the "Inyo Independent," a newspaper printed and published in the said County of Inyo, at least two (2) weeks said publication to be made said time and before the expiration of said twenty five (25) days.

R. LOVE,
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

(SEAL)

Attest: D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 49 was duly passed enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the Eleventh day of July, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Supervisors Frank Fitzgerald, A. C. Freeman, John Wilson, W. H. Uhlmeyer, R. Love.

Noes: None.

R. LOVE,
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

(SEAL)

Attest: D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

[Endorsed.]

ORDINANCE NO. 49.

Adopted July 11, 1893.

D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

Recorded July 11, 1893, in Book "C" of Ordinances, at pages 183 et seq.

D. J. HESSION,
By J. E. PARKER, Deputy. County Recorder.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of Frederick J. Reynolds, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNDERSIGNED, Administrator of the estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased, to the creditors and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of P. W. Forbes, in the Court House, at the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the said County of Inyo, State of California.

EDWARD JOHN REYNOLDS,
Administrator of the estate of Fredrick J. Reynolds, deceased.

Dated at Independence, Cal. June 13th, 1893.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Administrator. jn16 5.

JOHN B. CLARKE,
Successor to John Clarke,
—PROPRIETOR—
John Clarke's Bishop Stables,
BISHOP, CAL.

First-class Turnouts of Every Kind.
Fine Horses and Carriages.
Horses Boarded for any Time,
Best of Care and Attention

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" WARE.

The Newest Style
OF
Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies' Wears, etc., etc.
AT
L. WOOD
CASH STORE
A small stock of fresh groceries and canned goods constantly renewed.
Fresh Produce, and Grain Flour, etc., constantly on hand.
CANDIES,
PEANUTS
WALNUTS,
TOYS!
THE CASH STORE
Is Where You Get
WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

SEVENTH
ANNUAL FAIR,
Agricultural District No. 18.
BISHOP, INYO CO., CAL.
Septembes 19 to 22, 1893.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS, WATCHES.
Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neihboring counties is respectfully invited to the
LARGEST AND BEST STOCK
of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finer Rings, Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the est quality.
PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.
All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.
Address orders and packages to
HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,
0-m RENO, NEVADA.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING PARLOR.
J. TUCKER, Prop'r.
HAIR CUTTING IN ANY STYLE
SHAMPOOING AND BATHS.
Adjoining Irwin's Old Corner Saloon.

DR. J. S. MCQUEEN,
DENTIST.
Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery.
All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.
Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.
STOCKTON, CAL., Dec. 19th, '92.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.
Gentlemen:—Having read one of your Treatise on the Horse and seeing the Spavin Cure advertised, I thought I would try it. I had one horse with a prominent Spavin of 12 months standing. I removed it with ½ bottle. I tied upon one foot on same side the spavin was and compelling the horse to rest on lame leg while I took a surcingle and drew it across the hock or spavin until the hock or spavin got very warm with the friction, then putting on Spavin Cure. I had a mare that had a running from her nose for 12 or 14 months. I rubbed the Spavin Cure from her eyes down to nostrils, then from back of jaw bone down under the throat for a week. I have not seen any discharge for two months.
Yours truly, HUGH McDADE.
Price $1.00 per bottle.
DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

A. W. Eibeshutz
Independence, Cal.
—DEALER IN—
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE
Agent for
Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:
Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.
BIG PINE - CAL.
New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates
Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.
Special attention given to the wants of every guest.
Thos. Williams,
Proprietor.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.
Harness Maker.
Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.
O. H. Hill, Prop'r.
A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,
L. MUNZINGER & CO.,
Proprietors.
All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for outdoor parties.
Customers supplied on all points
Of the C. & C. Railroad.
Send orders to
L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,
Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.
PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
W. F. MATLACK.....PROP'R.
Horseshoeing.....$2 00 for Cash
For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

INDEPENDENCE
MEAT MARKET,
J. C. ROEPER, Prop.
Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including Beef,
Mutton,
Pork,
Sausage.
A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every ort made to give satisfaction to patrons.
j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,
BIG PINE INYO CO. CAL.
Dealer in GENERAL MERCHANDISE, GROCERIES MINERS Supplies
PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

BELL'S
Flouring Mills
A. N. BELL, Prop.
TRY BELL'S
EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.
Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully
Equal to the Best
Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.
A. N. BELL,
Independence, Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House.....	10:05 a. m	5:30 p m.
Dayton	10:45 a. m.	4:50 p. m.
Wabuska	12:40 p m	2:00 p. m.
Hawthorne	4 05 p.m	10:45 a m.
Luning	5:50 p. m.	9:30 a. m.
Soda Springs.....	6:40 p. m.	8:40 a. m.
Belleville.....	7:50 p. m.	7:20 a. m.
Candelaria..... Ar.	8:55 p. m Lv.	6:45 a. m.
	No. 3. Leave—	No. Arrives—
Belleville.....	7 00 a. m.	5:35 a. m.
Benton	11:00 a. m.	1:45 p. m.
Bishop Creek	1:20 p. m.	11:10 p. m.
Alvord.....	2 05 p. m	10:10 p. m.
Independence.....	3:40 p. m.	8:40 p. m.
Lone Pine	4 00 p. m.	7:45 p. m.
Keeler..... Ar	5:20 p. m. Lv.	7:00 p. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (38 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (12½ miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's tri weekly stages leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, for Downeyville Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stage for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma Alida valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

AT KEELER with stages from Cerro Gordo (3 miles), Darwin (24 miles), and Mojave (110 miles)

NORMAN HOUSE,
Independence, - Cal
New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.
Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.
O. I. MAIRS, Prop.
feb12tf

Pioneer
Livery & Feed Stables.
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and
Livery Accommodations
in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.
O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor

Palace Saloon.
MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.
—THE BAR—
Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of
WINES,
LIQUORS,
& CGARS
The most careful attention given to the the amusement and comfort of patrons.
A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!
Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-12 td

Inyo
Stage
Company.
REGULAR LINE
—FROM—
Mojave To Keeler.
FINE COACH
FAST STOCK.
The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful
Redrock Canyon
And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.
Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m
Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.
W. K. MILLER,
Propr.

That Peculiar Lightness and Flavor

Noticed in the finest biscuit, rolls, cake, etc., is due to the absolute purity and the accurate combination of the ingredients of the ROYAL BAKING POWDER. The best things in cookery are always made and can be made only with the ROYAL BAKING POWDER. Hence its use is universal—in the most celebrated restaurants, in the homes of the people, wherever delicious, wholesome food is appreciated. Its sale equals that of all others combined.

Made with the pure acid of the grape.

A SUN WORSHIPER.

Since no song bird's lyric gush
Breaks the gray and icy hush,
Since the meadows are in bond,
And white fetters chain the pond,
Since the barren boughs bewail,
And the bright hours swiftly fail,
Since the nights are one black blur,
I have turned sun worshiper.

Though my vision may not scan
Precepts Zoroastrain,
Yet have I some rapture caught
That the ancient Parsees taught.
Winter prisoned, I am won
By the promise of the sun,
And I lift my prayer that he
Set the weary captive free.

He can shatter frosty bars,
Edge hillpaths with bloosom stars;
He can heal the bare bough's grief
By the boon of bursting leaf,
Woo the solitude to song,
Right the wasting winter's wrong;
He can golden life confer—
I have turned sun worshiper!
—Clinton Scollard in Youth's Companion.

A Pneumatic Coal Chute.

"The man who goes about with a big shovel and a big basket over his shoulder looking for a job at putting in coal finds less and less to do," said a citizen. "The coal wagons which have bodies that may be elevated and adjusted at almost any angle, and which are provided with extension chutes through which the coal is made to run straight from the wagon into the coal hole, appear to be multiplying. But of course coal wont run up hill, and when it is to be used above the first story it still has to be carried up stairs. But perhaps the next thing will be a telescopic tube with a flaring lower end big enough to fit right over the top of a coal wagon and provided at its upper end with an apparatus to exhaust the air. Then when the tube is in the window and you're all ready, zip! and there you are, 'Coal delivered on the fourteenth floor without extra charge.'"—New York Sun.

Early Races In Russia.

Russia is so vast and includes so many races that it might seem well nigh hopeless to determine its most ancient inhabitants. Nevertheless this is a problem at which Professor Anatola Bogdanov has been laboring for the past 25 years, and which he attempts to solve in a paper read before the congress of anthropologists at Moscow. The kurgans or tumuli of central Russia contain the relics of a tall, strong, dolichocephalic race, with light brown hair, as well as a short, smaller bracycephalic race, with dark brown hair. The blond type preponderates in the southwestern districts, and the brunette in the northwestern. Bogdanov considers the long heads to have been Slavs, and that the modern Russians of those parts are an amalgam of the Slavs with the broader headed race, which is probably Mongoloid.—American Register.

The Use of the Adjective "Old."

Some one has noted that the adjective applied by college graduates and students to their alma mater is always "old." It is "old Harvard," "old Yale," "old Dartmouth," and one enthusiastic admirer and attendant at the University of Chicago has been heard to refer to certain rules of that institution as "a way we have at old Chicago." There is certainly an affection conveyed by the word "old" that no other adjective carries, and like the terms of address "old man" or "old boy" it signifies that loving familiarity with which every one regards his college home.—Boston Journal.

A Suggestion.

Prison Warder—It's just been found out that you didn't commit that crime you've been in for all these years, and so the home secretary has pardoned you.

Innocent Man—Um! I'm pardoned, am I?

Prison Warder—Y-e-s, but don't go yet. I'll have to telegraph for further instructions.

Innocent Man—What about?

Prison Warder—Seems to me that, considerin you hadn't any business here, you ought to pay for your board.—London Tit-Bits.

Misplacement of a Comma.

A popular captain's wife was more than usually anxious over the safety of her husband, and accordingly handed a parish clerk a slip one Sunday morning bearing the words, "Captain Wilson having gone to sea, his wife desires the prayers of this congregation on his behalf." Unfortunately, by the misplacement of the comma after the "sea," the congregation were told that "Captain Wilson having gone to see his wife, desires the prayers of this congregation on his behalf."—Cornhill Magazine.

An Egyptian scythe dug up on the banks of the Nile in 1890 and said to be as old as Moses is exhibited in a London museum. The shaft of the instrument is of wood, set with a row of fine flint saws, which are securely cemented in a groove.

A New York business man says: "The keystone of the success of the business man is in making other men work for him. That is the greatest quality. It is no mean accomplishment to get men who will earn their salary."

A Liar With a Big Fish.

"Dear! dear!" exclaimed George H. Pegram to a covey of railroad birds in the St. James, "how many liars there are in the world anyhow. Every small and large town has its star liar, and my old town had one. My old town was Chatham, Mass. There was, when I was a boy, an old fellow of the name of George Sanders, who wore without an effort the silver star of champion long distance liar for the town and neighboring vicinity. This fellow had been, according to himself, lost 50 times in great ocean wrecks. He had wandered naked and starving up and down cannibal islands and been rescued in a most providential manner. Sharks and whales had vainly harbored designs against his life, and invariably he had led them a bootless chase. In doing all this he had also established his star reputation. One day George came into the town dragging after him an immense codfish.

"He stopped at all the houses, he was so well known, and calling out the inhabitants pointed with pride to the fish and said: 'Now, if I had told you people I had caught a fish of that size you wouldn't have believed it.' George knew his reputation well, and he knew that to gain the actual credit for his catch that he would have to work for it. It always tickled me to think that the biggest liar in town should catch the biggest fish and then be compelled to drag it all around town to prove it."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Sleeping In Gloves.

There is an anecdote of Dr. Russell, the famous war correspondent. The most unenviable position in which he ever found himself was not in battle, but in bed. As the story runs, the correspondent was on the way to India with the Prince of Wales and stopped at the palace in Athens. The king made an appointment with him for an early walk. Dr. Russell narrates: "I went up stairs to bed. I couldn't sleep. The mosquitoes bit me to their hearts' content, particularly about the hands and arms. I happened to have a pair of long white kid gloves in my bag. I got up and put them on. I awoke in the morning with the knowledge of having somebody by my bedside. It was the king, accompanied by his big dog. It was 6:30! I sat up in bed. 'In half an hour, Mr. Russell,' said the king, smiling as he left the room, 'I shall come back for you.' At breakfast that morning, during a moment of silence, the king, addressing the queen, with a sly glance in my direction, said: 'Well, I've met a great many dandies in my time, but Mr. Russell beats them all. He actually sleeps in white kid gloves.'"

Natural Ornaments and Playthings.

The seeds known as Nicker beans and Bonduc nuts, species of Guilandina, are often used for bracelets, necklets and rosaries, and are very ornamental when capped and set. Baskets and other fancy articles made of them are very common in most museums. There are two species, G. Bonducella, the seeds of which are of a gray leaden color or a slaty olive green; and G. Bonduc, which are pale yellow or orange colored. In the Malay Archipelago these seeds are used as counters and playthings by children in place of marbles, and on the Gambia in playing a game called warree-warree. In Bombay, strung upon red silk, they are worn by women as a charm, and also in Egypt by women and children as amulets against witchcraft and sorcery.—Chambers' Journal.

The Remains of Pets as Ornaments.

A London lady of high degree wears set in the jewels of her bracelet a tooth extracted from the mouth of her pet poodle. Another affectionate creature uses the skin of a once favorite horse as a hearth rug for her boudoir and has a defunct pet pug mounted in a lifelike attitude by the taxidermist for an ornament on her writing table.—Exchange.

An Enthusiast Indeed.

Mrs. Trulove—What on earth ever induced you to engage yourself to Count Lackpenny?

Miss Brickybrac—Why, my dear, don't you know that he will inherit a service of renaissance plate? How it will improve my collection!

Judging From Appearances.

"That man must play in the band," said Bobbie.

"Why do you think so?" asked Wilton.

"Because he has bandy legs," said Bobbie.—Harper's Bazar.

THE ELDER SALVINI SURPRISED.

When the Temple of Diana Fell, He Became Very Much Excited.

Alexander Salvini tells an amusing story of his experience while acting as stage director for his father when the latter began his last American tour.

"I took entire charge of the stage direction for father," said he in a chat the other day, "and so relieved him of all anxiety on that score. I had the most difficulty in getting proper handling of the temple scene in 'Samson,' where Samson pulls the shrine of Diana down upon the heads of the people. I superintended this and got everything into working shape, but did not have father rehearse the falling in of the temple.

"I knew that the mechanical effect would take care of itself, so far as he was concerned, and merely placed a dummy there so as to arrange that none of the debris should fall so as to hit Samson. The effect of this tumbling in of the scenery was rather terrifying. It was the 'supers' whom I expected to give me the most trouble. Of course I wished them, representing the worshipers in the temple, to make a regular stampede, but I did not rehearse them for it.

"Well, when we played 'Samson' the first night I secured just the result I wanted. You ought to have seen those supers run off the stage! They thought the whole house was tumbling in on them. The way they went off that stage was a caution. At least they tried to go, but in their terror they tumbled all over one another in a heap. It produced a magnificent terror effect, and the audience probably thought it had all been rehearsed to perfection. But the supers knew better."

"How did they act the next night?"

"They didn't act at all. They were so terrified that they never came back. I expected that and had a new lot ready. The most astounded man of all was probably father. When the whole temple tumbled down upon him, he was perfectly bewildered, and as soon as the curtain was down he turned to me and energetically exclaimed, 'Sacramento! but do you want to kill me?' When cautious investigation showed him that no piece of scenery could fall on him, he accepted the situation philosophically."—Minneapolis Tribune.

The Trade of Burglary.

Burglary is a trade. It has its tricks, its tools and its ups and downs. It is a trade which is continually changing and improving. Methods of high class burglars that were in vogue 20 years ago are hardly known now. The thief's "jimmy" is out of date. Safe blowing has given way to safe cracking. Four or five men, with a few sticks of dynamite, rob a train nowadays as easily as 20 men armed to the teeth did it a dozen years ago. But in spite of the changes the motto of all low grade crooks is, "The way to steal is to steal."

They embrace every opportunity and steal whenever they can, often making a bungling job and getting nipped. After a few terms in the penitentiary, however, they are no longer low grade crooks, but have become educated professionals. The penitentiary is their school. There they are taught all the improvements of the "trade," and there many burglars' devices are invented by brainy but vicious men.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Tale of the Telephone.

The first telephone that was ever used was not electrical, nor was it a scientific instrument in any sense of the term. A little more than 50 years ago the employees of a large manufactory beguiled their leisure hours by kite flying. Kites large and small went up daily, and the strife was to see who could get the largest. The twine which held them was the thread spun and twisted by the ladies of the village.

One day to the tale of the largest kite was attached a kitten, sewed in a canvas bag, with a netting over the mouth to give it air. When the kite was at its greatest height—200 feet or more—the mewing could be distinctly heard by those holding the string. To the clearness of the atmosphere was attributed the hearing of the kitten's voice. This is the first account we remember of speaking along a line.—Sheffield Telegraph.

A Street Car Idyl.

They were riding up town together—pretty, pink cheeked Ethel and her red cheeked brother Ralph. In the young woman's lap lay a daintily bound volume with a bit of winter landscape etched upon the cover and the words "Winter Idyls" written across it.

"Say, Ethel," inquired Ralph, "what does i-d-y-l spell?"

"Idyl," replied Ethel absentmindedly, looking out of the car window. Ralph pondered.

"Are winter idles tramps, Ethel?" he went on. And the absentminded Ethel said she guessed so.—New York World.

The Families of Patterson.

Tompkins with a "p" is not more significant than Patterson with two "t's" if tradition is to be trusted. According to the story that has come down from the 16th century, the Pattersons all spelled the name with one "t" before Queen Elizabeth set about marking those of her subjects who left the ancient Catholic faith and cast their lot with the Church of England. She insisted that all the Protestant Pattersons take to themselves a second "t," and since that time many have followed that mode of spelling the name.—New York Sun.

Not Far Enough Along.

Mrs. Westcott—Why don't you wear a fur lined overcoat, like Mr. Rich?

Mr. Westcott—Remember, my dear, that Mr. Rich has failed three times. I've failed only once.—Clothiers and Haberdashers' Weekly.

A RESCUE THAT COST A LIFE.

He Saved the Young Lady, but Slipped and Was Dashed to Pieces.

I witnessed a most heroic incident many years ago. In 1865 two ladies and two gentlemen went over the Susquehanna river, opposite a small town in Pennsylvania, to a place called Peter Steps. To get to Peter Steps, which is on a bluff 150 feet high, you had to go by a back road. On top of the steps were two tall pine trees, eight feet apart, and to tie a rope to the trees and swing out over the bluff was the object of the party. After the gentlemen had been swinging some time one of the ladies wanted to swing. Annie, a beautiful girl, got in the swing, and after a short time she exclaimed: "Give me a good push. I want to go out so I can see the road below." We did so, when snap went the rope, and with a terrible scream Annie went crashing down on the rocks.

Almost scared to death we ran to the road below. We could not see Annie, but on looking up there she was. Her clothes had caught on a small scrub oak tree, and she was hanging between heaven and earth. By this time a crowd had gathered on the road below. Everybody was excited and was wondering how to get her from her perilous position. Just at this time Harry Saylor came running up the road. Seeing what was wrong, he went up the back road to the pine trees, and catching the rope that was used for the swing descended.

But, alas, the rope was too short. He did not wait for a longer one, but inch by inch he picked his way to the oak tree, and by the greatest exertion he managed to get her to the base of the tree. Once there even he dared not leave go of Annie or the tree. In the mean time a longer rope was procured, and tying it around Annie's waist she was landed safely above. Not so with Harry. When near the top, he slipped. Down he went, landing on the rocks below, a bruised and bleeding mass.

Gently and tenderly was he taken home, but his work on earth was done. On the stone that stands at the head of his grave are these words, "Sacred to the memory of a man who bravely gave his life for another."—Cor. New York Press.

A Glimpse of New England Life.

Apropos of character sketching are the following little bits of New England life seen on a train the other day. A couple of middle aged country women entered the car at a way station. One, dressed in seamworn black and carrying a bright yellow pumpkin took the inside seat, and her companion, settling herself on the extreme edge of the remaining half, arranged various bundles comfortably around her. Presently they entered into conversation. "Hev you seen Mis' Brown lately?" inquired she of the bundles. "Why, hevn't you heard?" returned the owner of the pumpkin.

Her voice sounded aggrieved. "Mis' Brown an I don't speak jest now," she went on. "It happened like this. 'Twas at the last sewing circle. We were sittin side by side out to supper, an when the biscuits come along I broke mine open an says I to her, 'Well, I must say I've eat better biscuits 'n these. Ain't they spotted?' Well, them were Mis' Brown's biscuit—an since then she and me ain't spoke." "You don't say," commented her companion. "Hadn't Christians oughter to be careful?"—Boston Advertiser.

Sailors Fear Bridal Couples.

A gentleman who has recently returned from Europe tells of an odd superstition in vogue among the more ignorant classes of seamen. They are of the opinion that the presence of a young couple on their bridal tour aboard ship portends a violent storm. The Canadian, an Inman steamship, had a young couple aboard, and sure enough the ship was caught in a hurricane. A number of the sailors were intent upon throwing them overboard, and only the courage of the captain, who opposed the mutineers with a revolver in each hand, saved the lives of those who were enjoying the first weeks of their honeymoon.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

The food for the sultan of Turkey is cooked by one man and his assistants, and no others touch it. It is cooked in silver vessels, and, when done, each kettle is sealed by a slip of paper and a stamp, and this is broken in the presence of the sultan by the high chamberlain, who takes one spoonful from each separate kettle before the sultan tastes it. This is to guard against poison. The sultan never uses a plate. He rarely uses a knife or fork—a spoon, his bread, a pancake or fingers are far handier. It requires just twice as many slaves as there are courses to serve a dinner to him.—Woman's World.

Railroad English.

Slang expressions generally originate with the railroad men, and a person not versed in slang might listen to a crowd of railroad men talking for an hour without getting the slightest impression of their meaning. Consequently, when an Atchison girl received the following letter from her Apollo, a brakeman, she was somewhat puzzled: "My dear, I pushed the con's face yesterday, and he told the supe, who put me on the carpet and finally put the can to me. I will have to lay over on the hill for 10 days and will be down to see you soon."—Atchison Globe.

When You Take Notes.

Did you ever want to take notes and have no pencil? Or try to write somewhere where the only available ink was thick mud? Did you ever finish writing an article and discover that certain pages were missing that you couldn't reproduce as they were to save your life? Perhaps you have ground out a substitute and then found that you had carelessly written on the reverse side of the sheets that were nowhere.—Boston Commonwealth.

A Canine Treadmill.

"Churn dog" stories are always in order. A city man who used to live on a farm, as so many city men did when they were boys, sends us this: "At home on the farm we had a number of cows, so many that churning was too heavy a task for even the men folks, so Mr. L. rigged up a dog churn, an inclined wheel, a sort of canine treadmill. It became the duty of Ponto, a large white mastiff, to tread that monotonous cycle, and notwithstanding the toothsome bit of meat that was fastened on a lath within four inches of his nose, he was not at all proud of his position and responsibility. He made several attempts to shirk his task, and twice succeeded. He got to know when churning day came around as well as any one in the house.

"On the morning of that day he would loiter about the kitchen door until he was fed, and as soon as he heard the note of preparation—the bringing of the cream jugs, preparing the churn, etc.—he would put for the woods and would not be seen again until night. The day of churning was changed, and next morning a more crestfallen and astonished dog was never seen when he was collared and harnessed to the beam which set the dash in motion; he looked positively foolish. He did his work, but with lowered head, and in cogitation evidently.

"On another occasion he tried another dodge. When they were about to put him on the wheel he ran up to his mistress, holding up one paw, affecting to be lame. She thought much of the dog, and was inclined to let him off that day. The next instant he was seen charging over a high fence after a neighbor's cat. 'Well,' said the old lady, 'if he can go after a cat like that he is able to churn.' And he did, and never tried to shirk his work again."—Forest and Stream.

The Advantages of Dead Peers.

The emperor of China has ennobled the ancestors of Sir Halliday Macartney for three generations. I congratulate these posthumous noblemen, wherever their disembodied spirits may be. Honor will no doubt be most gratifying to them. The Chinese are more sensible than we are. It is far more reasonable to convert dead men who can do no harm into noblemen than to make unborn descendants of living men into legislators, in which capacity they may do much harm.—London Truth.

THE GENUINE AND THE SHAM.

Every good thing has its host of imitators; every genuine article its counterfeits. The imitators always choose the most valuable and popular article to counterfeit, so that when they claim their sham to be equal, or as good, or the same as "So-and-So's," the public may depend upon it that "So-and-So's" article is the best of the kind. The sham proves the genuine merit of the thing it copies and never has this been better illustrated than by the imitations of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS.

ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER is the standard of excellence the world over, and its imitators in their cry that theirs is "as good as ALLCOCK'S" are only emphasizing this fact and admitting "ALLCOCK'S" to be the acme of perfection, which it is their highest ambition to imitate. The difference between the genuine and these imitations, which copy only general appearance, is as wide as that between copper and gold.

The only safe way for purchasers is to always insist upon having ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS. They are the only perfect plasters ever produced.

Both Satisfied—He—May I ask you for a dance? She—Certainly, the last one on the list. He—But I'll not be here then. She—Neither will I.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Mr. Dude—I was thinking how much I resemble your carpet—always at your feet, you know. Miss Sly—Yes, you are very much like my carpet. I am going to shake it soon.

RUPTURE AND PILES CURED.

We positively cure rupture, piles and all rectal diseases without pain or detention from business. No cure, no pay. Also all Private diseases. Address for pamphlet Drs. Porterfield & Losey, 838 Market Street, San Francisco.

Harry—I've got a girl who is one out of 10,000. Larry—I've got one out of the 400.

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell

Try Germea for Breakfast.

St. Jacobs Oil
Cures
PROMPTLY AND PERMANENTLY RHEUMATISM

SCIATICA, SPRAINS, BRUISES, INJURIES, CUTS, NEURALGIA.
ALL ACHES,
BURNS, WOUNDS,
SORENESS,
FROST-BITES,
LUMBAGO.

KNOWN ALL OVER THE WORLD AS THE BEST

Sold by Druggists and Dealers Everywhere.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., Baltimore, Md.

S. F. N. U. No. 576. New Series No. 27

PISO'S CURE FOR
Consumptives and people who have weak lungs or Asthma, should use Piso's Cure for Consumption. It has cured thousands. It has not injured one. It is not bad to take. It is the best cough syrup. Sold everywhere. 25c.
CONSUMPTION.

A Hopeful Sign—Fond Mother—Well, my dear, did the Duke propose? Daughter—Not formally, mamma, but he asked me if papa was as rich as he is reputed to be.

DECIDEDLY SHAKY.

A trembling hand, an uncertain step, fidgetiness, indicated by restless shifting from one place or posture to another, usually mental annoyance at unexpected noises, are among the indications of extreme nervousness. These seem trifling, but the health of men and women in this condition is "decidedly shaky," liable to be overthrown disastrously by causes which the vigorous might defy. To fortify the nervous system, general vigor must, through the medium of reinforced digestion, and a renewal of an impaired power of sleeping at night, be raised to a healthful standard. A guarantee of this is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which re-establishes digestion, bile secretion and the habit of body on a permanently regular basis, thus renewing that bodily equilibrium, which is followed by a gain of strength and nerve tranquility. For kidney complaint, rheumatism, neuralgia, and as a preventive of the first attack or subsequent return of malarial disorders, this medicine is without a peer. Thrice daily take a wineglassful.

Chicago's Fair is our affair,
Most fair it is, as all men know,
But how can it with that compare
Where earth has all the while on show?

LIKE A THIEF IN THE NIGHT, Consumption comes. A slight cold, with your system in the scrofulous condition that's caused by impure blood, is enough to fasten it upon you. That is the time when neglect and delay are full of danger. Consumption is Lung-Scrofula. You can prevent it, and you can cure it, if you haven't waited too long, with Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That is the most potent blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and flesh-builder that's known to medical science. For every disease that has to be reached through the blood, like Consumption, for Scrofula in all its forms, Weak Lungs, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all severe, lingering Coughs, it is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

The proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy know that their medicine perfectly and permanently cures Catarrh. To prove it to you, they make this offer: If they can't cure your Catarrh, no matter what your case is, they'll pay you $500 in cash.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE
25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.
THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail, Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER 25c.
SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. INJECTOR
Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50 cts. Injector free.

"German Syrup"

I am a farmer at Edom, Texas. I have used German Syrup for six years successfully for Sore Throat, Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Pains in Chest and Lungs and Spitting-up of Blood. I have tried many kinds of Cough Syrups in my time, but let me say to anyone wanting such a medicine—German Syrup is the best. We are subject to so many sudden changes from cold to hot, damp weather here, but in families where German Syrup is used there is little trouble from colds. John F. Jones.

SSSSSSSSSS
Swift's Specific
A Tested Remedy For All
Blood and Skin Diseases
A reliable cure for Contagious Blood Poison, Inherited Scrofula and Skin Cancer.
As a tonic for delicate Women and Children it has no equal.
Being purely vegetable, is harmless in its effects.
A treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed FREE on application.
Druggists Sell It.
SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.
SSSSSSSSSS

FARMER'S DELIGHT.
Their Wives Can Handle it.
Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine.
Palmer & Rey, S. F., Cal., Portland, Or.

$75.00 to $250.00 can be made monthly working for B. F. JOHNSON & CO., RICHMOND, VA.

PATENTS
BEST LEGAL ADVICE. BEST PATENTS OBTAINED.
DEWEY & CO.,
220 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO,
WASHINGTON, D. C., LONDON, ETC.

DR. GUNN'S ONION SYRUP
FOR COUGHS, COLDS AND CROUP.
GRANDMOTHER'S ADVICE.
In raising a family of nine children, my only remedy for Coughs, Colds and Croup was onion syrup. It is just as effective to-day as it was forty years ago. Now my grandchildren take Dr. Gunn's Onion Syrup which is already prepared and more pleasant to the taste. Sold everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents. Take no substitute for it. There's nothing so good.

Doubt Changed to Faith

"I used to read testimonials with doubt, but since my little girl Kitty has been wonderfully cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, I am ready to believe all that is said in favor of this good medicine. She had Eczema, causing her great agony with its intense itching and burning. We tried Hood's Sarsaparilla with the result of a perfect cure. WILLIAM FOX, Fair Haven, Vt. Be sure to get Hood's, because

Kitty Fox.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures
HOOD'S PILLS Cure all Liver Ills.

BLOOD POISON
A SPECIALTY. Primary, Secondary or Tertiary Syphilis permanently cured in 15 to 35 days. You can be treated at home for the same price and the same guarantees; with those who prefer to come here we will contract to cure them or refund money and pay expense of coming, railroad fare and hotel bills, if we fail to cure. If you have taken mercury, iodide potash, and still have aches and pains, Mucous Patches in mouth, Sore Throat, Pimples, Copper-Colored Spots, Ulcers on any part of the body, Hair or Eyebrows falling out, it is this Syphilitic BLOOD POISON that we guarantee to cure. We solicit the most obstinate cases and challenge the world for a case we cannot cure. This disease has always baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians. $500,000 capital behind our unconditional guarantee. Absolute proofs sent sealed on application. Address COOK REMEDY CO., 1335 to 1331 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE
Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP
FOR CHILDREN TEETHING
For sale by all Druggists. 25 Cents a bottle.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES
ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BO-SAN-KO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

HERCULES
Gas and Gasoline
ENGINES

Hundreds of them Sold and in Use.

Hercules -:- Engines
FOR Launches,
Schooners,
Tow Boats,
ALSO FOR
Wood-working Machinery, Bean Cleaning Machinery, Hoisting Works in mines, running machine shops, shoe factories, churns, carpet-beating machinery, ice cream freezers, electric dynamos, sewing machines, printing machinery, electric motors, paint mills, elevators, pumping water, sawing lumber, bottling soda water, sawing wood, and many other classes of work.

NO COAL
To haul when running the Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine; no ashes, smell or dirt. Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day. For simplicity and success it beats the world. The workmanship the best.
NO MAN who has water to pump, machinery to run, hoisting to do, etc., can afford to be without a Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine. Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question. No double or false explosions.

Palmer & Rey Type Foundry,
MANUFACTURER,
405 SANSOME ST., SAN FRANCISCO.

"HE THAT WORKS EASILY, WORKS SUCCESSFULLY." CLEAN HOUSE WITH
SAPOLIO

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF
Moore's Revealed Remedy.
ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude,
MRS. N. V. STEELE.
SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

INYO INDEPENDENT.
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.
Independence, Cal.
FRIDAY, AUGUST 11, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXV. NO. 8. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., AUGUST 11, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1189

INYO INDEPENDENT
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$1 00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.00
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

THE TWO LOVES.

Love is often deaf to those
  Who love her deeply;
Deaf and blind as death may be
  To grief or gladness.
Ah, that Love should hold a heart
  At best but cheaply!
Such a heart as none can lure
  To cruel madness.

Love, alas! is born of earth,
  And drifts supinely.
Now she finds a bitter joy
  In vulgar measure;
Now she sings with open throat,
  And sings divinely,
Passion-sweet in all her dream,
  In all her pleasure.

Oh! when Love meets Love in guise
  Supremely tender,
Just as crystal song meets song
  In perfect blending,
Then she soars among the stars
  To her surrender.
There is neither pain for her
  Nor ending.

—George Edgar Montgomery in Harper's.

Aqueducts, Ancient and Modern.

It is the modern fashion to assume that the difficulties which impede the march of progress today were unknown to the ancients, or, at least, not appreciated at their true value by them. In New York, we habitually think of the aqueducts from the Croton valley to the city as the only ones worth mention, of our water supply as the best the world has ever seen, of the difficulties of retaining a pure supply as greater in our case than it ever has been.

Yet other civilizations have been as careful of their water supply, and have spent as much money in proportion to obtain it, as any city in the United States. Immediately before and long after the beginning of the Christian era Jerusalem was supplied with water from the pools of Solomon, six miles distant. Even to the present day, a 10-inch pipe conveys the water by which modern Jerusalem is saved from pestilence from one of these very pools of Solomon.

Egypt has had her systems of irrigation since prehistoric times. For hundreds of years the chief water supply for drinking purposes of the Delta has been drawn from the Sweetwater canal.—New York Evening Sun.

A Map of Telegraph Poles.

Mr. George Ryley, superintendent of construction in the Western Union Telegraph company, has a most peculiar and valuable portfolio in his possession. It is made up of fac similes of all the telegraph poles in the sixth district, which comprises the states of New Jersey, Maryland and that portion of Pennsylvania east of the Allegheny mountains. Each pole is perfectly reproduced in pen and ink, showing the number of crossbars, together with the different wires attached, each of which is numbered.

The book is an invaluable assistant to Mr. Ryley from the fact that when there is trouble with any of the wires in the district, it is an easy matter for him to direct a lineman to the spot in need of repair in a very short space of time. When the report comes to the main office that a wire is down at some point between two telegraph stations, the exact locality of which is unknown, Mr. Ryley turns over the leaves of his book and locates the exact spot in a minute.—Philadelphia Record.

A Novel Fire Extinguisher.

Not long ago the chimney of a country house took fire. The flames were put out as fast as they extended to other parts of the house, but the chimney kept getting hotter and hotter and nobody seemed to know just how to get at the flames to subdue them.

Suddenly a boy looking on had a bright idea. The owner of the house kept a great many fowls. Quickly running to the duck pen, the boy seized several ducks in his arms and started back. Mounting the roof on a ladder, before any one knew what he was about the lad threw a duck down the chimney, the flames subsided and a denser smoke came up. The boy tossed down another duck and another. The cloud of soot raised by the flapping wings of each duck as it fell smothered the fire and gave the firemen the chance they wanted. They worked with such good effect that the flames were soon extinguished.

But the ducks probably did not appreciate the idea.—New York World.

Beautiful Land of Oklahoma.

Oklahoma is a picturesque country. From the summit of the great red earth cliffs of the Canadian range one may look over great breadths of woodland and miles of rolling prairie, with here and there stretches and clumps of trees—upon scenes of such beauty that even the stolid Choctaws and Chickasaws, as they gazed thereon, exclaimed "Oklahoma," i. e., "lovely country." It is said that when once a boomer was able to enter the land and locate a claim, he never abandoned the effort to secure it, but waited as best he could until noon of that day, April 28, 1889, when the last barrier was removed, and then joined in the most remarkable race the world ever saw—a race between thousands of men on foot, in wagons and on horseback, seeking a home.—John R. Spears in Scribner's.

A Little Girl's Investment.

Not long ago a little Pine street girl asked her indulgent parent for fifty cents to get "something." As she didn't seem inclined to tell what the same was, the said parent quietly gave her the required sum and resumed reading his paper. The next day his daughter triumphantly burst into the room with, "Here it is, papa," and there upon her shoulder was a tame rat. She was stroking it as if it were a kitten. The gentleman said something about there being plenty of rats without paying fifty cents for them, but no marked objection was made to her keeping it. The rodent now is acting as missionary in the home of a little invalid boy, who watches from his bed of pain the rat's antics and finds the days less long.—Lewiston Journal.

Rosaries Made of Stones and Seeds.

The stone from the succulent fruit of the common bead tree or Persian lilac is used all over India as a bead. They are perforated and strung into necklaces and rosaries. During the prevalence of epidemics of smallpox, etc., they are suspended as a charm over doors and verandas to keep off infection. The nuts of Euonymus grandiflorus are made into necklaces, and the red seeds of another species are strung into ornaments for the head in India. The seeds of Gyrocarpus jacquini are also made into rosaries and necklaces.—Chambers' Journal.

Men and Umbrellas.

The man who carries a cane or umbrella horizontally, thus imperiling the eyes of other people, ought to be bastinadoed. In Berlin travelers soon learn how to safely handle such articles. When a man is seen strolling the streets with an umbrella or cane held horizontally, he receives a rude reprimand by having the offending article struck down by the hand of some other pedestrian.—Yankee Blade.

The Coyote and the Crows.

Once on a time many crows lived in the edge of some woods. A little out into the plain stood a very large tree, with much sand under it. One day a coyote was passing and heard the crows singing and dancing under this tree, and came up to watch them. They were dancing in a circle, and each crow had upon his back a large bag.

"Crow friends, what are you doing?" asked the coyote, who was much interested.

"Oh, we are dancing with our mothers," said the crows.

"How pretty! And will you let me dance too?" asked the coyote of the too-whit-lah widdeh crow (captain of the dance).

"Oh, yes," replied the crow. "Go and put your mother in a bag and come to the dance."

The coyote went running home. There his old mother was sitting in the corner of the fireplace. The stupid coyote picked up a stick and struck her on the head and put her in a bag, and hurried back to the dance with her.

The crows were dancing merrily and singing:

"Ai nana, que-ee-rah, que-ee-rah." (Alas, Mama! you are shaking, you are shaking!) The coyote joined the dance, with the bag on his back, and sang as the crows did:

"Ai nana, que-ee-rah, que-ee-rah." [Ai nana is an exclamation always used by mourners.]

But at last the crows burst out laughing, and said, "What do you bring in your bag?"

"My mother, as you told me," replied the coyote, showing them.

Then the crows emptied their bags, which were filled with nothing but sand, and flew up into the tree, laughing.

The coyote then saw that they had played him a trick, and started home, crying "Ai nana!" When he got home he took his mother from the bag and tried to set her up in the chimney corner, always crying, "Ai nani, why don't you sit up as before?" But she could not, for she was dead. When he found that she could not sit up any more he vowed to follow the crows and eat them all the rest of his life, and from that day to this he has been hunting them, and they are always at war.—C. F. Lummis in St. Nicholas.

Queer Ideas About Writers.

It is a popular impression that most persons are glad to answer questions in reference to their own professions, or, in other words, to "talk shop." Few, however, of the misguided talkers who act on that supposition have any idea of the discomfort they may inflict on oversensitive spirits.

"Writing much poetry nowadays?" asked a reporter of a poet, and one can imagine the involuntary distaste with which the latter shrunk from this bluff attack.

"I suppose you are doing a good deal of literary work?" said a visitor to a well known writer of short stories, to whom she wished to make herself agreeable.

"Nothing to speak of," was the gentle reply.

A week later the same acquaintance appeared again. "Now, really and truly, aren't you writing anything?" she asked, with an engaging frankness which seemed to challenge an equal candor.

"Nothing to speak of," was the courteous answer, and with that she was forced to be content, but it was not long before she returned to the charge.

"How could you tell me you were not writing anything?" she asked, reproachfully. "Yesterday I heard your mother say that you were too busy with a book of translation to do anything for the fair."

"Excuse me," said the victim, goaded into explanation. "I merely said: 'Nothing to speak of.' I meant that I am never doing anything in connection with literature of which I have anything to say."—Exchange.

Paper Belts.

One of the largest establishments in this country has for some time been turning out paper belts that have the reputation of being superior in many respects to those of leather. These belts are made from pure linen stock, and are of any desired thickness, width or length, having also a driving power equal to any other of equal surface, and while it is not claimed for them that they are adapted to all kinds of work, they are found to serve well as straight driving belts of not less than five inches in width.

Where they have been tested side by side with leather belts for strength and durability, they are alleged to have proved equally satisfactory, adhering very closely to the pulley, generating no electricity while running, being also flexible and unaffected by temperature within ordinary limits, though there is one place in which they cannot be used, and that is where they have to run in water, or where they would be constantly subjected to moisture. It is admitted that this kind of belting is best adapted to heavy driving belts, and for this purpose it is not only much the cheapest material, but when once in position will run until worn out.—New York Sun.

Combustible Substances.

There are many substances which will produce what is called spontaneous combustion when brought into contact, and which are therefore sources of danger when left about the house. Greasy rags and rags which have been wet with turpentine or alcohol should be burned as soon as used. The merest spark may cause a blaze where olive oil or any other vegetable oil is mixed with rags, hay, sawdust or any such combustible material. Fine sawdust is a very combustible material, and should not be used, as it very often is, to collect the drippings of oil casks in shops or warehouses.

Lampblack mixed with linseed oil is one of the most inflammable of substances. A common source of fire in houses comes from the timbers dried by the steam, hot air or hot water apparatus. It is safest to destroy at once all greasy rags of whatever kind or description, for these may in a moment of negligence become the cause of great destruction.—New York Tribune.

Invalid's Cup and Saucer.

An ingenious cup and saucer has been devised for the special purpose of keeping the food of invalids warm when required. The cup is molded with three feet, allowing an air space of about half an inch between its bottom and the saucer. In the center of the saucer is a rimmed depression, within which is placed a piece of lighted charcoal, which is supplied at a cheap rate in the form of tablets. From this there are no fumes or unpleasant smells, and the food of the invalid, of whatever nature it may happen to be, is kept warm for fully an hour.—New York Telegram.

Certainly Innocent.

Jinks—I see by the paper that your friend Bloomer, of Bloomville, has got into trouble.

Winks—What's he done?

"Embezzled the funds of the church."

"That must have been some other Bloomer. The Bloomer I knew didn't go to church."—New York Weekly.

WHISTLING NAILS.

A Joke That Made 40,000 Soldiers Think the Enemy was Near.

BULLETS FLYING THROUGH THE AIR.

Price's Men Imagined that the Ingenuity of the Yankees had Evolved Something Terrible.

"I see," said the veteran, as he twisted his feet up on the veranda railing and gazed lazily at the sunset, "that they are making whole lots of talking in the newspapers nowadays about smokeless and noiseless powder. Why, we were talking about the same thing when I was in Price's army.

"You know we were away down in the brush in southwest Missouri, where we were all cut off from the world and couldn't get any news from the outside. Well, the story got started somehow that the Yankees had invented a new powder—a kind that burned with no smoke, no flash and no noise. Pretty soon they were talking about it in every regiment, worrying over the thing, and reviving the devilish ingenuity of the Yankee. There was nothing to talk about, and you know how it is in a big body of idle men.

"There was one fellow that took great stock in the noiseless powder story. It bothered him all the time. This was Bill Oliver, of Colonel Winston's Second Missouri. Bill came from up here at Platte City. He was a blacksmith, a strapping great big fellow, strong as a horse. He weighed, I reckon, 200 pounds.

"One black night Bill was put out in the brush on picket duty. Now, he was just as gritty a fighter as you ever saw in line with a man on either side of him, but I tell you, my boy, set a man out in a dark thicket all alone and the enemy known to be near and supposed to be everywhere, it takes all the starch out of the best of them.

WHISTLING NAILS.

"So Bill was trembly and shaky and saw Yankee sharpshooters everywhere.

"Now, in the same regiment they had a daredevil, harum scarum fool—Reub Hill. This Reub Hill was the kind of a specimen every regiment has—a pestiferous practical joker—a nuisance that everybody liked. Here was a rich chance for one of Reuben's little jokes. Soon as Bill had got settled at his post Reuben loaded his pocket with a dozen or so big wrought iron nails, and out through the dark he circled to get in front of the pickets. He hid in a sassafras brush about a hundred feet from the big blacksmith and looked out.

"There was Bill tiptoeing up and down his beat like an elephant on a rickety bridge, dodging and whirling every time a grasshopper chirped or a horse back in the camp snorted. He was getting badly scared. Reuben picked up a right ragged nail and flung it just as hard as he could jerk.

"You know what a vicious screeching a nail makes when you throw it that way? No minie ball ever sounded wickeder. It goes:

"'Whi-u-u-u-u!'

"Poor Bill's heart stopped with a big thump like a sledgehammer, and Reuben, away off in the thicket, heard him catch his breath as if some one had dropped a bucket of ice water on him. His big bulk dropped in the weeds like a sack of sand, and for about a minute there was not the sound of a breath. Then the big picket muttered shakily: 'Sho, I'm gittin skeery as a woman with thinkin of them Yanks an their new fangled powder.' And he got up and began warily to walk his beat.

"Reuben let go another of his nails, and a third just as quick as he could throw. They went whirring bloodthirstily toward William, and one of them ripped through the leaves over his head, spattering twigs and bits of leaf all about.

AN ARMY IN READINESS.

"There was no doubt about it this time, and big Bill, as he let his musket off wildly in the air, charged for camp, sputtering, puffing, yelling, tearing up weeds and sod and bolting into trees. His trail looked like the track of a young cyclone. Into the camp he plunged, over men and tents, musket stacks and cook trenches. It is an actual fact that he ran over a little foraging pony that was tied to a tree and couldn't get out of the way, knocked the poor beast down and crippled it for a week. His headway was terrific. He finally brought up full tilt against a tough little hickory sapling, which he ran down like a moose, landing up in the leafy top with his hands clawing at the boughs.

"He waked every man in the regiment. Down the line went shouts and bugle calls. Within ten minutes every one of Price's 40,000 men was in line of battle, staring into the darkness for the enemy's advance guard, listening for the purr of their silently fired bullets.

"Of course, the enemy did not come, but the men lay on their arms all night.

"Reuben was too tickled over the way Bill tore through the brush to keep quiet. Next day every man in the army had the story. But it did not take well with the officers. A corporal's guard came after Reuben and put irons on him, and his little joke was ponderously considered by a court martial. That afternoon came news of the enemy in deadly earnest, and Price set out on one of his long, forced marches. Reuben went along. He took with him by especial request of the court martial a full sized black oak fence rail, soggy with sap. He was charged carefully not to lose that rail for three days.

"'The first day,' said the disconsolate joker after it was all done, 'that rail felt pretty heavy, just like an ordinary rail. Next day it felt like a whole tree, but, my! on the last day I thought I was carrying all the woods.'

"It is still an open question among the boys of Winston's regiment whether the joke was on William or Reuben."—Kansas City Times.

We pity the brother who has no sister—no sister's love.

An Artist's Friends.

"Have you a friend in the world? Well, you might as well have none at all. Have your friends got any money; are they rich? Well, they will not spend a dollar for you. I warn you that you will find it so. I have been in this business a long while. I have told all my other patrons what I now tell you, and they have all found my every word was true." Thus spoke a picture auctioneer to an artist who was meditating an exhibition to be followed by a sale of the pictures. The two events followed one another, and the prophet's words did not come quite true. At the sale there was a notable absence of the artist's friends. Of the host of them only two or three who were not among the rich ones either came or bought anything. The others stayed away, saying afterward that they did not feel well or that they saw that the artist got good notices and was bound to do well—as he did, in spite of them.

There is nothing extraordinary about this situation. The probability is that the personal friends of the artists know them too well and like them too much to be certain that their judgment is fair and reliable when they come to exercise it in determining the market value of their work. Once an artist has established this value to be great his rich friends are apt to hunt around and secure some of the pictures they could have got cheaper when their presence would have been grateful to the artist. The poorer friends must then go without his work unless they have some that he gave away when he was younger and less famous.—New York Sun.

Experimenting With Corn.

"I made a queer and a very interesting experiment with a growing cornstalk," said Harvey Samuels as he settled in one of the great rockers in the Lindell. "I had always heard a great deal about the effect of injecting medicines and food into human beings, the method being pronounced preferable and more beneficial in cases of extreme illness than that of feeding through the regular channels. My work with this corn plant was decidedly interesting. I secured a small glass syringe with a very fine point to it. After the corn was two weeks old and only a few inches tall I began to inject the unfermented juice of crushed apples. My first injection was not quite a drop. Three days later I repeated the dose, increasing it slightly. In a little while the injection was a daily occurrence and the dose increased proportionately. The cornstalk waxed fat and tall. All along it gave promise of great size and large fruit.

"Its height in July was fully 16 inches above the tallest stalk in the field. Its ears were much larger, while the silken tassel was much smaller and lacked the depth of color characteristic of the other plants. I took an ear home to steam and eat. I can tell you that the quality of that corn for eating purposes was excellent. It smacked a little of apple, just the slightest suggestion of it, and not at all disagreeable as one might suppose. The grains were large and juicy. In fact the quality of the corn was far superior to anything I had ever eaten in that line. I am going to repeat the experiment."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Several Coincidences.

While the belief in talismans and omens is confined to the less educated portion of our population, even the most skeptical read with interest coincidences that simpler minds regard as prophecies. President Garfield a few months before his death related to a friend the following incidents:

As General Garfield entered the convention the day of his nomination, a man distributing leaves of the New Testament handed one to him which the engrossed politician folded and put in his pocket. Long after the nomination he took down the suit he had worn that eventful day, and before putting it on proceeded to empty the pockets. He drew out a paper pressed into a narrow fold, one verse only being visible. It was this, "The stone which the builders rejected is become the head of the corner."

Again, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, the hour of the nomination in Chicago, an eagle, coming from no one knows where, lighted on General Garfield's house in Washington and sat there several minutes. This occurrence was witnessed by many persons in the capital.—Wide Awake.

A Naturalist and the Snake Charmer.

A story used to be told at Cairo of the late Sir Richard Owen during one of his sojourns in Egypt. The great naturalist was seated in the shade on the veranda at Sheppeard's hotel, as is the postprandial wont of visitors to that famous hostelry, when the inevitable snake charmer came to him and produced from his bag a lively specimen of the horned asp—the deadly cerastes. The professor gazed, and nothing daunted stopped and plucked the horns from the head of the reptile wriggling at his feet, remarking to a bystander that the man would probably think twice before trying to palm off upon any one else a harmless snake as a cerastes by the aid of a couple of fish bones. With anybody else the charmer would probably have succeeded. He had tried it on the wrong man.—London Tit-Bits.

Weapons of a Kindly Woman.

A regard for others' feelings and a gentle though not fulsome flattery that stimulates rather than inflates are the weapons which, when used by a clever, kindly woman, make her a power among any set in which she chooses to move, though never for one moment does she give any evidence that she is aware of the influence she wields through the all conquering scepter of her own gracious womanhood.—Philadelphia Times.

Long Waits.

Salesman (great store)—This coat fits your little girl nicely.

Lady (thinking of next season)—Yes, it does now, but I think we'd better take a size larger.

Little Girl—Oh, yes, I forgot. We have to wait for our change.—Good News.

ON A LION FARM.

Where Wild Animals are Reared and Tamed for the Menageries.

PLAYING LIKE DOGS AND KITTENS.

An Algerian Kennel That Must be Very Interesting for a Man in Armor.—Quarreling Babies.

For the last 2,000 years the seaports of northern Africa have been the principal supply stations of the zoological curiosity market. During the palmy days of the Circus Maximus the Roman proconsul in Hippo Regius had special instructions to supervise the weekly shipments of wild beasts, and our menagerie owners still import a large percentage of their live stock from Oran and Algiers. The latter city, especially, has become a rendezvous of international pet dealers, and on my last visit to Antwerp Captain Ellard, the traveling agent of the famous Hagenbeck sale menagerie, gave me an interesting account of a lion kennel in the neighborhood of the ancient capital of the Algerian pirates.

In the arcades of the Palace Royale and all along the steamboat wharves strangers are troubled by the importunities of beast dealers who bawl out the merits of their pets, and in the ardor of competition will not hesitate to thrust a tame monkey into the arms of a possible purchaser. At a tent near the piazza of a French hotel Captain Ellard saw a native Arab with a dozen young lions, varying in price from 10 to 15 francs, but learning that the trader was merely a salesman of a wild beast farm in the outskirts of the Carbah, the hill suburb of Algiers, he resolved to apply at headquarters, knowing from experience that stock breeders are apt to keep their best specimens at home.

The captain's guide conducted him through rubbish heaps and bramble patches to an inclosed garden, which at first look might have been mistaken for one of the numerous yesiras, or orchard farms, in the neighborhood of the Algerian coast towns. But when they entered the gate a young baboon leaped down from the low, stone wall and raced toward his mother, who snatched him up in her arms and hurried off with coughing barks of alarm.

"Please keep on this side of the road," said the guide. "There's a she jackal with pups under that bush over yonder and she's very apt to fly at a stranger."

"Any way you please. Is that the owner of the place?" pointing to an old Arab who was busy cleaning out a barred den—apparently a natural cave fitted up for the purpose of a kennel.

"Yes, that's the sheikh, that's Ben Koffa," said the guide. "He used to be chief of a little mountain tribe, but the war ruined them. He's all right now. They can't break up his present business as long as the people in Frankistan buy wood devils" (shat-el-Kamr—a generic name for carnivorous animals, or "ver mint," as our trappers would call them)

The sheikh dropped his rake and welcomed the captain, who stepped back to save his clothes from two baby lions that had squeezed out of their cage and began to play with his trousers.

Some half grown brethren of the young baboon had emerged from their hiding place under the house and at once proceeded to illustrate their peculiar talent by upsetting a dish of milk before the old Arab could kick them out of the way. Seeing one of the young lions help himself to the spilled milk, they grabbed him by the tail and got their faces scratched for their trouble, but in the ensuing scrimmage four pairs of fists threatened to prevail against two pairs of immature claws, when the old lioness in the cage rose up with a menacing growl that sent the 4-handers scampering off with screams of dismay. One of the senior baboons then appeared on the scene, but vanished like a shot when the sheikh made a grab for his rake. The captain burst out laughing.

"You may believe it keeps me busy to straighten out this mob of rascals," said the old Arab, "but in the long run it's the cheapest plan to give them as much freedom as possible. They live just twice as long and are not so apt to get baldheaded with homesickness."

"But suppose those young scamps should run into a gang of your jackals, would not some of them be apt to get badly hurt?"

"I don't think they would," said the sheikh. "They get along in peace just the same as out in the wilderness. Jackals, you know, live on meat and baboons on berries and roots, so they do not interfere with each other's business. It would be different with some other creatures. I have a cageful of wildcats from Mount Atlas, and when one of them got out a few weeks ago you could hear my dogs and jackals howl all over the township. A dog and all his cousins seem to have an idea that a small sized cat has got no right to be alive anyhow. About the big cats, like lions and leopards, they are a little more careful."

"How many of the big kind have you altogether?"

"Five leopards and 22 lions," said the sheikh. "They are in the main kennel on the other side of the wall, but it's safer to keep the younger ones near the house."

"It must cost you a pretty penny to feed all those boarders?"

"Yes, but scrap meat is cheap in a place like this. Why, do you know that you can get some of it for less than nothing? The city several times paid me 5 francs a haul for carting off dead horses and oxen that had dropped in the street. I do it for nothing now to make sure of the contract. There is a chance of that sort about once a week, and after a good feed my boarders do not say a word about a couple of fast days."

"Have you any nursing leopards?"

"No. They do not often breed in captivity. Lions do, and next to jackals they are about the easiest things to keep alive."—Philadelphia Times.

A good intention clothes itself with power.—Emerson.

James Parton's Daily Life.

James Parton would not do hasty work. He was methodical, patient, regular and persistent, and in time he had become so able to control his mind that it responded to his will like the body to his mind. He did not tax himself to work out great feats within a short time, or if he was hard pressed he gave himself rest as soon as the strain was over. He did not burn midnight oil, neither did he resort to wine or tobacco as stimulants to his brain. He was one of the most temperate men I have ever known. He kept his faculties every day as near as he could at their best, and life flowed on from day to day with an evenness and a quietness that made his home life not only pleasant for others, but beautiful in itself.

His habits were to breakfast about half past 7, then to work in his garden in the summer for an hour, and then to shut himself in his workroom, where he could be sure to be undisturbed until half past 12. Then he dined, and after that, in his later years, took a nap. Then he was ready for callers or visits to friends, or for the reading which might be required for the work of the next day. After tea he was usually the companion of his family, hearing his wife or niece read aloud some book or magazine, and this was his daily round, unless broken in upon, month after month, year in and year out. He did not often go to Boston or New York or seek a large number of literary acquaintances, and yet he was never unsocial. He was the light and life of two clubs in Newburyport, and he was extremely fond of a good square talk, in which he was fired up to his utmost.—Rev. J. H. Ward in New England Magazine.

What Dog Stories Lack.

Presumably a wholly satisfactory dog story has yet to be written. It is rather strange that so faithful, so beloved, a friend and companion as the dog has always been to mankind should have so little, comparatively, written about him. When we come to consider that companionship and loyalty, we are compelled to set it down as a remarkable piece of ingratitude upon the part of man, not to made his friend the dog more of a figure in the literature of fiction. Mrs. Barbauld is said to have written the first dog story. We have never seen it. The story of Rab is of course familiar to all. Yet, however much of a classic it may have come to be recognized, it is at best fragmentary, and we must confess that we do not share that enthusiasm which is popularly expressed over it.

It can be taken for granted that nobody but a lover of the dog will write of the dog. The fault that we have to find with stories about dogs is their invariable lack of tenderness. When the dog comes to die, his biographer invariably dismisses that event with a casual "Poor old doggy! He has gone where good doggies go—the good old doggies' heaven." It is as if the biographer were ashamed to speak what his heart prompts; as if he were controlled by that same curious, awkward, wicked sense of pride which makes the simple fellow feign a snicker or a laugh during the progress of an emotional drama, at the very moment, too, when a lump is in his throat and his eyes are brimful of tears.—Chicago News-Record.

She Got a Seat.

A very pretty girl stepped into a crowded car on the College avenue line. She belonged in the high school and wasn't in the habit of standing up. The car was full, but everybody else had a seat. Seven men held down the most available ones, and, strange to relate, not one of them appeared to be aware that a young woman was compelled to stand.

The pretty girl, with a quick glance of disgust about the car, took in the situation and blushed somewhat indignantly. She had a long distance to ride and couldn't cling gracefully to a strap. Two squares had been traveled when an idea took possession of her classical mind. Out came the miniature purse from the embroidered silk reticule, and the little hands fumbled among a few silver coins. A nickel dropped to the floor and rolled to the far end of the car. This is part of the plan, but it is executed dexterously, and the passengers pity her. She blushed and murmured, "How awkward of me." Unsteadily she started after the nickel, but seven men intercepted the movement and rushed to the point, as the artful maiden dropped into a comfortable seat with a sigh and deftly hid a roguish smile.

The 5-cent piece was tendered by a man who assumed her place at the strap. She thanked him and looked all innocence.—Indianapolis Journal.

The Question of Food and Drink.

Fancy being confronted with the question, "What kind of food and drink do you prefer?" and only half of a rather narrow page in which to inscribe the answer. How could one answer such a question in such a space? for one's ideas as to food and drink vary so much with the hours of the day. Morning, tea or coffee very likely, with breakfast bacon or kidneys or fried sole or plain boiled eggs. But who wants boiled eggs and coffee at his luncheon? Then, again, dry champagne is generally a favorite drink at dinner, but we do not usually care for it at luncheon, and late at night most men have a preference for whisky and soda and would not care in the least for Pommery or Roederer. Then a man may have a strong liking for oysters, and also for olives, and how is he to get in all his opinions on these various questions of taste as to food and drink?—Exchange.

American Workingmen.

Nothing so much surprises Englishmen who visit this country as the dignity and good manners of American workingmen. An Englishman who found himself hard up in the far south and took to making orange boxes for a living declares that his fellow workers, mostly white mechanics, were all gentlemen. They saw that he had been accustomed to a different mode of life, but all forebore to ask embarrassing questions, and while none cringed before his evidences of former good fortune all were respectful of his superior education.—New York Sun.

LACE PAPER.

Minneapolis has the Only Factory for its Manufacture in America.

PLEASANT EMPLOYMENT FOR WOMEN

How an Industry in Which Germany Excels Came to be Established in this Country.

Minneapolis can claim a monopoly in at least one industry. There is none like it in the country. Germany is the nearest competitor. The lace paper factory here is the only one in the country. How the industry came to be established here and the development of certain possibilities in regard to it make quite an original story.

A certain business man tolerably well known in Minneapolis once upon a time loaned some money and material to a Russian immigrant who was trying to start a greenhouse in St. Paul. The florist was very grateful for the help, but at the end of six months had not repaid any of the loan. The business man hunted him up and inquired wherefore this negligence. The florist explained his difficulties at some length, and sorrowfully averred that in addition to other burdens he had to support his brother.

"Why doesn't your brother go to work?"

"Pardon, sir. He is honest and industrious, but can find no work at his trade."

"What trade can that be?"

"He is a lace paper maker and there are are no factories of that sort here, and he has not much chance at other trades where he has no skill."

An interview with the paper maker revealed some interesting facts, and after some investigation several Minneapolis capitalists concluded to start a factory to evolve the dainty confections that modern ingenuity says may be made from paper. The industry is still so new that its present condition may be regarded as only an earnest of the future.

The fad for fancy lamp shades makes a special department which was not at first contemplated. Crape paper develops in all the soft, dainty sheen of silk. Women are specially good at this branch of the industry, as it requires patience and that peculiar "knack" which no man ever had, and the woman who possesses it is luckier than if she had beauty, though she never thinks so herself.

Now, this business of making lamp shades and flower pots and paper flowers and dolls is light, clean work and pays well if a woman has the bent for that kind of work.

The prettiest lamp shades I ever saw were being made at the factory. The tobacco leaf forms the latest model. Two contrasting shades of crape paper form the leaf. It is cut in the proper shape, and a delicate wire forms the mid rib of the leaf and makes the shade substantial enough to stand wear. Four long leaves and four shorter ones droop from a common center and make the daintiest shade imaginable. I saw a tiny one of this same pattern for an incandescent light. The red leaves were lined with pale yellow, and how the electric light did glow through the blended colors! A skillful workwoman can only construct four or five of these shades a day. Their price consequently doesn't exactly bring them within the reach of all, but they promise to largely take the place of silk and illusion. The operative earns from $8 to $10 a week in the shade department.

Lace paper for lining the edges of boxes really forms the important part of this industry. Look at a bit of this dainty paper and see how faithfully it reproduces every thread of the lace from which it is copied. When people are told that these delicate patterns are stamped from engraved metal plates, they are apt to look incredulous. Still that is the process.

For many years Germany has controlled this industry. The consul at Berlin in his last annual report states that 7,000,000 pounds of lace paper are exported annually to the United States.

One fine day good fortune befell the industry. A man came in and asked for employment. He was a designer and engraver of plates from Germany. He declined to give any information as to how he knew the factory was in Minneapolis or why he came. He simply said they could try his work, and if they were satisfied he would stay. He has remained ever since. I saw him several times and didn't wonder that there was some hesitancy about engaging him. He weighs about 325 pounds. The face is intelligent and refined, but the bushy beard and long hair, combined with the muscular frame, give the man the appearance of one used to vigorous manual labor. Appearances are deceptive in this case, for he is an artist as well as an engraver, and knows every detail of the business.

He first sketches the design on paper, then takes a block of lead composition, similar to that used for newspaper cuts, and draws the exact pattern with a sharp steel point. Then, with finely graded chisels, he hammers out every little detail so exact that the tiniest thread of the finest lace pattern is visible.

To see the workman hammering out an intricate pattern one would think it an endless task. It is not, however, nearly so tedious as it looks. This engraver will make a plate 20 inches long by 2 inches wide in four days. All the edges of the pattern have to be made in sharp relief instead of being cut into the plate, as in ordinary engraving. This has to be done so that the sharp edges will perforate the paper when the cylinder passes over the plate.

Lace paper has its styles just the same as the real article. The young lady who gets her daily box of bonbons from the confectioner wants the lace edged holder to be in the latest mode. She can also select torchon, valenciennes, spanish, guipure, breton or any other style in the paper just as she can in the thread.

It is said that the game of craps is derived from the Greeks.

Strange to say, the Chinese assign the place of honor to the left.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 11 1893

Bi-metalism is not dead in England. Some of the leading political economists of that country are strong advocates of the double standard, and there is a very large element in the business and middle classes, whose welfare is not dependentent on fixed incomes, who are decidedly opposed to the single standard. Right Honorable T. J. Balfour addressing a very select meeting in the lord mayors official residence upon the subject of the two metals, declared that the gold standard would never satisfy commercial wants, while a double standard alone would prevent dangerous oscillations in trade. Mr. Balfour made a statement in the course of his remarks which must have sounded strange to his auditors who have been led to believe that gold alone was the great money necessity in successful war. He declared that in the event of an European war the double standard would be found very advantageous. Germany demonetized silver under the belief that the single standard would strengthen her as a war power. Balfour's doctrine dissipates this serious fallacy.

Some people can never be satisfied. The Sunday people fought the opening of the World's Fair on that day so strongly that Congressional aid to the enterprise was granted, with a proviso covering that point. The demand for the opening of the fair on Sunday seemed so great that the managers of the fair went into the courts to find a means of complying with what appeared a public demand. They secured a favorable ruling and opened the gates. But the crowds that clamored for Sunday admission did not attend the fair. The directors then concluded to keep the gates closed on Sundays in future, and now comes Judge Stein with a writ of mandate to make them keep open. Human nature seems to be rather perverse.

The Chronicle says that the Pacific bank is a hopeloss wreck. Its collapse is not due to the stringency of the times, but to the reckless way in which its affairs were conducted. Its assets are burthened with overdrafts by all sorts of irresponsible people, and the schemes it backed with money were of the wildest and most visionary. Among the names of customers who are on the lists of overdrafts is that of Attorney-General Hart, who a few days ago made a decision declaring the bank to be solvent and recommending the board of examiners to authorize it to resume. Comment is superflous.

The people of San Francisco are now receiving an object lesson on the cause of the city's gradual loss of trade and prominence. They are beginning to discover that the wholesale merchants are, as a class, of a very decided silurian nature. While the poor people and the retailers are contributing largely to the Midwinter Fair the wholesalers give nothing or a very little, accompanied by a reluctance that is disgusting. No wonder San Francisco is losing trade.

C. P. Huntington is in favor of silver with a string to it. He believes that silver should be legal tender to the amount of ten dollars. It is now legal tender to any amount where there is no special contract to the contrary. He also believes that the mintage of all gold coins less than the eagle should be discontinued. There be no objection from a silver standpoint to that.

The eyes of the whole world are on the special session of Congress, and as it is handling dynamite, it will have to look out or it will shake the earth from center to circumference. The further demonetization of silver would work a great hardship, and the single standard advocates want to think twice before they pile on the straw that will break the camel's pack.

Wheat was down to 60¼ cents a bushel in Chicago last Saturday, the lowest figure ever known. With wheat so cheap it would seem that there should be a flow of gold from Europe to purchase it.

The question of Sunday opening at the World's Fair has settled itself. The people keep away from the grounds. It is thought that they remain at home because there is preaching on the grounds.

Denver has very properly ordered the free soup houses closed. There will always be plenty of idle paupers when free food is obtainable.

A BALLOON ADVENTURE.

Setting Off Fireworks at an Altitude of a Thousand Yards.

M. John Lemoinne, the French academician and publicist who died recently, made a balloon ascension in his younger years which cured him of the taste of aerostation. He was at the time a bachelor, but in spite of his want of a family had some one who looked after him carefully in the person of the concierge or porter of the house which he occupied. At the moment when the aeronaut gave the word, "Let go all!" from the balloon at the Hippodrome, in Paris, Lemoinne, who was the only person in the basket with the aeronaut, called out to a friend:

"Please go and tell my concierge, who's very fond of me, that I shan't probably sleep at home tonight. Just that—it's all that will be necessary."

Up went the balloon. A height of 1,000 yards was reached.

"Now," said the aeronaut, "we will set off the fireworks."

"What?"

"Oh, I promised to set off some fireworks at this altitude, and as I can't leave this cord I'll trouble you to touch off the roman candles. And do it carefully, for if one of the balls should strike the balloon off she'd go like a bombshell, and that would be the last of us. There they are. Now touch them off."

"Oh, yes. Certainly," said Lemoinne with his heart in his mouth."

The balloon was plunging this way and that, and the great bag dipping down irregularly. Lemoinne touched the match to one of the roman candles, which he held with a trembling hand. Off it went—then another ball—fizz, pop—almost grazing the great plunging bag, which he knew was filled with a highly inflammable gas.

Then a bengal light was brought out, placed on a metal plate and set off. It sputtered and flamed, and little intense patches of fire were thrown off from it upon the osiers of the basket.

"Put those out!" screamed the aeronaut. "They'll set the basket on fire!"

Lemoinne scrambled over the basket, putting out the sparks of fire. The bengal light sputtered on. A fierce breeze struck the balloon, and it bent low almost to the level of the basket, which tipped sidewise fearfully. The men in it had to cling to its sides for their life.

The fire was scattered about, and some of the osiers of the basket were seen to be smoking. The thing was on fire. Lemoinne had his choice of letting it burn or falling 5,000 feet to the earth. If it blazed, and the fire was communicated to the bag, they would go to the ground anyhow.

The aeronaut meanwhile was plying the line which communicated with the escape valve and was letting out the gas with a rush. Down went the balloon. No more fireworks that day. The descent was made rapidly and successfully, and before long the ground was safely reached.

"It was just in time," said Lemoinne, in telling the story, "for the basket was on fire in several places. If we had had any difficulty in descending my concierge would have been waiting for me yet."—Youth's Companion.

Imitation Jewelry In Paris.

The manufacture of imitation jewelry in Paris dates from the reign of Louis XIV, the luxury of dress both for ladies and gentlemen at that epoch making imperative the wearing of an immense number of trinkets. The coat and dress buttons and the hat and shoe buckles manufactured in false diamonds during that reign and those of Louis XV and Louis XVI remain the most perfect specimens of that kind of trinket in existence. The fine finish of the settings and the brilliancy of the stones leave nothing to be desired, and very fortunate is the Parisian belle who has inherited from her ancestors any of these beautiful and artistic ornaments.

Modern imitation jewelry is of an infinite number of grades, beginning with the ordinary stage trinkets, in unmistakable glass and gilt brass, made only with a view to effect and glitter behind the footlights. Yet, though without any claims to deception as regards their true quality, they are often interesting as being accurate reproductions of antique or historic jewels. Such were the ornaments designed and executed for Mme Bernhardt's impersonation of "Theodora," and of like quality are many of the ornaments manufactured for the wardrobe department of the grand opera.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Two Tunes by One Orchestra.

"I have seen or heard a number of interesting things since I came to New York," said a visitor, "and one of the things that pleased me was the music of a band that was marching in a procession and playing two tunes at once, the 'Star Spangled Banner' and 'Yankee Doodle.' The musicians playing 'Yankee Doodle' played just twice as fast as those playing the 'Star Spangled Banner,' so of course the marching time was perfect. A few days later I heard an orchestra in a theater do the same thing. All the musicians on one side of the leader played the 'Star Spangled Banner;' all the men on the other side played 'Yankee Doodle.' I am obliged to say that it struck me as being rather amusing, and I wanted to laugh at it, but I didn't. I looked right ahead, just as though I were accustomed to hearing theater orchestras play two or more tunes at once every day. But pretty soon I saw that some of the city people seemed to think that this was rather funny, and when they laughed I gave myself the pleasure of laughing too."—New York Sun.

Providing For the Future.

It is recorded of a rich old English farmer that, in giving instructions for his will, he directed that a legacy of £100 be given to his wife. Being informed that some distinction was usually made in case the widow married again he doubled the sum, and when told that this was quite contrary to custom he said with heartfelt sympathy for his possible successor, "Aye, but him as gets her'll deserve it."—San Francisco Argonaut.

AMATEUR ARTISTS.

THE PERSONS WHO WORK FOR PLEASURE AND NOTORIETY.

The Reign of the Amateur and How It Is Affecting the Various Professions In Which Mankind Is Trying to Earn a Living—A Metropolitan View.

The other day a company of American artists seated at the cheap but filling refection of Gruyere cheese and the beer of the country amused itself by discussing the serious want of patronage from which American art is just now suffering.

"I tell you," cried a young painter of great talent, "that the professional artist in this country is worse off than ever. There was a time some 15 or 20 years ago when his prospects looked bright and his outlook cheerful. But today he wastes all his time and energy on pot boiling, and even his pot boilers have to go at a sacrifice."

"There are too many of us," quoth one of his hearers. "The supply exceeds the demand, and we are simply paying, as in other walks of life, for the crime of overproduction."

"There are not too many of us," related the first speaker. "It's the infernal amateurs who are doing work almost as good as ours, and who are underselling us. It is the reign of the amateurs which has taken all the gilt off the gingerbread of the professional."

True, absolutely true, in almost every highway and byway of modern industry. The amateur is rapidly displacing the professional to his own slight—sometimes imperceptible benefit, and always to the other's injury. When one stops to consider this truism, one is fairly stunned by the magnitude and quantity of the illustrations which proveit. Take, for instance, the field to which the discussion above quoted has relation. The woods are full of amateur "artists." Hardly a family now exists but has an "artistic" son or daughter who necessarily babbles the jargon of the craft and spoils more canvas and wastes more paint in a week than most professional artists can afford in a year.

Not only do their execrable compositions degrade the standard of art, they do worse and more material harm by making values ridiculously cheap. Glad to get anything at all—half the cost sometimes of the material they use. The amateur painters of New York alone constitute unconsciously a guild which practically starves out the profession. And the worst of it is that the amateur's work is nothing like as conspicuously bad in all instances as it used to be. Sketchy and thin as the best of it may be, it certainly complies with the elementary rules of art, and he must indeed be a bold critic who, comparing it with the efforts of trained and expert professionals, should unhesitatingly pronounce it without exception rot and rubbish.

The amateur actor and the amateur actress have inflicted incalculable injury on what calls itself specifically the profession. It is an open secret, for example, that the once profitable city of Brooklyn has been made a positively "bad show town," as the phrase goes, by the number and audacity of its amateurs. During the season they undertake performances of the severest professional character with a prodigality of energy and expenditure almost amounting to profligate extravagance which utterly eclipses the productions of the regular theaters. In fact, the Brooklyn amateurs have all but destroyed the professional drama in that city.

Again, the concert rooms of New York fairly swarm with unpaid vocalists who acquit themselves in many instances quite as well as their professional sisters and brothers, and there are already so many amateur instrumentalists in this city eager to play in public who have no urgent pecuniary need to do so that it is doubtful if the Musical Protective union dare order another general strike here, so enormous would be the rush of fairly competent amateur fiddlers and others to take the places of the strikers.

Rising higher in the social world, we find howling swells like Suffern Tailer basing their reputations entirely on their knack of driving four-in-hands en amateur, so that the amateur coachman has become really an important public character and worthy of incessant notice.

The amateur wing shot is another social lion. Compared with the feats of the plain, uncelebrated every day pot hunters of Maryland and Pennsylvania, the performances afield of George Work and Edgar Murphy and De Forrest Manrice and the rest of them seem positively puerile. But none the less are these latter knights of the trigger exalted and extolled by the newspapers as marvels of skill and vaunted among the possessions of which we ought all to be enthusiastically proud. For are they not amateurs?

At the present rate of development one cannot be certain of the ultimate limit of amateur expansion. We shall, beyond doubt, have amateur surgeons, amateur lawyers, amateur journalists, amateur barbers, amateur tailors, amateur plumbers, amateur icemen, even amateur day laborers, perhaps. Our streets will be patrolled by amateur policemen, our conflagrations extinguished by amateur firemen. And who can tell when the amateur will have so profoundly exhausted the honest occupations that he will have to become an amateur criminal?

Then shall we have our amateur burglars, our amateur pickpockets, our amateur highwaymen, our amateur murderers. The amateur shoplifter is already a formidable extant fact. What on earth is there in our social code to make the amateur homicide and the amateur river pirate impossible?

Yes, i' faith, this is the reign of the amateur with a vengeance.—Archibald Gordon in New York Recorder.

The Trouble With the Water.

Mistress—What makes your potatoes so soggy?

New Cook—Please, mum, the water they was boiled in was very wet.—New York Weekly.

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS AND
LEVI STRAUSS & CO'S
SPRING BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

W. J. HOSKINS, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM GREEN and B. F. LEWIS, Defendants.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in the office of the Clerk of said Inyo county.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Green and B. F. Lewis, Defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment of this Court for the foreclosure of a certain mortgage described in said complaint and executed by the said William Green on the 31st day of May, 1890, to secure the payment of a certain Promissory Note dated May 31st 1890, made by the said William Green for the sum of $800.00, bearing interest at the rate of one and one-fourth per cent. per month, payable semi-annually; and if not paid when it becomes due, to be added to the principal and bear interest at like rate, as described in said complaint on file herein, which complaint alleges that no part of the principal or interest therein has been paid; that the premises conveyed by said mortgage may be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said promissory note and interest thereon, and the payment of 15 per cent. of the amount found due the plaintiff as attorney's fees, and for costs of this action; and in case such proceeds are insufficient to pay the same, that judgment be docketed against said William Green, defendant herein, for the balance remaining due, and also that the said defendants, and all persons claiming by, through or under them, or either of them, may be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, claim, lien, equity of redemption, and interest in and to said mortgaged premises, and for other and further relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Witness my hand and the Seal of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 29th day of June, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
J. D. LEWIS, Attorney for Plaintiff.

ORDER OF NOTICE TO CREDITORS ON APPLICATION FOR DISCHARGE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of J. V. SKINNER, an insolvent debtor.

J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor, having applied to this Court for a discharge from his debts,

It is hereby ordered, that the Clerk of this Court give notice to all creditors who have proved their debts to appear before this Court at the Court-Room thereof, on the 19th day of August, 1893, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., and show cause, if any they have, why the said J. V. Skinner should not be discharged from all his debts, in accordance with the statutes in such cases made and provided.

It is further ordered, that notice of said application be given to the Creditor by mail, and by publication once a week for four weeks in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper published in said Inyo County.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated July 15, 1893.
P. H. MACK, Attorney for Insolvent.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday ..... January 28th
" ..... February 25th
" ..... March 25th
" ..... April 29th
" ..... May 27th
" ..... June 24th
" ..... July 22d
" ..... August 26th
" ..... September 23d
" ..... October 21st
" ..... November 18th
" ..... December 16th

THOS. C. LOLANG, W. M.
B. RHINE, Sec.

BOOTS AND SHOES
MADE AND REPAIRED.
THE BEST MATERIAL.
FIRST-CLASS WORK
Repairs done Promptly.
Prices Reasonable.
A. J. DAVIS,
Independence.

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.

FRANK FITZGERALD.

Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

We have made arrangements with Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., publishers of "A Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," which will enable all our subscribers to obtain a copy of that valuable work free by sending their address (enclosing a two-cent stamp for mailing same) to DR. B. J. KENDALL CO., ENOSBURGH FALLS, VT. This book is now recognized as standard authority upon all diseases of the horse, as its phenomenal sale attests, over four million copies having been sold in the past ten years, a sale never before reached by any publication in the same period of time. We feel confident that our patrons will appreciate the work, and be glad to avail themselves of this opportunity of obtaining a valuable book.

It is necessary that you mention this paper in sending for the "Treatise." This offer will remain open for only a short time.

Scientific American Agency for
PATENTS
CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.
For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the
Scientific American
Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and
Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-Officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES. P. W. BENNETT.
BENNETT & FORBES,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the INDEPENDENT Building, Independence, Inyo county, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR
AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Office and residence at the Johnson place, Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Freight! Freight!
BISHOP & MOJAVE
Through Freight Line.
George Meads,
PROPRIETOR.
Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:
J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.
Special rates given on car load lots

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and locked.
All orders from any part of the country will promptly attended to, at the most reasonable rates. At the old stand "Mechanics Hall." Lone Pine.
FRED BURCKHARDT

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence, Cal.
THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.
THE BAR
Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.
JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.
$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.
It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer without cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.
Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.
For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address
ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL.
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.
Winter Apples..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes.....12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches.....10 cts
Dried Apples.....10 cts
Other varieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.
THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines,
Liquors,
& Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSFIELD, opposite the Southern Hotel.
Prompt and careful attention given and the easiest possible pain inflicted. Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select local List.
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce Street, New York

P. W. FORBES. P. H. MACK.
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY the 8th day of March, 1892, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South-east corner of the south-east quarter of North-east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 18-100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 8 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the county Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lot Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode situate lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispiteada Lode."

That certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the North west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12) and the South west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South six-eight and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence North-westerly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty-four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North East quarter and the South-east quarter, and the North-west quarter and the North-east quarter of the North-west quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-four and eleven-twentieth (44 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres; Together with ten shares of the capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney, at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER,
Executor of the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah deceased.

Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1893.

J. W. Murphy.
BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2 00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDIS
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES.
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumer should call and examine my stock and price before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 9 1884.
n476tf

$5000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, from home. Not at work for us. Reader, you may not make so much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from $5 to $10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages. In any part of America, you can commence at home, giving all your time or spare moments only to the work. All is new. Great pay ALWAYS for every worker. We start you, furnishing everything. EASILY, RAPIDLY learned. PARTICULARS FREE. Address at once, GEORGE STINSON & CO., PORTLAND, MAINE

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 11 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman ..... A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman ..... P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge ..... GEO. M. GILL
Sheriff ..... JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk ..... DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney ..... P. W. FORBES.
Assessor ..... P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer ..... W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner ..... H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed) ..... JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools ..... J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist ..... ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist ..... A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist ..... W. H. UHLMEYER.
4th Supervisor Dist ..... JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist .. FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

Rev. J. G. Smith will conduct praise service at Independence on Sunday at 7:30 p. m. Address by Mrs. L. L. Woodin.

At Lone Pine Mr. J. W. Thomas will conduct a service at 7:30 p. m.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

FRIDAY, August 4, 1893.

Louis Munzinger vs. John Albars—Filed complaint. Issued summons.

SATURDAY, August 5, 1893.

Estate of John Blair, deceased—Order for sale of personal property.

Estate of John William Meyer, deceased—Hearing petition for order of sale of real estate. Bennett & Forbes appear as attorneys for absent heirs. Hearing continued thirty days.

BORN.

SPRATT—At Big Pine, July 17, 1893, to Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Spratt, a daughter

Bar silver closed yesterday at 76.

Sky cloudy all day and weather threatening rain.

District Attorney Forbes went to Bishop on Thursday.

F. E. Densmore Esq. visited Lone Pine during the week.

Mrs. Dave Pittman is visiting with friends at Independence.

J. W. P. Laird Esq. came down from Bishop on Monday's train.

First quality grass fed steers are quoted in San Francisco at 5 @ 5½.

Fred Eaton and family expect to start for Los Angeles in a day or two.

Mrs. Thomas Williams of Big Pine visited Independence at the end of last week.

John Keegan got pulled over a scraper the other day and was badly bruised in the process.

Frank Fitzgerald is at Lone Pine. There are still a number of men employed at Modock.

The road through the Sierras to Sonora, from Bridgeport, is now open for travel and in fine condition.

H. P. Nelligan passed through town early in the week on his way home to Bishop from Lone Pine.

P. H. Mack visited Darwin during the week. He reports mining matters exceedingly quiet in that section.

The county Board of Education will meet at Independence on Monday, August 20 h at 10 o'clock a. m.

Supervisor Wilson was in town yesterday. He is doing his utmost to get roads in his district in good condition.

L. A. Auger visited this office early in the week in company with a fine watermelon. The watermelon remained on an extended visit.

The Register says that this week's issue will contain the speed programme. It's getting along about the time when horsemen are growing curious.

William Evans, an ex-convict, who was recently arrested near Jackson, Amador county, has confessed to the murder of Mike Tovey. He said he had no special intention in killing Tovey and stopped the stage with the sole purpose of robbery.

Mrs. Stanford has determined to sell the fast horses at the Palo Alto and Vina ranches. The number of horses of all kinds on those ranches is between 1,000 and 1,100 and it will be the greatest sale of fast horses that ever took place in America.

The Independence M. E. Church choir gave an excellent rendering of the Cantata, "The Ship of Life", on Tuesday evening last, the occasion being a farewell to Rev. H. J. Winsor, who has been minister in charge here for three years. After the cantata refreshments were served.

We confidently predict that the present Congress will pass legislation favorable to silver. Last Monday, the day Congress met, silver opened at 60½ and on Wednesday night the closing quotation was 75. The entire western world awaits definite action on the silver question with breathless interest.

T. B. Scovil was arrested yesterday on a complaint filed by John Wilson charging him with destroying the public highway. This is a State prison offense, and the preliminary examination was fixed for Tuesday next. The crime is punishable with incarceration in the State Prison for not exceeding five years.

Decrease In Business

D. A. Bender, General Freight & Passenger Agent of the Carson and Colorado railroad, recently appeared before the California State Board of Equalization. Among other statements Mr. Bender said that the income of his road for the past year had fallen to less than one-half of the average income of the past few years. They wish to effect such saving in their expenses as would enable them to run their road. If they could not effect a sufficient saving they would have to cease operating the road. He hoped the Board would take these circumstances into consideration. In 1892 the C. and C. company was assessed for 107 62 miles at the rate of $2,137.14 per mile, making a total of $230,000 in California. Mr. Bender also stated that the principal source of revenue of the company consisted of freight hauled into Inyo county and soda hauled out.

Birthday Social.

The pleasantest social event that has taken place here for a long time occurred at the residence of A. N. Bell at Camp Independence on Friday evening last, the occasion being the eighteenth birthday of the youngest daughter, Miss Margie Bell. The gardens surrounding the place were illuminated with Chinese lanterns and the sylvan scene presented a beautiful appearance. Mrs. E. A. Gifford and daughter, Miss Grace Gifford, of Bishop, assisted the Misses Bell in receiving. Dancing was indulged in for a couple of hours, when the guests were invited to the dining room and partook of an excellent supper. There was a profusion of good things, and the warm Southern hospitality of Mr. Bell and his family left nothing to be desired. The many friends of Miss Margie unite in wishing her "many happy returns."

A Runaway

Jerry Mairs met with a very severe and painful accident on Wednesday. While on his way to the station with the stage one of his horses stumbled and fell, breaking the neckyoke, and the other horse pulled the vehicle onto the struggling animal. Jerry jumped out, thinking to catch the horses by the head, when the fallen one got up and both started to run. Jerry was dragged quite a distance and his face badly cut and bruised. His right leg is severely injured, but fortunately no bones were broken. The team ran to the Lawrence place crossing two narrow bridges and were stopped with no further damage than a broken pole. A. D. Gilbert and little Howard Mairs were in the stage at the time of the accident but escaped without injury.

Meteorological Summary.

Following is the report of the Weather Bureau Station at Keeler for the month of July, 1893.

Mean barometer 29 79
Highest barometer 29 99
Lowest barometer 29 62
Mean temperature 80 0
Highest temperature, 18th 101 0
Lowest temperature, 11th 59 0
Greatest daily range temp'ture, 32, 17th.
Least daily range temperature, 9°, 21st.
Prevailing direction of wind, S. W.
Total movement of wind, 1849 miles.
Extreme velocity of wind, direction and date, 37 miles E. on 19 h.
Total precipitation, 0.41 inches.
Number of days on which .01 inch or more of precipitation fell, 2.
Number of clear days 24
Partly cloudy days 3
Cloudy days 4

H. E. WILKINSON, Observer,
Weather Bureau.

Bronco Gets There.

Bronco has proved himself to be a good race-horse. At the meeting of the Agricultural Fair at Oakland last week he won three good races, at three-quarters of a mile, mile and a quarter and mile and a half. He ran against the best horses in the State and proved himself a far better animal than any of them. In his last race he defeated a field of eleven starters including Sir Reel, Raindrop, Canny Scott and others with ridiculous ease, running the mile and a half in 2.38. His great forte is his staying ability, and he always finishes running. This will be good news to the owners of a number of good colts he sired while here.

Please Settle Up.

All parties indebted to the undersigned are requested to settle on or before August 25th next. All accounts then unpaid will be placed in the hands of an attorney for collection.

L. LASKY,
Lone Pine.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Regular semi-annual meeting of the Board of Education of Inyo County, will be held in Independence on Monday the 21st day of August, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Examinations will commence on Tuesday the 22nd at 9 a. m.

Applications for certificates, on credentials or examination, will file their application at least one day prior to the meeting.

J. H. SHANNON,
Sec. Board of Ed.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE JUSTICE'S COURT OF THIRD Township in the County of Inyo, State of California.

L. WOOD, Plaintiff, vs. JESUS ENCENAS, Defendant.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Jesus Encenas, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Justice's Court of Third Township, County of Inyo State of California, and to answer before the Justice at his office in said Township, the complaint filed therein, within five days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within the Township in which this action is brought; or, if served out of said Township, but within said County, within ten days; or, within twenty days if served elsewhere.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you for the sum of $225.85 alleged to be due and owing from defendant to plaintiff upon an account stated between plaintiff and defendant, at Independence, Inyo County, California, on the 12th day of June, 1892, which sum of $225 85 defendant agreed to pay to plaintiff. For costs of suit, as more fully appears by the complaint on file herein, to which you are referred.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to so appear and answer said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of $225 85 and costs of suit.

Make legal service and due return hereof.

Given under my hand this 2nd day of August 1893.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND,
Justice of the Peace of said Township.

F. E. DENSMORE, Attorney for Plaintiff.

MISCELLANEOUS.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 49.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, Do Ordain As Follows:

SECTION 1. Section 7 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et seq., and was amended by Ordinance No. 47, by the said Board of Supervisors, on the 5th day of April, 1893, which said amending Ordinance is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 130 et seq., is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 7. Every person who at a fixed place of business sells any malt or fermented liquors, wines or distilled liquors, whether on commission or otherwise (except vitacultural productions when sold by the producers thereof, and fermented or malt liquors when sold by the manufacturer thereof, on the premises on which the same shall be manufactured), must obtain from the Tax-Collector, and for each branch of said business, a license, and must pay quarterly therefor the sum of Forty Dollars. And every such manufacturer of any malt or fermented liquors, who sells the same on the premises on which such liquors may or shall be manufactured must obtain from the Tax-Collector, for such business, a license, and must pay quarterly therefor the sum of Twenty Dollars.

SECTION 2. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after twenty-five (25) days from its passage.

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same, in the "Inyo Independent," a newspaper printed and published in the said County of Inyo, at least two [2] weeks; said publication to be made said time and before the expiration of said twenty-five [25] days.

R. LOVE,
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

(SEAL)

Attest: D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 49 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the Eleventh day of July, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Supervisors Frank Fitzgerald, A. C. Freeman, John Wilson, W. H. Uhlmeyer, R. Love.

Noes: None.

R. LOVE,
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

(SEAL)

Attest: D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

[Endorsed.]

ORDINANCE NO. 49.

Adopted July 11, 1893.

D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

Recorded July 11, 1893, in Book "E" of Ordinances, at pages 103 et seq.

D. J. HESSION,
County Recorder.

By J. E. PARKER,
Deputy.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNDERSIGNED, Administrator of the estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of P. W. Forbes, in the Court House, at the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the said County of Inyo, State of California.

EDWARD JOHN REYNOLDS,
Administrator of the estate of Fredrick J. Reynolds, deceased.

Dated at Independence, Cal. June 13th, 1893.

P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Administrator.
jn16 5t

JOHN B. CLARKE,
Successor to John Clarke,
—PROPRIETOR—
John Clarke's Bishop Stables,
BISHOP, CAL.

First-class Turnouts of Every Kind.
Fine Horses and Carriages.
Horses Boarded for any Time,
Best of Care and Attention

The Newest Style
OF
Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies' Wear, etc., etc
AT
L. WOOD
CASH STORE
A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.
Fresh Produce, and Grain
Flour, etc., constantly
on hand.
CANDIES,
PEANUTS
WALNUTS,
TOYS!
THE CASH STORE
Is Where You Get
WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" WARE.

SEVENTH
ANNUAL FAIR,
Agricultural District No. 18.
BISHOP, INYO CO., CAL.
Septembes 19 to 22, 1893.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS, WATCHES.
Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neihboring counties is respectfully invited to the
LARGEST AND BEST STOCK
of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finer Rings, Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the est quality.
PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.
All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.
Address orders and packaes to
HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,
0-m RENO, NEVADA.

INDEPENDENCE
SHAVING PARLOR.
J. TUCKER, Prop'r.
HAIR CUTTING
IN ANY STYLE.
SHAMPOOING
AND BATHS.
Adjoining Irwin's Old Corner Saloon.

DR. J. S. MCQUEEN,
DENTIST.
Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery.
All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.
Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.
Bee Keeper.
Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.
KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.
STOCKTON, CAL., Dec. 19th, '92.
DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.
Gentlemen:—Having read one of your Treatise on the Horse and seeing the Spavin Cure advertised, I thought I would try it. I had one horse with a prominent Spavin of 12 months standing. I removed it with ⅓ bottle. I tied up one fore foot on same side the spavin was and compelling the horse to rest on lame leg while I took a surcingle and drew it across the hock or spavin until the hock or spavin got very warm with the friction, then putting on Spavin Cure. I had a mare that had a running from her nose for 12 or 14 months. I rubbed the Spavin Cure from her eyes down to nostrils, then from back of jaw bone down under the throat for a week. I have not seen any discharge for two months.
Yours truly, HUGH McDADE.
Price $1.00 per bottle.
DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

A. W. Eibeshutz
Independence, Cal.
—DEALER IN—
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE
Agent for
Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:
Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.
BIG PINE · CAL.
New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates
Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.
Special attention given to the wants of every guest.
Thos. Williams,
Proprietor.

BIG HOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.
Harness Maker.
Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.
O. H. Hill, Prop'r.
A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK
BREWERY,
L. MUNZINGER & CO.,
Proprietors.
All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for outdoor parties.
Customers supplied on all points
Of the C. & C. Railroad.
Send orders to
L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,
Horseshoeing, General Iron
—AND—
WAGON WORK.
PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP
Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
W. F. MATLACK ..... PROP'R.
Horseshoeing ..... $2 00 for Cash
For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

INDEPENDENCE
MEAT MARKET,
J. C. ROEPER, Prop.
Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including Beef,
Mutton,
Pork,
Sausage.
A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every ort made to give satisfaction to patrons.
jl9-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,
BIG PINE INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE,
GROCERIES
MINERS
Supplies
PROVISIONS,
&c., &c., &c.
A. K. EUGLEY,
Big Pine, Cal.

BELL'S Flouring Mills
A. N. BELL, Prop.
TRY BELL'S
EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.
Having added Patent Rolls and other improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully
Equal to the Best
Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.
Independence, Cal. A. N. BELL,

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.
R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.
D. A. BENDER,
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1	To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Mound House	10.05 a. m	5:30 p. m.
Dayton	10.45 a. m.	4:50 p. m.
Wabuska	12:00 p. m	2:50 p. m.
Hawthorne	4 05 p. m	10:45 a. m.
Luning	5:10 p. m.	9:30 a. m.
Sodа Springs	6:40 p. m.	8:40 a. m.
Believue	7:50 p. m.	7:20 a. m.
Candelaria	Ar. 8:30 p. m	Lv. 6:45 a. m.
	No. 3.	No.
	Leave—	Arrives—
Belleville	7 50 a. m	5:35 a. m.
Benton	11: 0 a. m	1:45 p. m.
Bishop Creek	1:20 p. m.	11:10 p. m.
Alvord	2 05 p. m	10:10 p. m.
Independence	3:40 p. m.	8:40 p. m.
Lone Pine	4: 0 p. m.	7:45 p. m.
Keeler	Ar. 6:20 p. m.	Lv. 7:00 p. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (26 miles); Bodie (38 miles); Hoaxdy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's tri weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville, Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stage for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Creek, Montezuma Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

AT KEELER with stages from Cerro Gordo (3 miles), Darwin (24 miles), and Mojave (110 miles)

NORMAN HOUSE,
Independence, - Cal
New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.
Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.
O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.
Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables patron can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and
Livery Accommodations
in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.
O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor

Palace Saloon.
MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.
—THE BAR—
Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of
WINES,
LIQUORS,
& CIGARS
The most careful attention given to the the amusement and comfort of patrons.
A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!
Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon.
sept-12 td

Inyo
Stage Company.
REGULAR LINE
—FROM—
Mojave To Keeler.
FINE COACH
FAST STOCK.
The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful
Redrock Canyon
And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.
Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m
Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.
W. K. MILLER,
Propr.

A Matter of Health

IT costs more to make Royal Baking Powder than any other, because its ingredients are more highly refined and expensive. But the Royal is correspondingly purer and higher in leavening strength, and of greater money value to the consumer. The difference in cost of Royal over the best of the others does not equal the difference in leavening strength, nor make good the inferior work of the cheaper powders, nor remove the impurities which such powders leave in the food.

Where the finest food is required, the Royal Baking Powder only can be used.

Where the question of health is considered, no baking powder but Royal can be used with safety. All others are shown by official analyses to contain lime, ammonia or alum.

THE LOVE CHASE.

Though oft I pass her on the street,
I seldom seem to catch her eye;
She rarely lets our glances meet,
Although she knows I'm passing by.
But though to me she does not speak,
Nor give a look my heart to cheer,
The furtive blush upon her cheek
Tells me she knows that I am near.

'Tis true she's full of girlish art,
A trait that's common to her sex,
But she is no coquette at heart,
Though oft her tricks my mind perplex.
I know she's partial to the rose—
I've sent her some, both red and yellow—
Yet out upon the street she goes
With violets from some other fellow.

And still this love chase I pursue,
'Twixt hope and fear continue wooing,
One day o'erjoyed, the next so blue
I scarcely know what I am doing.
But one thought I take comfort in,
And gloomy doubt gives place to rapture—
The harder she may be to win
The dearer yet will be the capture.

—E. C. Walcot in Soundings.

Invalids and Gambling.

Too many invalids are given to gambling for the purpose of amusement or pastime. Those who visit Florida, Colorado or California on account of climate, who leave home, friends and business on account of their health, who have anxious friends, or probably some relatives, who are hoping for all or some benefit from the change, cannot defeat the object of their trip in any more certain way than by a resort to gaming. No food, stimulant or rest can replace the lost nervous energy expended in this pastime. It tells on the cool and imperturbable as well as on the nervous and easily upset.

We have often seen pulmonary invalids coming west for climatic benefit who slept all morning with closed windows and tightly drawn blinds that, by the exclusion of sounds and light, they might make up during the day for the rest lost during the night—a night often in a close room with burning gas lamps, and, as is generally the case, so small that what fresh air it may contain would hardly suffice for one man. The deadly effects of these conditions, added to the nervous injury incident to gambling, are sufficient to wreck a previously well and hearty constitution. An invalid may be said to about destroy what little chance he may have by following gambling for pastime.—National Popular Review.

Infected Hotels.

A well known physician recently published an account of the experience of a patient at a so called health resort. Here is a part of the story:

"The patient in question was suffering only from overwork; his family history was clear, and there was no tuberculosis to be traced in his immediate kin or among his ancestors. He went to a health resort at a high altitude to recuperate. He boarded at a hotel in which numerous consumptives were coughing and expectorating; four months afterward he developed tuberculosis and now has a typical case of pulmonary phthisis. The unfortunate condition of these resorts is that there is, as a rule, no system of disinfection of the rooms, verandas, hallways, etc.

"The patients are allowed in most hotels to expectorate where they choose, without restriction. The result is that germs are scattered broadcast in the buildings and outside of the grounds. They become dry and are scattered in the air and inhaled by those exposed. Thus a health resort which in the beginning may have been very effective in combatting consumption becomes after a time a veritable center of infection."

A Conflict of Authority.

The late Lord Chief Justice Cockburn was an inveterate enemy to drafts, and on the opening day of the Surrey assize several years ago gave orders that all the windows should be closed. Upon arriving at the court the following morning he was surprised to find that this injunction had been neglected, and upon inquiring was informed that the high sheriff was the culprit. Addressing Mr. Evelyn, the high sheriff, he inquired the reason. "As the high sheriff, your lordship," replied Mr. Evelyn, "I consider it to be my duty to superintend the ventilation of this court, and I have therefore directed that the windows shall not be closed." "As lord chief justice I consider it to be my duty, sir," thundered Cockburn, "to fine you £500 for disobedience." And the money was paid too.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Women Lawyers In Canada.

The government of Ontario has appointed a committee to prepare rules for the admission of women to the bar.

THE CHERRY BOUGH.

In a new poet's and a new friend's honor
Forth from the scorned town and her gold getting Come men with lutes and bowls, and find a welcome
Here in my garden.

Find bowers and deep shade and windy grasses,
And by the south wall, wet and forward jutting,
One early branch fire-tipped with Roman cherries.
Oh, naught is absent.

Oh, naught but you, kind head that far in prison
Sunk on a weary arm, feels no god's pity
Stroking and sighing where the kingly laurels
Were once so plenty.

Nor dreams on strength of my fair tree that knew you,
How I from revels and strange faces turning
Lean most today when most my heart is laden
With your rich verses!

If long ago, in other gentler weather
Ere wrath and exile were, you lay beneath it,
(Your symbol then, your innocent wild brother, Glad with your gladness)

What has befallen in the world of wonder
That still it puts forth bubbles of sweet color,
And you, and you that burst our eyes with beauty,
Are sapped and rotten?

Alas! When my young guests have done with singing,
I break it, leaf and fruit, my garden's glory,
And hold it high among them, and say after
"Oh, my poor Ovid!

"Years pass, and loves pass, too; and yet remember
For the clear time when we were boys together
These tears at home are shed; and with you also
This bough is dying."

—Louise Imogen Guiney in Youth's Companion.

Escapades of Mazeppa.

Historically, Mazeppa was hetman of the Cossacks. He was born of a noble Polish family in Podolia, and became a page in the court of Jan Casmir, king of Poland. While in this capacity he intrigued with Theresia, the young wife of a Podonian count, who discovered the amour and had the young page lashed to a wild horse and turned adrift. The horse rushed in mad fury and dropped down dead in the Ukraine, where Mazeppa was released by a Cossack family, who nursed him carefully in their own hut. In time he became secretary to the hetman, and at the death of the prince was appointed his successor.

Peter I much admired his energy of character and created him prince of the Ukraine, but in the wars with Sweden Mazeppa deserted to Charles XII, and fought against Russia at the battle of Pultowa. After the loss of this battle Mazeppa fled to Valentia and then to Bender. Some say he died a natural death, and others that he was put to death for treason by the czar. Lord Byron makes Mazeppa tell his tale to Charles after the battle of Pultowa.—Brooklyn Eagle.

One Way to Sell Cigars.

A South Illinois street druggist man worked a novel cigar selling scheme a few weeks ago in the following fashion. He found a stray nickel on the floor of his store one morning and resolved to post this notice on the window of his store:

"A sum of money found on Tuesday last in this establishment. The owner will receive same within upon describing the money."

This scheme worked like a charm. Hundreds of citizens came in daily for over a week, while the notice was left on the window, describing their losses and bewailing their misfortune. Invariably every applicant for the lost money bought a cigar. Some were satisfied with five cent straight whiffs, but the great majority, anxious to impress the drug man favorably toward their claims, invested in two for a quarter. So great was the rush that the fortunate druggist had to order a fresh consignment of choice brands. None of the applicants applied for the nickel. All the claims ran up into the hundreds of dollars, one man stating he missed his bank book with $1,500.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

He Was No Vegetarian.

Funny stories are told by those connected with the vegetarian dining places of the surprise expressed by some strangers at the absence of fish, flesh and fowl from the bill of fare. One bucolic would be diner once asked a waitress for some beef. She replied that they had none.

"Mutton?"

"No!"

"Ham?"

"No; they did not provide any meat," she said.

Then the hungry man rose, glared wrathfully on the tittering diners and exclaimed with supreme scorn: "An you call this place a restorant! Why, it ain't a dinin room—no, nor a coffee tavern!" After which he stalked out.—London Tit-Bits.

Horses, Mules, Etc., in Missouri.

Missouri, according to the census, has upon her farms 936,191 horses. There are only three other states which have more. They are, Illinois first, Iowa second and Texas third. The foals of the preceding year in Missouri were 113,914 horses, 34,553 mules and 946 asses. In mules and asses Missouri beats the world. She has on her farms 245,102 mules by the census count, and 6,441 asses. No other state in the Union comes anywhere near Missouri in mules save Texas. As for the jacks, Missouri has one-sixth of all there are in the country.—Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Gigantic Cherry Tree.

There is an Ohio Beauty cherry tree in the old Bassford orchard in Brown's Valley, Cal., which bears from 11,000 to 15,000 pounds of fruit per year. The tree is so large that each year a big scaffolding has to be built around it so that the cherries can be picked.—Fruit Grower.

A POET'S WORKSHOP.

The Immortal Browning Wrote His Last Effusions in a Kitchen.

"What a curious place to select!" was my first thought as I stood at the door of the queer old house. I walked up twelve or fifteen hard stone steps, grasping the banister to guide myself in the dark, and was soon warmly welcomed by Signora Nina Tabacchi as, passing through the kitchen, I was ushered into the sitting room. "Scrupulously clean and neat," was my next impression, but how plain! This cradle of "Asolando" was only a piece of the kitchen partitioned off for back parlor purposes, a glass door and window separating the two.

The thin cotton curtain might possibly screen the mysteries of culinary processes from the poet's eye, but his ear must have been caught by occasional sounds of hacking and chopping, and certainly no kettle could have boiled, no wood could crackle or incense arise from that adjacent hearth without making itself distinctly noticeable. Such was his study and his drawing room, a multum in parvo, about twelve feet square.

The furniture is of the good old lodgings type—that is, as regards the style only, for Signora Tabacchi would not tolerate a flaw, a spot or a tarnish, as do some of the older school of landladies. There is a large round pedestal table with a red cloth table cover, inoffensive in its pattern; one half was devoted to his papers; on the other luncheon was served for his sister and himself. A full length sofa, uncompromisingly hard, takes up the greater part of one wall; a kind of sideboard stands opposite.

On the chiffonier, between the two windows, rests the looking glass, and half a dozen mahogany chairs, cane bottomed and severe backed, but of good old design, complete the arrangements. On the flesh colored walls hang a series of prints, illustrating events in the history of Venice. Doges are disporting themselves in most conventional attitudes, the vanquished are kneeling before the victors, and one has a general impression that history involves a great amount of bowing and scraping.—Felix Moscheles in Scribner's.

Making Spectacle Lenses.

The bit of glass to be formed into a lens is fastened by means of pitch to a small block of hard rubber so that it may be more readily handled. It is ground by being pressed against a rapidly revolving metal tool, whose curvature is equal and opposite to that desired in the lens. This is known as the "rough tool" and is made of cast iron. It is mounted on a vertical spindle, and is kept moistened with emery and water. Several grades of emery are used in succession, changing from coarse to fine as the grinding proceeds. As a result of this process the glass has a rough surface and is no longer transparent. It is now transferred to the "fine tool." This is made of brass and has its surface as true as possible. It is compared from time to time with a standard curve in order to insure accuracy.

In this second grinding the abrading material is rouge (carefully calcined sulphate of iron). Finally, the lens is polished by being pressed against a piece of cloth powdered with rouge and fastened to the rotating tool. The glass is now loosened from its block, turned over, and the reverse side of the lens ground. When this has been accomplished the lens must be cut down to the proper shape for mounting in the spectacle frame. It is placed on a leather cushion and held firmly in position by a rubber tipped arm while a diamond glass cutter passing around an oval guide traces a similar oval on the glass below.

The superfluous glass outside the oval is removed by steel pincers, the rough edges are ground smooth on Scotch wheels and the lens is ready for mounting. The glasses for small telescopes, microscopes, burning glasses and the like are ground in the same fashion.—Prof. C. H. Henderson in Popular Science Monthly.

Hamlin's First Meeting with Lincoln.

Hannibal Hamlin never met Abraham Lincoln until the day after their nominations in May, 1860. The introduction took place in the old Tremont House in Chicago, and from the beginning the two candidates seemed mutually prepossessed with each other, a feeling which developed afterward into a profound friendship.

Mr. Hamlin used to tell with a great deal of glee the manner of receiving the news of his nomination.

He was sitting in one of the rooms of the old Tremont playing euchre with a party of politicians. Suddenly the noise of many feet was heard in the corridor without. Such events were not unusual in a hotel filled with delegates, so the game was not interrupted. But just as a deal had been finished and the trump turned, Schuyler Colfax burst into the room, without stopping to rap at the door, and announced: "Come, come, Hamlin, this is no place for you. You're nominated for vice president and must come over and make a speech."

"So I went over to the hall and made them a little talk," Mr. Hamlin used to add pathetically; "but it spoiled the very best lone hand I ever held."—Chicago Herald.

Beating a Drummer.

Jasper Hedge had a great reputation for being careful in his statements, and was anxious to preserve it. He had a dog, a homely black and brown creature of no great intelligence, to whom he was much attached. One day this dog strayed away from home, and Jasper, who never had any special business on hand to prevent his following his inclinations, presently strolled out in search of his missing comrade.

When he reached the village store he saw, seated on the steps in a contemplative attitude, a "drummer" who had evidently made up his mind to study nature while waiting for the storekeeper's decision as to the respective merits of different samples.

"Young man," drawled Jasper, coming to a halt, "hev you seen anythin of a dog passin by here, say on haour er an haour'n a half, er mebbe two haours ago, lopin along at the rate of a mile er a mile'n a half, er mebbe two miles an haour?"

"Yes, I did see a dog go by," replied the drummer, with evident amusement.

"Wa-al, naow," said Jasper, with some anxiety, resting one foot on the lowest step, "could you jess' bring yer mind to the pertick'lers abaout him?"

"Let me see," said the young man, airily flicking specks of dirt off the steps with his cane; "he passed here an hour or an hour and a half or two hours ago, going at the rate of a mile or a mile and a half or two miles an hour, and he had a spot on his left side about as big as a dollar or a dollar and a half or two dollars."

As the speaker looked up to see if his witticism was appreciated he noticed a somewhat unpleasant expression on Jasper's face, and also saw a large and hungry looking dog "lopin" rapidly toward him.

"You're powerful smart spoken, stranger," drawled Jasper, "an I ain't seen all there is in the world yit, I calc'late, but I think my dog ken give yer my notion of spots of the size you made mention of, right on the legs of them spicketty-span pantaloons o' yourn, ef you'd hanker ter hev him! But laws," he added, in a tone of sublime contempt, "me an him ain't really got time ter bother with ye; come along, Taowse!" and drawing off the dog, who looked as if he were being deprived of his rights, Jasper sauntered away.—Youth's Companion.

Tyrwhitt, in his edition of Chaucer, says that in Chaucer's time the use of surnames was probably not fully established among the lower class of people, whereupon a later editor remarks that even now, in the Nineteenth century, such names are not fully established in some parts of England.

GENERAL M'CLELLAN'S CHILDREN.

A Son In New York Politics and a Daughter Soon to Marry.

Thirty years have passed since General George B. McClellan took leave of the Army of the Potomac and nearly eight since he breathed his last, so it seems like a resurrection to see the same name again prominent in New York. Colonel George B. McClellan is president of New York's board of alderman, and so successful in that office that predictions abound that he is very much a coming man in New York politics. At the same time it is announced that his sister May is soon to marry the secretary of the French legation at Washington.

G. B. M'CLELLAN. MAY M'CLELLAN.

George B. McClellan, Jr., was born in Dresden, where his parents were visiting, Nov. 23, 1865, and is therefore but 27 years old. Three years later the family returned to New Jersey, and in due time the lad finished his preliminary education at Trenton and was eager to enter West Point. For reasons which he never would give, General McClellan resolutely opposed this wish, and so young George, after three years at the military school at Sing Sing, took the course at Princeton and was graduated with honors in 1886. His father was eager for him to become an engineer, but the son had no taste for it and decided on journalism.

After a tour in Europe with his mother and sister, he went to work on a New York daily paper at the very lowest wages paid and toiled on in obscurity for some years. In so doing, however, he gained valuable political acquaintances and in due time was made treasurer of the Brooklyn bridge. There he remained for three years and was then elected president of the board of aldermen. He is the youngest man who ever held the place, received the biggest vote (175,587) ever cast for one man in New York city and had the largest plurality (72,210) of any successful candidate there. The name of course had something to do with it, but Colonel McClellan is able to maintain his upward pace.

On their return from Europe last December Mrs. McClellan and her daughter May had for a fellow passenger M. Paul Desprez, first secretary and counselor of the French legation at Washington. The result of a close association on ship is that they are soon to be married in Paris. The young lady was her father's idol, and he superintended all her studies. She is a tall and fine looking blond, an accomplished linguist and musician. M. Desprez is of a very old French family. They will return to Washington soon after marriage.

Waited on the Queen For Forty Years.

From England comes an item which may interest those who are curious about court customs. The dowager Duchess of Athole, who has been a lady in waiting to the queen for nearly 40 years, and who was mistress of the robes in Lord Derby's first administration, is acting mistress of the robes during the months of February, March and April. The duties of the office will be undertaken by the dowager Duchess of Roxburghe during May, June and July. The mistress of the robes attends the queen at all court and state functions and is expected to be present at the drawing rooms, the state balls and the state concerts. The dowager Duchess of Roxburghe has been a lady in waiting on the queen for more than 30 years, and in length of service she comes second only to the dowager Duchess of Athole, the third place being filled by the dowager Lady Churchill.

He Travels In a Box.

Herman Zeitung, the Austrian tailor who created a sensation a couple of years ago by having himself nailed in a box and shipped from Vienna to Paris, is on his peculiar travels once more. He is now in Paris again, where he had himself shipped from St. Petersburg recently on his way to the World's fair. Since his first visit to Paris Zeitung has visited all the capitals of Europe in his peculiar fashion, traveling at one time in a barrel, then in a bale of hay, next in a trunk and finally in a washing machine.

In St. Petersburg he had a narrow escape from being sent to Siberia. The police mistook him for a dangerous anarchist, and it was only by the intervention of the Austrian consul that he was at last released. His experience does not seem to have frightened him much, however, for on his release some one suggested that he ought to go to Chicago to the World's fair, and he immediately had himself boxed up and expressed to Paris, whence he expects to reach the seacoast in some way or other and there secure transportation to this side of the Atlantic.

HERMAN ZEITUNG BOUND FOR CHICAGO.

Zeitung, who is said to be a harmless crank, is a good natured, jolly looking little man about 30 years old. Crank or not, he made quite a bit of money out of his first trip to Paris, where he was the sensation of the hour, Parisian curiosity always "catching on" to anything out of the ordinary and paying liberally for its entertainment. He is not such a favorite on this trip, some of the papers even referring to him as a "peripatetic nuisance," but as he expects to be in Chicago soon it is doubtful if the abuse disturbs his very remarkable equanimity.

Everybody in this country sleeps in hammocks, or, as they call them, redes. In each house will probably be found one draped with a canopy of lace or mosquito netting and dressed, as the ladies say, with sham pillows, creating the impression that it is more for ornament than for use. If there be a dozen in a family, each will have his or her own rede, and if necessary be prepared to take it up and walk.

The redes may be of different colors, but as a rule the majority are of white material that may be washed. The girls of the family will have their redes strung in one room side by side, merely giving one another sufficient room to swing freely, and they all swing and talk themselves to sleep, the pendulum motion of the redes only ceasing when they become too weary to reach out and kick it into motion again.

The Heavens In the North.

From the last days of May to the end of July in the northern part of this land the sun shines day and night upon its mountains, fiords, rivers, lakes, forests, valleys, towns, villages, hamlets, fields and farms, and thus Sweden and Norway may be called the land of the midnight sun. During this period of continuous daylight the stars are never seen, the moon appears pale and sheds no light upon the earth. Summer is short, giving just time enough for the wild flowers to grow, to bloom and to fade away, and barely time for the husbandman to collect his harvest, which, however, is sometimes nipped by a summer frost.

A few weeks after the midnight sun has passed the hours of sunshine shorten rapidly, and by the middle of August the air becomes chilly and the nights colder, although during the day the sun is warm. Then the grass turns yellow, the leaves change their color, wither and fall; the swallows and other migrating birds fly toward the south; twilight comes once more; the stars, one by one, make their appearance, shining brightly in the pale blue sky; the moon shows itself again as the queen of the night and lights and cheers the long and dark days of the Scandinavian winter.

The time comes at last when the sun disappears entirely from sight; the heavens appear in a blaze of light and glory, and the stars and the moon pale before the aurora borealis.—"Land of the Midnight Sun."

Wanted to Brush Them Off.

Passing down a quiet street not long since I saw two beautifully dressed women approaching. They were clad in delicate colors, and spick and span from head to foot. Between them and me was a garbage wagon, and just as they came opposite about two tons of ashes was hoisted into it with a result to the women that was detrimental to their appearance to a marked degree.

"That mean old thing," said one.

"I know he did it on purpose," said the other.

"My eyes are so full of ashes I can't see a thing."

"And so is my mouth," said the other.

But the climax was reached when the driver of the garbage wagon accosted them, saying:

"Wouldn't yees like me to brush yees off?"

These two women proved that warm hearts were beating beneath their dainty clothes, for they only thanked him kindly, but—refused.—New York Herald.

The Antiquity of the Lark.

The very first thought suggested by a study of the migration of birds is one of time. In tracing the migratory habit to its origin we find the history reaching back to the times previous to man, and we begin to realize how ancient is the aristocracy of the air. The lark did not come over with William the Conqueror, but his armorial bearing, if he thought it worth while to have any, would antedate those of every noble family in Great Britain.—Mrs. J. B. Southworth in Albany Journal.

Making Ants Useful.

"One year," says a Florida orange grower, "when few of my trees bore much fruit on account of insect ravages, I secured a large crop. I induced the ants to frequent my trees by syringing the trees with a strong solution of sirup and water. The solution dried, leaving a saccharine substance adhering to the leaves, twigs and branches of the trees, in seeking which the ants killed the insects which infested the trees."—New York Tribune.

The Odor of Fall Leaves.

What sorrow of old memories, of illusions faded, of dreams foregone, of friendships chilled, of gold turned gray, comes into the heart as under the straying feet the first of autumn's fallen leaves breathe out their secret! To the keen sense there is in the new fallen snow its own odor of cold, frank cleanliness.—Boston Commonwealth.

The small town of Grifton, N. C., can probably lay claim to more divisions than any other small place in the country. It is located in two counties, three townships, two congressional districts, two senatorial districts and two judicial districts.

HOITT'S OAK GROVE SCHOOL.

Hoitt's Oak Grove School, Millbrae, San Mateo Co., Cal. A first-class home school for boys. Beautiful surroundings. Superior instruction. The best of care. Its graduates for 1893 are admitted to the State University or Stanford University without examination. Number of pupils limited. Fall term commences August 1st. Send for catalogue, and mention this paper. Ira G. Hoitt, Ph. D., Master, Ex-State Superintendent Public Instruction.

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

Exercise is one of the few stimulants that does not leave a desire for more.

THE REASON.

Let us look into the force, meaning, reason of the oft-repeated line: Cures Promptly and Permanently.

Pains Endured for 30 Years,
25 Years,
20 Years,
10 Years,

Have been promptly Cured by

ST. JACOBS OIL.

By the use of:

A FEW APPLICATIONS
A HALF BOTTLE
ONE BOTTLE
TWO BOTTLES.

Correspondence with Sufferers shows entire permanence of cure up to this time, in some cases covering

5 Years,
7 Years,
8 Years,
10 Years,

and so on, and this proof we hold.

A copy of the "Official Portfolio of the World's Columbian Exposition," descriptive of Buildings and Grounds, beautifully illustrated, in water color effects, will be sent to any address upon receipt of 10c. in postage stamps by THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., BALTIMORE, MD.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by Druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

One objection to noiseless powder is that it will be of no earthly use on the Fourth of July.

DECIDEDLY SHAKY.

A trembling hand, an uncertain step, fidgetiness, indicated by restless shifting from one place or posture to another, usually mental annoyance at unexpected noises, are among the indications of extreme nervousness. These seem trifling, but the health of men and women in this condition is "decidedly shaky," liable to be overthrown disastrously by causes which the vigorous might defy. To fortify the nervous system, general vigor must, through the medium of reinforced digestion, and a renewal of an impaired power of sleeping at night, be raised to a healthful standard. A guarantee of this is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which re-establishes digestion, bile secretion and the habit of body on a permanently regular basis, thus renewing that bodily equilibrium, which is followed by a gain of strength and nerve tranquility. For kidney complaint, rheumatism, neuralgia, and as a preventive of the first attack or subsequent return of malarial disorders, this medicine is without a peer. Thrice daily take a wineglassful.

The woman who paints her cheeks and the man who dyes his whiskers never fool but one person.

EXPERIENCE OF AN EX-CHAMPION.

Athletes and men who take ordinary outdoor exercise such as walking, running, bicycle riding, jumping, swimming, tennis, etc., are often the subjects of acute troubles. The experience of an ex-champion walker will be of interest to all who are afflicted. HARRY BROOKS writes:

"No. 324 East 19th St., New York, April 2, 1886.

Numerous statements relative to the merits of different plasters having been brought to my attention. I take this opportunity to state that I have used ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS for over 20 years and prefer them to any other kind. I would furthermore state that I was very sick with catarrh of the kidneys, and attribute my recovery entirely to ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS."

"Celibacy," said Dr. Benjamin Rush, "is a pleasant breakfast, a tolerable dinner, but a bad supper."

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Doctor—If your baby does not thrive on fresh milk, boil it. Mother—Oh, doctor! You are too severe. Why not spank it?

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell

Try Germea for Breakfast.

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER,

if you're a weak or ailing woman:—that there's only one medicine so sure to help you that it can be guaranteed. It's Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In building up overworked, feeble, delicate women, or in any "female complaint" or weakness, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and strengthening nervine, and a safe and certain remedy for woman's ills and ailments. It regulates and promotes all the proper functions, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength.

Nothing else can be as cheap. With this, you pay only for the good you get.

"August Flower"

Eight doctors treated me for Heart Disease and one for Rheumatism, but did me no good. I could not speak aloud. Everything that I took into the Stomrch distressed me. I could not sleep. I had taken all kinds of medicines. Through a neighbor I got one of your books. I procured a bottle of Green's August Flower and took it. I am to-day stout, hearty and strong and enjoy the best of health. August Flower saved my life and gave me my health. Mrs. Sarah J Cox, Defiance, O.

$75.00 to $250.00 can be made monthly working for B. F. JOHNSON & CO., RICHMOND, VA.

FARMER'S DELIGHT.
Their Wives Can Handle it.
Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine.
Palmer & Rey, S. F., Cal., Portland, Or.

DR. GUNN'S IMPROVED LIVER PILLS
A MILD PHYSIC

ONE PILL FOR A DOSE.

A movement of the bowels each day is necessary for health. These pills supply what the system lacks to make it regular. They cure Headache, brighten the Eyes and clear the Complexion better than cosmetics. They act mildly, neither gripe nor sicken as other pills do. To convince you of their merits we will mail samples free, or a full box for 25 cents. Sold everywhere. Bosanko Med. Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP
FOR CHILDREN TEETHING
For sale by all Druggists. 25 Cents a bottle.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE
Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

IRON BEDS, $6.00.

Send for Catalogue.
W. A. SCHROCK 21 NEW MONTGOMERY ST. San Francisco, Cal.

Fine Bedding, Hair Mattresses, Floss Mattresses, Wire Mattresses, and Pillows.

S. F. N. U. No. 577. New Series No 28

A Good Appetite

Is imparted by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which tones the digestion so that all symptoms of Dyspepsia are removed. Mr. Robert W. W. Denvir of 258 Franklin St., Long Island City, N. Y., says: "For two years I suffered with dyspepsia, and could find no cure for it. I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and in one month I find that Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures both poor blood and dyspepsia, for I am now perfectly well."

Mr. Denvir.

HOOD'S PILLS are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. Sold by all druggists. 25c.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail. Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE you if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER. 25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY.

Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50 cts. Injector free.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES

ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BO-SAN-KO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

HERCULES

Gas and Gasoline

ENGINES

Hundreds of them Sold and in Use

Hercules -:- Engines

.....FOR.....

Launches, Schooners, Tow Boats,

——ALSO FOR——

Wood-working Machinery, Bean Cleaning Machinery, Hoisting Works in mines, running machine shops, shoe factories, churns, carpet-beating machinery, ice cream freezers, electric dynamos, sewing machines, printing machinery, electric motors, paint mills, elevators, pumping water, sawing lumber, bottling soda water, sawing wood, and many other classes of work.

NO COAL

To haul when running the Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine; no ashes, smell or dirt. Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day. For simplicity and success it beats the world. The workmanship the best.

NO MAN who has water to pump, machinery to run, hoisting to do, etc., can afford to be without a Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine. Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question. No double or false explosions.

Palmer & Rey Type Foundry
MANUFACTURER,
405 SANSOME ST., SAN FRANCISCO.

"A FAIR FACE MAY PROVE A FOUL BARGAIN." MARRY A PLAIN GIRL IF SHE USES

SAPOLIO

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF

Moore's Revealed Remedy.

ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use o MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case o RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude MRS. N. V. STEELE.

SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

Independence, Cal.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 18, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXV. NO. 9. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., AUGUST 18, 1893. WHOLE NO. 119 0

INYO INDEPENDENT

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$4 00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.00
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

SANTA CATALINA.

The perfect days went slowly by,
And all the far horizon line,
A mystery of sea and sky,
Was void of faintest form or sign.

We saw the wide Pacific main,
With here and there a shining sail,
No more; from moon to moon again
No dimmest fancy pierced the veil.

The sun was glorious o'er the blue,
The moonbeams dwelt in deepest calm,
The shadowy space familiar grew
Like daily prayers or blessed psalm.

Then, oh, the wonder of the sight!
There came one morning through the mist
An island, wrapt in softest light,
With hues of rose and amethyst.

Like stately ship it seemed to ride,
Advancing slow within our ken,
Belief was still unsatisfied,
When all was empty space again.

What mystic country could it be,
Thus like a wraith to come and go?
Did not our eyes, anointed, see
The magic isle of Prospero?

—Elizabeth W. Denison in Youth's Companion.

The Tree of Saturn.

To make a beautiful and easy experiment dissolve thirty grams of the sugar of lead in 1,000 grams of water, and place the solution in a suitable vessel—best of a globular form—such as those used for goldfish. Suspend from the stopper or from a cross thread below the bladder, with which the top may also be closed, a small piece of zinc, to which are attached about half a dozen brass wires, diverging like the branches of a tree.

After this zinc and brass wire have been allowed to remain quietly suspended in the liquid for a short time, the brass wires will be found to be covered with brilliant crystalline spangles of metallic lead, which will daily become larger and more numerous. The old alchemists who discovered this experiment did not understand it at all, and supposed that the brass of the wire changed to lead; but the true action is that the metal in solution is exchanged for zinc and brass.

The shape of the vessel and wires may be various. The forms of letters or other figures may be given to the brass wire, and in any case it will soon be covered with the brilliant spangles. Care must, however, be taken not to move the vessel carelessly after the crystallization has commenced, as the crystals are very fragile and easily detached, when all will sink to the bottom. It is best to place the vessel, before any crystals are formed, at once in a position in which it is intended to remain for exhibition.—New York Advertiser.

Chicago's Water Works.

The total cost of the city's magnificent system of water supply is easily calculated by reference to the city's account books but how shall it be ascertained what it is all actually worth? At what grand sum might the capitalization reach in case the works and all that pertains to them were up for sale? Purchased, these works by a private company, with the right guaranteed by a franchise, to supply the city with water for an indefinite term of years—to make their own tolls and rules of service—what sum in the large millions would they not be worth? What an oppressive monopoly would it not become?

And yet there was a time when this very calamity was imminent; when, in fact, it had made a beginning; when the people had not yet decided to take this matter of vastest concern into their own hands. Wisely, and even more wisely than than they knew, did John H. Dunham and his few farseeing associates in former days labor to this truly beneficent end.—Chicago Herald.

Reciprocity.

A little girl in my school recently came to me in tears, regretting the fact that her father's illness made it necessary for her to "leave and go to work."

I bade her goodby, and with a school marm's hankering to keep a creditable pupil added. "When you father is well come back to me."

Then, obeying a sudden impulse to take advantage of what I knew to be, in all probability, my last chance to influence the precious waif for good. I said: "But if I never see you again I hope you will try to do your duty wherever you may be. Whatever work you may have to do, try to do it well. I hope you will be an honest, honorable woman."

"Thank you, ma'm," she replied, putting up her mouth to be kissed. "I wish you the same."

The dear child! I know now what St. Paul meant by the "foolishness of preaching."—Cor. Youth's Companion.

Pure Sugar.

A San Francisco chemist says there is only one refinery in the world that makes absolutely pure sugar. The manufactory is in Germany, and it supplies chemists and druggists with sugar for solutions which must be unclouded. This chemically pure article would not find much sale for table use, as it is a dirty, grayish white in appearance. When dissolved it gives a clear solution, there being no artificial coloring matter in suspension.—Yankee Blade.

Queer Case of Evolution.

The general law of evolution is from the useful and practical into the ideal and beautiful. This seems to be reversed in the case of the lily and the banana; the banana is really a developed tropical lily from which the seeds have been eliminated and the fruit greatly expanded. This is very much as if an angel should evolve into a fat, comfortable stockbroker.—Hartford Courant.

Danger in Flies.

There can be little doubt that infections of various kinds may be more or less readily conveyed by flies. Wherever they alight they must bring with them traces of the objectionable matter they may have been assisting to remove. The window open for fresh air may admit flies which have come straight from some fever stricken dwelling.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Take them all in all, the owls must be considered friends to man. They are emphatically mice eaters, and they supplement the work of the hawks by day by waging incessant warfare against man's enemies at a time when both hawks and men are resting.

Two thousand years ago the great commercial emporiums of the world were ranged along the isotherm of Alexandria, Egypt, but have ever since gravitated toward the latitudes enjoying the industrial stimulus of frost.

The eggs of the ostrich are from three to five in number, and both birds share in incubation, though the female is the usual occupant of the nest.

At present 95 per cent. of all the diamonds produced in the world are obtained from the Kimberley mines in South Africa.

A Writer Who Took Things Easy.

When war broke out between Russia and Turkey Christie Murray was eager for the fray and his services were in demand. The London representatives of some American papers had made arrangements with him to start at 4 o'clock on a certain morning and had agreed to meet him at the station of the London, Chatham and Dover railway. The morning and the hour and the American arrived, but no Murray. When the cab stopped at his door and his employer jumped out the scribe was found asleep on the couch, having been up all night working at a novel which a publisher had implored him to finish.

He had a bad quarter of an hour with his "boss" and the engagement was promptly canceled. But the war was still there, and Murray had to see it, so that afternoon he made terms with The Times, and in the evening went out on the staff of that paper. He got into Plevna as a member of the ambulance corps, after Osman Pasha had issued the order that all correspondents were to be shot. Murray's letters during the siege were among the best literary productions of the time.

In his early days this energetic person had run away from home to try his fortune in London. Men's shoes wear out in Bohemia at a terribly rapid rate, and our friend became a gay dragoon. His relatives bought him out after a couple of years' service. He is a capital horseman, and is, like Mr. Bradlaugh, a lover of all exercises with the broadsword, foil and singlestick.—Chicago Post.

An Obedient Egg.

"This is a queer egg you have given me, mother," said Woodruff at the breakfast table. "See how it stands on its smaller end!" Every one at the table looked up in astonishment. Sure enough, there the egg stood as Woodruff had said, and, what was more wonderful still, in perfect balance on the brim of a bowl.

The boy took it down, and lo! it assumed a slanting position on the edge of the table, seemingly in the act of falling down and yet not falling. All the girls almost screamed in their amazement.

Next Woodruff took the egg and put it in a different position again on its broad end, and finally clapped it, as it were, slanting on the head of a bottle of mineral water. The positions which an obedient egg may be made to assume are not all told here. It may be placed in any other position at the will of the person who handles it. It can stand on end, sideways, inclined to the right or to the left, half reclining, etc.

The preparation or "fixing" to obtain such an obedient egg is very simple. Let an egg be emptied through a small hole and then thoroughly dried. Put into it about two thimblefuls of fine, dry sand, and plug the hole with white wax. The sand inside will act as ballast, and by slightly shaking the egg thus "fixed" you can change at will the center of gravity and make your shell assume any position you like to the amusement of beholders.—New York Recorder.

The Slanguage of Entreaty.

A pretty Woodward avenue girl with a love for slang, and the proud possessor of a father with money enough, but small inclination to let go of it, asked her mother the other day about taking a voyage up the lakes.

"Where's the money to come from?" inquired the mother.

"Papa, of course," said the girl.

"Not much, of course," corrected the mother. "He growls so at every additional expense that sometimes I really think he is as poor as tamarack swamp land. I wouldn't start him to scolding for anything by asking him for money."

"Well, I'm not afraid," heroically responded the daughter; "you say I can go and I'll work him for the money."

"All right, go ahead," and the girl went off down town.

That evening she was in her father's room and her mother wanted her down stairs.

"Fannie," she called, "come down here, I want you."

"I'm busy, mamma," she answered.

"What are you doing?"

"Working the growler, mamma," and papa won't know until he reads this what made his wife laugh so he could hear her clear up stairs.—Detroit Free Press.

A Telepathic Effect.

When I awake any one out of deep mesmeric sleep, so called, which I have myself produced, by a few transverse passes of the hand at a distance of several yards, and so slight that they could not be felt or heard by him, with, it must be added, a full intention to awake him, and confidence in my power to do so, while similar movements made by a bystander, with whatever accompanying mental effort on his part, would have no effect at all, I exercise a telepathic influence—I produce a telepathic effect. Of the reality of this mysterious influence the proofs are innumerable; but even from a single well established fact of the kind one might not unreasonably suspect the existence of a law of nature formerly unknown, and of the discoverable operation of which who shall predict the range?—Blackwood's Magazine.

The Printers Followed Copy.

In Detroit Ted took a fancy that he would no longer be advertised as "Mr." Booth. "Go to the printers, Ben," said he, "and tell them to put simple Edwin Booth on the handbills and posters." I did as I was told, and explained to the foreman of the printing office that Mr. Booth wished simple Edwin Booth put wherever his name occurred in the copy.

What was my astonishment and Ted's horror next day, when all the billboards were placarded with the caste of "The Apostate," headed by "Pescara, Simple Edwin Booth." When I went to the printer to raise Cain I was informed that the bill had been set up strictly in accordance with my instructions, and that it was a printer's business to follow copy even if it took him out of the window.—Interview in New York Epoch.

The Sex of the Oyster.

It is said the Romans were the first to introduce oyster culture, and they proceeded with it, according to Varro, as if the oyster had different sexes. They found, or claimed to find, that the different breeds could be improved by crossing. Certain French physiologists of our time, however, notably Daraine and Moquin Jandon, uphold the hermaphrodite theory. On the other hand, M. Quartrefaces and M. Blanchard, the culturists of experience, and the microscopists are all on the Roman side of the question.—Joel Benton in Drake's Magazine.

It Is a Long While, Sometimes.

A little four-year-old friend of mine was out riding with her mother, and on passing a cemetery she asked, "Mamma, how long after they bury any one before their gravestone comes up?"—Springfield Homestead.

A THRILLING RUN.

Awful Experience of Engineer Bill Jones on a Short Line.

RUNNING INTO THE ARMS OF DEATH

Saved by a Whistle.—An Incident That Sometimes Occurs in the Life of an Engine Driver.

Bill Jones, the driver of the big express engine, 1,786, wiped his hands on a bunch of waste and leaned back in his cab contentedly smoking awaiting the signal from the conductor to start. In front the green light below the headlight, indicating that another section of the same train would follow, shone brightly, while behind a long line of baggage, day and sleeping cars stretched out into the darkness beyond the station.

At last the signal came. With alert senses the engineman opened the throttle and the train slowly started through the maze of tracks in Harrisburg yard on its long run to Philadelphia. Little by little more steam was put on, and faster and faster the express rattled along.

On dashed the train, its course now lying between the old canal and the broad Susquehanna. A slight mist was rising from the river, but far across twinkled the dim lights of another train, emphasized by a clearer light as the furnace door was opened by the fireman. Bill Jones saw it and smiled to himself. It was the Baltimore connection which had left Harrisburg five minutes before his train. He jerked the cord, and a shrill whistle sounded through the night. Two minutes later an answering blast floated sleepily across the water.

The express rumbled on, now at full speed, whizzing by a coal train, which had crossed over to the west bound track to let it pass, and rattled through Middletown past long lines of other freights held back by the angry red of the semaphore so that the express might not be delayed at the intersection.

ON A SINGLE TRACK ROAD.

Far ahead the signal governing the east bound track shone crimson. Suddenly it turned into a white light and Jones released the air which he had just put on, the train dashed forward and, with a jolt, a rumble and a twist sped across the main line tracks, disappearing down the Mount Joy branch, the single track line used for passenger service between Lancaster and Harrisburg.

Just twenty-two minutes from the time the express passed the intersection it drew up at Mount Joy, fourteen miles distant, and took the siding to clear the Pacific express going west. The silence of night was almost oppressive, and the only sound which broke the stillness was the steady working of the injector, resembling nothing so much as a person panting after a long run.

From down the valley came a faint whistle, then a rumble, a roar, the flash of a headlight and the rush of a heavy train dashing by at full speed, with scarcely a light visible in the long line of sleepers. As it passed Bill roused himself and pulled the whistle cord sharply three times to warn the other engineer of the section following, and then he started his train again for Lancaster.

Meanwhile the rear brakeman was standing half dozing on the platform of the last sleeper. He heard Jones give the signal to the engineer of the Pacific, and he saw the red tail lamps of the other train vanish in the direction of Harrisburg as he felt his own train in motion. Then there floated back another signal. Toot, toot, toot.

A BRAKEMAN'S DILEMMA.

The brakeman's heart leaped. That meant there was another section of the Pacific, also, close behind, and the engineer had neglected to call Jones' attention to the green lamps on his own engine until aroused by Bill's whistle. The brakeman was in a quandary. Should he pull the bell cord and stop the train only to find that Bill already knew of the second section of Pacific running that night and was supplied with orders, he would invite a reprimand for his officiousness. On the other hand, if his fears were well founded and the express was running on the single track toward the opposing train——

He resolved to run the risk of leaving his post and go forward. It is no easy task to thread one's way through three or four sleepers, around staterooms and smoking apartments, and it is still more difficult to pass through an ordinary coach in the middle of the night, when passengers sprawl into easy attitudes and extend their limbs into the aisles.

Like an age it seemed to the brakeman ere he gained the platform of the front car, clambered over the rocking tank of the engine and stood beside the engineer. "Bill, did you notice Pacific carried signals for a second section?" he yelled into the engineer's ear. "My God! no."

Then the man accustomed to dangers made a lightning calculation. There would be at least twenty-five minutes' headway between the two sections caused by the stop at Lancaster. Fully five minutes had already expired, and he knew by the surroundings Mount Joy was four miles behind.

SAVED BY A SCREECH.

Within the next five minutes the second section, if on time, would leave Lancaster and run slowly to Dillerville, the junction of the branch and the main line. Could he with eight cars run the seven miles and get there ahead of the west bound train? Ay, if it were in the wood.

He threw the levers as far as they would go and the train bounded ahead. "Go back, Jim," he shouted to the flagman, "this is no place for you if we meet her," and the trainman obeyed. Three, five, seven, eight minutes passed, and the heavy train was shooting forward nearly a mile every minute, but each second brought the crisis nearer. He held down the whistle cord, and a long, uninterrupted blast sounded, but to the fevered senses of the engineer it made no noise.

He could see a portion of the main line now, but not where the passenger trains run. Then the engine swung around, and directly in front was Dillerville tower, giving him the clear signal, while lying motionless just beyond was the second section of Pacific, held back by the warning red of the semaphore. The tower man had heard the wild screech of Jones' engine and stopped the west bound train in the nick of time.

That happened ten years ago.—Philadelphia Times.

An Idea for a Penholder.

Here is a pretty and new idea for a penholder: Take a goose quill, or a chicken feather, if it is large enough, and dip it into a dye of a delicate pale lavender. Paint pansies of different shades of purple upon the quill. Take it to a jeweler and have him tip the end with a small silver casing to hold the pen. This makes a penholder that is exceedingly odd and one not apt to be duplicated.—New York Advertiser.

He Got the Towel Finally.

I had a most extraordinary experience in a hotel at Port Arthur, on the northern or Canadian side of the greatest of all the lakes.

"Will you send up a clean towel and a fresh pitcher of water to 63?" I inquired of the man in charge of the desk.

The man rang a bell violently. "I will," said he, "if I can find a—confound the boys. I never can get one when I want one. Where the devil do you suppose boys always are when they are wanted?"

"I don't know," said I; but you'll attend to that, won't you?"

"Yes, certainly. Great Jupiter's horns! where the dickens are the boys?"

Half an hour passed.

"I dislike to have to remind you," said I, "but will you have a clean towel and a pitcher of water sent up to 63?"

The man at the desk looked fixedly at me.

"Do you mean to say that has not been done?" he asked. "Oh, that boy will drive me crazy! I shall go stark mad over that boy. I sent him half an hour ago, but he is such a timber headed idiot that he forgets a message before he gets to the top of the stairs. Then he goes wandering all over the house, and comes back and tells me everything's all right. He is no earthly use. I shall go wild if I am left here with that boy."

Three hours passed and I saw the town of Port Arthur from the breakwater to the woods.

"Pardon me," said I, "but I really want some water and a towel in my roo"——

"Cæsar's ghost! You don't mean it? My dear sir, I beg your pardon, but—hold on! I sent Jimmy, my own Jimmy, not that infernal idiot, but Jimmy, the slickest boy north of Lake Superior, and he said he had attended to it. Oh, Jimmy! I say, James, what about that water and towel for 63?"

"I couldn't attend to it, sir; I had too much to do."

"Too—too much—too much to do!" the man at the desk gasped as he repeated the words. "James, you infernal leather skulled, empty headed, crack brained, seat hatching idiot, do you know that you will drive me frantically insane? By the great jumping Cæsar! if I am not to rely on you, what am I—too busy, were you? Oh, one boy a hopeless idiot and the other boy too busy"——

"Will you attend to it now?" I inquired.

"I don't know, sir. I'll try—that's all a poor boy-hounded devil like me can promise."

I got the water and towel that day.—Julian Ralph in New York Sun.

Prince and Flower Seller.

A pretty story of the late Emperor Frederick is told in one of the German papers. Some years ago, shortly before the death of the old emperor of Germany, a tall, handsome gentleman jumped into a third class carriage of a local railway at Berlin just as the train was leaving the station. An old flower seller, with a basketful of newly cut hyacinths, was the only other occupant of the compartment. He asked the old dame to sell him a bunch, and mollified by his suave manner she chose the freshest and largest and handed it to him. Its price was a penny, but as the gentleman had no coppers and the old woman no change, not having sold any of her goods yet, she was paid with a mark piece, which, as she said at once, was a thing that had never been heard of before in a third class railway carriage.

Presently the stranger and the flower seller were deep in conversation, and it turned out that the poor woman was the only breadwinner of a family of four. Her son was crippled, her granddaughter a little school girl, and her husband had for some months past been out of work, since a new railway official had dismissed him as being too old to do much work. The stranger then suggested that she should apply, on her husband's behalf, to the railway authorities. "That is no good whatever," she replied, as she wiped her tears with her apron. "If you haven't the pope for your cousin nowadays you can't get anybody to listen to you." "Then try the emperor," the stranger went on. "Alas!" she sighed, "if the old gentleman was allowed to see the petitions that are sent, it might do some good, but he does not get to know about us poor people."

"Well, then, let your husband write to the crown prince." "Yes," she said, "he might do that," and she would tell him so soon as she had sold her flowers. By this time the train had got to the terminus, the old dame bundled out her basket and noticed with astonishment that the officials and the crowd on the patform looked at her carriage and saluted and cheered. "What's up?" she asked. "Why, the crown prince was in the same compartment with you?" Then the flower seller held her head high and told every syllable of what had happened to the delighted crowd. Her flowers were sold before five minutes were over, and a fortnight afterward her husband was at work again in his old place.

Saved by Thoughtfulness.

The ubiquitous reporter has turned up in a new role. He was riding up town in a Sixth avenue surface car, when a boy was knocked down by the horses, and before the car could be stopped his foot was cut off just above the ankle. A crowd gathered and waited in absolute helplessness for the arrival of an ambulance. Then it was that the reporter in question elbowed his way through the crowd.

Skillfully twisting his handkerchief into a bandage, he bound it and knotted it just above the wound. Then he ran a stick through the knot and twisted it around with all his might. The bandage sank deep into the boy's skin, but it saved his life, for the flow of blood was stopped. The ambulance surgeon on his arrival complimented the reporter for his dexterity and presence of mind.

There is no moral attached to this tale, and there is no reason why a reporter shouldn't be just as dexterous and nervy as anybody else. Only it happened in this instance that the reporter was very much more thoughtful than anybody else in a crowd of perhaps 200 persons, and it also happened that when he had completed his work he slipped off into the crowd without a shade of self importance. The little sufferer whose life he saved will probably never know to whom he is indebted.—New York Times.

Diphtheria from Well Water.

According to M. Menzies, diphtheria is common among the poultry of Italy, in which country the flat roofs of the houses afford a resting place for turkeys, fowls, pigeons and rabbits, whose evacuations are carried by the rains into the cisterns and wells. A physician at Pasilippo, near Naples, had directed his servant not to obtain drinking water from the well next to his house, but from a well at a distance. As long as the instruction was obeyed the family was well, but the indolent servant disobeyed the command and obtained water from the infected well. Four of the children who drank this water soon contracted diphtheria and died. The fifth child, who did not drink the water, escaped.—Dr. J. Lewis Smith in Babyhood.

FIGHTING FISHES.

Curious Characteristics of Many Denizens of the Deep.

SERPENTS THAT CARRY OFF VESSELS

Dread of the Tropical Fisherman for the Poisonous Stingray.—The Dangerous Sea Devil.

There are no more curious fishes in the world than those which belong to the order of rays. Certain members of the family are familiar enough under the name of "skates." Their only fault is ugliness of aspect. You have to go to tropical waters in order to find the dangerous and otherwise extraordinary members of this tribe.

Not the least unpleasant of them is the "stingray," which is quite common in Florida waters. Imagine a gigantic flat fish with great fleshy wings; give it a breadth across of seven feet, a length of twelve feet and a powerful tail armed with an ivory dart ten inches in length. Such is this remarkable animal, which has caused the death of many an unwary fisherman. It is slow of motion, lying on the bottom and enjoying life harmlessly unless interfered with. But once disturbed it is a dangerous creature to encounter.

When alarmed it lashes about with its tail, and woe to him in whose flesh the caudal weapon sticks. The latter is a needle shaped instrument, with the keenest possible point, and on both sides for its entire length it is armed with barbs, pair upon pair, so that when once stuck in it cannot be withdrawn save by cutting it out. Of its kind it is the most formidable weapon with which any animal is equipped by nature.

This "sting," as the fishermen call it, is chiefly dangerous because of the slime with which it is covered. The latter gangrenes the wound it makes, so that blood poisoning is apt to set in, and frequently the loss of a limb, if not of life, results. I myself once met a man who had nearly died from stepping upon the dart of a dead stingray, which, though its former owner had long since passed away, stuck up in the sandy bottom of a shallow lagoon. My friend's foot was thrust through it while he was wading for crabs.

THE MUCH FEARED STINGRAY.

When one of these creatures is dragged into a boat the utmost care has to be exercised lest it wound it captor by the switching of its tail. One who walks in the shallows of a southern river finds it very unpleasant to see occasionally a section of what has appeared to be the bottom, perhaps several feet in diameter, move slowly away just as he is about to step upon it. The animal assumes a likeness in color to the sand or mud where it finds it home, in order that prey may approach it without suspecting the presence of the lurking monster.

The stingray is sometimes called the "clam cracker," because it is able to break the shell of the toughest quahaug as easily as the operation can be performed with a hammer. Its upper jaw is furnished with a sort of mosaic pavement of teeth, with which it is able to smash the hardest substances. To oyster beds the creature is a deadly enemy, and where its species is numerous the bivalves have to be protected with fences. Crabs, sea snails and squids furnish a large part of its diet.

When it loses its "sting" by an accident another one grows. It is sold for eating purposes in the New Orleans markets. The meat is very peculiar and quite unlike anything else, the muscular tissue composing the wings being of so coarse a texture that, after the flesh has been boiled, one can dissect the fibres out upon one's plate. These wings are merely pectoral fins enormously developed. They, as well as similar parts of skates and other rays, are sold in considerable quantities at San Francisco to the French and Italians, who value them for the table. Skate tails are largely eaten on the Pacific coast by the Chinese and Mexicans.

THE DANGEROUS SEA DEVIL.

Skates lay eggs, though all the other fishes of the order of rays bring forth their young alive. One may pick up plenty of skate eggs anywhere on the seashore. Children call them "sea purses." They are rectangular almost in shape, with long tails at each corner, and about three or four inches in length. It is merely the shells that one finds, the young animal having made its exit through an opening at one end. The stingray produces from three to nine living young at one brood, but its cousin, the formidable "sea devil," gives birth to but a single offspring at a time, in which respect it is probably unique among the finny tribe.

Much of the romance that has been written about the sea devil or true devil fish is based upon fact. It is one of the most dangerous monsters of the deep, at all events, when attacked. Animals are formidable in two ways—they possess a natural ferocity which impels them to attack, or they may be fierce in self defense. The sea devil will always run away if it can, but it is a most perilous beast to encounter when defending itself. To begin with, it is of enormous size, often measuring thirty feet from tip to tip of its mighty wings, and its muscular power is so enormous that many cases are well authenticated where it has actually carried away small vessels, having become fouled with the anchor lines. There is on record an account of a specimen captured off Barbadoes which was of such vast bulk that seven oxen were required to draw it over the land.

The sea devil will undoubtely assail boats if attacked, and stories are told of its swamping such small craft by extending one of its great wings out of the water and dragging crew and bark under the sea with a flap of the giant fin. It has two great horns or fleshy protuberances extending forward from its head, which assist it in grasping its prey. Being carnivorous in its habits, there is every reason for supposing that it would devour a man if such a victim were to happen into its clutch. Accounts are given of its assailing divers, swooping upon them from above, so that the unfortunate beholds a living cloud settling over him with eager jaws to gobble, while helpless to escape the horrible embrace. However, it is doubtful if there is any truth in such tales.—Interview in Washington Star.

Official Etiquette.

The requirements of official etiquette are well understood by the gentlemen who have had charge of the work of entertaining the infanta during her sojourn in New York. At one of the dinners given in honor of the distinguished guest a gentleman who is noted for his sportive humor stood at the threshold of the banquet room, and as the princess approached he bowed profoundly, and with a fine Delsartean wave of his hand toward the royal table said, "After Eu, Iadie." The princess made a note of the merry jest for her book on America.—New York Herald.

Fixing Up an Oyster Stew.

A well dressed and prosperous looking citizen entered a well known oyster saloon not far from Sixth and Chestnut streets and called for "a stew, rich and well done, and," he added, "don't make the dish too full." When the stew was placed before him, he proceeded to season it. First he shook a salt castor over the milky soup about a dozen times; then he gave a red pepper bottle an equal number of dashes. This he followed by liberal quantities of vinegar, sherry wine, worcestershire sauce, catchup and several dipperfuls of horse radish. He next broke up one dozen water crackers into the stew and mixed the whole business up into a sort of mush.

Having thoroughly stirred it together he looked around at the astonished observers and said in a loud voice: "I've often wondered why they put all these things in front of a fellow when he calls for oysters. I've now given the thing a trial. I wanted to see what a stew would look like with all of 'em in it. This will cost me a quarter, and I'll give a dollar to anybody that'll eat the mess."

Nobody volunteered to earn the dollar, and the man, after emptying part of a glass of ice water into the conglomeration, walked up to the cashier's desk, paid his bill and marched out. "Well," said the waiter as he removed the dish, "if there ain't some of the blamedest cranks in this world, I'll be blowed."—Philadelphia Record.

African Court Trials.

Of all central African customs trial by ordeal, which is universal, is that which is most revolting to a European brought for the first time into contact with savage life. When a man is accused of any crime—as theft, arson, murder, witchcraft or the like—evidence is brought against him in the way common throughout the whole continent. This, however, is never final. The accuser's witnesses swear to anything required of them without the slightest compunction of conscience, and as the prosecutor must produce his evidence first the defendant's witnesses are ready to swear, and do swear, the opposite of all that has been said.

Trial is invariably in open court, and nothing said by the witnesses for the prosecution can be concealed from those that are to follow. There are no affidavits, thus making contradiction at once simple and safe. If rebutting evidence were allowed, the most paltry trial would be interminable. For a witness to be called a liar is in such a case a compliment. It proves that his evidence told, and that he, by inference, is a very clever fellow. If the same man were accused of bewitching, he would regard it as a foul libel and demand the poison bowl without an hour's delay.—James Macdonald in Popular Science Monthly.

Sleeping In a Manicure's Shop.

"Let's shop a little while longer," a girl was overheard to say to a companion in a store the other day, "and then we'll go to the manicure's for a nap." The woman who heard the remarks puzzled over it for some minutes, wondering if it were jest or earnest, and then she went to a manicure's to find out.

"Do people ever doze while they are having their nails done?" she asked by way of introducing the subject of the young woman who was doing hers, and the reply was very prompt:

"They do more than that; they sleep and deliberately come here to get a nap. I've more than once had to wake a customer when I had finished. We let them sleep so long as their chair isn't needed, but when it is they have to be roused.

"I don't know what makes the operation so sleep producing. I think it is more the quiet and warmth of the room, the big easy chairs, and perhaps because our customers come in here tired from shopping and ready to go to sleep at once. Nail trimming is not like hairbrushing—soothing in itself—and still three out of five go to sleep under the manicure treatment."—New York Times.

Steaming the Face.

"Did you ever see a woman steaming her face?" asked a man the other evening. "She does it for her complexion, you know. She gets a heavy towel, places the back of her head against the middle of it, then gathers the ends so as to make a funnel, and holds them around the spout of the teakettle. The steam is thus imprisoned and plays against her face. Many women parboil the skin taking this extraordinary complexion bath, which is said to remove blackheads and tone up the cuticle. I can tell fair women how to get the same result with less trouble and without hanging over a stove for a half hour.

"My barber at home uses the same principle. He saturates the towel with boiling hot water and applies to my face two or three times with a cooling and pleasing effect. Now, why can't a woman have several cloths and a basin of steaming water at hand and cover her face with them, one after the other? This will open the pores and start a healthy enough action to banish those detestable beauty blemishes known as blackheads."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Carelessness In Laying Water Pipes.

A serious drawback to the construction of low priced houses is the awkward and inconsiderate arrangement of water pipes and plumbing. It is no unusual thing in passing through a town to find the streets torn up in a dozen places in order that frozen water pipes may be thawed out. Floors and ceilings are torn up, walls are weakened by digging through, and great masses of frozen earth are upheaved simply because the plumber has lacked either the common sense or common honesty to do the right kind of a job of work at the outset. Every pipe and system of pipes should be placed low enough to avoid all danger of freezing.

This is neither impossible nor as difficult as one might suppose who listens to the artisans who are engaged in this sort of work. There is no sense whatever in having frozen water pipes. That such things are is a disgrace to the people who arrange them. A little boxing or suitable packing would effectually prevent all such misfortunes.—New York Ledger.

Handling Crockery.

A merchant was anxiously watching the terrible pitching and tossing which this case of Dresden ware received, and recounted his early experience: "I was employed as a clerk in a crockery store at $60 a month, with the understanding that I was to pay for all I broke. I lasted in that establishment just one month, and at the end of my time had to pay the proprietor $4 for the privilege of quitting. That is to say, I had broken $64 worth of crockery in the month. I then went into the hardware business, but in a few years drifted back into crockery."—New York Tribune.

A Great Effort.

Wee Miss—I hate that little girl!

Mamma—You should not hate anybody, my dear.

Wee Miss—Well, if I mustn't hate her, I'll try not to, but I guess it'll make my head ache.—Good News.

UNCLEAN PEOPLE.

The Great Mass of Humanity Lacking in Cleanliness.

CARELESSNESS OF "NICE" FOLKS.

Many Beneficial Ways in Which One Writer Would Spend $1,000,000, Providing She had Them.

There is no immediate danger of my filling a millionaire's grave, and yet stranger things have happened. Either you or I may fall heir to a colossal fortune. I don't lose sleep over the prospect myself, nor need you, my dear, but in this world of ups and downs who can tell what a day may bring forth?

Shall I tell you a few of the things I propose to do with my possible millions? In the first place, I shall build bathhouses and stock them with soap, perfumes and towels for humanity at large. Next to saving the soul comes the care of the body, and most people are fully as heedless of the one as the other. Indeed to my manner of thinking a sanctified soul in an unwholesome body would be hardly worth the keeping.

I declare unto you, and if I do not speak the truth come forth and dispute me, ye who can, that the masses of mankind know less about cleanliness than animals do. Watch the old cat sitting in the sun or by the corner of the kitchen fire washing her face and cleaning her paws. She enters into the thing with a complete understanding that cleanliness makes her a more welcome fireside companion, as well as a healthier cat and a more self respecting member of society. A bird delights in its morning bath more ostentatiously than in its breakfast. I have seen horses at the seashore who reveled in a "dip" far more than any human ever did. A dog will not enter your presence if there is any soil upon his person which his own limited ingenuity can remove, and the most beatific experience of a pampered poodle is its perfumed bath and careful shampoo.

Now, take the case of humans. There is not a day of my life that business dealings do not force me into companionship with people who are both unwholesome and repulsive by reason of lack of personal cleanliness. I ride with them, I walk by their side, I sit next them. They dress well, their clothes are of expensive material and carefully made, but they bear about with them an aroma of stale cuticle and closed pores. From week's end to week's end these men and women do no more than dip their hands in a little water and rub off their faces with inadequate wash cloths. If the natural smoke of Chicago settles upon such portions of their anatomy as are exposed, they dab it off with hard water and cheap soap, or they counteract it with filthy powder rags. They go for weeks at a time without a change of underwear to save laundry bills, and they sleep in the same flannels that they wear by day.

A good, thorough bath is as unknown to them as God's grace to a lost soul, and for my part I would rather encounter a thug with a club. You can dodge a club, but you can't escape an odor. Ride for an hour in one of our cars, either cable, horse or steam; could anything be worse, without it was a stock transit? And yet all these unwashed and unwholesome people pride themselves, and often most justly, of being good citizens, well educated and circumspect. They would resent the idea of being classed outside the circle of "gentlemen and ladies." They never sneeze in your presence without begging pardon, nor commit any breach of the proprieties without the keenest anguish of remorse for the misdeed. Their crime against society, then, is not an active one. It is merely the result of a neglected education. Their parents believed in making them obedient, no doubt, and polite and well behaved. They had them taught to dance and play the piano and speak French, but they forgot to teach them cleanliness.

The poor and uncared for we expect to take as we find them, and by means of prayer, faith and good works raise them to higher levels. But what shall be done for the folks who ought to know enough of the laws of hygiene and beauty to keep clean, but who in fact know as little as the totally ignorant and the very poor? When I get my millions, then I shall erect 1,000 bathhouses right here in Chicago, and I shall legislate laws that shall make cleanliness compulsory. Women shall find it more profitable to go to the bathhouse than to the club, and men shall find more attraction in the physical laundry than in the saloon. There shall be no possible entree for the careless keeper of the beautiful body into either saloon, street car or public assemblage of any sort. He shall be shunned like a leper, and when his case is pronounced hopeless there shall be a modern Molakai fitted up for his habitation, that he may trouble the olfactories of the sons and daughters of earth no more forever.

Another thing that I shall do with my money will be to prosecute cruel teamsters by means of its powerful potency. The policeman who stands at the corner of Lake street and Fifth avenue tells me that since occupying that post he has lost the little faith he ever had in man's boasted humanity.

Another thing I will do with my money will be to provide for the patient, uncomplaining poor.

When I get my money, I shall establish homes for the poor, not charity halls nor houses of correction, but sweet, pure homes, where happiness and plenty shall join hands, and peace and rest shall sing together like mated birds.—"Amber" in Chicago Herald.

Felt It In Their Bones.

She—After you left me last night, George, papa put his foot down and said your attentions to me must cease. I knew this cruel blow was coming, for I've felt it in my bones all along.

He—Yes, dear, I know it, for just as I was leaving he put his foot up and told me the same thing. I feel it in my bones still.—Truth.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 18 1893

There is something very appropriate in the erection of a church to the memory of J. Gould. As a true Christian in letter and spirit, his life exemplified the beauties of the maxim, "Do unto others as you would be done by." His charities were unbounded. Want always found in him a friend and in his purse ready relief. Perhaps to no other man of the present time could the sentiments of Abou Ben Adam be so appropriately applied as to Jay Gould. He loved his fellow-man with such an intensity of love that he took everybody in, and the whole country has been in tears ever since the angel of death flew away with him. A memorial church to the memory of such a man should be a monument conspicuous for its grace of architecture and beauty of design. It should be commensurate in size with the bigness of heart of the one it commemorates. Such a tribute to his memory should not be left alone to the grateful liberality of a small coterie of his relatives and friends. It should be built by the subscriptions of the poor and unfortunate to whom his great heart always went out. Let the pious monument rise on a scale of grandeur consistent with the countless deeds of charity and kindness Jay Gould performed while he was with us; and let only these who received benefits from him contribute towards the erection of the noble pile. Then will there be a noble pile worthy of the good man gone. It may not be as large as St. Paul's nor as vast as St. Peter's. But with good sight one may be able to make it out through a powerful telescope.

If there is one thing more than another that annoys a well conditioned man it is the inevitable presence of the croaker at all stages of a great public crisis. He is always ready to stand around and announce that things are not yet at their worst. This is particularly the case to-day. That things ought to be at their worst is patent from the fact that the Congress of the United States has already assembled to remedy the evils from which we suffer, and that the probability is extreme that that body will at once apply itself to some marked measure of remedial legislation. It will of course require some time, and it may embody a compromise between the extreme views, but that the measure formulated may result in an easier money market at an early day may be assured with certainty. That we have seen the worst is conceded by all people of discrimination. The principal things needed are an increase of the circulating medium and the restitution of public confidence. The one would bring about the other. While it would be highly desirable to introduce a genuine American scheme of finance, that can scarcely be hoped for at once. But we may be sure that substantial guarantees will be exacted for all essential American interests. Beacons of hope in the financial sky are embodied in the fact that gold is beginning to pour into the United States in large quantities, that the balance of trade has turned in our favor, and Congress is in session to rebuke and counteract any sudden conspiracy of Wall street.

The Democratic silver men in congress have agreed in caucus upon a programme which they believe they can carry, and which will be very advantageous to the white metal. They will consent to the repeal of the Sherman act and to abandon free coinage on condition that a measure be passed increasing the ratio between silver and gold so as to bring the two metals on a parity. The ratio is left to future action, but it certainly does not mean that it will be increased so as to equalize the value of the metals as at present differentiated. That would be folly. They will doubtless determine upon some ratio that will approximate the probable difference that will exist when the white metal has had the benefit of favorable legislation. That would probably be 20 to 1.

In the weekly clearing-house report for the past week, Los Angeles is the only city which shows a percentage of increase in the United States. All the rest are on the downward scale. This fact speaks volumes for the excellent financial condition of Los Angeles; and cannot but attract favorable attention from all parts of the union to a city which sails so bravely through a storm that is carrying wreck and disaster everywhere else.

Demanding the Countersign.

Stories of the blunders made by green volunteers on guard duty are always in order at the campfires of veterans of the civil war. At such an occasion recently a member of the middle Tennessee regiment, which was commanded by Colonel Gillem, told the following story:

For a time we were stationed in the city of Nashville, doing guard duty. There was a raw recruit in our ranks—an Irishman and a very good fellow—whom we all liked. He was bound to be a good soldier and had the strongest desire to be efficient in all things.

One day he was put on guard duty on one of the principal streets in the city. He had never been in the same situation and thought it his duty to challenge every one who came along, just as he would in camp.

By and by a well dressed citizen approached.

"Halt! Who goes there?" says Mike.

"A citizen," answered the man.

"Advance, citizen, and give the countersign!"

"But I don't know the countersign," said the citizen, "and if I did I think it is very strange and unusual that it should be demanded in a public place like this."

"Well, be jabers then," said Mike, "yo don't pass this way till ye've said 'Bonker hill!'"

"Bunker hill," said the man, with a grin.

"Right! Pass on," said the sentinel at "present," and the citizen went on about his affairs.—Youth's Companion.

Victims of Counterfeiters.

"Some people," said James E. Curtis, "are exceptionately unfortunate in the matter of counterfeit bills. I am one of them. For the life of me I never could tell a decently executed counterfeit from a good bill, and I am frequently victimized in consequence. Careful investigation has led me to the conclusion that it is dangerous to take change at a small window, especially when there is a crowd clamoring for attention, and I have also noticed that keepers of small stores are apt to innocently pass out bogus money which has been paid to them intentionally or by accident. There is absolute safety at a bank, and there is comparatively little danger in any large establishment not of a migratory character which has an experienced cashier. But I have been placed in an embarrassing position so often by trying to pass paper received in all good faith that I am getting very cautious about getting change under the conditions named.

"I was once put off a train in a miserably forlorn district because I tendered the conductor the last $10 bill I had in my pocket, and which, he politely told me, any fool could see was bogus. Since then I have made it a rule to provide myself with bills of all denominations up to $10 and $20, and lately have been able to get rid of the constant fear I formerly entertained of getting suspected of a crime I never so much as contemplated."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Cigars That Are Expensive.

"How often does one see 'Vuelta Abajo' written and printed on cigar boxes, and how seldom does one obtain a real Vuelta Abajo cigar!

"Tell you the reason why? Certainly," remarked the loquacious cigar man. "In the Abajo valley is a small, low piece of country about five miles from Havana, capable of producing tobacco enough to make about 30,000 cigars annually, or about one-quarter of the number smoked every six months in Washington. Without question the tobacco is the finest grown. The result is the kings and noblemen of England, Russia, Germany, France and the other European countries gobble them up. Every single cigar made of Vuelta Abajo tobacco is sold to them at prices ranging from $20 to $150 a hundred.

"Americans would never pay that price, especially when the $20 to $150 a hundred does not include the tariff, which would make the poorest quality of these cigars sell at 47 cents apiece at wholesale. These cigars are bought and paid for, too, by the way, long before the crop is ever harvested. Manufacturers, with that remarkable coolness with which some men are endowed, proceed to call all qualities and kinds of Cuban cigars 'Havana' and 'Vuelta Abajo,' when half of them never saw a cigar of that growth."—Washington News.

To Start a New England Kitchen.

To start a New England kitchen choose a location thickly settled by wage earners, those to whom ready cooked food will prove a relief from labor and to whom cleanliness and savoriness will appeal. Then secure vouchers from the honest, respectable and reliable business men of the place, from the dispensary, policemen, clergy and parish priests. Any new enterprise is looked upon with suspicion, and our wage earners are sensitive and quick to resent charity or patronage. Helpers in the work should be chosen from the neighborhood, and only those should be taken who can learn to be accurate and trustworthy.

The neighboring grocers, bakers and tinsmiths should be enlisted in the work, for they can do much by their co-operation. The habits of the people should be closely studied and friendly, and neighborly relations should be established with them. Moreover, hot and cold water, which is such an invaluable blessing in a tenement house, should be freely distributed by those in charge of the kitchen. Criticism of the dishes sold should also be welcomed, and suggestions should be encouraged.—Mrs. Ellen H. Richards in Forum.

Spain's Royal Palace.

The royal palace in Madrid, which the Infanta Eulalie still regards as her home, though her mother is in exile, is one of the most magnificent edifices in Europe. It is of marble and granite, occupies an area of 220,900 square feet and rises dazzlingly white against the sky to a height of 100 feet. The scene from the palace gardens is splendid. In the edifice there are a gallery of paintings, a library, a museum, an armory, a chapel and a theater.—New York Sun.

Trials of a Kentucky Minister.

In speaking of a well known minister who was until not very long ago pastor of a large congregation in this city, a member of that church said yesterday: "Few people know what he suffered. He was the nearest approach to Job that I ever saw. The newspapers might have had a great sensation out of one of his trials. Though one of the best known preachers in Louisville, considering his stay here, his wife was a morphine eater. On one occasion when he had to go to church to marry a young pair his wife locked him in his room. He finally succeeded in climbing through the transom and arrived at the altar after keeping every one waiting for nearly half an hour.

"She often locked him up to try to keep him from preaching, and her treatment of him was often too inhuman to be described. Yet with all that a complaint never left his lips, and he performed his religious duties under a mental agony that few are called on to fear. She took an active part in the church societies, and not until about the time of their departure was her terrible habit known outside the family. Her children were often beaten like animals. I know these things to be facts, and if the name were divulged it would thrill the city with astonishment."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Dvorak Awakens the Musical World.

Dr. Dvorak's bold declaration that the negro melodies of America are to be the foundation of a great national school of music ranging through every stage of the art, from ballads to symphonies and oratorios, has aroused the musicians of Europe. The Commercial cable brings us an interview with Ernest Reyer, the distinguished French composer. He says that the negro melodies, even if they do not serve as the actual basis of the coming American school, will determine its character.

The presence of the great Bohemian master in this country is a blessing to art. And it is a remarkable thing that, at the very moment Rubinstein, Richter, Joachina and other famous musicians were discussing Dr. Dvorak's discovery with correspondents in Europe, the composer himself was writing the gratifying announcement that he had just finished a new symphony reflecting all through it the negro melodies of the western world.—New York Herald.

Sheep Shearing In New York.

They are shearing the sheep in Central park, and a good sized job it has turned out to be. There are about 80 ewes and as many lambs besides the two or three rams. All of the flock are Southdowns of the purest breed, and their wool, averaging from six to eight pounds a fleece, is very fine and of more value than that of the ordinary sheep.

Shepherd Conway and his sheep dog are attending the sheep and lambs on the green, while three or four professional sheep shearers are at work on the rest of the flock at the sheepfold. As fast as an animal has been shorn it is turned out to pasture with the lambs and rams, and the contrast between the thin, white appearance of the shorn sheep and the thick, brown fleeces of the rams and lambs is an interesting sight.—New York Letter.

Closing With a Hymn.

Secretary Hoke Smith recently attended a semiprivate dinner in Washington and was called upon for a speech. Quite a number of newspaper men were present, and Mr. Smith concluded his remarks with an appeal to them to stand by the administration and stop criticising it. His remarks were pitched in a strong religious strain. When Mr. Smith sat down, the gentleman who was presiding at the dinner said with a perfectly grave face, "The choir will now sing 'I Want to Be an Angel.'"—Washington Letter.

Reduced Immigration.

The total immigration to the United States during the 10 months ended April 30, 1893, was 334,825—a decline of 119,133 from the immigration of the corresponding 10 months of the previous year. Emigration from Russia and Poland shows the greatest decline in this period, having fallen from 94,699 to 33,978. There is a very slight decline in the arrivals from Great Britain and Ireland, but the tide of emigration from Italy shows no abatement.—Charleston News and Courier.

Hawthorne In a Bean Pot.

The story goes that a few weeks ago an auctioneer near Leviston, Me., put up an old bean pot, and having no bids knocked it down to himself for 10 cents. Inside he found a copy of Hawthorne's "Fanshawe," the original edition. He remembered seeing in a Boston paper that a copy of this book had recently been sold for $131.50. He wrote to a Boston dealer, who offered him $100 for his find, which he took. It is said he might have got more.—Philadelphia Press.

Endurance of a Young Russian Woman.

Last winter a Russian girl of 17, giving way to fatigue, fell down asleep by the road, and when she awoke found herself buried so deeply in snow that escape was impossible.

Fifty-one days later she was still found breathing and was brought successfully back to life.

During all this time the poor girl had to eat only some crusts of bread that happened to be in her pocket.—Courrier des Etats-Unis.

After traveling the globe for 20 years a letter has been returned to its sender, Fred C. Anderson, at New London, Conn. The letter was properly addressed, but had not been claimed by the person to whom it was inscribed.

A singular accident occurred to Cobb Harris near Oneonta, Ala., lately. He was riding a mule, when the animal suddenly threw his head up, striking Harris on the chin and breaking his jawbone.

Place a large dish of water in a room where the heat is very oppressive. Change once or twice, and the temperature will be perceptibly lowered.

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS
AND
LEVI STRAUSS & CO'S
SPRING
BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

W. J. Hoskins, Plaintiff, vs. William Gheen and B. F. Lewis, Defendants.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in the office of the Clerk of said Inyo county.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Gheen and B. F. Lewis, Defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment of this Court for the foreclosure of a certain mortgage described in said complaint and executed by the said William Gheen on the 31st day of May, 1890, to secure the payment of a certain Promissory Note dated May 31st 1890, made by the said William Gheen for the sum of $800.00, bearing interest at the rate of one and one-fourth per cent. per month, payable semi-annually; and if not paid when it becomes due, to be added to the principal and bear interest at like rate, as described in said complaint on file herein, which complaint alleges that no part of the principal or interest therein has been paid; that the premises conveyed by said mortgage may be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said promissory note and interest thereon, and the payment of 15 per cent. of the amount found due the plaintiff as attorney's fees, and for costs of this action; and in case such proceeds are insufficient to pay the same, that judgment be docketed against said William Gheen, defendant herein, for the balance remaining due, and also that the said defendants, and all persons claiming by, through or under them, or either of them, may be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, claim, lien, equity of redemption, and interest in and to said mortgaged premises, and for other and further relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Witness my hand and the Seal of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 29th day of June, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
J. D. Lewis, Attorney for Plaintiff.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE JUSTICE'S COURT OF THIRD Township in the County of Inyo, State of California.

L. Wood, Plaintiff, vs. Jesus Encenas, Defendant.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Jesus Encenas, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Justice's Court of Third Township, County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer before the Justice at his office in said Township, the complaint filed therein, within five days (exclusive of the day of service), after the service on you of this Summons—if served within the Township in which this action is brought; or, if served out of said Township, but within said County, within ten days; or, within twenty days if served elsewhere.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment against you for the sum of $225.85 alleged to be due and owing from defendant to plaintiff upon an account stated between plaintiff and defendant, at Independence, Inyo County, California, on the 12th day of June, 1892, which sum of $225.85 defendant agreed to pay to plaintiff. For costs of suit, as more fully appears by the complaint on file herein, to which you are referred.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to so appear and answer said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of $225.85 and costs of suit.

Make legal service and due return hereof.

Given under my hand this 2nd day of August 1893.

IRV. H. MULHOLLAND,
Justice of the Peace of said Township.
F. E. Densmore, Attorney for Plaintiff.

ORDER OF NOTICE TO CREDITORS ON APPLICATION FOR DISCHARGE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of J. V. SKINNER, an insolvent debtor.

J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor, having applied to this Court for a discharge from his debts,

It is hereby ordered, that the Clerk of this Court give notice to all Creditors who have proved their debts to appear before this Court at the Court-Room thereof, on the 19th day of August, 1893, at the hour of 10 o'clock a. m., and show cause, if any they have, why the said J. V. Skinner should not be discharged from all his debts, in accordance with the statutes in such cases made and provided.

It is further ordered, that notice of said application be given to the Creditors by mail, and by publication once a week for four weeks in the Inyo Independent, a newspaper published in said Inyo County.

GEO. M. GILL,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated July 13, 1893.
P. H. Mack, Attorney for Insolvent.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M., for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday ..... January 28th
" ..... February 25th
" ..... March 25th
" ..... April 29th
" ..... May 27th
" ..... June 24th
" ..... July 22d
" ..... August 26th
" ..... September 23d
" ..... October 21st
" ..... November 16th
" ..... December 18th

THOS. C. ROLAND, W. M.
B. RHINE, Sec.

BOOTS AND SHOES

MADE AND REPAIRED.

THE BEST MATERIAL.

FIRST-CLASS WORK

Repairs done Promptly.
Prices Reasonable.

A. J. DAVIS,
30-tf Independence.

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.

FRANK FITZGERALD.

Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and
Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES. P. W. BENNETT.
BENNETT & FORBES,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
the obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the Independent Building, Independence, Inyo County, Cal.

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR
AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Office and residence at the Johnson place, Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Freight! Freight!
BISHOP & MOJAVE
Through Freight Line.
George Meads,
PROPRIETOR.
Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:
J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.
Special rates given on car-load lots

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and loaded.
All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics Hall," Lone
FRED BURKHARDT.

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor. Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal.
THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.
THE BAR
Is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.
JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.
$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.
It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer with out cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.
Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.
For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address
ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
85 and 87 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.
Winter Apples..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes.....12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches.....10 cts.
Dried Apples.....10 cts
Other varieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.
THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines,
Liquors,
& Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSfield, opposite the Southern Hotel.
Prompt and careful treatment given and the least possible pain inflicted. Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List. GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce street New York

P. W. FORBES P. H. MACK.
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY, the 8th day of March, 1892, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South-east corner of the south-east quarter of North east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98 100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of the Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hahhah, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lots Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode, situate, lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispricada Lode."

That certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the North west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12), and the South-west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South sixty-eight and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence North-westerly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North-East quarter and the South-east quarter, and the North-west quarter and the North east quarter of the North-west quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-four and eleven twentieth (44 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres: Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney, at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER.
Executor of the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah deceased.

Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1893.

J. W. Murphy.
BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDIS
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES.
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumer should call and examine my stock and price before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 9, 1884.
n47tf

$6000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, Troy, N. Y., at work for us. Reader, you may not make as much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from $5 to $10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages. In any part of America, you can commence at home, giving all your time, or spare moments only to the work. All is new. Great pay SURE for industrious. Nothing else like it. EASILY, CREDITABLY learned. PARTICULARS FREE. Address H. HALLETT & CO., PORTLAND, MAINE.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 18 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman .....A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman.....P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge.....GEO. M. GILL.
Sheriff..... JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk.....DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney.....P. W. FORBES.
Assessor.....P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer ..... W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner.....H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed).....JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools.....J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist..... ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist.....A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist .....W. H. UHLMEYER.
4th Supervisor Dist.....JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist..FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

SATURDAY, August 12, 1893.

Sarah E. Love vs. R. K. Love—Filed demurrer to complaint.

MONDAY, August 14, 1893.

Estate of W. A. Bolinger, deceased—Entered order of settlement of final account.

TUESDAY, August 15, 1893.

People vs. T. B. Scovil—Filed papers committing defendant for trial.

FRIDAY, August 18, 1893.

Louis Munzinger vs. John Albars—Filed answer to complaint.

The C. & C. has reduced fare by rail to Los Angeles to $25.

O. I. Mairs has gone to Mojave to take down Fred Eaton and family.

The Nevada State Fair will be held at Reno from September 19th to 23d inclusive.

District Attorney P. W. Fotbes returned on Wednesday from a week's visit to Bishop.

P. H Mack Esq. started for San Francisco last Sunday via Mojave. He will be home on Monday.

It is expected that Rev. H. J. Winsor will be stationed at Mason Valley for the coming conference year.

Mr. and Mes. Frank Fitzgerald spent several days in town this week. They went to Lone Pine yesterday.

Mrs. A. W. Eibeshutz has been on the sick list for the past week. She is now better and able to be around again.

Supervisors Wilson and Uhlmeyer were in town this week on business connected with the roads in their respective districts.

Mrs. Mary A. Jones, mothes of Senator John P. Jones of Nevada, died at Santa Monica on Wednesday of last week, aged 91 years.

Mono county has collected sheep license tax amounting to $10,413.40. Additional collections will bring the total up to about $11,000.

William Evans who said he murdered Mike Tovey, and gave himself up to the Sheriff, now denies that he is the murderer. He is said to be a feeble minded man.

Upton Tracey and Antone Cunha were in town a couple of days this week. They have been mining at Fish Spring for some time past and have met with good success.

Mrs. F. Rhine arrived at Independence on Wednesday's train from San Francisco. Her sister, whom she went to visit, has entirely recovered from her recent illness.

The County Board of Education meets next Monday. Applicants for certificates should file their application on Monday and be ready for examinations on Tuesday.

The people of Bishop have raised a good liberal sum for race purses to be given during the coming fair. A full programme will doubtless be in to-night's Register.

P. W. Bennett Esq. visited his former home at Bodie last week. Mr. Bennett practiced law for a number of years in Mono county and met many old friends on his recent visit.

A special train went to Keeler on Wednesday having on board Superintendent Yerington, Assistant Superintendent Laws, Senator Forbes and a party of ladies. They went to Bishop yesterday afternoon and from there on to-day.

Under-Sheriff Holland has returned from his camping trip to Kern River. He says there are more people camped there this year than he ever saw before, and most of them from the other side. He expects the remainder of the party in a few days.

The Meads Brothers passed through town yesterday en route for Mojave with their big team. They had hung up for about a month through the hottest part of the season and to get their hay crop in. They expect to make regular trips from this on.

John Baxter brought to this office to-day a basket of clingstone peaches that cannot be equaled outside of Inyo county for size and flavor. Owens Valley beats the world on fruit production.

A. W. D. Carrol was up from Lone Pine yesterday. Mr. Carroll, in company with W. L. Hunter and C. Muiholland, expect to start for the country about Mt. Williamson to-morrow prepared to take a series of views of the unrivalled mountain scenery in that wonderful country.

Will Not Subscribe.

The managers of the proposed Mid-Winter Fair to be held at San Francisco have sent out circulars to the various counties in the state asking assistance. In most cases the supervisors have ignored or rejected the application. The supervisors of this county received a request for $1,000, and after consultation have justly decided to reject it. This county would not begin to receive benefits commensurate with the amount expended. Of far more material benefit would be a fitting representation at the coming Irrigation Congress to be held at Los Angeles. The San Francisco fair will be a fizzle. The wealthy men of that place who should subscribe liberally have refused to do so. The Southern Pacific has not put up a cent, and its offer has a six inch cable to it. Most of the subscriptions already made have come from retail dealers in small amounts. Mrs. Stanford's big subscription was a fraud. She never subscribed a cent. A contribution has been levied on the boot-blacks and newsboys, who have subscribed various amounts from one cent to one dollar. The thing will end in a notorious scandal, and our supervisors have shown sound judgment in refusing to pungle.

Railroad Changes.

The V. & T. R. R. Co. has reduced the salaries of all its officers and employes, the reduction to take effect at once. All who receive $100 a month or more are reduced 20 per cent, and all who receive less than $100 per month are reduced 10 per cent. As the engineers of that road belong to the Storey county Mechanics' Union, there is likely to be some trouble. From Mr. Laws we learn that no change will be made in the pay of the train hands on the C. & C at present. Hereafter trains will run to Hawthorne daily from the Mound house, but only four times a week to Candelaria. The through trains to Candelaria will be run on Sundays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. This will cause the lay-off of one train crew. The engineers will all be retained and will alternate as engine wiper one week each month. John McGillis., Joe Gilman, John Ravanelle and W. Collamore will lose their places here, but it is not unlikely that they will be transferred to some other point. Will Church and J. Twaddle, telegraph operators here and and at Candelaria, will act in the capacity of brakemen and telegraph operators. Express Messenger Murphy has been dropped, and Messenger Ticknor will do it all assisted by the conductors.—Hawthorne Bulletin.

"Coin" Jinglings.

The gold bug press is apalled at the thought of "cheap money." Cheap farm products, however, do not disturb its dreams.

Nature makes no mistakes. The precious metals are found side by side in the mines of the United States and in the ratio of about 16 to 1.

If the world were to demonetize gold today, what would it be worth per ounce ten years hence? It is the demand for a thing and the limit to its production that gives it value.

The difference between monometalists and bimetalists is, that one wants all its debts paid in what we do not have and can not get, and the other wants them paid in whatever we have or can get.

The price of everything is fixed by those who want it. Wall street does not want silver and says the siver in a dollar is worth about 55 cents. The people who do want it say it is worth 100 cents.

The advocates of a single standard are constantly harping about an "honest dollar." Is a dollar honest that is worth three times as much to-day as it was two decades ago, measured by labor and the products of toil?—Coin.

An Interesting Event

About September 1st our new fall and winter Fashion Catalogue will be ready for distribution. We have aimed to make it complete in every detail. Neither time nor money has been spared to secure that end. We are prepared with the largest, most carefully selected stock on the Pacific Slope; gathered from all the World's great centers of trade, to supply any want you may have in the lines we carry. In the book you will find not only staple goods quoted at bedrock prices, but all the latest conceptions from "Dame Fashion's Realm" pictured or described. We solicit a trial order, and guarantee to fill it at prices as low or lower than made by any other house on the Coast, and all goods to be as represented. Outside commissions carefully and cheerfully executed. If you have not received a copy of our buying guide, forward your name and postoffice address and one will be sent you free of charge.

HALE BROS. & Co.
No. 825 to 835 K St and 1026 9th St.
Sacramento, Cal.

The Index evidently takes great pleasure in noting the apparent defeat of any enterprise that will benefit this country. Will the Index please state how much it has lost through Mr. Stock, or whether anybody has lost a cent? The fact is that at least the Valley is $5,000 ahead in cash on what Mr. Stock has already done. And his enterprise, if brought to a successful termination, would prove of incalculable benefit to the whole country. Is it not better to render every moral and material support to any plan that will help us all, than to cavil at it and present the worst view of it to the outside world.

Please Settle Up.

All parties indebted to the undersigned are requested to settle on or before August 25th next. All accounts then unpaid will be placed in the hands of an attorney for collection.

L. LASKY,
Lone Pine.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Regular semi-annual meeting of the Board of Education of Inyo County, will be held in Independence on Monday the 21st day of August, 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m.

Examinations will commence on Tuesday the 22nd at 9 a. m.

Applications for certificates, on credentials or examination, will file their application at least one day prior to the meeting.

J. H. SHANNON,
Sec. Board of Ed.

MISCELLANEOUS.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 49.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, Do Ordain As Follows:

SECTION 1. Section 7 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "D" at pages 89 et seq., and was amended by Ordinance No. 47, by the said Board of Supervisors, on the 5th day of April, 1893, which said amending Ordinance is recorded in Ordinance Book "E" at pages 100 et seq., is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 7. Every person who at a fixed place of business sells any malt or fermented liquors, wines or distilled liquors, whether on commission or otherwise (except vitticultural productions, when sold by the producers thereof, and fermented or malt liquors when sold by the manufacturer thereof, on the premises on which the same shall be manufactured), must obtain from the Tax-Collector, and for each branch of said business, a license, and must pay quarterly therefor the sum of Forty Dollars. And every such manufacturer of any malt or fermented liquors, who sells the same on the premises on which such liquors may or shall be manufactured must obtain from the Tax-Collector, for such business a license, and must pay quarterly therefor the sum of Twenty Dollars.

SECTION 2. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after twenty-five (25) days from its passage.

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same, in the "Inyo Independent," a newspaper printed and published in the said County of Inyo, at least two [2] weeks said publication to be made said time and before the expiration of said tweety-five [25] days.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

{SEAL}

Attest: D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 49 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the Eleventh day of July, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Supervisors Frank Fitzgerald, A. C. Freeman, John Wilson, W. H. Uhlmeyer, R. Love

Noes: None.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

{SEAL}

Attest: D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

[Endorsed.]

ORDINANCE NO. 49.

Adopted July 11, 1893

D. J. HESSION, Clerk.

Recorded July 11, 1893, in Book "E" of Ordinances, at pages 103 et seq.

D. J. HESSION,
By J. E. PARKER, Deputy. County Recorder.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNDERSIGNED, Administrator of the estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of P. W. Forbes, in the Court House, at the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the said County of Inyo, State of California.

EDWARD JOHN REYNOLDS,
Administrator of the estate of Fredrick J. Reynolds, deceased.

Dated at Independence, Cal. June 13th, 1893.
P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Administrator.
jn16 5t

JOHN B. CLARKE,

Successor to John Clarke,

—PROPRIETOR—

John Clarke's Bishop Stables,

BISHOP, CAL.

First-class Turnouts of Every Kind.

Fine Horses and Carriages.

Horses Boarded for any Time,

Best of Care and Attention

The Newest Style

OF

Fashionable Clothing

Dry Goods, Ladies'

Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries a canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain

Flour, etc., constantly

on hand.

CANDIES,

PEANUTS

WALNUTS,

TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" WARE.

SEVENTH

ANNUAL FAIR,

Agricultural District No. 18.

BISHOP, INYO CO., CAL.

Septembes 19 to 22, 1893.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS, WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neihboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finer Rings, Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the est quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packaes to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,

0-m RENO, NEVADA.

INDEPENDENCE

SHAVING PARLOR.

J. TUCKER, Prop'r.

HAIR CUTTING
IN ANY STYLE, SHAMPOOING
AND BATHS.

Adjoining Irwin's Old Corner Saloon.

DR. J. S. MC QUEEN,

DENTIST.

Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery.

All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.

Examination free. Office in H. L. Wright's Drugstore.

Wm. Muth-Rasmussen.

Bee Keeper.

Manufacturer of Comb Foundation.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

- KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE. -

STOCKTON, CAL., Dec. 19th, '92.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.

Gentlemen:—Having read one of your Treatise on the Horse and seeing the Spavin Cure advertised, I thought I would try it. I had one horse with a prominent Spavin of 12 months standing. I removed it with ½ bottle. I tied up one fore foot on same side the spavin was and compelling the horse to rest on lame leg while I took a surcingle and drew it across the hock or spavin until the hock or spavin got very warm with the friction, then putting on Spavin Cure. I find a mare that had a running from her nose for 12 or 14 months. I rubbed the Spavin Cure from her eyes down to nostrils, then from back of jaw bone down under the throat for a week. I have not seen any discharge for two months.

Yours truly, HUGH McDADE.

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Agent For

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:

Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE - CAL.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates

Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in fact, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

Thos Williams,

Proprietor.

BIG TOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

Customers supplied on all points of the C. & C. Railroad.

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

W. F. MATLACK ..... PROP'R.

Horseshoeing ..... $2.00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

INDEPENDENCE

MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROEPER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef,
Mutton,
Pork,
Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every ort made to give satisfaction to patrons.
j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE, INYO CO. CAL.

Dealer in
GENERAL
MERCHANDISE,
GROCERIES
MINERS
Supplies

PROVISIONS,

&c., &c., &c.

A. K. EUGLEY,

Bi Pine, Cal.

BELL'S Flouring Mills

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other Improvements o our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

Independence, Cal A. N. BELL.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER.
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House	10:05 a. m		6:30 p m.
Dayton	10:45 a. m.		4:50 p. m.
Wabuska	12:50 p m		2:30 p. m.
Hawthorne	4:05 p m.		10:45 a m.
Luning	5:50 p. m.		9:30 a. m.
Sodа Springs	6:40 p. m.		8:40 a m.
Belleville	7:00 p. m.		7:20 a. m.
Candelaria	Ar. 8:00 p. m	Lv.	6:45 a. m.
	No. 3.		No.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Belleville	7:50 a. m		5:35 a. m.
Benton	11:50 a. m.		1:45 p m.
Bishop Creek	1:20 p. m.		11:10 p. m.
Alvord	2:05 p. m.		10:10 p. m.
Independence	3:40 p. m.		8:40 p. m.
Lone Pine	4:20 p. m.		7:45 p. m.
Keeler	Ar. 5:20 p. m.	Lv.	7:00 p. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

AT HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (36 miles); Bodie (38 miles); Lundy and Bridgeport.

AT LUNING (125 miles from Mound House) with Gilmer, Salsbury & Co's tri weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downeyville Grantsville and Belmont.

AT CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's. stage for Columbus (8 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

AT KEELER with stages from Cerro Gordo (3 miles), Darwin (24 miles), and Mojave (110 miles)

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - Cal

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of

WINES,
LIQUORS,
& CIGARS

The most careful attention given to the amusement and comfort of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-12 td

Inyo Stage Company.

REGULAR LINE

—FROM—

Mojave To Keeler.

FINE COACH FAST STOCK.

The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful

Redrock Canyon

And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.

Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m

Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.

W. K. MILLER,
Propr.

Why not, indeed?

When the Royal Baking Powder makes finer and more wholesome food at a less cost, which every housekeeper familiar with it will affirm, why not discard altogether the old-fashioned methods of soda and sour milk, or home-made mixture of cream of tartar and soda, or the cheaper and inferior baking powders, and use it exclusively?

PULLING A PANTHER'S TOOTH.

A Chicago Surgeon Does an Interesting Piece of Dentistry.

Jack's tooth had been aching for some time. It had ulcerated, and the asperities of an already fretful and peevish temperament were not at all ameliorated by the pain. He became so petulant, indeed, that his former friends eschewed close companionship and added a couple of feet to the pitchfork wherewithal he was fed. Jack is the big South American panther traveling with Barnum & Bailey's show. It was decided that when Chicago was reached the tooth should be pulled. The disease was already preying upon the damask of Jack's cheek, but resembled concealment in no further respect, as the cheek itself was swelled. George Conklin, the tamer of lions and superintendent of the whole menagerie, gave a wise look at Jack and advanced the opinion that if the tooth were not taken out at once blood poisoning would ensue, and that in three months a fine specimen of the fauna of the western hemisphere would be laid to rest and the show would be shy about $700.

No one with science could be found where the show then was exhibiting with sufficient confidence in his qualifications for life everlasting as to be willing to take the contract. Upon the arrival of F. L. Perley, press representative, in Chicago, he went forth to look for a tiger dentist. Such are harder to catch than the creatures themselves. Dr. F. T. Eisenman, of the Veterinary college, finally consented to take chances at the tent on Michigan avenue. Although the proceeding was not necessarily for publication, but wholly designed as an evidence of good faith, no mystery was made of it. Fifteen or twenty newspaper men and others witnessed the tooth extracting.

It's different with animals than with human kind. There was no reclining padded chair for Jack; no nitrous oxide to take him back to the ravines of the Rio de la Plata where he passed his early days; no man with side whiskers to open the services by prodding the bad tooth vindictively and asking, "Is that it?"

The preparations were simple, but effective. Mr. Conklin brought several small strong ropes to the cage, and called up three stalwart and profane canvasmen, Jack looking on with a hostile eye. His claws had been manicured once and he reflected that the same iniquity was to be practiced upon him. Before he had fully made up his mind about it the handy Mr. Conklin had one of his feet in a snare and a leathern girdle about his waist, and in ten minutes the ex-terror of South American forests could only quiver.

At each leg was a rope; at the nether end was a canvasman, with the cord further secured by a "half hitch" about a stake. Mr. Conklin, cool and cheerful, was sitting by Jack's side, holding strap and collar, while another canvasman, ambitious in the tiger taming line, kept a gag in the trembling animal's mouth. It was another triumph of applied science over nervous ferocity and brute energy.

Dr. Eisenman was a bit nervous, and it required some time for him to remove the tooth with knife and tong. It was the left upper canine tooth and an inch and one-half long. The panther winced and wailed, and to Mr. Conklin's consoling observation, "I once saw a man from Wisconsin have a tooth pulled with less than half the kick," Jack responded only by swearing vigorously in strange pantarean oaths. But it was over, and the sufferer, covered with blood and still game for quarrel, panted into a corner, and an attendant with sponge and pole made fugitive "swipes" at the crimson jaw.—Chicago Tribune.

A Guide to the City.

"Would you like to be shown over the city, sir?"

The question was asked in one of the most popular of up town cafes by a young man who wore clothing of fashionable cut and wore it as if used to it. His face was honest and intelligent, and his manners, in spite of his abrupt question, were those of a gentleman.

"I am a professional guide to New York," he continued, handing the writer an engraved card. "I take visitors to see anything there is to be seen in this town. If a man comes here and wants to see the 'good' places of interest, I take him, but by far the greater part of my income is derived from taking men to see the 'seamy' side. I do not charge much. Five dollars and whatever expenses a man wants to incur pays the bill."

"Where do you get your customers?" was asked.

"When a stranger comes to town he goes to a hotel. He has an evening or a day to spare and wants to enjoy life. But he doesn't know where to go, and as a general thing, he asks the advice of the hotel clerk. Then I am sent for and off we go.

"I take patrons to the theaters, the park, Coney Island, the big newspaper offices and the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Lots of people like to go there. The big bridge seems to be the great Mecca, however. Some people want to go to the cemeteries. The cathedral is asked for very often.

"How did I get into the business? Well, it was laziness, I guess. I am a college graduate, and I couldn't bring myself to sit on a clerk's chair all day long. I can easily make thirty-five dollars a week, and gentlemen are frequently so delighted with their experiences that they give me fifteen or twenty dollars more than the original price agreed upon. I have made as much as $115 a week—that was during the centennial celebration."—New York World.

That the quietest and meekest looking witnesses can sometimes give a Roland for an Oliver, many an examining counsel has found to its cost. A witness, an elderly Quaker gentleman, had a little habit of making plentiful use of the word "also" in his replies. At length the young barrister in whose hands he was, apparently wishing to show his smartness to the jury, asked sneeringly whether "likewise" would not do as well.

"No," replied the Quaker with prompt wit; "the difference is this: There are some lawyers with talents most brilliant. Now, thou art a lawyer, young friend, 'also,' but surely not 'likewise.'"—London Tit-Bits.

A hopeless selfishness indeed is that which thinks it is serving others, while really serving only itself.

The first lighthouse built in America was at St. Augustine, Fla. It is now believed that it was originally used as a watch tower.

One Thing George Didn't Know.

They were walking on a hillside overlooking Lake Champlain.

"George, dear," she said, "how charming it is to get away from the heated city and its artificial life and spend a few weeks among these simple rustics. What are those little green things growing on those trees? They look like gooseberries."

"Those are apples, Mabel."

"George, how absurd you are! Apples! Those little things? I'm going to ask this wee country girl and see."

"Nonsense, Mabel, don't display your ignorance. Don't you think I know? Those are apples in their first stage, far from ripe yet, small and green. Gooseberries don't grow on trees, anyway; they grown on bushes."

"Dear George, how clever you are to know all those things. Where did you learn it all? How heavily the trees are loaded! All but one. Look at that one. Look at that one, George. It has no apples at all on it. What is the reason of that, dear?"

"Well, really, Mabel, I know a good deal about things in general, but it's a little difficult to say just why that tree has no apples. I presume the farmer has picked them all."

"But, George, how could the apples on one tree ripen so far ahead of the other?"

"Perhaps he likes them green."

"Then why not pick some of the other trees?"

"What a little tease it is," said he. "Perhaps the wind shook them off, perhaps caterpillars destroyed the buds, perhaps a dozen things, dear. Agriculture is a precarious pursuit."

"Now, George, dear, just let me see if this little girl knows."

"Little girl, can you tell me why this tree has not a single apple on it, while the others are fairly loaded?"

"Cauth itth not an apple tree, ma'am."

And it wasn't.—New York Tribune.

Nursery Methods in Universities.

The new university can cut itself loose from the time worn English college curriculum and its much patched American equivalent, with its system of favored studies and false incentives. It can give to each line of work the time and freedom it needs, thus leaving all questions of the relative value of studies to be settled by the student for himself. The new school can treat its students as men, and not as children. The nursery should cease where the university begins, and the university student should not do his work in the child's fear of "the rod behind the mirror." The new school can rest its impulse for work on the desire for knowledge, the eternal "hunger and thirst which only the student knows," the only basis on which scholarship can rest.

Marks, honors, prizes, degrees even, are incentives which belong to the nursery days. They date from the time when the youth of the aristocracy must be coaxed or driven to a resemblace of culture. All these things are forms, and forms only, and the substance of our higher education is fast outgrowing them. College marks, college honors, college courses, college degrees, the college itself as distinguished from the university on the one hand and the public school on the other—all these belong with the college cap and gown, and the wreath of laurel berries to the babyhood of culture. They are part of our inheritance of the past, from the time when scholarship was not manhood, when the life of the student had no relation to the life of the world.—David S. Jordan in Forum.

Reaction in Goodness.

Quite too little is made of the law of action and reaction in the study of human nature. The very best efforts that can be put forth for virtue lead to enfeeblement and exhaustion, and so the chances are there will be a temporary lapse into the vulgarity of vice. "It is a dangerous thing," says Dr. Holmes, "to be as funny as you can." It is, I say, dangerous to be as good as you can. Don't you touch a minister after he has preached a really noble sermon. Don't cross him! Don't criticise him! He is exhausted of goodness and will be surely soured, or else depressed and disheartened by your adverseness. I expect he will say things very unpleasant and quite out of harmony with his discourse.

I should not be surprised if he was at once in a rage, and made you give up all your good opinion to him as a holy man. Oh, fie! You are unjust. The man is suffering reaction. You ask too much. You expect him to be ideally right all the time, whereas by the law of nature he must be lacking in common sense a part of each day. You require too much of him. Others turn on you in the same way, and so there is great discord that is caused by our not understanding how to judge human nature.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Diphtheria from Barnyard Fowls.

Dr. Turner states that an epidemic of diphtheria broke out in the village of Braughing, Hertfordshire, England, the first cases occurring on a farm where the fowls were dying of a disease of the throat, and on other farms where the children had diphtheria a similar malady of the fowls prevailed. At Longham a man bought a chicken at a low price, as it was sick with the prevailing disease, and cared for it at home. His children soon sickened with diphtheria, which extended from his family through the village. Dr. Turner mentions similar instances showing that the feathered tribe, the common barnyard fowl, turkeys, pigeons and in one locality pheasants, died of a disease attended by a pseudo-membranous exudation which was probably diphtheritic.—Dr. J. Lewis Smith in Babyhood.

Make a Banana Peel Itself.

A trick which works on a simple principle is to make a banana peel itself. To do this all that is wanted is a bottle, a ripe banana and a bit of paper wet with alcohol. Light the paper and drop it into this bottle. When the air in the bottle is well heated set the banana on end on top and let it do the rest itself; as the air on the inside cools off and contracts the outside pressure pushes the banana down into the bottle until it has drawn itself out of its skin.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

After the passage of an electric storm there is quite an appreciable amount of ozone in the atmosphere, so much so that its presence may frequently be detected by exposing a piece of blotting paper, previously dipped in a solution of starch and iodine of potash, when it will be turned blue.—New York Recorder.

WOES OF MEXICAN BRIDEGROOMS.

Resulting from One of the Peculiar Customs That Prevail There.

The peculiar custom of an engaged young man buying his future wife's wedding outfit is not likely to be transplanted to the United States. It would certainly be unpopular there, and would tend to make marriages exceedingly infrequent. It prevails here, however, to the distress of many worthy but impecunious young men.

Young men come up to the City of Mexico from interior towns and lay in a stock of finery for their prospective wives.

It is a touching sight to see a young man, armed with all the measurements of his inamorata, going about from shop to shop, sometimes assisted by obliging lady friends, purchasing the wedding toggery. A man a-shopping is always a pitiful sight, but a young fellow with no experience in shopping trying to do his prettiest for a momentous occasion is enough to make the gods on Olympus weep.

Sometimes the parents will not allow the young man to buy more than a few articles, such as the wedding dress and slippers. But then such is the swain's ardor and superheated generosity that he almost ruins himself in an endeavor to display even in these restricted gifts his taste and liberality.

A case I have heard of occurred here some time ago. A young man from the United States had fallen desperately in love with a most charming and estimable young lady resident in a large interior city. He learned of the custom of purchasing the bride's outfit from a sympathizing friend. Yankeelike, he determined to have everything go off in the finest possible shape. So he purchased a couple of thousand dollars' worth of dresses, etc., all according to the fascinating dimensions of his beloved.

He secured the promise of a very swell wedding in the fashionable church, engaging the most expensive musicians, ordering rare flowers in profusion, etc. The wedding went off like a charm, and captivated the fancy of the elite portion of the female population of the city. Nothing so regally splendid had ever been seen before, and the Yankee caballero was voted a perfect gentleman, and a man of taste and wealth.

The enthusiastic young bridegroom, in order to put the finishing touch on his display, bought a barouche and four fine horses, engaged coachmen and outriders, and, amid the enthusiastic acclamations of his acquaintances, started off with his wife for a city 180 miles away, where they were to live. The pretty bride was enchanted. A young prince had descended from some unknown height to be her lover and husband, and she departed in a blaze of glory.

On the wedding journey a sad misadventure befell the loving pair; the barouche broke down at a point where it could not be repaired, for the road led through a desolate country, and so, improvising saddles, the young couple rode on the backs of their horses some fifty miles to their future home. I am glad to say that this mishap was no evil augury, and that the wedded pair lived happy ever after.—Mexico Cor. Boston Herald.

Work of the Cryogene.

A remarkable apparatus, called a cryogene, has been designed for producing a temperature of from 90 to 100 degs. below the zero of the Fahrenheit scale by the expansion of liquid carbonic acid. The apparatus consists of two concentric vessels with a smaller annular space between them. A spiral coil is placed inside the inner vessel, and this is put in communication with a closed vessel containing liquefied carbonic acid gas. At its lower end the coil is connected with the annular space, and at its upper a stopcock is fixed.

When experiments are to be made the inner vessel is filled with alcohol, the stop cock on the carbonic acid vessel fully opened and the cock on the spiral partially opened, when the liquid passes slowly into the coil and takes the form of snow. From the coil it passes into the annular chamber, in which are placed pieces of sponge soaked in alcohol, which arrest all acid which has not become gaseous, while the gas itself passes out of the apparatus through a bent tube. The inventor claims that with about 5¼ pints of alcohol in the inner vessel and with the consumption of 4½ to 5½ pounds of liquid carbonic a temperature of 85 degs. Fahrenheit can be obtained in a few minutes.—New York Telegram.

Plain Country Living.

"I suppose it's very unfashionable of me and frightfully bad form," said a woman of experience, as she returned home from a dinner party, "but to tell you the plain, honest truth, I would rather go up in the country to Aunt Jeannette's and sit down to one of her dinners, made up of lima beans, chicken fricassee, fresh lettuce, baked potatoes and old fashioned rice pudding, than to attempt to eat the finest course dinner ever prepared by the highest priced French chef.

"I don't know whether it is constitutional or not, but such dinners never did agree with me very well. They are spiced and seasoned and made up until the original flavor of the dish is often destroyed. Besides, the seasoning throws me into a violent fever.

"I never allow very highly seasoned dishes on my table at home, and after I have dined out I am almost always nearly consumed with thirst for twenty-four hours. Of course, French cooking is an institution, and one that is likely to remain with us; but, all the same, I don't like it, and I don't think such food is wholesome for a steady diet."—New York Ledger.

Take Rest.

There is no better preventive or guard against nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, brain fag, than regular, pleasant, unhurried muscular exercise—exercise in which we do not feel hurried; if we could control our hurry, lessen our worry and increase our open air exercise, a very large percentage of our nervous diseases would be abolished; change of occupation, though still be labor, often brings with it rest, from the fact that the change brings into use parts of the body or brain which before were not in use, thus resting the parts overtaxed and developing the parts unused.—Chicago Women's News.

Intimated He Was Not Able.

Justice Kay, an English judge, irritated by Counsel Oswald's tediousness, at last got a chance to correct him in his law. So he said, "I must teach you law, Mr. Oswald, as I can't teach you manners." "Exactly so, if your ludship pleases," was Mr. Oswald's merciless retort.—San Francisco Argonaut.

Face Painting Among the Fijians.

Among the Fijians face painting is carried to the extreme—e. g., face all scarlet, except nose, which is black; face divided like a quartered heraldic shield, and painted red and black or white; black face, white nose, scarlet ring about each eye, and a white crescent on forehead, etc.

ODDS AND ENDS.

For insomnia in summer time take a cold bath at bedtime.

There are said to be 60,000 homeless wanderers in London.

Indian bones in large quantities are being unearthed at Milton, Ind.

The earliest mining schools were established in Saxony about 1500.

Many there be who buy nothing with their money but repentance.

There are more than 2,000 varieties of apples raised in the United States.

THE OLD HOME.

For many a year the gable glowed in the red of the passing day,
And the evening light on the old brick chimneys slowly died away.
There in the ancient attic, under the garment-hung beams,
Children dreamed, in the herb scented air, no end of waking dreams
Of those who had sat in the high back chairs, clad in comical things;
Of the plated shoe buckles, the spinning wheel, the fiddle devoid of strings;
As in the helmet, and crazy calash, and bonnets wonderfully made,
They danced about on the nut strewn floor in half frightened masquerade.

At night, snugly tucked in a trundle bed, their sleepy eyes would rove
Where the moonlight glimmered on a warming pan or revealed an old footstove.
No furnace then in the meeting house, and of footstoves there was need
For those who couldn't keep warm enough by hearing the Calvin creed.
And in the cedar roofed garret, they heard the sleet on the dormer pane,
Or listened, in dreamy, lazy content, to the whisper and patter of rain;
Then slept till they heard from the barnyard the morning challenge shrill,
And the distant rooster's answers were drowned by the coffee mill.

Below on the high, wide mantel, in festooonery quaint and old,
The tall and the short brass candlesticks were polished to look like gold;
There were the bright andirons, and the bellows florally gay,
And a glass protected corner where the nice old blue china lay,
And the charming old lady in snow white cap, with tender, tender eyes!
A boy's ideal of what one should be in relation to doughnuts and pies.
By the kitchen doorstone does she not stand, just as we saw her then,
Pleasantly fondling a jealous cat and tossing crumbs to a hen!

The gate to the box bordered garden clicked to with bail and chain;
Such fruit and such flowers as grew there can never be grown again.
There the feathery fennel flourished, by which grandmother set great store,
And the sunflowers turned in various ways, on the path from the gate to the door.
At the end of the gooseberry walk was the orchard of ancient trees,
Where orioles haunted the branches, and green apples dropped in the breeze.
Ah, me! it seemed that all must go on in just the accustomed way,
In the drowsy bumblebee stillness of the long ago midsummer day.

—George E. Townsend in New York Sun.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER.

There Should Be Perfect Confidence Between Them on All Subjects.

A girl's mother should be her best friend—for many years of her life her nearest and dearest friend. If she marries this place should be filled by her husband, but, until then, no one should usurp the mother's right to the closest intimacy with her child. How many of you mothers can say that you are your daughters' most intimate friends? I am afraid very few. Where does the fault lie, and is it altogether on either side? Perhaps it is chiefly with the mother, who does not take advantage of her opportunities to win the confidence of her child for life.

Every child has an individual character that may be modified by training or by circumstances, but can never be wholly changed. Different temperaments require varied treatment, some yielding more and some less to the influences brought to bear on them. Do you realize that you are molding your child's mind by daily touches, each one too slight in itself to effect any result, yet all together giving it as a bias that alters the whole?

There are many things which a girl should learn from her mother, and which it would be easy for you to tell her, if there were an unbroken habit of confidence from earliest childhood. It is a mistaken idea—so utterly false and mischievous it must have been originated by the very spirit of evil—that there is a want of delicacy in a mother speaking to her child of subjects which are absolutely essential to her future welfare. How a mother can be cruel enough to let her child go forth to meet life unprotected by such knowledge passes comprehension. The tender, delicate being is placed in our keeping. If you look back on your own childhood, you will know that early, very early, before you dream of approaching danger, the veil of ignorance, which too many confound with purity, will be rent asunder by other hands than yours. You will be robbed of what ought to be your dearest privilege.

Forestall those who would take it from you. When your little girl comes to you with questions about the mysteries of life which trouble her innocent soul, never put her off with foolish legends and explanations which do not explain. Tell her simply and truthfully all that you wish your mother had told you. Make it a sacred confidence between her and yourself—something not to be spoken of to any one else. She will feel a new sense of dignity and importance from the mere fact that her mother has trusted her.

As she grows older do not be afraid to talk to her of the sacredness and beauty of the love and marriage that has not been thought unworthy of being chosen as a type of the relation between Christ and his church. She will not indulge in silly flirtations if you have done your part faithfully. She will know that while love is the crown of a woman's existence, it may never come to her, and that marriage without it is a mockery of the consecrated name.

It is only by encouraging childish confidences, and by treating them with the same seriousness that your child does, you can retain your hold upon her and make her feel that there is no confidante in the world to be compared to her mother.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Looking Ahead.

The coming woman—she who is playing with her doll today—is going to be well equipped with the small silver for her coming establishment. The custom of giving single spoons on birthdays and at Christmas time to the little daughters of the home is becoming so prevalent that some silversmiths keep duplicate patterns for regular customers. The coffee and dessert spoons are selected in harlequin patterns; the tablespoons and the forks are preferred of a single design.

In some family circles different members take upon themselves the providing of one certain set of silver; as, for instance, grandmother elects to give the dessert forks, an aunt the dinner size, a mother the tablespoons, and a father, perhaps, the dinner knives, and so on. A single piece is selected for each holiday, bearing the proper date and name, and when the small miss becomes a large one, exchanging eight years for eighteen, she has a case of solid silver that represents a considerable sum, and is a valuable start in her housekeeping.

Another pretty custom in the same direction is the reversal of this just recounted, where the children contribute, each of them, on mamma's birthday to the home silver basket.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

A Liverpool hotel has placed in each room a telephone connected with the office.

They say at Sierra Leone, "If a woman speaks two words, take one and leave the other."

The state of Massachusetts is said to have the most valuable records of any state in the Union.

A young Ohio girl has suffered so severely from neuralgia that her hair has turned perfectly white.

The largest tomb in the world is the pyramid of Cheops, 461 feet high and covering 13 acres of ground.

At the bookstores they tell us that the demand for Spanish grammars and conversation books during the last three months has been enormous. It seems as if our people had suddenly taken the notion to master the language which our discoverer spoke. So perhaps there was more truth than poetry in what Senor Don Obarto Chatfield-Taylor told the infanta last Tuesday, to wit: "The Spanish language is spoken everywhere!"

Of course we all know that Mayor Harrison speaks Spanish as well as he does French, Italian, Russian, Swedish, Polish, German, Arabic, Greek, Choctaw, etc. His English is considerably involved at times and faulty in other respects, but we have never felt qualified to criticise those other "tongues of men and of angels" wherewith he professes so thorough an acquaintance, or is, to use his very words, "so handy." We take it for granted that Mr. Higinbotham is a fluent linguist. At any rate we'll trust any man to get along without serious difficulty who has dealt so persuasively with concessionnaires. As for Fred W. Peck, he's all right, and so is Lyman J. Gage. If you fancy that Mr. Gage doesn't understand French, just step into his bank and try to borrow 20,000 francs for 30 days without good security.

Still we're not saying that these gentlemen are those who have been creating a "corner" in Spanish grammars and conversation books. We gather from what the clerks in the book stores tells us that the demand for those textbooks has come very largely from that class known as society people—the folk, in fine, who take a curious pride in the companionship of titled persons coming from over sea. Standard literature is temporarily neglected, and for the nonce the great literary center of the North American continent is metamorphosed into a babel, or, if you please, a gigantic bird store.—Chicago News-Record.

Boys Struggle With a Fish.

An exciting combat between a 9-year-old lad and a 32-pound German carp took place on James Moore's farm, near Bristol, yesterday. The Neshaminy creek in rainy seasons fills the ditches of adjacent farms with water from 18 inches to 2 feet deep. Yesterday David Cherry, the youngest son of John Cherry of this place, and two small companions went fishing up the creek. In one of the open ditches on the Moore farm the lads espied three huge carps flopping about, the water being too shallow for them to swim without greatly disturbing the surface. David, pluckier than his playmates, jumped into the ditch and seized the largest of the monster fish. The carp, nearly as big as the boy, had the advantage, being in its native element.

Young Cherry had tight hold of it, but the carp plunged through the water and mud, dragging the lad behind. The boys on shore thought their companion would surely be drowned, for often his whole body was under water. At last the fish grew so weary in his mighty efforts to escape his captor that he could be thrown out upon the bank. Then all three boys jumped upon the carp and held him to the ground until he had gasped out his life. They lugged their trophy home and put it on the scales. The fish weighed 32 pounds.

HOITT'S OAK GROVE SCHOOL.

Hoitt's Oak Grove School, Millbrae, San Mateo Co., Cal. A first-class home school for boys. Beautiful surroundings. Superior instruction. The best of care. Its graduates for 1893 are admitted to the State University or Stanford University without examination. Number of pupils limited. Fall term commences August 1st. Send for catalogue, and mention this paper. Ira G. Hoitt, Ph. D., Master, Ex-State Superintendent Public Instruction.

A young woman who sang in the choir
Fell asleep, then awoke screaming fhoir;
The committee it met,
Their opinions were set,
And now a new singer they'll hoir.

ERUPTION OF THE SKIN CURED.

Ed. Venney, Brockville, Ontario, Canada, says:

"I have used BRANDRETH'S PILLS for the past fifteen years, and think them the best cathartic and anti-bilious remedy known. For some five years I suffered with an eruption of the skin that gave me great pain and annoyance. I tried different blood remedies, but although gaining strength the itching was unrelieved. I finally concluded to take a thorough course of BRANDRETH'S PILLS. I took six each night for four nights, then five, four, three, two, lessening each time by one, and then for one month took one every night, with the happy result that now my skin is perfectly clear and has been so ever since."

Of course most of man's wickedness comes from his bad heart, but some of his meanness comes from a bad liver.

How to Come to a Stop.

SAINT JACOBS OIL TRY IT

When we least expect them, accidents will befall us, a verification of the old adage that the unexpected always happens. The following recites how an active business man was suddenly brought down.

THE TRAIN STOPS.

CINCIN., O.—"Recently while in the act of alighting from my car, I stepped upon a stone, which, turning suddenly under my foot, threw me to the ground, with a severely sprained ankle.

THE MANAGER STOPS.

Suffering exceedingly, I was helped into my car, and my man rubbed me most generously with arnica and kindred remedies, but to no avail.

A POINT TO STOP AT.

Reaching a station where St. Jacobs Oil could be procured, two bottles of it were bought, and the application of it resulted at once in a relief from pain, which had well nigh become unbearable. I was out and about my work in three days."

W. W. PEABODY,
Prest. & Genl. Man. O. & M. R. R.

THAT'S THE ST. JACOBS OIL POINT

The Pain Stops.

S.S.S. CURES MALARIAL POISON

Nature should be assisted to throw off impurities of the blood. Nothing does it so well, so promptly, or so safely as Swift's Specific.

LIFE HAD NO CHARMS.

For three years I was troubled with malarial poison, which caused my appetite to fail, and I was greatly reduced in flesh, and life lost all its charms. I tried mercurial and potash remedies, but to no effect. I could get no relief. I then decided to try S.S.S. A few bottles of this wonderful medicine made a complete and permanent cure, and I now enjoy better health than ever.

J. A. RICE, Ottawa, Kan.

Our book on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free.

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

PISO'S CURE FOR
Consumptives and people who have weak lungs or Asthma, should use Piso's Cure for Consumption. It has cured thousands. It has not injured one. It is not bad to take. It is the best cough syrup. Sold everywhere. 25c.
CONSUMPTION.

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

The man in the moon is a generous chap, for he doesn't quit until after he's past his last quarter.

DECIDEDLY SHAKY.

A trembling hand, an uncertain step, fidgetiness, indicated by restless shifting from one place or posture to another, usually mental annoyance at unexpected noises, are among the indications of extreme nervousness. These seem trifling, but the health of men and women in this condition is "decidedly shaky," liable to be overthrown disastrously by causes which the vigorous might defy. To fortify the nervous system, general vigor must, through the medium of reinforced digestion, and a renewal of an impaired power of sleeping at night, be raised to a healthful standard. A guarantee of this is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which re-establishes digestion, bile secretion and the habit of body on a permanently regular basis, thus renewing that bodily equilibrium, which is followed by a gain of strength and nerve tranquility. For kidney complaint, rheumatism, neuralgia, and as a preventive of the first attack or subsequent return of malarial disorders, this medicine is without a peer. Thrice daily take a wineglassful.

The Chinese Hand—The Chinese hand is small, slim and with square phalanges.—Popular Science Monthly. And four or five aces.—Chicago Dispatch.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Like Father Like Son—Mother—Willie, here is a dose of oil. Come, take it like a man. Willie—All right. Where's the whiskey?

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell

Try Germea for Breakfast.

A DISTURBANCE

isn't what you want, if your stomach and bowels are irregular. That's about all you get, though, with the ordinary pill. It may relieve you for the moment, but you're usually in a worse state afterward than before.

This is just where Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets do most good. They act in an easy and natural way, very different from the huge, old-fashioned pills. They're not only pleasanter, but there's no reaction afterward, and their help lasts. One little sugar-coated pellet for a gentle laxative or corrective—three for a cathartic. Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Dizziness, Sick and Bilious Headaches, are promptly relieved and cured.

They're the smallest, the easiest to take—and the cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You pay only for the good you get.

"German Syrup"

My acquaintance with Boschee's German Syrup was made about fourteen years ago. I contracted a cold which resulted in a hoarseness and cough which disabled me from filling my pulpit for a number of Sabbaths. After trying a physician, without obtaining relief I saw the advertisement of your remedy and obtained a bottle. I received quick and permanent help. I never hesitate to tell my experience. Rev. W. H. Haggerty, Martinsville, N. J.

$75.00 to $250.00 can be made monthly working for B. F. JOHNSON & CO., RICHMOND, VA.

DR. GUNN'S ONION SYRUP FOR COUGHS, COLDS AND CROUP.

GRANDMOTHER'S ADVICE.

In raising a family of nine children, my only remedy for Coughs, Colds and Croup was onion syrup. It is just as effective to-day as it was forty years ago. Now my grandchildren take Dr. Gunn's Onion Syrup which is already prepared and more pleasant to the taste. Sold everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents. Take no substitute for it. There's nothing as good.

BLOOD POISON A SPECIALTY. Primary, Secondary or Tertiary Syphilis permanently cured in 15 to 35 days. You can be treated at home for the same price and the same guarantees; with those who prefer to come here we will contract to cure them or refund money and pay expense of coming, railroad fare and hotel bills, if we fail to cure. If you have taken mercury, iodide potash, and still have aches and pains, Mucous Patches in mouth, Sore Throat, Pimples, Copper-Colored Spots, Ulcers on any part of the body, Hair or Eyebrows falling out, it is this Syphilitic BLOOD POISON that we guarantee to cure. We solicit the most obstinate cases and challenge the world for a case we cannot cure. This disease has always baffled the skill of the most eminent physicians. $500,000 capital behind our unconditional guarantee. Absolute proofs sent sealed on application. Address COOK REMEDY CO., 135 to 1331 Masonic Temple, Chicago, Ill.

PATENTS
BEST LEGAL ADVICE. BEST PATENTS OBTAINED.
DEWEY & CO.,
220 MARKET ST., SAN FRANCISCO,
WASHINGTON, D. C., LONDON, ETC.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE
Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

Life and Strength

Are given to weak and frail children in wonderful manner by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Mr. Edward Hilbert, Lawrence, Mass., says: "Our daughter, Etta, had little strength when a baby. When two and one half years old she had frequent fainting spells. We gave her Hood's Sarsaparilla. Her general health improved until she became healthy and rugged. We give her

Etta Hilbert.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

occasionally now, whenever she complains of that tired feeling.

Hood's Pills cure Constipation by restoring the peristaltic action of the alimentary canal.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

THIS GREAT COUGH CURE promptly cures where all others fail. Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will CURE YOU if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER, 25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY.

Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50cts. Injector free.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES

ITCHING PILES known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and BLIND, BLEEDING or PROTRUDING PILES YIELD AT ONCE TO DR. BO-SAN-KO'S PILE REMEDY, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING
For sale by all Druggists. 25 Cents a bottle.

HERCULES

Gas and Gasoline

ENGINES

Hundreds of them Sold and in Use

Hercules -:- Engines

..... FOR .....

Launches, Schooners, Tow Boats,

—ALSO FOR—

Wood-working Machinery, Bean Cleaning Machinery, Hoisting Works in mines, running machine shops, shoe factories, churns, carpet-beating machinery, ice cream freezers, electric dynamos, sewing machines, printing machinery, electric motors, paint mills, elevators, pumping water, sawing lumber, bottling soda water, sawing wood, and many other classes of work.

NO COAL

To haul when running the Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine; no ashes, smell or dirt. Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day. For simplicity and success it beats the world. The workmanship the best.

NO MAN who has water to pump, machinery to run, hoisting to do, etc., can afford to be without a Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine. Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question. No double or false explosions.

Palmer & Rey Type Foundry
MANUFACTURER,
405 SANSOME ST., SAN FRANCISCO.

S. F. N. U. No. 578. New Series No. 29

"DON'T BORROW TROUBLE." BUY

SAPOLIO

'TIS CHEAPER IN THE END.

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF

Moore's Revealed Remedy.

ASTORIA, OREGON, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use o MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case o RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude

MRS. N. V. STEELE.

SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

INYO INDEPENDENT.
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.
Independence, Cal.
FRIDAY, AUGUST 25, 1893.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

VOL. XXV. NO. 10. INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CAL., AUGUST 25, 1893. WHOLE NO. 1191

INYO INDEPENDENT
COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.
IRV. H. MULHOLLAND, Editor & Proprietor.

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One Year (post paid)	$1 00
Six Months	2.25
Three Months	1.50
One Month	.50
Single Copies	.10

HOW WE HUNG RED SHED

Where or how he had dug up the name of Shed no one ever knew or cared, I reckon. But his big, round, red face, heavy red beard and brick dust hair plainly have to answer for the first part of his name. He was a big, stupid and heavy man, with a low, soft voice and a kindly manner, with very little to say. He did not use a jackknife to whittle dry goods boxes and hitching posts like most men when loafing about the door of the saloon, but stood with his big, heavy legs wide apart, his broad shoulders stooped and his hands thrust deep in his pockets, as if on the deck of a ship.

Sid Berry, his partner, had a pack train and a big, burly wife with a jaw like a wolf trap. She could ride a mule and she could drive a mule as well as a Mexican could, and that meant that she could swear terribly. No one knew where Berry and the woman came from. In fact, nobody knew or cared to know where anybody came from. We had all tumbled in there together when gold was found—a long line of us on our way from California, through the wilderness to Idaho. We had found gold by chance one day about noon, and before night we had a "city" staked off, and every man, the big woman included, had a lot and a mining claim. We did not know where we were; we only knew that we were several hundred miles from the nearest white habitation; that we were a lawless mob and so must have law and order; a recorder to record or claims and town lots, a judge to pass judgment, and a sheriff to enforce it.

And so one night, by the light of a great pine knot fire in the center of the "city square," the men and that woman met and elected Mr. Goodwin, now a rich and respected wholesale merchant in San Francisco, recorder. Tom Hound, the butcher, was elected sheriff and the writer of this, judge.

Shed had a big, woolly, black dog devoted to him, and that woman was devoted to him too. We boys all saw this very soon. Where there is only about one woman and a half to several hundred men, the boys are apt to see what is up.

The pack train was off soon for The Dalles, 200 miles distant, Berry, his big wife, Shed, the big woolly dog and all together. In a month the caravan came back all right, and we had the city already built. And we had a graveyard started up on the hill, too, for we had taken some whisky with us from California.

After a time the pack train started for The Dalles again, Berry, his big wife, Red Shed, the woolly dog and all.

One morning four miners met the pack train about half way from The Dalles, as they were coming back to Canyon City with horses loaded with supplies. The big woman rode the bell mule at the head of the pack train and swore lustily at the men and their laden horses for not getting out of her way faster. Behind the pack train came Red Shed shuffling along, leading his horse, and with head held down. The dog was not to be seen and Berry was not in sight, either.

But as they crossed a spur of the mountain and came to a creek they saw off to the right, or rather the first bend, old woolly howling dismally by the edge of a thicket. The dog did not seem to see them or notice them, but would start on after the pack train, then stop and howl, as if to tell the big woman and Red Shed that they had forgotten something.

So when the dog, after howling a minute or so, turned about and ran back into the thicket, one of the men handed his bridle to the miner nearest him in the trail, and, gun in hand, went to see what was up.

There lay Berry in the edge of the bush dead—shot through the head, his hair all blood, and his torn clothes all dust from having been dragged there.

The men wrote everything down in a little note book with a pencil, so that there could be no mistake about the facts, and then, having nothing to dig a grave with, they found a hollow place not far off on the hillside and laid the body there, covering it with a heap of stones.

They said nothing when they got back till the pack train came in, Shed, the big woman, the big woolly dog too.

The next day after the pack train got back Tom Hound, the sheriff, called at the big woman's camp. She was washing a pair of blankets and the water was bloody. She told Hound that Shed had killed an antelope and tied it while yet warm on top of his pack.

Where was Berry? Oh, Berry and she had divided up at The Dalles; he had gone his way and she had come her way, "and that is all there is of that!"

Her fingers snapped in the air, she tossed her big head as she turned on her big heel and her jaws snapped like a steel trap.

Hound found Shed, the shadowy old dog at his heels, out on the hill with the mules. His feet wide apart, his hands deep in his pockets and his head bent low, he was watching a little colony of ants reforming their curious little city. A mule had set its foot in this ant hill, and the big man, with head down, was so busy, so sorry as he watched them that he did not see or hear Hound till his hand was on his shoulder.

"All right, Tom; only let me lead the mules down to water and sort er herd 'em up a bit."

The trial was held in the city square that night by the light of a big log fire. And the dog was surely the only friend that Red Shed had. The big woman was not there. Why she was not there, why she was not then a prisoner and on trial also does seem strange—passing strange. But ah, those were the days when women had women's rights to perfection. For after the trial and the sentence of death had been passed—and all rather hastily, so that the boys might not lose any sleep, but be up in good time to see the hanging—the court on his way to his cabin saw her "placidly" taking down a pair of blankets from the clothesline.

Hound worked all night and got up a first rate scaffold by the little graveyard. In fact, any one to look at it would have said it was equal to the scaffolds of a much older civilization.

"'Bout noon suit you, Shed?"

"All right, Tom; 'bout noon."

"Thought I'd kinder like to let the boys git in from round about. They don't have much to 'muse 'em, you know."

"All right, Tom; let 'em git in."

It was a warm day to be so late in the fall. There were four of us on the scaffold—Shed, Hound, the dog and myself. Shed had sent Hound to ask me to say something, or at least help sing. But it was awful to be there! The dog kept rolling his big, woolly head up against Shed's tied legs and whining and whining all the time, as if it were he and not quiet and passive old Red Shed that was to be hanged.

There was an immense crowd; a queer, curious crowd. It came up so close that it jammed against the new scaffold till it creaked and creaked. The men, as I remember them now, nearly all had their mouths open as they looked up at us. I distinctly recall looking away down in one man's throat. I counted his teeth as I stood there, and tried to keep from thinking and breaking down. Some Indians sat on a hill a little way off watching us. And Waymire, now one of the big lawyers of San Francisco, sat on his horse, with his soldiers not far beyond, watching the Indians, for Waymire was then a distinguished young officer in the army.

There was a little commotion close by, and the scaffold again creaked as a tall, lank, sunburned and slender man, all rags and hat and shoes, with an ox whip under his arm, pushed the dog aside, and stepping to the very edge of the scaffold said hastily: "'Scuse me, gentlemen, my steers is strayed, and I thought that some of you a-comin into the hangin might a-seen 'em; a ballface an a brindle; emigrant steers, purty poor steers, but all me an my folks have got, and I've got to find 'em. Didn't see 'em, nobody? Two steers, two emigrant steers; a ballface and a brindle."

No one spoke. The man whose teeth I had been counting shut up shop for a second, and I managed to get my eyes away from him and off to the dusty old emigrant, who was about backing down from the scaffold to the ground. Now the way that he spoke told me that he was a sort of preacher, or exhorter at least. I whispered this to Hound.

"I say, chip in here. All right, Shed, eh?"

"All right, Tom; let 'em chip."

The lank man let his hat fall down by the dog and his knees fell on the hat with a thump. Then Hound wanted to kneel, too, for he did not like his job, I can tell you that, but his right hand was holding on to the gnarly and twisted noose, and he knew better than let go of it. So he looked at Shed and he said:

"You don't mind, Shed?"

"I don't mind, Tom."

And so he put the noose around the man's neck and kindly looked and waited a second to see if it was all right.

"Hurt ye, Shed?"

"No, don't hurt; don't hurt now, Tom."

And then Tom went down on his knees, and the boys bowed their heads and cried. You could hear them cry. Why, the very old dog seemed to feel the atmosphere of pity and the pathos of the scene.

But let us end this. The old emigrant arose; his hat lay before him and Hound stooped to pick it up.

"Give us that hat," said a husky voice below.

Hound handed down the hat.

"'Bout done, Tom," whispered Shed.

"'Bout done, Shed, jist a minute now," answered Tom, as he raised up with the hat, heavy from the collection. Shed saw this and said:

"Tom."

"Well, Shed?"

"Lend me a dollar till, till"——

"Why, Shed, here! I'll chip in for both, see?"

"Thank yer, Tom. An now, Tom?"

"Well, Shed?"

"Ye'll see me put away, eh?"

"Why, there, see? That's the grave all ready, Shed."

"Thank yer, Tom, thank yer; an I'm all ready."

Then such a crash and jerk! The dog sprang down to the ground and began to howl, and the men fell back, fell back and down, as if shot by grapeshot and canister.

Around and around swung the huge and heaving body, and then it suddenly stopped, stopped right still, and with the face lifted and the head a little sidewise, it looked straight at Tom Hound and I; looked black at us, you may say, but not unkindly, for only two or three seconds, yet it seemed years, for no one had thought of the black cap.

Then suddenly it began to twist and whirl and wind the other way, and we two tumbled back and down to the ground as best we could, for fear that we might faint.

I left Hound to finish his work alone, and set out on a long, circuitous walk over the hills to try and shake off the nightmare of this miserable day on my way home. I sat down on a bowlder for half an hour above the town, and on rising up and looking back, as one always will after a day like this, only then I saw the huge and shadowy old dog. I went home hastily, but more than once the old dog bumped his huge, bowed head against my heels.

The next morning I found him lying close by my door, and he put out his nose a little, licked his tongue out just the least bit, as if he wanted to say that his brave old heart was broken, but he didn't whine at all.

Of course I couldn't stand the dog at all, and so I went to Hound. After some muttering and sullen protests against my requests that he should take the dog to the woman, he finally put a tow string around his huge neck and we together led him to her cabin.

She came tearing out like a wild beast—a kettle of hot water in one hand and a knife in the other, and oaths enough in her mouth to sink a ship.

"You've hung an innocent man!" she shrieked, as she hurled the boiling water at Hound.

"Then who killed Berry?" I shouted back over my shoulder from a safe distance.

"I killed him and I'll kill you, you devil!" She was frenzied with rage, but we were well out of her way.

"Have to hang another one, Tom," I said finally after we had walked to his butcher shop in silence.

He tied the dog back by his bunk and patted his bowed old head for a long time. Then he came out and up to me and said sharply, "Not much."

"Well, what will we do?"

"What will we do? Keep our damn mouths shut and do nothing. That's what we'll do. Didn't you know afore that Shed was a-dyin for her? Well, I did, an that's why I kinder took to Shed an tried to make his hangin easy like. He was willin to die for her, an he did die for her, an that settles it."

Hound had thrown these words off from him as from his shoulder with his big sledge hammer right hand, and I simply said, half to him and half to myself, as I went back to my cabin, in a sort of echo, "That settles it."

And the next morning, before the break of day, a big woman on a big bell mule, with a bunch of grass stuffed in the mule's bell, rode quietly out of camp on her way to The Dalles. The pack train stole quietly on after, followed by a tramp picked up for the occasion. And all so still.

Then Tom and I went to the carpenter and had a pretty cross and a headboard made for the new grave on the hill, and Tom took the dog along to see us put them up.

What became of the woman? Well, now, I don't like to say anything hard of any woman or record any woman's decline or fall. But the last heard of her she was keeping a boarding house for congressmen in Washington. It is hard to stop when once on the downward road.—Joaquin Miller in San Francisco Wasp.

Salt is useful when ink is freshly spilled on a carpet. Apply the salt at once; it absorbs the ink, and the two form a crust readily removed.

THE MODERN HERO

Elements of Character Which Raise Man to the Fore.

COURAGE NOT THE ONLY REQUISITE.

A Man is Often Judged by the Men he Admires, as is a Nation by the Kind of Men She Honors.

It is a truth which has not yet come to be fully realized that much of the character of an individual depends upon his ideas of heroism. What he admires and honors is a good test of what he is, or rather what he longs to be, and his heroes will always have a strong attractive force, which will draw him as far as possible into their sphere. In all the various types of the hero one quality remains forever prominent—courage. The cannibal who has distinguished himself by the number of his murders, the robber chieftain who had held thousands at bay, the Indian with his belt adorned with scalps, the duelist who holds his life cheaper than his fancied honor, have all in times past been regarded as heroes, and whatever estimate they now receive no one denies their courage.

Equally so, the martyr who goes cheerfully to the stake; the man who braves obloquy and contempt for truth as he holds it, he who risks his life to save another, or devotes it unreservedly to the good of mankind; one who can bear and endure, and another who can dare and do, all are, in turn, heroes to those who appreciate them, and all are distinguished by the same element—courage. Whatever be the virtue or the vice; whatever the cause engaged in; whatever the motives which govern the life—no one has ever been made a hero, even in thought, unless in some way he has shown strength and bravery. Cowardice and weakness, pusillanimity and fear, are opposed in their very essence to all heroism, and no merits, however great, can form a connecting link between them.

The mistake, however, which has long been made, and which we are only beginning to correct, is that courage alone can make a hero. To some extent we have given up this notion. Our present heroes are no longer cannibals or robbers or duelists, however courageous such men may have been. We have come to admit that something else must be united to bravery to create heroism. And what is that something else? Is it not some noble purpose outside of self and its interests. The glad and willing sacrifice for something higher than pleasure or interest, comfort or ease, united to the courage which scorns all mean temptations and persists in the truth and right, as far as it is seen, spite of all obstacles—that is the true heroism which we are vaguely seeking and beginning to appreciate.

The prizefighter may be bold and intrepid in giving and receiving blows; but, except to a few like himself, he has ceased to be a hero, for his purposes are low and selfish. The suicide may have the courage to throw away his life, but he has not that heroic courage which lives on, enduring, hoping and working, in spite of all the adverse circumstances of his lot. The great conquerors of the world who have plunged their nations into cruel wars for the sake of their own glory and aggrandizement were pre-eminently the heroes of a past age, but we are gradually learning that the true hero of his country is the man who seeks her best welfare, who defends her rights and consults her interests, and who for this great purpose is ready to take praise or blame, to govern or to forbear, to live or to die. Our own Washington and Lincoln were men of this stamp, and we are justly proud to have them head the list of our country's heroes.

Not, however, only in public life and under the gaze of the multitude do we find the true hero. In the home and in the schoolroom, in the office and the workshop, in the crowded street and open field, he may be discovered by those who can appreciate what heroism really is. Whoever has a high and worthy purpose at heart, whether of truth or duty or love, and also has the strength and courage to work, to sacrifice and to suffer, if need be, for its sake, is worthy of the name.

One quietly denies himself pleasure or comfort or ease for the aged parent or the sick child. Another gives up cherished plans because they would interfere with the claims of a dependent family. One faces the displeasure of friends and society sooner than forsake his principles; another employs all his power in defense of the weak and against the oppressor. Our hero must be strong and brave, but he must also be magnanimous and unselfish, not counting the cost, in his great desire to further his noble purpose.

Such men and women are always among us, but in the retirement of private life they are inevitably known but to a few. Those few, however, should esteem it their privilege and duty to honor such true heroism, and to extend its influence. Especially should the young be taught to recognize and revere it. It should be an important part of the education of every child to form within him a true and worthy conception of heroism, and to enable him to recognize it wherever it exists.

Too often his only idea of it is found in the sensational romance, or in the examples around him of men who, for praise or glory or gain, will do daring deeds and manifest a physical bravery often at a fearful cost to their fellowmen. Let us give him a truer ideal and afford him a higher example.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Couldn't Help Winning.

Papa—Well, what did you think of the great skating race?

Little Son—Didn't amount to much.

"Everybody said it was wonderful."

"I didn't see nothin wonderful 'bout it. The one that winned couldn't help winnin. He leaned over so far forward that he had to go like a streak o' lightnin to keep from fallin on his nose."

A Leather Shoe For Horses.

In England and in many parts of Europe proper they have for a long time been using for a horseshoe a regular curiosity made of compressed leather. At the factory where they are made three thicknesses of common cowskin are pressed into a steel mold, and while held in position by powerful clamps are subjected to a bath of some chemical preparation which makes them surprisingly hard and durable. It is claimed for these shoes that they are much lighter and last longer than those made of iron, also that split hoofs are unknown in horses constantly provided with them. The shoe is perfectly smooth on the bottom, no calks being required, the impact causing the surface to adhere even on the smoothest ice. Although, as above stated, the shoe is hard and durable, it is also very elastic, thus preventing sprains and bruises and making the horse's step lighter and surer. Straw treated with a solution unknown to American and European chemists has been used for horseshoes for centuries in Japan. Perhaps some American genius will outdo England and the Japs by giving us a durable paper horseshoe. Who knows?—Philadelphia Press.

Paris Skeletons.

Paris is the head center of the skeleton trade. The mode of preparation is a very delicate operation. The scalpel is first called into requisition to remove the muscular tissues. Its work being done, the bones are boiled, being carefully watched meanwhile that they may not be overdone. After this cannibalistic procedure they are bleached in the sun. Even the spots of grease are sure to appear when they are exposed to heat. The French treat these with ether and benzine, securing thereby a dazzling whiteness, which is a distinguishing mark of their skeletons. They are warranted never to turn yellow and to stand the test of any climate. New York in midsummer is not too hot for them. They are put together by a master hand.

A brass rod with all the proper curvatures supports the spinal column. Delicate brass wires hold the ribs in place. Hinges of the most perfect workmanship give to the joints a graceful and lifelike movement. Cleverly concealed hooks and eyes render disjunction at pleasure possible. The whole construction plainly indicates the care and skill of an artist and a connoisseur.—Boston Herald.

Character In the Voice.

How much character and significance lie in a voice! I was sitting in an office waiting for its owner to return when a woman entered and spoke to the clerk. My back was toward her, and she only inquired where Mr. Blank was and said she would wait, but I realized instantly that she was "somebody." It was not merely the quality of her voice, deep and resonant, but an indescribable something in the intonation which conveyed to my ear the intelligence that I listened to a woman who was the possessor of brains, energy and power.

When she came within my range of vision, I saw a woman of middle age, large, massive, unconventional in appearance, and with a face every line of which was impressed with the qualities suggested by the voice. When the man for whom I was waiting came in, he addressed her by a name which I instantly recognized as belonging to a woman well known for her strong and original writings on sociological problems, and the revelation of character given by the voice was justified by the disclosure of her identity.—Boston Advertiser.

English Love For Old Churches.

The English people have a deep seated love for their old churches and cathedrals, and they spend money lavishly for their preservation. In the last 20 years not less than $53,048,140 has been expended in the restoration of these edifices, and this does not include any sum below $2,500. In London alone no less than $4,101,645 has been thus expended. In addition, $48,038,915 has been devoted in the country at large to the erection of new churches. Another notable fact is that most of the money raised for these purposes has been derived from private gifts.—Boston Journal.

Trick of Beggars' Children.

The children of beggars are often seen to be covered with tumors and wens, while otherwise they are perfectly healthy. An inquisitive surgeon has found the cause of the swellings. It is a trick of the father or mother to appeal the more strongly to the charity of the world. With an instrument like a hypodermic syringe the skin is punctured and the breath is blown under it, causing it to stand out like a tumor or other excrescence in a way that would deceive almost any one.—New York Tribune.

All In One Pound of Coal.

If a pound of coal is subjected to a dry distillation, and the products and residual treated chemically by the processes for obtaining the well known coal tar colors, the pound thus treated will yield enough of magenta to color 500 yards of flannel, vermilion for 2,560 yards, aurine for 120 yards and alizarine sufficient for 155 yards of red cloth.—Age of Steel.

A TEN MILE RACE.

Long Distance Match Between a Trotter and a Pacer for $10,000.

THE RUNNING HORSE HAD TO QUIT.

Six Miles Covered in Less Than Sixteen Minutes.—The Victor Made the Tenth Mile in 2:39.

My mind wanders back through an interval of years to a day in the long ago, before the majority of the present generation of racegoers were born, and to a race that was at that day sensational, and one that would tomorrow draw such a crowd as would fill the coffers of the association giving it as they were never before filled.

The race was at ten miles (not ten heats, remember) for a purse of $10,000, and the horses that measured strides were the trotter Prince, driven by the late Hiram Woodruff, and the pacer Hero, handled by the renowned George Spicer. The meeting took place on the old Centreville course in the fall of 1853. I can remember the day quite distinctly. The weather was fine, the atmosphere clear, cool and bracing. Within the grounds and in the trees and on knolls surrounding were assembled fully 10,000 persons, who came from far and near to see the event that had been held in lively anticipation for months.

Among the throng that packed the stand and overflowed the lawn were politicians of national prominence, lawyers of great repute, solid men of business, sporting men pure and simple, and even clergymen, and ladies (God bless 'em). And what would you say today to see men at the track dressed in swallow tail coats, with wide expanse of shirt bosom, and cravats that could in an emergency be used as table covers. That was the way we dressed in 1853, and the wide brimmed tiles worn then would appear ludicrous now.

THE FIRST TWO MILES.

The race was called about 3 o'clock. The track was in excellent order, and the horses appeared in superb condition, trained, as we say now, to the minute. Hero was the favorite, and $100 to $75 was staked on him, probably to the amount of $40,000 or $50,000, in those days considerable money.

The judges called the drivers up to the stand and stated the conditions of the race and cautioned them in much the same manner sometimes practiced nowadays regarding any violation of rules, and then they were given the start, the pacer having the pole and leading round the first turn. In my mind's eye I can see the race as plainly as though it were but yesterday instead of nearly forty years ago.

On the backstretch the pacer waited for the trotter and let him come alongside, it being apparent at this early stage that Spicer did not intend to go any faster than Hiram would make him, at the same time keeping the latter on the outside all the way round, thereby making him go a greater distance in the race. They kept side by side until they reached the lower turn, when Hiram pulled in behind Hero and waited until he reached straight work on the homestretch, while he came out, and the two came to the stand with the wheels of their sulkies as close together as it was possible to get them without touching. The first mile was done in 2:44.

On the second mile Hiram, seeing through Spicer's tactics, began to crowd him. The pace of both horses now became accelerated, and it was evident that Hiram intended to force his adversary to a breakdown, believing presumably that his horse would prove the better stayer. Spicer kept the pacer well in hand, and would not go any faster than he was absolutely compelled to. The trotter again fell in behind on the lower turn, and again made a brush up the homestretch, the pair coming to the stand head and head. The time for this mile was 2:36.

HOW THE RACE WAS WON.

On the third mile Woodruff pursued the same tactics as in the two preceding miles, only putting on a little more steam, which compelled the pacer to add a little more pressure, and away they dashed around the upper turn and down the backstretch at a killing pace. They came to the stand on even terms in the third mile, Hiram exclaiming to a friend as they passed, "I've got him, sure." Time, 2:33 1-5.

The fourth and fifth miles were run in precisely the same manner, both horses coming to the wire like a team. The time for the fourth mile was 2:39 and the fifth 2:37. On the sixth mile the trotter became the favorite, any amount of money being offered on him, without takers. He took the pole on the first turn, in spite of Spicer's efforts to force the pacer to extend himself, and the latter began to show symptoms of distress. He struggled bravely, however, but the trotter opened the gap at every stride. At the half mile pole he was fifty yards in front, without the slightest abatement of his speed; but on the lower turn Hiram let him up, and took it more moderately up the homestretch, coming to the line in 2:46, having performed the six miles in 15:55½, an average of less than 2:40 for the six miles.

When the pacer reached the stand it was evident he had enough, and he was stopped at the wire. A more exciting race, as long as it lasted, I have never seen.

The trotter was then slowed to an easy gait, as it was unnecessary to drive him up to his speed any longer, and he was walked and jogged the next three miles, keeping as fresh as possible for the last mile, his owner having a wager of $500 that he would make the tenth mile in less than three minutes. The time of the seventh mile was 5:08, the eighth 6:18 and the ninth 6:19, but he was let out on coming to the wire and started to decide the wager, dashing off at an astonishing rate of speed, which he kept up throughout the mile, performing the distance in 2:39—the greatest feat ever known.

How many horses are there in training today that can trot six miles in less than sixteen minutes, jog along three miles further and then wind up by doing a mile in 2:39? Who are they?—Judson Jay in New York Sun.

"You can almost tell a person's character from the nose alone," remarked Professor Oppenheim. "All great men have great noses. The Greek nose, which has no protuberance, but is straight, argues great sense of æsthetics, of beauty, but no character and no power of contention.

"Large nostrils show courage. People of fearless disposition breathe fully and freely. All the fiercer animals have dilated nostrils. The drooping nostril shows histrionic talent. If the nose also droops it denotes a tragic power, and if only the nostril the capacity is marked for the interpretation of comedy.

"Where the nose is thin at the bridge it shows generosity, while a nose that is thick at the bridge argues acquisitiveness. When it is tiptilted like the petal of a flower the person is inquisitive. A projecting nose argues a disposition to investigate. It is ahead of the person, as it were, and wants to scent out things."

CORREGGIO'S LOUVRE ANTIOPE.

Noontide's whiteness of full sun
Illumes her sleep;
Its heat is on her limbs, and one
White arm with sweep
Of languor falls around her head;
She cuddles on the lap of earth;
While almost dead
Asleep, forgetful of his mirth,
A dimpled Cupid at her side
Sprawls satisfied.

Conquered, weary with the light,
Her eyelids' orb,
Summer's plenitude of might
Her lips absorb.
Uplifted to the burning air
And with repletion fallen apart;
Her form is bare.
But her doeskin binds each dart
Of her woodland armory,
Laid idle by.

She is curled beyond the rim
Of oaks that slide
Their lowest branches, long and slim,
Close to her side;
Their foliage touches her with lobes
Half gay, half shadowed, green and brown;
Her white throat globes,
Thrown backward, and her breasts sink down
With the supineness of her sleep,
Leaf fringed and deep.

Where her hand has curved to slip
Across a bough,
Fledged Cupid's slumberous fingers grip
The turf, and how
Close to his chin he hugs her cloak!
His torch reversed trails on the ground
With feeble smoke;
For in noon's chastity profound,
In the blank glare of midday skies,
Love's flambeau dies.

But the sleepers are not left
To breathe alone;
A god is by with hoofs deep cleft,
Legs overgrown,
With a rough pelt and body strong;
Yet must the head and piercing eyes
In truth belong
To some Olympian in disguise;
From lawless shape or mien unkempt
They are exempt.

Zeus, beneath these oaken boughs,
As satyr keeps
His watch above the woman's brows
And backward sweeps
Her cloak to flood her with the noon;
Curious and fond, yet by a clear
Joy in the boon
Of beauty franchised, beauty dear
To him as to a tree's bent mass
The sunny grass.
—Michael Field in London Athenæum.

The Turkey Entitled to a Seat.

A man going home from Boston on a late train a few evenings ago took one seat and placed beside him on the other a large turkey minus wrapping of any kind. A half dozen men couldn't find seats and stood good naturedly in the aisles. Just as the train moved out of the station a little, nervous looking man came along. He asked the man with the turkey to take the bird up and give him the seat. The man refused, whereupon the nervous man attempted to move the turkey aside himself.

"No, you don't," said the bird's owner. "That turkey is going to have a whole seat to himself."

"You haven't paid for two seats," said the other, red with rage.

"Haven't I? Well, just see me do it now." He called to the conductor. "Here," he said, passing his book over, "take out another fare for this friend of mine," and he nodded jocosely in the direction of the bird. The conductor looked a little dubious for a few seconds, then tore out the ticket.—Boston Globe.

Measuring Candle Power.

The method of measuring the candle power of light is simply to move an object along a graded scale, away from the light, until it ceases to cast a shadow; a mark on the scale at this point indicating the candle power of the flame. It is apparent that the shadows thrown are to a great extent dependent on the intensity of the light. Thus water gas, which gives a more intense light to a given area than coal gas, casts a strong shadow in the measuring machine, but when put to practical use it does not illuminate a room so well, not having so great diffusive power as a coal gas light of the same measured candle power.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

Amethysts.

Amethysts and several other so called precious stones have become so cheap that they are no longer sold by the carat, but by the ounce. Even the great amethyst that ordinarily graces an episcopal ring is no longer an expensive stone, and amethysts of poorer quality are ordinarily of trifling value.—New York Sun.

Not So Bad as It Sounded.

"George!" said Maud.

"I am William," said William sternly.

"Oh, I know that, Willie," returned Maud. "I hurt my finger, and that was my little swear word."—Harper's Bazar.

False happiness is like false money; it passes for a time as well as the true and serves some ordinary occasions, but when it is brought to the touch we find the lightness and alloy and feel the loss.—Pope.

Professor Huxley knows of no a priori reason "why snake bodied reptiles 50 feet long and upward should not disport themselves in our seas as they did in those of the cretaceous epoch."

A deserving charitable institution at Wichita, Kan., is a free Sunday nursery, where infants and young children are cared for while their parents attend church.

We read in the "Acts of the Apostles" that handkerchiefs which Paul had touched were carried to the sick, and that miraculous cures were thereby wrought.

It is almost as cruel to joke a man about his fast horse as about his wife and children, but newspaper wits have no mercy.

BOOK SOCIETIES.

How English Women Keep Informed in Current Literature.

CO-OPERATION IN BUYING BOOKS.

A Convenient and Sociable Way of Discussing the Latest Effusions of Popular Writers.

An English woman, recently married to a New York lawyer, with a home in the suburbs, is trying an interesting experiment in the way of a literary and book lending society. The system she has adopted has been used in suburban towns of England and in many of the larger provincial cities for more than half a century. In fact, there is a society in Rochester, England, which claims to have had it in continual use for more than 100 years. There is probably no system exactly like it, however, in this part of the world.

The main object of this system is to supply books to women who have ample time for reading and are eager to keep pace with all that is interesting in the tremendous rush of contemporaneous literature. A man with even a moderate income cannot afford to keep his wife supplied with new books and magazines as they come out. The cheapest new novel, if it is worth anything, will be sure to cost him 50 cents. In nine cases out of ten the first price is more likely to be $1.50. To be sure, almost everything nowadays ultimately drifts into the cheap edition, but it is after the book has ceased to be fresh in the minds of the public and people have ceased to talk about it.

Women who live in the country and in the suburbs have more time for reading than women in cities, and withal fewer means of getting anything good to read. The time worn volumes in the local circulating library have been their familiar friends from childhood. If the husband subscribes to a circulating library in town and promises to bring a new book home with him every night, he is likely to grow weary soon and forget all about it. An then when an intelligent woman reads a good novel she likes to talk to somebody about it. Her husband hasn't time to read, and the acquaintances she visits have never even heard of it.

The literary English woman found herself in this plight, so she interested herself in forming a club similar to the one she belonged to at her English home.

The idea is a simple one. Forty or 50 persons in a town organize a book society. That is the name usually given to them in England. It has been found advisable to have at least 40 members, and not to have more than 50. The Rochester society has adhered to this rule despite powerful pressure to increase its membership. Applicants for membership are kept waiting six years, and sometimes more, for admission. A society No. 2 has naturally been formed, but the prestige remains with the pioneer society, which meets every week, winter and summer, in the Old Bull hotel, made famous in the "Pickwick Papers." The society hires a room, cheerful and comfortable, which is placed at its disposal one night each week. The landlord allows the members to keep a large cupboard in the room in which to store books.

These books are in charge of a secretary. The position is simply an honorary one, but the members usually make the secretary who attends to business a very substantial Christmas present—a piece of silver or some article of household furniture perhaps. The members determine by ballot what books shall be purchased, but it devolves upon the secretary to buy them. He is supposed to get discount prices from publishers. This is managed without difficulty, and the publishers generally find it for their own interest to remember the secretary about Christmas time. The result is that in prosperous societies the position is sought after. It is worth while to devote some little time to it.

Balloting to determine what new books shall be bought takes place once each month. If twenty or more members find it expedient to purchase some new book or series of books issued between balloting meetings—such, for instance, as Stanley's latest record of his travels or a new volume of a popular encyclopedia—the secretary must get it for them when they present a request in writing. But the members keep themselves so well posted that books of this kind are usually voted for in advance.

All the money subscribed is not devoted to buying new books and magazines. In every society there are a few members who prefer to read and even reread Dickens, Thackeray, Scott and numerous other standard writers. The wants of these people must be and are provided for to a reasonable extent. Each member may draw three books at one time, but it is not allowed to keep any book for more than 14 days. If it is a book which is in demand, the time is limited to one week.

Every two years the books belonging to the society are assorted by the secretary into lots of equal value and are "drawn" by the different members in a lottery. Every member present has the right to draw one number. In this way the "cupboard" of the society is kept free from "dead wood" and the individual members are able to build up a solid little library at home. Every member eventually gets his money back in books.

As to the cost of running a society of this kind, perhaps the best criterion would be the Rochester society. Each member pays a shilling at initiation and sixpence a week dues. If he gets behind in his dues, he is fined threepence for each week. If he neglects it for more than a month, his name is dropped. This has rarely happened in the Rochester society, although the rules are rigidly inforced. The money collected in this way has been found ample to run the society and keep the members abreast of new literature.

When you have spilled anything on the stove or milk has boiled over and a suffocating smoke arises, sprinkle the spot with salt and it will disappear immediately.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

Irv. H. Mulholland,
EDITOR & PROPRIETOR.
PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 25 1893

Is Congress to be intimidated by great bodies of men to vote for measures whether the members wish to or not? First, bankers and business men in New York, who believe that their interests would benefit by the repeal of the Sherman Act are taking steps to meet in a great body at the National capital and demand the immediate and unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of that Act. Second, a scheme is on foot for the assembling from all parts of the union of workingmen to demand legislation in their interests. What next? The National capital was placed where it is so that Congress should not be overawed by the tumultuous crowds of great cities. It is hardly possible that the scheme of camping 500,000 idle workingmen in Washington can be carried out, and if it were attempted the federal authorities could easily prevent their concentration. The business men of New York, if they should do so unwise a thing as to assemble at the capital in large numbers would undoubtedly act discreetly; but nevertheless their action will be construed as a menace, and it should be firmly discouraged. They have no more right to overawe the representatives of the Nation with the weight of their wealth and respectability than the working men to accomplish the same thing with numbers

The failure of the Midwinter Fair would be a great calamity to San Francisco. It has gone out to the world that a fair would be held and that something over $300,000 has been subscribed toward it, but unless further subscriptions covering the amount required are promptly made the fair will be a flat failure. This would mean what the interior people have heretofore claimed, that San Francisco is a dead city. There are a hundred citizens in San Francisco who can put up the entire money necessary to make the fair a success and not feel the outlay. And these men, too, will be benefited to an extent greater than this sum by far by having the fair held. But if they follow the course they usually pursue they will sit supinely by and see the fair a failure before they will part with a cent of their hoarded wealth. They talk about building competing railroads and maintaining steamship lines, but beyond the force expended in breathing and wagging their tongues and jawbones they never go.

Senator Jones of Nevada is confident that the silver situation cannot be made worse. "I am just as positive as any man can possibly be that the Sherman law cannot be repealed unless there is a substitute, equally favorable to silver, adopted in place of it. The friends of silver are strong enough to dictate the laws and they propose to do it, and the men who are opposed to us can as well make up their minds to that fact. I do not think that our terms will be accepted at present at least, and therefore I look for a long struggle, but I have no fears of the final outcome."

The State Board of Equalization has raised the assessment of San Francisco about twenty per cent. San Francisco is a great tax shirker. She has never paid taxes on more than one fourth of her property and in consequence the burden of supporting the State government falls on the interior counties. The Board of Equalization is being soundly abused by some of the San Francisco papers for its action but they can stand it. The honest taxpayers of the rest of the State are at their back.

We do not recall an instance where a proposition of a public character advanced with boldness and in a boom spirit has fallen so flat and died so quickly as the insane idea of pressing the Governor to call an extra session of the Legislature to tax the people half a million to help out the Midwinter Fair. The plan "died a bornin'."

The State Board of Equalization has concluded its reassessment of the railroads, in accordance with the provisions of the Sewell bill. It is understood that the company will pay their taxes under this law cheerfully.

The churches want the Midwinter Fair closed on Sundays. As it is yet a question whether it will be open on week days it looks as though the churches were little previous.

The San Francisco newsboys have contributed $15.10 to the Midwinter Fair in sums varying from $2 50 to 1 cent. The millionaire silurians have not yet contributed anything.

Put on Trousers and Saw the Sights.

Miss Emma Wood, who claims to be the daughter of a wealthy Colorado ranchman, was arrested in company with a young man who said his name was Frank Patton, and both were dressed in masculine attire. The story of the couple is that they both reside a short distance from Denver and for the last two years have kept company. When Patton, who is employed on a neighboring ranch, was sent to South Omaha in charge of a consignment of cattle, they thought it an excellent opportunity to give the old folks a surprise party by making the journey an elopement as well. The girl declares that they were married by a Lutheran clergyman before they left Denver.

They arrived in Omaha Thursday night and devoted the next day to seeing the sights. The girl had often worn her brother's clothes out on the ranch during a roundup and helped the men drive up the cattle, and last night she declared her intention of putting on one of her husband's suits and going out to see the town by gaslight. She assumed the trousers, and the pair started down Dodge street and visited one or two swell resorts, after which the woman concluded she had enough, and they started to the hotel, but were arrested. They were released today without being fined. —Omaha Cor. Chicago Tribune.

Just as a Bracer For the Fish Season.

While a large pine log was being worked up at the Brown & Hall sawmill, Acton, Ontario, a wonderful discovery was made. After the outside "slab" had been cut off a large toad was seen to poke his head out of a hole in which he was imbedded, and where he had barely escaped being cut in two by the saw.

How the creature ever got there is a mystery, as he was perfectly incased in the wood with no possible means of ingress or egress. As the log was the fourth or fifth up from the butt of the tree his position must have been at least 50 or 60 feet up from the ground. There is but one way of accounting for the fact that he was found in the situation mentioned. He had grown up with the tree from infancy and was probably hundreds of years old when the saw awakened him from his long nap. Naturalists of Acton say that he is of an unknown species of the reptilia, and that the cavity in which he was found was perfectly round and as smooth as though chiseled out by a carpenter. He was surrounded on all sides with solid wood from 4½ inches to 2½ feet thick.—St. Louis Republic.

A Large Group of Sun Spots Visible.

Professor Holden of the Lick observatory says that a large group of spots is now clearly visible on the sun, which by the use of a smoked glass can be seen with the naked eye. It will be extremely interesting to note what, if any, extraordinary change in the weather of the present period may occur.

In any case experience shows that as a rule when the sun's activity is increased remarkable meteorological changes very soon take place on the earth. The present indications from the large group of spots telescoped by Professor Holden are that we may shortly look for an increased movement of the trade winds on our gulf and south Atlantic coasts, and consequently "warm waves" in the interior of the country."—New York Herald.

New Ruling on Railroad Liability.

A drummer for a firm of jewelers lost a checked trunk in an Illinois railroad accident. It was the kind of a trunk in which jewelry drummers carry their samples, and its contents were worth $7,000. He brought suit and recovered judgment for the full amount of the loss. The railroad company carried the case up. Now the supreme court of the United States "reverses" the court below, sets aside the judgment and lays it down as law that the railroad company's check and liability cover only the personal effects of the drummer—his shirts, collars, cuffs, etc. As for the destroyed jewelry, he and his employers must arrange that matter between themselves. It is no concern of the common carrier's.—Hartford Courant.

The Fateful Opal.

Miss Gizzelle Sikay, 16 years old, daughter of John Sikay of Bridgeport, died Sunday. She was to have been married to Henry Callopee. Miss Sikay had just been trying on her wedding dress, and displaying an opal pin intended for the veil remarked to her bridemaids: "Some girls think opals bring ill luck. I am sure this will bring Henry and me nothing but happiness."

She deposited the pin in its case and turned to rearrange the display of her wedding gifts, when the muscles of her face contracted and she was seized with a convulsion, during which she sank to the floor unconscious. Her heart ceased to beat in 40 minutes.—New Haven Register.

Royal Relics.

A writer in "La Vie Contemporaine" has discovered that an old box in the lumber room of the Louvre museum instead of containing archives, as was supposed by many, is full of the relics of royal personages—jawbones, shoulder blades, chanks, ribs and vertebræ. The writer states that there are among them the scapula of Hugues Capet, the thighbone of Charles V, the shinbones of Charles VI and Francis I, the vertebræ of Charles VII and Charles IX, the ribs of Philippe le Bel and Louis XII and the lower jawbone of Catherine de Medicis. The authenticity of these relics is, he says, proved by papers also found in the box.

World's Fair Passes.

The number of free season passes to the World's fair issued by the exposition officials is estimated at 200,000. On each of these is the photograph of the holder, so as to prevent use by another. The pass is in the form of a book 2¼ by 3½ inches, containing 181 admission coupons, or one for each day of the six months. They are issued to officials, employees, exhibitors, newspaper men, foreign commissioners, etc.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Pawnbroking Experiment.

Notice is served in The Christian Union of the impending trial of an eleemosynary experiment which has long been discussed and is of unusual interest. In August or September the People's Bank association hopes to open the first of several model pawn offices for the poor. The newspapers abound from day to day with stories telling how hard it is for the very poor to borrow indispensable small sums of money and what exorbitant rates of interest are exacted for such loans. The legal rate at pawnshops is 3 per cent a month for the first six months and 2 per cent a month for succeeding months, but most pawnbrokers supplement these rates by charges for care of the articles pawned, so that as much as 200 per cent per annum is something paid to them for the use of money.

The People's Bank association proposes to begin by a charge of 1 per cent a month and expects to start with $100,000 capital, which is to earn 4 per cent dividends for its owners. The success of such a movement seems to depend simply on the shrewdness of the money lender employed. With the right man in the avuncular situation there seems to be no inevitable obstacle to the success of a plan which, if it does succeed, seems bound to help the right people at the right time. Plans for the relief of pawnbrokers who succumb to competition can be devised later on if they are needed.—Harper's Weekly.

A Woman's Apt Reply to Mr. Cleveland.

It was during Cleveland's first incumbency. The daughter of a lawyer prominent in a neighboring Kansas town had married an officer who a few months after the ceremony had been detailed to a remote post. The young wife, who had enjoyed a sort of belleship in the semimetropolitan community in which she had been reared, felt as if she were about to be buried alive. Encouraged by her husband and father, she repaired to Washington to seek reprieve at headquarters.

"Fort Riley? Why, that's a pretty good detail, isn't it?" asked the president, to whom the lady had stated her case.

"No, sir; it doesn't suit me at all."

"Shouldn't we try to be satisfied where we are?" continued the chief magistrate, with a patronizing smile.

"You might have been satisfied with being sheriff at Buffalo, but you wanted to be the president of the United States," came the pert retort.

Mr. Cleveland arose with the same patriarchal smile on his face, but the lieutenant's wife is still at Fort Riley.—Kansas City Times.

Quarantine Against Hamburg.

As we had to shut the gates of New York against Hamburg for a time last year, we may have to shut them against it once more this year. We cannot tolerate any foolery about the existence of cholera in a city with which we are constantly in communication. We must not permit Hamburg to imperil New York. The authorities of the German city have once and again concealed from us facts which they were in honor bound to make known. They did so last autumn, and they have done so twice within the past two months. As "Punic faith" got a bad name ages ago, Hamburg faith is likely to get a bad name in our times. Hamburg will act wisely in sending us immediate reports of all cases of cholera, variola, typhus and perrigo there.—New York Sun.

Illuminating a Boy's Head.

At a meeting of the Academy of Medicine held in New York recently, Dr. Wendell C. Phillips, one of the members, exhibited an electric head illuminator which was productive of some unique results. A small boy was taken, and a powerful electric lamp was inserted in his mouth, which was then closed on the handle which held the lamp. The lights of the meeting were all turned down, and the storage battery was turned on. The light in the boy's mouth shone out through his cheeks, detailing every vein, line and imperfection in the skin and the lines of teeth and gums in the mouth. His face looked ghastly in its vividness and reminded one, if it were possible, of an intensely realistic jack-o'-lantern.

Why Mr. Hawthorne Wants to Get Away.

Mr. Julian Hawthorne, who happens to be in Chicago just at present, says that the new and cheap editions of his father's "Scarlet Letter" are bringing upon him (Julian) a mighty flood of letters from people who "discover in this powerful, if improbable story," the promise of "extraordinary work in the future." The editor of a weekly literary journal in Texas has offered Mr. Hawthorne the magnificent sum of $200 if he will contribute to that publication a novel of Texas life treated upon the same lines as those of the "Scarlet Letter." This is one of the reasons why Mr. Hawthorne is anxious to go to the West Indies to live.—Chicago News-Record.

Chicago Pressed Chicken.

A Dundas man has for the past few weeks, it is claimed, been traveling through the counties of Rice, Goodhue and Dakota buying up all the calves he can for 50 cents. These calves are taken to his farm at Stanton, about seven miles north of this city, where they are killed, skinned and chopped up—lights, livers and bones—and packed into boxes and shipped to a Chicago firm. The Chicago firm puts them through some process and sells them to the World's fair restaurants for "pressed chicken." This man has shipped large numbers of these calves.—Cor. Minneapolis Journal.

What's In a Name.

It is a year of odd names for men of sudden fame. Here is a list that suggests itself at a moment's thought: Zimri Daviggins, banker; Dahomey Dodds, warrior; Hoke Smith, journalist and statesman; Sylvester Pennoyer, who told the president "to mind his own business;" Stanhope Sams, poet and statesman; Colonel Pod Dismuke, statesman; Colonel Dink Botts, office seeker. And the year is yet young.—Kansas City Times.

COPPER RIVETED
OVERALLS
AND
LEVI STRAUSS & CO'S
SPRING
BOTTOM PANTS
EVERY PAIR GUARANTEED.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE County of Inyo, State of California.

W. J. HOSKINS, Plaintiff, vs. WILLIAM GREEN and B. F. LEWIS, Defendants.

Action brought in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and the complaint filed in the office of the Clerk of said Inyo county.

The people of the State of California send greeting to William Green and B. F. Lewis, Defendants.

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above named Plaintiff in the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this summons—if served within this County; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain judgment of this Court for the foreclosure of a certain mortgage described in said complaint and executed by the said William Green on the 31st day of May, 1890, to secure the payment of a certain Promissory Note dated May 31st 1890, made by the said William Green for the sum of $400.00, bearing interest at the rate of one and one fourth per cent. per month, payable semi-annually; and if not paid when it becomes due, to be added to the principal and bear interest at like rate as described in said complaint on file herein, which complaint alleges that no part of the principal or interest therein has been paid; that the premises conveyed by said mortgage may be sold and the proceeds applied to the payment of said promissory note and interest thereon, and the payment of 15 per cent. of the amount found due the plaintiff as attorney's fees, and for costs of this action; and in case such proceeds are insufficient to pay the same, that judgment be docketed against said William Green, defendant herein, for the balance remaining due, and also that the said defendants, and all persons claiming by, through or under them, or either of them, may be barred and foreclosed of all right, title, claim, lien, equity of redemption, and interest in and to said mortgaged premises, and for other and further relief, as will more fully appear by reference to the complaint on file herein.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, said Plaintiff will apply to the Court for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Witness my hand and the Seal of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, this 29th day of June, A. D. 1893.

[SEAL.] D. J. HESSION, Clerk.
J. D. Lewis, Attorney for Plaintiff.

ALIAS SUMMONS.

IN THE JUSTICE'S COURT OF THIRD Township in the County of Inyo, State of California.

L. Wood, Plaintiff, vs. Jesus Encinas, Defendant.

The people of the State of California send greeting to Jesus Encinas, Defendant:

You are hereby required to appear in an action brought against you by the above-named Plaintiff in the Justice's Court of Third Township, County of Inyo, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within five days (exclusive of the day of service) after the service on you of this Summons—if served within the Township in which this action is brought; or, if served out of said Township, but within said County, within ten days; or, within twenty days if served elsewhere.

For all action is brought to obtain judgment against you for the sum of $225.85 alleged to be due and owing from defendant to plaintiff on an account stated between plaintiff and defendant, at Independence, Inyo County, California, on the 12th day of June, 1892, which sum $225.85 defendant agreed to pay to plaintiff. For costs of suit as more fully appears by the complaint on file herein, to which you are referred.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to so appear and answer said complaint, as above required, said plaintiff will take judgment against you for the sum of $225.85 and costs of suit.

Making service and due return hereof.

Given under my hand this 23d day of August 1893. IRV. H. MULHOLLAND,
Justice of the Peace of said Township.
F. E. Densmore, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Lodge 221, F. & A. M.

Regular meetings of Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M. for the year 1893, will be held at the Lodge room at Independence as follows:

Saturday ..... January 28th
" ..... February 25th
" ..... March 25th
" ..... April 29th
" ..... May 27th
" ..... June 24th
" ..... July 22d
" ..... August 26th
" ..... September 23d
" ..... October 21st
" ..... November 18th
" ..... December 16th

THOS. C. LOLAND, W. M.
B. RHINE, Sec.

BOOTS AND SHOES

MADE AND REPAIRED.
THE BEST MATERIAL.
FIRST-CLASS WORK

Repairs done Promptly.
Prices Reasonable.

A. J. DAVIS,
Independence.
26-tf

NOTICE.

ALL PERSONS HAVING CLAIMS against the undersigned will present the same by the first of each month and payment will be made on the 5th.

FRANK FITZGERALD.

Supt. Modock Con. Mining Co., Modock Cal.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

STOCKTON, CAL., Dec. 19th, '92.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.

Gentlemen:—Having read one of your Treatise on the Horse and seeing the Spavin Cure advertised, I thought I would try it. I had one horse with a prominent Spavin of 12 months standing. I removed it with ⅓ bottle. I tied up one fore foot on same side the spavin was and compelling the horse to rest on lame leg while I took a surcingle and drew it across the hock or spavin until the hock or spavin got very warm with the friction, then putting on Spavin Cure. I had a mare that had a running from her nose for 12 or 14 months. I rubbed the Spavin Cure from her eyes down to nostrils, then from back of jaw bone down under the throat for a week. I have not seen any discharge for two months.

Yours truly, HUGH McDADE.

Price $1.00 per bottle.

DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Enosburgh Falls, Vermont.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

MISCELLANEOUS.

JOHN S. GORMAN,
Sheriff and
Tax-Collector.
INYO CO., CAL.

DENNIS J. HESSION,
COUNTY CLERK,
—AND—
Ex-officio Auditor and Recorder,
INYO CO., CAL.

P. W. FORBES. P. W. BENNETT.
BENNETT & FORBES,
ATTORNEYS AT LAW.
Cases in U. S. Land Office a Specialty.
INDEPENDENCE, INYO CO., CALIFORNIA.

W. T. BUNNEY,
County Treasurer,
INYO CO., CAL.

S. P. M'KNIGHT, C. E.
COUNTY SURVEYOR
—AND—
U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor
For California and Nevada.
—BISHOP CREEK, INYO CO., CAL.—
The obtaining of United States mineral patents a specialty.
All kinds of surveying given the most careful and accurate attention.

F. E. DENSMORE. P. H. MACK.
MACK & DENSMORE,
ATTORNEYS AND COUNSELLORS AT LAW,
INDEPENDENCE CAL.
Will practice in all the Courts of the State and the General Land Office.
Particular attention given to Conveyancing, Abstracting and Searching Records.

JUSTICE OF PEACE,
I. H. MULHOLLAND.
Office in the "Independent" Building, Independence, Inyo county, Cal

WALTER A. LAMAR
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR
AT LAW,
Independence, Cal.

Louise L. Woodin, M. D.
PHYSICIAN & SURGEON.
(COUNTY PHYSICIAN)
Office and residence at the Johnson place, Independence, opposite Levy's Hotel.

IRVING J. WOODIN, M. D.,
Physician & Surgeon,
INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Freight! Freight!
BISHOP & MOJAVE
Through Freight Line.
George Meads,
PROPRIETOR.
Regular trips made between Bishop and Mojave and all way points. Orders left at the following places will receive prompt and careful attention:
J. H. BULPITT, Bishop.
THOMAS & HILL, Big Pine.
O. I. MAIRS, Independence.
W. K. MILLER, Lone Pine.
Special rates given on car-load lots

FRED BURCKHARDT
Watchmaker & Jeweler
LONE PINE, CAL.
Timepieces of all descriptions repaired and regulated satisfaction guaranteed. Jewelry made to order. Firearms repaired and locked.
All orders from any part of the country will be promptly attended to, at the most reasonable charges. At the old stand "Mechanics Hall," Lone Pine.
FRED BURKHARDT

IRWIN'S SALOON
Cor Edwards and Market Streets,
Independence . Cal
THE PUBLIC GENERALLY ARE RESPECTFULLY invited to call and inspect my establishment, which has been entirely rebuilt and furnished in a style second to none on this side of the mountains. A SPLENDID NEW BILLIARD TABLE provided for the amusement of patrons.
THE BAR
is supplied with the most celebrated brands of pure Wines and Liquors and the Finest Havana Cigars.
JOHN C. IRWIN, Proprietor.
feb12tf

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE ODELL TYPE WRITER.

$20 will buy the ODELL TYPE WRITER with 78 characters, and $15 for the Single Case Odell, warranted to do better work than any machine made.

It combines SIMPLICITY with DURABILITY, SPEED, EASE OF OPERATION, wears longer without cost of repairs than any other machine. Has no ink or ribbon to bother the operator. It is NEAT, SUBSTANTIAL, nickel plated, perfect and adapted to all kinds of type writing. Like a printing press, it produces sharp, clean, legible manuscripts. Two or ten copies can be made at one writing. Any intelligent person can become a operator in two days. We offer $1,000 to any operator who can equal the work of the Double Case Odell.

Reliable Agents and Salesmen wanted. Special inducements to Dealers.

For Pamphlet giving Indorsements, &c., address

ODELL TYPE WRITER CO.,
55 and 57 5th Ave. CHICAGO, ILL.

THOMAS & HILL,
—DEALERS IN—
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
BIG PINE, INYO COUNTY, CAL,
We keep constantly on hand goods of all kinds needed in a country home. We order only First-Class and ask no more than a reasonable profit. Give us a trial.
THOMAS & HILL.

Dried Fruit
FOR SALE CHEAP.
Winter Apples..... 3 cts.
Dried Prunes.....12 1-2 cts
Dried Peaches.....10 cts
Dried Apples.....10 cts
Other varieties of dried fruit for sale on reasonable terms.
S. A. Densmore,
Independence, Cal.

Lake View Hotel
Keeler, Cal.
John Barnes, Prop'r.
First-class hotel in every respect. The table always supplied with the best in the market. Clean, nicely furnished rooms. Transient visitors will receive every courtesy and attention.
THE BAR
—Is constantly supplied with the finest—
Wines,
Liquors,
& Cigars.

J. C. WASSON. J. B. WASSON.
DENTISTS.
OFFICE OVER THE BANK OF BAKERSFIELD, opposite the Southern Hotel.
Prompt and careful treatment given on the easiest possible plan inflicted. Address
WASSON & WASSON,
Bakersfield, Cal.

TO ADVERTISERS
A list of 1000 newspapers divided into STATE AND SECTIONS will be sent on application—FREE.
To those who want their advertising to pay, we can offer no better medium for thorough and effective work than the various sections of our Select Local List.
GEO. P. ROWELL & CO.,
Newspaper Advertising Bureau,
10 Spruce Street, New York

P. W. FORBES P. H. MACK.
MACK & FORBES.
Real Estate Agents,
Address, P. H. MACK, Independence, Cal.
P. W. FORBES, Bishop, Cal.

OFFICIAL.

Notice of Executor's Sale

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT IN pursuance of a power to sell, contained in the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah, deceased, (which last will and testament was duly admitted to probate,) the undersigned, the Executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, will sell at private sale, to the highest bidder for cash, lawful money of the United States, and subject to confirmation by the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, on and after TUESDAY the 8th day of March, 1893, and within six months thereafter, all the right, title, interest and estate of the said John Allen Hannah, deceased, at the time of his death, and all the right, title and interest that the said estate of John Allen Hannah deceased, has, by operation of law or otherwise, acquired other than or in addition to, that of the said John Allen Hannah at the time of his death in and to those certain lots, pieces, or parcels of land situate, lying and being in the County of Inyo, State of California, and particularly described as follows, to wit:

The South half of the South-east quarter and the South half of the south-west quarter of Section No. 10, and the North-east quarter of Section No. 15, all in Township No. 10 South, Range No. 34 East, M. D. M., containing 320 acres.

An undivided one-half interest of in and to that certain lot, piece, or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the said County of Inyo and particularly described as follows, to wit: Commencing at the South-east corner of the south-east quarter of North-east quarter of Section No. 18, in Township No. 13 South, Range No. 35 East, M. D. M., and running thence West eleven chains and 98-100; thence North-east following the meanderings of the bed of Creek along its North branch to Edwards street, in the town of Independence, thence following said Edwards street along its West line to the place of beginning, six and 80-100 acres; also lot No. 4 in Block No. 9 in the town of Independence, all constituting what is known as the Reddy place.

Lots Nos. 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12, in Block No. 29, in the town of Independence, in the said County of Inyo, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of said Inyo county, having been the residence of said John A. Hallhah, deceased, at the time of his death.

Lots Nos. 2 and 4, in Block No. 22, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, as the same appears by the official plat of the said town of Independence, now on file in the office of the County Recorder of the said Inyo county.

Two hundred feet undivided, of in and to that certain mining claim, lead, or lode, situate lying and being in the Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, known and designated as the "La Dispricada Lode."

That certain lot, piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the County of Ventura State of California, commencing at a point twelve and nine-twentieth (12 9-20) rods south of the general corner of the North west quarter and the North-east quarter of Section No. twelve (12) and the South west quarter and the South-east quarter of Section No. one (1), in Township No. three (3) North, of Range No. twenty-one (21) West, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, running thence South sixty-eight and eleven-twentieth (68 11-20) rods; thence West twenty-three (23) rods; thence Northwesterly along a small branch or swale to a point twenty four (24) rods North of the general corner of the North East quarter and the South east quarter, and the North west quarter and the North east quarter of the North west quarter of Section No. twelve (12), in Township No. three (3) North of Range No. twenty-one (21) West; running thence North forty-four and eleven twentieth (44 11-20) rods thence East eighty (80) rods to the place of beginning, containing thirty acres: Together with ten shares of the Capital stock of the Highland Water Company.

Bids or offers must be in writing, and will be received at the residence of the undersigned at Georges Creek, Cal., and may be left at said place, or at the office of the District Attorney, at Independence, Cal., or delivered to said Executor personally, or may be filed in the office of the Clerk of said Superior Court, at any time after the first publication of this notice, and before the making of sale.

The Executor reserves the right to reject any and all bids.

Terms and conditions of sale: Cash, lawful money of the United States, ten per cent. of the purchase money to be paid to the said Executor when the sale shall be made, balance on confirmation of sale by said Superior Court. Deed at the expense of purchaser.

WILLIAM L. HUNTER.
Executor of the Last Will and Testament of John Allen Hannah deceased.

Dated, Independence, Cal., February 11th, 1893.

J. W. Murphy.
—
BLACKSMITHING
—AND—
General Iron Work.
—
Wagons and Carriages Repaired.
HORSESHOEING, $2.00 for CASH
Shop on Edwards St., opposite the Court House, Independence

EDWARD CHENOT
Independence, Cal.,
INVITES PUBLIC ATTENTION TO HIS extensive Stock of
GENERAL MERCHANDISE
....Consisting of....
GROCERIES,
PROVISIONS
Tobacco, Cigars,
WINES AND LIQUORS
FLOUR & GRAIN
Together with an Assortment of
DRY GOODS AND CLOTHING
ETC., ETC
Buyers and consumers should call and examine my stock and prices before purchasing elsewhere.
E. CHENOT.
Independence, Cal., March 9 1894.
n4761f

$6000.00 a year is being made by John R. Goodwin, Troy, N.Y., at work for us. Reader, you may not make as much, but we can teach you quickly how to earn from $5 to $10 a day at the start, and more as you go on. Both sexes, all ages. In any part of America, you can continue at home, giving all your time or spare moments only to the work. All is new. Great pay for every worker. We start you. Everything furnished. EASILY PROFITABLE. Address at once, GEORGE STINSON & CO., PORTLAND, MAINE.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 25 1893

OUR PRESIDENT,

GROVER CLEVELAND,

OF NEW YORK.

OUR VICE-PRESIDENT,

GEN. STEVENSON,

OF ILLINOIS.

OUR

Congressman .....A. CAMINETTI.
Assemblyman .....P. H. MACK.
Superior Judge.....GEO. M. GILL
Sheriff.....JOHN S. GORMAN.
Clerk.....DENNIS J. HESSION.
District Attorney.....P. W. FORBES.
Assessor.....P. A. CHALFANT.
Treasurer.....W. T. BUNNEY.
Coroner.....H. H. HOWELL.
Surveyor (endorsed).....JOSEPH SEELY.
Supt. Schools.....J. H. SHANNON.
1st Supervisor Dist.....ROBT. LOVE.
2d Supervisor Dist.....A. C. FREEMAN.
3d Supervisor Dist.....W. H. UHLMEYER
4th Supervisor Dist.....JOHN WILSON.
5th Supervisor Dist..FRANK FITZGERALD.

Religious Services.

Sunday Schools, Fort and Lone Pine 10 a. m.; Independence, 2 p. m.

COURT NOTES.

Geo. M. Gill, Superior Judge.

SATURDAY, August 19, 1893.

J. V. Skinner, an Insolvent Debtor—Hearing continued until August 24th.

Harry Lickett vs. Robert Lockett—Filed papers on appeal.

TUESDAY, August 22, 1893.

Estate of James M. Hay, deceased—Filed petition for letters of Administration.

THURSDAY, August 24, 1893.

Estate of John McFetridge, deceased—Filed order appointing administrator and appraisers. Filed letters of administration.

Estate of John T. McCoy, deceased—Filed order appointing administrator; filed order for publication of notice to creditors; filed letters of administration.

Estate of James Parrish, deceased—Filed order appointing administrator; filed order of publication of notice to creditors; filed letters of administration.

There are several cases of diphtheria at Reno.

George Storey came down from Poleta on Wednesday's train.

Silver is steadily rising. The closing quotation yesterday was 76.

Regular meeting of Inyo Lodge No. 221 F. & A. M. to-morrow night.

J. D. Lewis Esq. came down from Bishop yesterday, returning to-day.

Mrs Fannie F. Baker accompanied by her daughter, visited Independence on Tuesday.

Coroner Howell attended to considerable probate business in the Superior Court this week.

J. A. McKenzie was up from Lone Pine last Monday. Also E. L. Smith of the same place.

Bert. Rhine has been at Bishop all the week. It is rumored that he expects to locate there.

R. Hession came down from Big Pine early in the week and spent a couple of days in town.

Mrs. A. W. Eibeshutz and Miss Elsie Eibeshutz will start for San Francisco on to-morrow's train.

Mrs. T. J. Goodale and daughter, Miss Florence, were down from Fish Spring during the week and visited a couple of days in town.

The Board of Education has been in session all the week. There is one applicant for a certificate and two for graduating diplomas.

E. Robinson is getting ready to erect a handsome dwelling on his ranch near town. He received five carloads of lumber from Carson last week.

J. S. McQueen, D. D. S., of Bishop will arrive at Independence on to-day's train and will remain in town for several days. All parties requiring dental work should call on Mr. McQueen without delay.

Mono county is troubled with a gang who sell whisky to Indians. The officers are on the alert for the offenders with a trip to San Quentin in view. There has been one conviction in Inyo county under the new law.

The Board of Supervisors of each county in the State is requested to appoint two delegates to the Irrigation Congress to be held at Los Angeles for one week beginning October 10th. Also each Agricultural Association to appoint two members. This matter should meet with the earnest consideration of our people, as it is a matter of the utmost importance to us.

One of the first measures introduced by Senator Perkins in the United States Senate was a memorial from the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco praying for the unqualified repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman silver bill. And in the face of this San Francisco has the gall to ask Inyo county, one of the leading silver producing counties of the State, to contribute to the Midwinter Fair.

O. I. Mairs got home last Monday from his visit to Los Angeles. While there he called upon Mr. Stock who informed him that the malicious report published in the Financial News of London set his enterprise back at least three months, but that he will eventually succeed. This valley seems fated to meet with just such misfortunes. No matter what enterprise is contemplated for improvement here, there is always some evil disposed parties who will give it a black eye.

Fourth Ascent of Mt Williamson.

Last Monday the following party succeeded in getting to the summit of Mount Williamson, namely: William L Hunter, J. V. Skinner and his daughter, Miss June Skinner, A. W. de la Cour Carroll, W. L. Hunter Jr. and C. Mulholland. This is the fourth time that Williamson has been ascended. The first to reach the summit were A. H. Johnson and Julius Schroder, who made the ascent on August 29, 1881. William L. Hunter climbed the mountain on August 30, 1885. The next ascent was made in August, 1890, by J. V. Skinner, C. A. Skinner, Dr. G. N. Skinner, Finley McIver, Loughlin McLean and W. S. Skinner. Miss June Skinner is the only woman who has yet been on the summit of Williamson. She made the climb without showing a trace of fear at any point and without assistance except an occasional clasp of her father's hand to get up over some ledges of rock that were too high for her to reach. Mr. Carroll took along a camera and has has made a series of pictures, including a complete circle from the summit. These pictures may be used to illustrate a lengthy article, the purpose being to make known the attractions of the mountains and induce visitors to come here. It is a much harder task to climb Williamson than to climb Mt. Whitney. This last party got back all safe on Wednesday.

Drowned in Owens River.

On Tuesday Under-Sheriff Holland received a letter from Mrs. Calvert stating that she had found a man floating down the river and had moored him to the bank. Mr. Holland notified Coroner Howell and that gentleman went up on Wednesday and held an inquest and buried the remains. It seems that Charley Brown, a mulatto, aged about 35 years, who came here from Stockton about three years ago with the stallion, Mt. Vernon Prince, and in the employ of A. L. Conklin, started to put some cattle across the river near the Curtis ranch last Friday. He did not return, and next morning his horse came back riderless. A search was made for him without avail, and the conclusion arrived at that he was drowned. His remains were recovered as stated. Owens River is a dangerous stream. It is filled with quicksand and where may be a crossing to-day may be twenty feet deep to-morrow. In its tortuous course it has washed caves in the overhanging banks where dangerous eddies carry everything that may come within their reach. A number of deaths have occurred by drowning in this stream, and in several instances the body of the unfortunate person was never recovered after the most careful search, the supposition being that it was covered by the ever-changing sands.

Fair Race Programme.

The local committee of citizens of Bishop have arranged the programme below given for the coming fair. The purses aggregate $700 and afford an opportunity for all horse owners to enter their animals in a race for their respective classes. The programme is a liberal one and at least eight horses will go up from this end of the Valley.

FIRST DAY.

Trotting, 2 year-olds, free for all colts raised in District; mile and repeat, purse $100—$75 to first, $25 to second.

Running, ¼ mile dash, free for all, $50.

SECOND DAY.

Trotting, free for all stallions owned in District, 3 in 5, mile heats—$100.

Running, 2 year-olds, ¼ mile dash—$50

THIRD DAY.

Trotting, 3:10 class, mile and repeat—$75

Running, mile dash, free for all—$100

FOURTH DAY.

Trotting, free for all horses owned in the District, 3 in 5, mile heats, $150—$100 to first, $50 to second.

In all races entrance fee 10 per cent; 3 or more to enter, 2 or more to start.

There will be a baseball tournament, the conditions of which have not yet been announced.

Board of Education.

The Board of Education of Inyo county met at Independence last Monday, present H. H. Howell, F. E. Densmore, H. C. Hampton, Mrs. Sadie C. Mulholland and J. H. Shannon. H. H. Howell was duly elected President. The following committees were appointed: On rules and regulations, H. H. Howell, F. E. Densmore, Mrs. Mulholland. On credentials, F. E. Densmore, Mrs. Mulholland, H. H. Howell. On course of study, J. H. Shannon, H. C. Hampton, Mrs. Mulholland. Applications for examination were made as follows: Katie Arcularius, for primary certificate. For diplomas, Carrie Gregg and Tina McDonald. Miss Lizzie McKnight will be granted a certificate on credentials. Of the candidates examined it would appear from the studies passed in that they would succeed in getting through. The Board will adjourn to-day.

Mr. Wrinkle, please give an account of yourself. Why do you not cease operating the only business that at the present time affords a cash market for the farmers in the county, when you have found by trial that you cannot continue such business except by present methods? Why do you continue to afford employment to Frank Lawrence and his corps of wood-choppers, packers etc., who all obtain their supplies at Independence? Why do you not operate at a loss until you are broke, your concern is declared no good, and the valley loses a valuable and profitable enterprise? The Index is curious to know.

WE WANT YOU

to act as our agent. We furnish an expensive outfit and all you need free. It costs nothing to try the business. We will treat you well, and help you to earn ten times ordinary wages. Both sexes of all ages can live at home and work in spare time, or all the time. Any one any where can earn a great deal of money. Many have made Two Hundred Dollars a Month. No class of people in the world are making so much money without capital as those at work for us. Business pleasant, strictly honorable, and pays better than any other offered to agents. You have a clear field, with no competition. We equip you with everything, and supply printed directions for beginners which, if obeyed faithfully, will bring more money than will any other business. Improve your prospects! Why not? You can do so easily and surely at work for us. Reasonable industry only necessary for absolute success. Pamphlet circular giving every particular is sent free to all. Delay not in sending for it.

GEORGE STINSON & CO.,
Box No. 488, Portland, Me.

MISCELLANEOUS.

(Official.)

Ordinance No. 49.

The Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, Do Ordain As Follows:

SECTION 1. Section 7 of Ordinance No. 43, which was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the 8th day of January, 1892, and which said Ordinance No. 43 is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 89 et seq. and was amended by Ordinance No. 47, by the said Board of Supervisors, on the 5th day of April, 1893, which said amending Ordinance is recorded in Ordinance Book "B" at pages 100 et seq., is hereby amended to read as follows:

Section 7. Every person who at a fixed place of business sells any malt or fermented liquors, wines or distilled liquors, whether on commission or otherwise (except viticultural productions when sold by the producers thereof, and fermented or malt liquors when sold by the manufacturer thereof, on the premises on which the same shall have been manufactured), must obtain from the Tax-Collector, and for each branch of said business, a license, and must pay quarterly therefor the sum of Forty Dollars. And every such manufacturer of any malt or fermented liquors, who sells the same on the premises on which such liquors may or shall be manufactured must obtain from the Tax-Collector, for such business a license, and must pay quarterly therefor the sum of Twenty Dollars.

SECTION 2. This Ordinance shall take effect and be in force on and after twenty-five (25) days from its passage.

SECTION 3. This Ordinance shall be published with the names of the members of said Board of Supervisors voting for and against the same, in the "Inyo Independent," a newspaper printed and published in the said County of Inyo, at least two [2] weeks said publication to be made said time and before the expiration of said twenty five [25] days.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

{SEAL}

Attest: D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors

The above and foregoing Ordinance No. 49 was duly passed, enacted and ordained by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo State of California, at a regular meeting of said Board held on the Eleventh day of July, 1893, by the following vote:

Ayes: Supervisors Frank Fitzgerald, A. C. Freeman, John Wilson, W. H. Uhlmeyer, R. Love

Noes: None.

R. LOVE.
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of the County of Inyo, State of California.

{SEAL}

Attest: D. J. HESSION,
Clerk of said Board of Supervisors.

[Endorsed.]

ORDINANCE NO. 49.

Adopted July 11, 1893

D. J. HESSION Clerk.

Recorded July 11, 1893, in Book "B" of Ordinances, at pages 1-3 et seq.

D. J. HESSION,
By J. E. PARKER, County Recorder.
Deputy.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

Estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN BY THE UNdersigned, Administrator of the estate of FREDRICK J. REYNOLDS, deceased, to the creditors of, and all persons having claims against the said deceased, to exhibit them with the necessary vouchers, within four months after the first publication of this notice, to the said Administrator, at the office of P. W. Forbes, in the Court House, at the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, the same being the place for the transaction of the business of the said estate in the said County of Inyo, State of California.

EDWARD JOHN REYNOLDS,
Administrator of the estate of Fredrick J. Reynolds, deceased.

Dated at Independence, Cal. June 13th, 1893.
P. W. Forbes, Attorney for Administrator.
jn16 5t

JOHN B. CLARKE,

Successor to John Clarke,

—PROPRIETOR—

John Clarke's Bishop Stables,

BISHOP, CAL.

First-class Turnouts of Every Kind.
Fine Horses and Carriages.
Horses Boarded for any Time,
Best of Care and Attention

The Newest Style

OF

Fashionable Clothing
Dry Goods, Ladies'
Wear, etc., etc

AT

L. WOOD

CASH STORE

A small stock of fresh groceries & canned goods constantly renewed.

Fresh Produce, and Grain
Flour, etc., constantly on hand.

CANDIES,
PEANUTS
WALNUTS,
TOYS!

THE CASH STORE

Is Where You Get

WORTH OF YOUR MONEY

STEEL, BLUE AND WHITE ENAMELED, "DRESDEN" WARE.

SEVENTH

ANNUAL FAIR,

Agricultural District No. 18.

BISHOP, INYO CO., CAL.

Septembes 19 to 22, 1893.

JEWELRY, DIAMONDS. WATCHES.

Hyman Fredrick, Reno, Nev.

The attention of the people of Inyo and neihboring counties is respectfully invited to the

LARGEST AND BEST STOCK

of Watches, Diamonds, Ear and Finer Rings, Bracelets and all other kinds of Jewelry this side of San Francisco. Knives, Forks, Spoons, and other Table Ware of the est quality.

PRICES DEFY OUTSIDE COMPETITION.

☞ All repairs done promptly and in a workmanlike manner.

Address orders and packnes to

HYMAN FREDRICK, Jeweler,

0-m RENO, NEVADA.

INDEPENDENCE

SHAVING PARLOR.

J. TUCKER, Prop'r.

HAIR CUTTING IN ANY STYLE. SHAMPOOING AND BATHS.

☞ Adjoining Irwin's Old Corner Saloon. ☜

DR. J. S. MC QUEEN,

DENTIST.

Graduate Chicago College Dental Surgery

All kinds of dental work done according to latest improved methods.

Examination free. Office in H. E. Wright's Drugstore.

SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

We have made arrangements with Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., publishers of "A Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," which will enable all our subscribers to obtain a copy of that valuable work free by sending their address (enclosing a two-cent stamp for mailing same) to DR. B. J. KENDALL CO., ENOSBURGH FALLS, VT. This book is now recognized as standard authority upon all diseases of the horse, as its phenomenal sale attests, over four million copies having been sold in the past ten years, a sale never before reached by any publication in the same period of time. We feel confident that our patrons will appreciate the work, and be glad to avail themselves of this opportunity of obtaining a valuable book.

It is necessary that you mention this paper in sending for the "Treatise." This offer will remain open for only a short time.

CAVEATS, TRADE MARKS, DESIGN PATENTS, COPYRIGHTS, etc.

For information and free Handbook write to MUNN & CO., 361 BROADWAY, NEW YORK. Oldest bureau for securing patents in America. Every patent taken out by us is brought before the public by a notice given free of charge in the

Scientific American

Largest circulation of any scientific paper in the world. Splendidly illustrated. No intelligent man should be without it. Weekly, $3.00 a year; $1.50 six months. Address MUNN & CO., PUBLISHERS, 361 Broadway, New York City.

A. W. Eibeshutz

Independence, Cal.

—DEALER IN—

GENERAL MERCHANDISE

Agent for

Fireman's Fund Insurance Co. of California:

Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London.

BIG PINE HOTEL.

BIG PINE - CAL.

New House.
New Furniture.
Low Rates

☞ Splendid hunting and fishing near by, in act, it is a veritable paradise for tourists and pleasure seekers.

Special attention given to the wants of every guest.

Thos. Williams,

Proprietor.

BISHOP ADVERTISEMENTS.

J. E. DUNLAP.

Harness Maker.

Harness of all kinds, from the lightest to the heaviest. Any kind of new work made promptly and of the best material. Repairing done on the shortest notice. A full line of saddles and harness.

Valley View Hotel.

O. H. Hill, Prop'r.

A New House Newly Furnished Throughout. Guests will receive every courtesy and attention.

BISHOP CREEK

BREWERY,

L. MUNZINGER & CO.,
Proprietors.

All the appliances and conveniences of First Class Brewery, including a beautiful grove for out-door parties.

☞ Customers supplied on all points ☜

☞ Of the C. & C. Railroad. ☜

Send orders to

L. MUNZINGER & CO.
Bishop Creek, Cal.

BLACKSMITHING,

Horseshoeing, General Iron

—AND—

WAGON WORK.

PIONEER BLACKSMITH SHOP

Cor. Main St. & Depot Ave.,

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

W. F. MATLACK .....PROP'R.

Horseshoeing .....$2.00 for Cash

For particulars, call and see
W. F. MATLACK.

INDEPENDENCE

MEAT MARKET,

J. C. ROEPER, Prop.

Keep constantly on hand the very choicest of all kinds of meats, including

Beef,
Mutton,
Pork,
Sausage.

A well appointed shop, with refrigerator, insuring the purity of meat, and every ort made to give satisfaction to patrons.
j19-tf

A. K. EUGLEY,

BIG PINE INYO CO. CAL.

PROVISIONS,

&c., &c., &c.

A. K. EUGLEY,

Big Pine, Cal.

BELL'S Flouring Mills

A. N. BELL, Prop.

TRY BELL'S

EXTRA PATENT ROLLER FLOUR.

Having added Patent Rolls and other improvements to our Mills, I am now turning out Flour that is fully

Equal to the Best

Corn, Oats and Barley Cracked on Short Notice.

Independence, Cal A. N. BELL.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Railroad Time Table.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R.

H. M. YERINGTON,
General Superintendent.

R. J. LAWS, Assistant Superintendent.

D. A. BENDER.
General Freight and Passenger Agent.

STATIONS.	From Mound House. No. 1		To Mound House. No. 2.
	Leave—		Arrives—
Mound House.....	10:05 a. m		5:30 p. m.
Dayton	10:45 a. m.		4:50 p. m.
Wabuska	12:30 p. m		2:20 p. m.
Hawthorne	4:05 p. m		10:45 a. m.
Luning	5:30 p. m.		9:20 a. m.
Sodа Springs.....	6:40 p. m.		8:40 a. m.
Belleville	7:50 p. m.		7:20 a. m.
Candelaria	Ar. 8:35 p. m		Lv. 6:45 a. m.
	No. 3. Leave—		No. Arrives—
Belleville	7:50 a. m		5:35 a. m.
Zenton	11:00 a. m		1:45 p. m.
Basalt Creek	1:20 . m.		11:10 p. m.
Alvord.....	2:05 p. m		10:10 p. m.
Independence.....	3:40 p. m.		8:40 p. m.
Lone Pine.....	4:00 p. m.		7:45 p. m.
Keeler.....	Ar. 5:20 p. m.		Lv. 7:00 p. m.

Trains 1 and 2 run daily.
Train 3 runs Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.
Train 4 runs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays

Passenger trains make close connection at Mound House with express trains of V. & T. R. R., which connect at Reno with east and west-bound trains of Central Pacific Railroad.

Stage Connections:

At HAWTHORNE with United States Stage Company's coaches for Aurora (36 miles), Bodie (18 miles), Bridgeport and Bridgeport.

At LUNING (128 miles from Mound House) with Gilmore & Sharply & Co's tri-weekly stages (leaving Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays) for Downieville Graeteville and Belmont.

At CANDELARIA with U. S. Stage Co's stage for Columbia (3 miles), Silver Peak, Montezuma Alida Valley, Gold Mountain, etc.

At KEELER with stages from Cerro Gordo (3 miles), Darwin (24 miles), and Mojave (110 miles)

NORMAN HOUSE,

Independence, - Cal

New House
New Furniture.
Low Rates.

☞ Special attention will be given to secure the comfort of guests.

O. I. MAIRS, Pro
feb12tf

Pioneer Livery & Feed Stables.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.

Having returned and resumed the management of the above well known feed and livery stables, patrons can be assured of finding there the best of Buggy Teams, Saddle Horses, and

Livery Accommodations

in general. Also, Hay and Grain for sale by the pound or ton.

O. I. MAIRS, Proprietor

Palace Saloon.

MAT. McDONALD, Lessee.

—THE BAR—

Is constantly supplied with the best kinds of WINES, LIQUORS, & CIGARS

☞ The most careful attention given to the amusement and comfort of patrons.

A FINE BILLIARD TABLE!

Is always at the disposal of visitors to the Palace Saloon. sept-12 td

Inyo Stage Company.

REGULAR LINE

—FROM—

Mojave To Keeler.

FINE COACH FAST STOCK.

The route lies through the picturesque and beautiful

Redrock Canyon

And along the base of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the grandest scenery in America.

Stage leaves Mojave,
TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS
at 6 o'clock p. m

Stage leaves Keeler,
MONDAYS AND THURSDAYS
at 7 o'clock a. m.

W. K. MILLER,
Propr.

Royal Baking Powder, made from absolutely pure Grape Cream of Tartar

Imparts that peculiar lightness, sweetness, and delicious flavor noticed in the finest bread, cake, biscuit, rolls, crusts, etc., which expert pastry cooks declare is unobtainable by the use of any other leavening agent.

TYLER'S HOLDOVER CABINET.

Daniel Webster's Speech and the Reply of the Newly Chosen President.

I had quite a chat some time ago with General John Tyler, the son and private secretary of President Tyler. Said he: "When my father succeeded to the presidency, he continued President Harrison's cabinet in office until he found that they were working against him. His first cabinet meeting was held on the day succeeding the death of President Harrison, and it was perhaps the most remarkable cabinet meeting in history.

"When all the members were present and the doors were closed, Daniel Webster, the secretary of state, arose and addressed my father, saying: 'Mr. President, I suppose you intend to carry out the ideas and customs of your predecessor and that this administration inaugurated by President William Harrison will continue in the same line of policy on which it has begun. Am I right?'

"My father, much astonished, nodded his head almost involuntarily and looked at Mr. Webster with wonder. Daniel Webster straightened himself up at this and continued.

"'Mr. President, it was the custom in our cabinet meetings of President Harrison that the president should preside over them. All measures relating to the administration were to be brought before the cabinet, and their settlement was to be decided by the majority of votes, each member of the cabinet and the president having but one vote.'

"My father was always courteous, but he was also firm. He rose to his feet and looking about the cabinet room he said: 'Gentlemen, I am very proud to have in my cabinet such able statesmen as you have proved yourselves to be. I shall be pleased to avail myself of your counsel and advice, but I can never consent to being dictated to as to what I shall or shall not do. I am the president, and I shall be held responsible for my administration. I hope I shall have your hearty co-operation in carrying out its measures. So long as you see fit to do this I shall be glad to have you with me. When you think otherwise, I will be equally glad to get your resignation.'

"This," concluded General Tyler, "settled the question, and there was no further trouble as to who was the head of the cabinet."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

A Suggestion For Dancing Parties.

The wits of hostesses are becoming more strained than ever in finding gentleman capable of dancing to attend their parties. Ladies nimble and graceful are in abundance, but on the part of men the art of dancing seems to be a vanishing quantity. A lady writes suggesting the organization of an agency similar to those existing in Paris and Berlin, where suitable dancing men could be hired for the occasion. The hired guests would appear at the time appointed armed with guarantees of respectability and fitness for their occupation, be allotted to their duties for the evening and leave at a proper hour, conscious of having done a good night's work and honestly earned a day's pay. Imagine how half a dozen to a dozen dancing men would brighten up a languishing dance! Warranted to dance every item on the programme and to give not more than three dances to any young lady, they would infuse a tremendous amount of spirit into the proceedings.—Dancing.

Fear an Element In Sickness.

That apprehension of catching epidemic diseases assists in spreading them is an old doctrine, in support of which many facts might be cited, and it is only reasonable to suppose that where the reception of contagion is assisted by depression of the system alarm would have that effect. It is, however, the common experience of medical men that especially in surgical cases sanguine have a great advantage over despondent patients, and that to abandon the expectation of recovery is about the worst thing which anybody anxious for recovery can do.

Sir Astley Cooper indeed was always reluctant to perform an operation where the subject to be submitted to it was apprehensive of a fatal result. When patients had made up their minds that they would not recover, they seemed to him to lose their recuperative power.—London World.

Carbonate and phosphate of lime prepared from crab shells, and various other calcareous substances derived from the animal kingdom, such as burned egg shells and oyster shells, were long employed in medicine to remove acidity of the digestive organs.—London Tit-Bits.

UNCLE SETH'S ADVICE TO POETS.

The poets what write about nymps an them things,
An driuds an goddesses hain't got no sense—
An sylfs an angels what fly round 'ith wings
'Ithout ever a-stoppin to light on the fense—
They hain't got no idee
Of what po'try sh'd be,
An they don't tech a feller like you an like me.

For they talk about gods the old Greeks uster sing,
An goddesses nobody b'lieves in no more;
In a kin of a classical ting-a-ling-ling,
They say the same things we have all hearn afore
In a langwidge so gran
That we can't understan,
An too stylish an swell for a workaday man.

W'y, bless ye, there's po'try in flowers an birds
An courtin an luv an young babies enough
Thet don't hev to hev long academy words
To make a man yell, "Thet's the stuff, thet's the stuff!"
Yes, thet's jest the stuff
Of which any ole duff
Like you and like me can't fill up with enough.

Jest fix up yer songs so us plain folks can hear,
An make 'em some sense fer me an my wife;
Make 'em jingle an gallup 'ith everyday cheer;
Wet 'em down 'ith the joose of the winepress of life!
Fetch 'em up from your heart,
Where all songs orter start,
Let your Pegasus go an climb into our cart!
—Sam W. Foss in Yankee Blade.

Souvenir Spoons.

"Some people are born with silver spoons in their mouths." If it is only a plain, everyday sort of silver spoon, it doesn't count in these fin de siecle days. It must be a souvenir spoon, and no common one at that, or one had better not have been born. This is indeed a time, if not an age, of luxury, and even the poorest people are not contented with the plain usages and appointments of the past half century. It is an age of constant changes, where nothing lasts, and in which anything that is before the public more than a year is considered a matter of ancient history.

The wonder is that with such an existing state of things a fad like that of collecting souvenir spoons should have lasted more than one season, and yet the interesting fact remains that the fancy or fad or whatever you choose to call it of souvenir spoons is just as eagerly followed now as it was five years ago, when first introduced.—Once a Week.

The Death of Cleopatra.

The story that Cleopatra killed herself by allowing an asp to bite her has long been believed, but probably has no better historical basis than the fanciful imagination of a gossipy Roman historian. For some time before her death she made careful preparations for that event and tried many different kinds of poisons on her unfortunate slaves to see which would produce death with the least apparent agony. She probably died by one of these poisons, for she was as adept in such matters as any of the Borgias. No asp was found in her room, and the wound on her breast supposed to have been that of its bite probably had another origin, for her whole body was covered with bruises, where she, in Egyptian fashion, had struck herself with her fists and torn her flesh with her nails in her grief for the loss of Antony.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Golden Silence.

There are times when "silence is golden," but women have the reputation of always ignoring this fact. A minister's wife tells a good story at her own expense which illustrates man's incredulity of her ability to keep her mouth shut under any consideration. Her husband was recovering from a serious illness. The day when the worst was over the doctor smiled, with the remark that all he needed was quiet and spoke of a powder which he would leave. Rising to go, the wife reminded him of the powder "to keep her husband quiet," when to her amusement the doctor turned, and looking her in the face said: "The powder was not for your husband, but for you. He will be quiet enough if he only gets the chance."—Exchange.

Good Boy—Here is that penny you gave me to put on the contribution plate. I made a mistake an put in a button instead.

Father—Hum! What did Deacon Sharp say when he saw it?

Good Boy—He didn't notice it. I guess the church is out of kindling wood, because I heard him mutter something about getting more chips from the ole block.—Good News.

Salti, a Sardinian city, has no police, no clergymen, no doctor, no chapel. Marriages are ratified by a priest or registrar at a parish many miles distant, to which brides and bridegrooms travel in batches to have the necessary ceremonial conducted.

The minute green bodies found on the fresh water polyp have been shown to be vegetable cells which furnish sugar for the animal, while the latter in turn provides them with nourishment.

MASTERED IT OVER NIGHT.

A Determined Mocking Bird That Succeeded In Imitating a Hard Cry.

A good story about a bird or any other animal is doubly interesting if the reader can be sure that it is not only true substantially, but has not been dressed out by the writer's imagination. Such a story is the following, told by Mr. William Brewster, one of the best known of American ornithologists. He was spending some weeks at the little village of St. Mary's on the coast of Georgia. Mocking birds were abundant, and being protected by every one were half domesticated, building their nests in the shrubbery that surrounded the houses and hopping about like robins upon the grass plots and graveled walks. An orange tree in front of the window was appropriated by a particularly fine singer.

His repertory included the notes of nearly all the birds in the surrounding region, besides many of the characteristic village sounds, and most of the imitations were simply perfect. Moreover, he was continually adding to his accomplishments. An instance of this occurred one afternoon when several of us were sitting on the veranda.

A greater yellow legs (a well known game bird of the snipe and sandpiper family) passing over the town was attracted by my answering whistle and circled several times above the house reiterating his mellow call.

The mocking bird up to this time had been singing almost uninterruptedly, but at the sound of these strange notes he relapsed into silence and retreated into the thickest foliage of his favorite tree. Then we heard him trying them in an under tone.

The first note came pretty readily, but the falling inflection of the succeeding three troubled him. When ever I ventured to prompt, he would listen attentively, and at the next attempt show an evident improvement.

Finally he abandoned the task, as we thought, in despair, and at sunset that evening, for the first and only time during my stay, his voice was missing in the general chorus. But at daylight the next morning the garden rang with a perfect imitation of the yellow leg's whistle. He had mastered it during the night, and ever afterward it was his favorite part.

The discomforture of the rival males in the neighborhood was as amusing as it was unmistakable. Each in turn tried the new song, but not one succeeded.

Harry Edwards and His Specimen.

The late Harry Edwards was an enthusiastic amateur botanist. On one occasion he was accompanied by Mrs. Edwards and a friend of hers upon a short excursion into the country. As they were waiting at the station for the returning train, the two women lounging back in relaxed attitudes of utter fatigue, the actor strolled away for a little walk. Presently he came rushing back, his face full of excitement. "See here!" he cried, holding up to view a little wilting plant, "I've looked for this from Maine to Florida. It's an extremely rare specimen of the"—etc.

The ladies turned their heads languidly in his direction. Mrs. Edwards said nothing. The other drawled, "It seems—to me—a—very—common—weed." The extinguished botanist stared in blank anger for a moment. Then he turned on his heel. All his rising fury could seize upon was a loudly uttered epithet. "You're two cads!" he flung back over his shoulder.—New York Times.

A Woman's Handkerchief.

A woman's handkerchief is so closely identified with her that it seems a part of her presence, and both in fact and fiction, particularly fiction, it frequently figures among the keepsakes of the ardent lover. We have all thrilled at its discovery upon the breast of the wounded hero.

It is simply indispensable to every condition of woman. If she is nervous, she toys with it; enthusiastic, she applauds with it; tearful, it is her friend indeed. Moreover, in seeking either to stop a street car or beckon her lover, it is her signal. In the latter capacity it contributed largely toward bringing about one of the most renowned tragedies of our own times.—Philadelphia Times.

His Posthumous Fortification.

Stephen Langford, a wealthy farmer of Madison county, Ky., has just had completed for him here a stone coffin. It weighs about 1,500 pounds and is made of Kentucky limestone quarried from Langford's farm. He is 80 years old, but is apparently in the best of health. Mr. Langford says that the country around his home is overrun with polecats, minks and groundhogs, and he believes the only way to keep them from devouring his body is to have it buried in a stone coffin.—Cor. Pittsburg Dispatch.

Mr. Blake is unquestionably a man of great capacity, and he is a ready debater. His utterances, however, have the merits and demerits of transatlantic oratory. He was too diffuse, and he piled word on word in his sentences with needless redundancy. And the sentences! Never yet have I heard such lengthy ones. I sat through three minutes of one; then I withdrew to smoke a cigarette. When I returned, so far as I could learn, the sentence was not yet concluded.—London Truth.

Covers a Multitude of Sins.

Biggs—You say your wife always pins a flower on your coat before you leave home?

"Yes, she has for a month."

Biggs—Well, it shows she thinks of you——

"No, it's because she never can remember to sew on the button."—

The Powder of Projection.

The belief in transmutation and in the virtues of the "powder of projection" is to be found more clearly stated in the works of Zosimus of Panopolis, the earliest known writer on alchemy whose authentic works have come down to us, for in his first lesson he exclaims, "How beautiful it is to see the changes of the four metals—lead, copper, tin, silver—till they become perfect gold!" The idea had evidently been developed and the art assiduously cultivated in Egypt since the time of the spurious Democritus, for Zosimus quotes the opinions of many adepts, of whose writings, mostly apochryphal, nothing is known save from his pages.

Hermes Trismegistus and Democritus, Moses and Mary the Jewess, Agathodemon and Cleopatra, the prophet Chymes and the "divine" Sophar are quoted as authorities for the operations to be performed on various minerals, which, after being duly melted, calcined, refined and sublimated over and over, are declared to have become gold or silver.

To these more or less intelligible descriptions of chemical processes Zosimus adds his own commentaries, which he sometimes presents under the form of allegories or visions.—Edinburgh Review.

Narcotic Effects of a California Spring.

Superintendent Stout recently described a wonderful mineral spring that formerly flowed from the mountain side some miles above the Butte Creek House and near the Plumas county line.

This spring was first called to Mr. Stout's attention some years ago while camping in that vicinity by an old prospector, who called it the "chloroform spring." The water which flowed from it did not differ in appearance or taste from the water of other springs, except that it was slightly brackish. It was the effect that followed the drinking of its waters that was remarkable. A small cup would in the course of half an hour render the drinker totally insensible, and he would remain for hours as if dead. But few white men had ever tried the experiment of drinking from it, but those who have done so describe the effect as not unlike that resulting from a heavy narcotic.

To the Indians this spring has been known for generations. They call it the "heap sleep" spring, and it is said that more than one weary red man has entered the happy hunting grounds through the medium of its waters.—Oroville Mercury.

An Anecdote of Thackeray.

On the last night of the year Thackeray was with the family of George Ticknor. The daughters of the house had gone to a party, and Thackeray was sitting for the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Ticknor. About 11 o'clock he arose, and his host inquired:

"You are not going to retire yet?"

"No," was the answer, "for always at the birth of the new year I drink to the health and happiness of my daughters, but I do not wish to keep you up so late."

"Pray stay with us," urged the host, "and we will join you in a health to your absent ones."

When the hour arrived Thackeray took a glass of sherry in his hand, rose to his feet, and said in tremulous tones:

"God bless my motherless girls. God bless them and all who are good to them."

Drinking the wine, he bade his host good night and without another word he retired from the room, leaving his friends in tears.—Chicago Tribune.

A Cat That Put Out a Fire.

Some of our friends have a cat which they esteem very highly.

On a cold winter day Mr. and Mrs. B. went to church, some five miles away, and left the house in the possession of the cat, Tom, who upon their return home rushed out and buried his paws in the cold snow.

Wanting to find out the meaning of this behavior on Tom's part, they examined his paws and found them blistered and burned. They walked into the house and found to their surprise that the carpet around the grate was burned, but the fire had been extinguished. They now took in the situation. A coal had fallen out of the grate and set the carpet ablaze, which had been extinguished by Tom, who had burned his paws in the effort he made.—Cor. New York Recorder.

A Lamb's Ride on a Cowcatcher.

A rather singular incident occurred on the Savannah, Florida and Western railway the other day. It was about 40 miles from Waycross on a through train to Chattahoochee. On the track just in front of the train the engineer, Mr. DuBose, saw a sheep with a young lamb. It was too late to stop the engine, and the train passed on, leaving mutton in its wake. Arrived at Waycross, the engineer descended from his engine and saw the lamb alive and unhurt on the cowcatcher. It had been carried 40 miles without a scratch.—Brunswick (Ga.) Times.

His Offense.

The prisoner was a tramp arrested for chasing a watchdog all over the back yard and kicking him into a pulp.

"Guilty or not guilty?" asked the judge sternly.

"I was only rushing the growler, your honor."

"Sixty days."—Detroit Free Press.

The house of commons has met on Sunday 11 times, on various occasions when urgency demanded it. The first time was in the reign of Edward III, the last at the death of George II.

Mrs. Homespun, who has a terrible time every morning to get her young brood out of their beds, says she cannot understand why children are called the rising generation.

A Business Vagabond.

A very dirty and bedraggled specimen of a tramp strolled into a grocery store in Park street the other morning, and the first man he met was the proprietor.

"Can you gimme a dime?" asked the visitor meekly.

"I can, but I hardly think I shall," was the cheerful response. "Why in thunder don't you go wash yourself?"

"I can't afford to," whined the tramp.

"Can't you, indeed? Water's plenty, and soap doesn't cost anything."

"Don't it?" queried the tramp.

"No, it don't."

The tramp edged over toward the door.

"Well," he said, with his hand on the latch, "if it don't, I'd like for you to figure out for me what your per cent of profit is on every bar you sell to your deluded customers," and with that he dodged outside and disappeared.—Detroit Free Press.

Distinctions In Fortune's Favor.

Recent history is full of curious contrasts in the rewards won in the great field of human endeavor. Horace Smith, who invented the Smith & Wesson revolving firearms, died leaving an estate valued at $5,000,000. Orange Judd, who did more perhaps than any other man to teach the American farmer how to make agriculture profitable, left a personal estate valued at $150.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Bilkins—Is your friend an English author?

Wilkins—No; he's only a dyspeptic.—New York Weekly.

"HE WAS IN IT."

Judge Monroe So Decided in Favor of Kelly.—Kelly vs. Fenlow.

John J. Kelly vs. People's Bank et al. Plaintiff began this suit by seizing a lottery ticket, one-twentieth of a whole ticket, which had won $15,000 and had been forwarded to the People's Bank for collection, and in which he claimed one-fourth interest as owner. By consent the ticket was cashed and the unclaimed three-quarters were withdrawn, leaving the contested one-quarter, which was also claimed by John W. Fenlow, under control of the court.

The parties live in St. Louis, and have been quite unfortunate. In 1891 Fenlow, Kelly, Norleman, O'Keefe and Connors formed a quasi club, and on three or four occasions purchased five fractions of lottery tickets, said fractions costing $1 each, and each member, contributing his proportion of the price, was equally interested in the winnings. Fenlow generally was charged with purchasing the tickets, and held them until the drawing.

The members usually paid their contributions before the drawings, and Fenlow paid the lottery ticket vendor.

In April, 1892, they invested (Connors had dropped out.) All paid except Kelly, who had agreed to pay his dollar on the day preceding the drawing.

The tickets had been selected by Norleman. There was no further intercourse between the members of the club until after the drawing on Tuesday, April 12, when it was learned that one of the four tickets had won $15,000. The tickets have been paid for by Fenlow, and the question for the court to decide is whether Fenlow paid for account of Kelly $1, or whether it was for his own account.

The day after the drawing Kelly tendered his dollar, but was told that he was "too late" and that he was "not in it."

The court concludes that Fenlow gave Kelly to understand that he (Fenlow) would see that Kelly's interest in the ticket would be paid for.

It is therefore ordered, adjudged and decreed that there be judgment in favor of John J. Kelly and against John W. Fenlow, decreeing Kelly to have been the owner of an undivided one-fourth interest in the lottery ticket, and that plaintiff receive and collect $3,750 representing the one-fourth of the proceeds of the lottery ticket now on deposit.—New Orleans (La.) City Item.

When a man wins at poker he shoves his hat on the back of his head. When he loses he pulls it down over his eyes.

HOITT'S OAK GROVE SCHOOL.

Hoitt's Oak Grove School, Millbrae, San Mateo Co., Cal. A first-class home school for boys. Beautiful surroundings. Superior instruction. The best of care. Its graduates for 1893 are admitted to the State University or Stanford University without examination. Number of pupils limited. Fall term commences August 1st. Send for catalogue, and mention this paper. Ira G. Hoitt, Ph. D., Master, Ex-State Superintendent Public Instruction.

Making a Market—"We can't sell these $1 handkerchiefs at all, sir," said the floor-walker to the proprietor. "Oh, yes, we can," was the reply. "Mark them $1.27, and put them on the bargain counter."

TRIBUTE.

While it is over thirty years ago since Allcock's Porous Plasters were first introduced to the medical profession and public, the marked success and unprecedented popularity which they met with not only continues, but steadily increases. No other plasters have been produced which gain so many testimonials of high value as those continuously accorded to Allcock's Porous Plasters, and the only motive for these exceptional tributes lies in the fact of their being a medicinal and pharmaceutical preparation of superior value. Additional proof of the true value of Allcock's Porous Plasters lies in the fact that they are being largely imitated by unscrupulous persons, who seek to deceive the public by offering plasters which they claim to be the "same," "equal," "as good," "better," "best porous plaster," etc., while it is in general appearance only that they resemble Allcock's. Every one of the so-called porous plasters are imitations of Allcock's Porous Plasters.

Avoid dealers who attempt to palm off inferior and worthless plasters that are purchased by them at low rates for the purpose of substitution.

When a man finds a woman that there is nothing too good for he wants her to take him.

The Best Cure is that which truly cures. Promptly and Permanently. and St. Jacobs Oil Shows a Thousand Proofs of the worst cases of Pain It Has Cured.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Sold by Druggists or sent by mail. 50c. E. T. Hazeltine, Warren, Pa.

SURE CURE FOR PILES.

Sure cure for blind, bleeding and itching Piles. One box has cured the worst cases of ten years' standing. No one need suffer ten minutes after using Kirk's German Pile Ointment. It absorbs tumors, allays the itching, acts as a poultice, gives relief. Dr. Kirk's German Pile Ointment is prepared only for Piles and itching of the private parts, and nothing else. Every box is warranted.

Sold by Druggists and sent by mail on receipt of price, $1.00 per box. J. J. Mack & Co., Wholesale Agents, San Francisco.

"It's the little things that puzzle one, Mr. Soak." "That's so. Last night, for instance, I had no trouble in finding the house I lived in, but blame me if I could find the keyhole."

DECIDEDLY SHAKY.

A trembling hand, an uncertain step, fidgetiness, indicated by restless shifting from one place or posture to another, usually mental annoyance at unexpected noises, are among the indications of extreme nervousness. These seem trifling, but the health of men and women in this condition is "decidedly shaky," liable to be overthrown disastrously by causes which the vigorous might defy. To fortify the nervous system, general vigor must, through the medium of reinforced digestion, and a renewal of an impaired power of sleeping at night, be raised to a healthful standard. A guarantee of this is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which re-establishes digestion, bile secretion and the habit of body on a permanently regular basis, thus renewing that bodily equilibrium, which is followed by a gain of strength and nerve tranquility. For kidney complaint, rheumatism, neuralgia, and as a preventive of the first attack or subsequent return of malarial disorders, this medicine is without a peer. Thrice daily take a wineglassful.

"Have you a good cook?" "She's very good; goes to church four times a week. She can't cook, though."

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Made Him Desperate—Clara—I wouldn't be surprised if Mr. Fervid proposed to you to-night. Maud—What makes you think so? Clara—I refused him last night.

Use Enameline Stove Polish; no dust, no smell

Try Germea for Breakfast.

A LONG PROCESSION

of diseases start from a torpid liver and impure blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures every one of them. It prevents them, too. Take it, as you ought, when you feel the first symptoms (languor, loss of appetite, dullness, depression) and you'll save yourself from something serious.

In building up wasted flesh and strength, and to purify and enrich the blood, nothing can equal the "Discovery." It invigorates the liver and kidneys, promotes all the bodily functions, and brings back health and vigor. For Dyspepsia, "Liver Complaint," Biliousness, and all Scrofulous, Skin, and Scalp Diseases, it is the only remedy that's guaranteed to benefit or cure, in every case, or the money is refunded.

About Catarrh. No matter what you've tried and found wanting, you can be cured with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. The proprietors of this medicine agree to cure you, or they'll pay you $500 in cash.

"August Flower"

"For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said my stomach was worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food. On the recommendation of a friend I procured a bottle of August Flower. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained strength and flesh rapidly. I feel now like a new man, and consider that August Flower has cured me." Jas. E. Dederick, Saugerties, N.Y.

DR. GUNN'S IMPROVED LIVER PILLS A MILD PHYSIC

ONE PILL FOR A DOSE.

A movement of the bowels each day is necessary for health. These pills supply what the system lacks to make it regular. They cure Headache, brighten the Eyes and clear the Complexion better than cosmetics. They act mildly, neither gripe nor sicken as other pills do. To convince you of their merits we will mail samples free, or a full box for 25 cents. Sold everywhere. Bosanko Med. Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

BROOKLYN HOTEL.

208-212 Bush St., San Francisco.

This favorite Hotel is under the management of Chas. Montgomery, and is as good if not the best Family and Business Men's Hotel in San Francisco.

Home Comforts! Cusine Unexcelled!

First-class service and the highest standard of respectability guaranteed. Our rooms cannot be surpassed for neatness and comfort. Board and room, per day, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75 and $2.00; board and room, per week, $7 to $12; single rooms 50c to $1. Free coach to and from Hotel.

IRON BEDS, $6.00.

Send for Catalogue.

W. A. SCHROCK 21 New Montgomery St. San Francisco, Cal.

Fine Bedding, Hair Mattresses, Floss Mattresses, Wire Mattresses, and Pillows.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE

Best in the World! Get the Genuine! Sold Everywhere!

S. F. N. U. No. 579. New Series No. 30

Numb Spells, Chills

Rush of blood to the head, and other disagreeable symptoms afflicted Mrs. Annie W. Jordan, of 218 Tremont Street, Boston, caused by bad circulation of the blood. She could not take the physician's medicine, so began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and soon fully recovered and now enjoys perfect health.

Mrs. Jordan.

HOOD'S CURES

Hood's Pills cure Liver Ills, Jaundice, Biliousness, Sick Headache and Constipation.

CURE THAT COUGH WITH SHILOH'S CURE

25cts., 50cts., and $1.00 per Bottle. One cent a dose.

This Great Cough Cure promptly cures where all others fail. Coughs, Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Whooping Cough and Asthma. For Consumption it has no rival; has cured thousands, and will cure you if taken in time. Sold by Druggists on a guarantee. For a Lame Back or Chest, use SHILOH'S BELLADONNA PLASTER 25c.

SHILOH'S CATARRH REMEDY. Have you Catarrh? This remedy is guaranteed to cure you. Price, 50 cts. Injector free.

HAVE YOU GOT PILES

Itching Piles known by moisture like perspiration, cause intense itching when warm. This form and Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles yield at once to Dr. Bo-san-ko's Pile Remedy, which acts directly on parts affected, absorbs tumors, allays itching, effecting a permanent cure. Price 50c. Druggists or mail. Dr. Bosanko, Philadelphia, Pa.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING For sale by all Druggists. 25 Cents a bottle.

HERCULES

Gas and Gasoline

ENGINES.

Hundreds of them Sold and in Use

Hercules -:- Engines

.....F.....

Launches Schooners, Tow Boats,

—ALSO FOR—

Wood-working Machinery, Bean Cleaning Machinery, Hoisting Works in mines, running machine shops, shoe factories, churns, carpet-beating machinery, ice cream freezers, electric dynamos, sewing machines, printing machinery, electric motors, paint mills, elevators, pumping water, sawing lumber, bottling soda water, sawing wood, and many other classes of work.

NO COAL

To haul when running the Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine; no ashes, smell or dirt. Just light the burner, turn the wheel, and it runs all day. For simplicity and success it beats the world. The workmanship the best.

NO MAN who has water to pump, machinery to run, hoisting to do, etc., can afford to be without a Hercules Gas or Gasoline Engine. Their economy for intermittent power is beyond question. No double or false explosions.

Palmer & Rey Type Foundry

MANUFACTURER,

405 SANSOME ST., SAN FRANCISCO.

"WHERE DIRT GATHERS, WASTE RULES."

GREAT SAVING RESULTS FROM THE USE OF

SAPOLIO

RHEUMATISM CURED BY THE USE OF

Moore's Revealed Remedy.

Astoria, Oregon, January 10.—I can state with pleasure that by the use of MOORE'S REVEALED REMEDY my husband was relieved from an old case of RHEUMATISM and my youngest boy cured entirely of INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM when the best doctor I could get did him no good. Yours in gratitude MRS. N. V. STEELE.

SOLD BY YOUR DRUGGIST.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

COUNTY OFFICIAL PAPER.

